Rogers Senior Secondary School took the School's challenge cup yesterday at noon when their chariot, Spartacus, whipped their grade 11 counterparts in a two-lap race at Queen Elizabeth Park. Although "gladiators" Ted Allen and Brian Rogers (in chariot) didn't have knives on their wheels, they did carry a powerful fire extinguisher and a few overripe tomatoes.

COMMITTEE TO PROBE RISING SCHOOL COSTS

Reduced Taxes One Aim, Peterson Tells Trustees

By TERRY ROBERTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Education Minster Peterson announced Thursday establishment of a committee to study increasing school costs in British Columbia.

Mr. Peterson told the B.C. School Trustees Association annual convention that the association will have representation on the group which will report to a cabinet committee.

"It is my hope," he told the 500 delegates from 83 school districts, "that this committee will be able to make recommendations that will help reduce the costs to taxpayers who support this $50,000,000 a year enterprise."

He said he would chair the cabinet committee which will include Resources Minister Williston and Industry Minister Loffmark.

EFFORT NEEDED

Mr. Peterson said more effort should be made to standardize school building design to get away from the luxury of customized schools that are unique in design and costly to build.

The amount of money required to support education is continually rising yet "we cannot justify the annual increases in the cost of educating each pupil which have occurred in the past two years," he said.

The cost of educating each pupil rose $2.24 in the 1961-62 term, he said. In 1965-66 the increase was $41.50 and this year it is up another $44.82.

"Financial responsibility in your school districts demands that every measure of efficiency and economy be practised so that the finest educational service can be provided for every dollar of the taxpayers' money spent.

"This involves a very critical financial appraisal of every phase of the service and a practical realization that there are simply not sufficient tax dollars to provide all the features that may be proposed."

He said the provincial government is helping to shield districts from taxpayer wrath by increasing education grants and "we are studying ways and means of improving the present formula."

Mr. Peterson warned trustees "it is becoming increasingly difficult to secure long-term money at reasonable rates of interest and therefore we will have to continue to keep a watchful eye on expenditures for school construction."

He said sale of debentures by the school districts financing authority for non-shareable debentures has been discontinued, and limited only to essential projects.

Approval for non-shareable projects will be given only with the provisio that school boards concerned arrange for debenture financing without any provincial guarantee.

Delegates are to consider several resolutions on school financing during their three-day convention, which ends Friday.

CRANBROOK VOTERS DEFEAT WATER BYLAW

CRANBROOK — Defying support of all elected City officers, City department heads and all local communications media, Cranbrook City ratepayers flatly rejected the $325,000 water improvements bylaw Thursday.

Of about 2,800 eligible voters, 636 opposed the bylaw and 403 approved it.

The amount was to have been spent locating water wells and augmenting the present supply and distributions.

The referendum followed recommendations of Associated Engineering Services' three-year-old survey which said this was urgent, even then.

Soviet-Backed Jordan Talks Tough to Israel

By JOHN WEYLAND

MOSCOW (AP)—King Hussein of Jordan, promised Soviet economic aid and possibly arms, joined Russian leaders Thursday in demanding that Israel withdraw from Arab lands it conquered in the June war.

The richest of these lands belongs to Jordan, the hope of the West as the Arab nation most likely to negotiate with Israel.

But a communique released after Hussein flew home from a three-day visit here showed no softening of the hard Soviet-Arab position.

The communique declared that unless Israel pulls its forces out of conquered territory "the menace of a new conflict in the Middle East will not be eliminated."

Jordan's monarchy and Hussein in particular were the target of Soviet propaganda attacks until the conflict between Israel and the Arab state of Egypt, Jordan and Syria. He got his arms from the United States and Britain.

Unable to get Western arms for those he lost in the war with Israel, Hussein turned to Moscow, which is trying to extend its influence in the Middle East.

Informed sources said Hussein had received Soviet promises of economic aid and indicated Jordan also will receive arms. The communique said the two nations decided on the general lines of an agreement on trade and aid that will be signed later.

Hussein thanked the Soviet leaders for their support during the war and in attempts to force Israel to relinquish its conquests. In return, he joined the Russians in saying the situation in Southeast Asia "is dangerous for the whole world."

The communique declared for "the integral right of the Vietnamese people to decide their own fate without any foreign interference" but did not condemn the United States.

The Middle East issue bobbed up elsewhere around the world. Israel and Syria exchanged charges at the United Nations.

Israel said Syria is continuing terrorist attacks and four Israelis have been killed in the last 10 days. A letter made public at the UN in New York City said Syrian military camps are conducting "a crash program of training courses in sabotage, mine-laying and the use of weapons and explosives" and those trained are sent into Israel.

A Syrian letter accused Israel of the systematic destruction of the villages of Kafer-Elma and El-Hurriah in Israeli-occupied territories.

Labor Party Endorses British Bid for ECM

SCARBOROUGH, England (AP) — Labor party members have backed Prime Minister Wilson's bid to get Britain into the European Common Market, but a substantial minority demanded stronger safeguards for British interests.

Crucial debate at the ruling party's annual convention disclosed:

—Two out of three party members approve the case for British entry as argued by their leaders.

—Five out of 12 want better protection for their living standards than that so far promised by the government.

—Nine out of 20 are convinced British Common Market entry "would be a vital step toward European unity."

—One out of 10 sees the whole subject as a capitalist plot to lower working-class standards.

This emerged from a series of votes after Foreign Secretary George Brown had told the 6,000 delegates: "I do not want the world to go on polarized between the two vast giant (American and Russian) superpowers."

An expanded Common Market-taking in East European Communist states besides Britain and other Western countries would be "a very powerful bloc indeed," Brown added.

DE GAULLE HAUNTED

Brown then went on to insist on something that haunts President de Gaulle and underlies his stony French official opposition to British entry: "We can (as members) influence the development of Europe in the way we want . . . to avoid it remaining or becoming an inward-looking rich man's club."

De Gaulle has long aimed to preserve French leadership of the non-Communist part of the Continent. He has suggested Britain would serve as a sort of Trojan horse for the Americans, whose power and influence in Europe he wants reduced if not eliminated.

The party's endorsement came as a big relief to the Wilson government.

Three former cabinet ministers led the onslaught on the government's bid for Common Market membership.

An ex-president of the board of trade, Douglas Jay, insisted most Britons felt a need for ironclad safeguards of their interests and added: "The restoration of our own economy emphatically should come first, and then let us negotiate from economic strength and insist on guards."

Well Built Female Model Helps, Medical Teachers Told

OTTAWA (CP)—The best way to teach a medical student female structural anatomy is "to hire the best-looking female model you can—it perks up their interest immediately," says a university of Toronto psychiatrist.

Professor Robin Hunter, chairman of Toronto's psychiatry department, offered the suggestion in an interview Thursday to illustrate his argument that more use should be made of student motivation in medical teaching.

Dr. Hunter was one of a number of panellists, mainly psychiatrists, who discussed medical teaching at the annual meeting of the Association of Canadian Medical Colleges.

He was supporting Dr. Fraser Nicholson, associate professor of psychiatry at Dalhousie University, who maintained that the teaching system erodes humanistic values and the doctor's ability to consider the whole patient.

HAVE IDEALS

Most students come to medical schools "with a lot of idealism about being a doctor and helping people," said Dr. Hunter. They had other motivations as well, such as social and financial position, but the "idealistic component" was there.

What they found was that for their first two years they were "jolted back to a high school" atmosphere where they were crammed with a lot of information and hardly ever saw a patient.

This dampened their enthusiasm, caused them to lose sight of their goals and developed them as "narrowly task oriented."

Dr. Hunter said that this approach now is changing. Where in the first and second year students used to be swamped with 300 or 400 hours of anatomy lectures and lab work, they now face only 50 hours backed up by "a real tendency to bring patients" into the first-year teaching process.

School Holidays, Days To Be Studied

VANCOUVER (CP) — Education Minister Peterson said Thursday he plans to establish an advisory committee to study school holidays, length of the school day and similar topics.

"I believe that new developments in education have made the existing procedure of 10 months of school and two months of summer antiquated," he told the B.C. School Trustees Association annual convention.

He said the committee will be representative of school trustees, teachers and parents and that he would soon be asking those organizations to appoint representatives.

"The traditional reason for summer holidays rather than holidays at other times of the year are probably disappearing," he said.

"In any case, the problem bears examination."

Mr. Peterson said he had received several representations from trustees and others and sometimes complaints about school holidays.

Pop Singer Goes To Jail

LONDON (Reuters)—Cass Elliott of The Mamas and The Papas pop-singing group was jailed Thursday night, charged with stealing blankets and keys worth about £10 ($30) from a London hotel last February.

Miss Elliott, arrested after a fierce struggle with police at Southampton earlier Thursday, was to appear in court today.

Gov't Easily Defeats Non-Confidence Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—A New Democrat motion of non-confidence in the government went down to a crushing 141 to 17 defeat in the Commons Thursday night.

The motion criticized the government for not taking steps to amend income tax regulations so that any married couple with an annual income of $4,000 or less would be exempt from tax. It also said the government should have removed the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials.

Ninety Liberals were joined by 50 Conservatives and the only Social Credit member in the House, Howard Johnston (Okanagan-Revelstoke).

The 10 New Democrats present were supported by five Creditistes and two independent MPs.

Conservatives had said earlier in the budget debate they would not support the NDP motion because it entailed a tax change and the recent Carter royal commission report on taxes has yet to be discussed in the Commons.

The Conservatives have moved their own motion of non-confidence, charging that the government has "failed miserably to set an example of responsibility" by refusing to reduce taxes and to curtail its expenditures.

Bonner Says Sharp Admitting Federal Gov't Ruined Economy

VICTORIA (CP) — Attorney-General Bonner of British Columbia said Thursday that in proposing cutbacks in government spending, Finance Minister Sharp is admitting the federal government has made a shambles of the Canadian economy.

"It is evident that the financial policies of the national government have been in gross error for the past two or three years," Mr. Bonner said in an interview.

"Three years ago I deplored dominion-provincial conferences which have been called for the sake of Liberal Party propaganda.

"That was the case in that (1963) conference and it is the case in the present proposed constitutional conference as well.

"It is quite obvious that their political proposals for such measures as medicare and other expensive ideas have had no foundation in economic fact from the outset."

He said he complained three years ago that the national medicare plan revealed at a federal-provincial conference in 1963 "was nothing but window dressing for the Liberal (election) campaign that was impending.

"The most shocking statement, if Mr. Sharp has been correctly reported, is that although they now admit it was a mistake, they are nevertheless making an exception for Saskatchewan — which just happens to be in the midst of an election where the Liberal party has troubles of its own.

"This statement demonstrates again that the Liberals have national policies which have been selectively applied, but seldom to this province's benefit," Mr. Bonner said.

Mr. Bonner said the B.C. position on the delayal of implementing national medical care can't be announced until Premier Bennett returns from a European trip later this month.

"Very frankly, I don't think we ever really believed the federal government would ever carry their (medical care) proposal out," Mr. Bonner added.

Dies in Crash

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut Maj. Clifton Curtis Williams Jr., was killed Thursday when his T-38 jet plane crashed and exploded in a wooded area near the Florida-Georgia border.

Williams, 35, was en route from Patrick Air Force Base near Cape Kennedy to Brookley Air Force Base, Ala., near Mobile.

NORTHERN WORKERS DEFY EDICT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five-hundred Northern Interior B.C. timber workers left their jobs Wednesday night in defiance of an International Woodworkers of America edict that attempted to contain strike action to the southern half of the Interior.

The men set up picket lines at three mills owned by Noranda Mines Ltd.'s sawmill and woods division in Prince George. They represent a quarter of the 2,000 IWA members in the Northern Interior.

A spokesman for the Prince George workers said they were dissatisfied with the way negotiations with the companies were proceeding.

IWA executives here earlier Wednesday had ordered a delay in strike action pending the outcome of wage talks with Northern Interior companies set for next week.

There was no comment from IWA headquarters.

Hospitals Warned To Expect Strike Action From Employees

PENTICTON (CP) — Hospital officials Thursday were told they could expect a more militant attitude from nurses and hospital employees in the future, including strike action to back wage demands.

Dr. Noel Hall, chairman of the Industrial Administration Division at the University of British Columbia, made the comment to 500 delegates attending the B.C. Hospitals' Association convention.

He said society had become tolerant toward strikes, and as a result of higher salaries in other occupations, it was likely that nurses associations would make strong, determined efforts to improve their wages.

Present dedication deters registered nurses from going on strike, he said.

Dr. Hall said it would be impossible for nursing associations to hold onto the Conservative points of view which they have held for the past 20 years, and had worked to the benefit of the hospital authorities.

He urged delegates to take the initiative in trying to obtain more meaningful communications with their employee groups and advised them to carefully study the wages and hours in the hospital industry.

They should also recognize that compulsory arbitration will not be an acceptable alternative to strike action and that hospital authorities will have to find something in between the two extremes, he said.

Delegates approved a two-year program to improve hospital services throughout B.C. at a cost of 3.9 cents per patient day for the first year.

The new program will include a consultative service for advice and assistance on administrative and staffing problems, an education service, a nation-wide recruiting campaign, and data processing.

Coast Man Heads Hospitals

PENTICTON (CP) — Trustee W. O. Banfield of Vancouver General Hospital was re-elected president of the British Columbia Hospitals Association at its 50th annual conference Thursday.

Also elected to the Association's executive were Gordon Frith, Nanaimo, first vice-president; Leo Donahue, Quesnel, second vice-president; Tom Marshall, Vancouver, third vice-president; Mike Fraser, Victoria, honorary secretary, and Ed Desjardins, Vancouver, honorary treasurer.

F. W. Laird of Penticton is past president.

Cause of Canadian Unity Served by de Gaulle

OTTAWA (CP)—Did President de Gaulle of France do more for Canadian unity than any other centennial visitor?

Informants say there is a lot of feeling in government circles that the old general, ironically, did just that.

His "Vive le Quebec libre" cry in Montreal had forced leaders in Quebec to take positions on the issue of Quebec independence or the preservation of Confederation.

There not is only a feeling of some relief here but also some surprise that the situation appears clearer and possibly less tense than it was even a few weeks ago.

But, say authorities in close touch with the constitutional issue, Canada is by no means out of the woods yet.

LONG ROAD AHEAD

There still is a long and difficult way to go before constitutional changes acceptable to all the provinces could be made.

And changes there will have to be, authorities say.

Premier Johnson of Quebec now has stated his party did not receive a mandate to build a Great Wall of China around Quebec.

But he adds that his party did receive a mandate to try to obtain a new Canadian constitution "made in Canada, by Canadians and for Canadians."

Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday night welcomed Mr. Johnson's statement and added:

TOOK THE LEAD

"As regards reforming the constitution, it was the federal government that took the initiative of proposing definite constitutional amendments in order to assure equality to all citizens across the country through the bill-of-rights conference.

"Recently, again, the federal government has stated it is ready to consider any constitutional reform that might be proposed by one or more provinces."

A special branch of the justice department is preparing a study on constitutional changes. The government will make its decision on the basis of the study and probably submit it to a parliamentary committee.

Meanwhile, there is speculation here that the strong pro-Confederation stand of Eric Kierans, president of the Quebec Liberal federation, may make him, willy-nilly, a candidate for the federal Liberal leadership.

Both the Liberals and Conservatives have made independent approaches to Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal to try to bring him into federal politics. So far he is said not to be receptive.

There is a feeling in government circles that de Gaulle's plan for an independent Quebec—if plan it was—has backfired.

Not only Mr. Johnson but Liberal Leader Jean Lesage appears to have taken anti-separatist and pro-Confederation stands.

Mr. Lesage has said he could not lead a separatist party.

Nearly all the recent statements on the subject, informants say, provide not only some relief from the strain that was building up but have increased determination on the part of Ottawa to drive forward with its Operation Unity.

They say the problem in the long run may not be to get Quebec to opt for Confederation so much as to make English Canada see Quebec's point of view that French-speaking Canadians should be enabled to feel at home everywhere in this country.

Traff Pleads Guilty; May Be Sentenced Today

Jailbreaker Gordon Traff, whose eight-day reign of freedom was brought to an abrupt end Wednesday, appeared in Nelson court on three charges Thursday.

The 29-year-old Vancouver man pleaded guilty to two charges of theft over $50 and one of escaping lawful custody.

Six-foot-one-inch tall Traff, who sawed his way to freedom from the city jail with a hacksaw blade, was unshaven as he stood in court, wearing a green sweater and brown corduroy trousers.

He remained silent throughout the proceedings.

Magistrate William Evans will probably pass sentence on Traff today.

City police and RCMP launched an intensive search for the man after his bold escape bid last week.

Several houses were checked and kept under surveillance but Wednesday evening RCMP reported Traff's capture at a roadblock in the Crescent Valley area.

Charges may be laid against some people for harboring Traff during his short-lived bid for liberty.

City police have introduced new security measures at the department's jail block since Traff escaped.

As soon as Traff has been sentenced, he will be escorted to his new place of imprisonment somewhere on the Coast.

Traff, whom police say is a known drug addict, was on parole when he was arrested for his part in the theft of $700 from a Nelson hotel.

Sponsor 70 At Vocational

E. N. "Ted" Hardy, Nelson Canada Manpower Centre manager, reports Canada Manpower is currently sponsoring 70 students at Nelson's Vocational School. This represents approximately one-quarter of the present BCVS-Nelson enrolment.

Canada Manpower's adult occupational training program came into being April 1, 1967. It provides for the payment of school fees and living allowances to Manpower clients who are selected as individuals who would be a substantially more valuable part of Canada's labour force after training.

The Canada Manpower Centre at Nelson made 208 male and 29 female placements during September. These brought to 1854 the total to the end of September, 1967, compared to 2156 at the end of September, 1966.

Brothers To Speak To Mines Banquet

British Columbia minister of mines and petroleum resources, Hon. D. L. Brothers, MLA for Rossland-Trail, will be the honored guest and principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Chamber of Mines of Eastern British Columbia in Nelson October 13.

Mr. Brothers is a home product, born in Grand Forks Nov. 8, 1923. In 1929 the family moved to Trail, where Mr. Brothers received his early education.

He was a pilot officer in the RCAF during the war until 1945 when he enrolled in the faculty of law at the University of British Columbia. In 1947 he married Dorothy Crowe of Trail, whose father was a vice-president of Cominco. Mr. and Mrs. Brothers have three daughters, Leslie, Linda and Lana.

D. L. BROTHERS

In 1949 Mr. Brothers was called to the bar of British Columbia and practiced law in the city of Trail. In 1958 he was elected to the British Columbia legislature as a Social Credit member for the constituency of Rossland-Trail. In 1964 he was appointed minister of mines and petroleum resources, which portfolio he now holds. The family resides in Victoria. Mr. Brothers has now had more than three years administrative experience with his department and is well able to describe the department's functions. The subject of Mr. Brothers' address will cover the "Operation and services of the Department of Mines and Petroleum Resources."

Slocan Pioneer Found Dead

SILVERTON—Jack Ironsides, a long time resident, was found dead early Thursday morning in his 83rd year, at his home here. A gun was found beside him, police said.

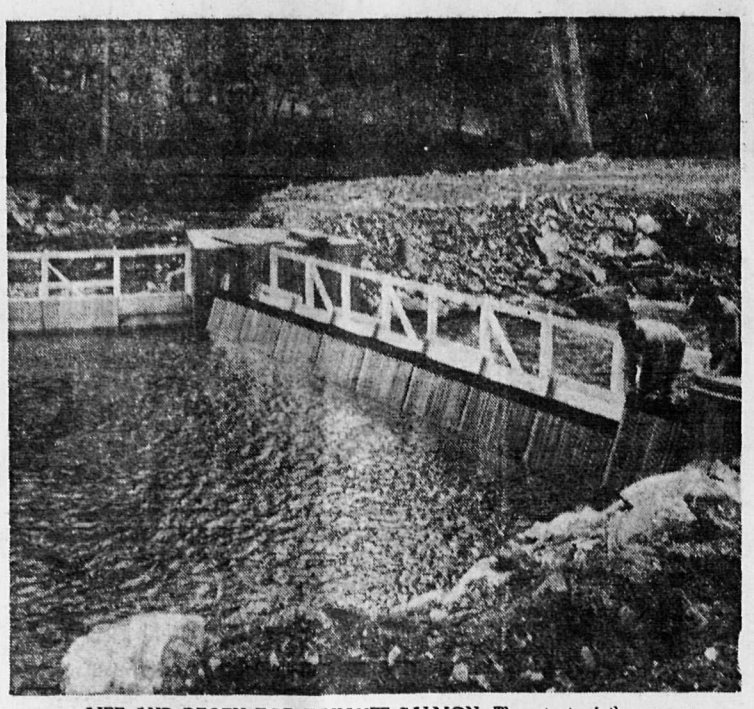
Born in Newmarket, Ontario, he came to Silverton in 1916, intending to stay for only three months, but fell in love with the countryside and decided to make his permanent home here on Slocan Lake.

He was a bookkeeper in the T. H. Wilson store, now owned by J. L. Wilson, for over 40 years, and after his retirement was employed in the same capacity with the Western Exploration Company, until just a few years ago.

Mrs. Ironsides predeceased him in 1963.

Mr. Ironsides was one of the community's six pioneers to receive the Centennial Medallion this summer.

There are no living survivors, except for distant relatives in the U.S.A.



LIFE AND DEATH FOR KOKANEE SALMON. The start of the spawning channel near the Duncan Dam, where kokanee spawn and then die to complete their life cycle. If it works successfully, it will more than make up for what has been lost because of the construction of the nearby dam.

Spawning Channel Could Boost Fish Survival

In lonely bush country near the imposing Duncan Dam, man is trying to put right an imbalance of nature he created.

Already the first effects of the reversal process are being seen as thousands of red-hued kokanee salmon nestle into a gravel bedded "nursery" to spawn.

The wilderness delivery room is man's attempt at correcting the imbalance the Duncan Dam caused when its millions of tons of earth and rock, barred the Kokanee from getting to their spawning beds in the Lardeau River.

But if it doesn't work, it is going to have a grievous effect on the kokanee population of Kootenay Lake says a prominent biologist.

Dr. A. H. Acara, director of the fisheries research station in Nelson, which has been functioning for two years said:

"Construction of the Duncan Dam has almost reduced the number of fry by three times."

In 1964, 61 per cent of the total number of spawning kokanee, swam up the Lardeau river to reproduce, representing 2,800,000 fish.

At the moment, 183,000 kokanee are in their winding two-mile-long maternity ward.

"Spawners are still coming in every day . . . and the figure is changing from 2,000 to 5,000 each day," said Dr. Acara.

The channel has room for up to 500,000 spawners.

If the channel functions properly, it will cut down the mortality rate among the young kokanee, which are decimated before they ever reach maturity.

As part of the intensive research program, Dr. Acara has compiled the first authoritative report on the life and death cycle of the intriguing land-locked salmon.

CHANCES SLIM

The picture that is painted is bleak and harsh . . . comparing with the kokanee's brother sockeye salmon only, in chances of survival. On average, each female lays 300 eggs.

During spawning, incubation, emergence and entry to the lake there is a 93 per cent mortality rate which accounts for 279.

The remaining 21 fry have a seven per cent chance of survival.

Fish one year old and over have a 39.6 per cent survival chance, but during lake life 75 per cent are lost.

So, from the figure of eight that endured the first few hard years of life, only two swim back to the spawning beds, when they are four to five years old.

Final anlysis shows that from the egg to maturity, there is a 0.0066 survival rate.

At least the kokanee is ahead of the salmon. A female sockeye lays 3200 eggs, loses 2560 between incubation and the fry stage, and after the ocean trip only two return to spawn.

CHANNEL HOLDS HOPE

But there is now hope that in the new kokanee spawning channel, the appalling fatality rate during the spawning, incubation emergence period can be cut down.

"If we can get a three times higher survival rate than we have in the natural bed, I think the spawning channel would be successful," said Dr. Acara.

Providing the channel works properly, 21 per cent would survive, instead of the mere seven per cent.

And Kootenay Lake's kokanee population could double if the channel works.

"This lake could support many more million kokanee," said Dr. Acara.

But he stressed that the direct results of the spawning channel won't be seen overnight.

"We need to continue our research for at least four or five years. In this time, if there were something wrong with the channel, we could correct it," he said.

Of B.C. Hydro, which footed the bill for construction of the channel, Dr. Acara said:

"I think they have a responsibility to the public to reach a very clear understanding as to the results of this channel."

RESEARCH VITAL

Dr. Acara says that continuation of the station's research is also vital so that the effects of the Libby Dam on Kootenay Lake can be learned.

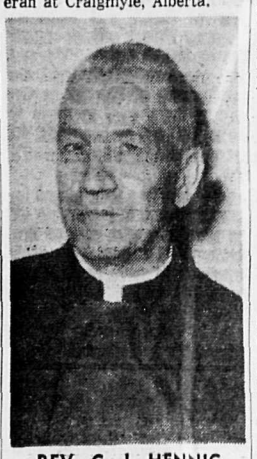
Already, he said, differences in the lake have been seen because of the construction of the Duncan Dam.

The percentage of water flowing into the lake from the south has been increased, said the doctor.

"This is one of the reasons for the high algae content in the lake . . . and we don't know what will happen when the Libby Dam is operating."

Minister Leaving After 13 Years Here

After 13 years' ministry in Nelson Rev. Carl J. Hennig is leaving St. John's Lutheran Church here for two new charges at Grace Lutheran Church at Drumheller and St. Paul's Lutheran at Craigmyle, Alberta.



REV. C. J. HENNIG

Mr. and Mrs. Hennig leave after their last service October 15 with two of their six children, Allan, now in Grade XII and Dan in college.

Besides Nelson, Mr. Hennig served the Arrow Lakes, Fauquier and Nakusp on a monthly basis and for a few years Castlegar was part of the parish.

Mr. Hennig, who came to Nelson in 1954 from Stony Plain, Alberta is no stranger to his new parish having previously spent two and a half years in the Craigmyle parish of which Drumheller was one of six stations.

The Hennigs' other children are Mrs. Frank (Lydia) Wise at Tacoma, Wash.; Carl at Port Alice; Mark, in training with the RCMP at Regina and Ted in Edmonton.

Longtime 'Forks Resident Dies

Resident of the Grand Forks area for about 50 years, Mrs. Annie Kazakoff died at Kootenay Lake General Hospital Thursday at the age of 78.

Born in Russia in 1889, she came to Canada with her parents in 1899 to Saskatchewan. She moved to B.C. in 1911 to the Brilliant district and in 1912 to Grand Forks where she made her home until five years ago. Latterly she has been in a rest home in the area. She was a member of the Union of Spiritual Community of Christ.

She is survived by one son, Pete, of Kinnaird, five grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Board Plans Arm Chair Travel Series

The auditorium of Trafalgar Junior Secondary School will accommodate an armchair travel series of five evening shows sponsored by the Nelson School Board to be held fortnightly commencing Oct. 12.

The first show will feature the British Isles and Ireland with the films Britain Is a Garden, A Touch of Scotland, Land of Magic, and Yeats Country.

Other presentations will take the audience to Holland and France including film titles such as Holland Today, Riviera, and Smiling Paris. Visits will be paid to the Soviet capital with a Moscow taxi driver as a guide, to the sea resorts of the U.S.S.R., Scandinavia, and Finland. A summer holiday in Austria, festive Vienna and travels along the Rhine in Germany, to German cities and wintertime in the Allgaen will depict other scenic beauty spots, on this film trip to Europe. The series closes with Gardens of Spain, About Madrid, Mediterranean Paradise, Switzerland — Land of Blue Lakes, and Under Blue Skies.

All films are in color and English narration. There are reduced enrollment fees for married couples and families.

Rock-Drilling, Hose-Reel Contests Remembered By District Oldtimer

Editor's note: Former Nelson resident Herb Pitts, now of Castlegar, gives us another of his recollections of the fun to be had in times past. He says he was interested in the story concerning the Marquis brothers and particularly their reference to the dogsled races. He adds his own bit of memorabilia:

"Constable Jim Whiteman gave me a beautiful St. Bernard puppy which we called Laddie. My brother started training him for races and did very well. As I remember, one of the prizes Laddie won was a two-wheeled sulky and a set of harness.

"The races were run on Vernon Street from Josephine to Hall and there was always a big crowd out to see the dogs perform. It lasted pretty well all afternoon and of course the dogs would do a little fighting which added to the entertainment."

SLEIGHING PARTIES

Also popular as winter entertainment were the sleighriding parties, Mr. Pitts recalls.

"Long flat sleds filled with hay and blankets and drawn by either two or four horses all decked out with strings of bells were rented from the Nelson Transfer, Big John Linebaugh or the West Transfer. The parties were driven around the streets and ended at a private home for refreshments and a sing-song.

"Another form of winter entertainment was bobsleighing and thtse varied from long hill rides to the shorter rides. One favorite long ride was from the Mountain Station depot down Latimer Street to Ward and if you were lucky and missed the streetcars you could end up on the city wharf.

"The police were not happy about this choice of sport and when the ride was finished you had to take the back streets to get home. This ride was only a one-a-night event as it was a long pull up to the starting point.

SKATING PARTIES

"Skating at night around the boathouses, complete with bonfires and refreshments was also popular. Curling was done in the old Fair Building where the Civic Centre now stands and as it was natural ice the weather was always an important item.

"The skating rink, in those days, was up on Hall Mines Road and was also of the natural ice variety. It was, I believe, built around 1910 and was quite an asset in those days as it was considered one of the finest rinks in the Interior. The Patrick brothers of hockey fame, residing in Nelson at that time, sparked the formation of a private company in building the rink. It was later replaced by the Civic Centre around 1935-36, another fine asset for sports that is being enjoyed by so many of the present citizens.

"Several other sports that were popular in the earlier days that have disappeared over the years, included field lacrosse, rock-drilling competitions and hose-and-reel races. These sports were the source of much interest to the public, but have given way to more modern and possibly less skilled sports.

LACROSSE

"Field lacrosse was displaced by box lacrosse which, at one time, was one of the big sports of the district and good teams came out of a fine league. Excitement and good entertainment were displayed in this rough and ready sport and it was played through the summer in the Civic Arena.

"Field lacrosse, a running and passing game, was played on the ball grounds and was also a pretty rough game. In the '20s it was revived and such players as John and Harry Ferguson, Waldo Ferguson, Ed Murphy, Art Perrier, William and Jim Curran, Scotty Williamson, N. Richardson, George Benwell, H. Pitts and many more took part in games in a league comprised of Nelson, Trail and Rossland.

ROCK DRILLING

"Rock-drilling competitions were sport for experts in that field. The teams came from the mines in the district who trained well for the competitions which were held at the various celebrations in the towns in the area and always a big attraction at the Nelson Fall Fair.

"Rock-drilling in the mines was by hand and men would pair up in their regular work and the best of the teams from many of the mines would be selected to enter the competitions. The teams were well backed in betting, by the mines they represented, and a large amount of money would change hands on the outcome of the events, plus substantial prize money.

"Teams were comprised of a hammer man, a drill holder and a water tender. A timer and judge were appointed and for many years Frank Phillips of Nelson acted in this capacity in many of these events.

"A large block of stone, squared to about four feet and eight feet in depth, was solidly anchored in the ground and a strong platform flush with the surface of the rock was built. One of these blocks for some years was in the ball grounds and possibly should have been retained as a memento of a passing sport.

SWING FROM SHOULDER

"The weight of the hammers was, I believe, 10-12-14 pounds and the steel drills finely tempered and sharpened started at about six inches and increased in length up to about five feet. The hammer men swung from the shoulder, the drill tender kept turning the drill, preventing it from sticking, and the water tender with a water can and small hose kept the hole wet and free of powdered stone.

"Drills were changed at various intervals on command and the drill tender who had the drills laid out beside him would remove the used drill with one hand, throwing it clear, and insert a new drill while the hammer was raised. They would drill for possibly 15 minutes and if all went well, a good team would drill possibly 40 inches or more.

"Spectators were usually warned to keep away from the platform to avoid being hit by the flying drills and also being spattered by the muck that came from the well-watered drill holes.

"Ymir revived the sport for a few years in the '20s and '30s which created a lot of interest but now is something that is gone. A team from the Slocan of Erickson and Johnson, I believe, were for many years the best, and at one time went to New York to demonstrate the art and achieved a good deal of publicity for the district.

HOSE REEL

"The hose reel sport stemmed from the early day fire-fighting department before the advent of horse-drawn vehicles. A fire alarm was sounded and volunteers would race to the fire hall and take the high-wheeled cart, loaded with hose, nozzles, axes and other equipment, and race to the fire. The reel had two wheels and a revolving roller on which the hose was rolled, a long shaft or tongue with a rope attached to it and a harness that fitted over the shoulder and attached to the shaft.

"The crews were usually men who participated in sports and the lead men were usually fast runners and a few of these names I remember were Art Perrier, Al Jeffs, Roy Sharp and Joe Thompson.

"An attempt at reviving the sport was made in the early 1930s and competitions were held between teams from Nelson, Trail and Rossland. Competitions were in the form of the 100-yard dash with reel, breaking the hose and attaching a nozzle, connecting to a hydrant and getting water, against a stopwatch. Participation in this event in the early days brought in teams from many surrounding towns and prizes were big and betting high. A few of the old reels are still around and should be retained for posterity."

First Property Purchase For Urban Renewal Plan

CRANBROOK — First property purchase payment in the unique urban renewal of Michel-Middletown-Natal has been issued Mr. and Mrs. John Galla by the Regional District of East Kootenay as agent for the three participating government levels.

The property is one of about 320 in the location to be abandoned for community settlement because of air and water pollution. Purchase terms have so far been established for about a quarter of these and will continue until site title is vested in RDEK, probably late in 1968.

In presenting this first cheque payment, RDEK chairman Henry Nelson reported urgency for decision by the provincial housing commission to indicate approval of relocation area for the 800 Crowsnest Pass people.

Nearby Sparwood, Fernie outskirts and Elk Valley have all been considered, and early emphasis was on Sparwood, which planned last spring to provide fully serviced land. However, energetic revival of international interest in steam coal mining indicates industrial pollution could extend soon to Sparwood area, and plans are in suspension.

Mr. Nelson said RDEK's objective is early completion of the $2,092,200 renewal project, half federally financed and one-fourth each by the province and the local area. Title vesting of the site to be abandoned merely launches the transfer of these 800 people who should have firm assurance a landing place will be ready.

Mr. Nelson said initiator of the renewal was the provincial government intent on dressing up the Crow's Nest Pass entrance to the province, which straddles the pollution area. He said that under these circumstances it is the obligation of the province to approve immediately new location for these displaced homes and businesses.

"Chest" Gains Support

CRANBROOK — Cranbrook Rotary president L. A. T. Nimsick on behalf of the Club reports some favorable response to his club's proposal of immediate organization of a Community Chest. Purpose is to pool the appeals for funds and the frequent door-to-door canvasses into a single drive toward meeting all these needs.

Cranbrook Gyro, Lions and Kinsmen Clubs the Fraternal Order of Eagles and Cranbrook Junior Chamber have been invited by this initial sponsor to join in helping Cranbrook Rotary realize this long-planned objective within the next several weeks.

Plan Earth-Filled Dam For Rosebud Lake

Construction of a 10,000 cubic foot earth-fill dam and excavation of a sluiceway which will necessitate removal of some 12,000 cubic feet of soil and rock, begins Friday as officers and men of three British Columbia militia units begin "Operation Rosebud."

Site of the project is Rosebud Lake, 35 miles south of Nelson on the Salmo-Nelway highway.

Operation Rosebud will raise the level of the lake by five feet, allowing the Anglican Church to re-open its summer camp — Camp Galilee— closed two years ago when a beaver dam which maintained lake level gave way, dropping the water level by five feet and stagnating shore waters.

The work will be undertaken by the 44th Field Squadron RCE of Trail under Major L. Smitten; the 6th Field Squadron RCE of Vancouver under Major T. London, and the 17th Field Squadron RCE of Kimberley under Major R.Lye, as a field engineering exercise. Because of the large number of personnel which will be active in the area, the militia has requested that hunters avoid the area during the long weekend.

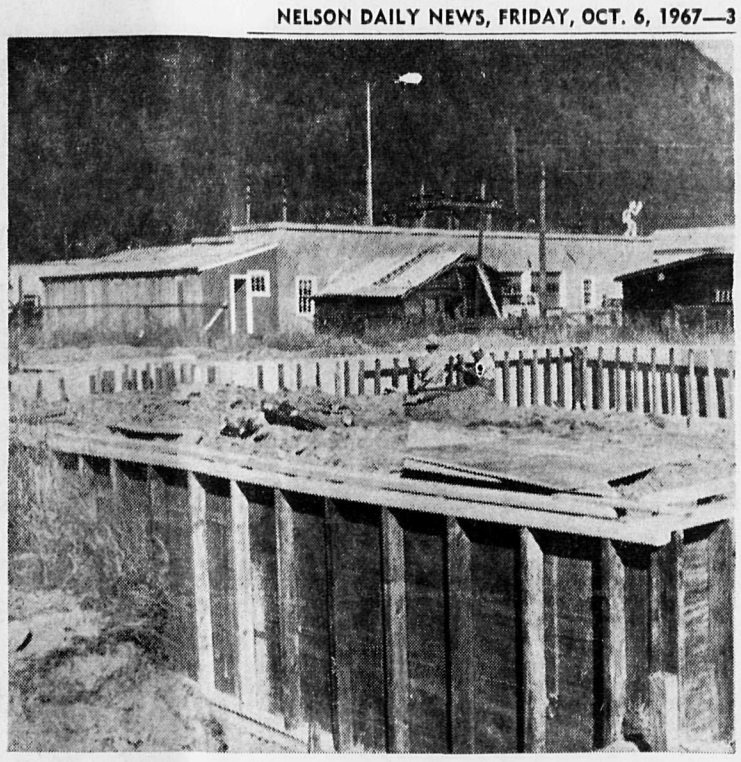
Plans call for construction of a 70-foot-long earth fill dam, 10 feet thick and 10 feet wide at the base, spreading to 30 feet wide at the top. Also to be constructed is a 171-foot sluiceway which will maintain the lake level at five feet above its present depth. Included in the dam will be a drainage system which will permit control of the lake level below the point where it would drain through the sluiceway.

Men and equipment will begin to arrive at Camp Galilee Friday night and will stay there for the duration of the project, expected to be completed in the three-day weekend. The militia units will supply much of their own equipment, but some has been loaned by Cominco and by local contractors.

A considerable amount of planning and work has been done in preparation for the project. In addition to obtaining required approval from government agencies, water level characteristics, winter run-off volumes and various design aspects of the project have been taken into consideration.

TAKES LITTLE SPACE

The Kingdon of Sikkim, lying between India and Tibet, is smaller than America's Yellowstone National Park and has a population of 165,000,000.



CONSTRUCTION of the village office complex for the Village of Salmo is underway. The 40-foot-square building, when completed, will house the village firefighting equipment, ambulance, library and municipal offices. It is expected the complex will be completed before the end of the year.

Fruitvale . . .

Beaver Valley League To Host Interior Finals

FRUITVALE — Beaver Valley Little League Association is planning to host the interior B.C. playoffs next year, so the municipal council was informed at its meeting. A delegation of S. Quattrin and D. Mayne, representing the Little League Association, requested that certain work be done to the ball diamonds so that these would meet the required standards for ball diamonds used in playoff competition. Council assured the delegation that dugouts would be completed, the playing surface improved, and a temporary fencing installed in time for playoffs. It is intended to use the Little League diamonds at the Fruitvale and Montrose parks for the competition games.

The Columbia Gardens Road project is underway with the paving base already in place; hardtopping will be done as soon as the weather is suitable. The works committee informed council that a meeting had been held with officials from the department of highways, and that this work was proceeding in accordance with recommendations made at that meeting.

Council voted to send a cheque for $100 to the Trail-Tadanac Hospital as a contribution from the village of Fruitvale towards the purchase of necessary equipment.

The works committee is planning Winter Works projects again this year, and will be bringing in details and estimates for council's consideration in the near future. Bathroom facilities at Hillcrest Park are planned for next year and it is hoped that construction can be done under the Winter Works program.

Works foreman H. Smart advised council that the fire at the municipal dump last week could have proved quite serious had it not been for the prompt action by the Fruitvale and Montrose fire departments in responding to the call for assistance. The works crew had to spend considerable extra time patrolling at the dump area after the fire was controlled.

Work is progressing on the building bylaw and the paving bylaw, according to Commissioner B. O'Hara. It is hoped that the latter will be completed in time to meet the requirements outlined in the Municipal Act for presenting such a bylaw to the electors at the same time as the municipal elections in December.

A special resolution was adopted by council whereby steps will be continued towards the incorporation of the Mountain Street area into the municipality. This action was taken to comply with requirements for boundary extension sent out by the Department of Municipal Affairs.

Council was advised that the lighting survey in the village area had been completed, and the request made to the power company for the necessary changes at the earliest possible date. This calls for more mercury vapor and standard street lighting units.

Cranbrook . . .

Authorize Sale Of Hydro Power

CRANBROOK — The Alberta government has authorized sale of small amounts of electricity by Calgary Power Ltd. to British Columbia when required, clearing the final hurdle for purchase by B.C. Hydro Authority of the second last private electric company in the province, East Kootenay Power Ltd. with Fernie head office.

EKP generates at Bull River and Elko in East Kootenay and during power shortage at a steam plant at Sentinel in Alberta. Purchase by Calgary Power of this latter plant is covered by the approval. EKP supplies the cities of Cranbrook, Fernie and Kimberley, though the latter's industrial supply is from West Kootenay Power Company, Cominco subsidiary and the final independent company in the province.

For some years now WKP and EKP along with Calgary Power have had inter-provincial grid arrangements with each other for supply in emergencies or individual shortages which are expected to continue, but B.C. Hydro excludedd the 40-year-old steam plant in the Alberta Crowsnest Pass area from East Kootenay Power assets in purchase negotiations.

Missing Parts Please Pupils

CRANBROOK— Happiness for more than 600 young students here is a brand new school heating system with missing parts.

Monday, the 609 elementary students at Central School were sent home when it was discovered that the school's recently installed gas fired furnace would not work because it lacked vital parts.

And the parts will have to be shipped from Toronto and Calgary before heat flows into the 50-year-old brick built school again.

The school experienced no problems up until Monday, while Cranbrook basked in hot late-summer sunshine.

But the sudden sharp weekend cold spell sent shivers running through students and decided officials to close the school.

Kaslo . . .

Society Gets History Quilt

KASLO — A quilt of historical interest was presented to Kaslo Historical Society for display on the SS Moyie Museum at a society meeting.

About 75 were present when Mrs. J. R. Hunter, president of the United Church Ladies' Aid, presented the quilt, the handiwork of the Methodist Church Ladies' Aid many years ago.

Each person had paid 10 cents to have a name embroidered on the quilt. It contained about 400 names of oldtimers, many of whom have since died. Others moved away and a number still reside here.

R. E. Green gave an informative talk on the early history of Kaslo and progress of the society.

Mrs. Hunter was introduced by president James Koehane.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. R. E. Green, assisted by Mrs. Myna Coulter, Miss Alice Augustine and Mrs. Margaret Jardine.

Mr. Olson's Defection

Medicine Hat Social Crediters reportedly expressed surprise at the news that H. A. "Bud" Olson, their MP at Ottawa, had offered to hurl himself headlong into the arms of the Liberals. They shouldn't have been — Mr. Olson has been hinting at such a move for months and the Liberals have been wooing him for even longer.

Splinter parties have no place in a mature nation. Mr. Olson's move merely underlines that fact. Several weeks ago, Social Credit's real spokesman, Premier Manning of Alberta, made it quite clear that he had no illusion about his party's future as a national entity. Join right-wing Conservatives, he said in a hastily-written book, and form a party of true conservatives for the good of the country.

It was Mr. Manning's guess that with a new party of the right, left-of-centre Conservatives would join with the Liberals, while right-of-centre Liberals would join a Conservative party committed to conservatism. That would give Canadians two solid choices, a party with a true conservative philosophy and a party with definite liberal aims. Presumably no room would be left for third or fourth or fifth parties.

Mr. Olson has followed Mr. Manning's thinking to the extent that he feels this is basically a two-party nation. Only he believes he is more of a liberal than a conservative. So he has taken the only course open to a practical politician who believes Social Credit is doomed as a national party — he has sought membership in the major party that appeals to him most. Other Social Crediters, Bert Leboe for example, may follow his lead.—Hamilton Spectator.

An Unreasonable Deadline

In the immediate aftermath of Israel's sweeping victories over its Arab enemies, Israeli officials were conceding that while there had been little difficulty in winning the war, it mght be equally easy to lose the peace. By adopting a tough and uncompromising stance toward the Arab refugees, the Israeli Government is threatening to make prophets of the pessimists.

After much hesitation, Israel decided to readmit Arabs who had fled across the Jordan River from the Israeli-occupied West Bank. But it also imposed a deadline of August 31, and after a belated start to the operation, officials estimate that no more than 40,000 refugees out of at least 170,000 will have returned to their homes when the border is closed.

As reflected in the newspapers, sentiment in Israel is overwhelmingly against any extension of the deadline. Since Jordanian officials were initially urging the refugees to return and become "thorns in the flesh of the aggressor," this reluctance is understandable.

Israel is also afraid that if it starts to make any concessions, it will lose all chance of attaining its prime diplomatic goal: formal Arab acceptance of its right to exist.

But the tough policy toward the refugees seems dangerously shortsighted. It denies thousands the chance to regain their homes and condemns them to the pitiful squalor of the East Bank camps. Since it increases the economic and political pressures on King Hussein's Government, it makes it even less likely that Jordan will be able to reach the separate settlement with Israel for which Israeli leaders have hoped.

Refugees from the two previous Arab-Israeli conflicts became a focal point for Arab discontent and a virtual guarantee that hostilities would some day be renewed.

In the long run, Israel's security can never be guaranteed solely by its military prowess but will depend on eventual Arab acceptance of its existence and on joint schemes for regional development. Without sacrificing their basic strategic interests, the Israelis could hasten this day of acceptance if they allowed more time for the refugees to return to their homes and fostered the West Bank's economic development, possibly with international assistance.

If it is politically impossible for the Israeli government simply to lift the deadline, it could offer a new round of negotiations with Jordan to facilitate the speedy return of the remaining refugees.—Globe & Mail.

Homeland First

The shakeup in Britain's Cabinet confirms the precedence of domestic economics over world politics in current British concern.

Faced with the highest unemployment rate in 27 years and growing public resistance to the wage freeze and other austerity programs designed to bolster the pound, Prime Minister Wilson himself assumed direction of the Economic Affairs Department. Douglas Jay, president of the Board of Trade, was fired; he had opposed Britain's joining the European Common Market, which Mr. Wilson deems essential to Britain's economic recovery.

Foreign Secretary George Brown, perhaps the most criticized minister in the Wilson Cabinet, was not involved in the Cabinet shuffle. There was nothing in any of the changes to indicate that Britain was altering its position of military disengagement abroad while giving support in principle to American policy in Vietnam and elsewhere. Just before the Prime Minister announced the shifts in his Cabinet, a company of British troops left Botswana (Bechuanaland), the last to serve on African soil, bringing to an end more than 170 years of the British military presence in Africa.

Reversal of the downward trend of British influence in the world will depend on whether the London government's new team or a subsequent one can reverse the downward trend in Britain's economy. Mr. Wilson has chosen to take a direct hand in that gravest of all his responsibilities.

"It's going to Quebec — do I need a customs declaration form . . . ?"

Squish of Pins in Garry Weston's Office

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP)—If a nightingale ever sang outside Garry Weston's office overlooking Berkeley Square, its music wouldn't be quite as sweet as the gentle squish of a new pin being stuck into a big map of England dominating one wall.

The map is already speckled with about 200 of them. Each represents a bakery, factory, cookie assembly line or flour mill turning out an unending stream of profits under the eye of this Toronto native who has become heir apparent to one of the world's greatest food empires.

On a map of the world—leaving out Canada and the United States—there might be another couple of hundred coming under the direction of the 40-year-old son of merchandising king W. Garfield Weston. Garry is newly arrived from Australia to become operating chief of vast Associated British Foods Ltd., which showers assorted products on the tables of a half-dozen countries.

The athletic boss, who is built on the compact lines of a middleweight fighter and rips out directives like a Cagney with polish, is neither overwhelmed with his new post nor brash about making predictions. He likes to say he'll be opening the mail and learning from his father. But he's been in the family business 19 years, with a record of building its Australian end into the biggest food enterprise Down Under.

FATHER MOVES OVER

"My main job now is to take the day-to-day operations of the group off my father's shoulders," he said in an interview in his smallish office sprinkled with cookie boxes. "The fact that he's so active gives me a great chance to study his methods."

The elder Weston, guiding genius of the labyrinth of companies that has a yearly turnover of more than $4,000,000,000, will be 70 next Feb. 28. He is retaining his overlordship of the realm generally, but in Associated British Foods is moving sideways from the chairmanship to a newly-created presidency that will leave him more time for policy thinking.

The son, who has been vice-chairman, was confirmed by shareholders Sept. 20 as chairman and chief executive officer.

"He won't have to see what's in the mail every day," Garry explains.

The mailbag can be heavy. ABF is the largest baker and one of the largest flour millers in the world with 156 bakeries, 84 factories, 94 flour mills and miscellaneous other operations in Britain, Australia, New Zealand, France, West Germany and South Africa. It has 75,000 employees.

Garry—his name is Garfield Howard, but there's probably room for only one Garfield Weston in the food field—has moved up through the business progressively after a broad education. The second son of Garfield, he was taken to Britain at the age of five, when his father stepped into the British trade in a big way during the Depression. He went to Oxford and later Harvard, where he took an economics degree.

GAVE UP LAW

He switched to a law course at McGill University, where he added a proficiency in squash to the rowing he practised at Oxford and Harvard, but gave that up after a year in favor of entering the business as a management trainee. He worked for three years in biscuit factories in Britain and the U.S., becoming head of the Ryvita company in 1951.

Three years later he went to Australia, originally on a mission of a few months to get a factory started for his firm. It stretched into 14 years during which he presided over an enormous expansion of the Weston operations and acquired a New Zealand wife, five children and a share in the Australian national obsession of sailing (he wasn't far enough overboard to bet on unhappy Dame Pattie in the America's Cup races).

Today the Australian operating company owns 11 flour mills, 33 bakeries and 16 factories and has sales of around $100,000,000 a year.

With one foot still firmly planted in Australia and with a Canadian heritage behind him, Garry Weston considers there should be considerably more trade between them than now exists.

"Their economies are complementary," he said. "Australia could take a large number of Canadian products, for instance, fairly technical manufactures and machinery. As an example, our firm is one of the biggest buyers of Canadian cellophane."

TIES THAT BIND

He thought existing trade ties with other countries might be getting in the way of a boost in business between the two countries. "However, there's been an enormous growth in American interest in Australia in recent years, and what the Americans do today Canada often gets around to doing later."

On another aspect of international trade, Weston holds—as does his father—that Britain is making a big mistake in trying to get into the European Common Market.

"Instead," he said, "co-operation with other countries of the Commonwealth, with their complementing economies, should be developed. Britain needs these countries, and I think in the long term membership in the Common Market will be injurious to Britain.

"She will, if she is admitted, be competing against people who work really hard, down to womenfolk digging in the fields. Are the British people, for instance, prepared to work as hard as the Germans? I don't think they realize all that's involved."

"We here have no natural advantages," the economist-industrialist added. "We can't figure now on cheap coal, cheap steel, or even British know-how—Europe has overtaken us there. The one great natural advantage Britain might have would be to exploit overseas Commonwealth assets in such countries as Canada and Australia. I feel that's where Britain should be trusting her future."

CIVIL DEFENCE

Every municipality in Civil Defence should have an operational plan for survival — that is, a course of action in any given contingency, whether peace or war.

Mint Going Three Shifts

OTTAWA (CP) — The Mint is churning out centennial coinage at the rate of 12,000,000 pieces a week.

Jean Chretien (St. Maurice — Lafleche), minister without portfolio, said three full shifts daily are on the job. Production of the special coins would continue until Dec. 31.

"The Mint is doing its best," he told David Pugh (PC — Okanagan-Boundary), who complained in an adjournment debate that the coinage hasn't been finding its way into Western Canada.

Oct. 6, 1967 . . .

Charles Stewart Parnell, Irish nationalist hero, died 76 years ago today—in 1891—discredited in Ireland and out of power in England. An Anglo-Irish Protestant, Parnell bridged the Fenians and parliamentary nationalists. His plan was to use the boycott in Ireland and obstruction in Parliament to achieve independence he thought impossible to gain by violence or polite lobbying. He was lost after being named a co-respondent in a divorce action.

1889—T. A. Edison demonstrated moving-picture kinetoscope.

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—Peru severed diplomatic relations with Germany. A special war session of the United States Congress was ended. The Western Front was swept by a cold wave.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—the Canadian cabinet was reorganized with the appointment of Maj.-Gen. L. R. Lafleche, Ernest Bertrand and Alphonse Fournier as new ministers. Tim Buck, the Canadian Communist party secretary, and 16 others were given a "conditional release" by the government.

Nightmare Alley

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nightmare Alley and its divebombing crow is not in the postman's manual, gripes postie Norman Walker.

He concedes that the mail must go through.

But what is a man to do about a neighborhood commando team made up of an aggressive white husky and an over-eager crow?

"It was an unfair contest," he complains.

It seems that Mr. Walker was making his appointed rounds in the city's east end recently along a street that has earned the name "Nightmare Alley" from frightened postmen.

Nightmare Alley has an abundance of amply-dentured canines protecting is front yards.

Mr. Walker reached the home of Heidi, a miniature husky, and started getting static from the pooch right off the bat. Heidi, it turned out, has a trusted friend and ally —Trixie, the divebombing crow.

"The dog I could have handled, but how was I to know she had a crow as an ally?" he asked. "The crow came right down at me as big as an eagle.

"The husky and I were going at it pretty good and then that crow came in like a Stuka bomber. I was worried about my eyes.

"In the middle of all this the lady next door comes out and starts complaining about her family allowance cheque.

"I thought I must have dropped it at the place next door so I battled my way back there. The lady answers the door with this big collie that figures he might as well have a piece of me, too.

"In the meantime the lady hollering about her family allowance cheque discovers she has it in her hand. Everybody collects their dogs and somebody throws the crow in the house. Things got back to a low growl."

Mr. Walker reflects that he's going to have to change his lion-taming tactics to keep up with the Nightmare Alley blitzkrieg techniques he encountered.

"Most dogs are easy. You circle 'em. You keep 'em in front of you and stare 'em eyeball to eyeball. When you move in, keep 'em off your feet. But a crow?"

Mr. Walker is a good loser, but he had to abide by regulations and report Heidi for the altercation. The crow is in the clear.

As he points out, there's nothing in the books about aerial attacks.

Shoot Raindrops

LONDON (Reuters) — British government scientists are firing bullets at raindrops to help make flying safer.

Recent research showed that raindrops are a problem for jet aircraft. A supersonic jet regularly flying into rain squalls now faces the possibility of fuselage and wing erosion and the problem will become more acute when the Anglo-French Concorde airliner makes its first test flights at twice the speed of sound next February.

Metallurgy scientists at the royal aircraft establishment at Farnborough, near London, are shooting at raindrops to find out just what harm the raindrops do, and how to avoid it.

The damage done to a bullet by hitting a raindrop is jus the same as that done to an aircraft flying through squalls at high speed. But the results can be observed in far greater detail.

The bullets used are two inches long and made of magnesium. Each has a flat nose made out of the material under test, such as the plastic used in windshields, or the stainless steel used for fuselages.

A high-speed camera shows the scientists what happens when bullet and raindrop meet.

The most significant discovery so far is that the impact produces a "jetting" effect when the raindrop shatters, with water shooting sideways at nearly four times the impact speed. This sideways jet burrows into the metal, producing crater-shaped damage.

Grenada Premier

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (CP)—Herbert Augustus Blaize, who represented Grenada on its national day at Expo 67 Sept. 5, has been premier and finance minister of the British West Indies island since it was granted associate statehood by Britain in March.

Prior to that he had been active in territorial politics for 10 years after a varied career in the civil service, with a Dutch oil company and as an agent.

Blaize was born in 1918 in Carriacou, a 13-square-mile island in the Grenadines, a chain of islands running between Grenada and St. Vincent. Carriacou is administered by the Grenada government.

He joined the revenue department here but resigned after suffering serious injuries in a cycling accident. On recovery, he moved to Aruba in the Dutch West Indies where he joined the clerical staff of the Lago Oil and Transport Co., rising to section head.

From 1949 to 1952 he was on the Lago Employees Council and also tutored in English at the Lago Vocational School while earning an intermediate bachelor of science degree in economics from London University by correspondence.

ENTERED POLITICS

Forced to retire due to after-effects of his cycling injury, he returned to Carriacou where he was bed-ridden nearly two years. He then became an insurance agent, served on town council and as justice of the peace.

He entered politics at the territorial level in 1957 and won the Carriacou seat in the Grenada legislative council as a member of the Grenada National party, of which he became leader after an early period as president.

From 1958 to 1961 he served as minister of trade and production in a coalition government and in 1960-61 was also chief minister and head of the government. His party was defeated in elections in March, 1961, although he held his seat.

The constitution was suspended in 1962 after an inquiry into control of public expenditures and in the succeeding election government His party was returned to power.

Mr. Blaize, a modest, unassuming man, the father of three sons and three daughters, is a prominent Anglican layman. He now is studying law under registration with the Law Society in England.

Wants Second Chance At Climbing Mountain

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gertrudee Smith, a Vancouver school teacher, says she wants another crack at climbing 11,387-foot Mount Saskatchewan.

Miss Smith led an all-woman team that failed in a bid to scale the peak in the St. Elias range on the Alaska-Yukon border this summer as part of an ambitious mountain-climbing centennial project.

She is a little concerned that the failure may have cast a

"It may be that we were a little more cautious and careful. In a way we felt we were on our own and weren't as powerful as men and took more time to do things that men could do in a shorter time.

"I feel we should go again and do it with an all-woman team to show them we can do it."

All the male teams with the exception of one from Manitoba succeeded in scaling their mountains in the Yukon Alpine Centennial Expedition. Miss Smith's team—Helen Butling of Nelson, B.C., Wendy Teichmann and Andrea Rankin, both of Montreal—got within 900 feet of the top of their mountain.

Bad weather forced them back, says Miss Smith.

"We were hampered by low cloud, blizzard conditions and mild weather and poor snow conditions. The snow was in very poor condition. It just slipped off the ice which made it very dangerous."

Woman Lawyer Claims

Professional Women Now Have Equal Status

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawyer Janet Scott says a sweeping investigation such as envisaged for the royal commission on the status of women is "ridiculous."

"It might be justified in certain areas, but for professional women it's completely unnecessary," she maintains, adding that professional women are already equal.

Miss Scott, a tall, attractive woman of 42, looks even more equal than most as she sits in the carpeted office of the chairman of the immigration appeals board. She was appointed to the position in mid-August, leaving a Toronto job as editor-in-chief of Canada's largest law publishers, Carswell Co. Ltd., where she worked more than four years.

A graduate of the University of Toronto law school, she practised with another woman lawyer for 11 years. The firm enjoyed a good practice and encountered no male prejudice, she says.

'People did think it strange but they were more intrigued than anything else.

"A woman is just another member of her profession. If she wants to get ahead she has to be as good as or better than her competitors, but so do men."

PUSHED INTO LAW

The grey-haired, blue-eyed Miss Scott chose a law career because a friend of the family encouraged her. An only child, she got strong support for her legal aspirations from her Scottish-born father.

"After a month in the law course I wouldn't have done anything else. Being a lawyer is intellectually very stimulating. There's almost unlimited variety within the profession and I like dealing with people."

She was attracted to the immigration appeals board for the same reasons. "Here you're really dealing with people's lives."

The board rules on appeals by persons ordered deported or those who have been denied permission to sponsor an immigrant.

"The board will have wide discretionary powers on humanitarian grounds. Even though a person may not have a case according to the facts of law, there may be other conditions which would make the board decide to grant his appeal."

The chairmanship will mean travelling because the board holds hearings at ports of entry from Halifax to Vancouver.

DEAR MOTHER:

Look at my blue jeans! It's all the fad now . . .

Your Daughter

* * *

Dear Folks:

I found this note on my typewriter. Along with her blue jeans.

They were fringed on the bottom and so adorable I decided to fringe mine, too.

Here's the easiest way I found to do it:

Take a razor blade and remove the hem. Wet a rag and iron the hem out straight.

This is MOST important. If you have any starch handy, give that a hit and miss, too. Then iron the hem straight. Remember that hem has probably been there a long time and you want the fringe to hang STRAIGHT.

I literally cut the double side seams out and then started pulling the threads loose as if I were making fringe on a napkin.

Fringe about an inch or so. Then put those jeans on.

Darling!

Also, when the jeans wear in the knees, cut them off and make fringed shorts out of them.

And what price teenagers? Perhaps they keep us young. (Or do they make us old? I can't figure that one out.)

This idea is especially wonderful for those jeans we mothers wear which are too short as it lets them down an inch or so . . .

And if our daughters and sons are going to start a fad, why shouldn't we join the group?

Nothing lost and it's free, too . . .

Children love to display their school papers and art work.

Get some small decorative magnets and put their work on the door of your refrigerator and freezer.

As they bring home new papers, they don't mind if the old are thrown away and new ones put up.

This makes a nice big bulletin board for the whole family to view.

The other day I found a solution for my skirt linings.

I lined my skirt with an old half slip.

I just took out the elastic and opened the left side seam for the zipper and sewed it to the waist band of my new skirt.

Worked great and I like it much better than regular lining.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

When my electricity went off about two o'clock one morning recently, it was cold outside and I was freezing with no electric blanket.

I had done as you said and kept my candle in the refrigerator. But I also had one carrot wrapped in wax paper—so you can guess what I was trying to light—the carrot!

DEAR HELOISE:

You know the children's car coats with attached hoods in which the drawstring in the hood is always coming out? I solved this for my children.

I pulled the string back through with a large safety pin. Then sewed a button on each end of the string a little larger than the holes. Now the string stays put and the buttons even add a bit of decoration.

Red Sox Tie Series With Cardinals

By JACK HAND

BOSTON (AP)—Jim Lonborg was robbed of a World Series no-hitter by Julivan Javier's double in the eighth inning Thursday as Lonborg's one-hitter and two tremendous home runs by Carl Yastrzemski squared the Series with a 5-0 Boston Red Sox victory over St. Louis Cardinals in the second game.

Lonborg, who barely escaped injury when mobbed by fans after winning the clincher from Minnesota Twins Sunday, threatened to match Yankee Don Larsen's perfect game of 1956 as he retired 19 straight Cards before he walked Curt Flood on a 3-2 pitch with one out in the seventh.

Javier ruined the 24-year-old right-hander's bid for a no-hitter when he doubled to the left field corner on the first pitch with two out.

JOINS THREE OTHERS

Lonborg, a handsome Stanford graduate, thus became the fourth pitcher to throw a one-hitter in Series history. The others were Ed Reulbach for Chicago Cubs in 1906 against Chicago White Sox, Claude Passeau for the Cubs in 1945 against Detroit Tigers and Floyd Bevens for New York Yankees in 1949 against Brooklyn.

Yastrzemski's extra 20-minute batting practice after Wednesday's opening defeat and hitless frustration, paid off with two homers, a single and four runs batted in. He had taken no batting practice Thursday to save himself for real action.

Powerful No. 6, the man who carried the Red Sox on his back to the pennant and everybody's choice for most valuable player honors, slammed a 360-foot homer into the sixth row of the right field stands in the fourth, breaking up a scoreless battle between Lonborg and Dick Hughes.

HITS HOMER

Coming up in the seventh inning after Jose Tartabull walked and Dalton Jones singled, Yastrzemski slammed a pitch by left-handed Joe Hoerner into the centre field bleachers. It was a tape measure job, landing about six or seven rows up among the frantic Red Sox fans about 430 feet from the plate.

A sunny day with the temperatures in the 80s turned into a dull, cloudy afternoon as the game wore on. They turned on the lights in the seventh and rain brought out umbrellas and raincoats as they went down the stretch with Lonborg's dramatic pitching.

The drama piled up as Lonborg whirled through the Cardinal batting order, once, twice, and into the third time before he finally walked Flood on a low, outside pitch on 3-2. It was the 73rd pitch of the 95 he threw.

Time after time the Red Sox infield had given him a helping hand. Jerry Adair at second base made a mervelous play on a ball hit by Lou Brock in the fourth with a back-handed stop and perfect throw.

MADE RECOVERY

Rico Petrocelli fumbled Flood's blast for an instant in the same fourth inning and then tossed him out. It was Petrocelli, the little shortstop, who did it again in the sixth on Dal Maxvill's hopper behind second base and it was Rico to the rescue again for a fine play on Orlando Cepeda's smash behind second for a force play on Flood to end the seventh.

Yaz and Lonborg simply took matters into their own hands this day. The Sox added another run off Hughes in the sixth when he was driven to cover on two walks and an error by Shannon on Jerry Adair's smash off his chest.

Ron Willis replaced Hughes and was pitching when Petrocelli drove in George Scott with a long sacrifice fly to Flood in deep centre. The run, of course, was charged to Hughes, the 16-6 performer in regular season.

In the seventh Willis ran into a wild streak. Jose Tartabull walked and Jones singled past Shannon to left. With the rain coming down quite hard, Red Schoendienst went to his bullpen and brought in a southpaw pitcher Joe Hoernor to face the left-handed batting Yaz.

It didn't work. Yaz went to 2-2 and then drove the ball deep into the centre field bleachers, driving in Tartabull and Jones ahead of him.

It was the 20th time in Series play that one man has hit two home runs. The record is held by Babe Ruth, who hit three in 1926 and three again in 1928.

Expensive To Stall

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (CP)—Defenceman Pete Goegan has been suspended by Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League, manager-coach Wren Blair announced Thursday.

The 32-year-old Goegan, selected from Detroit Red Wings by the North Stars in the expansion draft last spring, has not signed a 1967-68 contract.

Blair said Goegan will be fined $50 a day and $500 a game starting next Wednesday when Minnesota opens the season against St. Louis Blues, if he continues to be a holdout.

School Soccer

SALMO — L. V. Rogers Senior Secondary School evened their record at two wins two losses Wednesday afternoon by handing Salmo Secondary School their third straight defeat 4-0.

L. V. Rogers led at the half 1-0 and added three insurance markers in the second half.

Scoring for L. V. Rogers were Terry Wikstrom, Phil Best, Bob Cox and Walt Popoff.

Cards Not Connecting

By BEN BROWN

BOSTON (AP)—Most of St. Louis Cardinals players felt Boston's Jim Lonborg was throwing the pitches to the right spot but their bats just weren't connecting.

"He was throwing them right in there," manager Red Schoendienst said after Lonborg and the Red Sox beat St. Louis 5-0 in Thursday's second game of the World Series.

There was more talk in the Cardinal dressing room about Carl Yastrzemski the American League's leading hitter who went without a hit Wednesday but cracked two homers Thursday.

"I got the pitch almost where I wanted it," Hughes said in discussing the first Yastrzemski homer, a blast into the right-field corner. "It was a fast ball."

"His (Yastrzemski's) body moves toward their dugout on the first base side," Hughes said. "His style is similar to St. Louis catcher Tim McCarver's."

Joe Hoerner, normally the Cardinals' most effective left-handed reliever, gave up the second Yastrzemski homer, a three-run blast, just after he replaced Ron Willis on the mound.

"I thew a fast ball up high," Hoerner said. "I got two strikes on him high and inside, but I didn't quite get the one he hit where I wanted . . . and boy,

Julian Javier, St. Louis second baseman, spoiled Lonborg's bid for a no-hitter with a sharp double to the left-field corner in the eighth inning.

HIT GOOD PITCH

"I hit a good pitch," Javier said. "He threw me some good pitches all day." He added that he felt the ball was in there when it left the bat.

Schoendienst said there was little discussion on the Cardinal bench about Lonborg pitching a no-hitter. "We were more concerned about winning the game," Schoendienst continued, "But, of course, you've got to get some hits to win."

Mike Shannon, the St. Louis third baseman, said, "Lonborg pitched a heckuva game out there."

But Curt Flood, St. Louis centrefielder, who walked in the seventh to eliminate the possibility of a perfect game by Lonborg, said it was hard to follow the ball at the plate.

Flood said the pitch he took for the fourth ball in the seventh inning "was off the plate just by inches."

"All those people out in the centre field bleachers make it hard to follow the pitch," Flood said. He said he felt Lonborg would be easier to hit in a larger park with a solid background in centre field.

Pitcher Awarded Trophy

Castlegar Cloverleafs pitcher Allen Gretchin received the most improved player award at a banquet for the club in Castlegar United Church basement.

Jim Lamont presented the trophy donated by Mutual Life of Canada.

More than 90 people attended Jim Lamont, guest speaker commended the Castlegar boys for going as far as they did in the league this year.

He commended coaches, parents and people in the background as well as players.

He described playing ball as "A part of education," saying that it was not winning but learning to play by the rules that was important.

Coach Nick Koochin and manager Nick Stoochnoff were each presented with jackets displaying the Cloverleaf crest.

Game Cancelled

MAPLE LEAFS READY BUT NO COMPETITION

Nelson Maple Leafs were all set for tomorrow's proposed encounter with Vancouver Canucks, but the Canucks backed out.

Apparently no plane accommodation is available out of Vancouver for the team and they are unable to take a bus for their Nelson-Trail games since they must be in Vancouver Monday to open their league schedule.

Maple Leaf manager Gus Adams didn't sound too happy when he disclosed the information to the Daily News. He said the Nelson hosts had already spent in the neighborhood of $100 preparing for the match.

The team was only notified of the exhibition encounter last Wednesday and had been hustling to get ready for the encounter.

Ticket sales were started, advertising space was purchased and advance promotion was already out to the media.

"Now we have to let everyone know that it is off," Adams said.

ARNETT READY TOO

The Leafs playing coach Frank Arnett was ready for the game too.

Arnett has cut down the training camp to 19 men and they are practising some serious hockey.

Adams told the News that 14 players are already signed, most of them returning veterans from last year's young club. The club is expecting another man back from training camp very shortly, he said.

Left winger Don Borgeson was the fourteenth to sign, putting his signature on paper yesterday. He has just returned from Phoenix Road Runners camp.

Still in camp and unsigned are Howie Hornby, an ex-Leaf who retired the playing scene last year; Frank Carlson, a burly defenceman coming out of retirement and Terry Minnus, a 180-pound left-winger who is attempting the stop up from junior hockey.

3 Tied in $55,000 Tourney

By JOHN FARROW

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Billy Casper, Doug Sanders and Gardner Dickinson shared the first-round lead in the rich Alcan Golfer of the Year tournament Thursday with 22-year-old Brian Barnes of England. All registered four-under-par 68s.

The tournament, being played for the first time, carries a first prize of $55,000—the largest in pro golf. Eleven United States pros, seven Britons and Bob Charles of New Zealand qualified to compete.

Bobby Nichols and Bay Brewer of the U.S. contingent and Peter Allis of Britain all were deadlocked at 69.

Meanwhile, an International 72-hole tournament for $70,000 in prizes was being played at the same time as the $125,000 Alcan.

At the end of the first round in the International, Peter Thomson, five-time winner of the British Open championship from Australia, led with 69. Dai Rees, British Ryder Cup captain; David Snell, England, and Brian Waites, England, were on the 70 mark.

Then came Al Balding, Canada; Graham Henning, South Africa; Peter Green, Britain; John Panton, Scotland; Brian Allen, England; and Denis Hutchinson, South Africa, with 71s.

Jim Lonborg Not Happy?

BOSTON (AP)—Jim Lonborg, Boston Red Sox' top candidate for the Cy Young Award, was disappointed Thursday after a one-hit masterpiece in a 5-0 victory over St. Louis Cardinals in the second game of the World Series.

"I'm always happy when I pitch well and we win, but I'm disappointed that I didn't get the no-hitter—the one goal that has eluded me during this fabulous season," he said. "I pitched in the All-Star game, I won 20 games (actually 22) and I pitched in the World Series. I'll get that no-hitter some day."

Lonborg hurled perfect ball for 6 1-3 innings, retired 19 batters in order before Curt Flood walked on a 3-2 count with one out in the seventh.

Julian Javier, a .281 hitter during the regular season, broke up Lonborg's bid by hitting a sinking liner into the left field corner for a double with two out in the eighth.

"I didn't care about the walk," Lonborg said. "I'm not after any perfect game—yet. The no-hitter is what I wanted. Javier hit a hanging slider. As soon as I threw it, I wanted it back. It was the only bad pitch I made all day."

Lonborg went directly to slugger Carl Yastrzemski as he entered the crowded clubhouse after the Red Sox squared the series at a game each.

"This guy is just fabulous," Lonborg said in praising Yastrzemski, who drove in four runs with a pair of homers.

Meet Pittsburgh

Canadian Press Sports Editor Bruce Levett is visiting training camps of the new National Hockey League clubs. Today he writes about Pittsburgh Penguins.

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

"Jack Riley is a great general manager; he's behind me 100 per cent—win or tie," says Red Sullivan, coach of the Pittsburgh Penguins.

His battle-scarred face cracked in a grin as he said it, but the kernel of truth was there. Both Riley and his coach feel the Penguins must be a winning club right from its first season.

"So far, we're as good as any other club. Until the season opens, we're all in first place," Red says.

Where many of the teams in the new division of the National Hockey League are building for the future, Riley and Sullivan feel the Penguins must establish a winning record during the first season.

"Pittsburgh is used to good minor-league hockey, so the fans know the score," Riley says. "We've got to get in there and cut it right now."

And there are other reasons. Pittsburgh will play in a grand, refurbished arena with a retractable roof for summer-time activities. The home dressing room is wall-to-wall in $2,800 worth of carpet.

DON'T OWN IT

It's a glamorous layout, but as Riley says—"we don't own it; we have to pay rent."

He declines to talk specifics but says "we have no big television contract behind us."

"We don't even own the concessions."

Expenses this inaugural season have been high—"This has been a particularly tough year for managers and owners in the signing of players."

"The players don't want to know your problems; they're interested in what they are going to get. You can't blame the players for trying, but you have to meet down the road somewhere."

Riley and Sullivan have gone for experience wherever they could find it in lining up their team.

"We have about 4,500 games of NHL experience on our club compared to about 1,300 for Los Angeles—and of that, 900 or so must belong to Sawchuk," Red says.

"We've got good checkers and if you check hard enough and long enough, you'll get the goals. Noel Price and Leo Boivin can lug the puck out of there with the best. Earl Ingarfield is going to get all kinds of ice time with us and he's itching to go."

HAS IT FIGURED

Riley feels his club can win 30 of the 52 games they'll play within their own division and "maybe six" of the 24 they'll have with the established clubs.

"That would give us 36 wins, less than 50 per cent, but it would also probably give us first place."

Penguins tangle with Montreal Canadiens in their home opener, then take on Chicago Black Hawks and "it should be a great draw."

Strikes & Spares

Junior Ladies: Strikers 3 over Fifth Wheels 1; Sickarellos 3 over Jugglers 1; Cheerios 3 over Hopefuls 1. High game was Strikers with 851. Game Aggregate won by Cheerios with 2277. High single was Bal Kearney with 220 and high triple was Helena Mills with 558.

OCTOBER 9 THANKSGIVING DAY

A great day to discover how little long distance costs

On this special day the voices of loved ones, perhaps from hundreds of miles away, have a special place in our hearts. Memories are sharpened, experiences recaptured. It is a day when togetherness means so much and—as always with B.C. TEL—costs so little.

Now a student son or daughter away at college can afford a long distance call home (especially if they call "collect"!). Long distance rates are among the very few items of personal expenditures which, over the years, have lagged far behind the general rise in other living costs. In fact, many long distance calls actually cost less in dollars and cents today than 10 years ago. Moreover, after 6 pm and all day Sunday they are cheaper by about one-fifth.

Check the rates yourself in your telephone book or dial "O" and ask the operator. You'll be surprised how little it costs to enjoy "the next best thing to being there." Here, for example, are a few current charges:

VANCOUVER—PRINCE GEORGE..... $1.35
NEW WESTMINSTER—CALGARY..... $1.50
VICTORIA—TORONTO..... $1.95
(Evening, station-to-station calls, first 3 minutes)

On this important day of the year there's more reason than ever to use Long Distance for all it's worth!

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Saturday, Oct. 7, 1967

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Gather more information about matters you are working on, and do not proceed if you do not have sufficient facts, know-how. An uneven day in spots, but you can accomplish much, nevertheless.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Children's, oldsters' affairs ask your special attention. You can supply the needed encouragement, tactful word. The position of Venus now stimulates your personality.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — You could get into "hot water," a predicament, if not minding your P's and Q's. On the other hand, you can do considerable to enhance your potential with the right attitude.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — New trends must be carefully evaluated, appraised if you are to avert possible slip-ups. Whatever you must do, do well, even if you believe it is not your "top" assignment.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — It may be hard to keep important things uppermost in your mind now. But there's no escaping into corners or side issues! Your inborn buoyancy is just what this day needs.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Don't think efforts are not being observed and do not compromise because of expediency. Some "odd" situations may prove useful in the future.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Prospects for gains should have brightened during the last few weeks. Where you were perceptive, alert, you now share in profits. Some further benefits to come later so, while being patient, keep striving.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — A bit of lightheartedness is just what is needed now — not heedlessness, but a light touch and a cheery attitude. And you must take SOME chances or courage and talents will wilt.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — A noteworthy day can be yours for the making and the taking. Don't miss those good "little" things along the route. And DO give others a "lift" where you can.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Presents aspects suggest keen observance of conditions and situations before embarking on new ventures; in everyday matters, too. Be sure just where you stand.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Be patient and practical in devising plans; shift quickly to a different tack if the methods you are using are not really working.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Your intuition, plus practical skill, can help you solve problems more easily now, and help to further your advancement. Keep mind open to new ideas.

YOU BORN TODAY: Both women and men of this sensitive, artistic Zodiacal sector have amiable, personable traits. You thrive best with encouragement but this we do not always have, so keep on doing your best, tending your interests, and don't feel badly about seeming indifference or lack of understanding about you. People look to YOU for guidance. You do not cater to power or influence; may quickly say how you feel. This straightforward trait brings you to the attention of superiors, to positions of trust and to new friendships. Birthdate of: James Whitcomb Riley, American poet.

Sees Limiting Of U.S. Role

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The capacity and will of the U.S. to police the world has been one debating point in the questions raised by the Vietnam war.

Richard Nixon, the politically-astute old pro who remains a fair bet to be next year's Republican presidential candidate, has put his finger on this significant national current.

A legacy of the most frustrating foreign war in American history, he writes in the Foreign Affairs Quarterly, "almost surely will be a deep reluctance on the part of the U.S. to become involved once again in a similar intervention on a similar basis."

Other nations must "recognize that the role of the U.S. as world policeman is likely to be limited in the future."

He adds, in a statement borne out by the convictions of both those who want a quick end to the war and those who are more moderate militarily: "Weary with war, disheartened with allies, disillusioned with foreign aid, dismayed at domestic crisis, many Americans are heeding the call of the new isolationism."

NO MORE VIETNAMS

In short, no more Vietnams.

This is despite an unrivalled position in global power, the world's largest standing army of more than 3,000,000 and more than 1,000,000 of these abroad.

The U.S. has commitments to 42 allies, State Secretary Dean Rusk has maintained. There are military advisor teams in more than 35 countries—like those "advisers" who spearheaded the vast buildup in Vietnam.

There are major U.S. bases in some 20 countries and more than 3,000 minor bases around the world as part of a defence budget totalling $73,000,000,000 this fiscal year.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

WANTS FISH

LISBON (AP)—By affirmatory decree published in the official gazette, Portugal has extended its territorial waters to 12 miles offshore, declaring that foreign craft are forbidden to fish, prepare fish or commit any acts affecting fishing inside the new limit. It said fines will range up to $21,000 and ships may be seized until they are paid.

WEATHER OUTLOOK PROM... ...n parts of Canada will have temperatures near or above normal during October, according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. Western Canada will have readings above normal, as will parts of the Maritimes. The rest of the country will have near-normal readings. Precipitation will be heavy on the coasts. All of British Columbia, the Atlantic provinces and northern Quebec will have heavy precipitation. Light precipitation is called for in southern parts of the Prairies and most of Ontario. Other areas will have moderate rainfall. The outlook is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. — (CP Newsmap).

Housing Conference To Tackle Crisis

OTTAWA (CP—Creation of a new federal department of housing with wide responsibilities in urban development and local transportation problems may result from the current housing crisis, informants said Wednesday.

The government is calling a conference with the provinces, likely to be held early in December, at which this and other proposals will be discussed.

Housing now is the responsibility of Labor Minister Nicholson, who reports to Parliament for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., a Crown corporation, and for administration of the National Housing Act. He carried these responsibilities into his labor department duties from the time he was postmaster-general, a less onerous task.

Officials said that in Canada where the provinces — and through them the municipalities —share the federal government's interest in housing, there is not the same ministerial burden at the federal government level as there is on the minister of housing in the British government. The centralized government of the U.K., compactness of the country and diversity of local administration, makes housing virtually a full-time job.

WIDER ROLE

Apart from trying to promote the construction of a growing number of dwelling units in Canada, the Economic Council of Canada said in its recently published review of the economy that governments must take more responsibility for problems of urban development.

Big tasks, as officials here see it, will be to maintain transportation corridors into and out of the big, growing cities and sufficient open space for recreational use.

New Drug Aid in Treatment Of Hardening of Arteries

CHICAGO (AP)—A drug that may prevent—or also reverse —hardening of the arteries, even if persons remain on the high-fat diets sometimes blamed for causing the condition, was reported by a Duke University researcher Tuesday.

Dr. Robert Fuson, a surgery resident at Duke who has been trying the drug on others and on himself for three years, said his studies indicate "you can have your cake and eat it too."

Hardening of the arteries, known medically as atherosclerosis, is a major killer and crippler. It results in heart attacks, strokes and loss of limbs from gangrene.

The condition is believed caused by a combination of such factors as a high cholesterol or fat level in the blood, high blood pressure, obesity, heavy smoking, stress and heredity.

Fuson said in an interview and paper at the annual clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons that the drug is a powdered plastic known chemically as cholestyramine.

TASTES LIKE POP

When mixed with water, he said, it becomes a yellowish compound that tastes like soda pop.

Fuson said that when he started taking the drug, his blood cholesterol count was 210 milligrams, a level placing him in the danger bracket. For the last 1½ years, he added, his count has been below 75, almost the level of a newborn baby that has not consumed any fatty foods.

In trials on 65 other humans, he said, their cholesterol levels have been reduced as much as 60 per cent. He said 32 of 36 patients suffering from symptoms of hardening of the arteries enjoyed "significant relief" but that their symptoms gradually returned when the medication was stopped temporarily.

He gave this description of the drug's action:

Cholestyramine combines with bile acids in the intestine and causes them to be excreted from the body rather than reabsorbed. Because of the interference with the reabsorption process of the bile acids, the body is required to make additional bile acids. And since the body normally makes bile acids from cholesterol, the cholesterol level in the blood is lowered.

He said the action is entirely within the gastro-intestinal tract and that chances of producing serious side effects are slim. Such undesirable side effects as cataracts, liver and possible heart damage have been produced by earlier drugs designed to lower the serum cholesterol level.

RESTRICT EATING

Another approach to lowering the cholesterol level has been to restrict the eating of saturated fats contained in eggs, butter, cream and meat fats.

Fuson said he fed dogs on a high-fat diet and that their cholesterol levels soared to eight times normal, with many dying from heart attacks and strokes.

When other dogs, on the same diet, also were given cholestyramine, he said, none developed hardening of the arteries and their blood cholesterol levels remained near normal or only slightly elevated.

The drug is being produced by a commercial firm for experimental use only.

POLICE MEET ENDS

KYOTO, Japan (AP)—The International Criminal Police Organization—Interpol—ended its eight-day general assembly Wednesday. A total of 270 police officers and observers, representing 70 countries, attended the meeting. Discussion ranged from ways to combat narcotic traffic to means of extraditing criminals.

Michener To Lead "Hunger March"

OTTAWA (CP)—A fall program aimed at involving Canadians from coast to coast in helping the developing nations of the world will be launched in Ottawa Saturday by a symbolic hunger march led by Governor-General Michener.

Duncan Edmonds, executive director of the Centennial International Development Program, said at a news conference Wednesday thousands of young people are expected to accompany the Governor-General on the two-mile walk from Rideau Hall to Parliament Hill.

here they will be served a lunch of rice cakes and water, the daily diet of millions of people in other parts of the world.

Governor-General Michener will then broadcast a thanksgiving message to the nation.

The CIDP fall program, Mr. Edmonds said, will "provide a dynamic, outward looking, international ending to the Centennial Year."

Christians, Reds Found Mutual Aims

By GODFREY ANDERSON

WETHERBY, England (AP) — Christians and Communists have enough in common to work together for a better world. That was the consensus after an unprecedented get-together of Roman Catholic seminarians with members of Britain's Young Communist League last week.

Dogma was quoted according to Pope John XXIII and to Karl Marx. No one mentioned the Marxist maxim about religion being the opium of the people.

The trainee priests, from seminaries and religious houses all over England, were attending a three-day course at Wood Hall, an ecumenical centre opened this year to try to practise what the Vatican Council preached.

The young Communists came from nearby industrial Leeds. Eight of them, including two girls in mini-skirts were studying for degrees at Yorkshire universities. Only one was a factory worker. The attire of the men was impeccable.

NUN IN THE RANKS

In the ranks of the seminarians was a grey-clad nun, Sister Constance Vaudrin, a French-speaking Canadian of the Holy Family of Bordeaux Order, who serves on the centre's staff.

Like the mini-skirted Communist girls, Sister Constance never opened her mouth. By tacit agreement, all the talking seemed left to the men.

The start of debate was painfully polite.

John Baruch, 24, a bearded and spectacled research student in cosmic-ray physics, said:

"The basic reason we joined the Communist party is because we want to make the world a better place. We think the crux of this depends on the means of owning wealth. It must be democratically owned."

QUOTATIONS USED

After some delving among Marxist quotations, he wound up by saying: "We think we've plenty of common ground—you and us. We're trying to change the world for the better. We think you're trying to do the same."

Very Rev. Michael Buckley, Irish warden of Wood Hall who acted as chairman, conceded that perhaps the church had been too much identified with the West, where most of the world's wealth is concentrated.

"But we might disagree with you, John, about private property," he said, "which we think man should have for his own dignity."

For two hours they sat in a sparsely - furnished high - ceilinged room with a crucifix on one wall.

MANY PROBLEMS

The Vietnam war, the American racial conflict, the Hungarian uprising—all had their turn. The seminarians gave as good as they got.

As the discussion went on, the areas of agreement came closer.

It was settled there was some common ground—the Communists for their limited political ideal, the church for what it considered man's higher destiny.

Britain Wants Stiffer Sanctions On Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Britain called Wednesday for a strengthening of the UN Security Council's economic sanctions against its rebellious colony of Rhodesia but once again ruled out the use of force to topple Rhodesia's white-minority government.

D. E. T. Luard, member of Britain's delegation, told the UN General Assembly's trusteeship committee that selective, mandatory sanctions, imposed by the Security Council last December, "are biting deeply into the Southern Rhodesia economy."

But Foreign Minister R. C. Kamanga of Zambia, a neighbor of Rhodesia, said in a speech in the assembly's general debate the mandatory sanctions "have lamentably failed."

Zambia has been hard hit by side effects of the sanctions.

Kamanga said Britain's policy against its colony, which unilaterally declared its independence of Britain Nov. 11, 1965, "is phoney, misleading and dishonest. It is disastrous."

The statements by Kamanga and Luard occurred almost simultaneously—in the assembly chamber and the committee room respectively. Luard's opened the assembly's formal debate on the Rhodesian question.

African UN members are expected to press for an assembly resolution calling on the Security Council to take sterner action against Rhodesia, in view of what they say is the failure of the sanctions.

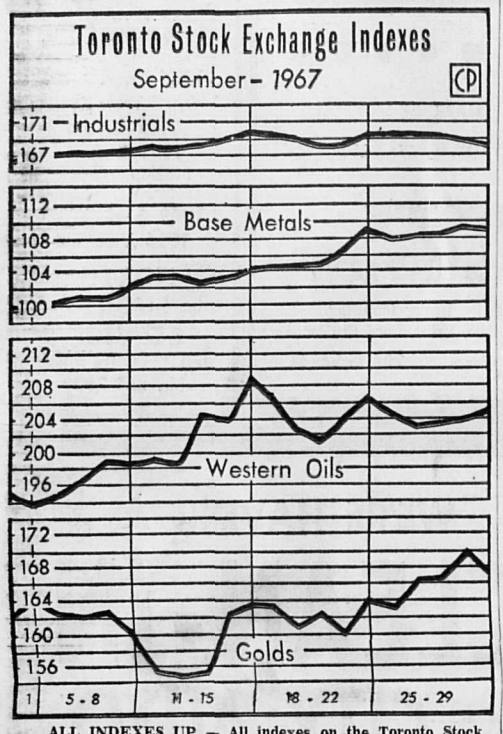
Toronto Stock Exchange Indexes

September – 1967 (CP)



ALL INDEXES UP — All indexes on the Toronto Stock Exchange were up at the close of September trading, with western oils leading the way. Western oils jumped 10.29 to close out the month at 205.39. Next came base metals, climbing 3.20 to close at 109.18. Golds closed at 167.75, up 5.07 and industrials rose 1.87 to 168.72. — (CP Newsmap).

MARKET TRENDS

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange registered its second consecutive day of price gains Thursday in moderate trading.

Key industrials, paced by CPR with a 1½ gain to 64¼, were stronger and the industrial index rose .34 to 167.82.

Golds were off .35 at 169.03 but base metals gained .37 to 110.05. Western oils were down .53 at 205.85.

Among industrials, Famous Players rose 1 to 40 and Bow Valley ⅛ to a high of 22, the latter on trading of 14,000 shares. Laura Secord, on a second takeover bid from Fanny Farmer Inc., gained ¼ to a high of 17½. Alcan gained 4 at 29⅞, Interprovincial Pipe slipped ¼ to 21¾ and Trans-Canada Pipe, whose president Wednesday predicted lower earnings for the balance of the year, lost ⅝ to 30.

Denison reached a high of 85¼ among base metals, gaining ⅞. Inco was up ⅜ to 116¼ and Falconbridge ¼ to 92¼. Rio Algom slipped ¼ to 38½.

In western oils Dome Petroleum gained 1½ at 59½ and Banff ½ at 16⅛ Scurry Rainbow fell 1½ to 35¼ and Central Del Rio ⅞ to 21⅜.

Among speculative issues Goldrim gained 9 cents at 72 cents.

Volume totalled 2,953,000 shares compared with 4,348,000 Wednesday.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced in a sluggish session Thursday.

The forward move came despite brokers' expectations that prices might be unfavorably affected by diminished trading due to the Jewish religious holiday and by signs that the Ford strike is beginning to make itself felt on the U.S. economy.

The New York Stock Exchange's total volume for 1967 topped the record 1,899,495,014 shares traded in all of 1966.

Steels, rubbers, mail order-retails, electronics and oils advanced. Rails, airlines and farm implements declined. Most other groups were mixed.

Changes of most key stocks ranged from fractions to about 2 points.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.84 to 927.13.

The associated Press 60-stock average gained .3 to 336.8, with industrials up 2.2, rails off .7 and utilities off .6 to 144.5, a new 1967 low.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index showed a gain of 12 cents in the average price of a share.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index added .24 at 96.67.

Volume skidded to 8,490,000 shares from 11,530,000 Wednesday.

McDonnell-Douglas, up 4¼ at 52½ on 156,800 shares, was the most active.

Amphenol, which had been a consistent leader, failed to make the most-active list for the first time in seven sessions. It had started to cool off Wednesday after the company president asked the New York exchange and the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission to investigate the recent heavy volume. Amphenol gained 1¼ to 40⅞.

Wheeling Steel advanced 1⅝ to 19⅜, Interlake Steel gained ⅜ at 31½ and Pittsburgh Steel was up ¼ at 13⅛.

Among Canadian stocks, Canadian Pacific gained 1⅞, Granby Mining and International Nickel ½, Alcan ⅜, Massey-Ferguson ¼, Dome Mines ⅛. McIntyre Porcupine lost 1, Distillers Seagrams ⅛.

Prices advanced on the American exchange. Volume fell to 3,640,000 shares from Wednesday's 5,950,000. The exchange's index rose 7 cents to $22.90.

Among Canadian stocks, Canadian Javelin rose ½, Canadian Marconi ¼, Jupiter Corp. and Scurry-Rainbow Oil ⅛.

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices drifted fractionally lower on the Montreal Stock Exchange Thursday. Declines outnumbered gains 69-39, but the composite index edged up .12 to 161.89.

Takeover bids and cancellation of a dividend payment by Rothmans injected energy into otherwise moderate trading. As Rothmans dropped 1¾ points to 26⅛ and McAllister, Fraser Co. and Laura Secord were active.

Fraser Co. dipped ¾ to 22.

Laura Secord rose ¼ to 17¼, reacting to purchase offers from Salada Foods and Fanny Farmer. Salada dipped ¼ to 10¾.

Uraniums were mixed, with Denison up ¾ at 85 and Rio Algom down ⅝ at 38¼. Both issues have been slowly advancing after last month's announcement that the companies will share a contract to ship 31,000,000 pounds of uranium to Japan over a ten-year period. One analyst called Rio's dip Thursday a profits taking reaction to the recent climb.
