Creston Boy Killed at Lister Picnic

Crushed Under Farm Trailer

By PETER RICKWOOD

CRESTON (Staff) — The horror-stricken parents of a 12-year-old boy watched as their son was crushed under the wheels of a gaily decorated trailer at a country picnic Sunday.

George John Wojtkow died on his way to Creston hospital from the annual Lister picnic.

RCMP said he was riding on a hitch between two farm trailers transformed with plywood to look like rail passenger cars when he slipped off.

About 50 children were on the trailers, towed by a tractor, and called the "Lister Express", at the time.

Picnic officials said that John had been warned to get off the trailer hitch before the tragedy.

"He had been on the hitch three or four times and warned to stay away from it," said George Oliver, one of the organizers.

Police said that James Cobb, driver of the slow moving "Express," knew nothing of the accident until a spectator saw the boy being pushed along by one of the trailer's wheels.

RCMP said that John had got on the trailer tow bar with two older boys who jumped off, while the "express" was moving, after compelting three quarters of its run.

TRIED TO JUMP

"The boy attempted to jump, but slipped down between the moving cars," said police.

A nurse, doctor and ambulance driver among more than 1000 people who were attending the old style picnic rushed to the aid of the boy.

They took him to hospital, but he was dead before he reached Creston, six miles north of Lister.

In the meantime, the picnic went on with its rides, tug of war contests and baseball.

"Very few people knew what had happened," said Mr. Oliver.

The dead boy was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley and Stefania Wojtkow, who live on 20th Avenue in Creston.

Mr. Wojtkow, who works in the Creston Sawmill and is a Polish World War II veteran, moved to Creston after the war.

His 12-year-old son was a grade six Creston Elementary School student, keen on sports.

John was a member of the junior bowling league and the Royal Canadian Legion Little League baseball team. He also enjoyed swimming and skiing.

He is survived by a grandmother, Mrs. Knapik, in Poland and one aunt, Mrs. P. Holowki of Delaway.

An inquest has been ordered.

Claim 374 Arab Planes In Sweep

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Israeli armor smashed into Egypt's Sinai Peninsula on the first day of the Middle East war Monday and in a 30-mile sweep captured the vital seacoast town of El Arish, the Israeli high command announced Tuesday.

Israel also claimed air superiority over the entire battle area with the destruction of 374 Arab planes.

Egypt announced a thrust of its own into Israeli territory after "savage battles" on the Sinai Peninsula historic Arab - Israeli battleground.

The Arabs claimed 161 Israeli planes downed on all fronts.

The Israeli command also announced three assaults into Jordan's territory, the most important against Jenin, 30 miles southeast of Haifa, from where Jordanian artillery and air attacks had been launched.

ACCUSATIONS FLY

Each side accused the other of being the aggressor.

In a night session, Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol told the Knesset the Israelis had inflicted a "severe beating" on the forces of Egypt, Syria and Jordan in the first day of the new conflict.

As anticipated, the fighting on the Sinai Peninsula quickly took the dominant role in the initial hours of the war.

El Arish was a vital objective of the Israelis in their 1956 drive on Suez, about 125 miles from the Israeli border.

Israel's chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Ytzhak Rabin, said a large number of prisoners were taken and heavy casualties were inflicted on the Egyptians Monday.

Egypt claimed its armored columns penentrated into Israeli territory after they wiped out an Israelia attack on El Kunteila. This is a strategic desert settlement on a direct line from the Sinai-Negev desert frontier to Suez.

Four countries allied with Egypt—Syria, Jordan, Lebanon and Ira—threw their air forces against targets in Israel.

They reported bombing the Haifa oil refinery and setting it on fire and also attacking Tel Aviv, Israel's major city, among other places. There was no confirmation of these claims from Israel, although officials in Tel Aviv admitted that some Israeli towns and villages had been attacked.

Airports at the Arab capitals of Cairo, Egypt, Amman, Jordan, and Damascus, Syria, were reported struck by Israeli air raids.

GROUND FIGHTING

Heavy ground fighting was reported from the Sinai Desert and along Jordan's 350-mile border with Israel. Artillery duels shook Jerusalem, which is divided by Jordan and Israel.

Arab radios called for a battle to the end to wipe out the little Jewish state.

Egypt's old enemy, Saudi Arabia, reported it was pouring troops into Jordan for duty at the front. Support came from other Arab lands.

The United Nations Security Council met in emergency session in New York City with Britain and the United States striving for a way to bring shooting to an end. The Soviet Union supports the Arabs.

UN Secretary - General U Thant reported that three Indians of the UN Emergency Force were killed by an Israeli strafing run on a convoy and Brazil reported one of its members killed.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser ordered the UN peacekeeping force out of Egypt May 17 after it had for more than a decade enforced an uneasy truce, since the 1956 Suez war.

This was after Syria brought on the current crisis by charging Israel planned an invasion in retaliation for Syrian commando raids.

The 720-man Canadian UN contingent withdrew last week.

The White House in Washington called on all parties to support the UN Security Council, saying:

"Tragic consequences will flow from this needless and destructive struggle if the fighting does not stop immediately."

Washington, while asking Arab countries to accept a ceasefire, announced a U.S. policy of neutrality.

In London, Foreign Secretary George Brown announced in Parliament that Britain is not taking sides in the war and that British forces in the Middle East have been ordered not to get involved.

In Ottawa Prime Minister Pearson proposed that Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union consider a high-level meeting on the Middle East crisis.

Speaking in the Commons, Pearson said the four permanent members of the UN Security Council have special responsibilities with respect to the outbreak of hostilities, and should consider talks at a "very high political level."

President de Gaulle, who previously declared France's neutrality in the feud between Israel and Egypt, postponed an official visit he was to make to Poland Wednesday because of the situation.

French Start Nuclear Tests

PARIS (Reuters) — France conducted a nuclear test—the first of a series—in the South Pacific Monday it was announced here.

A French government statement said: "The firing of an experimental low - power device took place without incident over the Mururoa Lagoon at 1900 GMT (3 p.m. EDT)."

The series of tests, originally due to begin June 1 but delayed by unfavorable weather, was planned as a preparation for the explosion of France's first hydrogen bomb next year.

The series, the seventh since France exploded its first nuclear device in 1960, was believed to involve the detonation of small atomic bombs which will prime the hydrogen bomb

OTTAWA (CP)—The Jewish Community Council of Ottawa said Monday 12 young Jewish men and women are travelling to Israel to take over jobs vacated by people absorbed into that country's armed forces.

France Halts Arms Shipping

PARIS (Reuters) — France suspended arms deliveries to Israel and the Arab countries following the outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East, official sources said Monday night.

The embargo, affecting arms and military euipment, concerned Israel, the United Arab Republic, Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Kuwait, Iraq and Saudi Arabia, the sources said.

Israel is France's chief Middle East client for armament, mainly Mirage fighter aircraft and AMX tanks.

No figures have ever been disclosed concerning French arms deliveries to Arab countries.

Forest Fires Rage Over Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Firefighters were battling hundreds of forest fires across Canada Monday while fire danger ratings in Eastern Canada and Manitoba continued from high to extreme.

The threat in the two other Prairie provinces and British Columbia was moderate to high.

Hardest hit was Ontario where 21 of 166 fires were still out of control, including two huge blazes near the Northern Ontario towns of Sioux Lookout and Chapleau.

Rene Brunelle, Ontario minister of lands and forests, said Monday the fire situation across the province still is "extremely critical."

However, with some firefighting equipment flown in from Alberta, Manitoba and some northern states in the U.S. still being held in reserve, there is no shortage of firefighting resources.

At least 5,000 professional firefighters and volunteers were on duty in the province, including 50 water-bombing aircraft and 11 RCAF aircraft, eight of them helicopters.

Light rains eliminated the threat to Chapleau.

Continuing hot and dry weather in the Maritimes Monday sent forest fire indices to high and extreme in almost all areas.

BLUEBERRY LAND HIT

Four major fires burning in New Brunswick, including a 300-acre blaze in Gloucester County's blueberry land, were under control.

However, a spokesman for the provincial forest fire protection service said that with temperatures expected to soar, "anything can happen."

A 150-acre fire in Nova Scotia's Yarmouth County and a small fire in Cape Breton were under control. There were no reports of major fires in Prince Edward Island.

Quebec reported 50 fires burning, some potentially dangerous. At least five summer homes and a 40-room hotel were destroyed in a two-square-mile blaze ranging in the Murray Bay area 80 miles northeast of Quebec City.

The fire, fought by 200 volunteers, caused evacuation of the 60 persons from the small community of Pointe au Pic.

Other major fires were burning in 1,000 acres near Forestville, in the Lac St. Jean area near Val d'Or.

Seventeen fires, all under control, were burning in Manitoba. The situation was helped by light showers.

In Saskatchewan, 40 small fires were burning but only two were serious. Major fires were reported in the Fort a la Corne and the Delaronde areas near Prince Albert.

Return to Normal Soon

By DAVE STOCKAND

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont. (CP) The forest fire siege of Sioux Lookout is continuing but the semi-deserted northwestern Ontario community is hoping town life will start getting back to normal today.

It all depends on the force and direction of the winds.

Monday's wind was fickle, changing from one direction to another. But fortunately it was barely a breeze and the day ended with honors going to the firefighters.

There was still enough touch-and-go in the over-all picture to withhold a return of families evacuated Sunday to Dryden, 65 miles away, after the fire charged to within a mile of the town.

Stands of spruce and jackpine have been destroyed in the 7,000-acre fire but actual property damage in this land of forest, lake and muskeg has been light. There has been no loss of life.

Russ Condemn Israeli Aggression

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet government has condemned what it called Israeli "aggression" in the Middle East, the news agency Tass reported Monday night.

The Soviet government also demanded that Israel immediately and unconditionally stop its military actions against the United Arab Republic, Syria, Jordan and other Arab countries and pull back its troops beyond the truce lines.

The Soviet government "reserves the right to take all the steps that may be necessitated by the situation," the statement added.

The statement expressed the hope that the governments of other states, including the great powers, would "do everything in their power to extinguish the military conflagration in the Middle East and restore peace."

It added that the United Nations must "discharge its direct duty — condemn Israeli action and promptly take steps to restore peace in the Middle East."

The Soviet Union had stressed "its resolute support for the governments and peoples of the U.A.R., Syria, Iraq, Algeria, Jordan and other Arab states and expressed confidence in the success of their just struggle for independence and sovereign rights."

Earlier Monday night, Tass described U.S. President Johnson's call for a Middle East ceasefire as "hypocritical."

B.C. Nearing Critical Period As Snowpack Melt Speeds Up

VICTORIA (CP) — Dike patrols may be started on the rising Fraser River next week, but there is no indication that flooding will occur, Conservation Minister Kiernan said Monday.

"In the next week or 10 days we'll be in the critical period," he said in an interview. "We're in good shape yet."

Minor flooding has already occurred at a Prince George trailer camp where 25 families were evacuated when the Fraser and North Nechako rivers swelled as warm weather sped up the melting of record snowpacks on British Columbia mountains.

At Revelstoke, a weekend mud slide caused a Canadian Pacific Railway freight train derailment and two feet of water covered a section of the nearby Trans-Canada Highway.

A preliminary issue of the provincial snow survey bulletin for June 1 released Monday said that most rivers have been flowing at stages "either just below or close to average" for this time of year.

The weather pattern of the past two weeks, with its short periods of alternate warming and cooling, has resulted in ideal snowpack melt conditions on British Columbia watersheds," the bulletin said.

"Persistence of this weather trend would progressively decrease the high-water potential of the province's snow-fed rivers."

But the bulletin warns:

"However the record or near record June 1 snowpack which lies above the snowline still has the capacity to push river stages to high levels if a sustained hot spell were to occur.

"Because of the current warm spell, river stages are expected to rise significantly."

In the Lower Fraser Valley, the river has continued to surge toward the danger level of 20 feet at the Mission gauge. Monday's reading was 19.65 feet.

"Timing and size of this year's peak flow still depends on the weather of the next few weeks," the bulletin said. "A flood potential still exists throughout the Fraser Basin."

In the Columbia River Basin, stream - gauging stations have recorded stages close to average for June 1, "but as a considerable volume of water still lies in the form of snow on this watershed, river stages are expected to continue their rising trend.

$2 Million Road Projects Vernon-Slocan

VICTORIA — Contracts totalling more than two million dollars have been awarded for construction of two sections of the Vernon-Slocan highway.

Work is to begin shortly on section 1, Fauquier to Carrolls Landing, 8.79 miles; and section 2, Carrolls Landing to Nakusp, 6.74 miles, Highways Minister Gaglardi announced Monday.

The contracts, in the amounts of $1,350,092 and $654,857, were awarded to United Contractors Ltd. of Vancouver.

CITY'S CENTENNIAL PROJECT WATERLOGGED

Track Club Wanted By Nelson Teacher

If a Nelson schoolteacher has her way ,the 1976 Olympics will belong to Nelson, B.C.

Not that Mrs. H. E. Dahlquist, a physical education teacher at St. Joseph's School, wants the international games to be staged on the Civic Centre grounds.

But she would like boys and girls in the city's elementary schools to begin training in running, jumping,a nd all the track and field skills, that might one day make a champion.

Mrs. Dahlquist, who as a Trail schoolgirl herself was trained in track and field by Canadian Olympic star Joe Haley, thinks children, as well as the whole communtiy, would profit from a year-round, well-organized training program for all the children in Nelson who wanted it.

"The thing about track," says Mrs. Dahlquist, "is that there is something for everyone."

"If a boy or a girl is not quite suited to the 100-yard dash, he or she can always try his hand at the shotput."

Mrs. Dahlquist envisions a training program where children would receive extracurricular instruction outdoors, perhaps on the Civic Centre grounds in good weather and indoors, either in school gymnasiums or an arena ,in the winter.

"It would have to be planned well and followed through, with plenty of adult help," she says.

But she points out her plan does not have to be a pipedream.

"Track and field is not only exercise but a great character-builder.

"In these sports the only thing a competitor has to beat, is himself."

Trail has such a program. "And I can remember when Nelson did too. In fact I can remember when Trail and Nelson were competing against each other."

The only thing between Mrs. Dahlquist and her dream, is a real, live "angel".

"We need some organization, perhaps a service club, to provide the boys and girls with colors, numbers, shoes and all the things that are physically as well as psychologically necessary."

She cites the Royal Canadian Legion track and field program as a model, a program in which this weekend children from St. Joseph's, Hume, Central and Trafalgar will travel to Trail and try their skills.

Now if they just had those sweaters and maybe a little official encouragement . . .

Grass Seed to Fish Feed Damage Foreseen --Maida

By GLENN ALLEN
News Staff Writer

As sure as the swallows come back to Capistrano, Nelson gets its spring tides.

And this year's high water rising without hint of a let-up, could well set another mark to remember.

At one end of Nelson's foreshore, in front of the Canadian Pacific Railway yards, the accelerated spring runoff was making islands out of what last week was dry land.

At the other end, the high water was lapping at the feet of Nelson's Centennial amphitheatre project, washing away grass seed planted just a few weeks ago.

The waterfront airstrip is not many feet away from its nearly annual inundation and water is lapping a scant two feet below the floor planks of the city wharf.

A Kootenay Forest Products spokesman said sandbags which have been used to hold back high water in previous years are "readily available." The West Arm water level, measured at 11.91 feet above zero late Monday, has already covered the wharf in front of the KFP mill.

Water is also reported an easy stone's throw away from the doorsteps of several North Shore cottages.

A man who was working all day Monday on his boat at the city wharf said "it must have risen about six inches just while I've been watching."

"There's only two feet to go and I'll have my feet wet."

Mrs. W. C. MacDonald, who with her husband operates the Nelson Marine Service at the end of the wharf foresaw "perhaps inconvenience" but not alarm.

"After all," said Mrs. MacDonald, "in 1961 they had a water taxi service out here. And if we have to I'm sure it can be done again."

General Chairman of the Nelson Centennial Committee Albert Maida said new grass seed around the bottom of the newly-planted amphitheatre might be lost to the high water, but not more than had been foreseen.

"We kept a bag of seed especially for replanting when the water goes down."

Mr. Maida said he did not anticipate the project would lose any of its topsoil.

"I don't see any danger of that — we've got a lot of rock in front and the current is slow."

"Of course there's always the will of God."

A critic of the handling of the amphitheatre project, Al Harvey, said however that the amphitheatre would not only lose a lot of seed but topsoil as well.

Mr. Harvey, former project chairman of the Centennial Club, suggested that it was imprudent to plant grass just before high water.

He said the grass seed being used cost nearly $100 per bag, "not to mention the labor."

Inconvenient, expensive, or even dangerous, the annual spring runoff was perhaps best summed up by a railway yard worker more accustomed perhaps to dry land. His comment, "Somebody better pull the plug."

Upstream, near Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, the Kootenay River is at a level of 33.3 feet and seeping through dirt and gravel dikes.

There is no report of immediate danger and works crews were busy preparing for even higher water.

The last dangerously high water at Nelson was in 1961 when it was measured at over 18 feet.

Lack of Foresight Says the Mayor

By JACK WELSH
News Staff Writer

A "we told you so" attitude reigned during Monday night's Nelson City Council meeting as slowly rising lake waters lapped away the hard sought, and highly expensive topsoil - grass seed mixture overlying the recently completed Centennial amphitheatre's staging area.

While councillors made comments such as Ald. H. Farenholtz's that, "It shouldn't have been built at this time," the thrice tested topsoil that had finally won approval of civic authorities was sinking lower beneath the level of the lake.

Presenting the Parks, Civic Centre and Recreation report to council, C. C. Bell, superintendent, said that the setting out of Lakeside Park bedding plants had been delayed partially by the extra work involved in the "completion of the amphitheatre."

Prior to recent flooding, Mr. Bell said the "Centennial Committee had the amphitheatre top soiled, raked, rolled, seeded and fenced."

"They also had a water line and sprinkling system installed."

Mr. Bell continued that the flat portion of the stage area was completely covered and that the seed and topsoil is washed out.

A former recommendation to the Centennial Committee calling for a two foot higher staging area had been ignored.

Mr. Bell asserted that the group responsible for the amphitheatre had not felt the two extra feet were necessary.

During the meeting, Mayor L. D. Maglio had pointed out that the amphitheatre had to be built now, but high water effects should have been foreseen.

By Monday evening the lake water had climbed to the point where it was reaching the level of the ramp, also part of the lakeside development project.

Further recommendations were made Monday night concerning the amphitheatre by Mr. Bell.

He stated that pilings should be driven into the lake bottom in a semi-circular pattern surrounding the staging area. These would form, he said ,a natural angle with the existing lake shore.

Following the meeting, Mr. Bell clarified the piling proposal.

He stated that they will serve to prevent the working of the water under the soil of the stage.

With the protection afforded by the pilings, the staging area could be increased in size, and form a permanent base for either a temporary stage or a more permanent structure.

ISRAELIS ORDERED OUT

Fish and Water Makeup Study Of Arrow Lakes Now Underway

By JACK EMBERLY
News Staff Writer

You may not often have someone ask you for the contents of your fish, Mr. Angler, but Don Sinclair, Regional Biologist for the Department of Fish and Game, has a purpose behind his plea.

This Spring, he started an inventory of the present fish population and the physical and chemical properties of the Arrow Lakes.

The study will continue after the High Arrow Dam is flooded in an attempt to find out what effect flooding has on fish population — information which could be valuable to dam planners, and conservation officers.

From the stomach samples taken before the lake is flooded, Mr. Sinclair, hoped to discover the feeding habits of the various sizes of fish. The age of the fish will be determined by scale study.

Scale study and stomach contents of many fish one foot long will reveal the feeding pattern of fish that size or age. These facts can be compared to those collected when the dam is flooded and any changes discovered.

At present, a sports shop at Nakusp, and the Arrow Boat Club north of Castlegar are collecting samples.

A bigger study of a similar nature is being conducted on the Kootenay Lake to ascertain the affects of Duncan Dam.

In discussing his project, Mr. Sinclair said that there was little comparison in magnitude between the Arrow Lakes Project and the big $750,000 project at Duncan Dam.

Each year, the Fish and Game Department stocks lakes and streams in the Kootenays. Eastern Brook Trout were recently liberated and Rainbow are next.

The number of Rainbow, Kokanee, Dolly Varden and ling are recorded by the department in an all seasons annual fish 'creel" census.

Legion Zone Meet Scheduled For City

Sixty delegates, representing nearly a dozen West Kootenay communities, will meet in Nelson later this month for the 1967 Royal Canadian Legion Zone Conference.

Legion members from Nakusp to Grand Forks will hold two days of discussion at the Nelson Legion Branch No. 51, June 17 and 18.

Branch president E. W. White said business dealt with would include pensions and other veterans' affairs, sports programs and the recent provincial convention.

Mr. White said guest of honor at the conference would be Legion Pacific Command president Dave Hunter.

Other Legion notables present will be Zone Commander Hugh McCutcheon and Zone Chairman Arol Weir, of Nelson.

Highlight of the meeting's first day, Saturday, will be a banquet and dance.

Sunday, the visitors with the Nelson contingent, will parade to the city cenotaph for a laying-on-the-wreath ceremony.

Parade Marshal Gordon Olson said it was hoped the Rev. Hircock, padre of the Nelson branch would officiate at the ceremony.

Mr. Olson also said the parade may be joined by Royal Canadian Mounted Police, war veterans, marching bands, and air, sea and army cadets.

Rossland Crash Injures Four

TRAIL — Four juveniles are in hospital after the vehicle in which they were riding failed to negotiate a right hand turn one mile north of Rossland, and went over the bank.

The mishap occurred at 7:30 p.m. Monday. There were seven juveniles riding in the half-ton truck, three in the front seat and four in the box. Their injuries were undetermined and RCMP are still investigating.

CPR Says "No" to Kettle Valley Plea

Requests for the return of passenger trains to the Kettle Valley by Kootenay West MP H. W. Herridge and the Kootenay-Boundary Chamber of Commerce have been formally turned down by the CPR.

In a letter to the Board of Transport Commissioners, the body appointed to investigate the re-opening of the line, the railway reaffirmed that "the costs of operating the service was more burdensome than the company should be required to bear in the light of the few people taking advantage of the service."

Mr. Herridge raised the matter in the House of Commons in April.

He said the 1964 abandonment of the passenger service affected 150,000 people in southeastern B.C.

Strike Talks Continue

There is still no end to the seven-week-old strike of electrical workers against the West Kootenay Power and Light Company.

Yesterday, further talks were held between union bargainer Jack Cody and Power Company President W. K. Gwyer.

But an expected joint announcement after the discussions was not forthcoming.

However, an official of Local 999 International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said: "Talks have not broken down.

"They will be resumed."

Now, Wednesday has been named as the day an agreement may be reached between the union and company, to end the strike of the 223 electrical workers.

They struck when their demands for parity with B.C. Hydro crews were not met by the company.

While a settlement is awaited, the strikers continue to picket the two "scab" gates at Cominco's Trail plants.

But the picketing has had little or no effect on the operation of the company.

The Mine Mill union which represents most of the Cominco workers is not advising its members to take any action because of the two picket lines.

Nelson Boy's Choir, Choristers Score Resounding Concert Hit

It was a grand night for singing Sunday at the Civic Centre Theatre.

And it was a grand night for a theatre full of Nelson music lovers who heard Mrs. T. J. S. Ferguson's company of young choristers.

The Nelson Boys' Choir, a group accomplished beyond its years shared the theatre's stage with The Choristers, 20 older troubhadours with lilt of spring and youth still in their voices.

Mrs. Ferguson first led her boy sopranos, some of them as young as seven years old, in a hymn, In Him We Trust, and another sacred song, Gloria In Excelsis Deo.

Soloist Bobby Stewart then gave a powerful and moving interpretation of the Mozart Alleluia followed by Eric Galbraith and the chorus in God Bless Canada. Ken Whitely sang The Merry Minstrels.

The Vancouver Centennial Festival-bound Choristers then took over with a madrigal When As I View Your Comely Grace and then Shenandoah.

Baritone Don Oddie, accompanied by Mrs. Ferguson on the piano, sang The Lord's Prayer, Kit Murison a Brahms selection, and Bobby Stewart again, a French - Canadian folk-song.

In a livelier mood Mrs. Ferguson's younger charges then took their places to sing — and whistle — some lighter tunes. The Lollipop Tree, The Climate and a musical drama title Three Mice and Two Cats were among them.

The Choristers, who captured first place in last month's regional chorus competition at Trail, then rendered A Merry Madriag from The Mikado, Artist's Life and an enchanting medley from Brigadoon.

Soloists in the latter half of the evening program were Kit Murison, Don Oddie and Melvin Maglio, and Kathleen Atwell.

During the evening Mrs. Ferguson presented four year choir pins to Jimmy Hickman, David Pollard, David Aitkens and Blair Proctor.

Awarded three-year pins were Mike Bourchier and Vern Ronmark.

Mrs. Ferguson was herself presented with three bouquets from her Boys' Choir, the Mayor and citizens of Nelson and the Nelson Rotary Club.

Other gifts came from the Choristers and the Nelson Chamber of Commerce ("because," said the Chamber's representative, "we feel we've got to pay for the advertising.")

Mrs. Ferguson said the pleasure the younger singers gave her was "thanks enough."

She told the audience the Choristers would appear at the provincial festival Saturday and at a church service in Coquitlam the following day.

"I'd like to take the young boys along," she said .

"They're so good-looking. And they sing well too."

HISTORICAL SITE OPENS SOON

Old Fort Steele, one time ghost town, site of a mad gold rush in the 1860's and later the first post of the RCMP west of the Rockies, on June 24 will be opened as an historic park.

The British Columbia Centennial Committee and Fort Steele Foundation announced that Premier W. A. C. Bennett, and some cabinet members will attend the opening of the town, to be restored as a park and visitors attraction.

The first town to be restored, Barkerville — was opened in 1958.

Fort Steele bears the name of Major Sam Steele who arrived at the camp in 1887 to settle unrest between Indians and whites.

Fort Steele grew to a population of nearly 4000 by the 1890's but waned because of the diversion of the projected Crow's Nest Pass branch of the C.P.R. to Cranbrook, 12 miles south.

Visitors on June 24 will see the town as it was nearly 100 years ago. Old buildings, stores, church, hotel, even a theatre have been constructed within the reconstructed original fort.

To begin the day, officials will open the Fort Steele Bridge at 1 p.m. and open the Restoration Project at 2.

The Fort Steele Follies, a "gay nineties review" will be held at 3:15 in a huge tent to entertain visitors.

Later on, an authentic replica of the stage coach of 100 years ago, the same one that began a journey from the coast to Fort Steele, Victoria Day will rumble through the old dusty streets.

The original locomotive Dunrobin will rest forever at Fort Steele when it arrives, under its own steam from New Westminster, first capital of B.C.

Barkerville, restored in 1958, draws 150,000 visitors yearly from all over North America. Now rebuilt, Barkerville was once the largest town in North America west of Chicago and north of San Francisco.

On Saturday, June 24, work will officially begin at Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd., pulp mill at Skookumcnuck. Work starts at 5 p.m. and at 5:45 there will be a reception in Crestbrook's construction cafeteria.

Fort Steele...

Restoration of Historic Post Nearing Successful Completion

The restoration of historic Fort Steele, first North West Mounted Police post in British Columbia, will be opened officially June 24 by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, L. J. Wallace, deputy provincial secretary and chairman of the Fort Steele Foundation, announced.

The restoration of Fort Steele is being carried on by the Fort Steele Foundation and the British Columbia government.

The restoration is both authentic and colorful, and even before official opening has proven itself as a tourist attraction. Last year more than 50,000 visitors explored the town which grew around the NWMP fort established in 1887.

Opening ceremonies June 24, 1967, will be held at 2 p.m. Among those present as Premier Bennett declares Fort Steele open to the public will be Colonel Harwood Steele, son of Superintendent Sam Steele, first commander of the post. Music will be provided by the Mount Baker High School Band of Cranbrook.

Earlier, at 1 p.m., the new bridge into the old fort will be opened officially.

The premiere performance of the Fort Steele Gay Nineties Follies will be held at 3:15 p.m. in a 500-seat tent, reminiscent of the days long before theatres. The Fort Steele Follies features fun in old-time fashion. Performances are scheduled for 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. daily, except Sunday throughout the summer.

The Fort Steele stagecoach will be operating around the town. The authentic replica of a stagecoach of the nineties is now on its way in easy stages from Victoria to Fort Steele.

Also welcoming visitors on opening day will be the aristocratic locomotive Dunrobin and its ornate saloon coach, once the plaything of monarchs. Another note of interest on opening day is the first of regular field trips to Wild Horse Creek. At 5 p.m. June 24, Premier Bennett will officiate at the start of construction of a pulpmill at Skookumchuck, on the Kootenay River.

Friday, June 23, Cranbrook will open its centennial commemorative project, the Confederation Park, at 4 p.m. At 6:30 p.m. British Columbia Centennial pioneer recognition medals will be presented.

Sunday, June 25, an open air all-denominational church service is planned for 2:30 p.m., and the famed Cranbrook Girls' Bugle Band will present a concert in the bandshell at 7:30 p.m.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett To Make Centennial Visit

CRANBROOK — The British Columbia Centennial Committee has confirmed Saturday, June 24 for a visit of Premier W. A. C. Bennett and members of the cabinet.

With them will be directors of the Fort Steele Foundation to open formally the reconstructed Fort Steele, first post west of the Rockies of the North West Mounted Police, garrisoned there in 1887 with Major Sam Steele commanding officer.

An authentic replica of a century-old stagecoach which was featured in a parade in Victoria recently is on a roundabout way to Fort Steele under supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Buckman of Fort Steele. Mr. Buckman's maternal grandfather was on the crew of the supply pack train based at Rock Creek on the Dewdney Trail to gold camps on Wild Horse Creek in the 1870s. Fisherville, slightly east of Fort Steele site, was terminal of the Dewdney Trail, first road across British Columbia constructed in 1865.

The present Buckman safari with stagecoach includes packhorses he maintains for his hunter outfitting business, and truck and trailer. The stagecoach will be horse-drawn through various Vancouver Island and British Columbia centres over the next few weeks on its way to its permanent new location.

This official party from the provincial government June 24 will also formally open the new steel-concrete bridge across the Kootenay River approaching Fort Steele, and after opening of the historic site will continue 20 miles north to mark official start at Skookumchuck of construction of the $42 million Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd. pulpmill, where they will be guests of the company at a buffet reception in the company's new cafeteria there.

Veteran Ferryman Ends 33 Year Stint

W. A. NELSON

W. A. Nelson, oiler, Kootenay Lake ferries, recently retired after 33 years' service in Department of Highways ferry service.

Born in Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, he came to Canada with his parents in 1909.

They settled in Magna Bay, on the north side of Shuswap Lake, where they were engaged in logging.

On February 1, 1933, he started as a deckhand on the Sorrento, the Scotch Creek ferry.

Mr. Nelson took up residence at Scotch Creek, where he lived until moving to Balfour in March of 1954 when he was transferred to MV Anscomb.

He served in the Canadian Army in World War II from July, 1940, to November, 1943.

At a gathering of ferry employees on board MV Anscomb he was presented with a wrist watch by chief engineer Neil MacLeod.

Mr. Nelson is married and has one son and two daughters, and continues to live at Balfour.

"Wilf" will now be able to pay more attention to his hobbies of gardening and hunting.

Kimberley Students Tour Factories

KIMBERLEY — In a society where many teachers think nothing of taking an entire class o nfactory tours for a day, Kimberley junior high teacher D. A. Lynn went a step further.

Mr. Lynn decided his 14-year-old students in this small British Columbia mining town had little idea of the conditions that exist in a large city like Vancouver, so he moved the 36 students to Vancouver for a four-day tour.

Mr. Lynn and another teacher led the students through an extensive tour of the seaport, seeing Vancouver as few residents ever do.

"It can be very rewarding for young students to experience an environment much different from their own," says Mr. Lynn. "They see how concepts of education they study are really applied, and get an understanding of how people live in conditions unlike their own."

The students were flown over the city to study its physical layout, they toured the University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser University as well as the B.C. Institute of Technology and Vancouver Vocational Institute. They visited Western Canada Steel Mills, toured the suburbs and took a boat ride around the harbor.

The finishing touch, strange to say, came when they walked through a slum area in the city's east end and were dropped in the centre of town and told to "get lost" for a few hours.

"Just looking around . . . low-rental housing developments whet their appetite to find out why people live in these conditions. It gives them a first-hand knowledge of advantages and problems of living in large metropolitan areas, and broadend their perspective on human problems in living."

Invermere...

Oldest Citizen Taynton Presented With Medal

INVERMERE — Invermere's oldest citizen, William Walter Taynton, 96, was presented with his pioneer's medallion at a ceremony in the Windermere District Hospital Friday evening.

Centennial chairman Joe Conroy presented him with a centennial committee pin which was pinned on him by James Chabot, MLA, who congratulated him in the name of the province of British Columbia.

Village chairman Marvin E. Tunnacliffe then pinned the pioneer medallion on Mr. Taynton. Making the presentation, Mr. Tunnacliffe said Mr. Taynton was born in England in 1870 and left there for Canada in 1883. He has been 83 years in Canada and 80 years in the Kootenays. Mr. Tunnacliffe, himself the son of a pioneer, paid tribute to Mr. Taynton's good citizenship.

Mr. Taynton was presented with flowers from the centennial committee by the chairman of the pioneer committee, Mrs. T. N. Weir.

Mr. Taynton has been in hospital for some time but was well able to receive and appreciate the ceremony in his honor. Also present were his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Gilbert Taynton, with whom he has lived for many years, and his granddaughter, Mrs. William Nicholson.

Mr. Taynton in the early days worked on the survey of the CPR through the Columbia Valley. He saw steamboating on the Columbia when the two Taynton brothers, (Jack died in 1954 at 94), and Willaim built their own bateau for freighting from Golden to the head of Lake Windermere. He prospected and farmed, was in the hotel business during the early days and was foreman for the federal government experimental farm at Windermere before his retirement.

Mr. Taynton's only son, Gilbert, died a few years ago. He has one granddaughter and two grandsons.

Needles...

Bridge Plans Announced

Plans for a highway bridge across the Columbia River at Needles were confirmed.

B.C. Hydro chairman Dr. Hugh Keenleyside said Highways Minister Gaglardi had announced in a speech last week that the bridge was to be built.

"I was very pleased to have this further confirmed in a discussion I had with the highways minister on Thursday," Dr. Keenleyside added. "In fact, preliminary work on the approaches has already commenced."

The new bridge, which will replace the ferry between Needles and Fauquier, will be a vital part of the new highway system planned for the Arrow Lakes region.

The Strange Speech

If Attorney-General Arthur Wishart meant what he said in the Legislature Tuesday, he has no alternative — either logical or political — than to resign from the Cabinet. In taking his stand on the curious theory of Confederation and the sovereign rights of the provinces over Ottawa, he said that he spoke for himself and not on behalf of the Government, that, in other words, he was not breaching Cabinet solidarity. That is an argument with which Canadians are recently familiar. Privy Council President Walter Gordon said the same thing, as he sailed into the Vietnam policy of Prime Minister Lester Pearson and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin. But at least he didn't say it in Parliament.

Mr. Wishart said it in the Legislature, where his very power to say it asserted that he was not a private person but a member of the provincial Parliament. He said it from the front benches on the Government side of the House, from which no man can rise to speak except as a voice of the Government. He said it as the chief law officer of Ontario. And he said it about a law. That law, moreover, on which the Canadian nation is founded — the British North America Act.

Under such a multitude of disciplines Mr. Wishart could not possibly speak as a private person. And what Mr. Wishart had to say was not only somewhat different from the official Government view, it was as far away from that view as the compass could put Mr. Wishart. This interpretation of the BNA Act by this chief law officer, in fact, was so basically at odds with Premier John Robarts' interpretation — or anybody else's for that matter — that it practically drafted Opposition members to the defense of the Government. Even Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec could take lessons from Mr. Wishart on how to achieve the state of total opposition.

It is no use Mr. Robarts' trying to accommodate this unexpected cuckoo in his nest by talking about an independent bunch of chaps or by saying that, yes, the provinces can mold Ottawa to new courses of action if they are all agreed. Of course they can; they have; in certain areas certain combinations of them can even, with the blessing of the act, force certain limited changes. But that is not what Mr. Wishart was talking about.

He was talking about the residence of sovereign power in this Confederation, the basic concepts on which this nation has its very existence. He said that this sovereign power rested with the 10 provinces, with their 10 chief representatives (who were never elected to wield it) instead of with the 265 members of Parliament directly elected to govern them by the Canadian people.

An oligarchy, that's what the BNA Act set up, in Mr. Wishart's view.

It is such a very strange, such a unique, interpretation that it perplexes, more than it angers.

Yet it was obviously a well-thought-out speech, given after consideration; no spur-of-the-moment reaction to rancor or impatience aroused by Ottawa.

Yesterday Mr. Wishart, in an interview, seemed to do an about-face. He said he had not intended to suggest the provinces were sovereign to Ottawa, that he only wanted to emphasize the need to transfer certain responsibilities to the provinces and provide them with the money to carry their greater share of the load.

Mr. Wishart must clarify his position in the Legislature. If he stands by his Tuesday speech he must go, and if he does not go voluntarily he must be pushed. There is no room in the Ontario Cabinet for thinking so distant from that which Mr. Robarts has always led the Ontario people to believe is the thinking of the Ontario Government. If he supports Mr. Robarts, he should say so and apologize for his confusing contribution to the debate. — Globe & Mail.

Jumping a Queue

The queue is the cachet of the ordered society and the first-come, first served philosophy. It probably reached its state of greatest refinement in Britain during the war and in the austerity years that followed. A queue indicated that there was Something Worth Having at the head of it, and this power to attract made it self-sustaining. It also, on occasion, led middle-aged gentlemen to queue for orange juice reserved for expectant mothers.

Still, it is a tedious business and Canadians are fortunate in having to do so little of it (discounting the expressway queues of automobiles). They may be sure of doing a good deal of it, however, if they wish to see what is worth seeing at Expo 67. One hour or longer in a queue is often part of the price of admission to many exhibits and intending visitors should prepare themselves for it.

The secret of enduring a queue at Expo seems to lie in being able to recognize its changing mood, its curious power to bring forth the noblest and meanest human characteristics; to appreciate the subtle skill of an experienced elbow, and to participate in the loud denunciation of transgressors.

Wherever there is a queue, there is almost certain to be a queue-jumper. He may not be instantly recognizable as such; indeed, the very nature of his activity demands that he be able to blend into the background and infiltrate surreptitiously. Little old ladies are very good, and they have the added advantage of evading challenge by reminding people of their mothers. Their blushing husbands may stand aside, evincing every indication of embarrassment at the manoeuvre, but seldom averse to last-minute benefit from it.

Children are also extremely difficult to call to order. They go through queues like salmon going upriver to spawn. Queue-jumpers without these natural defenses, resort to a number of subterfuges. One is to saunter up to an attendant at the entrance and engage him in casual but protracted conversation, eventually thanking him profusely and moving swiftly into the pavilion.

There is also a kind of remote queue-jumping activity going on at present in Canada. Consider, for example, the attempt by a member of Scarboro Council to arrange for all members of the Council to attend the Mayors and Municipalities Conference in Montreal, July 23 to 27. It didn't work, but it was a nice try in the best traditions of queue-jumping — to appear to be interested in something else while slipping quietly through the gate. — Globe & Mail.

SYDNEY HUTCHESON'S . . .

Garden Supplied Treats For Kids in Summer

. . . FERNIE RECOLLECTIONS

Mr. Rizzutti had a full block of garden in the Annex near the school, swimming hole and log piers and we were well supplied with carrots and turnips to eat while playing games. There was a high board fence all around the garden and a watchman. But the big boys, mostly trappers at Coal Creek, would boost the small boys over the fence at night when the watchman was at the other end. You had to find your own way out, but you had nothing to say about going in. If you were there you went, period. Garden raiding was quite a pastime and very exciting at times.

The highlight of each week was Saturday. The Orpheum Theatre matinee. Every kid in town who had been on his best behavior all week received a nickel or dime to see the continued serial. Tarzan, Eddie Polo, the Hooded Terror, were some of the serials. Everyone was checked for peashooters and slingshots. When the villain was on the screen peas and rocks hit the screen by the hundreds. The noise was terrific and sometimes the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston, would turn on the lights in the middle of the show, walk up and down the aisles, telling everyone to keep quiet or be thrown out. The serial always ended with the hero or heroine hanging on the end of a cliff or something and the next week when the show started the couple would probably be eating in a fancy restaurant but no one ever questioned it.

Each kid had five cents for the show and a real benefactor and friend of all of us supplied the other nickel for candy, etc. No girls in this deal. A woman we called Miss May arrived at the show just before two o'clock every Saturday with a span of beautiful horses and a surrey. She had a black crocheted bag full of little nickels and every boy waiting for the show stood in line to get a nickel from her. She usually asked you your name and how old you were before you got the nickel. The Co-Op Store sold a caramel square wrapped with a star on the wrapper. They were 10 for one cent, so each kid had 50 caramels to eat. A land office business for the Co-Op. The only pennies in the country at that time were American or large English pennies and the only place you could spend them was in a little old lady's candy shop that was close to the Victoria Hall stairs.

"We'll wait . . .!"

It was almost impossible to sneak into the Orpheum Theatre but the Grand Theatre was a cinch most of the time. When the Pantages Show or any other stage show came to town we would pool what money we could get and two boys were picked to pay their way in. They would go up in the balcony and at the first opportunity they would open the fire exit doors and the two of them would walk out on the fire escape ladder to lower it to the alley and we would all be waiting. If this could not be accomplished, we would climb the fire escape at the back of the Central Hotel and jump across the space between the hotel and the Grand Theatre, we would slide open the windows around the side of the skylight and watch the show from up above. One night it was raining real hard and a Pantages show was coming up so we crawled inside the skylight and sat on the ledge with our feet on the heavy screen. Someone down below in the "bald-headed rows" complained about the water dripping on their heads and the first thing we knew a couple of city policemen were hauling us out one by one. As they let go of us we ran and jumped back to the hotel roof and were gone. We must have been well known because the police came to the school next day and collected all of us. They didn't miss a one. All we got was a reprimand from the chief. Real lucky for those days.

When the Chautaqua shows came to town for a week we usually got jobs helping with the tents, props, and cleaning up after the performances for our entry to the show. This show was variety and had a new performance each day. They were good but the only one I remember was the Electrical Wizard. He did a lot of tricks with electricity. For a finale he called about ten of us boys up on the stage, spaced us about a foot apart, gave the first boy a metal plate to hold, gave each one of us a light globe and the last boy held a cord. We held the globe with two hands and when he threw the switch the lights would all light up. After making the lights go on and off a few times one boy got curious and nudged his elbow into the next boy's elbow. That knocked us all flat, busted the globes and blew up the switch box. That ended the show.

New Year's Day was a big day for every kid for miles around. Trites-Wood Store gave a bag of candy, nuts and oranges and apples to each child in the area. A lot of conniving used to go on to get an extra bag of goodies by changing coats and toques with one another but Trites solved that problem by putting a big "X" on each boy's or girl's back with white chalk. If it rained that day the bags would break and kids would be crying all over town.

A Mr. Rasmussen and my dad rented a surrey one Sunday and we all went for a drive to Elko on what was called a road, all horseshoes, hairpin turns and hills. The team of horses were black but by the time we got to Cottonwood Flats to eat, they were grey with mosquitoes. We arrived in Elko, which was quite big at the time. The hotel was the biggest building we had ever seen, about a block long, two or three floors and a verandah all around each floor, and there were Coleman mantel lamps hanging everywhere. We had a dish of ice cream at the ice cream parlor. Mine was pink, first time I ever ate pink ice cream, and then we started for home.

The only thing I remember coming home was dad unhitched the horses and they pulled a truck owned by McGladry Transfer to the top of the hill. Another thing that stands out was an Italian woman feeding hogs slop beside the road in her bare feet. This was somewhere on the flat above the brewery.

On school days our favorite hang-out was "Mickey" Berigan's blacksmith shop. He and his helpers were shoeing horses steady and we knew the bad horses as well as they did. So when a difficult horse's turn was coming up to be shod we were all there to see the fun. They would never put the horse in the "squeeze" until they had to and horses and men and boys sure went round and round. Mickey never chased us away from the shop, which put him ace-high with us, and we never abused the privilege of being there. I visited Mickey in Mount St. Francis in Nelson a few times and he always told me that his only worry was that his trade was dying out and he was unable to train anyone.

In those days gas was delivered in drums and the foundry had empty ones all along one side of the building. One day a boy threw a firecracker in one and both ends went out of the drum and the rest of the drum went higher than the building. That afternoon we had a lecture on the dangers of gasoline.

My dad worked for Mr. Mangan, who owned a planer mill. One Sunday he drove our family out to the end of the road at Olsen to pick raspberries. We filled water buckets full in just a short time. The sidehill on the CPR side was covered with raspberries. I believe this was my first ride in a car. It was a McLaughlin-Buick touring car, 1912, model, and it took us all the way to Olsen and back with no trouble of any kind which was the marvel of the ages.

In the winter if we couldn't sleigh-ride on Town Hill or West Fernie Hill, we would get the toboggan out. A piece of corrugated tin turned up in front and on the toboggan hill we would go or go skating on the river, screw skates mostly. The rink was taboo because you had to pay.

Ottawa Offbeat

By RICHARD JACKSON
Nelson Daily News Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — The newspaper publisher from the West Coast was in town the other day making his annual assessment of the state of the Federal Power Structure

Perched high in the Public Gallery among the tourists, the hordes of visiting students and the MPs' stenographers, he sat there for the key hour of the Parliamentary day, watching the performers on the green-carpeted floor below.

It was the Daily Question Period — the Commons' Quiz Show — the liveliest and usually loudest interval that routinely opens proceedings.

For three days running he stopped, looked and listened there in the bleachers and then delivered his judgment.

"There has been a big change in the situation down there," he said, nodding his head at the men below on the floor, all busy trying to spear with sharp words those sitting opposite them, "things are quite different."

What was so different?

"The Government at last seems in control."

It had taken four years, but now, he said, Prime Minister Pearson and his Cabinet had the situation reasonably well in hand.

It wasn't that way last year when he made his Eastern pilgrimage, he reported, nor had it been the year previous, nor the year before that.

The change in the year had been startling, not just with the Government itself, but with the whole House, both sides of it.

Where before there was tension and rancor, now there was ease and amity.

When he pointed it out, it seemed obvious that it had been that way for quite some time now—but developing gradually, had gone largely unnoticed.

What had drawn it to his rather surprised attention? What was it that had caught his astonished ear and eye?

It was Transport Minister Pickersgill.

The great good humor of this politically gifted man who, it seemed only yesterday, had been a particularly prickly person.

Not only was Pick good-humored to the point of actually being jolly, and obviously enjoying Parliamentary life, but all in the year had become completely at ease, basking contentedly in an aura of self-confidence.

This, too, obviously was so, but what made it so apparent to the publisher?

It was simply that with good grace, a touch of humor, and an immediate promise to correct it, the Transport Minister admitted a mistake, confessed he had boobed on something big.

It was big enough to have commanded his close day-to-day attention — the writing of the Order-in-Council restricting the abandonment of the Prairie railway network—but it had slipped by him.

The legislation has been his personal responsibility.

He and his department had prepared it, aand he had put it through Parliament.

MINE THE BLAME:

That was weeks ago, and it now is the law of the land.

Then just the other day in the House he was asked by Springfield Conservative MP Ed Schryer if he knew that the Order-in-Council setting out which lines were guaranteed against abandonment "differs in significant degree" from the one he had given Parliament?

In other days, as recently as last year, Pick would have huffed and puffed, ducked and dodged and done almost anything to give the impression that it wasn't so, without, of course, actually saying it wasn't.

But not THIS Pickersgill, in THIS Government and in THIS House, which all, in the year, have so changed.

"I am not only aware of it but my face is very red," said Pick, getting up and straight-away admitting the error.

He had asked Cabinet to let him correct it, and he was confident his fellow ministers would "do their best to make an honest man of me".

Thatt was enough out of the Pickersgill character, as he used to know it, to make the publisher wonder what was going on in this changed and changing Commons.

But that, really, was nothing. For Pick went on:

"I regret the error. I take all the blame."

He simply hadn't done his homework, he confessed.

He had "assumed" his directions had been carried out, and he had assumed wrong. And again he said:

"I take all the blame."

Like the publisher said, you've got to be sure of yourself, you've got to have all kinds of self-confidence to do it like that.

The House heard Pick out, and well satisfied, hurried on with the day's business. Things sure HAVE changed.

CIVIL DEFENCE

Amateur radio operators in the Nelson zone have expressed a willingness to work with Civil Defence in communications. As a result immediate steps have been taken to give them information as to zone contacts, and in turn municipal co-ordinators now have a list of "Hams." A daily net is expected to be developed immediately.

Alessandro Gavazzi, a former Italian priest, made his first speech on a tour of Canada 114 years ago today—in 1853—and a riot by Quebec citizens was avoided only by the appearance of British troops. He was speaking in favor of Italian independence and argued that the Roman Catholic Church was working against this. June 9 in Montreal he spoke again and troops were called out. They fired into the crowd, killing 11 persons and wounding others. The event increased Protestant - Catholic hatred in early Canada.

Four Months on Tour Exciting Experience for Young Skater

By DORIS BRADSHAW

A young miss of 18 years who has seen a good deal of Canada and the United States during the past four months is talented figure skater Miss Loris Olson of Nelson.

Since joining the International Ice Capades in Winnipeg at the end of January, she has been on tour, the troupe playing in 14 centres during that period, with about a week's run in each.

They rehearsed five hours a day and then did the two-and-a-half-hour show in the evening. On days when there was no show they rehearsed eight hours, then their time was their own.

The work was demanding, Loris admits, but the off hours were fun when, with a group of about five of the troupe, she would go sightseeing and visiting places that she had only read about before.

She says she learned more in that four months than ever before.

Members of the troupe, numbering more than 100, all helped each other, she said. They were like one big family and usually all stayed at the same hotel while in each centre. They travelled by train most of the time.

Coin laundries came in handy, she said. Members of the troupe would rush out with clothing for dry cleaning as soon as they arrived and it was usually ready just in time for their leaving. Ironing was done on towels on hotel dressers if they had a plastic top or on their suitcases — necessity was the mother of invention when it came to these things.

HIGH SPOTS

Her visit to New York for one day and their stay in Honolulu were the high spots of her tour, she said, as the thought back over those crowded months when there never seemed enough time to do all that she wanted to do.

In New York they managed to pack in a visit to Radio City Music Hall, NBC studios, Rockefeller Centre, a trip past the Statue of Liberty on the Staten Island ferry, a 45-minute tour of the United Nations buildings, the Empire State Building, a walk down Fifth Avenue to Times Square, and a visit to the Palace Theatre — then back to the train and off again.

The shwo played 11 days in Honolulu and then Loris stayed on a week more on vacation, a lovely break in a lovely spot.

She is home now with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Olsen, until the end of July. She then goes to Duluth, Minnesota, to rejoin the company where they will rehearse the new show for two weeks before hitting the road.

Miss Olsen studied skating in Nelson for nine years, with Louisa Orwell King, John Franks and Peggy Currie, among others. She is a silver medallist in dancing, figures and free style. She says she likes ballet skating best and enjoys being with a group.

And when her professional skakting days are over? Miss Olsen thinks perhaps of entering a Coast technical school to take accounting.

"Skating is nice," she says, "but you can't live on that forever."

Then too, she might teach skating on the side, not as a full-time job, though, she emphasized. "Just if it fits in with what I'm doing."

And what is it like to be back home again after being "on the go" so much?

"All my friends have been getting married," she laughed. "It's surprising how things change even in just four months."

MISS LORIS OLSEN shows a lovely shell she brought back as a memento of her stay in Honolulu.

Sluggish Kidneys May Bring Restless Nights

If you "fight the pillow", toss and turn all through the night and don't really know why — perhaps here's news and help for you! One cause of such restlessness may be traced to sluggish kidney action. Urinary irritation and bladder discomfort may follow. The result can be backache and restless nights. This is when Dodd's Kidney Pills can help bring relief. Dodd's stimulate kidney action, helps relieve the irritated condition that causes the backache. Take Dodd's, and see if you don't feel better, rest better. Used successfully by millions for over 70 years. New large size saves money.

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Please send immediate help. I need it desperately and so do my neighbors and friends who also own dogs that sometimes just can't wait . . .

Since carpets are expensive, we would appreciate it if you would tell us what to do when this accident occurs.

I am sure there are thousands of others who would like to be in the know.

We pet owners would love you forevermore.

"Sport's" Mother

* * *

Dear Sport's Mother:

I have just been in the laboratories of the National Institute of Rug Cleaning in Washington, D.C. They cope with this problem all the time, and here is their top chemist's answer:

"A dog may be man's best friend but not necessarily that of man's carpeting.

"Neglected animal stains have been a problem ever since the first 'accident.'

.."Two types of reaction can take place between the chemicals in the urine and those in the fiber dye:

"Some dyes change color as soon as urine comes in contact with them. Often original color can be restored by immediate addition of a weak solution of ammonia or white vinegar.

"Always pick an inconspicuous area of the carpet and test small amounts of solution to determine its effect on the particular fiber and dye in your own carpet.

"The other change develops slowly over a period of several months and results in permanent change of fiber dye. Not only is there a dye change, but some fibers become weakened or destroyed. After cleaning, these areas are more obvious because the soil which hid the true color has been removed.

"The next time your housewives are confronted with an animal 'accident,' I suggest they IMMEDIATELY absorb as much liquid as possible. Then wash the area with a solution of one teaspoon of neutral detergent (which contains NO BLEACH) to one cup of lukewarm water. Absorb all you can with white tissues or toweling.

"Then use a white vinegar solution (one part white vinegar to two parts water) and rewipe the spot.

"Absorb as dry as possible.

"Place a half-inch layer of white absorbent material over area and weight down with heavy books.

"Allow to dry for at least six hours.

"If immediate action is taken to remove these stains in this manner, no change in color should occur and that forgotten 'accident' will not become apparent after your carpet has been professionally cleaned."

Bless the National Institute of Rug Cleaners for their compassion in understanding our problems. Aren't they great?

Pat your little dog for all of us (and me, too).

Love, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When I wash out stockings and small articles in the sink, I always use one of our flexible plastic glasses as a plunger to help remove the soil.

Saves hands.

Mrs. Wlliam Scheer

* * *

DEAR FOLKS:

Just fill up the basin with hot sudsy water, and put the garments in. Then squash up and down with that plastic glass.

I found the plastic glass did a great job when the OPEN end was turned DOWN. By using the plastic glass, you won't boil your hands.

Heloise

* * *

DEAR HELOISE:

Plastic rainhats (that fold into a small package to carry in your purse) are so convenient, but the ties tear off so easily.

When a tie came off the other day, I cut the other tie and inserted grosgrain ribbon in the grommets where the ties are joined to the hat. I just slipped ribbon through the holes, turned the ends under about a half-inch and stitched them back to the ribbon.

Try it. You will have a rainhat that will do the job just as efficiently and comfortably.

And you also have a pretty, soft grosgrain bow under your chin!

Mrs. John Neville

Apricot Hues Predominate At Gibbon - Marzinzik Nuptials

Apricot and white was the color theme at the wedding ceremony when Joan Madiline Marzinzik and John Arthur Gibbon spoke their nuptial vows before Rev. Father Laine at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament.

White and peach-tinted gladioli graced the sanctuary and Miss Patricia Shutty played the wedding music.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Rose Marzinzik and the late Mr. Marzinzik of Winfield, B.C., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Gibbon of Nelson.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Mr. Bob Marzinzik. Her floor-length gown of silk organza over bouquet taffeta had a scooped neckline and the three-quarter sleeves were trimmed with Alencon lace.

A graceful cathedral train fell from the natural waistline that was also enhanced with Alencon lace. Her four-tiered silk illusion chapel-length veil was held by a crown misting from the three organza roses at the back. She carried a delicately-tinted bouquet of talisman roses and her jewellery was a single strand of pearls.

Miss Judy Baker was maid of honor and Miss Janis Ryley, bridesmaid. Mr. Dennis Leahy supported the groom and Mr. Jack Paxton and Mr. Ron Friesan ushered.

The gowns of the bride's attendants were sheaths of apricot peau de soie, and tiny jewelled tiaras and apricot net comprised their headpieces. They carried bouquets of deep apricot-tinted carnations. During the signing of the register "Ave Maria" was sung.

At the reception, the bride's mother in navy blue and pink suit with pink carnation corsage, and the groom's mother in blue brocade suit with pink carnation corsage, assisted in receiving the guests.

Dr. N. G. MacLeod was master of ceremonies and read a telegram from the groom's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. McMahon of Ottawa.

The young couple cut a three-tiered wedding cake that was embedded in white tulle and flanked by white tapers on the bridal table. They then passed the cake among the guests.

Mr. Ron Friesan proposed the toast to the bride and Mr. Leahy the toast to the bridesmaids .

Out-of-town guests included the bride's family from Winfield, Mrs. Rose Marzinzik and sons, Jim, Bob and David, and daughters, Mary Ann and Christine.

For their wedding trip to Lake Louise, Banff and Fairmont Hot Springs, the bride changed to a becoming navy and white jersey suit with contrasting red accessories and red and white carnation corsage.

Women's Day Noted at Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—In almost every country there is at least one woman who saved the community in a time of emergency, Commissioner - General Pierre Dupuy of Expo 67 said Monday.

He was speaking at a ceremony held in Expo's Place des Nations on International Women's Day at the fair.

"History is full of their names, of their glory as heroes, as saints," said Mr. Dupuy.

On hand for the celebrations were Mrs. Jean Drapeau, wife of Montreal's mayor; Mrs. Daniel Johnson, wife of the Quebec premier, and Mrs. Robert Winters, wife of the federal minister of trade and commerce.

As a brilliant sun broiled down on the 1,000 women spectators, all three wives spoke bilingually and expressed a hope for peace throughout the world.

Lined up before the platform of honor were hostesses, two from each Expo pavilion, representing countries around the world. Dressed in often colorful national costumes, each hostess received a bouquet of Expo's centennial red roses.

On the platform steps, huge vases containing red and white carnations added a festive and feminine air to the grey concrete surroundings of the 4½-acre amphitheatre.

Spectators and honored guests alike spent part of the time brushing off hordes of shadflies, the river insects that made their Expo debut Friday.

IODE Plans New Bursary

OTTAWA (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire will be giving an extra university entrance bursary this year.

The report of the education committee at the annual meeting Monday said that a grateful 1963 winner had returned the full amount of his award, providing funds for another bursary.

The 27,000 - member IODE spent about $342,000 on educational projects last year. These ranged from a nursery school on an Indian reserve, operated by the Indian mothers, to $300 scholarships the National Ballet School and the National Theatre School.

Books, supplies and gifts were sent to 194 schools and hostels in Newfoundland, Labrador and the North. Teen-agers in IODE junior chapters had been especially active in a bookmobile and school-help program in the West Indies.

The national secretary's report said $3,000 had been donated to emergency funds for flood victims in Italy, and families of fishermen lost at sea and miners killed in a mine disaster near Natal, B.C.

Open Mind Needed For Women Status Study

FREDERICTON (CP)—Doris Ogilvie plans to treat her new work as a member of the royal commission on the status of women in the same way she treats her duties as a deputy judge of Fredericton magistrate's court—she will try to wipe any preconceived ideas on the subject from her mind.

Mrs. Ogilvie is a wife and a mother who recently graduated in law from the University of New Brunswick after returning to college. She is also a member of Canada's large female labor force as deputy judge of the magistrate's court where she handles family court and juvenile cases.

She says that because of all her varied roles in society, she will have to be particularly careful to keep an open mind on the subject of the status of women.

"It's like being in court. One trains oneself to forget everything pertaining to the case except the evidence that comes up before one."

The far-reaching implications of the commission study make it a project of challenge and excitement to Mrs. Ogilvie.

STATUS HAS CHANGED

"From the time the commission was first announced, before I knew I was to be a member of it, I was terribly pleased that the government had taken action in this field.

"It required recognition of the fact that there has been a great change, gradually, in the status of women, and a realization of just how much substance there will be for the group to look into.

"I was particularly interested in certain areas, of course, because for the past few years I've been involved with family court and with juveniles. Both are all tied up with the home, of course, and thus with the status of women."

Mrs. Ogilvie says she believes that one of the most important questions the commission may be able to answer is whether or not there is any relationship between the greater number of women working, and the number of children who get into trouble.

She says that moralizing on whether or not woman's place is in the home—as was done at great length in the past—is irrelevant in view of the situation today.

NHL WELCOMES NEW MEMBERS

MONTREAL (CP) — The six new clubs in the National Hockey League handed over their $2,000,000 each Monday and were welcomed as full-fledged members of the circuit, now doubled to 12 clubs.

The newcomers also put up approximately $53,000 each as their share of the NHL's equalization fund—an equity fund established by the league in 1951 against a rainy day.

Los Angeles Kings and Pittsburgh Penguins also agreed to indemnify the NHL in case present litigation against them should be adverse to the new teams. Minor league clubs in those cities launched the action against their move to the NHL.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said there will be no preseason exhibition games between the new west section and the old east section.

The regular season will open Oct. 11 and close March 31, and the all-star game has been set for Jan. 16 in Toronto. All the six new clubs will be represented by at least one player in the all-star contest.

A draft schedule for 74 games has been completed. The east section will play 10 games against each other — five at home and five away—and four games, two at home and two away, against the west section.

The payment by the new Philadelphia club ran into a snag because of a power failure in parts of that city and New Jersey and caused something of a flutter before things were straightened out.

A Philadelphia bank found itself unable to transmit by telegraph the necessary certified documents for the $2,000,000.

Arrangements finally were completed with the Royal Bank of Canada here and Philadelphia's president Bill Putnam came up with a bank draft on time.

Campbell said he expects playing parity between the two sections will be reached in 1970 through the new crop of youngsters coming up and the willingness of more young players to go in for hockey.

He said he considers player development at the high school level in the United States equally as good as in Canada, especially in the northeast and central states. The more mature, at American colleges, play under rules at variance with those here, especially regarding bodychecking, but he felt that in time their rules would approach those in Canada.

The playoffs for the Stanley Cup series have not yet been settled, but Campbell said it is certain that the new west section will not be considered second-class citizens.

Another thing contributing to strengthening the new teams is a limit in protection of players. Only 14 and two goalies—instead of the present 18 and two—can be protected by all clubs in 1968 and 1969. The new clubs will also have first choice in the amateur draw.

Campbell said there has been no suggestion from any quarter on moving the NHL headquarters from Montreal.

Meanwhile, the Central Professional Hockey League came up with an expansion program all its own, making the league an eight-club circuit instead of six.

Oklahoma City, Omaha, Houston and Tulsa remain, while the Memphis club will have a new affiliate in the new Minnesota North Stars of the NHL, taking over from Detroit.

The new clubs are Kansas, Dallas and Fort Worth.

The new St. Louis club in the NHL will have Kansas City as its farm club affiliate, Detroit will move its Memphis franchise to Fort Worth and Chicago will take the old St. Louis CPHL franchise to Dallas.

Applications for membership in the CPHL were received from Amarillo, Tex., and Wichita, Kan. No positive action was taken and these cities may come into the league next year.

WORKING AGREEMENT

The New York Rangers announced a working agreement with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, giving up their affiliation with Baltimore Clippers. The Bisons were formerly affiliated with Chicago.

General manager Terry Reardon of Baltimore said he will go largely with an independent club, with help here and there and possibly a few players from the NHL's new Pittsburgh club.

One problem for the NHL in connection with its expansion draft is how to get Red Kelly, retiring as an active player with Toronto, to the new Los Angeles Kings as coach, the job for which he is said to be ticketed.

Under the draft regulations, Kelly can be claimed by anyone. There was no pre-draft indication that Los Angeles would have first pick, once the order of the draw is announced.

There was a possibility that the other new clubs would pass up Kelly through a gentlemen's agreement and let Los Angeles claim him.

NHL Rules Committee Decides

More Authority for Linesmen; NHL Clubs Roster Set Early

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League rules committee decided Monday that linesmen will be given more authority and that club rosters will be clipped from the season's opening game instead of Dec. 1.

For the coming expansion season each team will be restricted to 16 players and two netminders from the season opener.

The additional authority to linesmen governs faceoffs and signalling of violations to the referee when the prime official does not spot an infraction.

In past seasons clubs were allowed to hold 18 skaters and two goalies until the Dec. 1 cutoff date.

However, the number allowed for the playoffs will be 18 and two goaltenders in lieu of 17 and two of other years.

Another alteration concerning goaltenders will allow for a two-minute warmup during a substitution—whether the goalie is injured or whether a coach decides on a straight replacement. This will be automatic the first time it happens and the referee is authorized to check the practice time allowed the sub.

Linesmen now will be allowed to face off the puck at all times except the start of the game, after a goal is scored and at the beginning of a period. This will free the referee to watch the play, particularly around the goal mouth after the puck is dropped in the circles on either side of the goaltender.

In other changes the committee ruled it legal for a player from either side to play the puck when it becomes entangled or lodged on the back of the net. Until now only a defending player could remove the puck from the mesh.

PROPOSAL REJECTED

The committee rejected a proposal to have goaltenders serve their own penalties — including misconducts — and decided to continue the practice of another player from the club sitting out the penalty.

The committee also rejected the on-side pass over the centre-ice red line as practised in the Western Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. For the NHL a player must pick up the puck on his own side of the red line if a pass comes from inside his club's blue line or else he is declared off-side.

Barber Reconsiders

When Barber walked away from the plane and into the airport terminal building in Baltimore Sunday night, he is reported to have told an airlines' official: "Tell them to go on without me. I quit."

But at her parents' home here Monday, Patricia Barber said: "He didn't quit. I know my husband better than that. He'll be with the club tonight."

She said that the reports of his quitting "were over-played from something he must have said. He may have been feeling glum, but he never really quit."

Barber, who has experienced a bizarre season, said Sunday night there was no specific reason for his leaving the club. "It's a personal thing that I have to work out for myself and not indicative of any one thing."

Cool Reception Loses Battle For Survival

NEW YORK (AP)—Cool Reception, the gallant Canadian colt who broke his right front leg while finishing second in last Saturday's Belmont Stakes, was destroyed early Monday night.

"There was nothing else we could do," said Dr. William Reed. "We had to put him to sleep."

The colt was destroyed only a couple of hours after Dr. Reed performed a two-hour operation on the leg and placed it in a cast.

"At that time, everything appeared to be okay," Dr. Reed said.

"Then, later, he started to get up and broke the leg over the original fracture. The bone was completely shattered.

"There was nothing else we could do."

OWNED BY SISTERS

The three-year-old was owned by Mrs. William J. Seitz and Mrs. Vincent Reid, Toronto sisters.

Cool Reception, who passed up the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, took a lead in the Belmont on the backstretch and held it until about one-eighth of a mile from the finish of the 1½-mile test when eventual winner Damascus stuck his head in front.

After the race, it was discovered he had fractured the right cannon bone, the main bone below the knee.

"He finished the last sixteenth of a mile on pure guts," jockey Johnny Sellers said at the time.

Dr. Reed put a cast on the leg shortly after the race, but said he noticed a swelling above the cast and was forced to remove it.

Independents Top City Auto 7-1

Independents went on a scoring spree and held City Auto to a lone run Monday night to take a 7-1 victory in the Nelson play for fun softball league.

Ken White led the way for the winners, blasting in three runs and sending the Independents to the win.

Booster Club Pledges Support To Maple Leafs

Nelson Maple Leafs Booster Club, the major moving force behind the success of the Maple Leafs Hockey Club, held its final meeting of the year Monday night and in passing one motion expressed their complete support for the hockey team again this coming season.

The large turnout present voted in favor of putting up a $1000 performance bond if the Western International Hockey League raises the bond for the 1967-'68 season. The Booster Club has been paying the Leafs performance bond in the league for the past years, but the figure has been $500. However, it is rumored that the WIHL will increase the bond this season.

The financial situation of the club was described as "very favorable" at the completion of another successful hockey season.

The club decided to hold its annual election of officers in September and president George Zabawa informed all present that the club had enjoyed a successful year and the general feeling of the club was that "we had a good year" and "we'll be ready to go the start of September."

Echoing the sentiments of the hockey club, the booster club expressed thanks to all those who supported hockey this season and especially those who supported booster club projects.

The booster club each year, besides paying the performance bond, also sponsors two complete hockey scholarships at Notre Dame University for the team.

Always a great help to the hockey club, the booster club has played a role in keeping hockey alive in Nelson and plan to continue their fine work next year.

Magazine Still Recognizes Clay

NEW YORK (AP) — Ring Magazine said Monday that it will continue to recognize Cassius Clay as heavyweight champion despite the title-stripping actions of the World Boxing Association and the New York Athletic Commission.

Nat Fleischer, editor of the boxing monthly, said that as long as Clay's plea to be exempted from the draft on the grounds he is a Moslem preacher is before the courts "it would be eminently unfair to support his being stripped of the title."

Fleischer said, however, that if the courts find Clay-Muhammad Ali guilty "Ring Magazine will not hesitate to withdraw its support of the Black Muslim as the world champion."

Ring, in its monthly ratings, named Germany's Karl Mildenberger the No. 1 heavyweight contender.

Ernie Terrell, Chicago, was ranked second followed by; 3. Floyd Patterson, New York; 4. Joe Frazier, Philadelphia; 5. George Chuvalo, Toronto; 6. Manuel Ramos, Mexico; 7. Oscar Bonavena, Argentina; 8. Zora Folley, Chandler, Ariz.; 9. Thad Spencer, San Francisco; 10. Jimmy Ellis, Louisville, Ky.

Railways Have History of Feuds

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Pacific and Great Northern railways, now engaged in a verbal battle over shipments of coal from the Crowsnest Pass on the Alberta border to the coast, have a long history of not-so-friendly feuding.

The two railways are competing for a contract from Crows Nest Industries Ltd. for shipment of $180,000,000 worth of coal from Fernie, B.C., to Vancouver, bound for Japan by sea.

In earlier days, action spoke louder than words. Then men responsible for the actions were Lord Strathcona, a senior CPR executive, and James Hill, who had quit his CPR directorship to join Great Northern.

One of the first manifestations of the bitter rivalry that arose between the two railways came to light in 1891.

The CPR had completed a line from Mission City to the U.S. border to link up with the Fairhaven and Southern Railway, which had tracks through Bellingham, Wash., and Seattle.

On June 22, 1891, the first CPR train pulled into Bellingham under an archway of water supplied by local fire department hoses. As the last coach *of the train, carrying CPR offi*cials, passed under the arch one of the hoses dropped "accidentally"—just low enough to douse the CPR brass. Mr. Hill's fine hand was immediately suspected, but nothing was ever proved.

STOLE STATION

There was also an incident a few months later at Sandon, in the Slocan country of central B.C. Both railways were racing to see which could get a line into the town first to grab its lucrative freight hauling business.

The CPR won by a hair's breadth and this annoyed GN crews immensely. The irate GN workmen tied a rope to the newly-constructed CPR station, attached it to an engine and pulled the building off its foundations and into nearby Carpenter Creek.

In August, 1903, trouble flared again at Sapperton, near New Westminster, B.C.

The GN's subsidiary Vancouver, *New Westminster and Yu*kon Railway was building a line into Vancouver and the CPR refused to allow Mr. Hill's rails to cross its right-of-way.

On the night of Aug. 27 GN crews tore up a section of CPR track, laid a diamond crossing and waited for trouble to start.

The CPR rose to the occasion by sending out a special train loaded with its burliest section hands and for a while it looked as if B.C. might have a full-scale railway war on its hands.

Things quieted down, however, and the case wound up in court. Mr. Hill's lawyers won and GN retained its crossing through the CPR right-of-way.

Another battle was shaping up at Midway, a dusty little border town west of Trail in south-central B.C. Both companies were trying to reach the town first, but the CPR's efforts had bogged down.

Word leaked out that the GN crews were planning to dump thousands of tons of rock from a tunnel project onto the CPR line and the CPR started mustering its forces.

GN moved first and sent in a 400-man force to occupy the CPR property. About 150 valiant CPR employees counter-attacked, dislodging the GN men, and celebrated the victory by ripping up sections of GN track.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Mau Mau Surprised To Find War Over

By MICHAEL CHESTER

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Two bedraggled, middle-aged Mau Mau fighters, clad in antelope-skin cloaks, monkey-skin mufflers and caps, related in a Kenya police cell Sunday how they emerged from the wilds of Mount Kenya forest last week after living in hiding for about 14 years—unaware that Kenya had won independence.

Police are holding them in custody at Kerugoya, on the slopes of Mount Kenya, for interrogation.

The bewildered pair are "Captain" Kimotho Ngenya, who discovered that he now is a grandfather, and "Officer" Kamina Guthuthwa.

They said they lost contact with the outside world years ago and survived by hunting and trapping wild animals, raiding beehives and making fires by rubbing sticks.

They said they finally surrendered to Kerugoya police after an old man who found them in the forest brought them newspapers to show that Jomo Kenyatta now is president of independent Kenya.

BATTLE LONG OVER

They were astonished to discover that the anti-white Mau Mau Mau campaign, which they joined in its early days in 1953, had been over more than a decade.

And they were amazed to learn that their first Mau Mau commander, "General China," now is Waruhiu Itote, deputy director of the Kenya National Youth Service.

They also asked about an old comrade, "General Kassam Njogu"—and heard he is a progressive farmer in one of the many settlement schemes launched for Negroes.

"On the occasions we ventured to the edge of the forest we were impressed by the big improvements in housing and suchlike but assumed the British colonialists were still entrenched," said Ngenya, "so we decided to stay on in the forest and hide ourselves.

"The old man who brought us newspapers a little while ago was the first other human being we had seen in years."

The two men—their hunting knives, axes and spears surrendered to police—are appealing to the government to allow them to return to normal life.

But they have two more immediate problems: Bad stomach-aches—"We are not used to this kind of food after so long"—and an appearance before the local magistrate today.

The charges against them, if any, have not been made known.

MARKET TRENDS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange fell sharply Monday, then made a partial comeback as traders settled down to the fact of the Middle East war.

The industrial index, a measure of how key stocks move, was off 1.48 to 161.78 after falling 2.88 in the first hour's trade.

Stocks which trade on both the New York and Toronto markets were hard hit.

Canadian bank stocks were down sharply at the end of the day. Imperial - Commerce and Royal Bank both fell 1¾, to 65¼ and 76¼ respectively. Bank of Montreal was off 1 to 62¾.

Among interlisted stocks Alcan declined ⅞ to 31, CPR ¾ to 68¾ and Stelco ½ to 22½. Massey-Ferguson hit a low for the year of 22, off ⅞.

Base metals were mixed, with Rio Algom down 1 to 31¾ and Denison ½ to 68¾. Inco gained 1⅜ to 101⅜ after losing 1⅞ earlier, and Falconbridge was up ¼ to 84¼.

Dome Petroleum slipped 1⅝ to 52⅜, pacing the western oil decline. Scurry-Rainbow was off 1¼ to 22½ and Central Del Rio ⅜ to 11½. Hudson Bay Oil an-Gas gained 1 to 32¾.

A wave of selling hit Quebec Mattagami Mines at the market opening, delaying its trade 12 minutes. It lost 8 cents in the day's trade, closing at 1.25. Other speculatives also faltered, with Frobex down 35 cents to 4.50, New Imperial 15 cents to 3.00 and PCE Explorations 4 cents to 78 cents.

On index, golds rose 1.86 to 173.44, base metals fell .55 to 94.97 and western oils 1.12 to 151.79.

Trading was light, with 2,393,000 shares traded compared with 2,207,000 Friday.

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices plunged in the first two hours of trading Monday on the Montreal Stock Exchange, following news of hostilities in the Middle East, and the composite index was down to 2.28 near noon. Stocks partially recovered later in the afternoon, however, though at the end of the session most major indexes were still off more than a point.

Declines outnumbered advances 93 to 19 on the Montreal exchange and 44 to 13 on the Canadian exchange.

Among the battered banks Montreal and Canadian Imperial Commerce each slid 1½ points to 62½ and 65½ respectively. Canadienne Nationale and Royal were each off 1⅛ points at 58⅜ and 76⅞ respectively.

Denison, a uranium, fell 1¾ points to 68 in the weaker senior mines section. Down a full point were Hudson Bay Mining, Noranda and Rio Algom, at 62, 50⅜ and 31¾ respectively.

Great Lakes was off ¾ at 25½ in light sales and Consolidated ½ at 38 as the paper index dropped 3.85 points.

Alcan lost 1⅛ points to 31 and Walker-Gooderham one point to 32 among the industrials.

Steel of Canada declined ⅝ to 22⅜ and Dominion Foundries ⅜ to 23¼, the latter in sales of 20,548 shares, among the senior steels.

Bell Telephone and Trans-Canada Pipe Line each dipped ⅝ to 49½ and 29⅝ respectively among the utilities. Trans-Mountain Pipe Line went against the prevailing trend with a ¾-point win to 19¼.

Senior oils were mixed to narrowly higher. B-A advanced 1⅛ points to 35½ and Imperial ½ to 59⅛. Home A, in sales of only 125 shares, eased ¾ to 18⅛ and Shell ⅜ to 26½.

Industrial volume was 164,300 shares and mines and oils 598,800 shares, compared with 165,804 and 1,054,875 Friday.

On index, industrials slipped 1.83 at 160.37; utilities .80 at 145.62; banks 2.46 at 124.88; papers 3.85 at 107.23.

NEW YORK (AP) — Shocked by outbreak of the Israeli-Arab fighting, the stock market Monday took a substantial loss, retreating on a broad front. Trading was heavy.

In the first hour, the plunging market threatened to post one of the largest losses in history, but it recovered partially from this as "bargain hunters" had a buying spree with leading stocks down sharply.

The recovery drive did not last, however, and prices sank again, although they never again reached the trough they dug in the first hour.

Both on average and on volume, in fact, the market made no history. The performance was reminiscent of market action in November, 1956, when Israel invaded the Sinai Peninsula during the Suez crisis. Excitement was keen but the effects on the stock market were transitory, all losses being made up on the end of the year.

In the first hour the ticker tape ran late as traders and investors dumped stock in what analysts called "emotional" selling.

In the initial hour, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 20.77 points, almost matching the 21.16 it fell on the day President Kennedy was assassinated, Nov. 22, 1963.

Fraser Lake - Molybdenum Boom Town

FRASER LAKE, B.C. (CP)—Two years ago 100 people lived in this community in north-central British Columbia. Today there are more than 1,100.

The reason: molybdenum, and a new provincial government policy designed to prevent ghost towns.

Large deposits of molybdenum were found on the shores of Francois Lake, 15 miles from here. They're being developed by Endako Mines Ltd.

It would have been simpler for Endako to build a company town right outside the mine gates. But such a town would have no reason to continue to exist once all the ore was mined. It might have become a ghost town.

The municipal affairs department encourages and sometimes nudges mining companies into attaching any new accommodations they need on to an existing community.

And so, Fraser Lake, which was named after explorer Simon Fraser by one of his lieutenants in 1806 and was an unincorporated community until 1965, got a modern shopping centre, a large hotel, fire hall, skating rink and paved roads.

Unlike most instant towns, Fraser Lake has other potentials. The government sees it as a possible tourist centre because of abundant fish and game resources in the area. Almost 100 moose were killed on the CNR line in one recent year.

Further insurance against Fraser Lake losing its reason for existence is a new lumber mill employing 100 men.

Endako recently handed over to the new municipality $350,000 worth of water supply system, sewage disposal equipment and a sewage treatment plant—all for $100.

What would you do if your pay stopped?

Suppose you had a serious illness. Or an accident. Suppose you couldn't work for 6 months, a year, or a lifetime. Would you have to change your way of life? Move to a cheaper home? Sell your car? Cancel plans for your children's education?

There is no guarantee that you'll always be able to work. But Manufacturers Life can guarantee you a regular monthly "pay" cheque which will help you maintain the standard of living you've worked so hard to achieve.

Call the Man from Manufacturers. He can help you set up a plan to meet your needs and your pocket-book. A plan that is guaranteed renewable to age 65 and which in the interval cannot be changed or cancelled by the Company no matter what happens to your health. The cost is reasonable; return of peace of mind starts the moment your plan is in effect.
