Police Chase Down Gold Theft Leads

WINNIPEG (CP) — Their clues so far limited to a "latent" fingerprint and two signatures, police continued Thursday to follow every possible lead in a search for bandits who hijacked an estimated $450,000 worth of gold bars from Winnipeg International Airport Tuesday night.

"The St. James police, assisted by the RCMP and Winnipeg police, are continuing with inquiries locally and following up every possible lead," said Police Chief George Maltby of the Greater Winnipeg city of St. James.

He added:

"At the national and international level, the RCMP are the competent authority and are doing their job."

But Chief Maltby, who Wednesday night revealed that a fingerprint had been found in the abandoned escape vehicle, had no new information.

He said the print, "if it's worth it," will be sent to Ottawa for identification. So will the signatures. The hijackers signed the name "Fred Davis" to documents they used to take delivery of the gold from unsuspecting TransAir employees.

The gold was going from Red Lake in Northwestern Ontario to the Royal Canadian Mint. Brought as far as Winnipeg by TransAir, it was to have been transhipped to Ottawa via Air Canada.

House Progresses On Estimates

OTTAWA (CP)—Sitting overtime for the third day in a row, the Commons Thursday polished off 1965-66 spending estimates for the mines and northern affairs departments.

The Commons then moved to labor department spending estimates as the government staged a concerted drive to have all estimates cleaned up by today.

MPs earlier agreed to sit until midnight in an effort to get the estimates passed in a race against the calendar.

The government has committed itself to return to debate on justice department spending as the first order of business today. The New Democrats were expected to move a motion suggesting Justice Minister Cardin's salary be cut to $1 because of government handling of the George Victor Spencer spy incident.

200 Flee Blaze

MONTREAL (CP)—About 200 people were left homeless Thursday after fire swept through a tenement block in the St. Henri district, following a series of explosions in an adjoining chemical factory.

No one was seriously injured in the five-alarm blaze or by the explosions. The cause of the explosions was not immediately known.

The fire, which destroyed the tenement block, began after a series of jolting explosions in the factory culminated in one huge blast that sent a ball of flame rolling skywards, at the same time enveloping the three-storey block.

The blasts woke sleepers for miles around, sending hundreds of pyjama-clad people into the streets. Dozens suffered minor cuts and bruises.

ZSA ZSA SHEDS FOURTH

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP)—Hungarian-born actress Zsa Zsa Gabor was divorced from her fourth husband Thursday in a short ceremony.

U. S. AIRLIFT TO VIET NAM "MODERNIZED"—Even before it has completed a unique Air Force shakedown, a new aircraft developed to modernize the U. S. airlift to Viet Nam is put into service. The Lockheed C-141 StarLifter is unloaded at Saigon, South Viet Nam, after a flight from Travis Air Force Base, Calif., with Army supplies. The 318,000-pound, long-range fanjet carrier is capable of moving 30 to 35 tons of supplies over the Pacific from California in about 20 hours.

$40 Million Weapon Program To Equip Canadian Brigades

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Army's two heavy brigades —in Europe and at Camp Gagetown, N.B.—will be equipped with self - propelled 155 - millimetre howitzers at a cost of approximately $40,000,000, officials disclosed Thursday.

They emphasized that though the howitzer can carry a nuclear warhead it will be armed only with conventional explosive.

Delivery of the 50 howitzers—25 for each brigade—in 1968 will fill the last major deficiency of these units.

The other major deficiency had already been plugged by purchase of some 1,000 M-113 armored troop carriers.

The self-propelled howitzers, which travel on their own tracks instead of being towed, will add to the mobility of the brigade in Europe. They can move at 20 miles an hour cross-country and can swim rivers.

PROVIDE SUPPORT

They will enable the artillery regiments of the two brigades to provide close support for tanks and the infantry's armored carriers.

Officials said the howitzer is the first new major close-support weapon obtained by the army since the Second World War. The gun will be acquired from the United States. The $40,000,000 cost includes spare parts and ammunition.

Officials said the present 50-ton Centurion tank will last until 1970. By that time, the defence department would have decided whether to convert the two heavy brigades into light brigades — that is, give them equipment light enough to be lifted by air.

Defence Minister Hellyer announced last week that both light brigades at Camp Petawawa, Ont., and Camp Wainwright, Alta., will be made air-transportable. Previously, this plan had applied only to the brigade at Petawawa.

The defence department now is taking a look at light tanks which can be carried by transport planes.

There are two heavy brigades so that the one in Canada can rotate with the one in Europe.

New heavy weapons for the 6,000-man brigade in Europe seemed to be a clear indication that Canada has no intention of withdrawing it for at least five years.

The brigade is stationed in the Soest area near the valley of the Ruhr. It is capable of deploying right up to the border of East Germany.

Yarmouth Castle Skipper "Negligent"

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. Coast Guard board concluded Thursday that the skipper of the Yarmouth Castle was negligent and failed to cope with the fiery debacle which sank the cruise ship in the Caribbean with a loss of 90 lives, including those of two Canadians.

The 38 - year - old Yarmouth Castle, flying the flag of Panama, caught fire and sank Nov. 13, 1965, while on a weekend cruise from Miami to Nassau, the Bahamas. Nearby ships saved 370 lives.

After the fire was discovered and was spreading the captain, Byron Voutsinas, 33, left the ship in a lifeboat. He explained he wanted to go to a nearby ship to ask that an SOS be sent because his own radio room was in the centre of the flames. He testified he later came back to the vessel and helped evacuate passengers, and this was corroborated by the chief engineer.

One of the board's conclusions:

"That the decision of the master to leave his ship allegedly to go to the rescue vessel to assure the sending of the distress signal demonstrates negligence, abandonment of command responsibility, and an over - all failure to approach and cope with the difficulties attending the accomplishment of a task of this order of magnitude."

In its report, the coast guard attributed late detection of the blaze to failure of a security patrol to follow the proper inspection route.

Coal Costs Could Be Cut – Kindt

OTTAWA (CP)—Lawrence E. Kindt (PC—Macleod) suggested Thursday the Canadian Pacific Railway get into the passenger business to cut costs of shipping Japan-bound coal to Port Moody, B.C.

Mr. Kindt told the Commons the CPR could cut $1.50 a ton off the cost of moving coal from Coleman, Alta., to Port Moody by putting a commuter train on the line.

Would Limit Bank Shares Ownership

OTTAWA (CP) — Amendments limiting individual and foreign ownership of shares in the proposed Bank of Western Canada were submitted Thursday by the bank's principal backers to the Commons finance committee.

Once the bank was established, an individual shareholder would be limited to a 10-per-cent interest in it. Similarly, foreign ownership of shares would be limited to 10 per cent.

The amendments were drafted by the backers to meet criticism levelled by Conservative and New Democratic MPs on the committee studying the bill to incorporate the proposed bank. The committee meets Tuesday to consider the amendments.

About half of the $13,000,000 raised as capital for the bank has come from three financial houses. Sinclair M. Stevens of Toronto, who will become a bank director, is a member of all three concerns.

GIVE UP CONTROL

Mr. Stevens told the committee earlier it is essential in launching a new bank to have one group control its initial steps. He said it was planned that he and his group would divest themselves of control once the bank is firmly established.

Several MPs expressed some skepticism of his remarks.

Under the amendment, the main backers would begin reducing their holdings after the bank is on its feet. The divesting would be done under the direction of the cabinet's treasury board.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia) said more Canadians should share in the huge profits that would come once Parliament approved the new chartered bank. Why had the three financial concerns taken up half the stock?

Mr. Stevens said it was thought the stock would be more attractive to the general public if it were known that its backers had a financial stake in the bank's success.

Mr. Horner said the public stock had sold quickly and he questioned whether the backers shouldn't have confined themselves to a smaller share of the capital.

Black Refuses To Commit Gov't on Medical Scheme

VICTORIA (CP) — Provincial Secretary Black, despite repeated requests, refused Thursday to tell the B.C. Legislature whether the province favors a national medical scheme as proposed by Ottawa.

His refusal came during discussion of a bill that provides greater subsidies to subscribers of the B.C. Medical Plan, operated by the provincial government.

Alex MacDonald (NDP—Vancouver East) sparked Mr. Black's statement when he challenged the minister to "rise and tell the House" whether the plan proposed by the federal government was acceptable.

Mr. MacDonald accused the provincial government of "twisting the federal government's arm" and of "trying to break the federal plan."

Retorted Mr. Black:

"We are discussing the principle of this bill and I am not going to answer this question."

The bill, which subsequently passed third and final reading along with 23 others, will increase the government's share of premiums for persons with non-taxable income from 50 to 90 per cent and for those with a taxable income up to $1000 from 25 to 50 per cent.

When other Opposition MLAs attacked the question in other ways Mr. Black conceded that a federal-provincial conference will be held to further go into the question — but he would not give the date.

In discussion preceding the final reading of a bill increasing the provincial grant to homeowners, Premier Bennett said "there will be a broader approach to the question at the next sitting of the Legislature."

He hinted at what that approach might be last Monday when he mentioned a "rent-purchase plan" for persons unable to raise a down payment to buy their own homes.

He believed through such a scheme more persons now renting accommodation would qualify for the homeowner grant.

The bill increased the grant by $10 for a total of $110 annually.

Mr. Bennett said study will be given "next session" to further sales tax exemptions and that is why a bill that passed third reading Thursday was left partly open.

The bill removes sales tax from meals, school books, newspapers and clothing for youngsters 15 years of age or less.

Goldberg Starts Talks With British

LONDON (AP)—Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, began a round of talks Thursday with British leaders on world peacekeeping problems, including the future of American-British aid to India and Pakistan.

Goldberg, here on a four-day visit, met at the foreign office with George Thomson, minister of state for foreign affairs.

Their discussion centred mainly on UN problems in the Middle East.

Nkrumah Claims Guinea

Says Candace Mastermind

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—State Attorney Richard Gerstein said Thursday Candace Mossler masterminded the killing of her wealthy husband, Jacques, and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers, committed the brutal, unwarranted murder.

But, in his closing argument, the prosecutor did not demand the death penalty for the co-defendants.

Gerstein told the 12 male jurors, he would have no quarrel with a recommendation of mercy if they thought it was justified.

Under Florida law, conviction of first-degree murder means death in the electric chair unless the jury gives the defendant to the mercy of the court.

Pointing to the blonde Mrs. Mossler, Gerstein said Powers 'was driven to murder by insatiable desire for this women, who was the mastermind and the manipulator behind the entire scheme."

Then lawyer Percy Foreman began his argument—the last word for Powers, his client, and for Mrs. Mossler.

Foreman made a clause by clause rebuttal of Gerstein's argument and began step-by-step review of the testimony in the case.

"The motives of this murder were as old as the history of human beings — greed, avarice, lust, money," said Gerstein.

"Jacques Mossler was in the way. You couldn't be sure control of all this money would go to Candace Mossler and Melvin Lane Powers until you completely eliminated Jacques Mossler from the face of the earth.

From the outset, the state attorney said, the defence "put on trial the character of Jacques Mossler, the police department of this community, and the state attorney's office.

"They made the single worst accusation you can make against any man—that he was a homosexual—a charge that is the hardest to defend against, especially for a dead man."

There was "not one single shred of evidence" to support this blackening of a dead man's reputation, Gerstein said.

Candace Mossler, wearing brace on her neck, injured in a fall two weeks ago, sits on steps at county courthouse in Miami.

"Speaks as Universal Man"

By DENNIS NEELD

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Kwame Nkrumah, ousted by Ghana's army, has become president of both Guinea and Ghana, Guinea's roving ambassador, Abdullaye Diallo, claimed Thursday. The envoy asserted this was the wish of the people of Guinea.

Diallo said President Sekou Toure of Guinea stepped aside to let the ousted president of Ghana take over the dual presidency. Toure welcomed Nkrumah to Guinea Wednesday on his arrival from Moscow and promised to help him return to power in Ghana.

There was no confirmation of Diallo's statement from Conakry, Guinea's capital.

(But from Abidjan, Ivory Coast, Reuters news agency quoted Guinea Radio as reporting Toure said at a rally Wednesday night Nkrumah now can be considered Guinea's "head of the Guinean Democratic party."

(Toure was further quoted: "If there were a conference of African heads of state tomorrow comrade Nkrumah would speak in the name of Guinea, because Nkrumah is not a simple African but a universal man.")

In any case, Nkrumah's authority in Ghana is gone. The Ghanaian Army says he will be arrested and tried if he returns.

DOUBT ABOUT INSTRUCTION

In London, some British expressed doubt Diallo was speaking with full instructions from Conakry. They noted Toure, in welcoming Nkrumah, said the two are equal now and Nkrumah may be taking the statement literally.

Doubt also was expressed in Washington. Ghana's diplomats there variously termed the report a "funny thing" and a "bluff." One Ghanaian diplomat said the report could not be taken seriously.

A dual presidency could mean Toure and Nkrumah are trying to put into force a union agreed on in 1959 after both assumed power in their countries. The union never got off the ground.

The two countries on Africa's West Coast are separated by the country called the Ivory Coast.

Diallo said Toure stepped down Wednesday and Nkrumah assumed the dual presidency immediately.

Diallo was here for a meeting of the foreign ministers of the Organization of African Unity.

THREATENS TO QUIT

He said Guinea would take no part in the conference if the Ghana military regime's delegation was allowed to continue to represent Ghana.

Earlier Diallo walked out of the conference in protest to the seating of the military regime's delegation. With him went the delegations of Tanzania and Mali.

While Guinea indicated its walkout may be final, President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania denied his delegation was quitting the conference. He issued a statement in Dar es Salaam saying:

"While members of the Tanzanian delegation may have temporarily left the conference hall today, Tanzania has no intention of withdrawing from the conference."

The United Arab Republic became the fourth country to walk out of the cinference in the afternoon. Foreign Minister Mahmud Riad said his walkout was prompted by a combination of the presence of the delegation from Ghana and the deteriorating atmosphere in relation to white-ruled Rhodesia, which declared its independence from Britain Nov. 11.

Spencer's Lawyer Wrote, Pearson Informs House

OTTAWA (CP)—First indication that alleged spy George Victor Spencer does not intend to take his dismissal from the post office lying down was revealed in the Commons Thursday.

Prime Minister Pearson told David Lewis (NDP—York South) his office had received a letter from a Vancouver lawyer asking for a copy of the order-in-council firing Spencer from his civil service job following still-unheard charges he had sold secrets to the Russians.

Mr. Lewis asked the prime minister whether he had received a second letter from the lawyer, about last Jan. 15, demanding an explanation for the Spencer dismissal.

Mr. Pearson said he was unaware of a second letter but he would check with his colleagues and report back to the House.

The Spencer case has been the subject of almost daily questions and it was brought up again Thursday when Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked the prime minister whether he intended to make public two letters "from his pen pal, Victor Spencer."

Existence of the two letters was revealed in the Commons Wednesday by the prime minister, who at that time did not answer Mr. Diefenbaker when he asked whether they would be made public.

Thursday, Mr. Pearson said the first letter which was written "many, many months ago" could not be made public "on grounds of national security." The second was addressed "to whom it may concern" and Mr. Spencer's permission would be required before it could be released.

This letter, said the prime minister, had been sent to doctors, nurses and others who had treated him when he was in hospital.

Following disclosure of the spy case last May, the government announced that a civil servant had accepted thousands of dollars" for information he had given officials of the Soviet embassy in Ottawa.

A second person had been approached by the Russians but had co-operated with the RCMP.

The civil servant was described as "too ill" at that time to bring before the courts. Since that time the government has refused all demands in and out of the Commons that Spencer be given a formal hearing.

He has been dismissed from his postal job and is being kept under police surveillance.

Tornadoes Kill 42, Rip Shopping Centre

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The state highway patrol Thursday night said 42 persons were killed by tornadoes which ripped across the central Mississippi area at dusk.

About half of the dead were in the immediate Jackson area, a patrol spokesman said. The others were scattered along the tornado trail through counties to the east.

A twister virtually levelled the Candlestick Park Shopping Centre in suburban Jackson. At least five deaths were reported in neighboring Rankin County.

Another twister which roared through the Forkville, Ludlow and Lillian communities in Scott County, east of Rankin County, claimed five known dead, the patrol said.

Hospitals throughout the stricken areas quickly filled with injured.

Lieutenant Governor Carroll Gartin ordered the Mississippi National Guard on standby alert for aid to the stricken areas.

Convicts worked side-by-side with teenagers in a search for survivors and bodies at the Candlestick centre.

One tornado demolished a power substation in southwest Jackson, throwing much of the capital city, including the central business section, into darkness.

In the industrial area of Rankin County, tornadoes wrecked the Knox Glass Works, Continental Can plant and Jackson Tile Co. plant.

Bill Would Ease Birth Control, Abortion Laws

OTTAWA (CP)—There are at least 100,000 illegal abortions in Canada every year, and countless numbers of women are forced to bear children against their will due to the country's birth control laws, the Commons health and welfare committee was told Thursday.

Ian Wahn (L — St. Paul's) made the statement in outlining the provisions of his bill to the committee.

The bill would legalize the dissemination of birth control information, now banned by the Criminal Code, but would retain the prohibition against advertising, other than in medical journals, articles designed to cause abortions or miscarriages.

Mr. Wahn's bill would also permit legal abortions "if a pregnancy is terminated for the purpose of preserving the life or the physical or mental health of the pregnant woman, subject to compliance with carefully prescribed safeguards."

CITES SAFEGUARDS

He told the committee the safeguards should be:

—The abortion must take place in a public hospital under the supervision of a qualified medical practitioner.

—Approval for the abortion must be given by the hospital's abortion committee or after consultation with at least one other doctor.

—Consent must be obtained from the woman's husband, or, if she is unmarried, from one of her parents or legal guardian "if any such parent or guardian is reasonably available to give consent."

Mr. Wahn, a 49-year-old lawyer, said there are '50 to 60 cases of death or serious injury each year in the Metropolitan Toronto area alone from illegal abortions."

SURPRISE STATISTICS?

"There are 100,000 illegal abortions a year in Canada, and it may surprise the committee, but 65 per cent of these are abortions carried out on married women who wish to limit the size of their families."

There were many thousands of women forced to bear children against their will because of birth control legislation.

"It is a basic right of a woman not to become pregnant or be forced to bear a child against her will."

The use of contraceptives was a matter that should be left to the individual's conscience or to ecclesiastical law. It was not an appropriate subject for legislation.

Aside from this point, Mr. Wahn said it was "bad jurisprudence" for leaving a law on the statute books which was being violated in a wholesale manner every day.

"No one in Canada really tries to enforce this law or wants to enforce it."

FIGURES QUESTIONED

Mr. Wahn's illegal abortion figures were questioned by Ralph Cowan (L—York - Humber), who asked where they had been obtained.

Mr. Wahn replied that they were provided by the Canadian Family Planning Association.

Mr. Cowan also took issue with Mr. Wahn's statement that "no one in Canada" wants to enforce the current birth control laws which prohibit the dissemination of information.

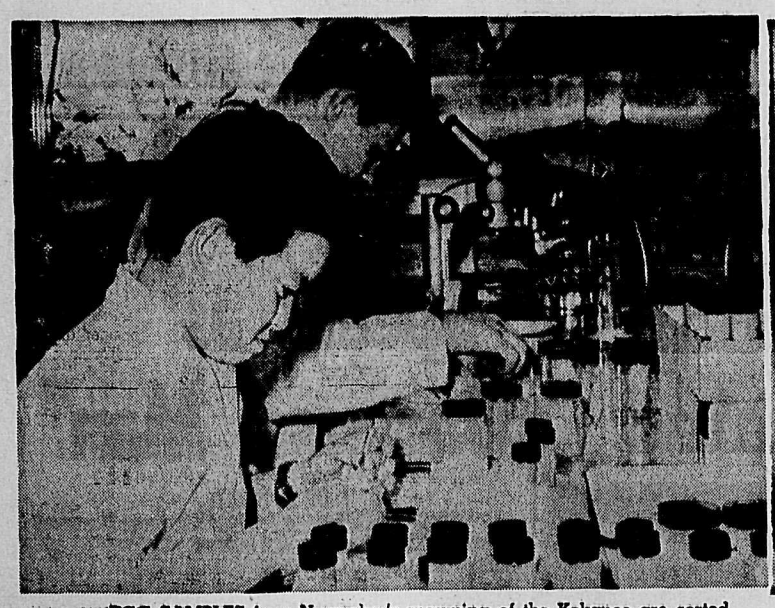
Also presenting a bill for study by the committee was another lawyer, Robert Stanburg (L—York-Scarborough).

Mr. Stanbury's bill would retain the provision of the Criminal Code which makes the dissemination of birth control information illegal, but would exempt "authorized agents of duly incorporated family planning associations, medical doctors, registered nurses, or social workers employed by public agencies recognized by the province."

He said there has been "a great deal of exaggeration of the extent to which the law has been broken."

"I suggest that the law is not being broken to such a degree because in most cases, groups and members of the medical profession are 'serving the public good' as is provided for in the Criminal Code section."

Fish Studies Continue in New Fish and Game Branch Laboratory



EGG SAMPLES from November's spawning of the Kokanee are sorted and classified by the technicians and scientists according to whether or not they were alive when taken and to what degree they had developed.

ASSISTANT LABORATORY TECHNICIAN Roberta Bisaro conducts a titration upon a lake water sample. Chemical properties of the lake are important in aiding the scientists to determine the optimum conditions for their planned artificial spawning ground.

DR. A. H. ACARA, supervising the research project being carried on concerning the Kootenay Lake fish populations, points out the location of the Duncan Dam, projected effects of which are being investigated.

Lake Survey Team Has New Quarters

By J. E. WELSH
News Staff Writer

Located near Nelson's Cottonwood Falls is the newly decorated office - laboratory of the research team conducting the Kootenay Lake fish survey. Heading this group of eight is Dr. A. H. Acara who supervises the project done in conjunction with the Fish and Game Branch of the Department of Recreation and Conservation.

Prior to July 1 of last year the building was a combined residence and storage area for those working in the fish hatchery. At present the old fish hatchery structure is being used for storage.

Speaking about his project, Dr. Acara stated that the main purpose is to investigate all aspects of life in the lake and the characteristics of its surrounding environment. From this data those features of the habitat affecting the Kokanee population will be duplicated as far as the spawning phase is concerned by engineers responsible for the spawning channel construction.

By incorporating the best characteristics of the area for spawning into the artificial channel it is hoped to maintain the fish populations at their present level or higher after the completion of the Duncan dam.

Doctor Acara stated that there was a close working relationship with the company engineer working in Vancouver and when the optimum spawning conditions are known he will be able to include them in the channel. The doctor estimated the cost of this project will be from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

He reported that in other areas where these artificial spawning grounds have been introduced there is a lower mortality rate among the eggs. The reason for this lies in the control measures which may be exerted over the channel.

In nature the fish selects the most advantageous place to deposit its eggs, however, due to uncontrollable climatic changes the mortality is high. Another factor is the number of fish spawning. If two many crowd the grounds, previously laid eggs are disturbed and possibly destroyed.

To control this number and also direct the fish to the new spawning channel the Marblehead two way counting fence has been constructed. Some of the factors controllable in an artificial setup are the flow of the water, the amount of silt deposited over the eggs and the oxygen content of the intergravel water.

Various investigations are being carried on to provide the engineering data include limnological surveys, plankton studies and an egg examination which is proceeding in the laboratory facilities at this time.

Limnology, being the study of the biological, chemical and physical characteristics of the lake is yielding information concerning the flow of lake waters, their temperature and acidic composition.

Plankton research is important because a variety, zooplankton, is one of the chief foods of the fish. However, zooplankton grows only as fast as the plant species phytoplankton. The chief concerns for the growth of phytoplankton are the temperature and clarity of the lake's waters.

Affecting this will be the dam which will cause clearer but colder water to be introduced into the lake.

The egg analysis now underway began last November when the Kokanee spawned. Five areas of spawning were located and squared off into 20 parts each. From these random samplings of the eggs were taken at different stages of development.

In the laboratory these samples are being checked to see if they were alive when picked up and at what stage of development they had reached. Eggs in the various stages are being counted and classified.

Once the results are known, the spawning area most conducive to successful growth and development will be known and its characteristics will point the way towards those considered optimum. These features include the gravel, flow, temperature and oxygen composition of the water and slope of the stream bottom.

The final result of this fish survey will be to increase or maintain the value of Kootenay Lake as a sport fisherman's resort. The doctor mentioned two aspects in this connection. The first is maintaining the population in order to ensure the catching of fish by the sportsmen during their stay. The other is to provide ample trophy fish, such as the rainbow trout, to attract distant fishermen interested in prize-winning catches.

Regular work carried on throughout the year on the Lake includes constant temperature surveys and plankton studies done in the north, south, and west arms. There are also synoptic surveys conducted each season. These are short time studies of the flow velocity of the water and plankton distribution.

A creel census is also undertaken during the fishing season in conjunction with the Fish and Game Branch. The information for this is collected from the anglers visiting the area.

Robson Warned . . . . . By Maddocks

Foresees Property Values Dropping

CASTLEGAR — Closure of the Castlegar-Robson ferries without construction of a bridge at the site will cause a decline in Robson area land values, and an increase in taxes.

This was the warning issued Thursday by Castlegar Mayor Robert Maddocks.

Mr. Maddocks, at a recent Castlegar Council meeting, had proposed the construction of a bridge over the Columbia river between Castlegar and Robson at the present ferry site. He had suggested that funds slated by B.C. Hydro for a road over the Arrow Dam be used for this purpose.

He expressed continued concern about adequate access with Robson, and said that the whole area in general, and Castlegar and Robson in particular, would be seriously affected by the coming change in traffic patterns.

Mr. Maddocks had noted that the new bridge route over the Columbia and Kootenay rivers will result in highway traffic bypassing Robson and the Castlegar business area.

"Robson will undoubtedly find that would-be residents will locate in the Castlegar-Kinnaird area," he said, "to avail themselves of the close proximity of the hospital, commercial and retail services."

Mr. Maddocks continued "This will result in a decline in land values in the Robson area, and in heavier taxes for remaining residents."

He said that Castlegar, "which at present provides the core of business and retail services for the whole district, will become a fragmented portion of a greatly disrupted and unorganized business complex."

Mr. Maddocks concluded "This will reduce land values and services, and would be a detriment to all residents of Castlegar."

He said that neither Kinnaird nor Ootischenia can be assured that future business developments would consolidate in their area, "and the cost of services that would be required would create a heavy burden on their tax rolls."

He urged residents of the whole district to give serious consideration to the implications of any disruptions, and to make their opinions known to the government "before it is too late."

Invite Ministers To Priest's Meet

At the invitation of Most Rev. W. E. Doyle, Bishop of Nelson, and Right Rev. W. E. Scott, Bishop of Kootenay, the members of the Ministerial Associations in the area of Nelson Diocese have been invited to attend the Clergy Institutes for the Nelson priests during March.

The ministers are being invited to bring their questions, the problems, and the special insights of their experience to the deanery meetings of the Catholic clergy. These meetings are held regularly in the different regions throughout the Nelson diocese to enable the priests, together with the Bishop, to discuss common concern arising from the Vatican Council. The theme of the meetings in March will be "The Herald of God's Word," and guest lecturer will be Rev. Dr. Albert Zsigmond, D. Th. of Vancouver.

"There were three things which suggested an experience of this mind," said Bishop Doyle. A number of the Protestant clergy expressed a desire to hear Father Zsigmond again, after having heard him speak at the Ecumenical Meeting of Clergy of several Churches at Kelowna in 1963. Secondly, the importance of the preaching of the Word of God and the problems relating to it are things which we have in common. Besides the mutual sharing of interests and concerns is one of the most practical ways of fostering the Unity of Christians.

"It was not a pre-disposed plan on our part to invite the members of the Ministerial Associations to our Deanery meetings," he said, "but in the same way as situations have been used in the past to divide people, we want to take advantage of all the situations possible to bring God's people back together again."

These meetings are scheduled to take place in Cranbrook, on March 22, in Castlegar on March 24 and Penticton on March 25. They will start at 10:30 a.m. An informal luncheon will provide an opportunity for the clergy of the areas to become better acquainted.

On March 23 Father Zsigmond will give a public lecture at Notre Dame University on "Response to the Word of God."

Charge Eleven As Drunks

Alcohol is running a close second to money, termed the root of all evil as Nelson City Police picked up 11 people charged with intoxication, in the month of January. These convictions netted $275 in fines.

The monthly report of the Board of Police Commissioners goes on to indicate that one juvenile received six months probation for being under the influence while two drivers were charged with being impaired.

For these two it cost a total of $450.

One minor paid a total of $75 for two offences. Both dealt with being in licenced premises.

NDU Students Avert Fire

Quick action by two Notre Dame University students had a fire out on arrival of Nelson fire department Thursday afternoon at 5 p.m.

The fire, of undetermined origin was in a room in the men's dormitory, occupied by three students. The fire was confined to the one room, with damage unestimated.

There will be further investigation Friday, Fire Chief Elwyn Owens said.

Two Injured Near Creston

CRESTON — Highway 21 was the scene of an accident Tuesday night as a car collided with two pedestrians who were both sent to hospital.

Abraham Abraham suffered a broken pelvis while Isabel Louie was admitted to hospital with broken ribs.

Roads were slippery at the time a vehicle driven by Walter Meikle struck the pair as they walked along the highway.

No charges will be laid.

Thirteen Dogs Impounded

Those pestered by loose dogs will be pleased to learn that in the month of January, 13 were impounded. This fact was released in the monthly report from the Nelson City Board of Police Commissioners.

The statement also indicated that of these, two had had to be destroyed while 10 other vagrant pets were lucky enough to be claimed by their owners. One of the 13 was fortunate in being given a home.

Cox Fined $250 Each On Two Convictions

Resisting arrest and driving while impaired by alcohol cost Nelson resident, Brian C. Cox of R.R. 1, $500. His case was heard by Magistrate W. Evans in City Court Monday.

Pleading guilty to a charge of resisting arrest he was fined $250. However, Mr. Cox pleaded not guilty to the charge of impaired driving.

Magistrate Evans found him guilty and the fine amounted to $250 plus a six-month suspension of his licence.

"On the charge that you did unlawfully resist a constable in the lawful execution of his duty," Magistrate Evans went on to say that, "there is no excuse for it."

"Such conduct will not be tolerated in this city, and I warn now that any further conduct of this nature will result, on conviction, in a prison term.

"The conduct of those people who stood by when a young constable was having a difficult time, and failed to go to his aid when asked deserves the strongest condemnation, and is unworthy of law abiding citizens. I realize that there were some there too old or too young who on account of age or infirmities could not help, but there is no excuse for those young men who turned away or refused to assist the constable when asked. The police have a difficult job to do, and its up to the citizens of a city just what kind of law enforcement they want, and to assist the police when called upon. The Canadian Criminal Code Section 110 (b) states Everyone who omits, without reasonable excuse, to assist a public officer or peace officer in the execution of his duty in arresting a person or in preserving the peace, after having reasonable notice that he is required to do so, is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment for two years.

"The old gentleman who came to the policeman's aid, is to be congratulated for his sense of civic duty and his courage, when many much younger men failed to do their duty. Whoever the old gentleman is, it is nice to know there are still many worthy citizens who when called upon respond like men, and he was certainly an example to the disinterested or fainthearted . . ."

National Scout Week Successful

Banquets, displays and church parade activities filled National Boy Scout Week for local and district troops. February 20 to the 27 were designated as the seven days during which the organizations could bring their work to the public's notice.

Second Nelson troop held two church parades on the 20th and 27th at St. Paul's-Trinity United Church and the Anglican Church at Willow Point respectively. Saturday night saw them hold their annual father and son banquet.

Sunday evening found the first Salmo troop attend their banquet for the fathers.

Switching things around, the first Procter-Harrop group will hold a mother and son dinner Friday night in the Balfour Community Hall.

Monday night will see the fourth Nelson troop enjoy their father and son banquet.

During the week city residents saw the four scouting displays that had been placed in shop windows.

Wednesday saw the first Willow Point Troop hold its organizational meeting in the North Shore Recreational Hall. Chairing the session was Robert Arneil who spoke to those present about the former failure of the troop to remain together.

Others attending the meeting were Gordon Fleming, District Commissioner, Terry McCormick, Scoutmaster, Larry Samuelson, assistant Scoutmaster, and Gordon Sutherland the secretary.

Police Report Two Odd Thefts

Two odd thefts were reported at the Nelson Police Station last week when a car battery and a flag were stolen.

George Kemball, Chief Maintenance man, told police Thursday that a thief had made away with the Canadian Maple Leaf flag. The flag was removed from the pole between the Police Station and the Provincial Courthouse.

A two-year-old battery was lifted from Theodore Fuhr's car late one night as it was parked on a side street. Mr. Fuhr stated that he had tried to start the car after work and being unsuccessful looked under the hood.

He found the $30 battery had been removed.

Hospital Plans Described at Meet

CRANBROOK — Plans for Cranbrook district's new hospital, central core type of building, were described and slides of a similar operating hospital shown by hospital administrator L. D. Swenerton at the February membership meeting of Cranbrook Branch, Canadian Mental Health Association Monday.

Mr. Swenerton said inclusion of a psychiatric treatment centre in the new hospital, urged by the branch, was outside the realm of decision of the board of trustees. He said only minor structural alterations would be required to add this treatment facility, but the need and the practical benefits of centre inclusion would have to be demonstrated to B.C. Hospital Insurance Service by responsible organized public insistence and approval and cooperation of the medical profession through East Kootenay.

Mrs. Bruce Comerford was named as chairman for arranging suitable program for marking national Mental Health Week early in May.

Rev. A. V. Maglio presided at the meeting in the Health Unit board room.

Boundary Chambers Head Critical of Redistribution

Sharp criticism was levelled at the Provincial Government's proposed redistribution bill by the Kootenay-Boundary Chambers of Commerce in a letter sent to the Honorable W. A. C. Bennett, Premier of British Columbia. The letter was signed by W. T. Waldie of Castlegar, President of the Association.

He stated that, "In no other portion of British Columbia is the representation being reduced so drastically as in this Kootenay Boundary area." The letter goes on to add that the area's representation to the Provincial Legislature will be reduced by 50 per cent were the bill to be passed.

The Association represents the combined Chambers of Commerce of Castlegar, Cranbrook, Fernie, Kimberley, Nakusp, Nelson, Rossland, Salmo and Trail. In this respect the letter states that, "the large area embraced, the infinite variety and complexity of our industrial enterprises, and the unlimited possibilities for future development," requires that the "present representation in the Legislature remain unreduced."

Speaking of this area's importance to the province, Mr. Waldie wrote that, "The South-Eastern portion of the province, which area encompasses the activities of this Association, is enjoying a period of great activity and progress, and it is disturbing to think that at this very crucial point in our development," our representation will be reduced.

In conclusion he asked that the government, "re-consider this, a matter of great importance to us."

Fennessy said he would now move ahead to swing his operation over to handle mail delivery.

Board Gives Team Grant of $250

CRANBROOK (Staff) — Mt. Baker Trojanettes, the East Kootenay Senior Girls' Basketball champions, have been given support of the Cranbrook School Board in the form of a $250 grant.

The Trojanettes will represent East Kootenay at the provincial high school girls' basketball championship at Vancouver on March 10-12.

School principal A. D. Campbell said the girls had done a great job of raising funds for the trip and stated that they will represent not only the school and the city but the entire East Kootenay in a worthwhile manner.

The Senior boys' team, the Trojans, won the East Kootenay final but along with a number of other Interior boys teams, have withdrawn from the provincials.

The Trojans are to institute a March 18-19 invitational tournament here, inivting teams from B.C., the U.S. and Alberta. They will also resume a traditional home and home series with Nelson.

The Board also gave permission for a day's leave of absence for Mt. Baker vice-principal Gordon Clements to attend a March 9th music festival at Blairmore. He will investigate the "mechanics" of such a festival with plans to institute a similar show in Cranbrook.

Just a Little Impatient

Resources Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Monday in the House of Commons we shouldn't be "pessimistic" about development of a national water policy for Canada. We're not pessimistic. We're impatient.

Canada doesn't really know how much water it has now, how much it will need for the future or even who owns the water—Ottawa or the provinces.

But we'd better find out soon because there's a water crisis coming on the North American continent. There are already parts of the U.S. where an absolute shortage of water is imminent and where the need within a very short time will be acute.

Some Canadians share the predominant American view that water is a "continental resource" and envision vast irrigation and hydro-electric projects straddling the frontiers and making the deserts bloom from Alaska to Mexico.

Some of these same Canadians also regard water as a marketable natural resource like timber or uranium. If the Americans want to buy our water, these people argue, then we should sell it to them—if the price is right.

But there is still another section of public opinion in Canada that holds that Canada's water supply is a priceless economic asset—literally priceless — because nothing else could possibly be worth as much to us as our water. And no government in its right mind would give or sell this advantage away.

It's high time Canada decided on a water policy and began to put it into effect. It is much easier to protect water being used than water being "wasted". Got it, Mr. Pepin?

Sweden Plagued by Youthful Crime

Sweden, possibly the most advanced welfare state in the world, is also attaining front rank in crime, particularly of the juvenile variety.

One high police official summed up the situation in these words:

"Juvenile delinquency is getting completely out of hand. More than two-thirds of all offenders are minors. Youngsters under 20 years of age are responsible for four out of five car thefts and well over half of all robberies."

Why?

Need is less likely to be a factor in Sweden than in most other countries, for the state stands ready to supply almost all material requirements.

But, before we do too much clucking about the problem of youth in Sweden, we should realize that the pattern in this country is much the same. The two countries are different chiefly in degree.

The United States has an affluent society, based on the free enterprise system and a lesser, albeit growing, degree of welfarism. Like Sweden, the United States has a burgeoning of crime, a large increase in the use of narcotics and severe problems of juvenile delinquency.

Could it be a lack of challenge in both cases? Physical and financial hardship may make some needed contribution to a person's growing up.

Society advances on an uneven front. Young people today have little concern for hunger or deprivation. Although material needs are generally well supplied, we still fall far short of meeting some challenges that are as important to us as the challenge of finding food and shelter.

If boredom and indolence are partial causes of the rising crime rate — and there is good reason to believe this is the case — then the Swedes and the Americans simply are not recognizing the urgency of the times.—Spokesman-Review.

Rounding Out Their Schooling

Mayor Toones' plan for Grade 11 and 12 students of Victoria to attend council meetings as part of their training in civics appears to be moving forward. He reports that secondary school authorities with whom he has been in touch look upon the idea with favor, and the city manager has been asked to study the proposal in detail.

Certainly seeing and hearing the aldermanic board in action can be reckoned to promote more interest among pupils than the facts they may learn from classroom lessons. This is not to suggest that they would emerge from the experience with a crystal-clear understanding of the processes of democracy at the local level: sometimes even council members seem to get lost along the way. But city council would be a much less remote concept to the students for once having observed the mayor and aldermen at work.

But if this close-range education is to be commended, one might also suggest that no less should the students be taken in small groups to sessions of magistrate's court, or at least the section of it dealing with traffic offences where they could absorb fundamentals of justice and procedure.

Comparatively few of them will be directly involved with a council in future years, in all likelihood. But the daily parade of citizens into the courts (not only as alleged offenders but as witnesses) is of such volume as to suggest that the majority of young Victorians will find themselves there sooner or later. A preview as a spectator would surely be a worthwhile part of a youngster's schooling.—Victoria Colonist.

Loch's Key To Fame

Marcus Lipton, a Labor member of Britain's Parliament, is so tired of hearing rumors about the fabled Loch Ness monster that he wants the government to get to the bottom of the legend. In other words, he wants the 30-mile-long Scottish lake dredged to find if the monster really exists.

There can be little doubt that Mr. Lipton is one of the believers. No man, not even an MP used to spending the public money like water, would suggest such a gigantic and expensive undertaking if he thought it would come to naught.

Mr. Lipton is a clever man and he knows full well that if there is indeed a monster lurking in the Loch Ness murk, it will if captured become a tourist attraction more magnetic than Niagara Falls.

The Loch Ness monster will be labelled a silly fool if he doesn't demand at least 20 per cent of the take.—Hamilton Spectator.

Changing Women

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Everything changes in this world—but nothing changes more than women.

Compared with the variability of women, chameleons are rank amateurs.

Clouds change endlessly. So do waves upon the sea and colors on the landscape. But none change more than women's moods.

Many things make surface changes in women — such things as cosmetics, hairdos, hats, eye makeup, girdles and different skirt lengths.

But none of these affect the inner girl. Inside she is still the same—that is, until she marries. Then she seems to explode in all directions.

"Is this the same sweet girl I courted?" her wondering husband asks. "I feel as though I'm living with a total stranger."

He has made the discovery that all husbands make sooner or later: Nothing seems to change a girl more than marriage.

For example:

Before marriage she liked to walk miles with you. After marriage her arches begin to break down if you can't get her a cab within half a block.

Once she said: "I want you to stay just as you are. I don't want you ever to be any different." But when the glory of the honeymoon fades, she says: "In the name of high heaven, aren't you ever going to grow up?"

DINNER MOODS, TOO

Before marriage she murmured anxiously: "If you really don't like my cooking, please tell me." After marriage she barks: "If you don't like the way I burned your TV dinner, go out in the refrigerator and thaw out another one. Then you can burn it any way you like."

She always dressed like a princess on parade in the old days. Now she comes down to breakfast looking like three witches in Macbeth.

Before marriage she exclaimed prettily, "oh, how did you know it was my birthday?" After marriage she storms: "How could you forget it was my birthday? After all, it comes only once a year."

In the sweet long ago, she loved to hold hands with you. Now all she puts in your hands are dishes to be dried.

Remember how happy she said she'd be when the two of you had a little apartment of your own? Now, unless you take her out at least two nights a week, she wails, "this isn't a home — it's a prison."

She used to plan about how she'd help you carry out your life's dreams. Now all she wants you to carry out is the garbage.

An ancient proverb warns girls: "Don't marry a man to reform him. You'll never be able to change him."

Nationwide Womens' Clubs Losing

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Women's Editor

The big national women's clubs are losing ground. Women are joining golf clubs, hospital auxiliaries, adult education courses or nothing at all. They are not joining the established country-wide organizations.

The explanations fall into two completely different categories: Those given by insiders and those given by outsiders. The fact is generally acknowledged and everyone has some reason. Clear-cut solutions are not so readily offered.

In the period since 1939, during which Canada's population has almost doubled, membership in the national organizations has dropped from wartime highs to pre-war numbers. The pattern of two of the best-known groups is typical.

The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada in 1939 had 74,625 members. It had 83,234 in 1951 By 1958 it had slipped to 75,122 and now lists its total at 71,000. Some of this may be accounted for by the shrinking rural population.

But the IODE shows the same rise and fall. In 1940 there were 26,473 members. In 1945 there were 34,676. In 1965 the order estimated its membership at 28,064.

MEMBERS GROW OLDER

The decline and one of the commonest reasons given for it were touched on in a speech by Mrs. L. R. Trivers of Thessalon, president of the Women's Institutes in Ontario.

"Women are still joiners, but what are they joining—curling clubs, social clubs or Women's Institutes?"

Mrs. Trivers said the institutes need to update their image. A questionnaire distributed three years ago showed more than half of Ontario's WI members are more than 50 years old.

"The WI was created for a community of young married people, but with the passing years the young women became older women and the WIs changed to meet their changed needs."

It is not just the WI. The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has even considered changing its name to modernize its image.

Somehow the collective clubwoman remains the woolly lady with the pouter-pigeon build and the frivolous hat. She is a do-gooder, a social climber, a tea-drinking time - waster, lovable maybe, but laughable.

GIVE NEEDED AID

Senior women in several of the groups recognize the image and wince. They acknowledge slipping membership and worry. They also point with justifiable pride to the work the groups do. Much of it is unknown to the doubters.

The IODE raises and gives away about $1,000,000 each year, a third of it in scholarships, student loans and teaching aids to schools.

The National Council of Jewish Women has led the way in experimental programs to benefit the elderly and to lend a hand to the disadvantaged.

Women's Institutes send a woman to the edge of the Arctic to spend her summers encouraging Indians and Eskimos to join the WI and through it Canadian life.

The Business and Professional Women's Clubs and National Council of Women regularly supply members to government boards and commissions. Their officers meet every year with prime minister and cabinet to hand on resolutions passed by their members.

So familiar do the clubs now seem that it is hard to remember they are a recent phenomenon and originally a largely North American one. Most were founded 50 or 60 years ago for some specific purpose and attracting members was no problem.

They grew quickly as women flocked to a cause, followed a leader, found an excuse to get out of the house and take part in the life of their communities.

All of the groups had at least a spark of the burgeoning feminine revolution and social protest in their hearts. In their youth they were modern, glamorous, avant-garde. They have often been half a step ahead of society in seeking to do something about a problem.

Now they are vast. Most have developed international branches and affiliations which involve hundreds of thousands of women. In new countries they are still expanding, often with the help of governments which recognize their value as sources and outlets for education of all kinds for their women.

Have the parent groups in Canada lost this sense of immediate purpose? Have they, like dinosaurs, outgrown their usefulness and outlived their time?

Popularity No Problem for Mrs. Ghandi

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—India's new prime minister has fulfilled at least one expectation of the men who placed her at the head of the world's largest democracy.

In the few weeks she has been in office Mrs. Indira Gandhi has shown that she has no popularity problem. She draws huge crowds wherever she goes and officials and correspondents accompanying her say the mass enthusiasm reminds them of the great Nehru days.

The political leaders who threw their weight behind Mrs. Gandhi in the leadership contest following Prime Minister Shastri's sudden death seem to be confident this charming and talented daughter of Jawaharlal Nehru will be able to solve the grave economic crisis facing the country.

In some ways the challenges confronting the 48 - year - old widow and mother of two sons are graver than those that her distinguished father and Shastri were called upon to tackle.

Mrs. Gandhi's first journey outside New Delhi was to the distant hills of Assam, bordering China. The visit was partly intended to give notice to Peking that the Indian army guarding the 2,500-mile Himalayan frontier is alert.

The Assam trip also helped to reassure the tribal communities living in that mountainous area that the new administration is keenly interested in their welfare.

Returning to the capital, Mrs. Gandhi told New Delhi food department officials she was surrendering her weekly rice ration and would eat only dishes made of wheat. The gesture was in response to the serious food shortage that has hit rice-eating Kerala, India's southernmost state.

GIVE UP RICE

Spurred by her example, thousands of Indians in wheat-eating northern areas have been forgoing their rice rations.

Unlike her immediate predecessor, Mrs. Gandhi plans to take a direct hand in shaping foreign policy. Press reports say Gopalaswami Parthasarathy, India's permanent representative at the United Nations, is returning to New Delhi to become foreign policy adviser to the prime minister. This is a new post in the Indian administration.

The prime minister has also appointed a top-ranking Bombay newspaper man, George Verghese, as her press adviser. Verghese, a Cambridge-educated economist, will also advise Mrs. Gandhi on economic matters.

Though party pressures have thwarted Mrs. Gandhi's attempts to give a new look to her cabinet, she has let it be known that she is going to surround herself with younger officials rather than rely completely on what is known as the "steel frame"—the senior but aging members of the British-created Indian civil service.

Indications are that Mrs. Gandhi will follow a middle-of-the-road policy both in economics and politics.

Mrs. Gandhi says she has no "ism" and that "my only concern is for the welfare of the millions of India."

CIVIL DEFENCE

It is the responsibility of the elected officials of government, federal, provincial and municipal, to safeguard the welfare of their people, just as it is the responsibility of the head of the family to protect his dependents.

Words of Life

. . . if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. Romans 10:9.

Chadwick Busier in Moving Business

By AL COLLETTI

MASPETH, N.Y. (CP)—Journey just a few miles from New York's Empire State Building and you will find Bill Chadwick busier than ever in the moving business.

He is going through the industrial mill these days as a company vice-president and finds it more trying than the 16 seasons he spent officiating in the National Hockey League.

"Hockey was never like this," Chadwick said in his cubby-hole office where the phones rang continually.

Once on the ice a player accidentally knocked him cold. Irate fans used to throw dead fish and garbage at him, as well as less offensive items such as scorecards, hats and pennies.

Chadwick, now turned 50, pointed to new desks in the warehouse stacked in neat piles, some 20 feet high, waiting to be delivered to new office buildings in Manhattan 10 miles away.

A 12-day subway and bus strike had put a severe crimp in his operations. The huge traffic bottlenecks which occurred during the strike prevented many of his vans from parking in Manhattan's midtown and downtown areas where most of his deliveries are made.

STRIKE LEFT BACKLOG

With the strike settlement came business headaches. The backlog had to be moved and new orders filled. His firm has contracts with two major office furniture companies, supplying many of the major new office buildings in the city.

Chadwick hasn't changed much since he retired as senior NHL referee in 1955 at the age of 39 to manage a golf course on Long Island. He stood the country club life for five years, then switched to the moving business permanently although he had been in it off and on for 20 years during the hockey off-seasons.

There is a bit of grey in his wavy sandy hair and he has the look of a grizzly when he passes up the razor for a day.

A rugged six-foot-two, 200-pounder, Chadwick runs the same tight ship he did on the ice where by his count he officiated in more than 1,200 regular NHL and approximately 125 playoff games.

Despite the 10 years he has been away from the game, hockey still remains his first love, and that feeling probably will not change for the man who has been labelled "one of the best refs who ever laced on a boot."

In June, 1964, he became the sixth referee to be elected to hockey's Hall of Fame, and the first native New Yorker to enter the elite circle.

If the price was right, Chadwick probably now would have Scotty Morrison's job as referee-in-chief.

OFFERED TOP JOB

NHL president Clarence Campbell offered Chadwick the post more than once when Carl Voss, for 15 years referee-in-chief, announced his retirement at 58.

"Clarence Campbell is my friend and I believe he was serious about the offers," Chadwick said. But the NHL owners "couldn't pay me enough for the job."

When Chadwick broke into the NHL as a linesman in 1940, his pay was about $3,500 a season. In his last few seasons as a referee he drew down about $12,000 a season. He earns a good deal more now as vice-president of a national van and storage company.

Chadwick goes to see all the home games of New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden —he was born only four blocks away.

Chadwick played hockey in high school and with the old New York Rovers of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League until an eye injury forced him to give up playing.

In 1938, a chance visit to the Garden for a Rovers' game started him on his officiating career.

"I was sitting in the stands when Tom Lockhart, president of the Eastern League, rushed up to me," Chadwick recalled. "The referee had failed to show up. Lockhart put me to work and that was the beginning."

When Chadwick retired, Voss called him "the best referee of all time."

Chadwick said of his years in the NHL: "I am thankful for every year I was in the league. I wouldn't have missed any of it. I know I quit when I was at the top at 39 and that's the way it should be."

Today in History

March 4, 1966 . . .

The Statuto of Piedmont, the only constitution to survive the Italian war of independence, was granted 118 years ago today—in 1848 by Charles Albert, king of Savoy and Sardinia. War with Austria, to support a revolt in Milan, followed at once, and Charles Albert was forced to abdicate after two crushing defeats. However, Italy was eventually unified and freed from Austrian rule by his son, Victor Emmanuel II, aided by Count Cavour, his chief minister, and Garibaldi's revolution. The first parliament, of 1861, based the national Piedmont constitution.

1681—Charles II granted Pennsylvania to William Penn.

1870 — Louis Riel had Thomas Scott shot at Fort Garry.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916 — Russians landed at Atani, Turkey, supported by the Russian fleet; the German raider Moewe arrived home after capturing 15 Allied ships in the South Atlantic.

Second World War

Why Cosmetics? Doctor Learns The Answer

CHICAGO (AP) — "Why do you wear cosmetics?"

A physician popped that question to 75 women between the ages of 15 and 50.

The reasons included building self-confidence, attracting and hoodwinking men, impressing other women and—sex.

Dr. Milton Robin, head of the dermatology department of Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago, told about his poll in a report titled, The Psychological Aspects of Cosmetics, presented at the convention of the American Medical Women's Association.

"One essential purpose," he said, "is to beautify the body so as to attract the admiring glances of others and to fortify one's self-esteem. Very few in this group voiced any satisfaction with their natural appearance."

"Sex is another reason for using cosmetics," Dr. Robin said. He noted that a perfume advertisement recently suggested women shouldn't use the stuff if they were only "bluffing."

"Unquestionably the girls and women I interviewed felt that one of the main purposes for wearing cosmetics was both to attract and hoodwink men."

SEX BASIC REASON

Dr. Robin said beauty counsellors, cosmetics companies and advertising people "confirm the predominance of sexual attractiveness as a top reason for wearing cosmetics."

A number of the women in the poll said they dress and use makeup to impress other women. It would seem, he said, they "want to be admired by their peers" but at the same time may be motivated by a conscious or unconscious rivalry for men.

"Triumph over the limitations of the body," Dr. Robin said, "occurs by use of cosmetics and clothing."

Handsome Handbag

By ALICE ALDEN

NO MATTER what, the soft and pretty handbag of fine leather is always a leader, and it certainly is when Coblentz does it.

Shirred and gathered into the softest of silhouettes, the look of this bag is all line and leather.

Double handles are attached with hand-stitched leather-covered rings. And there's plenty of inner space to complement the outer lines.

Hints From Heloise

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

When you buy a set of new canisters, don't throw away the old ones.

They make wonderful shipping cartons, because they are lightweight and much sturdier than cardboard boxes.

I put popped corn around the article in the canister, tape it shut and wrap for mailing.

I've shipped everything in these canisters from expensive perfume to small, breakable items, and books.

Mrs. J. L. Tucker.

Dear Heloise:

When sending out get-well cards, I put a little perfume or cologne on the flowers (most cards have flowers printed on them).

This gives a nice fragrance when the card is opened. It's almost like sending a bouquet—and a card.

Mrs. Barbara Marlow.

Oh, all you dolls!

If you use hair rollers to put up your hair — stop, look and listen!

I've often heard that necessity is the mother of invention, and I agree.

You know those pointed, plastic picks we stick through the rollers?

Well, even if we have a teenage daughter in the house (as I have), we can never find enough of them — I'm lucky if I can even find the rollers!

I couldn't find enough picks today, and was even out of toothpicks and big hairpins (which some women have suggested using).

As a last resort, I picked up a rubber-tipped bobby pin, and pushed it through a roller. I didn't have to open the bobby pin or even spring it. Leave it S-H-U-T and push it through. This is especially good on rollers with a brush inside.

The bobby pins have just enough give, and the little rubber tips protect your scalp.

Why don't you try them some time when you run out of picks?

Heloise.

Dear Heloise:

Another use for your nylon net:

A slightly dampened piece of net will remove the starch from a cool iron. It's the easiest method yet of getting starch off.

Thanks for all your hints and helps.

Ann.

Harrison and Filleul Head L. V. Rogers Competition

Cherrie Harrison, combined winner in the L. V. Rogers Inter-House Ski Competition held Wednesday and Thursday, is shown with two other individual winners, Maureen Fox and Shirley Dylke. Miss Fox (left) finished first in the giant slalom, third in the slalom and second overall, while Miss Dylke (right) finished second in the slalom and fourth in the combined. She did not enter the giant slalom. Miss Harrison took second place in the giant slalom and first in the slalom.

L. V. Rogers High School scored another first in skiing Wednesday and Thursday when a noon-hour inter-house meet was held.

Competing on the slope behind the school Cherrie Harrison rallied from a second place finish in the giant slalom to take first in Thursday's slalom, giving her the girls' combined honors.

Phillip Filleul, skiing in house "A", as was Miss Harrison, slipped from first in the giant slalom to second in the slalom, but still came out on top in the combined.

House "D" narrowly edged "A" in the overall standings; finishing with 26 points, one more than "D." Brad Fyfe put together third place finishes in both events to take the runner-up spot in the combined.

Larry Mogentale took second in the slalom, but slipped to fifth in the giant slalom, for third in combined. In the boys' division eight points were awarded to the first place finisher in the combined with six to second, five to third, four to fourth, three to fifth, two to sixth and one to seventh.

In the girls' class eight points were awarded to the winner, five to the runner-up and three, two and one to the next three finishers.

The point system gave house D 15 in the boys' class, Fyfe gaining six and Mogentale five. One point was also awarded to each individual who participated in the meet.

In the girls' division Judy Anderson staged a minor upset when she took third place in the giant slalom, and fourth in the slalom for a combined finish of third, winning three points for her house.

Shirley Dylke, L. V. Rogers nomination for the Ski Queen, didn't enter in the giant slalom but was runner-up in the slalom to give her fourth in the combined. The fourth place finish earned a pair of points for house D. Along with Miss Anderson, the winning house gained a total of 11 points in the girls' competition.

House A lost out in the meet when only one girl, Miss Harrison, entered the competition and she gained the maximum number of points.

Peter Grady, in the same house as Filleul, had trouble on the slalom run and came in seventh. But he redeemed himself in the giant slalom with a first place finish.

The two earned 14 points for their team.

Maureen Fox served notice that she remains one of the top skiers in the school with a time of 15.2 seconds and first place in the giant slalom run. But she faltered and fell near the top of the slalom run and had to settle for a third place standing after recovering and finishing the 14 gate course.

The fall cost her first place in the combined and Miss Fox finished in the runner-up position.

Norma Ronmark finished fourth in the giant slalom but didn't enter in the slalom, earning a pair of points for her house.

Neil Westmacott pulled off another minor upset by taking fourth position in the slalom run, after finishing seventh in the giant slalom, giving him sixth place in the combined.

Doug Walkley slipped from a fourth place finish in the giant slalom to sixth in the slalom and had to settle for fifth place overall.

Murray Lashmar ended up eighth in both the slalom and the giant slalom to take sixth in the combined, for two points for house C.

House C, paced by the 14 points earned by the boys' team finished third in the team event with 21 points.

The only disappointing performance was that of house B. Only three boys entered in the competition, and no girls, leaving the team with only three points.

The meet was the first of what is hoped to be an annual L. V. Rogers Inter-House Ski Meet to be held each year on the hill immediately behind the school.

Phillip Filleul flashed down the slalom course in times of 18.8 and 18.2 seconds to take top honors. Coupled with his second place finish in the giant slalom, Filleul took first place in the combined standings. With the winner, are the combined runners-up, Brad Fyfe (centre) and Larry Mogentale (left). Fyfe came third in both slalom events to take the runner-up position behind Filleul in the combined. Mogentale rallied from a fifth place finish in the giant slalom to take second in the slalom and third overall. The victories by Mogentale and Fyfe helped their House take the team victory.

Canada Thumps U.S. 7-2; Big Four All Victorious

LJUBLJANA Yugoslavia (CP) Canada's national team got off to a flying start in the 1966 world hockey championship here Thursday night by trouncing the United States 7-2.

The Canadians, flashing by far the best opening-day form of any of the eight teams in the championship group, were in command of the game from start to finish

They had tougher opposition in their first game than any of the other teams in the so-called "big four." The Americans, trying to get back into amateur hockey's select circle, came here with their best squad since their Olympic victory of 1960 and tried hard Thursday to match strides with the flying Canadians.

George Faulkner of Harbor Grace, Nfld., led Canada's offensive with two goals.

Others were scored by Ray Cadieux of Ste. Adele, Que., playing coach Jackie McLeod of Winnipeg, Morris Mott of Winnipeg, Fran Huck of Winnipeg, and Marshall (Hayseed) Johnston of Birch Hills, Sask.

The Canadians were obviously trying to make a fast start in what shapes up as a tough tournament, and to put the Americans in their places after a 2-1 exhibition loss to them in Belgrade last Sunday that had caused a lot of pre-tournament excitement.

BIG FOUR ALL WINNERS

The Russians, the Czechs and the Swedes—Canada's partners in the big four—all posted easy victories Thursday against virtually helpless opposition.

The Russians toyed with Poland 8-1, the Czechs blasted East Germany 6-0, although the German defence had them stymied for a while, and Sweden stomped to a 5-1 victory over Finland in a ragged game.

Canada struck early against the United States, but the Americans managed to stay within scoring reach until the third period. It was 3-1 for Canada at the end of the first. The teams matched single goals in the second, but Canada zipped far ahead with three unanswered goals in the third.

The Canadians gave this hockey lesson with sticks purchased from the U.S. team just before the game. The Canadian sticks were held up in transit, but are expected to be here Saturday in time for Canada's next game, against Poland.

The game was less than two minutes old when Faulkner put Canada on the score sheet. The Newfoundlander knocked in his own rebound off American goalie Tom Yurkovich.

Just after the eight minute mark, Cadieux made it 2-0. Roger Bourbonnais of Riviere Qui Barre, Alta., took the puck down the right wing and flicked it into the faceoff circle to the left of goalie Yurkovich. Cadieux, skating in at high speed, got plenty of stick on it and drove it into the top left corner of the American net.

McLeod put Canada ahead 3-0 just after the halfway mark of the first period, backhanding home a centring pass from Huck.

The Canadians later threw up a rock-like defence when Cadieux was off for slashing. Just after Cadieux got back on the ice, however, American Emery Ruelle backhanded a loose puck past goalie Seth Martin of Trail, B.C., after a sloppy clearance by the Canadians.

Dominating play again in the second period, the Canadians appeared not at all bothered when Larry Stordahl fired his own rebound past Martin to reduce the U.S. deficit to 3-2. They kept up the pressure and finally replied to that last American goal when Mott scored on a power play.

The capacity crowd of 10,000, including President Tito of Yugoslavia, continued to roar with excitement in a fast third period in which the Americans played well but couldn't score—and the Canadians played better and scored three times. Huck, Faulkner, with his second score of the night and Johnston did the honors.

Martin was picked by team adviser Rev. David Bauer and playing - coach McLeod to start the opener because of his experience and because the U.S. team was much stronger this year.

McLeod was cautiously happy after the win.

"I'm quite pleased with the way the boys played," he said. 'But we have a lot of work ahead."

Wayne Dornak, the U.S. team manager, blamed the poor American showing in the first period partly on the fact that a 20-minute wait in the dressing room during the pre-game opening ceremonies "took some of the edge off us."

"A three-goal lead in the first 11 minutes is a tough barrier to overcome in international competition," he added.

Father Bauer, who handles coaching duties for the Canadians in consultation with McLeod, said the Russians and the Czechs would be hard to beat. He watched the Russians overwhelm Poland.

"The Russians have a machine of great precision," he said. "They will be very hard to beat—but that doesn't mean we are not going to try."

Goalie Yurkovich, chief worry of the Canadians after he had turned back all but one of their shots in the Sunday exhibition, was badly off form, in Dornak's judgment.

"We figured we could beat them again," Dornak said. "But those three fast goals beat us. Yurkovich was selected late in the day to dress and he was off form in the first period. By the time he had settled down, it was too late."

Father Bauer agreed that his squad was fired up for the game and showed it by outskating the Americans and checking in all zones like terriers.

FORUM REJECTS BID TO STAGE TITLE BOUT

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Forum has rejected an offer to stage the proposed Cassius Clay - Ernie Terrell heavyweight title bout March 29, an official of the Montreal Athletic Commission said Thursday night.

Commissioner Paul Emile Sauvageau told reporters at city hall Frank Selke Jr., an official of the Canadian Arena Co. which owns the Forum, telephoned the commission to announce that the Forum would not be open for the bout.

Selke had said previously that the Forum would be available because it had already planned to show closed-circuit television coverage of the fight.

Selke could not be reached for comment immediately.

Sauvageau stepped out of a meeting between the commission and the would-be promoters of the bout to make his announcement to reporters.

"I don't think there'll be any more meetings," he said. "I don't think they'll be able to meet our conditions. I don't think they (the promoters) have a written contract with the boxers."

The promoters — Loren Cassina of All-Canada Sports Ltd., and Robert Arum, a lawyer and officer of Mike Malitz' Main Bouts Inc. of New York—walked out of the meeting earlier, apparently in a huff.

They put on their coats and hats and stalked out of city hall, where the meeting was being held.

But 10 minutes later they returned and re-entered the meeting room.

Commission members, who previously had agreed "in principle" to the licensing of the fight March 29, remained inside the room during the absence of Cassina and Arum.

Present for the Montreal Athletic Commission were commissioners Mr. Sauvageau, a Montreal city councillor, and Hyman Brock, lawyer Robert Bouchard and secretary Gerry Gosselin.

Clay and Terrell were not represented, although Clay's lawyer Art Grafton was reported to be en route to Montreal by plane.

Commission chairman Dr. Jean Laroche, also a Montreal city councillor, arrived about an hour after the meeting began.

Sauvageau stepped out of the meeting briefly to tell reporters that the promoters 'will have to bend in a little while."

"We're giving them about 20 conditions which they must meet. This is a must.

"One of the principal conditions is a guarantee that the fighters will be paid their purses."

Earlier in the day, Gosselin said that the night meeting with the promoters was necessary because "we have not received a formal application, but only a telegram, and anyone can sign a name to a telegram."

Leafs Shut Out Canadiens 4-0; New York Rangers Edge Bruins 5-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A substitute netminder gave Toronto Maple Leafs a 4-0 shutout against Montreal Canadiens, while New York Rangers edged Boston Bruins 5-4 in National Hockey League action Thursday night.

Bruce Gamble, former New York-Boston goalie, robbed the Canadiens of a number of chances in his second game in the Leaf nets. The Toronto win provided a serious setback to Montreal's drive toward the league championship.

Red Kelly picked up his seventh goal of the season and Peter Stemkowski his third in the opening period, while Bob Pulford, with his 24th and Frank Mahovlich, with his 26th, took care of the third period rally.

Toronto's win moved them into third place with Detroit Red Wings, who were idle Thursday. Montreal is in second place, one point behind Chicago Black Hawks.

The game threatened to erupt at times into another brawl-filled contest like the 3-3 draw the teams fought to in Toronto Wednesday night.

TEMPES FLARED

Tempers flared at 15:22 of the first period when Montreal winger Claude Larose took on Stemkowski, Ted Harris squared off with Larry Hillman and John Ferguson and Ron Ellis swiped at each other, Toronto defenceman Kent Douglas coming to Ellis' aid.

Douglas, Stemkowski and Larose all picked up minors for the scuffle, while Ferguson was assessed a double minor. Harris and Hillman went unscathed.

In the game at Boston, Reg Fleming put in a rebound late in the third period for his second goal to give the Rangers the victory in the meeting between the two last - placed teams.

Ed Westfall had tied the score at 3:38 of the third stanza after the Bruins had spotted New York a 4-0 lead.

New York scored three times in the first period to gain the lead. Fleming and Vic Hadfield each had a goal and assist, while Harry Howell took the score 3-0. Donny Marshall added another for Rangers at 2:07 of the second period before Boston started to move.

Ron Stewart scored the first Boston goal early in the second period and then had a goal disallowed a few minutes later when referee Vern Buffey ruled the play offside.

Inter-Service Club Draws

The 1966 Inter-Service Club Curling Bonspiel gets underway tonight with two draws scheduled, at 7:00 and 9:00 p.m. The teams battle for the W. S. Day trophy which has been missing for the past few seasons, but is now being tracked down, as yet unsuccessfully.

Draws: 7:00 — Leeming (Elks) vs. K. Loewen (Eagles); H. May (K. of C.) vs. Mason (Jaycees).

Three sheets are open for fun curling as usual on Friday.

9:00 — G. Olsen (Legion) vs. Rotarians; R. Mark (Lions) vs. A. Olsen (Kinsmen); K. Frederickson (Legion) vs. B. Lewis (Lions); K. Bud (Legion) vs. G. Buerges (Shrine); Gyro Club vs. Kiwanis Club.

Jamison Captures Alberta's First Canadian Championship

By DOUG MARTIN

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Hazel Jamison family rink of Edmonton Thursday won Alberta's first Canadian women's curling championship.

Skip Gale Lee, third Mrs. Jamison—in whose name the rink is registered — second Sharon Harrington and lead June Coyle clinched the championship with a 14-4 romp against Vi Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld.

The win left Alberta with a perfect 8-0 record. British Columbia and Saskatchewan, tied for second with 6-2 records, had no chance to catch the Edmonton women in Thursday's final round at 11 p.m. EST.

Final Canadian Women's Curling Championship standings:

	P	W	L
Alberta	9	9	0
Saskatchewan	9	7	2
British Columbia	9	6	3
Quebec	9	5	4
Ontario	9	5	4
Manitoba	9	4	5
Nova Scotia	9	3	6
Newfoundland	9	2	7
New Brunswick	9	2	7
Prince Edward Island	9	2	7

In the five-year history of the event, Alberta previously finished second three times, third once and fourth once.

Mrs. Jamison, her daughters Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Coyle and "outsider" Miss Harrington succeed the Peggy Casselman rink of Winnipeg as national champions.

EIGHTH-ROUND PLAY

In other eight - round play Thursday:

June Shaw of Kenora, Ont., won 11-6 over Nicole Janelle of Port Alfred, Que.

Marg Cooke of Vancouver edged Rene Snow of Halifax 8-7.

Barbara Macnevin of Delisle, Sask., broke a 7-7 tie after eight ends to win 11-7 over Joyce Beek of Dauphin, Man.

Kay Hoare of Summerside, P.E.I., broke an 8-8 tie after eight ends and won 11-8 against Shirley Pilson of Bathurst, N.B.

The ninth and final round Thursday night was Saskatchewan (6-2) against Nova Scotia (3-5); New Brunswick (2-6) against Quebec (4-4) B.C. (6-2) against Alberta (8-0); Ontario (4-4) against Newfoundland (2-6) and Manitoba (3 - 5) against Prince Edward Island (2-6).

Mrs. Jamison and her three attractive blonde rinkmates never gave Newfoundland a chance as they exhibited the same poise and clutch shooting that marked their play all week long.

BROKE TIE IN FOURTH

They broke a tie in the fourth end when Mrs. Pike's last rock rolled through the house and left Alberta counting four. They added threes in the eighth and tenth ends to make the game a complete runaway.

Alberta's scoring in bunches was typical of their play throughout in the championships. They scored two threes in beating New Brunswick 10-7, a three in beating Nova Scotia 7-6, a six and a four in beating Quebec 14-6, back-to-back fours in beating P.E.I. 13-3 and a four and two threes in beating Newfoundland 14-4.

Your Individual Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, March 5, 1966

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Synchronize activities to coincide with needs of the day. More than the usual reward is promised for constructive endeavors. Benefactors are waiting to assist you.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Venus, favorably aspected, especially encourages artistic aspirations, original ideas, domestic affairs and new friendships.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Consider the suggestions of others. Some you should not follow, of course; others you could adopt — and profitably. Don't sell and new idea short, and do look for new opportunities which may not be obvious on the surface.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Yesterday's planetary restrictions lift now, and you should have a really good day. Especially favored: Actors, writers, musicians, designers, all those involved in dealings with the public.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Both your endurance and serenity of disposition are still being tested. But take heart. In a couple of days the adverse stellar influences which have governed your life for the past few days will lift, and you can go full steam ahead. In the meantime, be a good listener. You could pick up a gem of an idea.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Getting behind in chores, keeping promises? Perhaps you have over committed yourself. There are always ways to retreat, and people will understand if you talk things over promptly, frankly.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Venus in fine configuration. Get out your bag of tricks and launch your pet projects now especially those having to do with artistic interests and family affairs.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — While you haven't too much planetary help now, you can, nevertheless, keep this day out of the mediocre class if you emphasize your innate enthusiasm and good cheer. Some heart warming news indicated.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — You can achieve great satisfaction by completing a well-done job, starting someone else off with an assist toward cherished goals. Emphasize stability, consistency. And do beware of those who would take advantage of your generosity.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — A good period for improving on current projects as well as launching new ones. Your integrity, sense of balance and perseverence, even in the "rougher" moments, will lead to success.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Carry on with matters already planned and launched, and don't delay your progress by going off on tangents periodically. You may have a tendency toward restlessness now, but try to curb it.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Your modesty and unassuming manner usually stand you in good stead, but this may be a day when you will have to speak up firmly especially in the support of worthwhile causes. Don't hesitate. Your known trustworthiness will make others listen.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately, a reasoner, a philosopher; are adaptable to almost any environment as long as it is above the mediocre. You have an intense love of home and domestic ties, will go out of your way and work hard to satisfy the needs of loved ones. You are extremely versatile; are a natural teacher; very artistic, inventive, and are meticulous about details; could succeed in the literary world, too. Avoid a tendency to make promises you cannot possibly keep. Birthdate of: Rex Harrison, actor.

CPR Will Serve "Effective Demand"

OTTAWA (CP) — The CPR told the Commons transportation committee Thursday that it lost $23,900,000 on its railway passenger services last year compared to a $26,000,000 loss in 1964.

The latest figure brought the total CPR passenger deficit since 1958 to $201,800,000.

A brief outlining the history of CPR passenger operations was filed with the committee as it opened a special series of hearings into the railway's present passenger program and its future policy in this field.

The hearings were initiated by the government after a storm of public protest in recent months over the CPR's increasing withdrawal of passenger trains, particularly the transcontinental Dominion.

CPR Chairman N. R. Crump and Ian D. Sinclair, a senior vice-president, were the lead-off witnesses. Hearings are expected to continue for several weeks.

EXPLAINS POLICY

Their brief repeatedly stressed that the privately-owned railway intends to continue serving the "effective demand" for rail passenger service. It defined this as "the demand for a service at prices which will meet the cost of providing that service."

In cases where revenues did not support costs, the railway had a policy of seeking to withdraw its train service.

However, the CPR expected that its remaining transcontinental train, the Canadian, will continue to operate for years to come. It would also retain intercity services from Montreal to Ottawa, Quebec City and Saint John, N.B., and the lakeshore commuter trains at Montreal.

"Other passenger services are under study by the company," the brief said.

The two executives said accusations that the CPR has deliberately downgraded its passenger trains to discourage traffic are entirely without foundation.

"Trains were discontinued only after the travelling public had demonstrated an unmistakeable preference for other modes of transportation," the brief stated.

LOW FARES DIDN'T HELP

Low fares had been unsuccessful in solving the problem of deficits. Although they had attracted more volume, the added revenues were insufficient to overcome the increased costs and the deficit only worsened.

"These lower fares have succeeded in diverting traffic from other media that could handle it profitably, thus undermining the financial stability of both forms of transportation.

"The experience of the company has been that people will use passenger train service when the fares are abnormally low but they cannot be attracted at fare levels that will provide for the cost of service."

This section of the brief was apparently a reply to recent criticism of CPR fare increases that in many cases put the railway's rates substantially above those charged by the publicly-owned CNR.

LABOR COSTS RISE

The railway's figures on passenger deficits showed that between 1964 and 1965 revenues dropped by $4,500,000 to $40,300,000 while expenses dropped by $64,200,000.

Increasing labor costs had offset most of the savings that had been achieved in recent years through changes in service.

Looking to the future, the CPR said it is impossible to forecast a resurgence of effective demand for passenger rail service.

The brief referred to new high-speed trains operating in Japan and under study in the United States but noted that in both cases the services are designed for heavy concentrations of population.

There was no area of Canada with the kind of population density required for such a service.

PLEA FOR PROHIBITION

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — A petition calling for immediate prohibition throughout India was handed to Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi Thursday after being signed by 185 members of Parliament. Dry laws are fully enforced in three out of India's 16 states. Other states enforce prohibition in restricted areas. Some operate "dry days" twice weekly. No states have objected to prohibition in principle, but many feel the government should compensate them for losses of excise revenue if the dry laws are totally enforced.

Chataway To Start Drilling in March

Chataway Exploration president S. W. Wright amounced today that the Bralorne Group will undertake a diamond drilling program on Chataway's Highland Valley property starting in mid-March.

Wright said, the Bralorne Group, which consists of Bralorne Pioneer Mines Limited, Mountain Copper Company of California and Pacific Petroleums Ltd., have now completed a magnetometer, geo-chemical and induced polarization survey on 114 Chataway claims which Bralorne holds under option.

Wright said the IP surveys indicated the presence of strong anomalous areas and the results are now being evaluated and correlated. Interpretation of the IP surveys by Dr. H. D. Seigel is expected shortly.

In addition to the claims under option to Bralorne, Chataway has 282 Highland Valley claims, totally owned by Chataway.

IP crews are being transferred to Chataaway's wholly-owned 48-claim "Ken" group in the Pine Point area.

At the same time, Sulmac Exploration will conduct an induced polarization survey on Chataway's 30-claim "Rye" group which adjoin Pyramid.

Wright said Chataway's newly-acquired claims in the Cariboo area northeast of Williams Lake now total 140 and they adjoin the Cariboo-Bell property on which copper mineralization has been discovered.

SEEK SPECIALISTS

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Health Minister Boris Petrovsky said Thursday the country needs more medical specialists. He said the complexity of medicine today makes it difficult for general practitioners to keep up with discoveries in specialized fields. Forecast Federal Government Deficit

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Tax Foundation Wednesday forecast that the federal government will face a deficit of between $438,000,000 and $588,000,000 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1967.

In its annual study of the outlook for the next federal budget —expected within a month—the foundation predicts revenues will rise by about $431,000,000 during the fiscal year, compared with the $500,000,000 apparently recorded during the present year. The increase, if achieved, would raise revenues in fiscal 1967 to $8,112,000,000.

The forecast says there are too many uncertain factors involved to arrive at a firm estimate of spending, but it puts outlays in the range of $8,550,000 to $8,700,000,000.

The lower range would be $800,000,000 more than the estimated figure for the present year, while the upper projection would be almost $1,000,000,000 more.

NO TAXES FORECAST

The foundation is a non-profit organization sponsored by the Canadian Bar Association and the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants. Its annual outlook makes no attempt to predict possible tax changes.

The review says that although former finance minister Gordon forecast a deficit of $300,000,000 for this year in his budget last April 26, it now appears the deficit would be not more than $50,000,000.

"The minister had based his revenue prediction on a growth rate for gross national product of a little over seven per cent, but with the economy rocketing along at a better than nine-per-cent rate, his revenue seems likely to register a $500,000,000 gain, $300,000,000 more than he had anticipated.

In its projection of revenues for fiscal 1967, the foundation used a GNP increase of eight per cent.

SHOWS PRICE IMPACT

One major unknown factor the foundation comments on is a possible price increase of about three per cent, which it says could have a significant effect on revenues.

"If it triggers off restrictive measures either in Canada or the United States it could result in the failure of the economy to achieve the rate of real growth implicit in the GNP projection. This would in turn have serious effects on all the revenue forecasts."

Must Complete Trade Negotiations

TORONTO (CP)—Current negotiations to achieve freer international trade must be cleaned up by the end of this year, Marcus Wallenberg, president of the International Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday.

He said at the annual meeting of the Canadian council of the ICC that if the paralysis affecting the talks at Geneva continues, the negotiations in their present form will probably have to be written off with "serious consequences."

"Failure would be hailed as a victory by the protectionist forces," he said.

Mr. Wallenberg, vice - chairman of the Enskilda Bank of Stockholm, said the reason for the deadline on the Geneva talks is that the United States Trade Expansion Act — which opened the door for the talks by providing broad tariff cuts by the U.S.—expires in the summer of 1967.

Despite high hopes, there had been a return to the old style, time-consuming bargaining on a point-by-point basis.

Mr. Wallenberg said recent talks among members of the European Common Market to settle its agricultural deadlock apparently had resolved the question "only in the sense that the six foreign ministers agreed to disagree."

Mr. Wallenberg also criticized governments which respond to deficits or surpluses in their balance of payments by introducing foreign exchange controls or other restrictions on trade and capital movements.

"Surely the basic remedy lies in prompt monetary and other domestic measures designed to restore reasonable balance. . .

"The tragedy is, of course, that a delay in making the fundamental adjustments that are needed does not really make an escape from balance of payments discipline possible; even more severe action will have to be taken later on."

Various international credit institutions or techniques could help a troubled country, 'but they cannot produce any substantial results if confidence between individual countries and in business relations has been seriously undermined due to absence of appropriate corrective measures."
