Wilson Takes Economics Post in Cabinet Shakeup

Trade Minister Jay Gets Boot

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson has put himself directly in charge of Britain's economic buildup at a time when the program seemed to be running out of steam.

Wilson, 51, an economist by training, named himself economics minister in a partial shuffle of Labor government personnel announced Monday night.

Wilson fired Douglas Jay from the trade ministry and Herbert Bowden quit as Commonwealth secretary to become overseer of commercial television. Foreign Secretary George Brown and treasury chief James Callaghan stand pat.

Michael Stewart, 60, the dry, precise administrator who has headed the economic affairs department for a year, keeps his place in the 21-member cabinet to watch over domestic policies other than finance.

Jay, 60, has been an outspoken critic of Wilson's plan to take Britain into the European Common Market and his dismissal was widely predicted. Common Marketeer Anthony Crosland, 49, today takes over trade.

HAROLD WILSON

George Thomson, 46, a trouble-shooter at the foreign office, moves into the Commonwealth relations spot vacated by Bowden, 62.

COMES AS SURPRISE

Wilson's personal assumption of responsibility for the country's program of recovery from chronic economic ills came as a surprise.

But the move has the characteristic Wilson flair—what admirers call political astuteness and opponents dismiss as government by gimmick.

His self-appointment tends to disarm both the Conservative Opposition and Labor critics planning to attack government economic policies at the Trades Union Congress next week.

Tory chief Edward Heath opened his offensive during the weekend by assaulting Labor's "stupidity and incompetence" in trying to manage the economy. After three years in office, Wilson can no longer blame inherited Tory policies for mounting unemployment and industrial stagnation, Heath said.

Wilson's response is to underline his determination to make the recovery program work by boldly staking his personal political reputation unequivocally on its success.

At the same time, Wilson has tightened his own grip on the cabinet by taking charge of the most important part of the government program.

Wilson set up the department of economic affairs after Labor came to power in 1964 to take over long-range planning from the treasury. For two years, with George Brown pushing an expansion program, the department seemed to be more powerful than the treasury.

Prosecutions Promised In Forest Violations

VANCOUVER (CP) — Forest closures are being ignored, a forestry service official in Vancouver said Monday.

Don Owen, protection officer for the Vancouver forest district, said some of the violations are flagrant and will be followed by prosecutions.

He said in one case during the weekend a group of campers on Bowen Island were asked by a forestry patrolman to leave.

"Not only did they remain but later they were found to have lit campfires," Owen said.

He said the service intends to prosecute in this case and also in two cases involving hunters.

"Not only are hunters who go into the woods violating the forest closure, but also the game regulations because the opening of the season has been postponed until the closures are lifted," he said.

Owen said the service realizes some people may be confused on which areas are closed to the public.

"But when people openly defy us we have no alternative but to proceed against them," he said.

14 Missing Skydivers Sought in Lake Erie

HURON, Ohio (AP)—The U.S. Coast Guard began dragging Lake Erie for the bodies of 14 missing skydivers Monday, 24 hours after they vanished in the wind-whipped waters in history's worst parachute hobbiest accident.

A surface search continued as friends and relatives on shore waited and prayed. Some clung to bare threads of hope.

The Federal Aviation Agency ordered an immediate investigation into why the B-25 Mitchell—converted Second World War bombers — apparently was off course. The jumpers missed their mark Sunday by 10 miles.

Two other jumpers—including a woman who had skydived on her wedding day with her husband—were found drowned. Two men were rescued by fishermen.

A Coast Guard spokesman said a swimmer in the lake would be given little hope of surviving more than 24 hours. The water ranged between 72 and 76 degrees, with gusty winds.

Time and weather worked against rescue of the veteran parachutists from the moment of their jump. They were buffeted by 58-mile-an-hour winds at 20,000 feet and were swept into the lake.

SEARCH HAMPERED

Darkness fell Sunday before any of the missing could be found. A rainstorm Monday morning cut visibility.

The only signs found during the first day of the Coast Guard-controlled search turned up five parachutes and an assortment of skydiving equipment.

The 14 missing were among 18 skydivers from various Ohio clubs who went up Sunday for a free-fall exercise. They had left from Ortner Air Service Field at Wakeman—five miles inland from Lake Erie.

Their plans were to drop near the field.

All 18 were caught by strong winds and swept into Lake Erie.

"As soon as I broke out of the clouds," said Robert Coy of Springfield, one of two survivors, "I knew something was wrong. All I saw was water. The waves were over my head and water was swishing into my mouth."

Hong Kong Bomb Kills British Soldier

HONG KONG (AP)—A bomb killed a British soldier Monday as the Communists continued their campaign against Britain's rule in this crown colony. The communists also published a list of six prominent anti-Communist Chinese marked for assassination.

The soldier, a sergeant, was dismantling a bomb lodged on a cliff plastered with Communist slogans and flags. He hit a trip wire, the bomb exploded and blew him 200 feet down the cliff.

The soldier was the first British victim of terrorist bombs. Four Chinese have died by violence in the last eight days, three in bombings.

The death toll rose to 33 since May, when the Communists fomented riots, strikes and terror in an attempt to unseat British rule in this colony on China's southern border.

The Communists, up to the beginning of last week, seemed to be placing their bombs indiscriminately throughout the colony. More than 1,000 bombs had been picked up by police.

TERROR DRIVE

Now they apparently are engaged in a drive to throw terror into the colony's leading Chinese anti-Communists.

Through an underground newspaper called Attack, the Communists announced that six top local Chinese would be killed by what it called "The 48th guerrillas."

On the list is Paul Tsui, secretary for Chinese affairs in the Hong Kong government. Said Tsui: "The Communists have never frightened me in the past and I will not be intimidated now by these cowardly tactics."

It was understood Tsui had been given a guard and the government offered protection to the others—who include two anti-Communist newspaper editors.

The situation was quiet on the border with China. Food trucks from China have resumed normal travel to Hong Kong after the British took down a frontier barrier at Man Kam To after two weeks of border violence.

Alberni Protests TV Program

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) Mayor Les Hammer of this Vancouver Island city is hopping mad about a "big black eye" he says the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation dealt his city Sunday.

Subject of his anger is the program Youth in a Small Town, screened by CBC television as part of the 20-20 series.

The small town in question was Port Alberni and Mr. Hammer said the city's youth was portrayed as "a bunch of high school dropouts who left school at 15 so they could go to work at the mill so they could get money to buy hot rods and grow beards."

He said he has protested to the CBC about the program.

PC Official Quits in Hassle Over Leadership Convention

by KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Charges of rigging the Conservative party leadership convention flew Monday with the resignation of a national officer of the party and a formal complaint about delegate accreditation backed by some leadership candidates.

Miss Laura G. Mann, an Ontario director of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, quit the four-member committee selecting Ontario's 90 delegates at large for the convention in Toronto Sept. 5-9.

She accused convention co-chairman E. A. Goodman, a Toronto lawyer, of undemocratically packing the list of selections without the committee's formal approval.

Meanwhile, Dr. James Johnston, national director of the party, sent a formal letter of protest, backed by at least three leadership candidates, against the addition as voting delegates of 84 persons who participated in the Montmorency Falls, Que., policy advisory conference earlier this month.

His protest was said here to be supported by candidates Alvin Hamilton, Davie Fulton and Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba.

Dr. Johnston said in a letter to Gene Rheaume, convention secretary, that the 84 far exceed the number agreed upon by the convention committee at a meeting in Victoria earlier in the year.

He said the maximum should be 30.

Furthermore, he said, 51 of the 84 were from one province —Ontario—and a "large number" were known supporters of one of the nine leadership candidates.

Neither Miss Mann in her letter to Mr. Goodman nor Dr Johnston in his to Mr. Rheaume identified the candidate in whose favor voting delegates were being appointed.

"That will come out," Miss Mann said at a press conference she called to announce her resignation.

Her letter said she might have found acceptable most of the Ontario voting delegates-at-large accredited by Mr. Goodman if proper attention had been given to democratic procedures.

"As far as I am concerned, I do not believe that the 90 delegates-at-large from Ontario have been properly selected.

"I cannot condone your actions and will be no part of them."

JOHNSTON COMPLAINS

Dr. Johnston complained that accreditation of 84 voting delegates from the Montmorency conference gives this group, which included non-party members, almost as many votes for the leadership as the 96 elected members of Parliament.

He said only British Columbia, Quebec, Ontario and Alberta will have more voting delegates elected at the constituency level than the Montmorency group.

Dr. Johnston is an appointee of Mr. Diefenbaker to the national director's post. Miss Mann said that she is a Diefenbaker supporter "and don't you think he isn't going to run."

Mr. Diefenbaker has not publicly declared his intentions.

The other candidates in the leadership race are MPs George Hees and Michael Starr, Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon, Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, former finance minister Donald Fleming, and auto dealer John Maclean of Brockville.

Cold Weather Work Object Of Winter Works Changes

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government will make two changes in the 1967-68 winter works program to concentrate work in the cold-weather months and discourage welfare-type projects.

Ottawa and the provinces also plan fall talks on further long-term improvements to the scheme, under which 50 to 60 per cent of direct payroll costs are met by federal grants.

An announcement Friday said the program is being shortened this winter to five months from six. An official said many municipalities launch their projects in November, when seasonal unemployment is relatively low, and slacken off when jobs are most needed.

They will be given an option this year to begin drawing contributions after Nov. 1, but the government hopes most work will take place in the period after Dec. 1.

In a second change the government will clamp down on projects involving little or no capital spending by the municipalities.

Such maintenance schemes as brush-clearing now will be banned under the scheme.

JOBS STRETCHED OUT

Quebec municipalities have often been criticized for abuse of the program by stretching out jobs that call for a high degree of labor content.

Ottawa would like to discuss problems of this nature with the provinces, and urge the provinces to make more generous contributions themselves.

Provincial support for winter works varies substantially across the country. Quebec assumes a flat 40 per cent of labor costs, Ontario pays half the federal contribution, and Saskatchewan and Alberta pay about 25 per cent.

Manitoba and British Columbia relate their payments to employment of welfare recipients and Prince Edward Island assumes between 30 and 40 per cent.

Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick make no contributions.

Federal payments since the program was launched in 1958-59 have totalled about $240,000,000, including an estimated $37,000,000 last year.

Over-all value of projects reached a high of more than $300,000,000 in 1964-65 and 1965-66. Last year about two-thirds of all spending was on roads, sidewalks, water and sewer installations.

Epstein's Death Leaves Pop Music World Worried

By Y FOX

LONDON (CP)—Britain's big-money world of pop music and wild youth is full of speculation about its future following the death of Brian Epstein, dapper manager of the Beatles.

Most of Monday's speculation focused on the four tousle-topped sensations from Liverpool, discovered by Epstein in 1961.

Now elder statesmen of the fast-changing pop scene, the Beatles owe most of their recent headline prominence in Britain to a well-publicized flirtation with Eastern religion rather than to any big musical coup.

The four were being initiated into a religious process called "transcendantal meditation" when they learned of Epstein's death Sunday in his swank, $95,000 house.

Bearded and flowered in keeping with the current hippie craze, they seemed full of joy at finding this new form of "fulfilment" after previously deriving headline-making kicks from drugs.

COMES AS SHOCK

But the religious ecstasy, achieved under the tutelage of a bearded Indian mystic, changed to shock with news of the 32-year-old Epstein's death.

In the years since he found the Beatles blasting out their wild songs at a basement night spot in his native Liverpool, Epstein and the quartet are reputed to have earned a total of between $60,000,000 and $90,000,000.

Epstein, though living out his bachelor existence in the manner of an aloof-seeming aesthete, forged a complex web of interlocking companies as the tough fabric of his pop empire. He owned profitable chunks of other star performers besides the Beatles.

Much of the current London guessing about future developments now that he is dead is concerned with the key company in the Epstein network, Nems Enterprises Ltd.

Another 32-year-old, Robert Stigwood, is mentioned as the firm's possible new head. The Australia-born Stigwood, No. 2 man in Nems, is said to have made a small fortune as a pop music manager before joining the Epstein company.

Estimates of Epstein's personal fortune run as high as $18,000,000.

The son of a furniture dealer, he lived like a crown prince of London's affluent, swinging side.

A post-mortem was scheduled for today to determine the cause of his death.

Police Monday searched Epstein's three-floor house near Buckingham Palace, taking away bottles and tins of tablets.

One newspaper, The Evening Standard, speculates that Epstein's death may have been caused by his absentmindedly taking pills after having a few drinks at a party Saturday night.

Epstein had been ill in recent months, suffering at various times from insomnia, exhaustion and mononucleosis.

Securities Commission Gets More Help

VICTORIA (CP) — The B.C. Securities Commission is being given more muscle to keep up surveillance of stock promoters, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Monday.

Three more audit accountants will be hired to help the lone accountant on the commission staff, Mr. Bonner said.

A cabinet order in council passed Monday approves the hirings.

The attorney-general said the increase is "in anticipation of a wider range of responsibilities under the new securities act passed at the last session."

He said the new act likely will be proclaimed next month financial disclosure by companies to their share-holders, more stringent requirements for promoters and regulations governing insider trading.

Man Charged in Rockwell Killing Faces Mental Tests

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Mental tests were ordered Monday for the man accused of killing American Nazi party leader George Lincoln Rockwell.

Some U.S. war veterans, meanwhile, protested the planned use of a national cemetery as the final resting place for the 49-year-old hate-preacher slain Friday by a sniper.

Rockwell's little band of "storm troopers" planned to don their khakis, boots and swastika armbands for a 65-mile procession today to the small military cemetery at Culpeper, Va.

The U.S. Army is expected to rule that Rockwell—A U.S. Navy veteran of two wars—is entitled to burial there.

He will lie with some 1,600 veterans, mostly Civil War unknowns. And while his body will be shrouded in Nazi regalia, his coffin will be draped until burial in an American flag.

Arlington County Judge L. Jackson Embrey called for three psychiatrists to examine John C. Patler, the 29-year-old ex-party member accused of Rockwell's murder.

The hearing for Patler was disrupted briefly when a Rockwell follower from Australia made an unsuccessful lunge at the prisoner, screaming "You filthy swine! You filthy assassin!"

Six policemen jumped on the man and dragged him from the courtroom. When he returned, Eric Ray Wenberg, 21, of Mackey, Australia, was handed a 10-day jail term and a $50 fine for contempt of court.

Patler's hearing brought out that he had undergone psychiatric examination between 1955 and 1958 in the Bronx, N.Y., at the request of the Bronx probation department. Judge Embrey said he will order the results of that examination.

Patler is being held under $50,000 bond in an isolated infirmary cell of the Arlington County Jail. A deputy sheriff described him Monday as a passive, quiet prisoner, who spends most of his time reading magazines.

Plans for Rockwell's burial in a national cemetery prompted the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Virginia to protest to the U.S. defence department.

Rockwell held an honorable military discharge. He had never been convicted of subversive activities against the government or of a crime carrying a prison term of five years or more. Either might have prevented his burial in a national cemetery.

GOVERNMENT SEWAGE POLICY CONDEMNED

Chamber Delegates Will Not Attend

There will be no delegate from the Kootenay Boundary Chambers of Commerce at the Canadian Tourist Association annual convention at Quebec next month.

Chambers president, Harry Harrison gave the reason for sending no representative as "insufficient funds for travelling expenses."

He explained that the Canadian Tourist Association was one of the very strong bodies which has constantly endorsed the various matching grants programs of the province of British Columbia for travel and tourist promotion.

"The Kootenay Boundary Chambers of Commerce matching grants program for south eastern B.C. is far below the goal which was set in the amount of $12,000 for 1966-67," said Mr. Harrison. "So we don't have the money to spend on sending anyone to the convention."

"If the members boards and Chambers of Kootenay Boundary had met their quota of $12,000, the B.C. Government Travel Bureau would match this with an additional $17,500 for a total publicity program for area 'D' of nearly $30,000 dollars," he continued.

Nelson, Trail and Creston have all made contributions to this fund, said Mr. Harrison, and the East Kootenay Tourist Association have made a worthwhile effort.

"However, much more must be done to set up a publicity program worthy of the potential of the area," he urged.

The Autumn executive meeting of the Kootenay Boundary Chambers will be held in Radium Hot Springs, Sunday, September 24th, when a complete discussion of matching grants program will take place.

City's Bus Fares Upped

Bus fares will go up in Nelson on September 5.

Council agreed to raise the fares on the Nelson transit system Monday night.

After September 5, tickets will cost 20 cents — an increase of five cents on the old fare.

Children are the only bus passengers to escape the increase. There is no change to the price of their fares.

Under the new fare structure, one dollar will buy six tickets. Students will pay three dollars for 20 rides and commuter's 18 ride cards, will cost three dollars as well.

But Nelson bus travellers will soon be getting some benefit from the more expensive rides.

F. N. Jenkins, supervisor of the City's Transit Department told council that its new bus will be ready for delivery in Windsor in mid-October.

City employee A. K. Svennes will pick it up and drive it to Nelson when he returns from a vacation in his homeland Norway.

"This arrangement would entail a saving to the City of Nelson for air fare of $139.00," said Mr. Jenkins.

Avoid Responsibilities Declares Ald. Wayling

A strong condemnation of the threatened provincial legislation ordering all municipalities to install sewage treatment plants was made by a Nelson Alderman Monday night.

"The Provincial Government is clearly avoiding its responsibilities", Terry Wayling told council.

"If they are going to legislate by statute the forceful treatment of sewage, it seems to me that they have to become involved i nthis process."

He said Provincial representatives made it clear in weekenad statements that they would not give financial help to municipalities in constructing sewage plants.

"I find it a little difficult to follow the logic of the Provincial Government," said Ald. Wayling.

"We have repeated that we need some help. Not gifts, but some low interest money," he added.

"But someone is not listening and it gets just a little bit frustrating when you talk to a blank wall and they hold all the cards."

He pressed council to send a "very very strongly worded letter to the provincial government," explaining council's "most severe disapproval."

Pollution control was a provincial, national, international domestic problem, said Ald. Wayling.

He thought the government was being irresponsible in saying that because the municipalities caused pollution, they had to clear it up.

"The provincial government is only administering the taxpayers' money."

"It seems to me they are just setting the rules."

In Ontario the province had helped with setting up sewage plants, said Ald. Wayling.

Mayor Louis Maglio said that council couldn't act until "we get this official."

But he added: "If the provincial government is going to make orders like this, they should help the municipalities."

Alderman Fritz Farenholtz declared: "If you want to put up, you will find the money."

Mayor Maglio retorted: "Certainly, but we want to find the money at a reasonable rate, so that it won't be a burden on the taxpayers."

Warned Ald. Wayling: "We are going to be right up against the wall if the interest rates don't go down."

Ald. Kennedy Facchina suggested: "If we find that the people of this community can't finance this particular plant, then let the provincial government come in and run this municipality.

"I don't think we should get over disturbed. The government has been making statements for many years.

"They have become more pointed, more definite, but I don't think we should get that much excited over it."

But Ald. Wayling thought that council should act quickly.

He suggested that Nelson seek support at the upcoming UBCM conference.

"We can't hammer something out, we don't have all the facts on," said Ald. Facchina.

"It is hard for us to deal with something we haven't got," added Mayor Maglio.

Ald. Wayling warned: "The Provincial government is preparing its legislation for next January. I don't think it is too early."

Most Schools Ready For September Start

The construction report given at the Monday night meeting of Nelson School District No. 9 board indicates that most of the schools will be ready to receive students when the school bells ring.

The addition to L. V. Rogers is expected to be completed by August 31 and is actually ready for use now, save for minor subtrade work.

All the major work for the Salmo Secondary school addition, except for painting has been completed and it will be ready Sept. 1, as will the Blewett Elementary addition.

It was expected to have Hume Elementary addition ready by mid-September, but the completion date has been set ahead to possibly October 1.

It will also be close to October before the Salmo elementary addition is completed.

At Trafalgar Senior Secondary School it was reported work is well underway on the staff room and the science rooms renovation has been completed except for one work counter, still to be constructed, and painting. It is also hoped to get most of the inside work done on the addition at this school before school starts and work is progressing on alterations to the existing building.

The school board tentatively arranged to tour the local schools prior to next board meeting to see what has been accomplished.

Recommended and approved were purchase of 3600 sq. ft. of acoustic tile at $144.50 per M. for the Trafalgar gymnasium renovation. The bid by Burns Building Materials was the lowest of the two bids received.

Appointment of J. R. Bell as custodian on probation for Hume School and the Administrative building was approved, effective September 1. Mr. Bell has been spare custodian for several months in the district and has been an administrative building custodian since July 1.

Trustees Jeanie Ryley, W. G. Apostoliuk and J. W. Bagnall were appointed to the Court of Revision and board members were hoping residents would get their names on the voters' list before the deadline of August 31.

All staff positions at the schools have been filled, it was reported, except for one, the home economics teacher position at Trafalgar School.

D. G. R. Sargent reported that enrolment at Selkirk College is progressing well and that the college is still receiving applications.

Search Province For Local Woman

A province-wide hunt is going on for a 45-year-old woman who has been missing from her Nelson home since last Monday.

Mrs. Mary Walsh, who lived with her daughter in an apartment on Falls Street, failed to arrive at her home after spending the weekend in Fruitvale.

She was last seen in Fruitvale at around 3 p.m. on Monday, August 21.

Area police have carried out a thorough search of highways in the area to see if her car had crashed off the road, but no sign has been found of it.

Mrs. Walsh drove a distinctive 1955 Chevrolet.

The car is colored green and white wtih primer paint on the hood, fenders and sides.

She left Nel son in it sometime during the weekend to see her husband, Stanley, in Fruitvale, from whom she is separated.

When last seen, Mrs. Walsh was wearing pink slacks and a yellow checkered blouse.

Police said she is five foot seven inches to five foot eight tall, has short blonde hair, and a fair complexion. She wears glasses.

Mrs. Walsh moved to Nelson in the spring and works in the bakery department of a local supermarket.

Her daughter Donna, 18, is a student in practical nursing at the B.C. Vocational School in Nelson.

Midway School Inferior Greenwood Parents Claim

Conciliation Fails At Parent-Board Meeting

GREENWOOD — Angry parents claimed at a stormy meeting here Wednesday, that their children will be going to an "inferior" school, when grades seven and eight are transferred to Midway next month.

The meeting was an effort by Kettle Valley School District 13, to explain reasons for the move to the irate parents.

But parents said that the meeting was brought to a halt before any area of conciliation was reached.

They threaten that their c hildren will boycott the Midway School and instead go to the Greenwood School — whether there are teachers there or not.

School Board officials say they will run the bus from here to Midway regardless of any boycott.

The new service for the grade seven and eight students will start on September 5.

Angry parents say that the bus will take their children to a school equipped to elementary standards, and that the Greenwood School will be left with empty classrooms.

But Charles Cuthbert, District Superintendent, told the meeting Wednesday that there were too many multi-grade classrooms with too few pupils in each class in the district.

To overcome this, the program was being reorganized by moving a number of children to other schools.

And this year, it was possible to have nine multi-grade classrooms and 16 single grade classes, because the district had 25 teachers instead of last year's 23.

Under the new system, said Mr. Cuthbert, grades three to five are to be bussed from Midway to Greenwood and grades seven and eight will be bussed from throughout the district to Midway.

Grades nine and ten from the whole district will be taught in Greenwood.

If it had been possible, said Mr. Cuthbert, grades one and two from Midway would have gone to Greenwood too.

But there was no space, so Midway and Greenwood each have grade one and two students in their home school.

The District Superintendent pointed out that by having grades seven and eight in Midway, it would be possible to have four classes of the two grades.

Qualified teachers would teach the subjects to all grades, instead of only one teacher instructing a grade.

Mr. Cuthbert stressed that where there was a conflict between teachers, schools and parents, children suffered both at home and in school.

And he felt that Greenwood and all District 13 children had been "losing out on education for a long time."

In answer to a question, he said that Greenwood children needed to be involved in communities other than their own.

Mr. Cuthbert assured parents that only the interests of the children was being considered by the school board.

It wanted to provide the best possible education benefits utilizing the existing buildings and facilities.

No other factors entered into the decision said Mr. Cuthbert, and personal and intercommunity squabbles had no part in the education system.

Greenwood trustee Mrs. J. Roylance — only school board member present at the meeting—chaired the meeting and had to call for order when it became rowdy.

About eighty people attended the meeting which was held in the school here. Among school and School Board representatives were the principals of the Greenwood and Midway schools

Federal Grant For EKRD

FERNIE (Staff) — An additional federal loan of $287,358 to the Regional District of East Kootenay to assist in financing its share of the cost of implementing an urban renewal scheme in the communities of Natal, Middletown and Michel has been approved.

A federal contribution of $1,046,105 to assist in relocating Natal, Middletown and Michel as part of an urban redevelopment program was approved in December, 1966.

The purpose of the project was to improve the housing conditions of the residents of the Natal area who were enduring heavy dust and smoke from mining operations.

Draper Appointment Gets Department OK

CRESTON VALLEY (Staff) — Department of Education has ratified Creston-Kaslo District No. 86 School Board's action in appointing W. E. Draper, secretary-treasurer. F. T. Middleton, new superintendent of schools had earlier been appointed an executive officer of the Board.

The Board was advised by Dr. Hopper, East Kootenay Public Health Officer, that two or three district children would benefit by tuition within the school district in a slow learners class.

There were also a few who required psychiatric attention and remedial tuition.

Mr. Hopper also asked school authorities to encourage the use of seat belts and other safe driving measures.

He thought that backward facing seats would be advisable for school buses.

Trustee W. McSeveney stated that efforts were progressing to obtain an instructor for driver training.

Budget Warning

CRESTON (Staff) — The School Board has received a caution to stay within its budget figure. The warning came from Gordon Leversage, C.A. when he commented on the budget progress statement and borrowings amounting to $85,000 by the school.

This amount is repayable August 31st and he suggested efforts be made to have the village of Kaslo and the town of Creston pay the balance of education tax collected in the amounts of $23,622 and $121,363 respectively at the end of August.

The 1967 budget was placed at $1,738,066 and expenditures to date total $995,716.71, leaving some $742,349 to last out the balance of the school year.

Revenues received for the past seven months amount to $991,509.16 which means the school to date is operating at a loss of $4,207.55.

Derailment Ottawa Style

Despite the passage of the new Transportation Act earlier this year, 46 railway applications to close down uneconomic lines are suspended in a bureaucratic limbo. Losses from these lines are piling up at the rate of more than $3 million a year. Ottawa should start moving right away on this vital phase of its new transportation policy.

The reason for the delay is administrative fumblings. Although certain sections of the new act are in operation, the key part — setting up the new Canadian Transport Commission — is not yet proclaimed. Reports from Ottawa suggest that the commission is unlikely to even come into being before the end of the year, at the earliest.

This means that the present Board of Transport Commissioners, in theory anyway, still retains jurisdiction to hear and rule on the abandonment applications. But the board is obviously unwilling to tackle this controversial issue without policy direction from the yet-to-be-born transport commission. After two days of discussion on what to do about the branch line question, the chief commissioner recently suggested he would make his recommendations to the new transport commission.

This is not just a new situation. Several applications involving prairie line abandonment have been hanging fire for five years. There are 1,500 miles of trackage involved and in 1965 losses averaged about $2,000 a mile.

Despite the long delays, railway officials are not pushing for immediate decisions on their applications. They realize that each application will have to be weighed, with railway interests balanced against the claims of those affected. But what the RR's do want are decisions which acknowledge the priority of their applications and a system under which the process can be started.

This is little enough to ask. Before long the railways will be hit with gradually declining subsidies which will drop at the rate of $14 million a year. The schedule of reductions in the subsidies is based on the assumption that railway can now become more economic, partly through rail abandonment. Yet the government is effectively thwarting the savings that closing down branch lines would make possible.

Ottawa should either get the transport commission formed and proclaimed or tell the present board of commissioners to get on with the job.

Turnkey Housing

Three decades of experience in providing up-to-standard housing for low income families in the United States has not produced the desired answers. It is good that there is now m uch discussion about new approaches.

Many would bring private industry into fuller participation in government-sponsored housing programs. President Johnson has given a push to this effort in his request to the Department of Housing and Urban Development which would test what is called the "turnkey plan" for building and managing public housing. The project is an extension of some experiments already made by the department and local authorities.

The "turnkey plan" takes the housing authorities out of the building business. The private contractor offers the housing authorities a package — site and plans for construction. If the design is accepted a price is agreed upon. Then the contractor builds the project and sells it to the authority. He makes whatever profit he can within his stated terms.

Housing experts say this would mean much quicker action and lower costs than can be achieved by public procedures. General contractors favor the plan, sub-contractors raise objections. The pilot project will be helpful in giving facts to all concerned.

President Johnson has added a new proposal in his current instructions to HUD. He requests that the project director contract for management service as well as for building, asking bids from professionals in the field.

The plan is worth trying. It does not conflict with proposals such as that of Sen. Charles H. Percy (R) for low-cost home ownership because there is continuing need for decent rental homes that the poor can afford.

But like any plan, it will call for good administration and careful supervision on the part of the public authorities. There will still be need, also, for greatly improved architectural designs.

If private industry can produce something more homelike than the gaunt skyscrapers which provide low-cost shelter in many cities, and at less cost, it will prove a needed ally to those striving to get poor families out of the slums. — Christian Science Monitor.

Moneyed Monsieur

Everybody laughed when French chef Rene Verdon quit his job at the White House because he didn't like to cook Texas style and went to work for an electric appliance manufacturer. The last laugh, however, is M. Verdon's and his employer's.

The Frenchman who was hired to prepare the gourmet dishes served at the White House during the Kennedy Administration, specializes on the electric blender. He demonstrates the many uses of the device and the company gives a gourmet cookbook with each blender it sells. Other appliance firms have similar promotions and the sale of blenders is far ahead of last year for the industry as a whole.

One might say that blenders are selling like crepes, which is French, we think, for hotcakes.

Diefenbaker Never Ran Away From a Fight

By DAE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—About all that can be said with certainty about John Diefenbaker's plans for the Progressive Conservative national leadership convention in Toronto Sept. 5-9 is this: He has never run away from a fight.

But presumably even he would need some weapons—assured ballots of some of the 2,443 voting delegates before the polling Saturday, Sept. 9.

Many observers expect that Mr. Diefenbaker will decide to seek re-election to the post he won 11 years ago providing he thinks he can pick up 800 to 1,000 votes on the first ballot.

Alvin Hamilton, former agriculture minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet and himself one of the nine announced candidates for the leadership, has said The Chief would top the first ballot if he ran.

And an aide to one of the other eight candidates in the field said there will be "complete panic" if Mr. Diefenbaker enters the race. The anti-Diefenbaker forces would immediately have to combine.

The anti-Diefenbaker group combined effectively last November to force a leadership convention.

BOOED IN PUBLIC

There is still deep resentment among the Diefenbaker loyalists about the manner in which this was done. Mr. Diefenbaker was booed and hissed in public to the point where he leaned over the lectern and said in amazement: "Is this a Conservative meeting?"

The fact remains that the majority demonstrated last November that it doesn't want Mr. Diefenbaker to remain as leader. So far at least, there has been no indication that this attitude has changed.

Would Mr. Diefenbaker be content to top the first ballot, if he could, and then withdraw?

Nobody pretends to know what he will do. He will address the convention Thursday night, Sept. 7. Official nominations are the following morning.

Mr. Diefenbaker may well wait until the last minute to test convention reaction before declaring himself.

Mr. Diefenbaker's ordeal is not made any easier by the fact that every region of Canada, with the exception of Quebec, has a native-son candidate for the leadership.

Friends of The Chief say that most politicians studying this situation look on it as they themselves see it and not as Mr. Diefenbaker might.

BLAMES ONE GROUP

Well, how would it appear to Mr. Diefenbaker?

For one thing, he is said to believe that one group, comprising mainly Toronto financial interests, seized the party machinery last November to force a leadership convention.

That leads to a question: Is the Conservative party to become the spokesman of one group which can hire and fire a leader at will?

Mr. Diefenbaker has always been deeply opposed to any special interests having the whip hand. He has tried, in the words of his supporters, to make the Conservatives a "people's party."

Before 1957-58, they say, there was no room in the Conservative party for coal miners and dirt farmers. They weren't wanted. They might not be again.

The anti-Diefenbaker groups of course dispute this view.

In 1935, the Conservatives won 39 of 245 Commons seats. They won 39 in 1940 and 67 in 1945. They won 41 of 262 in 1949 and 51 of 265 in 1953.

In the 1957 election under Mr. Diefenbaker, the Conservatives won 112 seats and formed the government. In 1958 they won 208, the biggest landslide in Canadian history.

They slipped to 116 seats in 1962 but still formed the government. They lost their hold on office with 95 seats in 1963. In 1965, they won 97.

WON THREE TIMES

In short, under Mr. Diefenbaker the party won three of five elections and Conservative strength in the Commons has never been as low as it was from 1935 to the middle of 1957.

"Look at the record," Mr. Diefenbaker says.

The party did look at it and the majority signified last November it didn't like it—or at least the latter part of it.

Seldom has there been such a riches-to-rags story in Canadian politics. In the long run, the riches may still outweigh the rags.

The Prairie firebrand, still pyrotechnical at 71, took Canadian politics by the heels and slapped it into shouting life.

Mr. Diefenbaker generated fierce loyalty and equally fierce antagonism. In the six years he was prime minister nobody ever had to ask: "Who's really in charge in Ottawa?"

A towering figure in Parliament—and probably the dominant one whether in office or opposition—he thrives on controversy.

One Conservative said recently: "Only the fact that The Chief hasn't said whether he's running for the leadership or not is giving any life to the leadership race. Imagine dominating a campaign by saying nothing. Only he could do it."

IGNORE CHIEF

The nine announced candidates have studiously ignored Mr. Diefenbaker. Their camps claim this is because Mr. Diefenbaker hasn't a hope of winning if he enters the race. But the Diefenbaker fans say it is because the others are afraid of the reaction to any attack on their boss.

Mr. Diefenbaker has tasted defeat before—in 1925 and 1926, for instance, when he first tried to get elected to the Commons, and in 1948 when he failed to win his party's leadership.

He bided his time for eight years until the Conservatives elected him leader in December, 1956. His opponents were Donald Fleming and Davie Fulton, now candidates again for the leadership.

The Liberals under Prime Minister St. Laurent called a general election for June 10, 1957, by which time Mr. Diefenbaker had been Conservative leader for less than six months.

Hardly anybody except Mr. Diefenbaker expected Mr. Diefenbaker to win. Suddenly, his campaign caught fire and became almost a crusade.

WON BIG IN '58

So unaccustomed was the civil service to a Conservative government that a bureaucrat refused to permit some secret documents to be seen by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who had to appeal to Mr. St. Laurent for help. It was the last time any bureaucrat made such a mistake.

Mr. Diefenbaker smashed the opposition in the 1958 election, which the Liberals desperately tried to avoid, and poured legislation through Parliament like a river in flood.

But, gradually, this political express became a chugging local. The record majority of 1958 became the minority of 1962. The cabinet came apart and on April 8, 1963, the voters turned out their one-time hero and hurled him back into the opposition.

You can get a different answer every time you ask the question: what happened?

Some think Mr. Diefenbaker's decline and fall as prime minister were written invisibly in his huge 1958 majority.

Some think the turning point was the government's attempt in 1961 to sack James E. Coyne as governor of the Bank of Canada without a Commons hearing. Mr. Coyne went voluntarily after the Liberal-dominated Senate struck down the legislation to fire him.

SOME CITE WARHEADS

Some think it was the 1962 exchange crisis, brought on in part by big government deficits.

Some think it was hesitation on whether to allow American nuclear warheads on Canadian soil.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk rejected Mr. Diefenbaker's attempt to reach an agreement whereby the vital part for a nuclear warhead could be flown to Canada in four hours in an emergency.

Some ascribe Mr. Diefenbaker's downfall to indecision in the latter years of his administration.

Some say it was failure to recognize the ferment in Quebec.

But there was general agreement on one point: The Prairie lawyer had fired up the political imagination of Canadians as had no one else in recent times. The huge campaign rallies attested to that.

In the fall of 1957, national hospital insurance was introduced, old age pensions increased. There were huge new outlays of mortgage money. There were cash advances for farm-stored grain. Canada was taken into Defence alliance.

FARMERS HAPPY

The legislative mill continued to churn at a frantic rate after the 1958 sweep, producing Mr. Diefenbaker's own brand of Conservatism, sometimes called "social justice."

There were more housing loans. There were roads to resources, a railway to Great Slave Lake, the South Saskatchewan dam, acreage payments for Western farmers.

Mr. Diefenbaker, born in Ontario, was brought up on a Saskatchewan farm and he has the feel of, and a great love for, the Prairies. Legislation to aid Western farmers came from Parliament year after year. The farmers repaid him handsomely at the polls, even after his government had come crashing down.

But in the good political years, the economy did not fare so well. Unemployment plagued Mr. Diefenbaker almost from the time he first took office.

Critics contend that, unhappily for Mr. Diefenbaker, he never seemed to have the same "feel" for the other provinces as he did for the Prairies. The big cities turned almost unanimously against him.

PASSED RIGHTS BILL

In 1960, Mr. Diefenbaker achieved a long-cherished dream of putting through Parliament a Canadian bill of rights. It is this bill, or an expanded form of it, which Prime Minister Pearson and the provincial premiers will try to enshrine in the constitution.

Mr. Diefenbaker settled with Quebec a long-standing argument over federal university grants.

But in 1961 came the Coyne affair and a deficit of $791,400,000.

Parliament had its longest session up to that time but somehow not as much seemed to get done as in the much shorter sessions of 1957 and 1958.

By this time, too, the Liberals had begun to revive, the old CCF had become the New Democratic Party and Social Credit got a new leader.

Mr. Diefenbaker's Commons losses in 1962 were the greatest on record but he still managed to survive as head of a minority government. In the 1962-63 session, 40 of the 61 legislative items died on the order paper. The Opposition pounced Feb. 5, 1963, two days after Douglas Harkness resigned as defence minister on the nuclear issue and while the cabinet was making a desperate attempt to shore itself up.

The Conservatives were turned out on a vote of no confidence.

FOUGHT LIKE TIGER

Now Mr. Diefenbaker's back was to the wall and he fought like a tiger. It was like 1957 all over again. Many feel he alone saved the Conservative party from near extinction.

But his political tide had ebbed while the Liberals' flowed and the backwash carried him out of office.

Hardly anybody gave Mr. Diefenbaker a prayer in the 1965 election. But the Liberals failed to get a majority of Commons seats.

After the 1965 contest, the Conservatives began fighting intramurally. Mr. Diefenbaker survived a challenge to his leadership at the party's annual meeting in 1965 and at two executive meetings.

But at the annual meeting last fall, delegates voted to hold a leadership convention.

It was one of the strangest political meetings in Canadian history—and also one of the most bitter. While delegates argued on the convention floor, Mr. Diefenbaker arrived to conduct his own meeting in a room next door.

Halifax May Become Hippie Haven

HALIFAX (CP)—Halifax may become Canada's next haven for hippies.

Thomas Simms of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education predicts there will be a sizable colony of the bearded, guitar-strumming youths and their mini-skirted girls here in a year or two.

Mr. Simms, whose special interest is developmental psychology, says there are already 50 "full-time" hippies here. That's a comparatively large number when you consider, he says, that Toronto's Yorkville district—the hippie capital—has only 250 full-time hippie residents.

A hippie is defined as a "non-competitive" being who has come to realize that living according to society's rules dooms him to conformity. He disdains violence and can often be identified by his uniform—war surplus khakis—although he resorts to that clothing as much for economic reasons as any.

Mr. Simms says the hippie almost always comes from middle- or upper middle-class families and carries a lot of "respectability" with him. Attracted to non-conformity among the poorer classes, he brings his "middle-class sensitivity" to the environment of relative poverty.

SHUN DRUGS

Creation of a hippie village is relatively simple. It begins with a few hippies moving into apartments above stores in a second-class business district.

Mr. Simms has a somewhat higher regard for Halifax hippies because they shun some of the uglier trappings of their counterparts in Toronto and New York.

"Halifax hippies aren't hung up on drugs as they are in Toronto and New York and, surprisingly enough, there is a lack of the long-haired greasers in Halifax."

Greasers? They're borderline delinquents who merely look like hippies but are just plain filthy.

To the outsider looking at the hippie and his way of life he appears to be a loser, Mr. Simms says, but the fact is he considers himself a winner because he lives by his own set of standards.

He usually has a job involving some sort of creativity. Here it often includes the theatre.

If you expect to find him hanging out in a coffeehouse you may be disappointed. He regards coffeehouses as "like two years ago"—out of date—and expensive for his normally small income.

Took Him at His Word

HEMET, Calif. (AP)—Disgusted with burglars who regularly broke in through the back door of his tavern, Everett Gardner posted his sign last month:

"Robbers: No crowbars please. Kitchen window is open. Thanks a bunch."

They followed Gardner's advice during the weekend, lifting the kitchen window screen and making off with two 150-pound kegs of beer and all of Gardner's stock of wine.

GOLD OFFER BALLOONED

TAIPEI (AP)—The Nationalist Chinese, stepping up their psychological war against Red China, are launching leaflet-carrying balloons toward the mainland, offering rewards in gold to defectors. The rate is the equivalent of about $875 for an enlisted man and $1,750 for an officer—$35,000 if a division of troops comes with him and $3,500,000 if he brings along a light cruiser.

YOU FIRST!

NEW DELHI (AP)—Socialist member Hem Barua made a proposal in parliament that got nowhere fast. In debate on a wide range of ideas to reduce India's birth rate, he demanded that all members of parliament submit to sterilization as an example to the nation.

1388 Cross Jordan On Way To Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only 1,388 Arab men, women and children straggled across the Jordan River Sunday, going home to Israeli military rule on the west bank. It appeared that less than one-eighth of those wanting to cross would be able to do so by the deadline Thursday.

By Sunday evening, a total of 11,392 refugees had returned under the program to repatriate those who fled east during and after the June 5-10 war. Officials said it was highly unlikely that the total repatriations would exceed 20,000.

Newlyweds Making Home at South Slocan

Rev. J. Rae Allan conducted the marriage ceremony in Fairview United Church uniting Marjorie Eileen Roberts and Francis Archibald McDougall. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George Kerby and the late Mr. Kerby of Nelson and the groom, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McDougall of Grand Forks

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Robert Kerby, chose a two-piece sky blue suit complemented by white accessories. A blue headpiece held her shoulder-length veil. She wore a white carnation corsage and her groom's gift of a heart-shaped pendant.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Lorna Hamilton, was matron of honor and wore a three-piece pink suit with white accessories for the occasion.

Mr. Bill Hamilton was the groom's attendant.

The traditional wedding music was played by Mr. Angus Fraser at the organ.

The wedding reception was held at the groom's home at South Slocan where the bride's table was graced with a three-tiered bridal cake embedded in pink tulle scattered with pink flower buds and flanked by pink candles.

Assisting in receiving guests were the bride's mother, in navy blue dress set off by pale blue accessories and white carnation corsage, and the bridegroom's sister-in-law, Mrs. V. McDougall, clad in a pale blue three-piece suit of lace, enhanced by pink accessories and pink carnation corsage.

Mr. Denis Ball was master of ceremonies.

Following a wedding trip to Vancouver Island the couple are making their home at South Slocan.

MR. AND MRS. F. A. McDOUGALL

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hamilton and family of Cranbrook; Mr. and Mrs. Ricky McLean of Beaver Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Patterson and family of Oroville, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. T. Cuming, Fruitvale, and Mrs. Don Parker of Oyster Bay, Vancouver Island.

Garden Party Well Attended

GRAY CREEK — The Annual Garden Party of the Crawford Bay Women's Institute drew visitors from widely separated areas. The president, Mrs. Myrna Strom was in charge of selling tea tickets and chances on the draw for a Centennial plate and embroidered pillow slips. Mrs. Connie Millar and Mrs. Jim Dobie looked after the sale of knitted articles and home cooking. Miss Lorna Lytle sold the 'white elephants'.

Tea was served by Mrs. H. Haverstock and Mrs. Tom Lymbery. The children were given cool drinks and cookies by Helen McClure and Jean Ordway. First prize drawn was Mrs. J. A. McDonald from Kimberley and second went to Mrs. Strom.

Visitors included Mrs. Domez from Montreal, Mrs. Mitchell from Maple Creek, Sask., Mrs. Reed from Castlegar, Mrs. J. A. McDonald from Kimberley, Mrs. Little from Nelson, Mrs. Michael Cooney and Mrs. Fahnestock from Pasadena, California, Mrs. Dick Ellis from New York, Dr. and Mrs. Holloway and Mrs. Harper from Kootenay Bay, Mrs. John Pennington, from Sandpoint, Idaho, Mrs. Rooney from Nelson, Mrs. S. G. Bruce from Vernon, Mrs. George Petrescu from Prince George, Mrs. Lawson Hepher from Boswell, Mrs. Simpson from La France Creek.

A letter from the Provincial Vice-President, Mrs. Scott of Robson regretted being unable to attend as she is a patient in Vancouver General Hospital.

MR. AND MRS. J. M. ZAITSOFF

Pass Creek Couple Note Golden Wedding

On Saturday, August 19, relatives and friends gathered at the home of John M. Zaitsoff in Pass Creek to celebrate with him and his wife their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

A beautiful chrome set with six matching chairs was presented to the couple by the guests.

Mr. Zaitsoff was born in Russia and came to Canada in 1899. He lived in Saskatchewan until 1912 when he moved to Champion Creek, B.C. His wife was born in Arran, Saskatchewan and also moved to Champion Creek in 1912. In 1917 they were married and ten years later moved to Pass Creek. They have seven children and 23 grandchildren.

Mr. Zaitsoff had worked at the Trail Smelter and as a sawyer at various sawmills in the Kootenay district.

Mr. and Mrs. Zaitsoff were members of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood and are now members of the Union of Spiritual Communities of Christ.

Among the visiting guests were Mrs. Violet Popoff, Mission City; Mr. and Mrs. Les Walker, Prince George; Mr. and Mrs. Pete Sbitney, Mrs. Bill Gevatkoff, Vallican; Mr. and Mrs. John Poznikoff, Nelson; Mr. and Mrs. Bill J. Savinkoff, Thrums; John J. Zaytsoff, Marie Zaytsoff, Robson; Mr. and Mrs. Pete Kinakin, Mrs. Tina Overnay, Mr. and Mrs. John Overnay, Ootischenia.

Responsibility, Not Rights Important Thing, Says Prexy

By ELINOR REKDING

VANCOUVER (CP)—The new president of the Canadian Federation of University Women is a person who doesn't like tea parties or "the flotsam and jetsam of open-faced sandwiches."

Mrs. Robert Orange of Sudbury, Ont., a petite, gentle-voiced mother of six, says women can't expect equality until they accept responsibility.

"It's all very well to say we can't get seats in the Senate," she says. "But we refuse to run for office.

"If women leave universities halfway through, how can we expect expensive disciplines like law and medicine to open their doors to us?"

Married to a Sudbury physician, Margaret Orange was the federation's Ontario vice-president before her election to the presidency. She has also been the chairman of its national committee on the status of women.

But when she talks about women's status, she usually returns to women's obligations.

"One of the real functions of the federation is to encourage women . . . to be much more conscious of our responsibilities, rather than our rights."

SHOWS GIVE GUIDANCE

She says the CFUW can press for better guidance programs in universities and high schools "to develop in young men and women the feeling that by participating in their profession they are participating in the life of their country."

"About 83 per cent of their education's cost is borne by government. Whether they're girls or boys, they owe something in conscience to the society that's educated them.

"We should be encouraging women to be more committed to making a contribution in those areas in which they're qualified."

Most of her own contributions have been in education.

A graduate in modern languages from the University of Toronto, she is a member of the board of regents of Laurentian University where she also worked as non-resident dean of women from 1962 until 1965.

With a wry smile and a quiet but incisive way of speaking, she doesn't look like anybody's stereotype of a dean. One of the federation members described her as interested in "people as people, not as units in a system."

"She's excellent at getting people to co-operate and getting differences resolved," a friend said. "And in her own quiet way, she has a great deal of moral courage."

IS INTRUSIVE

Though she holds attention when she speaks — usually without a look at her notes — she doesn't show up in a crowd.

She said she tried to buy a bright-colored dress recently but her 11-year-old son stopped her.

He said: "I don't want a swinger for a mother."

Her other children are older; Robert, now a physician; John, a professor of English; Mary, a social worker; Patricia, studying French at Carleton University and Peter, in communication arts at the University of the Maritimes.

She herself taught high school English, French, history and vocational guidance before her marriage.

"All aspects of education should be our prime concern," she says.

"More women should be attached to provincial departments of education.

"School boards can make special arrangements for women to teach part-time, with shortened hours. This sort of arrangement doesn't disrupt a family.

MOST MAKE SACRIFICE

"Older women, semi-free of family responsibilities, must be willing to make a sacrifice too. School boards have found these women make excellent teachers."

Yet Mrs. Orange also says that organizations like the CFUW may have slower gains in membership if women face up to their responsibilities.

"If we have women returning to the labor force, they're too busy for university women's clubs."

The prospect doesn't seem to worry Margaret Orange. She says CFUW is "refreshing and enriching" both in big clubs and small ones.

And her concern for the use of women's skills goes beyond the federation. For Canada's women, she says, it's "participate or perish."

Gray Creek

GRAY CREEK — Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lambeth and daughters recently of Castlegar, now of Duncan, Vancouver Island, stayed here with their trailer. They had driven to Expo and were on their way home. They visited Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reed from Castlegar who are holidaying in their trailer here.

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Odors caused by spoiled meats in deep freezers which have been disconnected, can hardly be eliminated if the decomposed bacteria has gotten into the insulation.

The only way to get rid of this problem is to have the insulation replaced. If not, the odor will linger as long as the insulation contains bacteria.

Also, when moving or storing a refrigerator or deep freezer, the box should be COMPLETELY defrosted, not just partially defrosted. Most wives consider the job well-done as long as the ice doesn't show.

But ice also accumulates on the hidden coils.

Disconnect the plug and leave the appliance door OPEN for two days so all of the ice can melt.

Then crumple up sheets of a newspaper and stuff in each shelf and inside the freezing compartment before shipping. The papers will absorb any extra moisture and help prevent mildew.

If asked, most movers will remove the door (it's easy), and ship or store an OPEN box. There is seldom an extra charge except the few minutes time involved. This will eliminate any possibility of an odor when ready for reuse.

I hope you and your readers will pay special attention to this. It's all true and good advice.

DEAR HELOISE:

This is the way I make my baby-sitting job easier.

I always take along an old pouch-type purse full of tiny odds and ends that children like to play with.

The things that interest them most are small boxes, spools, tiny books, used greeting cards, little dolls, cars, planes and small plastic bottles. The number and variety of small items that children like to play with is unlimited.

If the children are extra good while I am sitting, I let them keep the toy they like best.

Each time I baby-sit, the children always meet me at the door and ask if I brought my treasure purse.

Why pay more for slippers your child will probably outgrow? These facts from Foamtreads explain why:

Foamtreads are built by people who believe that children's slippers are just as important as children's shoes. They agree that slippers should be a little softer, a little lighter, and a lot more comfortable. But they'll never sell a slipper that's short on support.

Foamtreads cost a little more money because Kaufman takes a lot more care to make them right. Probably your child will outgrow his foamtreads before he out wears them. At Kaufman that's the way we think it should be.

The craftsmanship and quality materials that go into Foamtreads children's slippers go into Foamtreads for the whole family.

Tied Up House, Next Is Mountain

By DENNIS BELL

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP)—Iain Baxter, the man whose McLuhanistic message to the Canadian art world has set it on its ear, has drawn up plans to wrap up a medium-sized Rocky *Mountain peak in a polyethyl*ene bag

"Well, it's not quite a bag," he reflected while thumbing through project sketches in his picturesque little home here. "It's more like a plastic cap for a mountain. See? Tied at the top."

Is he serious? Well, it would take an awful lot of polyethylene, but don't discount the possibility.

Last year, everybody who didn't know him thought he was kidding when he announced plans to "bag" the complete interior of a house at the University of British Columbia.

When the 1966 Festival of Contemporary Arts opened that spring, there it was—four rooms of furniture and knick-knacks neatly knotted in sheets of polyethylene and vinyl.

Mr. Baxter, a soft-spoken sensitive man of 31, says he isn't a sculptor or painter in the classic sense of the word.

He works in plastics, describes himself as a "maker of things" and says what he creates is "visual sensitivity information." An avowed follower of communications philosopher Marshall McLuhan, he relishes forcing people to "participate" in his art forms in order to enjoy them.

UNDERSTOOD BY FEW

Whatever it is that he does, it has won him critical acclaim throughout North America—though few of the more conventional critics make any pretensions of understanding what he's all about.

Mr. Baxter's works come in three major forms: bas-reliefs vacuum-moulded in vinyl, landscapes and plastic artifacts; "inflateables" that you blow up like a beachball; sketches, drawings and objects wrapped in polyethylene or vinyl bags.

Examples of the first category include several oddly evocative landscape reliefs moulded in colored and clear plastics. Visual sensitivity information is about as close as one can come to describing them.

Mr. Baxter also enjoys expressing himself through plastic bleach bottles. He's got lots of them around his neatly treed mountainside yard, and his two children, Tor, 6, and Erian, 3, are always coming home with more.

The inflateables are the medium in which he's found his latest outlet. Two of them, a giant flower and a "cloud" made out of vinyl, were exhibited this summer in the fountain pool in front of Toronto city hall.

INVOLVES VIEWER

He says he wants to make some "great big ones"—the cloud was only 80 feet long.

His bagged creations come in two different types. He started by bagging simple sketches of objects, such as Bag of Oranges, which aptly enough is a group of orange-colored circles tied up in a polyethylene bag.

He soon graduated to bagging just about everything. Inside the house, there's one on the wall made out of vinyl that contains about two quarts of water and a toy boat—plastic of course—floating around oblivious to its bizarre surroundings.

Both sides of the four-foot-square bag are partially green and you have to peer through the end to get a clear view of the boat. Mr. Baxter says he was trying to convey the feeling of a boat sailing on a green Norwegian fjord —and that's what he means by participating.

He pulled out several more bags and a number of sketches from a shelf behind his wife Elaine's washing machine. One contained about 100 tiny plastic toy soldiers bobbing around in water, and a broken toy boat that had sunk to the bottom. "That's a social commentary."

Another contained some bigger toy soldiers—and a naked Barbie Doll.

"That one is a social commentary too."

He recently won a $3,000 prize in the centennial commission's Perspective '67 exhibition in Toronto. His creations are revolutionary. They're fascinating, and, as Mr. Baxter says, who's to say what art is and isn't in an age of pop, op and instant culture?

Prior to becoming interested in plastics in the spring and summer of 1965, he was a landscape artist in the more orthodox sense and has a couple of pre-plastic period paintings in museums.

National Team Set To Work Out

HULL, Que. (CP) — Canada's Eastern National hockey team will start two-a-day workouts here Tuesday as playing coach Jack Bownass starts making his final selections for the club's first season.

Bownass already has had an advance try-out at Kingston and has kept 12 of the 30 players who were at the week-long session.

The Eastern Nationals will play a 40-game schedule in the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League this winter as well as several exhibition games in Canada and Europe.

Bownass expects about 2 senior players from the Hull-Ottawa area to join the dozen players already on hand this week and hopes later to pick up four or five cuts from the Winnipeg-based Western National team.

Sells Interest In Flyers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry Wolman, whose far-flung interests include building to big-time football, has sold his controlling interest in the fledgling Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League.

Wolman, owner of Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League, and an associate, Jerry Schiff, have sold controlling interest in the hockey team to Edward M. Snider, vice-president of the Eagles, the Philadelphia Bulletin says.

Joe Scott, a Philadelphia sportsman, has also purchased an interest in the club, while Flyers' president Bill Putnam, has retained his interest.

Snider also acquired controlling interest in Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League the Flyers' top farm team.

Cricket Suffering as Soccer Fans Demand Year-Round Play

LONDON (CP)—The myth of the British sports fan happily switching allegiance from football to cricket every spring and back again in the fall is dying.

Voracious soccer addicts are demanding their sport almost all year round, leaving cricket high and dry.

Year by year the last day of the old football season and the first of the new one creep closer together. This year the summer lay-off was little more than two months.

The gap is further bridged by euphemistically-styled "friendly" matches which precede the opening of the pro season.

Almost 200,000 starved fans saw the trio of big pre-season exhibitions among top English clubs Tottenham Hotspur, Manchester United and Arsenal and Scotland's Glasgow Celtic and Rangers.

More than 90,000 persons alone packed Celtic's Hampden Park for their home game with Tottenham Hotspur.

This sort of crowd would make any cricket promoter drool. He would be lucky to get that many during the whole of a three- or five-day match.

The World Cup in July 1966 was a major turning point. The old arguments that fans wouldn't stand jam-packed in the stands and that players couldn't keep up the pace during the summer were trotted out.

But fans lapped it up, and players, many already used to playing in warmer climates on overseas tours, didn't fall like flies.

After the all too short taste of summer soccer last year, many fans complained something was missing this year.

And what does cricket do? It bores the pants off even the most ardent fans. Some matches during the Pakistani team's recent tour of Britain were best described as exhibitions in the gentle art of sending spectators off to sleep.

English players like Geoff Boycott and Ken Barrington and the Pakistanis were guilty of unadventurous play and dull, defensive tactics when trying to force the game into a draw.

When the game did come alive, few fans were left to see it.

Critics say football has learned something that cricket has yet to discover: evolution. Soccer styles have changed with the times. Speed and skill are paramount. The sport has become fast, furious and exciting. Even the old-timers admit it wasn't as good in their younger days.

Meanwhile cricket hasn't shaken off its old image and has made little attempt to do so.

"Cricket's sin is nostalgia," commented one sportswriter. Cricketers sometimes seem to live in the past, reliving old glories and dreaming of the greats of yesteryear.

Neptunes Win Aerial Battle

MONTREAL (CP) — Norfolk quarterback Junior Edge won a passing duel with Montreal's Dunn Marteen to lead the Neptunes to a 48-26 aerial victory over the Beavers in Continental Football League action Sunday.

Edge, a 200-pound North Carolina bomber, passed on almost every other play and went to the air for four of the Neptunes' six touchdowns.

Top Norfolk receiver was halfback Paul Duda who caught Edge passes for two touchdowns.

Seven Marks Fall In Junior Track

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's junior athletes completed their assault on records Saturday at the Canadian junior track and field championships, setting seven new marks and tying three.

Doug Atkinson of Calgary wiped out a 1960 mark set by Bruce Kidd in the men's junior three-mile event, covering the distance in 14 minutes, 3.8 seconds. Kidd's record was 14 minutes, 7.6 seconds.

was set in the men's junior high jump by Wilfred Wedman of Vancouver who jumped six feet, eight inches to top the junior mark of six feet, 5¾ inches he set last year and the six feet, 7¾-inch senior record set by Ken Money in the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne.

The juvenile men's triple jump mark was demolished by John Konihowski of Moose Jaw, Sask., with a distance of 48 feet, 5¾ inches, more than a foot better than the existing record of 47 feet, 1½ inches.

In the women's junior 220, Jan Madden of Winnipeg tied the existing record of 24.7 seconds, of which she already was co-holder.

Manitoba took the women's junior 440 relay in 42.8 seconds, compared to the existing record of 48.6.

In the junior men's mile relay British Columbia knocked six-tenths of a second off the existing mark of three minutes, 18.8 seconds.

The juvenile 440 relays for both men and women saw records tied as the B.C. men's team finished in 43.8 seconds while their women's team did it in 48.6.

In the combined team competition, B.C. International accumulated 301 points for an easy victory, Don Mills, Ont., had 211 and Ottawa Uplands 172.

Hambleton Purse Fourth Highest

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP)—Dazzling Speed, favorite in the field of 12, drew the No. 1 post position Sunday for Wednesday's running of the $122,650 Hambletonian Stake at the Du Quoin State Fair.

The purse stacked up as the fourth highest in the long history of the Hambletonian. The winner will receive $60,098. Owners of the next four horses will earn $30,049, $14,423, $9,615 and $6,099.

Dazzling Speed, owned by Irvin W. Berkemeyer of New Milford, N.J., will be driven by Stanley Dancer on the wide one-mile track.

Dazzling Speed was rated 4-5 in the unofficial odds for the 42nd presentation of the race for 3-year-old trotters. Speed Model, one of the three fillies entered in the competition, came next on the odds list with 2-1.

Speed Model, owned by George H. Alexander of Sugar Grove, Ill., will have Art Hult at the reins.

Ranked close behind, both at 3-1, were Keystone Pride, entered by the Hardwood Stable of Freeport, N.Y., and to be driven by Billy Haughton, and Pomp, owned by Arden Homestead Stables, Goshen, N.Y., and to be driven by Harold Pownall Sr.

THREE FILLIES ENTERED

Speedy Streak had odds of 4-1, and Miss Marker, a filly, had odds of 5-1. Flying Cloud, the third filly in the event, and Murray Mir were 6-1 for the official betless classic.

Don W. Hayes will drive Skymaster, rated 10-1 but a sentimental favorite. Hayes is a member of the family which brought the Hambletonian to Du Quoin in 1957. Skymaster will be the first Hayes starter in the classic since 1960. His driver will buck the tradition that the host never has won the race.

The horse who wins must take two one-mile heats.

The owners paid fees of $2,460 each.

QUEBEC (CP) — Antonio Flamand, Union Nationale member of the legislature for Rouyn-Noranda, entered a $100,000 defamatory libel action Monday against Jean Bienvenue, Liberal member for Matane and former chief Crown prosecutor. The action stems from statements allegedly made by Mr. Bienvenue at a political rally Aug. 6 at Riviere du Loup.

Reading the Waters Could Save Accident

"Reading" the water is a lot like reading a good detective story. It's difficult to pick out the villain by skimming the book casually, but if you read thoroughly and know what to look for, the clues always materialize.

A boater is in much the same spot as he reads the water for such villains as submerged rocks, sand bars or floating debris.

However, boating authorities say that careful observation will usually turn up one or more clues to aid the boater.

When cruising offshore, study the nature of the coastline for hints. High bluffs rising steeply from the water's edge usually indicate a rocky shore and the presence of submerged boulders. Often there is also considerable current along such bluffs.

Eddies and swirls in the middle of a current or tide should be regarded with suspicion and avoided, since they can signal the location of underwater obstructions.

On a river, the deepest water will normally be midway between the banks on straight stretches, but will swing wide on bends. Sand and silt tend to build up at the mouths of tributaries, creating sand bars and mud banks.

As a general rule water turns lighter in color as it becomes more shallow, particularly when the bottom consists of sand or other material that reflects considerable light.

Why do we need advertising anyhow?

ADVERTISING HELPS IMPROVE OUR LIVING STANDARD

You may remember the old-time huckster touting his wares up and down the block. You still see a few of them around. In season. And door-to-door salesmen turn up now and then.

But they're a vanishing breed. Replaced, largely, by a more efficient way of spreading news about products and services. Advertising.

With the development of mass production techniques, the need for mass selling techniques became evident. Advertising was already with us in those days, to be sure. But it had not become the dynamic force in our economy that it is today.

Manufacturers simply learned to use advertising more efficiently to sell the products they were making more efficiently. With the result that more people were able to enjoy the fruits of what has come to be known as the industrial revolution.

Today, advertising is still the best—and cheapest—method yet devised for spreading news about products and services.

Commonsense Rule Must For Boaters

Safe boating doesn't require expert knowledge of a rigid set of rules, or even years of experience. It's simply a matter of using common sense.

The first common sense rule is a thorough knowledge of your boat. How does it handle and perform? When possible, put it through its paces. Does it slide or skid on sharp turns? Does it broach or wallow in heavy seas? When caught in a sudden summer storm, you'll know what to expect from your boat. You'll be able to maneuver it safely to shore.

Respect the weather. You don't have to be a meteorologist to know when a summer storm is possible. When planning a boating holiday, pay close attention to weather forecasts. When in doubt, consult a competent authority. If this isn't possible it's best to stay safely ashore.

Carry the proper boating equipment. In addition to items required by the Department of Transport, carry any "recommended" items as well.

Too many boatmen think there are only two speeds — top and *full throttle. Don't ask for trou*ble. Regulate your speed, taking into consideration the weather, winds and possible congestion.

Stay alert. This is the simplest of all rules of the waterway, and unfortunately, one of the most violated.

Keep your equipment in good repair. Your boat, and especially your outboard motor, need periodic maintenance. Don't let a minor mechanical failure jeopardize you and your family.

Don't overload your craft. Canadian boat builders affix a capacity plate to each boat manufactured. Just because a boat has a seating capacity of eight doesn't mean this is a safe load.

Obey the laws. They were made for your protection.

Overloading is one of the most common safe boating violations. Know your boat's capacity. Just because it has "room" for; eight people, don't crowd them aboard. Check the boat's capacity plate to be sure of the number of passengers you can safely carry. If your boat doesn't have a capacity plate (most newer boats do), check with your marine dealer or the manufacturer.

Have the proper equipment aboard to prevent a minor problem from becoming a major accident. Add the following items to your list of safety equipment: Bailing device, fire extinguisher and first aid kit. Be sure your running lights are operating properly and carry a portable spotlight.

Life jackets and/or buoyant seat cushions are a must. Department of Transport regulations require that there be one aboard for each passenger. Youngsters should wear life jackets whenever the boat is underway.

Knowing the boating rules of the road is also a must. Even if you're an experienced skipper it's smart to review them periodically. If other members of the family occasionally operate your boat, make sure they know the rules.

A good anchor and enough line can literally be a life saver. A minimum of 100 feet of line is recommended, but carry more whenever possible. Line won't do you much good if you don't know at least a few of the basic marine knots. Don't be embarrassed to ask your marine dealer or a fellow boatman. That's the way they learned.

Store your boating gear neatly. Many accidents can be traced to the water skis that were left lying in the middle of the floor.

Have a working knowledge of marine charts and markers. Many times this knowledge will help you avoid a dangerous situation before it happens.

Markins Capture Lloyd Frame Trophy

Markin Equipment, "Pioneer Boys," rallied for two runs in the final inning to take home the Nelson Fastball League's Lloyd Frame trophy for the second consecutive year.

Trailing 2-1, in the bottom of the seventh, lead-off batter Kay Savinkoff, drew a walk. With one out, Bill Kooznetsoff singled, advancing both runners on an overthrow.

Tim Horcoff singled off Peter Godfrey's glove, loading the bases. Jack Voykin was hit by a pitch, sending Savinkoff home to tie the game. Harry Zarchikoff worked Graham for a walk sending Coach Bill Kooznetsoff in with the winning run.

Nelson Hotel opened the scoring in the fourth inning when Laughton and Godfrey hit back to back singles and Hugh Hooker slammed a towering drive to centre that, Bill Kooznetsoff losing his footing on paper, was unable to come up with the losing catch, scoring two runs for Nelson Hotel.

Markins cut down the lead in the fourth when Voykin walked Zarchikoff, reached on an error and winning pitcher, Mike Makortoff's drive to short enabled Zarchikoff to score.

Makortoff limited Nelson to four hits, while walking two and struck out six.

Graham allowed eight hits, walked three including the winning run, and did not strike out a batter.

Both clubs played heads up ball throughout the finals, providing excellent entertainment for the ball fans. The first game ended in a tie, but Markins swept the series in three straight games. Defence paid off for Markins as time and time again, individuals came up with key plays to end any Nelson threats.

Nelson coach, Wayne Farenholtz, who also was the President of the Fastball League, kept his team spirit high even though Markins had the edge in the series.

Paul Kinakin appeared once, and saved Markins in the second game. However, the senior "A" pitcher refused to take the pitching mound from then on, and Markins displayed great defence and heads-up base-running to defend the trophy.

Fruitvale Takes Trail To Even Senior Series

Denny Larsen pitched the victory for Fruitvale Beavers Monday night at Fruitvale when the Beavers took Trail 7-2 in the next to final game in the West Kootenay Senior Baseball semi-finals.

Larsen allowed seven hits, two walks and struck out seven.

Final game of the semis will be played in Trail Tuesday, the winner advancing into the final Wednesday against the Rossland Capilanos. Each team has won a game and one tied.

Trail started Dennis Zinio on the mound and after he had pitched four and one-third innings he was relieved by Gary Duthie in the fifth.

The Trail pitchers gave up seven hits, three walks and struck out two.

Leading the Fruitvale hitters were Brian Dorey and Ernie Brown each with two hits in three trips to the plate. Both had triples.

For Trail, leading batters were Gary Duthie and Dennis Zinio, each with two hits in three trips to the plate.

The Fruitvale victory tied the best of three series at one game apiece, with one game tied.

The game was called after 5½ innings because of darkness.

Boston Hangs On To Twins' Tail

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota scored the winning run on a seventh inning throwing error by pitcher Pete Richert and clung to the American League lead with a 3-2 victory over Baltimore Monday night.

Boston remained in second place, only one percentage point behind the Twins, by blanking New York Yankees 3-0 on the five-hit pitching of Bob Morehead and Al Lyle.

Ken McMullen's two-run homer in the sixth inning gave Washington a 2-1 nod over Chicago and dropped the White Sox two games off the pace.

Detroit, which started the night in fourth place, 1½ games behind, led California 7-0 after five innings at Anaheim.

Max Alvis blasted a two-run homer in the 11th inning, lifting Cleveland past Kansas City 8-7.

In the National League, first place St. Louis divided a doubleheader with last place New York, winning the nightcap 6-0 behind Jack Lamabe's five-hitter after the Mets took the opener 4-2 to snap an eight-game losing string.

Roberto Clemente's second home run in the game carried Pittsburgh to a 4-3, 10-inning victory over Atlanta.

Philadelphia scored the deciding run on bases-loaded balk by Gerry Arrigo in the sixth inning and nipped Cincinnati 3-2, extending its winning streak to eight games and climbing into second place.

Dave Giusti's wild pitch to let in the go-ahead run in Chicago's 6-5 victory over Houston, leaving the Cubs and Reds in a third place deadlock.

San Francisco led Los Angeles 6-0 after six innings on the West Coast.

Russell Sets Another Mark In World University Games

TOKYO (CP - AP)—U.S. swimmers continued to dominate the competition in the swimming and diving events at the World University games today, breaking another world record in the process.

Douglas Russell established a record of 56.5 seconds in winning a heat of the men's 100-metre butterfly swim. The old record of 57.0 was set by L. A. Nicolao of Argentina in 1961.

It was the second world mark for Douglas, a student at the University of Texas. In a qualifying heat of the men's 100-metre backstroke Monday, he shattered the old mark of 59.6 seconds by a tenth of a second.

That record didn't last long, however. It was broken later in the day by Charles Hickcox, also of the U.S., with a time of 59.3.

In other swimming events today, Theo Van Rijn of the University of Toronto and Bill Gillespie of the University of British Columbia were eliminated in heats of the men's 100-metre freestyle. Rijn was sixth in his heat with a time of 59.5 seconds and Gillespie, also sixth in another heat, was timed in 58.5.

U.S. swimmers made a clean sweep of the seven swimming and diving events held Monday while Japan ran its gold medals in judo to four.

American swimmers set two other world records Monday: Greg Charlton with 4:08.2 in the 400-metre freestyle and the 400-metre freestyle relay team with a 3:32.6 clocking.

Canada's foursome finished seventh—second-last—in the 400-metres freestyle relay final in 3:54.8.

In the 100-metre backstroke, Gaye Stratton, 20, of University of Toronto, was fourth in his heat in 1:05.6, failing to qualify for the final. Also eliminated was Bill Gillespie, University of British Columbia, who was fifth in his heat in 1:07.1.

CHASE ELIMINATED

Len Chase of Sir George Williams University, Montreal, was fifth in his heat of the 100-metre breaststroke in 1:13.3, and eliminated. The final of this event was won by Ken Merten of the U.S. in 1:08.1.

Other U.S. gold medal winners were Madelaine Ellis, women's 200-metre medley, 2:31.3; Linda Gustavson, Women's 100-metre freestyle, 1:00.2; and Micki King in the women's springboard dive with 698.65 points.

Charlton's time eclipsed the pending world mark of 4:08.8 by Mark Spitz of the U.S. last July. Hickcox's time surpassed the listed mark of 59.6 by Thompson Mann of the U.S. at the Tokyo Olympics and the 59.5 clocking of Doug Russell of the U.S. in a morning heat. Russell was second in the final in 60 seconds flat.

The U.S. relay team wiped out the mark of 3:33.2 set by the American team in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics.

Japan won its third and fourth judo gold medals when Yujiro Yamazaki took the light middleweight title and Isamu Sonoda the middleweight. Masaki Nishimura earlier won the heavyweight crown and Kazuhiro Ninomiya the light-heavy. South Koreans took the silver medals in each class.

Judo man thrown

Canada's one judo entry, Charles Maignon of McGill University, was defeated by a throw in his first light-middleweight match, by Park Chung Sam of Korea. In the repechage, he lost by two half throws to Mateus Sugizaki of Brazil.

The University of B.C. volleyball team was defeated 3-2 by The Philippines. Set scores were 15-5, 15-13, 11-15, 12-15 and 15-7. Canadian scorers were R. Boyle 4, M. Rockwell 8, K. Witzke 9, W. J. Clark 2 and J. Sigfusson 2.

Arcangelo Pinelli of Italy won the men's foil fencing gold medal, with Daniel Revenu of France second and Italy's Nicola Granieri third.

Sikes' 10-Under-Par Gives Him Tie Spot

RYE, N.Y. (AP)—Crusty Dan Sikes, who pulled out of the tournament twice and got a third chance because of rain, blazed a course record 10-under-par 62 Monday and tied Tennessee's Mason Rudolph and New Zealand's Bob Charles for the second round lead in the rain-plagued Westchester Golf Classic.

The three pace-setters had a 36-hole score of 134, 10 under par for two trips around the 6,573-yard Westchester course, and a one-stroke edge over Frank Beard, who exploded four birdies in a row and finished birdie, birdie for a 67 and 135.

Both Saturday and Sunday rounds were washed out by late afternoon storms and although both times ready to pack up and go home, Sikes decided to hang around and try again. Friday's round was cancelled by rain before anybody had teed off.

The bespectacled Rudolph, who had rounds of 69 and 67 go down the drain, charged back with a 68 after a first round 66. The left-handed Charles carved out a second straight 67.

FIVE AT 136

Five players were tied at 136, two strokes off the pace.

They were U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus, 67-69; Gary Player of South Africa, 66-70; Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, 69-67; Dave Hill of Evergreen, Colo., 68-68, and Lee Trevino of El Paso, Tex., 68-68.

Doug Sanders, wearing fire engine red from top to tie, had 69-68—137, followed by Arnold Palmer, 69-69, Bob McCallister, 71-67, and Charley Sifford, 71-67, all tied at 138.

The cut-off for the low 70 shooters and ties was 145.

The second round, after three delays, finally was completed in this richest of all gold tournaments—the $250,000 bonanza with a first prize of $50,000. The sun shone most of the day, but the course was still wet from three days of almost steady rain. There was a brisk wind.

SURREY (CP)—Two drivers who were killed when their cars collided here Sunday were identified Monday as Lawrence Walter Coatham, 30 of Burnaby and James Strachan, 44, of Prince George.

B.C. Tel Gains Finals

B.C. Tel defeated Independents 7-3 to win a Play for Fun Softball League semi-final series Monday evening, gaining the right to go against the Civics in the final series later this week.

Doug Reeves was winning pitcher, Terry Parrott the loser.

Babe Ruth All Stars Lose at Grand Forks

Nelson Babe Ruth All Stars travelled to Grand Forks Sunday for a doubleheader against the Zone finalists in the provincial Babe Ruth championship.

Grand Forks, who lost out to Trail in the finals, showed the class that carried them to the final as they swept both games 12-1 and 6-0.

In the opening game, Grand Forks took advantage of Nelson unsteadiness to score five runs, and never looked back.

Brian Matheson took the loss for Nelson, while Hamigami won for Grand Forks. Both pitchers went the distance.

Jack Markin and Gary Desrosier led the Nelson defensive with some fine catches and Markin scored the only Nelson run.

In the second game, Nelson held the home club to one run per inning for the first three innings, held them scoreless in the fourth and fifth, then in the sixth allowed Nelson to score three to end the game.

Gerry Burdenie went the distance for Nelson while Goddard went the route for Grand Forks.

In the first three innings, Nelson left runners at third twice but were unable to score. Tom Gawrelytz led the Nelson hitting attack with two hits while Pat Price made several key defensive plays at second.

This weekend, Nelson will travel to Castlegar for the annual Labor Day tournament. The team will practise Tuesday morning at 10 a.m. at Queen Elizabeth Park. All players are requested to be on time.

Goods Gains Sixth Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bill Goods used his toe Sunday to score 10 points for Calgary Stampeders in a 16-7 win over British Columbia Lions. He kicked three field goals and a convert to move into a five-way tie for sixth place in the scoring race.

End Terry Evanshen scored Calgary's only touchdown increasing his point total to 18. Two other Calgary players, Herman Harrison and Lovell Coleman, went scoreless Sunday but remained in sixth place with 18 points.

Ted Gerala kicked the lone convert for B.C. and the single point moved him into sixth place with a total of 18.

Lion's only touchdown went to Larry Eilmes, his second in three games and he joined four other WFC players with 12 points.

Jim Thomas of Edmonton, with seven touchdowns, leads the scorers with 42 points, 12 ahead of Winnipeg's KenNielsen who has five touchdowns.

Chris Caldwell Wins Lions Football Trophy

It was a proud Chris Caldwell, 12-year-old from Nelson, who returned to the city after a trip to Vancouver at the weekend. He came back with a handsome, 18-inch-high trophy depicting a footballer in action, awarded to him for winning the B.C. Lions Pass - Punt - Kick contest in his age group.

Chris qualified to compete in the provincial finals in Vancouver when he recently became Zone winner with a points score of 276.

In winning the final he improved on that considerably, achieving 116 feet with the punt kick, 99 feet with the place kick and 101 feet with the throw, making a winning total of 315 points.

The finals, in which there were 40 participants in the four age groups, were held before the start of the game between the Lions and Calgary Stampeders.

One of the most memorable moments for Chris, who stands 5 feet 10 inches and weighs 150 pounds, was when he and the three other age group winners were driven around in convertibles for a lap of honor in front of the 30,000 crowd.

CHRIS CALDWELL

Hefty Alouette Halfback Leading Rusher For EFC

TORONTO (CP)—Don Lisbon, playing his second year with Montreal Alouettes, is the leading rusher in the Eastern Football Conference.

The 200-pound halfback has carried 40 times for 206 yards, according to statistics released here today.

Meanwhile, the Alouettes are trailing the other three EFC clubs with a lone victory in three games.

Lisbon has gained 32 more yards rushing that his nearest rival, Wally Gabler of Toronto Argonauts and 36 more than Willy Bethea of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Ottawa Rough Riders are tied with Hamilton for first place with two victories and a loss, while Toronto is third with a 2-2 won-lost record.

Phil Brady of Montreal also leads the conference in interception returns. He has a total of 61 yards in two returns.

LEADS SCORING

Tommy Joe Coffey of Hamilton leads the scoring department with three converts, four field goals and three touchdowns for a total of 33 points.

Moe Racine of Ottawa is tied with Dick Vilunas of Toronto for second with 19 points. Racine has 10 converts and three field goals, while Vilunas has seven converts, three singles and three field goals.

Toronto's Bobby Taylor is the leading pass receiver. The former Calgary Stampeders' flanker has caught 20 passes for a total of 358 yards and has scored one touchdown.

Coffey also leads the conference in field goals with four in six attempts for an average of 26.3 yards. Racine and Vilunas are both second with three.

Racine has made good on 10 conversions to hold the lead in that department. Vilunas is second with seven.

THROWS 7 PASSES

Russ Jackson, Ottawa's great quarterback, leads the passers. Jackson has thrown seven touchdown passes. He has attempted 75 passes and completed 49 for a total of 927 yards.

Gabler follows with 43 completions out of 81 attempts for a total of 675 yards and two touchdowns.

Joe Zuger of Hamilton is close behind with 30 completions for 651 yards and two touchdowns.

Your Individual Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Wednesday, August 30, 1967.

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Avoid a current tendency to overtax yourself. You may encounter some hitches in regular matters but steady, knowing effort can help you call the plays correctly.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) If you feel that you are falling backward in an endeavor in which you should be making progress, it may be wise to confer with experienced heads. They may come up with some fine ideas.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Consolidate your position, expand where it is warranted. And be calm, tending day's chores adequately, without undue concern. A generally favorable day.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) Some crowding? Old issues unsolved, new ones begging attention? Be sure you take each item in turn and do not over-emphasize any. Inner calm stressed.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) You may face some lack of harmony, differences of opinion. Proceed with prudence, forethought. Be alert; expect some interruptions. There are widely divergent opinions to be evaluated.

AUGUST 23 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo)—A good Mercury influence stimulates your personality but the position of other planets advises against contrariness, cockiness. Work for high standards, uniform progress.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra)—Be careful about instructions (giving or acting upon), be receptive to creditable ideas. Work for a common good and goal. You should be able to accomplish much now.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — There will be more to this day than shows at first glance. Take people at their word; also be alert for unintentional errors. Reason out the "whys" of feelings, hunches, emotions. Be composed.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius)—Overcome timidity or fear of failure, and do not look for trouble. Faith in your ability, in commendable work will pay.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — New opportunities indicated in many fields. A moderate pace accented by progressive moves will be your best recipe. Maintain a well-disposed attitude.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius)—You can expect revitalized energies and a clearer view of facts and situations to aid you in the interests at hand. Take "extras" with a smile; emphasize your courage and faith.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces)—Some awkward situations can be worked on successfully; an opponent made an ally. Adroit thinking is the answer, plus faith and diplomacy.

YOU BORN TODAY are usually wrapped up in an occupation, hobby, or both, that inevitably succeeds because of the consistent, sturdy, and clever effort you put back of them. You have hidden strength and a talent for action in emergency. But you may fail yourself in thinking you are not appreciated, that your diligent work is for naught. This is a fault. Once schooled to heed your intelligent reasoning processes, you overcome it and bound up the hill of happiness and achievement. Virgoans are doing able jobs in all walks of life, but especially like artistic, wholesome effort at highly commendable projects. Birthdate of: David Hartley, philosopher.

Penniless Purps Kept by Society

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The sad news is that the two survivors of a once wealthy family of four dogs are bankrupt.

The two dogs—supported from puppyhood by a $15,000 trust fund—have outlived their benefactor's expectations.

When Emily Storrow died 13 years ago she left her two poodles, Jack and Jill, a spaniel named Donna and a miniature pinscher, Quita, in the care of the Humane Society. The money was to last for 10 years—their life expectancy then.

Jack and Donna died. Jill, now 15, manages to get around although she is nearly blind. And Quita, 14, still yelps at visitors.

Although the trust fund ran out three years ago, the society says it will continue to support its two penniless senior citizens.

High Drug Prices Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is engaged in a three-pronged attack on high drug prices, carrying out recommendations of a parliamentary committee.

Finance Minister Sharp announced in his June 1 budget he is removing the 12-per-cent federal sales tax on drugs Sept. 1, and drug manufacturers and distributors are already adjusting to the new wholesale prices.

Prime Minister Pearson said at a press conference high priority in the fall session of Parliament, opening Sept. 25, will be given to amendments to the Patent Act and the Trade Marks Act, designed to deal with drug prices.

And lower import duties and more restricted use of anti-dumping duties on imported drugs already are in effect, subject to parliamentary ratification in the fall.

Removal of the sales tax was delayed to Sept. 1 to enable manufacturers and distributors to adjust their prices.

Some manufacturers and suppliers now are taking orders from retailers for drugs at new prices, to be determined later. Others are insisting on sticking to old price lists. This has led to confusion in retail pricing.

The Patent Act and Trade Marks Act amendments are understood to dal with the patent rights of drug manufacturers.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

On index, industrials declined .09 to 168.17 nd papers 1.26 to 105.77. Banks advanced 1.21 to 131.00 and utilities .16 to 144.33.

NEW YORK (AP)—More stocks rose than fell on the stock market and the Dow Jones industrial average made a small gain Monday. Trading was dull.

The sign post of a higher market, however, was definitely blurred by declines in such broad indexes as that of the New York Stock Exchange and Standard and Poor's.

Volume sank to 6,280,000 shares from 7,250,000 Friday and was the lowest since the pre-holiday session of July 3 when 6,000,000 shares changed hands.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .6 to 332.1 with industrials up .6, rails up .8 and utilities unchanged.

Gold mining stocks declined on reports that 10 industrial powers had agreed on a plan for monetary reform expected to curb U.S. gold losses.

AUTOS SAG

An important element of weakness was General Motors which sagged 1⅞ to 80⅞ amid concern over which "target" the auto union may select in the event that negotiations do not avert a strike in September. Other leading auto stocks lost fractions.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose .64 to 894.71.

Stand and Poor's 500-stock index fell .06 to 92.64.

The New York Stock Exchange index dropped 3 cents to $51.46.

Canadian mines took a beating. Dome lost 3, McIntyre 1⅛, Granby ½. Other losses were Distillers ¾, CP ½ and Massey ¼. Inco, a blue chip, gained ½ and Alcan ¼.

Prices were mixed on the American exchange. Scurry, which had a poor report on mining property in Saskatchewan, fell 5¾. Brazilian lost ⅛ and Marconi and Molybdenite gained a like amount.

Okanagan To Buy Giant Russian Helicopter?

By PETER BUCKLEY

MOSCOW (CP) — Top officials of Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. wound up a 10-day series of meetings Friday with Soviet copter manufacturers and said there is a distinct possibility the company will buy from the Soviets.

Leonard Cook, president of the Okanagan subsidiary of Aerial Engineering Ltd. of Vancouver, said in an interview his firm is considering a crane type of helicopter called MI-10, one of the world's biggest, for use in heavy construction work. If studies confirm the machines' value, the company would buy one model initially to test its economics and characteristics and to integrate it into the firm's copter fleet and there would be the possibility of further orders in the future.

He declined to say the price quoted by Soviet officials for the machine which can lift 12-ton loads.

Cook said only Sikorsky in the United States makes copters of a similar class. The company likely would take two or three months before making a final decision, he said.

TREATED WELL

The Canadians were given the red carpet treatment, Cook said.

"They were extremely courteous and extremely frank in technical discussions no matter what we wanted to know, be it good or bad," he said.

James was allowed to test-fly the machine and Cook was taken to the city of Rostov-on-Don for a rare and thorough visit of the plant where the copters are manufactured.

"We still have to make our detailed assessments, but it's well-engineered, well-designed and well-made," Cook said. Aeriel Engineering probably would use the copter in Canada and internationally in such jobs as pipeline, hydro tower and oil rig constructions.

Although the Soviet Union has been pushing its various copters hard on world markets and several other models have been sold, this is believed to be the first potential sale of the massive MI-10.

CROOKS CROWD JAILS

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP)—Justice Minister Josef Neuberger of North Rhine-Westphalia announced first offenders sentenced to three months or less are being set fre because the prisons are full and soon those sentenced up to six months will have to be let go for the same reason. They won't have to serve their time later but the sentences remain in the records against them.
