Threatened Crop Failure May Hit Economy

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The threatened crop failure on the Prairies this year could seriously affect the economy of the country but should not jeopardize Canada's ability to fill its wheat export commitments, federal government officials said Thursday.

The Saskatchewan Wheat Pool said earlier this week that the province faces its poorest harvest since 1961, and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics' crop report Wednesday said crops were deteriorating throughout Saskatchewan and in important parts of Manitoba and Alberta because of hot, dry weather.

Last year's bumper crop of wheat, oats and barley topped 1,500,000,000 bushels and was valued at $1,564,000,000, 20 per cent higher than in 1965 and 13 per cent greater than the previous record established in 1963.

No one can yet predict the size of this year's crop, but federal government economists projecting the gross national product for 1967 have counted only on an average crop valued at $1,200,000,000.

WOULD FORCE REVISION

Anything significantly less than that would force them to revise downwards this spring's projection that the gross national product this year is running to $60,152,000,000.

There is no handy rule-of-thumb measurement of the impact of a crop failure on the economy as a whole, but it would have an all-pervasive effect, ranging from reduced rail traffic and port handling activity to fewer farm machinery purchases and lower retail business across the Prairies.

Moreover, the slump in economic activity would take years to work itself through the whole economy.

An indication of the impact of a crop failure is found in the record of the Prairies' 1961 experience, when the wheat and coarse grains crop was less than 500,000,000 bushels.

In the principal grain-growing province of Saskatchewan, net income of farmers sank to $100,000,000 from $305,000,000 in 1960. This compares with provincial farm incomes amounting to $567,000,000 and $67,000,000 in the bumper crop years of 1963 and 1966.

A trade department source said Canada is going into the new 1967-68 crop year, starting Aug. 1, with wheat supplies which should be sufficient to meet export commitments for the next year.

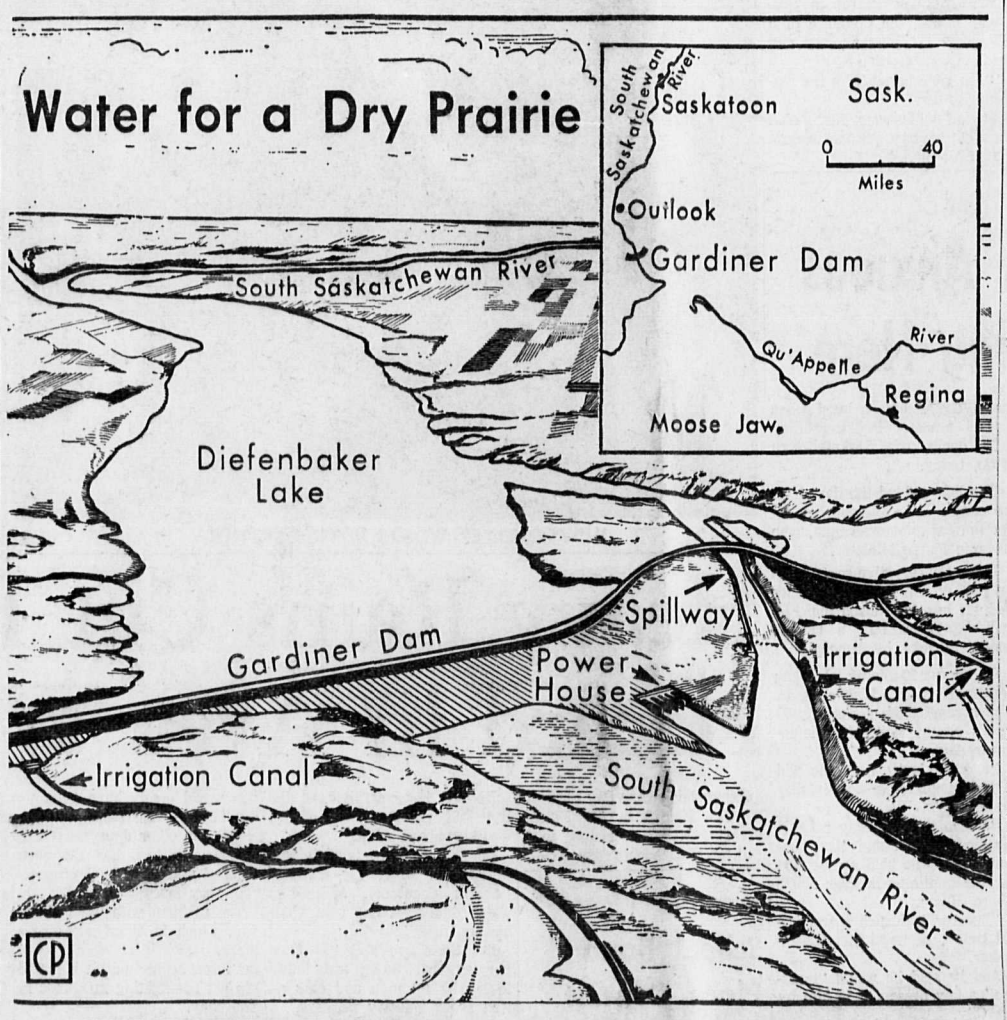
Wheat exports in the crop year now coming to a close have been about 525,000,000 bushels. This should leave about 590,000,000 bushels still in the country's granaries for the new year, with at least some new crop still to be harvested.

Domestic consumption and carry-over needs amount to about 150,000,000 bushels.

To Be "Bash"

QUEBEC (CP) — The state visit of President de Gaulle of France shapes up as the biggest, brashest and costliest bash in the history of what Premier Daniel Johnson call the French-Canadian nation.

The Quebec government has prepared an all-stops-pulled welcome for the general, who arrives July 23 aboard the French navy cruiser Colbert to begin a five-day state visit to Canada. Most of the visit will be spent in this provunce.



GIANT HARNESSED — The Gardiner Dam, 100 miles northwest of Regina, is ready for official opening today by Prime Minister Pearson. The dam backs up the South Saskatchewan River to form Diefenbaker Lake, which will eventually cover 240 square miles. It will provide water for irrigation, hydro power, city and industrial uses. Recreational facilities are expected to be built around the shores of Diefenbaker Lake. The 210-foot-high pile of earth and gravel, three miles long and a mile thick at the base, is the largest rolled-earth dam ever built in Canada. —CP Newsmap.)

Gibson Lake Inspection Reveals No Major Recreation Problem

By JACK EMBERLY
Daily News Staff Writer

A Homestake Silver Ltd. official said Thursday the mine company would begin cleaning up of fuel oil on Gibson lake in Kokanee Glacier Park.

"We have built an access road and will take all the logs and fuel oils off the lake "starting Friday," said mine manager Don McLeod.

Diesel oil and a substance thought to be calcium carbonate has escaped from the old Molly Gibson mine, which is being explored by Homestake.

Milt Goddard of the Parks and Recreation branch in Nelson, viewed the lake Thursday and said "the company is cooperating and making a real effort to clean up the lake."

"If it is cleaned up properly there won't be any real damage," he said.

But "there is no major problem recreation-wise," he said.

He said he and a game branch officer "looked at the stream and the fish were still spawning."

The oil escaped early in July when a worker forgot to shut an oil line.

FIND NEW LEAK

Henry Hiil, consulting engineer for the mine, said in Vancouver Wednesday that another leak, this time of water "high in carbonates", had occurred as crews drilled underground in the mine.

"It may be that the lake will have to be re-stocked," he said, adding that "we're doing all we can.

He said the company set crews working to plug the latest leak, and that fish and game authorities were called as soon as the leak was discovered.

He denied reports that the lake looked "like a milkshake."

Mr. McLeod said Thursday there was "only a little murkiness on the lake; most of it was clear as a bell."

He said he travelled on the lake yesterday and he "could see the bottom on 80 per cent of it."

The colored water that escaped from the mine into the lake "cleared itself up in 24 hours," he added.

Mr. McLeod said the cause of the murkiness could be clay.

He said he had sent samples "of the water to Victoria to have it analyzed," to discover for sure what the cause was.

Until the analysis is made "no one can tell what it is," he said.

The mine manager added, "We don't have any limestone there, just calcium and quartz."

"Offhand, it could be carbonate which is toxic, but it could be clay, talc, calcite or a dozen different things," he continued.

He said that a fisheries biologist viewed the lake Thursday and he "wasn't alarmed at all."

Princess Grace's Condition Excellent

MONTREAL (CP) — Princess Grace of Monaco, resting in a Montreal hospital after suffering a miscarriage, was "in excellent condition," a hospital statement said Thursday.

The baby, her fourth, had been expected in January. The miscarriage occurred Wednesday night.

The hospital statement said Prince Ranier and the couple's three children visited the princess during the day at Royal Victoria Hospital. It is not known when she will be released.

A three-day visit scheduled for the royal family in Vancouver and Victoria this weekend has been cancelled on the advice of physicians attending the princess.

L. T. Wallace, British Columbia's deputy provincial secretary, announced in Victoria that "because of the indisposition of Her Serene Highness Princess Grace and the illness of one of her children" the visit was being called off. Princess Grace's 10-year-old daughter, Caroline, has a slight fever.

A trip to Quebec City Wednesday and Thursday was cancelled when the princess complained Tuesday she was not feeling well.

The princess, 37, former actress Grace Kelly, had been ordered to rest earlier Wednesday by Dr. George B. Maughan, chief of gynecology and obstetrics at Royal Victoria. She was admitted to the hospital at 10 p.m. Wednesday after the miscarriage.

Fulton Not Conceding Maritimes to Stanfield

OTTAWA (CP) — The Davie Fulton camp reacted to Premier Stanfield's entry into the Conservative leadership race by announcing a Fulton committee in Newfoundland.

Evident intention was to dispel any thoughts abroad that Mr. Fulton was conceding anything to the Nova Scotia premier in other Atlantic provinces.

The Fulton camp believes Mr Stanfield is almost certain to get all or most of the Nova Scotia delegate support at the Sept. 6-9 leadership convention in Toronto on a native-son basis. But Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island are different matters.

The Newfoundland list had 13 names on it including two former provincial party leaders, Senator Malcolm Hollet and James Greene.

OTHERS NAMED

Other prominent people included Barry Maunder of St. John's, president of the party's Newfoundland youth wing, and Mrs. F. Cole of St. John's, president of the party's women's association in the province.

Also aboard is James McGrath, immediate past president of the Newfoundland party association. He's a former member of Parliament for St John's East.

A provincial MLA, Thomas Hickey (St. John's East) and two federal riding association presidents in St. John's, the capital, Terry Trainor and Harvey Cole, are also on the committee to drum up support for Mr. Fulton.

Black Power Delegates Predict Stronger Unity

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Negroes gathering for the first major conference on Black Power in the U.S. agreed Thursday that the once-divisive slogan offers an opportunity for Negro unity and progress.

"I think there is going to be much stronger unity and a much more positive definition of Black Power," said William H. Booth, chairman of the New York City Commission on Human Rights.

Booth said he was attending the meetings as a private citizen, but with the approval of Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York.

He said he would "oppose any attempts at separatism or separatist thinking" at the conference.

Another participant, comedian Dick Gregory, said the all-Negro conference, closed to the public, could "turn out to be one of the most important conferences in the history of the country—if we don't get hung up on the words 'Black Power'.

NEGROES SPLIT

Since the slogan emerged in the 1966 Mississippi civil rights march, Negro leadership has split over its meaning and effect.

Initial reaction from the largest civil rights organization, the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, was to reject and condemn the Black Power yells of militant Negro youth. And Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a Nobel Peace Prize winner, spoke last year of connotations of violence and separatism attached to Black Power talk.

But within the last year, there have been growing indications of support and following for Black Power—with a variety of meanings, depending upon the person reacting to it.

Whites Flee Nigerian Army Drive

LAGOS (AP)—More than 700 white refugees were reported pulling out of Biafra Thursday night aboard the freighter Isonzo as Nigerian federal troops pressed a drive into its secessionist Eastern territory

A Nigerian military spokesman said the troops have advanced "far beyond" the university town of Nsukka toward Enugu, the rebel capital 40 miles to the south, and federal planes were strafing Enugu military installations.

Russians Find Little Support for UN Move

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union was reported to be making one last effort Thursday night to salvage something from the wreckage of the UN General Assembly's emergency session on the Middle East.

Diplomatic sources said Soviet diplomats were trying to win support for a resolution that would specifically instruct a special UN representative to seek the withdrawal of Israeli forces from occupied Arab territory and to report to the Security Council.

They said the Russians were finding, however, that a majority of countries in the 122-member assembly weren't prepared to support instructions limiting a UN representative to these tasks. Canada, the United States, most west European and Latin American countries and some African and Asian countries want the UN effort to be aimed also at making the Arabs take steps to end their avowed "state of belligerency" with Israel.

The assembly adjourned Thursday, after meeting for only six minutes, until today at 3 p.m. EDT.

Personal Applications For Medals Ignored

OTTAWA (CP) — A steady stream of Canadians have been proposing themselves as recipients of a special silver Centennial medal.

"We've been getting a good deal of correspondence from people who think they should have one," an informed source said Thursday.

However, personal applications aren't being considered.

Prime Minister Pearson announced May 31 that the effective date for conferral of the medals would be July 1.

However, none have been conferred yet and a special committee is still drawing up a list of the 20,000 Canadians to be honored.

The federal committee is trying to work out a quota system by which heads of governments and associations would recommend recipients.

This was proving to be, in the words of one official, "a devil of a job. Eventually we'll get some out," he said, adding that August is a bare possibility for the first awards.

The Centennial medal, approved by Queen Elizabeth, is a commemorative decoration similar to the Coronation medals of 1953.

It follows in precedence all regular and previous commemorative medals but comes before long-service, good conduct and efficiency medals.

Suspended from a red and white striped ribbon, it bears the royal cipher E II R below a crown superimposed on a single maple leaf, and the inscription Confederation - Canada-Confederation.

On the back is the Canadian coat of arms and the dates 1867-1967.

30,000 Newfoundlanders Welcome Queen Mother

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A 21-gun royal salute echoed across the harbor and church bells pealed gaily as Queen Mother Elizabeth arrived Thursday for her first visit to the province of Newfoundland.

She paid her last visit here with her husband, King George VI, in 1939 when the island was still a British colony. Newfoundland became a province in 1949.

More than 30,000 people lined the streets of the oldest seaport in North America, to see the Queen Mother drive by in a convertible. She wore a deep pink dress with matching hat and sparkling diamond brooch on her shoulder.

Islanders Roar Greeting To President de Gaulle

ST. PIERRE (CP) — French President Charles de Gaulle got a tumultuous welcome when he arrived at St. Pierre-Miquelon Thursday to spend 10 hours visiting the group of small French fishing islands south of Newfoundland.

The sun shone and the temperature reached 75 degrees as the 76-year-old president stepped ashore from a grey motor launch that brought him to the quay from the French cruiser Colbert.

There was no evidence of the strict security measures that has been forecast for his visit. In fact, the accent was on informality as the president stopped to shake hands with children and adults who thronged the harbor waterfront to greet him.

Cries of "vive la france" and "vive de Gaulle" echoed across the harbor and the French tricolor flag fluttered from house windows and public buildings.

ROUTE PACKED

Trawlers in St. Pierre harbor set up a roar with sirens and horns as the president arrived. His parade route along narrow streets from the harbor to the main square—La Place de General de Gaulle — was packed with people.

They swarmed around the president's car as he leaned forward to shake outstretched hands and chat to the excited throng before going to a raised dais in the square.

In a 15-minute speech, the president told the people of St. Pierre he understands their problems—the problems of an economy based mainly on fishing and tourism.

He made no promises but said he would try to help them. Reviewing the island's history, the president recalled the basque background of the St. Pierrais and their desire to remain French.

LAW CRACKS DOWN ON BABIES IN NUDE

TORONTO (CP) — The policeman who wrote the information admits he was unable to determine the sex, but a boy and a girl have been accused of walking naked.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin ter Woort, parents of 18-months-old Marc and 2½-year-old Lisa will receive summonses by mail because the children were "walking in public disorder, contrary to a bylaw of the Toronto parks commission."

Mr. ter Woort, an economist at the University of Toronto, said police called him Wednesday and read an official report outlining how an officer "while walking in an easterly direction along Ward's Island discovered two boys. . . ."

"I said: 'Wait a minute, I don't have two boys,'" Mr. ter Woort said. "The officer said that both the kids had short hair."

When Mrs. ter Woort cut in to ask whether the policeman did not know how to tell boys from girls, the officer replied: "We only look at the tops."

Someone, however, objected to the bottoms, and a complaint was lodged that the children had been on the beach without bathing suits for the third time in a week.

Mr. ter Woort says he finds the charges funny. "I figure, what magistrate is going to take them seriously?"

The bylaw is one of a number designed to prevent sunbathing and "public mischief" on the islands in Toronto harbor where the city has developed a major recreation area.

He said he does not intend to pay the $25 fine normally assessed under the bylaw.

Shrinking Worker Output Concerns Leaders

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal statisticians confirmed Thursday what many economists and federal government leaders have been fearing: The annual growth of output per worker is wilting.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported that its index of productivity in non-agricultural commercial activity rose by only 1.8 per cent in 1966.

This compared with a gain of 2.5 per cent in 1965, and three per cent annually in the three previous years.

The index, based on 1949 output per person employed equalling 100, was 156.3 last year, compared with 153.5 in 1965. In 1961, when the latest expansionary cycle began, it was 137.0.

Both Finance Minister Sharp and the Economic Council of Canada, headed by John J. Deutsch, have warned that a vigorously growing level of productivity should be maintained if Canada is to compete effectively with other countries and have a rising standard of living.

PRODUCTIVITY IS KEY

"Advances in productivity," the council said last November in its third annual review of the economy, "are ultimately the key to rising living standards.

"As a consequence of the relatively slower growth in productivity in Canada, average living standards in most of the overseas industrial countries have been moving up closer to Canadian levels."

A finance department official commenting on the DBS report said that since the Second World War, Canada's productivity rate has kept up well with the productivity rate of the United States.

Although Canadian real income per capita is still 20 to 25 per cent below the U.S., Canada has not been falling behind

But in 1966, a year of all-out economic activity, there was generally less efficiency in the Canadian industrial plant. This, he said, was characteristic of a country nearing the peak of its economic activity and drawing more women and younger unskilled workers into the labor force, thus lowering the level of efficiency.

The economic council's report also said Canada had clearly reached a stage in its progress towards economic maturity which warranted "a much closer look at the possible contributions which freer trade could make to productivity growth in various sectors of the economy.

SPECIALIZATION NEEDED

The council added: "Increased specialization, leading to increased international marketing, could add significantly to the growth of real income per capital."

That is what the government expects will flow from implementing the tariff cuts negotiated in the Kennedy Round of GATT discussions earlier this spring in Geneva. The reductions are to be made in stages over 4½ years.

Finance Minister Sharp, in his June 1 budget speech, outlined some of the other measures the government is counting on to improve productivity, but too are long range in their e

They include educat grants, training and retrai adult workers, encouragem for industrial research and d velopment, and better land use

"Essentially, however, productivity is not someth[illegible] that the government can a[illegible]ieve," he said. "It is a task [illegible]ll of us. It is particularly [illegible] for management and labo[illegible]

The chief danger he saw to next few years was ex[illegible]ive increases in prices and costs. Wages and salaries have been rising at rates several times the over-all increase in productivity per man.

Three Events Scheduled In City Centennial Week

Nelson will celebrate Canada's 100th birthday from August 13 to August 20.

But the seven-day birthday party may turn out to be a celebration without the cake and candles and only a few guests.

For at the moment, only four major events will definitely be held during the week.

The City's Centennial Club has been unable to get the support to promote the projects it had planned for the Centennial Week.

The Confederation junket starts when the Confederation Caravan and a Vancouver midway come to town Sunday, August 13.

The big caravan — one of several touring Canada — will stay in Nelson until Wednesday. The midway will continue for the week.

But after that there will be a three-day gap before there is a locally organized event.

Saturday, August 19, a gymkhana will be held and the high spot of the week, the Jaycee Centenial Parade, will get under way.

18 FLOATS ENTERED

The Jaycees already have 18 floats entered in the parade and they expect five bands to swing it through Nelson.

The Jaycees have sent letters to the mayors of Castlegar, Trail, Kimberley, Rossland, Creston and Cranbrook asking them to judge the entrants in the parade.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black may attending as judging chairman.

But the Jaycees still need more floats and participation in the parade, said Jaycee Parade Chairman Gordon Kleef.

Among the out of town floats is the spectacular B.C. Kinsmen Mothers' March float.

Its theme is a plea to help the disabled.

As well as the parade, the Jaycees want merchants to dress up their stores like century old businesses.

And to give an added Centennial flavor, the Jaycees want to see the staff of the businesses dressed in period uniforms.

The Junior Chamber will award a prize for the business "showing the most imagination in their displays, period dress and advertising."

In their effort to make the Centennial Parade the crowning point of confederation celebrations in Nelson, the Jaycees are trying to get participation wherever they can find it.

"We've written to the horse-mounted Lilac Patrol in Spokane, bands, the Compere of a TV show . . . everyone we can think of, said Gordon Kleef.

"I'm very happy with the response so far.

By all indications this should be the biggest parade Nelson has ever had."

Former City Businessman Dies at Coast

A former well-known Nelson businessman, David Dow McGregor, 68, died in Royal Columbia Hospital at New Westminster Thursday.

Mr. McGregor resided here from 1943 to 1951. He was manager of Four-Ex Bakeries Ltd.

He was a member of the Rotary Club and of the Nelson Lodge No. 23 AF & AM.

Born in Perthshire, Scotland, October 29, 1898, he came to Canada in 1904 with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William McGregor, when they settled in Calgary.

Mr. McGregor joined the Canadian Army in World War I and served in Siberia. After the war, he joined the permanent force, serving with Ordinance until 1925.

He then joined the Four-Ex company at Calgary and after three years as salesman, was transferred to Edmonton when a branch was opened there in 1928. In 1931 he became manager of the North Battleford, Sask. branch then came to Nelson.

Transferred to the New Westminster depot in 1951, he became purchasing agent for the head office at Vancouver, and retired Jan. 1, 1964.

He is survived by his wife, the former Gladys Burland, whom he married in Calgary Aug. 12, 1920; one daughter, Phyllis (Mrs. W. B. Christie) of Nelson; and one sister, Lillian (Mrs. W. H. Langstrom) of Calgary.

Enjoyed City Visit

Diefenbaker Anxious To Try Fishing Here

Former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker wants to take up the invitation of a mountain lake fishing trip — made when he was in Nelson Monday.

In a telephone call Thursday to Walter Davis, West Kootenay Conservative party head and a personal friend, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"I would like to go on the fishing trip.

"When I get back from the opening of the Gardiner Dam perhaps I can arrange it."

Mr. Diefenbaker will be among the impressive gathering of noted Canadians on hand when Prime Minister Pearson officially opens the Saskatchewan Dam, today.

The lake behind the dam is to be named Lake Diefenbaker after the Saskatchewan man, who became Prime Minister.

If the Conservative party leader goes on the fishing trip planned for him by Nelson men, he will be flown into a remote mountain lake by helicopter.

During his 20-minute telephone conversation with Walter Davis, who arranged the senior statesman's recent visit, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"I don't know how you did it. It was absolutely wonderfullly arranged."

He also thanked Mayor Louis Maglio and Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Fink, who held a reception for the politician in their North Shore Home.

"I never had such a wonderful time", declared Mr. Diefenbaker.

And he said he would "treasure" a key presented to him by the City.

He appreciated his personal meeting with key figures in Nelson at the Finks' home.

"I wish I had had the time to meet the people of Nelson who gave me such a wonderful response.

"It would be impossible to have a finer welcome."

Mr. Davis said that Mr. Diefenbaker assured him he would try and get back to Nelson.

"I expect to come down there, but I can't tell you when until I get back from the Gardiner

Two Injured In Plunge Off Highway

SALMO — Reported in satisfactory condition in Kootenay Lake General Hospital are Charles L. Rushby of 713 Carbonate Street, Nelson and Mrs. Gervase Shaw of Retford, Nottinghamshire, England following a highway mishap, Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Rushby, the third occupant of the car that went over a 12-foot embankment 15 miles out of Salmo on the Kootenay Skyway, was uninjured. Mrs. Shaw has been visiting the Rushbys.

Police said the car apparently went out of control on the downhill grade. Mrs. Shaw, the more seriously injured, received undetermined injures. Both were brought to Kootenay Lake General hospital at Nelson by a Salmo ambulance.

The accident, reported at 3 p.m. by a passing motorist, is still under investigation.

Ballet Career Dream of Miss PNE

JUDY COLLYER WORKS WITH PARTNER

Hours of Practice At NDU Her Daily Lot

Miss PNE has a shapely, eye-catching pair of legs.

That's not surprising, because one of the prerequisites to becoming a beauty queen is a passable physical appearance.

And as any man, or observant woman knows, one of the first parts of a woman that a male looks at are her legs.

But Miss PNE's are rather special legs.

She hopes, yearns, and probably prays that they will carry her to fame . . . not in the arena of beauty contests, but on the hard boards of the ballet stage.

Yesterday Judy Collyer's legs . . . she's Miss PNE . . . were rather tired.

She had been leaping up and down on them, pirouetting, pas de deoxing on them and generally exerting them.

For her strenuous exercises are part of her trek towards becoming a ballet dancer.

The 18-year-old deep brown eyed willowy brunette is one of 35 young students studying ballet at Notre Dame University's Summer School of Arts.

HARD WORK

And for six hours each day she is bending, stretching and going through whatever exercises ballet dancers in training have to undergo.

"You have to work and work hard to become a ballet dancer," says Judy.

Her ambition is to join the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, get into the corps de ballet and possibly become a soloist.

"I don't know if I would ever make a soloist. I don't even know if I'll make the corps de ballet," she says softly.

And getting to the top of her porfession?

"That is a dream that seems almost impossible," she replies.

But the dream may come true.

Arnold Spohr, direcor of the glittering Royal Winnipeg ballet, saw Judy dance at Notre Dame last week.

Upon his decision rests the future of the slim attractive young woman in ballet.

She graduated from New Westminster High School just a month ago.

Now she is making an all out effort to join the ballet rank and file, in the autumn.

But before that she still has several functions to fulfill as Miss PNE.

YOUNG QUEEN

Judy is one of the youngest Queens of B.C. "I didn't do anything until suddenly there I was," she says of her rapid climb to fame.

Despite her committments as the province's prettiest first lady, she says that a major part of her time has been spent dancing.

Peter Franklin White, choreographer for the Vancouver Opera Association, took her and 25 other young dancers under his wing.

Their dancing won them appearances in two operas performed in Vancouver.

And in addition, Judy has attended ballet lessons three times a week, during the past year.

"I've danced about 12 years But I haven't been serious until the last five years," she says.

"I love dancing. When I dance I feel I am expressing something.

The calm faced young woman still has something of the schoolgirl about her.

She earnestly hopes that her year as Miss PNE hasn't changed her.

"It has given me more confidence. I have had to appear in front of large groups and speak to them!"

But as a queen she is still an anachronism. Reserved, somewhat homey and lacking any artificiality.

"I have three brothers, all older than I am, and they live at home . . . it's one big happy family.

"Yes, I go out with boys."

"I don't get enough sleep, when you are dancing you need all the energy you can get.

"I would like to go to university some time, as well as dancing . . ."

Miss PNE is one of the nicer things of the psychedelic age.

She will leave Notre Dame University Sunday and head for Seattle and the Sea Fair.

Next stop after that is the Kelowna Regatta. And then, she hopes, the start of a career in ballet.

Heavy Rains Cut Fire Hazard in Area Woods

Heavy rains Thursday reduced the fire hazard in the Nelson Forest District, according to a B.C. Forest Service official.

He said, however, that the district still "has one month of fire weather ahead of it."

He said the fire tension was reduced in all ranger districts "except Cranbrook and Elko which didn't get any rain Wednesday night."

But there are still "40 fires burning and these are being fought by 161 men and cats as well as 98 industry workers."

Commenting on the 'Pom' fire burning near Castlegar on Tuesday, the officer said "two water bombers clobbered it almost immediately."

"If they hadn't been there the fire would surely have gone up the hillside," he said.

The one other dangerous fire, the Duncan fire, has not been stopped yet but is "not progressing very much," he said.

The problem with the Duncan fire, which is about a 250-acre blaze, is its inaccessibility but the forest officer said it is hoped "to get fire-fighting machines in Thursday."

Some of the larger fires that are now under control or nearly under control are the "Mike fire" near Quinn Creek and Cranbrook, the "Saw fire" near Golden and the "Tat" fire, a Celgar fire near Half Way Creek."

The forest officer said they hoped "to have a guard around the Celgar fire" by Thursday.

The "Saw" fire was a 100-acre blaze, he said.

One other fire, the "Grace" fire in the Fernie district, is now controlled.

This fire at its onset nearly doubled its size because of a "freak wind."

The officer added the fire season usually ends "around the 20th of August when the rains begin."

Summer School Band Plans Concert

A band concert promising to appeal to all musical tastes will be held Saturday night.

As part of the Summer School of the Arts program at Notre Dame, the band will present an hour and a half concert of light classical and semi-popular selections designed to appeal to the concert audience.

The entire band, made up of 55 players from B.C. and Alberta centres, along with members of the Nelson City Band, will play selections of Handel and Rossini and the theme from the Broadway show, "Bells Are Ringing."

"I think the audience will find the selections interesting as we have a good group of musicians here," said Fred Turner, music supervisor of Vancouver schools and leader of the band performance.

Norman Fishwic music director of Stanley Humphries Secondary School, Castlegar, and Ted Gergely, director of the Nelson City Band, will also lead the group in the Saturday night performance.

Alarms Up in June

Nelson's Fire Department fought 12 fires in both May and June but responded to nearly three times the number of rescue alarms last month as it did in May.

In Fire Chief Elwyn Owens' May-June report tabled at city council meeting, he said loss by fire in May was set at 1,635 and for June, $2,915.

There was no loss of life as a result of fire.

In his report the Chief said "there has been concern over the fire department calls outside the City of Nelson and we hope council will discuss the matter and render a decision on whether we should or should not attend outside calls."

There was only one false alarm.

The department made 182 inspections of city buildings over the two months. Two sheds were condemned "and many orders were issued to remove various hazards."

Rescue calls ranged from attendance at serious traffic accidents to an ambulance trip for a nine-month-old boy who swallowed a checker.

Centennial Medallions Awarded To Citizens

NAKUSP — Centennial medallions were recently presented to Joshua Allan Langille, Myrtle Augusta Medland, Sara MacEachern, Joseph Ferdinand Ferron, Emedee (Joe) Desrochers, Margaret Edith Edna Coulter, and Mary Elizabeth Cowan.

Mr. Langille is 87 years old and is a descendant of the Huguenot French. His grandfather Leopold fought in the War of 1812.

Mrs. Medland is 84 years old, the granddaughter of Daniel Clendenan who also fought in the war of 1812.

Sara MacEachern, 81 years old came from Highland stock in Nova Scotia. She left the east several years ago to live in Nakusp.

Joseph Ferron, aged 77 years, is a third generation Canadian with his forefathers having come from France.

Mr. Desrochers' ancestors came to Canada in 1655, from France. He is 84 years old. He came to Nakusp in 1906.

Mrs. Edna Coulter's husband Samuel Coulter joined the North West Mounted Police in 1885 and served in the Riel Rebellion during the reign of Queen Victoria.

Coming to Nakusp from Kamloops, Mrs. Cowan made the trip by horse and wagon. She recalls Indians living in teepees at the point.

Among her memories are the loads of ore being taken off the barges on rawhides and being pulled by horse on the switchback trails which wound over the mountains to the smelter.

A ball at Halcyon was a real social event. The women sent away for their fancy gowns and after the ball stayed overnight at the hotel.

Mike Fraitzl reported that a man had studied the Nakusp Hot Spring Development as a year around resort and suggested the club follow up the visit with a letter.

Regardless of Conciliation Strike Vote To Be Called

By DON KOLFAGE
Editorial Director, The News

IWA's wage parity campaign was carried to the retail businessmen today in far reaching efforts to gain outside support.

The International Woodworkers of America represent workers in the Southern Interior and are currently involved in contract negotiations to obtain wage parity with coastal workers.

In the current issue of the Western Canadian Lumber Workers, the union's weekly news publication, a reproduction of an advertisement aimed at interior businessmen is carried with the note that itis appearing in daily and weekly newspapers throughout the northern and southern interior of the province.

Adjacent to the ad appears an open letter to all interior IWA members noting that contract talks to date have been entirely fruitless.

The IWA ad notes that interior workers now receive 50-cents per hour less for comparable workers than do those at the coast.

"This lowers living standards, throughout the interior," the ad notes. "Placing interior woodworkers on the same footing as coast workers will ensure circulation of another $8 million throughout the interior, most of which will flow toward retail outlets."

There are in excess of 8,000 woodworkers in the interior region of the province.

The Southern Interior negotiating committee members, Jack Munro, Bob Schlosser, Jack Moore and Bill Schumaker, have worned IWA members "It is not too soon to prepare for a solid strike vote by making all our fellow-workers on the job aware that 100 per cent unity behind our demands is the key to victory."

They said, also, "Whatever the outcome of conciliation as we now assess the employers' position, a strike vote will eventually be necessary to prove interior membership determination to win parity with the coast. This does not necessarily mean strike action, but will be a vital test of our bargaining strength."

The IWA ad concluded by affirming "wage spending of the workers in the community far exceeds "local purchases by the companies involved.

The IWA asked businessmen "for your moral support so that together we can greatly enrich the prosperity of our interior communities."

Soccer Exhibition Show Tight Scores

NATAL — Continuing their home and home exhibition series in soccer, Sparwood and Fernie teams continued to strive for supremacy over each other in closely contested games.

Playing their fifth exhibition game this season at the Sparwood Ball Park, Fernie scored their second win as they emerged winners by a 1-0 score over Sparwood in a crowd pleasing and closely contested game.

After playing to a scoreless first half, Fernie scored the only goal of the game late in the second half when Ken Chapel booted home the winner.

Sparwood still holds a 3-2 edge in games won over the opposition.

Showing how evenly matched the two teams are, all five games played to date in the series have been close contests with single goals being the margin of victory in each, with the exception of one game when Sparwood scored a convincing 7-0 win while playing at Fernie.

Pollution Topic For Municipalities

CRESTON—At a Creston meeting of Association of Kootenay Boundary Municipalities July 15, the newly elected committee examined the vast amount of information sent over by former secretary George Cady of Trail.

Chaired by C. Kinrade, Kimberley alderman, the committee decided to enlist at least one interested individual member from each community to help gather factual material for a brief to be presented by the committee to the semi-annual meeting of the AKBM in Kimberley on September 9, 1967.

The gist of the brief would be to point out all the cities, towns and villages in the area, those who have made any progress to combat the pollution problem. A study will then be made of the costs and how this will affect the other areas.

It was recognized by the committee that the big danger in delay would be the exhorbitant costs that would occur to correct damage in the future. Therefore, it was felt by the committee that haste in this case would not mean waste later.

The secretary, James Patterson of Kimberley, was authorized to draw up the brief for the September 9 meeting, with a copy for each of the 80 delegates attending.

The town hall in Creston was used for the meeting with the kind permission of Mayor Dodds.

Rev. R. Brown Named Training Consultant

CRANBROOK — Rev. R. W. S. Brown, Anglican rector at Revelstoke at present, and over the past several years of parishes in Kelowna, Cranbrook and Nelson, has been appointed full-time training consultant for Kootenay Diocese with Kelowna headquarters.

This office was authorized by the June synod comprising deaneries of East and West Kootenay, South and North Okanagan, with E. N. Doyle, E. J. Batt, Larry Lyster and Peter Tassie respective deanery Diocesan Advance team chairmen. Each chairman has visited every parish in his deanery to outline to them objectives of the Advance team and enlist their individual participation.

Objectives are to implement coordinated parish functions such as Sunday school, social service and others on a diocese-wide basis with the Advance Team augmented by volunteers from each parish. Mr. Brown will serve as consultant in systematic travel through the four deaneries as their parishes require advice and assistance in practical application of this streamline system. Until now the application has had to await approval at the infrequent diocese executive meeting with implicit long delays in action.

Diocese cost of carrying out the plan, involving much travel, is estimated at about $10,000 annually, and the four Advance team heads report sympathetic hearing by the parish and pledging of $11,150 though only a token amount so far received.

They agreed their early summer visits to their various parishes to outline the plan and list the pledges should be followed with September - through November visits again to determine the volume of parish working support, and confirm the pledged amounts.

Working committees for the various functions would be on a diocese-wide basis, each with a permanent chairman and each acting in close cooperation with Mr. Brown as consultant.

Rev. D. C. Anderson of Cranbrook has already been named social service chairman, and a Youth Group has also been established and has met twice on a diocesan basis, with Rev. Ray Turner of Penticton diocese chairman.

In its second circuit the Advance team will distribute in each parish a brochure now being prepared outlining the work to be done and personnel requirements from the parish to do it.

By December of this year the team plans to have the complete information from each deanery and will meet in Penticton to organize final details for 1968 action by the 6000 Anglican families of Kootenay Diocese.

More GIs, More Reds

Defence Secretary McNamara's optimism about the bloody, costly ever-escalating U.S. war effort in Vietnam becomes a little wearisome.

It sounds like the professional optimism of the executive of a big business, as he was before he joined the government in 1961. Yes, there are weak spots in the economy, but we are building on firm foundations. Yes, last quarter was off, but progress is being made and we expect dividends to be higher next quarter. Our personnel studies show that more efficiency and high productivity can be achieved and we won't have to hire as many new employees to take care of more business as department heads have asked. Our agents in the field will be jacked up to work harder at their jobs.

Or, in Vietnam war terms: There is no stalemate; we are making progress militarily, and the South Vietnamese are making political progress. The pacification program will be strengthened. Greater efficiency must be obtained and U.S. and South Vietnamese forces better integrated. Gen. Westmoreland doesn't really need the 100,000 to 200,000 additional U.S. troops he had asked for, so we will only send him perhaps 30,000 this year. There will be no need to call up American reserves.

Americans are not reassured, as they look at Pentagon figures showing American casualties now exceeding South Vietnamese casualties (since the beginning of 1967, more than 35,000 U.S. dead and wounded, compared with about 19,000 South Vietnamese).

What should now be apparent to Secretary McNamara, and probably is, although he isn't saying so, is that President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have more than proportionately matched the U.S. troop buildup at every step and have the manpower to continue to do so. The enemy reserve forces include approximately one million men under arms in North Vietnam and Viet Cong control of recruiting, forcibly or otherwise, in vast areas of South Vietnam.

Although the enemy's casualty rate is much higher than that of U.S. and allied forces, his escalation matches ours and includes the most sophisticated arms available from the Soviet Union and Red China.

The reasons Gen. Westmoreland needs more troops in South Vietnam are two-fold: Bombing of North Vietnam has not sufficiently hampered movement of troops and foreign weapons to the South; and the South Vietnamese armed forces are gladly turning over the mainline defense of their country to Americans. Secretary McNamara's optimism would be justifiable if he had an answer to these deficiences. If he has, he hasn't said so. — Oregonian.

New Methods in Vietnam

The United States is at another of its periodic and major decision points on Vietnam. Washington must soon decide whether to grant the military's request to send heavy reinforcements (estimates vary from between 70,000 to 150,000 new men) during the next 12 months. The reason for this request is obvious: The allied forces are not at present winning the military war and Gen. William C. Westmoreland deems that a major step-up in American power is needed if a satisfactory initiative is to be regained.

We believe that, whatever report Defence Secretary Robert McNamara brings back from his forthcoming visit to Vietnam, there should be no decision on new troops until a number of questions have been asked, studied, and, if possible, answered. In view of the fact that previous troops reinforcements have failed to have the hoped-for effect, it would be unwise to send still more until certain outstanding issues have been disposed of.

The first is the question of a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. This newspaper, like many others, strongly urges that this expedient be tried, that the bombing be halted and that a major campaign be launched to seek to bring all sides to a conference table. The halt must be long enough to constitute a genuine effort for peace. If Hanoi refuses to respond, then, at least, the world may have a clearer view of who it is that persists in fighting.

A second point which needs clarifying is whether the United States has made an adequate effort and used sufficient ingenuity in developing new tactics to win the war. We have long felt that this was not the case. Although we put no faith in Buck Rogers inventions, we do believe that a nation of America's resources could and should have found new ways of controlling infiltration from the North and combatting guerrillas in the bush. We strongly urge that more thought and imagination be given to new ways of achieving these ends.

Still another unanswered question is the effect which a 15 to 25 per cent increase in American strength would have in many directions. Would it not further weaken the South Vietnamese's own readiness to fight and win? Would it not further greatly aggravate the social and economic dislocation which already ravages South Vietnam? Would it not increase the danger of further Russian and Chinese steps designed to balance off this jump in American power?

But, most important of all, would it actually do what the military must hope it will do — permit the allies to regain the initiative sufficiently to give some hope of a military victory? Frankly, we doubt it. We cannot see how, under present conditions, even 150,000 additional men can afford any guarantee of success.

We realize that it is not easy, once a government has committed itself to a military goal, for that government to refuse to meet the requests of those charged with achieving that goal. Nor do we say that under no circumstances should reinforcements be sent. But we do call upon both the White House and the Pentagon to probe much more deeply the possibility of finding new ways of achieving the goal of making South Vietnam politically independent and militarily secure.—Christian Science Monitor.

By RICHARD JACKSON
Nelson Daily News Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Whatever happened to delay the awarding of the Order of Canada?

There's no firm documentary proof of it — but what happened, in all likelihood, was Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

He so spoofed the decoration — and you know how Canadians are supposed to be over what generally are called "honors"— that Prime Minister Pearson must have had second (and third, fourth and even fifth) thoughts about it.

For the Prime Minister in triumph announced the striking of this order in Canada some three months ago.

And all the confident expectations — even semi-official hints — were that the first awards would be made on Dominion Day as a key part of the celebration of Centennial.

There was even more-than-hopeful bureaucratic buzzing that the Queen would be pinning it on the proud breasts of those Canadians selected the first to merit this coveted Order of their nation.

But July 1 went by with no royal "gonging" — except in a very private ceremony of Governor-General Michener — and the Queen flew home to London.

The delay continued for still another week.

And so gone with the blue and white Super VC-10 Royal Jet, back across the ocean, the chance to endow the order with the magic mystique that only Her Majesty could have given.

What must have slowed down the prime minister's initial rush and cooled his early enthusiasm was the Old Chief and his talented way with words.

HONORS COURSE

The prime minister and his cabinet that day in May listened with fear and fascination as Dief all but kidded them out of the Commons.

First he reminded them how sensitive, as the "democrats" they consider themselves, Liberals traditionally have been about honors.

Remember Prime Minister Mackenzie King's "Canada Medal" — struck at the Mint and then mothballed to this day?

So whose memory did Dief invoke?

Mackenzie King's, of course.

For all "Macking's" protestations that "honors" were neither very democratic nor even Canadian, recalled Dief, the former prime minister had done not badly at all in the decorations department.

But he waited, discreetly, until he was safely abroad to do it.

In London, related Dief, chuckling, Mr. King's arrival had "coincided conveniently" with the death of one of the 26 members of the "veddy veddy British" Order of Merit, so who do you think managed to snaffle the vacant honor?

Who else but Our Man From Ottawa.

"Then," recalled Dief, "he visited the Queen of the Netherlands and pointed out the services that Canada had given the Dutch — and so picked up yet another decoration, the Order of Orange-Nassau.

"Imagine, if you can, his feelings, loaded down as he was already, with two decorations in the one trip. Seems he was so used to these honors by then that he went to Belgium and collected himself a third, the Order of Leopold.

FOUR IS PAR

"But time marched on," grinned Dief, enjoying the uncomfortable squirming of the government cabinet benches, "and so he went to Paris where they made him a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

"For one trip he did pretty well — four ought to be par for any honors course."

But there was one honor still to come, beamed Dief, and you could see the apprehensive cabinet holding its breath, "and it was the finest decoration of them all, for when he returned home they made him honorary president of the Prince Albert Agricultural Society."

The performance was truly Vintage Dief.

So good, the government benches were a little slow to recover, and when a comeback was attempted, it was sort of half-hearted and entirely unconvincing.

"A fine vaudeville act," said Jean Rochon, the Liberal MP for Quebec's Laval, "but really now, not very constructive, was it?"

Maybe not, but like vaudeville, while it may be soon disappearing, it's fun while it lasts.

"What," murmured the slow-burning prime minister, "would we ever do without our friend from Prince Albert, the leader of Her Majesty's official opposition?"

Easy to answer, that one.

He'd almost certainly have made the initial awards of the Order of Canada without so much delay, that's what he'd have done without Dief.

But there's this — Dief could only delay it.

In the days of his full power before some of his own people began their campaign for his destruction, he could have killed it with a word.

Springhill "Bumps"

HALIFAX (CP) — Wives whose husbands or relatives were not underground at the time of the Springhill, N.S., mine bumps some years ago did not interpret the heavy ground tremors as bumps, but nearly all those who had a close relative in the mines immediately thought the mines had been devastated.

Dr. H. D. Beach, professor of psychology at Dalhousie University here, uses these examples to illustrate the predictability of human behavior in time of disaster.

Whether it is braking for a stop light, turning up for work at a given hour, a mother's response to her injured child or the shock reaction to impact of a disaster, behavior is predictable to terms of internal and external conditions which produce and maintain it, he says.

"Assuming that we can anticipate the conditions, then we can generally predict what people will do, and we can often alter the conditions ahead of time and so provide for a different kind of response.

"Furthermore, human behavior is acquired or learned, so that feelings, thoughts and action responses can be modified to meet new situations."

TIME IS FACTOR

A disaster can be divided into time phases: pre-disaster period, warning period, impact, emergency and recovery.

Dr. Beach says people's responses to warning signs differ widely. An early warning will generally arouse mild apprehension; a late warning might evoke fear and immediate protective action.

But there were exceptions, with the nuclear explosion over Hiroshima, Japan, in 1945 an example. In the few seconds between the blinding flash and the first impact of the shock waves a few people did cover their eyes, throw themselves to the floor or run to a shelter.

But in such extreme and sudden disasters, the most common response, Dr. Beach says, is to pause, take a second look, check what others think and are doing, even as they experience apprehension and fear.

From the studies of human behavior in times of disaster, Dr. Beach says emergency organizations can learn a lot. It was not necessary that everyone be highly trained. The key was organization and adequate training of organizational personnel.

Lifeguards

To the Editor:—

Sir — Your news item in yesterday's paper 'Nelson Parents Rescue Children from Gyro Pool' prompted me to write this letter. As a mother of small children and also as a former lifeguard, I speak from a certain amount of experience.

Although I don't know the circumstances involved in the particular incidences you mentioned, the situation itself is quite common at areas where a lifeguard is present. I definitely get the impression that the parents of the two small children involved blame the lifeguard that when their own children got into difficulty in the pool, they (the parents) had to retrieve their own children. The lifeguard was not doing her job properly, otherwise she would have retrieved them.

Now, isn't that terrible? To think that a parent has to get shoes and clothing wet helping his own child, when there is a lifeguard on duty!! What are the lifeguards paid for?

It is my belief that they are paid to Guard Lives and not to baby sit.

If it was a normal day, I should guess that there were quite a number of children in the pool, with only two young people to guard all those lives. How can two people, no matter who they are, watch all those children, all of the time? Yet they are expected to. If some child, out of all that number, slips, falls or goes under, the guard is immediately accused of not doing her duty if someone else happens to run to the aid of the child. The fact that her attention may have been held at the moment by someone else in danger is not even considered. Only the one fact — My child was in difficulty and I had to get wet to rescue him — with two lifeguards on duty! — and she (the lifeguard) is immediately branded 'Irresponsible.'

I say it was probably not the guard who was at fault, but the parents. What kind of parents are they who leave such young children (2, 3 and 4 year olds) in crowded and dangerous places such as a pool and then just take it for granted that a busy lifeguard will protect their darling offspring from all manner of things? Obviously they don't look around and see the scores of other children whose parents all had the same idea. To some parents, the presence of a lifeguard just signifies a free baby sitting service.

How many of those same parents would agree to look after even half that many small children, single handedly, and in the relative safety of their own homes? Not very many, I can assure you. Yet they seem to have full confidence that a young guard or two can quite easily watch two or three times that many children playing in the pool and around the edge. It is definitely asking too much of anyone. After all they only have two eyes. Those parents who are so ready to criticize would do well to accept the responsibility of their own children and not expect someone else to do it.

Lifeguarding is a frightening responsibility for anyone, and on a hot afternoon it becomes a nightmare. To watch hundreds of people, every minute of the day is an utter impossibility. They do the very best they know how, and often it is a matter of praying to God that should a person get into difficulty, they will be fortunate enough to be looking in the right direction at the right time.

The all too few lifeguards employed by the City of Nelson, deserve all the praise and encouragement that they can get for the wonderful, but thankless job which they are doing.

Miniskirts

To the Editor:—

Sir — An article which appeared in the July 15 News by Alma Burton in Salmo Partyline prompted me to write.

We must admit that we all — young or old — watch them go by, the ones wearing the miniskirts, I mean, and we all admire them. But have we ever noticed them when they are sitting down and trying to conceal what they reveal.

Frankly speaking I like them too, but please who ever is wearing them, don't try to pull the material over one's eye because it just isn't there — the material I mean.

Wear them and enjoy yourself for we all are enjoying it to see you wear them.

Progress

Sir—What is happening to progress in Nelson? Do we march forward or do we continue to regress? Soon the highway will bypass us, must new business continue to be rejected through the selfishness of a few residents? When are they going to face reality? To survive we must progress.

Nelson Avenue has garages, drive-in eating places, liquor store, food market — why not other necessary business establishments? Our city is fast becoming a well known and established educational centre despite narrow-minded attitudes and apathy of a few Nelsonites. More foresight is necessary to encourage and develop accommodation, business, and entertainment facilities. We have many fine people constantly coming to our community, let us make them welcome, encourage them to stay and utilize their ability in the community. Sport is the only entertainment field that gains sufficient support, what is happening to culture? Even the Chamber of Commerce must struggle to gain support from local business people.

Nelson and area has beauty unsurpassed, favorable weather and a friendly spirit. For over three years it has been our pleasure to be a part of this growing community, but the continued apathy becomes more and more appalling.

Let us look ahead and forget selfishness. Think big, act big.

Nakusp Goes "All Out" To Honor Herridges on Golden Wedding Day

NAKUSP — The entire town of Nakusp rallied to do honor to an eminent member of the community on the occasion of the Golden Wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Herridge.

Friday, July 14 was a red letter day in the Arrow Lakes community as the towns people honored the longtime member of Parliament for Kootenay West, not only as their representative at Ottawa, but as an ardent worker for and in their community.

The townspeople completely took over, organizing an evening to remember, for the golden wedding celebrants.

President Ray Web of the Canadian Legion took over with the boys and Mrs. Hilda Steenhoff, member of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Legion and convenor, with her bevy of workers put on a program.

At 6 o'clock cocktails were served and full dinner at seven. The cuisine, of the best, was served to approximately 300 guests.

During the dinner President Ray Web read congratulatory messages received from Governor-General Roland Michener and Mrs. Michener which read: "We send our warmest good wishes on the occasion of your Golden Wedding anniversary".

There was also a telegram from the Prime Minister, signed "Mike Pearson". He said, "I join your family and friends in extending my warm and very sincere greetings with kindest personal regards to you and yours. Prime Minister, Ottawa".

Joe Parent, chairman of the Village Council said, " I bring to you and yours our very best wishes on this occasion of your Golden Wedding Anniversary." Mr. Parent said, "Nakusp has been your home these many years and we, who have known you, do know that you have always had the welfare of this community at heart, for connection with urban renewal, sewers, the airport, Arda.

"Sir, your council to us has always been taken seriously by the members of this civic body of Nakusp." Mr. Parent stated, "You can be very pleased with the manner in which the lake front is progressing, and we feel that Mr. and Mrs. Herridge played no small part in achieving this.

"I congratulate you both on this your 50th wedding aniversary and may you live long to enjoy life and many more years of

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. ADVT.

DEAR HELOISE:

Swimming time is here so this is an idea for a child's individual beach bag with matching towel . . .

Use a bright-colored hand towel, fold it in half and sew the sides together.

Make punch holes around the open top with metal eyelets, four on each side. Stitch bias tape closed and insert it through the eyelets, forming a drawstring.

Knot the ends of the tape together so the drawstring won't come out.

Sew the child's initial on the front of the bag using bias tape of a contrasting color. Put a matching bath towel inside the beach bag and she is ready for a trip to the pool...

In response to the complaint about guests rubbing their hands over lovely velvet upholstery:

We visited Windsor Castle in England. In the queens apartments, there were lovely velvet and silk brocades lining the walls. Samples of the material were tacked beside the doorways for visitors to stroke . . . which WE ALL DID!

Following this idea, I suggest hemming small pieces of upholstery material and pinning them over the arms and backs. These can be stroked . . . and removed for dry cleaning.

They are unobtrusive and preserve the life of the original furniture coverings.

Often we reconstitute orange juice in our electric blender and store it in the refrigerator in the blender glass, giving it a quick blend before pouring another glass of juice.

Sometimes the blender glass will have rings of orange pulp that are difficult to remove.

Running the blender with detergent and water in it won't remove the rings. So I add an abrasive . . . cracked ice. Half a dozen cracked ice cubes added to the detergent solution is THE solution.

DEAR HELOISE:

With the camping and vacation traveling season about here, I would like to pass on an idea I have found very helpful in packing the car.

There are always certain items we know we may need enroute and don't want to pack in suitcases. However, extra sweaters, small pillows for napping, favorite toys, etc., if left loose, can clutter the car terribly and get underfoot.

I put all these items in a plastic blanket storage bag. The side zipper is easily worked and items inside are quickly spotted through the plastic. All those loose articles are accessible, as well as staying clean and I find no one objects to the simple job of putting items back into the bag.

With loose articles in the closed bag, both loading and unloading the car is simplified.

When doing my spring sewing, I saved all thread ends, bastings ravelings, seam trimmings, small scraps of material, bits of cotton wadding, etc., and put them in a clump of shrubbery for the birds to use in building their nests. Every bit was soon carried away by the busy little homemakers.

I also saved the cotton from pill bottles for this same purpose. The birds love anything warm, soft or fluffy.

Perfect way to enjoy a hot, summer afternoon is boating on West Arm of Kootenay Lake. Every day of sunny weather brings hundreds of boats onto the lake, for fishing, water-skiing, or just plain boating. Mike Kileen and Bill Best, with friends Nancy Le Page and Sharie Martin, have the right idea as they got together for an afternoon of boating, swimming and just plain fooling around.

Boating Quiz

Whether you own a 9-foot pram, a 40-foot yacht or anything in between, the proper use of boating terminology adds a little "salt" to your boating fun.

This quiz is prepared to test your knowledge of commonly used terms. Some you hear almost any time you're boating. The correct definitions are listed below:

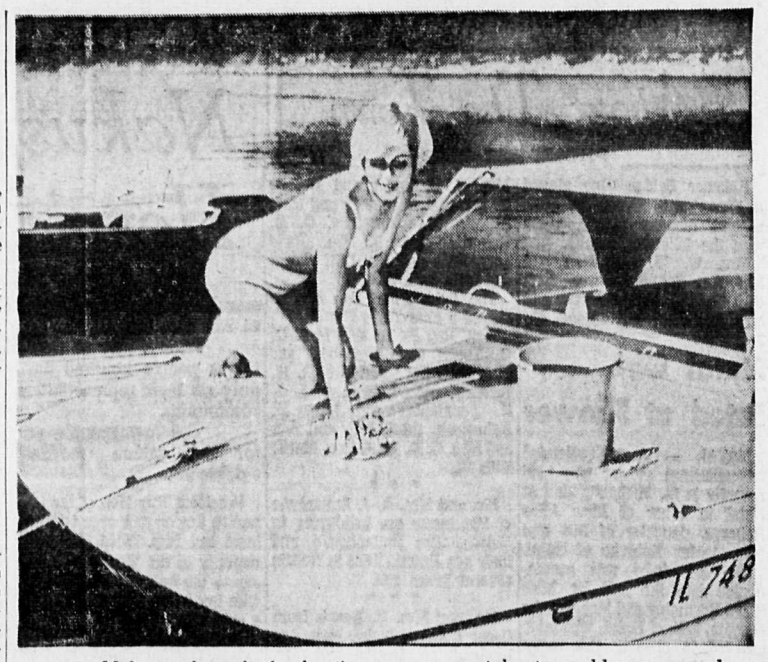
1—Freeboard
2—Limber Holes
3—Windward
4—Abaft
5—Draft
6—Trick
7—Beam

Now for the answers: 1—Freeboard: Vertical distance from the waterline to the top gunwale of your boat. Boats are often referred to as having low freeboard or high freeboard. 2—Limber Holes: This is a little tricky. Limber holes are holes in the floor to allow bilge water to drain into the lowest part of the hull. 3—Windward: The direction from which the wind is blowing. The windward, or weather, side of a boat is that toward the wind. 4—Abaft: Toward the stern or behind. 5—Draft: Depth of hull from water line to lowest point of keel. 6—Trick: A period of duty at the helm. 7—Beam: Greatest width of the boat. For example, a boat is said to have a 7-foot beam, when it measures seven feet at its widest point.

If you're seven for seven, you can consider yourself an expert. Just to keep you from becoming too over-confident, here are three bonus terms:

8—Coaming
9—Bollards
10—Bend

Now, check your answers: 8—Coaming: Sides of cockpit above deckline to keep water out; 9—Bollards: Short heavy posts on a pier to tie up boats; 10—Bend: You don't tie lines together or around things. You bend two pieces of line together or you bend a line to an anchor.



Mid-way through the boating season, most boats could use a good cleaning job. A swabbing job, combining with a good coat of wax gets the family runabout sparkling for the remainder of the summer.

Car Practices Help Keep Boat "Showroom Bright"

Many of the practices used to keep a car "showroom bright" can be applied with equal success to the upkeep of boats.

If a hull is made of wood or fiber glass, authorities recommend first cleaning the surface with a detergent and rinsing thoroughly. Next apply a good quality paste or liquid auto wax. For a stubborn stain or grease mark on a light-colored boat, use a good pre-wax cleaner prior to applying the wax. This cleaner will also do an excellent job of removing scum and oil stains from the lower unit of an outboard motor.

When waxing, remember to put a good, slick coat on the bottom of the hull. This not only helps in getting the best possible speeds from the boat, but also aids in retarding marine growth.

Inside the boat, always remove mud and other stains on plastic upholstery as soon as possible. If they are allowed to remain, they may "set" and be extremely difficult to remove. To clean the upholstery, use a soft bristle brush and one of the special cleaners that can be found in auto supply stores. Most of these cleans also contain ingredients which soften the fabic and keep it from cracking.

For plated fixtures, whether on the inside or the outside of the boat, use a chrome or metal cleaner and then follow with a coat of wax. If using a paste wax, it is often a good idea to allow some of it to remain in screwhead openings to help prevent water from seeping in.

If the boat is powered by an outboard motor, check it over for rust spots or places where the paint has been chipped or scratched. Touch up these spots with paint. Marine dealers have aerosol cans of paint that matches the original color of the engine.

Once boat and motor are sparkling bright they can be kept that way by hosing down with clean water after each day's use.

Boating Check-Up

The hardest part about skiing—and most boat-owners want to try the matchless sensation — is getting out of the water for the start. This may not be the fault of the skier. It might by the boat.

Many fair athletes are disappointed with their first attempts. They should make several checks of the boat's performance before they decide they are failing.

A boat speed under ski load, of less than 18 miles per hour, makes the trick very difficult. A boat that is moving up to 25 miles per hour is better. For teaching young children to ski, you can make do with a light boat, but don't forget junior puts on weight rapidly, and in a couple of years the boat may be inadequate.

As a general rule, it is safe to say that 20 horsepower is essential if adults are to be towed.

The next step is the instruction. At several B.C. areas, it is possible to get expert training, but around the Kootenay Lake area, it isn't so easy. But here the instructions of friends, combined with a lot of practice and determination will prove successful in most cases.

Before taking a youngster out on water skis, it's a good idea to show him the ropes. Demonstrate the correct way of falling so he, or she, won't get hurt. Show them the best way to get up and going and point out methods of staying up. They'll enjoy it more.

Moment of Carelessness; And Accident Happens

Many minor mishaps aboard your boat can be traced to a moment of carelessness. Most, if not all, can be easily avoided.

When boarding, step toward the center (amidship) to avoid rocking or tipping the boat. Never step on the side (gunwale). When boarding from a high pier, take the shortest distance between two points. Step onto the bow. Make sure the boat is securely tied or have someone steady it when boarding.

Don't carry equipment when boarding. Keep your hands free. Have someone hand you equipment once you're aboard. When alone, move the gear to the edge of the pier. Once aboard, you can reach up easily.

Stow all boating equipment neatly. Don't leave skis or tow lines lying around. The same goes for stowing your tool kit. Keep it neat and ready for access. If your boat doesn't have stowage lockers in the bow, under the stern seat or bridge deck, it would be a very good idea to build them. Be careful of loose mooring and anchor lines. After casting off, coil them neatly.

If you have a manual start outboard, take a few precautions when starting. Never stand up. Learn to start the motor from a sitting position. Many a boatman has lost his balance and been treated to a dunking.

Once underway do not distract the driver. He has a full time job at the wheel. If passengers want to switch seats, have the driver throttle down to a slow idle, then get up and move. Don't attempt to move around the boat when travelling at high speeds.

Despite these precautions, an accident may occur. If this happens, be prepared to handle the situation. Carry a first aid kit at all times.

Here the improper way to load a boat is demonstrated. Always step into the boat amidships, and don't try to carry equipment when boarding. Have someone hand the equipment from the pier. Or, if alone, move the gear to the edge of the pier and then reach for it when aboard.

Home-Town Hero Outshines Golf Stars

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Home-town hero Davey Hill whipped the Columbine course to its knees with a wedge and a putter Thursday and took a one-stroke lead over favored Jack Nicklaus in the opening round of the 49th PGA Golf Championship.

The 30-year-old pro had an eagle and three birdies on the five finishing holes for a course record six-under-par 66.

Nicklaus, the reigning U.S. Open champion just back from a second-place finish in the British Open, had a hotter streak with five birds and an eagle over a space of seven holes but he tired at the finish, shooting a 67.

"My legs felt like I was carrying lead weights," Nicklaus said after hitting a drive into some knotty rough on the side of a bunker at No. 17 when a par - par windup would have given him a tie for first place.

The 7,436-yard, par 72 Columbine layout—tight, flat, heavily bunkered but a harmless adversary in sunny weather with no wind—took a thorough licking from the nation's tournament and teaching pros.

Four players were tied at 69—47-year-old Julius Boros, almost knocking the pins down with his irons; lawyer-golfer Dan Sikes, with a strong 33 finish; relatively unknown Donald Bies of Seattle, Wash., and Davis Love, Jr., of Atlanta, who birdied the last hole of the day at the end of the field.

Arnold Palmer was erratic with his irons and wedge shots, shooting a disappointing 70.

Palmer was tied at 70 with Mike Souchak, the former tour regular who now is a club pro; Bob Goalby, Don Messengale, Tommy Aaron, and Dick Basset, a 26 - year - old newcomer from Philadelphia.

Knotted at 71 were Frank Beard, Australian Bruce Crampton, Phil Rodgers, Don January, Frank Boynton and Ron Reitz of Fayetteville, N.C.

Defending champion Al Geiberger took a two-over-par six on the 317-yard fourth and had to rally for a 73.

Another favorite who failed to have a picnic at the expense of the relatively easy Columbine course and Denver's thin air, was Bill Casper, the two-time U.S. Open champion.

Casper, complaining he had bent his clubs out of shape on an Asiatic tour, shot a 75. He may have to get cracking Friday when the field is cut to the low 70 and ties.

A large part of the gallery of 17,200—an opening day record—deserted the popular Palmer and Nicklaus groups to watch Hill, a Jackson, Mich., native who turned pro in 1958 and moved to this area three years ago.

After turning in 35, one over par, he got off like a rocket after holding an eight-iron from about 170 yards out for an eagle two on the 473-yard 14th hole.

He sank an 11-foot putt at the 15th, rolled one in from 20 feet at the 16th and then after a routine par at No. 17 knocked home a downhill 23-foot putt for a birdie at No. 18.

GETS HOT AT SIXTH

Nicklaus' hot streak started at the sixth where he sank a 15-footer.

"That got me going," the burly pro from Columbus, Ohio, said. He birdied the next hole from three feet. The eighth from 14 and the ninth from 15. He sank a 12-footer at the 11th and on the 550-yard 12th he reached the green with two big shots and knocked in a 28-footer.

Sikes sank two putts of 20 feet, one of 10 and another of eight. "I sank those I shouldn't have and missed those I should have got," he moaned.

Boros had six birdies and three bogeys, one of the latter on the last hole where he caught a fairway trap with his drive. All of his birdies came on putts of six feet and under, indicating his rifle accuracy on approach shots.

Man To Beat Was Beaten; Briton Takes Queen Mary

By DAVID MILLER

BISLEY, England (CP) — A Canadian who last week was considered the man to beat could manage only 10th place Thursday as a Briton won the Queen Mary competition, top servicemen's prize of the Bisley rifle meeting.

RAF Cpl. R. N. Van-Gelderen won the Queen Mary with 358 points out of a possible 400 in the two-stage competition calling for rapid and deliberate fire and snapshooting.

Sgt. Joseph Daigle, 37-year-old native of Lakeburn, N.B., who in 1965 became the first Canadian to win both the Queen Mary and the Service Rifle championships, collected 330 points for 10th place.

Top Canadian in the event was Pte. Carol Potvin, Sgt. Daigle's teammate from the 3rd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, stationed at Valcartier, Que. Pte. Carol, 26-year-old native of Chicoutimi, Que., finished seventh with 340.

A large black cloud and a team of Royal Marines spoiled the Van Doo team's bid Thursday for the Roberts snapshooting competition, final servicemen's event at this two-week competition for Commonwealth marksmen.

CLOUD COVERED SUN

"We're not making excuses," said Maj. John Baland, non-shooting commandant of the Van Doo team, "but just as we started shooting in the second heat, this cloud obscured the sun.

"Most of the men were put off and their first shots went over the top. They raised their sights in the darker light and had to re-adjust."

The eight-man Canadian team, all from the 3rd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment won the first heat of the 200-yard competition with 55 points.

The target was a small piece of checkered plywood that was raised at intervals from five to 20 seconds. Each man had 10 shots and every hit was counted as a point.

Trail Nips Vancouver

VICTORIA (CP) — Vancouver Fraserview nipped Vancouver Capilano 3-2 in an extra-inning struggle in the British Columbia Babe Ruth Baseball Tournament Friday.

The loss eliminated Capilano from the tournament.

Pinch-hitter Kerry Morris' single proved the difference in the eighth inning when he blooped a ball over second base to score Jack Hamilton who walked, moved to second on a balk and advanced to third on Rich Miller's infield single.

Winning pitcher Terry Tkach struck out six and walked only one batter. He gave up nine hits but was tough in the clutch.

Defending champion Trail received a scare but squeezed by Vancouver Inter-Community 4-3 in the other game in the double-knockout tourney.

Don Mainland, who drove in a Trail run earlier in the game, scored the winning marker in the sixth inning on an error.

Inter - Community missed several scoring chances by leaving 12 base runners stranded.

In today's action, Saanich meets Inter-Community while Trail tangles with Coquitlam.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Susan Brown and Gail Hitchens, both of Vancouver, meet today in the 36-hole final of the B.C. Women's Close golf championship.

Miss Brow n won two-up to eliminate defending champion Marylin Palmer of Kamloops in Friday's semi-final play. Miss Hitchens defeated Janet McWha also of Vancouver, 6 and 5 in the other semi-final match.

Magic in His Toes; Best Britain's Best

By JAMES CONWAY

LONDON (CP) — George Best, a 20-year-old Belfast-born forward with magic in his toes, has emerged as one of Britain's brightest soccer stars.

The unconventional youngster is the pride of First Division Manchester United, English League champions again this year, and a favorite with the fans, especially the girls.

Best scorns the usual image of professional soccer players, dressing with an eye on Carnaby Street and sporting a Beatle-style haircut. His lean good looks have sent tingles of excitement up and down the spines of many a girl who ordinarily cares nothing about football.

But there's more than glamor and color. Best happens to be an exceptionally good soccer player, good enough to be mentioned in the same breath as fellow - forwards Bobby Charlton and Denis Law.

Manchester United manager Matt Busby can hardly be criticized for his smugness in talking about his youthful star. He signed the shy Irish lad as a junior when he was an untried 15-year-old. Two years of apprenticeship convinced Busby he had a prodigious footballer on his roster.

Some experts were skeptical when Busby spoke enthusiastically about his fledgling. But performance has confounded the doubters.

REGULAR AT 17

Best, then only 17, was playing regularly with the club's top stars before the end of his first season.

Although he's owned by an English team he cannot play for England in international competition. He has been an automatic choice for Northern Ireland's national team since his first game against Wales in 1964.

Greenan Attends Ball Camp

In attendance at the Okanagan Major League Baseball Camp's first session is Dougal Greenan of New Denver. This talented young centerfielder is eighteen years old and is in his fourth year of attendance at the camp. Two of the camp's instructors are high on Greenan who is extremely fast and hits from the left side of the plate. The instructors are Don Lundberg, a scout for the Philadelphia Phillies and Dale Parker, a former university coach.

He is tentatively slated to start in center field against one of the Canadian Mainliner baseball clubs, the Penticton Red Sox on Friday night. The game is slated for 7:30 p.m. in Kings Park at Penticton, B.C.

Traffic Jam Of Women

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—It's a traffic jam for the lead after the first round of the $18,000 women's open golf championship Thursday with five players bracketed at 70, two-under-par for the 6,456-yard Sunningdale layout.

Sharing first place are Susie Maxwell, of Oklahoma City, Mickey Wright, of Dallas, Tex., Sandra Haynie, of Fort Worth, Tex., Murle Lindstrom, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Carol Mann, of Baltimore, Md.

Twenty - seven players are within three strokes of the lead as par took a beating on the first nine. Scores were higher on the tougher back nine which some players felt was two shots harder.

Gail Harvey Moore, of Vancouver, led the amateurs with a 74. Marlene Streit, of Willowdale, Ont., low amateur in the tournament last year, was next at 75.

Belkin Upsets Cliff Richey

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Foot-sore Canadian Mike Belkin broke through te blistering service of defending champion Cliff Richey and advanced to the semi-finals of the national clay court tennis tournament Thursday with a 7-9, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1 victory.

Now living in Miami, Belkin, a native of Montreal, is a former Canadian Davis Cup team member.

Slowed by foot blisters, Belkin broke second - seeded Richey's service six times during the match which began swinging Belkin's way midway through the second set.

Ricjey walked out on the tournament after the defeat.

His exit, as unexpected as his defeat, left top-seeded Arthur Ashe, the nation's ranking amateur, without a doubles partner.

"I've never reached this stage before," Richey told a newspaper man. "I can't even talk. You'll have to excuse me."

Pan-Am Torch Arrives

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP)—The burning torch to signal opening of the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg Sunday reached here Thursday night in the hands of a perspiring 10-man relay team.

The Manitoba Indian runners arrived hale and hearty, without foot blisters but overheated. Temperatures in eastern North Dakota rose into the 90s for the second straight day. Each runner carried the torch about one mile.

The 10 expected to leave Grand Forks at 8 a.m. CDT today, stopping in Drayton, N.D., before crossing the border into Emerson, Man., by night.

The torch was lighted on the Minnesota capitol steps in St. Paul Monday morning by Governor Harold Levander.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Julian Javier, Orlando Cepeda and Bob Tolan drove in six runs with homers for the Cards. Pat Jarvis hurled a four-hitter for the Braves and ended the Cubs' five-game winning streak.

Willie McCovey crashed a two-run homer and pitcher Gaylord Perry ended a personal six-game losing streak in leading San Francisco to a 6-1 victory over Pittsburgh.

The Boston at Baltimore game, the only other one scheduled, was postponed because of rain with the Red Sox leading 2-0 in the bottom of the third.

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Sharp losses in prominent glamor stocks and selective gains in blue chips made for a confused stock market Thursday.

Averages rose but losses outnumbered gains in the over-all list.

Profit-taking in a broad spectrum of stocks coincided with typical, pre-weekend evening-up transactions — balancing gains against losses—which has been a hallmark of Thursdays.

Volume was 11,160,000 shares compared with 12,880,000 Wednesday.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.37 to 908.69, putting it within easy reach of this year's closing high of 909.63 reacqed May 8.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 1.1 to 339.1, another high for the year, with industrials up 2.0 and rails up .5, both to highs for the year, and utilities up .3.

Ten of the 15 most active stocks rose and five fell.

McDonnell Douglas, the most active stock, was up ⅛ at 51 on 232,800 shares.

Polaroid, fourth most active, plunged 18 to 205. The company reported higher earnings, but its growth was declining, disappointing those who expected the company to show the usual signs of a growth stock.

Also among the heavily traded issues, Xerox dropped 6 t o267 after a 14-point collapse Wednesday on news similar to Polaroid's.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 9 cents to $52.14.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index rose .20 to 93.85.

Among Canadian stocks, Dome rose ⅜, Alcan ⅛, Inco lost ¾, Granby Mining and CPR ⅜, Hudson Bay Mining and Walker Gooderham ¼.

Among Canadian stocks, Preston rose ¼. Scurry-Rainbow declined ¾, Brazilian Light, Canadian Marconi and Fargo Oil ⅛.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Mine Development To Boost Okanagan

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines predicts that development of low grade molybdenum and copper properties in the Okanagan Valley will pour $18,000,000 into the area in two years and lead eventually to a population increase of 3,000.

The chamber was commenting on a plan by Brenda Mines for extensive open pit operations near Peachland. The company plans to start work as soon as financing arrangements are completed with Noranda Mines Ltd. and Japanese interests.

The chamber says in a brief submitted this week to Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp that the proposed Brenda operation "is indicative of a trend away from small, high-grade underground mines to the large, low-grade open pit properties."

"Low grade, big stripping projects represent the prime exploration opportunities in B.C. today," the brief said. "These targets have very high development costs and financing has become a critical problem for their development," the brief said.

Financing the $40,000,000 Peachland project has become a serious problem since the Carter commission tax report recommended abolition of the three-year tax holiday incentive for mining companies.

The federal government recently announced that the report, as it effects the mining industry, will not be acted upon until Jan. 1, 1971, and it is by no means certain that the government will follow its recommendations at that time.

Officials of the industry in B.C. are confident that the Peachland mine will come into production despite the Carter report.

The mines chamber estimates that 350 men will be employed in construction of facilities near Peachland and another 400 in related work such as roads, engineering and hydro lines.

The company, says the chamber, will spend $18,000,000 on construction in two years.

When the mine enters production it will require 258 men, have an annual payroll of $1,900,000, and spend an additional $5,635,000 annually on maintenance, supplies and parts.

Tax revenues during actual construction, says the chamber, would amount to $5,000,000, about $4,000,000 to Ottawa and the balance to Victoria.

The chamber made its observations in opposing the Carter report recommendations pertaining to the mining industry.

Quiet, Steady Success Story Behind Stanfield

HALIFAX (CP) — Politicians promoting Premier Robert L. Stanfield for national Progressive Conservative leader see him as the man most likely to do for the federal party what he has done for the Tories in Nova Scotia.

His story here has been one of quiet, steady and ever-growing success.

In the 19 years since he became Nova Scotia party chief in 1948, he has grown in the image of a sober, solid, statesman-type leader — a sort of "Honest Abe Lincoln" of the east, sometimes a little dull and old - fashioned, but the picture of a dependable father who would never let his Nova Scotia family down.

This approach has extended to a little fatherly advice to the citizens from time to time, even during election campaigns. In a free - spending era he has continually preached thrift and a look - before-you-leap philosophy in public affairs.

His followers hold 40 of 46 seats in the N.S. legislature, leaving the Liberals, under Gerald Regan, with six.

Many Nova Scotians received with disbelief the persistent reports that their esteemed premier was considering entry in the federal leadership race. Mr. Stanfield has continually denied he would leave provincial politics.

Nova Scotians remember another revered premier, Angus L. Macdonald, a Liberal, who built a similar reputation in politics between 1933 and 1954.

Macdonald left the province for the federal field during the Second World War. After five years as naval minister, he returned to head the Nova Scotia government again, giving the impression he was glad to get home from the hectic round at Ottawa. Mr. Macdonald, too, had been mentioned for the federal leadership of his party.

Bob Stanfield is a man of angular frame, with high furrowed brown, deep-set eyes and jutting nose and chin. He was born in Truro, N.S., 53 years ago of British stock. He comes from a well-off, dyed-in - the-wool Conservative family. His father, Frank Stanfield, was for many years a legislature member and died as Nova Scotia's lieutnant-governor.

His uncle John died a Tory senator and his brother Frank, head of the Stanfield's Ltd., the family underwear firm, served two terms as a Conservative in the House of Commons before he died two weeks ago.

Young Bob entered Ashbury College in Ottawa at 15. Seven years later he got his BA from Dalhousie University here with the Governor - General's medal for highest academic standing.

He graduated from Harvard Law School in 1939, was admitted to the Nova Scotia bar, and became assistant secretary of the Acadia Trust Co., which his father helped found.

At the age of 33 he was elected president of the Nova Scotia Progressive Conservative Association at a time when the legislature was dominated by the Liberals under Premier Macdonald. The Tories did not have a seat in the house.

In 1948, as party leader, he moved into the house as head of an eight - member Conservative opposition. Since then his political fortunes have grown steadily.

Macdonald died in 1954 and two years later, with 24 members, Mr. Stanfield formed the first Conservative government in Nova Scotia in 23 years. His government increased its majority in 1960 and 1963 elections.

The thing he gets most credit for as premier is his government's successful promotion of secondary industry through Industrial Estates Ltd., a provincial corporation that builds factories and leases them to industrialists. The result has been a growing feeling of confidence by Nova Scotians in the future of their province.

He is twice-married. His first wife died in a 1954 car accident. He has four children, is an Anglican, lives in an old house with attractive grounds in Halifax's south end, likes gardening and spends as much time as possible with his family.

CONFUSE RESEARCHERS

TORONTO (CP)—The results of medical experiments are often misinterpreted because researchers do not know enough about laboratory animals, says Dr. L. R. Christensen, 52, newly-appointed supervisor of laboratory animals at the University of Toronto. He said Wednesday diseases natural to mice and rats can cloud and confuse research and lead to faulty or distorted conclusions.

KARSH PRAISES EXPO

MONTREAL (CP) — Portrait photographer Yousuf Karsh, of Ottawa, told a photography symposium in Expo's Du Pont Auditorium Wednesday that "when you go through the highly imaginative display here you wonder if you can be satisfied any longer with still photography." He said the portrait photographer must work harder to achieve a "synthesis of the many moods and expressions of the person".

Styles Go Military In Rome Fashion Show

ROME (AP) — Fabiani snapped everyone to attention Monday night with a military motif that was impeccably brisk.

Neo-Napoleonic collars, stiff and high, ruler-straight shoulders and epaulettes were the order he issued for next fall and winter at his Rome fashion show.

Guardsmen scarlet and imperial blue were his regimental colors.

De Barentzen brought black back in a big way.

It was black with a young beauty, demure, cute and completely captivating. There was nothing femme fatale about it.

Crisp, white organdie blouse with big, frilly bows spilling out over the collars aided the jeune fille mood. Frilly jabots and waitress cuffs were fresh as new paint.

Suits and coats were strictly tailored. He lightened the severity but put belt slots round the hips on skirts and threaded necklace - like belts through them.

A TOUCH OF SCOTLAND

Speckly tweeds and glen plaids in fall colors of green and brown were used for pleat-skirt suits. Tam-o' Shanter caps gave a Scottish air.

There was classic grey flannel for a suit with a long, king jacket and inverted pleat skirt. A big-bowed white frilly blouse accompanied it.

dresses bound in black satin round armholds and hems. Black satin ribbon belts were tied at high waist level.

A black velvet cardigan suit had a cascading frill of crisp white organide edging the jacket.

Black velvet capes were lined in white satin over strict, long sleeved dresses half in velvet, half in satin.

Addicts Treated in First Hospital Placed Under Act

OTTAWA (CP) — A Toronto hospital for the treatment of alcoholism and drug addiction has become the first of its kind to be included under the federal Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act.

The Act provides for the sharing of costs by Ottawa of provincially - operated hospital insurance programs.

Inclusion of The Donwood Foundation of Toronto, where alcoholics and drug addicts are treated, means that patients will benefit from the government hospital insurance plan. It also opens the way to other such hospitals.

An announcement Thursday from the federal health and welfare department said Donwood is the first hospital providing such treatment to be brought under the act.

Hospitals must be recommended for inclusion by the province involved.

NEW APPROACH

Health Minister MacEachen said the Donwood Foundation approval "highlights the new approaches to treatment in this field and points out that the hospital insurance program is a dynamic and flexible one.

"The treatment provided by this institution is based upon the total needs of the patient, physical, mental and social."

Mr. MacEachen noted that addicts and alcoholics have been treated in general hospitals—covered by hospital insurance—since the insurance plan began.

Inclusion of Donwood meant that treatment of addicts has reached the point where "carefully selected specialized hospitals can qualify for inclusion."

U.S. Deaths In Vietnam Over 12,000

SAIGON (AP) — American combat deaths have edged past the 12,000 mark during a period of relatively light ground operations in South Vietnam. The total reached 11,991 last Saturday and has risen since, presumably by 100 or so.

The U.S. command here disclosed Thursday that 175 Americans were killed, 1,443 wounded and 38 missing in action last week.

That boosted an unofficial roll of the dead in the enlarged operations so far this year to 5,327, against 5,008 killed throughout all 1966.

The ground war was at a near standstill on the 13th anniversary of the signing of the Geneva accord July 20, 1954, that separated North and South Vitenam, but scattered action persisted.

Bloodshed Still Ahead

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Intensified Arabian diplomatic activity, accompanied by a continuing heavy flow of Soviet arms to Egypt, suggests it is only a matter of time before a fresh chapter is written in Middle East bloodshed, despite the presence of the United Nations observers along the Suez Canal.

The observers can watch and raise an alarm if either side launches new attacks, but they cannot do much more than that. And their movements are so circumscribed that they may not see all that is going on.

The one hope of peace, through a settlement at the conference table, seems to be as remote as ever. President Nasser of Egypt, still the key man despite his shattered image, shows no sign of trying to get along with the Israelis.

Instead he is concentrating on restoring his Arab leadership, whipping up new excitement about seeking revenge to eliminate the bitterness of defeat and leaning more heavily than ever on Soviet support.

It takes time and training to rebuild a shattered military machine and until Nasser is fully poised for a new gamble on the field, he likely will play along with the idea of ceasefire observers and other means of preventing further Israeli action.

DANGEROUS ELEMENT

The presence of the Soviet naval squadron in Egyptian ports also provides a form of screen or inhibiting factor to make the Israelis think twice about instituting fresh operations. The squadron also constitutes a dangerous new element in the tense situation for even an accidental Israeli rocket attack against these ships could provide excuse for direct Soviet retaliation.

Indeed, it may be to Nasser's advantage to have the Soviet ships close at hand in the hope that just such an accident or other incident could trigger full Soviet involvement. Whether the United States would stand by and ignore collusion would be another matter.

Crime Rise Hits Brinks' Cash Service

MONTREAL (CP) — A "tremendous upsurge in criminal activity" in the Montreal area has forced Brinks Express Co. Ltd. to cancel several contracts to cash company payrolls, a Brinks spokesman said Wednesday.

Arnold Coley, manager of Brinks' Montreal division, said in an interview seven armed robberies of payrolls in the last 12 months netted thieves about $800,000. There were no successful payroll robberies involving Brinks men in the previous 12 months.

The crime increase forced the company to discontinue its practice of dispatching money-laden armored cars to cash employees cheques "in hazardous locations" in the Montreal area.

"We are sitting ducks in some places," Mr. Coley said. "When we make pick-ups and deliveries to banks we can disperse our men on the streets and against walls and use guns to protect ourselves.

"But when we have to move into certain public places, like hospitals, and perhaps set up cheque cashing operations in a cafeteria where anybody can walk in, anything can happen."

In addition to discontinuing some of its cheque-cashing operations, Brinks has equipped its men with 12-gauge riot guns, increased the number of security guards and initiated a system of scout car operations to make sure the way is clear for money-laden trucks.

"Montreal is a hazardous city to operate in and drastic measures are necessary," Mr. Coley said. "We can't allow ourselves to be placed in a situation where bandits can walk in on our men in a public place, blasting away on their machine guns."

TAKES TREASURY POST

OTTAWA (CP)—Roger Martin, 37, director of labor relations for Quebec Hydro since 1962, has been appointed director of the treasury board's staff relations division, the board announced today. He will occupy a key position in the newly-introduced system of collective bargaining in the public service.

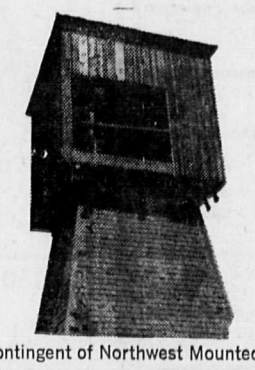
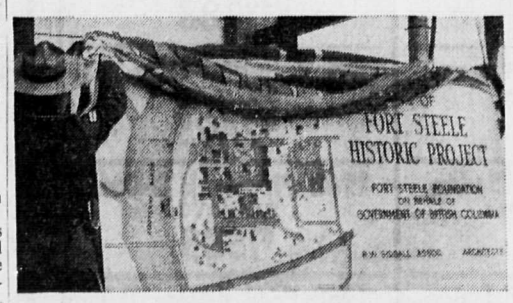
RESTORING HISTORY IN THE KOOTENAYS





Today, history is being restored with the reconstruction of Fort Steele, about 8 miles from Cranbrook. Another first class tourist attraction, it is expected to be completed in 1967.

In 1887, a contingent of Northwest Mounted Police commanded by Major Samuel Steele arrived at Galbraith's Ferry, to establish order in the rich gold-mining area in the heart of the East Kootenays. Above, the old water tower at Fort Steele, first post of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in British Columbia.

"B.C.'s MOUNTAIN BREWERY"

Another way to capture the real flavour of the Kootenays is to enjoy the fine products of Interior Breweries.
