Mixed Marriage Restrictions Alleviated by Catholic Head

Basic Opposition Still Exists Under New Rights

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul eased Friday some of the ancient Vatican restrictions on marriages between Roman Catholics and persons of other faiths.

But the Pope's action did not alter the Roman Catholic Church's basic opposition to mixed marriage, nor its insistence that marriage between a Catholic and a non-Catholic is licit only if performed before a Catholic priest.

He lifted excommunication of Catholics who have married or will marry outside the church and provided for common prayer and the presence of non-Catholic clergy at mixed marriages performed in Catholic churches.

For Catholics in marriages performed outside the church, lifting the excommunication penalty opens the way for them to return to the sacraments.

(There was no official explanation of what steps a Catholic living in an illicit marriage now would have to take to be able to return to the sacraments.

REGARDED AS SINNER

(However, unofficial sources said that while excommunication now is lifted, the Catholic partner in such a marriage still is regarded by his church as having sinned in contracting what his church considers an unlawful marriage. He continues to "live in sin" until he takes steps to make the marriage licit in the eyes of the church and thus cannot receive sacraments.)

The Pope wiped out a rule that had obliged the non-Catholic partner in an inter - faith marriage to make a signed promise that children of the union would be reared as Roman Catholics.

But he retained the church's insistence that children of a mixed marriage must be brought up as Catholics. With the changes, however, the church now places the burden of rearing the children as Catholics on the Catholic partner in the marriage.

Bishops are given the right to dispense with the previously required signed promise by the non-Catholic partner to guarantee Catholic education for the offspring.

The changes were set forth in a 1,500-word document titled Matrimonii Sacramentum (the Sacrament of Matrimony).

In a reaffirmation of key traditional stands on basic marriage issues, the document declared:

DUTY TO 'PROTECT'

"The church sees it as her most serious duty to safeguard and protect the gift of faith in her married couples as well as in her children. For this very reason it tries in every way to see to it that Catholics join in matrimony only with Catholics."

But it also stated that changing social conditions have brought about increasing instances of mixed marriages and added that the move toward greater Christian unity "suggests that the stiffness of present legislation of mixed marriage be softened. . . ."

The document was issued four days before the visit of Anglican Archbishop Michael Ramsey of Canterbury to the Vatican to discuss with Pope Paul new moves for Christian unity.

In addition to permitting non-Catholic clergy to attend mixed marriages in Catholic churches, the Pope's changes also will permit the non-Catholic ministers to deliver their own exhortations after the vows have been made before the Catholic priest. At such ceremonies the mixed congregation will be permitted to join in common prayer.

Canada Abandons Bases, Refuses French Control

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will abandon its two military installations in France rather than accept French command over them, External Affairs Minister Martin announced Friday.

"Canadian forces at the disposition of the Alliance in Europe should be under the operational command of (NATO's) supreme allied commander," Mr. Martin told the Commons.

"The experience of the last two wars and modern developments in warfare permit no effective alternative to unified command and planning arrangements for Allied forces."

Canada's military installations in France are the RCAF Air Division Headquarters at Metz and the RCAF bomber and transport base at Marville.

Mr. Martin said they will be relocated. Canada had planned in any event to close the Metz headquarters and move the two jet bomber squadrons at Marville to the two RCAF bases in Germany. However, it will need a transport base.

SUPPLIES AIR DIVISION

RCAF Transport Command, through Marville, supplies both the Air Division and many United Nations operations in which Canada participates.

There are 1,300 airmen at Marville, 700 at Metz. There are also 90 Canadian personnel at NATO's Air Headquarters near Paris and 60 at Supreme Allied Headquarters, also near Paris. All these personnel will be withdrawn from France.

The defence department said it can't yet say when the bases will be abandoned. Leases on the housing units expire June 30 next year, a fair indication the RCAF will be out of the bases by then at the latest.

Because RCAF transport planes are based at Trenton, Ont., and merely refuel at Marville, some arrangement with France for a refuelling base is not ruled out.

Mr. Martin read the communique of the heads of government of France's 14 NATO allies which said at one point: "No system of bilateral arrangements can be a substitute" for NATO's integrated command structure.

WANTS FRENCH COMMAND

France is withdrawing from all the integrated commands, insisting foreign troops in France must come under French command and forcing NATO to relocate its integrated headquarters now on French territory.

Two Others Die Following Collision

CRANBROOK—Two young people died Friday following an accident on Highway 95 Thursday night which had claimed the life of Gary Ermacora, 25, of Kimberley.

Jean Bannatyne, 19, of Kimberley, an occupant in the Ermacora vehicle, and Robert Franklin Jacques, 19, of Marysville, died Friday morning in St. Eugene Hospital in Cranbrook. Jacques was in the second car.

The fourth victim, Roland Portman, 19, a passenger in the second vehicle, is in "fair" condition, RCMP said.

An inquest was opened Friday afternoon by coroner Dr. W. O. Green but was adjourned indefinitely after the bodies were viewed.

Ermacora's mother, who was widowed only three months ago, is being kept under sedation. Miss Bannatyne is survived by her three sisters and parents.

Queen Mother Reaches Victoria

VICTORIA (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth arrived for a 24-hour visit Friday, a stopover on her trip to Australia.

She emerged from an RCAF Yukon aircraft that landed at 5:35 p.m. PST in the midst of a rain shower. She was accompanied by Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes and Premier and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett as she stepped from the aircraft.

More than 100 girl guides, brownies and rangers, who had waited for her arrival for more than half an hour, waved as the Queen Mother stepped from the plane. She waved back and smiled.

Local dignitaries, including Mayor Alfred Toone of Victoria, were presented to the Queen Mother, who was dressed in a coat and sheath dress in two shades of lilac and wore a flowered and veiled hat.

The Queen Mother chatted for 10 minutes with the brownies and guides, then boarded a limousine for Government House, where she was to spend the night.

There were no official engagements for her Friday night. Today she will meet members of the British Columbia legislature, officiate at the opening of a new provincial archives and museum building and attend an official dinner at Government House.

She leaves tonight for Vancouver to continue her flight to Australia.

30 Killed In Crash

CAIRO (AP)—A United Arab Airlines plane en route to this Egyptian capital from Cyprus with 25 passengers and a crew of five crashed and burned in a desert sand storm Friday night.

Rescue workers guided by flames to the site, 10 miles north of Cairo, reported no survivors were found.

The tail of the aircraft was severed from the fuselage, which lay some 500 feet away.

The accident was Cairo's second air disaster in less than a year. Last May a Boeing 720 of Pakistani International Airlines crashed here, killing 121.

The United Arab Airlines plane was a twin-engine, Russian-made Antonov turboprop, on a regular round-trip flight between Cairo and Nicosia, Cyprus.

Cairo airport said on its last communication it suggested the plane divert to El Arish, on the Mediterranean coast near Gaza, rather than come on through the storm.

TIGHTEN CONTROL

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Tension ran high in this troubled capital of Indonesia Friday as the army assumed firm control of Indonesian politics and placed 15 of President Sukarno's ministers in protective custody.

Lt.-Gen. Suharto, the army chief and the sprawling, multi-island republic's new strongman, announced the ministers—including controversial Foreign Minister Subandrio—were being protected against actions from certain groups.

Committee Told . . .

Refund on False Teeth If Pay More Than $140

VICTORIA (CP) — The president of the College of Dental Surgeons of B.C. said Friday that anyone who pays more than $140 for false teeth is entitled to a refund from the college "unless the dentist has told them beforehand."

D. W. P. Munsie of Vancouver made the statement to a special committee of the B.C. Legislature studying the right of dental mechanics to deal directly with the public in fitting and supplying false teeth.

Dr. Munsie said the college schedule of fees is $140 for a set of dentures. If anyone is charged more than this, provided the dentist has not told them beforehand, the registrar of the college will provide a refund of that amount in excess of $140.

He said the college has a system of taxing dentists to provide for this.

Members of the committee said they were not aware of the refund provision.

"You'd better get your cheque books out," said Cyril Shelford (SC—Omineca). "I know there are lots of people who have paid more," added James Chabot (SC—Columbia), chairman of the committee.

Mr. Shelford said he knew of one man who paid $1,250 for a set of false teeth.

Dr. Munsie said that if there had been no prior agreement on the price, that person would be entitled to a refund of $1,110.

Parliament Friday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Commons worked its way through a series of government resolutions.

Prime Minister Pearson took some time off from the sitting to visit with the Queen Mother during her brief stopover en route to Australia.

External Affairs Minister Martin announced Canada will abandon her NATO bases in France in view of the French decision to bring such bases under national control.

Opposition MPs objected to a bill that would wipe out the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act and rename it Rural Development Act.

They protested the name change seemed to be designed to allow the Liberal government to take credit for actions taken under legislation originally introduced by the Conservatives.

Diefenbaker Home Entered

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's home was broken into last week while he was on a fishing trip to the West Coast and his wife was in Toronto.

A spokesman for Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday thieves apparently were looking for money. Nothing appeared to be missing and nothing was damaged.

His home, named Stornoway, is provided by a trust fund which maintains the place for the leader of the opposition.

Astronauts Head to Cape To Aid Flight Probe

HONOLULU (AP) — Astronauts Neil Armstrong and David Scott flew to Cape Kennedy, Fla., Friday night to help scientists determine why their Gemini 8 space flight ended prematurely Wednesday night.

The pair spent the day in hospital near Honolulu undergoing physical checkups.

Military officials said one engine of the jet transport that flew Armstrong and Scott to Hawaii from Okinawa was shut down when trouble developed with oil pressure.

Scientists at Cape Kennedy will spend three days with Armstrong and Scott, trying to learn what caused Gemini 8's gymnastics after the astronauts docked with an Agena satellite.

Armstrong fought for control of the spacecraft and the trouble forced an early end to the flight, after only 6½ orbits.

LOOKED FRESH

Scott, a U.S. Air Force major, and Armstrong looked fresh and jovial as they arrived after they were picked up from the Pacific.

The layover in Honolulu was made so mechanics could check the U.S. Air Force jet and crew members could rest.

The only ill effect suffered by the astronauts in their re-entry and recovery was some seasickness while their capsule bobbed around nearly three hours on the Pacific.

The Gemini trouble developed when a radio command was sent to turn on a tape recorder in the Agena satellite.

Gemini 8 began tumbling crazily. Armsgrong reported:

HAVE 'SERIOUS' TROUBLE

"We have serious trouble here. We're tumbling end over end. It's rolling and we can't turn anything off."

Something went bersek in the spacecraft's main jet thruster control system. Armstrong had to use an emergency system and managed to stabilize the craft after a 30-minute battle.

Armstrong said after docking he used the Gemini jets to make a 180-degree turn. The spacecraft control system was shut down just before a series of commands were to be sent to use the Agena jets for manoeuvres.

When he pressed a button to send an electrical signal starting the Agena tape recorder, the Gemini-Agena hookup began bucking.

Wilson Places Big "If" on ECM Entry

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson said Friday night his Labor party is ready to take Britain into the European Common Market "if suitable safeguards for our interests and those of the Commonwealth can be negotiated."

Addressing a campaign rally in Bristol for the March 31 general election, Wilson said Britain will set strict conditions for its entry into the six-country market.

"Those conditions require that we must be free to go on buying food and raw materials, as we have for 100 years, in the cheapest markets, in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and other Commonwealth countries, and not have this trade wrecked by the levies the Tories are so keen to impose."

WELCOMED MOVE

Wilson said he welcomes the recent French statement that Paris no longer objects to Britain joining the market, but the French position on terms of entry needs to be clarified.

He said in addition to the insistence on protection of traditional sources of food and raw materials, he could lead Britain into the market only if there was to be no supranational control over its foreign and defence policies.

Bomb Almost Given Up

PALOMARES BEACH, Spain (AP) — One source connected with the recovery of the wayward American H-bomb said Friday the device was located just as officials were trying to decide how to tell the world it might never be found.

The bomb and its grey parachute were photographed Wednesday by the midget submarine Alvin in 2,500 feet of water five miles off the coast of Spain. Officials said it is "most certainly" the missing bomb—one of four aboard a U.S. B-52 bomber that crashed after colliding with its refuelling plane Jan. 17. The other three weapons were recovered quickly on shore.

U.S. Navy experts began the delicate job of raising the last one Friday.

Balsam Fir Sales Banned

VICTORIA (CP) —Forestry Minister Williston Friday announced a province-wide ban on the sale and shipment of living balsam fir trees in a move designed to protect the 260,000,000,000 board feet of balsam timber standing in B.C. from the threat of the balsam woolly aphid.

Less Bloodthirsty Psalms Approved

LONDON (AP)—The Church of England approved Thursday a new psalter to make the psalms less bloodthirsty and easier to sing.

No more will peaceful Anglicans be obliged to send up the chant, from Psalm 58:

"Break their teeth, o God, in their mouth, smite the jawbones of the ungodly."

Nor in Psalm 137 will they sing: 'Blessed be he that taketh Thy children and throweth them against the stones."

The new psalter has the approval of the archbishops of Canterbury and York, spiritual leaders of the church. Thirty - thousand copies are being printed.

The psalms, collected in the Anglican Book of Common Prayer, are taken from Miles Coverdale's Bible, often known as the Great Bible, which preceded the more familiar King James version. This explains discrepancies of word and phrase in the quotations cited.

Most Rev. Donald Coggan, Archbishop of York, said use of the new version of the psalter is optional.

"Congregations can go on singing nonsense if they like, but I have a suspicion that this will commend itself as being a good thing," he said.

Poor But Not Backward, Says Philip of Britain

By BORIS MISKEW

NEW YORK (CP) — Prince Philip Friday answered charges that Britain lags behind other nations in technological development.

He asked at a luncheon sponsored by the British-American Chamber of Commerce:

"How is it then over half the civil turbine-powered aircraft in operation or on order in the world are fitted with British engines? How is it Britain is the world's largest exporter of commercial vehicles and chassis?

"Furthermore, can anyone seriously suggest the construction of commercial nuclear stations, the development of vertical take-off and supersonic passenger aircraft or the introduction of hovercraft into service could have been achieved by a technologically backward nation?

Why does the United States recruit so many scientists in the United Kingdom?

'We may be poor, but not backward," he added.

ON FUND DRIVE

Prince Philip arrived in New York Thursday night on the last leg of a United States tour to help raise funds for children's charities and to encourage British sales to the U.S. He leaves for Toronto Sunday.

The prince said far too few British merchants have got the message "about the really fantastic market which exists throughout the booming United States."

Replying to criticisms about Britain's marketing and packaging, Prince Philip said:

"All I can say is that the British merchants have been at this business of selling for several hundred years and once they get the message that they are required to jump through a hoop and dye their hair pink to make a sale that's what they will do."

Bishop E. W. Scott Installed in Pro-Cathedral

Demolition of Natal To Cost $2,300,000

VICTORIA (CP)—Details of a unique government scheme to demolish an old, dusty coal town in British Columbia and build a new community were disclosed here Friday.

It is believed the first such project of its size ever to be undertaken in Canada. All of the town's 800 residents will be moved.

The object of the federal-provincial-municipal scheme is Natal, a dying coal town hemmed in by steep mountains near the British Columbia - Alberta border.

A report prepared for the governments says relocation is necessary because conditions in Natal—the town is covered in coal dust, its air and water are polluted — are "incompatible with modern living conditions."

Social problems include the mass emigration of youth. There is a scarcity of mortgage capital for new homes, investment is limited and economic opportunities are few. Much of the town consists of buildings almost 100 years old.

The town's 800 residents will be relocated in Sparwood, one mile west. New housing will be provided, subsidized where necessary.

Natal will be demolished.

RELEASE DETAILS

Details of the plan, prepared by the provincial municipal affairs department and a Vancouver consulting firm, were jointly released by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and federal Labor Minister Nicholson.

Mr. Campbell said the $2,300,000 cost of demolishing Natal would be born by the federal, provincial and municipal governments. Ottawa would pay $1,000,000 and the other two governments $500,000 each.

The remaining money would be realized from the sale of various assets in Natal, presumably to Crows Nest Industries Ltd., which has several mines in the area.

However, a further $1,300,000 would be required to lay out an expanded townsite in Sparwood and an additional $547,000 would be needed for services such as electricity.

Mr. Campbell said the money likely would be shared by several schemes—such as winter works — but no arrangements had been finalized.

He said acquisition of the land at Natal would begin this year and that the program called for construction of Sparwood to begin in 1967 and the move and demolition in 1968.

The study recommended the setting up of an agency to handle negotiations with landowners for the purchase of their land and buildings and for the demolition of Natal.

Spirituals, Poetry Feature Program

An appreciative audience witnessed a commemorative program at St. Paul's - Trinity Church Thursday evening.

Organized chiefly by Patricia Halleran Green, organist and choir director of the church, and assisted by Robert Green and the church choir, the well-planned program of negro spirituals and poetry carried on faultlessly through two hours of vocal music and readings.

An illuminated statue or simulation of the raised, chained hands of a negro was placed in front of the choir loft and dominated the visual setting.

Rev. D. A. Cline in the robes of a choir member opened the program.

Part one consisted of choir and solo numbers alternated with the readings of Robert Green from John Brown's Body by Stephen Vincent Benet.

For the most part, the music came from the original Jubilee Singers formed in 1871, mainly spirituals. This reciprocation produced an interesting effect and generated attentiveness; though perhaps its novelty left some in the audience a bit uncertain about overt response.

Pat Green at the piano led a full choir in a very satisfactory rendition of the spirituals. The solo vocalists, Doris Wright, Jack Steed and Sheila Fraser helped in large measure to set the tone of this commemoration of the negro's contribution to North American culture.

Bob Green's able readings contributed strongly to this purpose as well as to the second purpose — to sharpen the consciousness of the need for brotherhood.

Part Two carried on the dichotomy of choral and readings in much the same smooth manner; this time selected readings from the literature of protest replaced Benet's work.

The delightful solos of Sheila Fraser maintained the mood. The final reading was "A Letter From Birmingham Jail," written by Martin Luther King, Jr.

Coast Boy To Sing In Choir Concert

Bill Dyson, popular boy soprano from Victoria, will headline the Nelson Boys' Choir Concert this evening.

He will sing a variety of numbers for one-half hour during which time he will be accompanied by Richard Prondman, organist of Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria.

Although only 13, Dyson has an excellent reputation in B.C. as he has already made a recording which has sold over 1000 copies in Victoria alone.

Along with the young soprano there will be popular numbers sung by the 40 boy sopranos, including Purcell's famous "Trumpet Anthem" in which the boys will be accompanied by Paul Gergley with his trumpet.

The Choristers, composed of 24 young people, will repeat by special request Balfe's "Bohemian Girl" as well as a number of madrigals.

Bishop E. W. Scott and Rt. Rev. R. S. W. Brown are pictured in front of the blue and gold tapestry in the sanctuary of St. Saviour's Pro-Cathedral, following the Bishop's installation last night. The pastoral staff is held by the Dean.

Roles Must Change With Times, He States

"What do you wish?" Dean of the Cathedral, Rt. Rev. R. W. S. Brown asked, as Bishop E. W. Scott stood at the threshold of St. Saviour's Pro-Cathedral, Friday night.

He received the answer:

"I, Edward, Bishop of Kootenay, duly elected and consecrated, seek installation in this Cathedral."

So it was in age-old ritual the Sixth Bishop of Kootenay was installed, succeeding Rt. Rev. W. R. Coleman.

Led by the choirs of St. Saviour's and the Church of the Redeemer, singing the processional hymn, "God the Father, God the Son," the clergy from Okanagan and Kootenay districts, proceeded down the aisle to stop in front of the sanctuary, colorful in their robes of white, black and red with the Bishop in his gold brocade mitre and cape.

After the singing of the 23rd Psalm to the tune Crimond, the Chancellor, Brian Weddell, read the declaration of submission a the entrance to the sanctuary, which was repeated by the Bishop. The Administrator, Archdeacon D. S. Catchpole, read the act of consecration and the mandate and then conducted the Bishop to his chair. As the chimes played the Dean delivered the pastoral staff, black with ornate golden crook, to the Bishop.

In his address, Bishop Scott touched on the antiquity of the installation ceremony. He noted the task of the bishop has been to give oversight to the development of the community of the faithful.

He said he felt that in the present period the world is closer to New Testament times than ever before, and is coming to see that, to be a Christian, is to be a member of a community of faith. He said, "The church has a mission in the world in terms of penetrating the culture of every land in which a community of faith exists." He said it must give leadership and bear witness and noted that the role of the bishop and parish priest must change with the times.

He said the Bishop must help make it possible for all people to contribute to the life of the church and each must be given a chance to play a vital part.

Other hymns, "Now Thank We All Our God," "Allelluia! Sing to Jesus!" "O God the Great Creator" and "Praise to the Lord, the Almighty," were sung.

Holy Communion was celebrated by the newly installed Bishop assisted by Archdeacon F. D. Wyattt, Canon H. B. Barrett, Rev. E. S. Sommers and Rt. Rev. R. W. S. Brown.

Following the colorful and impressive ceremony the clergy and congregation assembled in the Memorial Hall for a social hour. Rev. David Cline brought greetings from the Nelson Ministerial Association and Bishop W. E. Doyle on behalf of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Nelson. Alderman Kennedy Facchina, acting mayor, brought greetings from the City of Nelson.

Various groups of St. Saviour's Women served refreshments at the informal gathering.

W. T. Belt Passes at 86

A World War I veteran, William T. Belt, 86, died March 14, at Shaughnessy Hospital in Vancouver.

Mr. Belt, who lived on West Innes Street, served in the South African War and in India. He also served in France while with the 5th Canadian Infantry Brigade.

He is survived by one brother, Victor James Belt of Calgary; one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller of Oliver, B.C., and four nieces and four nephews.

Break and Enter Nets 18 Months

CASTLEGAR — An Edmonton youth, Albert Trelenberg, 19, received an 18-month suspended sentence after pleading guilty on charges of breaking and entering two stores here.

Four juveniles were given 18-month probations on the same charge.

Police said most of the merchandise stolen from the stores has been recovered.

Open Air Dance Floor Proposed for Lakeside

Described as "an asset to the community", was a proposed open air dance floor for Lakeside Park, Nelson City Council decided Wednesday night to refer the request of permission to build this floor to the Civic Centre Recreation Commission.

This request came from a company which had recently completed arrangements to operate the concession at the park. Particulars of the dancing area were enclosed in the letter which stated that it would be 40 feet by 40 feet with the "necessary safety precautions, including a hand rail around the perimeter." The music would be supplied by a jukebox and there would be no charge for admission.

Proposed operation time is 2 p.m. to 10 p.m., daily, May 1 to September 30. It would be supervised by adults.

* * *

During Monday night's short session the Nelson municipal library's receipts and disbursements for January and February were reviewed. It was shown that receipts from fines, subscriptions, contributions and grants totalled $3428 or approximately $50 less than the same period last year. Disbursements for administrative costs, operation and maintenance followed the same pattern.

Mayor of Fernie, Vernon Uphill, invited the Nelson Council, officials and wives to attend the spring convention of the Association of Kootenay and Boundary Municipalities to be held in Fernie in May. Mayor Louis Maglio will attend and five other councillors plan to accompany him.

Tabled from Monday night's meeting to Wednesday were applications to sublease, to purchase and to establish a car agency. A sand and gravel company had borrowed $80,000 and as part of the security for the repayment of this loan the bank required an assignment of the lease between the City of Nelson and the company. After ascertaining that council could not be held responsible if debt is not paid, Ald. Fritz Farenholtz moved that the appropriate resolution be passed allowing the sub-leasing of the property.

Forwarded to the city engineer for further study was an application from J. J. Loewen to purchase city lot number 27, block 7, plan 284B. Purpose in buying it was stated as being to improve the land in looks. Ald. Jack McMillan asked what the cost of servicing it would be were the man to ask for this later. Ald. Farenholtz stated it was not worth it if the facilities are later desired.

A motion to refuse the request of granting a licence for a car agency which was received from Frank Amoroso was defeated. He will be asked to attend the next council meeting. Other requests from Mr. Amoroso concerning a sidewalk and the trimming of several cherry trees were turned over to the engineering and parks department. A report was called for on the trees.

Acting as an agent for the purchasers, a representative of a local realty company spoke on behalf of a request for rezoning 712 Nelson Avenue from "motel" to "local-commercial." It is planned to remove the present motel and small house in order to build a short order restaurant with drive-in facilities. Ald. D. F. Porteous moved the authorization of amendment preparation to allow rezoning.

Council was informed Wednesday night that the members, "of the Royal Canadian Legion in regular session, rescinded the motion passed," which had asked that the cenotaph be removed to Lakeside Park. Vandalism was considered by the Legion in connection with this change.

A request was received from J. M. Morley, principal of the Hume School, asking council to turn its attention to the condition of Third Street. He had written a year previous pointing out the need of a curb and drainage system on this street. Ald. Farenholtz moved that Mr. Morley be advised that the matter was in hand and when the final budget is approved he will be advised definitely.

A motion was also passed for the overhaul of the Leroy compressor which is 12 years old and the spending of $1000 for an overhaul of the TD9 tractor.

Nelson Pollution Report Prepared by Jaycees

Mr. D. Kleisinger of the Junior Chamber of Commerce's Community Betterment Committee for Nelson has issued a report on the pollution problem in the Nelson area.

This report stated that it appears that the pollution problem has not been made known to the people of Nelson. Mr. Kleisinger said that, "All reports that I have read through do not really show the true picture of why we should have some form of sewage control."

"They were all on a purely technical basis and would be of no interest to a layman."

The report continued with, the costs were shown for a sewage disposal unit but the machinery mentioned is not really necessary for a city the size of Nelson.

The treatment plant suggested seems to be the answer to the problem but location of this unit appears to be a point of contention. It was suggested that the unit be placed at the foot of Stanley Street but this was vetoed as people felt this plant would be an eyesore to the beauty of Nelson.

These aeration type sewage units are situated in many other cities and can be made to enhance the beauty of the area rather than ruin the esthetic values, Kleisinger noted.

"It is not right," he said, "that we pour our wastes into the lake without any concern for the people down the lake who receive these wastes which pollute their water and endanger the health of their families."

On the other hand, the people of Nelson are in the fortunate position also of having such an expanse of water to the east of us that minor sewage does not effect our area due to the dilution of any sewage before reaching the lakeside area.

Mr. Kleisinger summed up by saying, "This problem of sewage disposal is going to become worse, not better, therefore something has to be done now."

Mrs. Hughes Dies at Coast

Mrs. Catherine Josephine (Kitty) Hughes, wife of a former Nelson resident, James V. Hughes, died recently in Vancouver after a lengthy illness.

A past president of B.C. Hospitals Association, Mr. Hughes was a well-known figure in the Nelson area. He was also a past provincial head of the Knights of Columbus. He was raised and worked in the Nelson region, entered the transportation business in northern B.C. and retired two years ago after several years as assistant executive director of the Vancouver Tourist Bureau.

Mrs. Hughes was a past president of the Immaculate Conception Parish, Catholic Women's League, past president of the Women's Auxiliary, Our Lady of Mercy Home, and a former executive member of the Dunbar and Point Grey Girl Guides Association.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. David C. (Marilyn) Marcoux; grandson, David Lance; one brother, John L. Fogarty, and one sister, Mrs. E. J. (Alice) Williams, all of Vancouver.

Requiem Mass was celebrated Monday at the Immaculate Conception Church, with Rev. C. P Hinphy, SJ, celebrant.

Creston Fruit Growers Favor Amalgamation

CRESTON (Ctaff) — Local fruit growers went on record by a 41 to 2 vote as favoring amalgamation of Creston Cooperative Fruit Exchange and Creston Packers Ltd., fruit sheds, into a new cooperative venture at a well attended B.C. Fruit Growers Association meeting in the Masonic hall. BCFGA president Ed Gatzkt presided.

The growers learned from Eric Moore, general manager of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., and Harry Vanackeren, B.C. Tree Fruits production manager, that on the basis of the five-year average, 1960-64, of 187,900 boxes, an additional 25 cents per box return was possible to local growers if amalgamation took place.

This would pump some $46,975 into the valley economy annually. The fruit industry means $750,000 to Creston Valley.

B.C. Tree Fruits Limited 5-year projection of tonnage here (3 sheds) was estimated at 153,000 boxes in 1970 and 130,000 boxes in 1975—a continuous decrease.

Reasons for the decrease in tonnage projection was due to Creston Valley apples, while having quality, were not large enough, more and more land was going into sub-divisions; new trees not full bearing along with weather as being factors to the projection.

If a portion of the 25 cent a box return resulting from an amalgamation was put back into more intensive type of fruit farming, the product would be better and tonnage increased, said both Kelowna visitors.

Mr. Moore pointed out that while the Stevenson-Kellogg report was excellent, in some respects it had failed because the growers were not going along with it in the Okanagan.

He praised the Creston growers in realizing they had a problem and were taking immediate action.

The local fruit growers invited the two speakers to hear figures and bring to reality the Creston Valley problem of continuing low tonnage, increased costs and decreasing returns.

Th espeaker pointed out that as a crop goes down, the overhead goes up, and conversely the greater the volume the lower the overhead, resulting in better returns.

With minimum of staff, efficient facilities, growers should receive better prices for products.

It was the consensus of the officials, Creston area appeared as a one-house packing operation. They pointed out that in 1964, cherries had 23 acres, non-bearing, 128 acres bearing; prunes one acre non-bearing, and 27 bearing; pears 11 and 35; Macs 29 and 347; red delicious 37 and 230 and other apples 55 acres non-bearing and 150 bearing.

This, they felt, was a doubtful picture for the future. The figures showed 55 acres of young trees were in the valley in 1964. With the 1975 projection of 130,000 boxes, Creston should only utilize one shed.

The speakers felt that any major financial loss that would result from amalgamation, relative to original investments, could be picked up within two or three years with the savings projected under amalgamation.

Kinsmen Scout Troop Holds Annual Banquet

NATAL — Michel-Natal-Sparwood 1st. Kinsmen Boy Scout Troop held its third annual father and son banquet in St. Paul's Anglican Church Hall at Michel with over 60 scouts, fathers and invited guests in attendance. An entertaining program was arranged following the banquet, catered to by the Anglican Women's Auxiliary. Films were shown on trips taken by troop members up the Elk Valley last year. Members of the 1st. Kinsmen Troop, under Scoutmaster Richard Guest, also gave a first aid demonstration. Attending the function representing the Crows Nest District Boy Scouts Association from Fernie were president Robert (Bob) Craig, who was the guest speaker, and district secretary Gris Naccarato, also Rev. J. D. Watts representing the Anglican Church and Father Leslie Trainor representing the Roman Catholic Church and assistant scoutmasters Mike Pascovich and Thomas Halko. Master of ceremonies for the evening was retiring group committee chairman Archie Woytula. During the evening a new group committee was elected consisting of Gordon Cook as chairman, Hugh Tennant as secretary and George Fedorek as treasurer. Directors also elected were Avelino Cimolini, William Wilson, Steve Katrichak, Archie Woytula and Arthur Lowe. Group committee meetings will be held once a month in the Natal Health Centre. The Michel Local Union provides the Union Hall for the scout meetings held every Friday. Sponsoring body for the Scout Troop is the Kinsmen Club now under new group committee president Gordon Cook.

In conjunction with British Columbia's historic event, that of celebrating B.C.'s 100th birthday, the Natal 1st. Kinsmen Troop, like that of hundreds of other boy scout troops, lit one of many beacon lights that flashed across the province last Friday night. The beacon light with the added splendor of some fifty colored flares, was seen on the mountainside on the west end of Natal for many hours. A total of five beacon lights were recorded in the Fernie district alone staged by Scout Troops signalling the historic event, B.C.'s centenary.

Two School Additions Officially Opened

GRAND FORKS (Staff) — Education Week was observed with the official opening ceremonies for two additions to Grand Forks schools Monday evening, March 7, in Grand Forks Secondary School auditorium.

An estimated 400 people were present for theo ccasion.

Principal of the Grand Forks Secondary School W. Zoellner was chairman of the meeting. F. Orme, district superintendent of schools, District 23, Kelowna, was guest speaker.

He was introduced by W. Marchbank, district superintendent of schools, district 12.

A wire from the architects, Carlberg, Jackson Co., was read, offering congratulations and regrets at not being able to be present.

Mayor J. Goddard brought greetings from the city of Grand Forks and offered congratulations to the Board of School Trustees, the administration, the teachers and citizens who provided the money, for these two new additions.

Honorary chairman of executive, J. J. Verigin, USCC, also gave a short talk about the splendid facilities offered by the Grand Forks schools.

Dr. Perley, chairman of the Board of School Trustees, cut the symbolic ribbon and declared the buildings officially open.

He also received the keys to the new buildings. Representative of Wlasoff Construction, P. Abrosimoff, presented the keys for the Secondary School Vocational Wing.

E. Makaeff, representing Interior Construction, presented keys to the elementary activity room.

The secondary school choir conducted by Mr. Neufeld, rendered "Bless This House," in honor of the occasion.

While the buildings are not completely finished, or the equipment installed, the ceremony was held at this time, as this is Education Week.

A tour of the buildings was made by a large number of people. Many took advantage of discussing their children's progress with teachers.

Salmo Partyline . . .

Residents Protest Deer Killings

SALMO — Brownish red stains in the snow, a rack of raw bones and patches of hair-covered hide are mute testimony to the wilfull killing of deer by dogs whose owners let them roam at will.

As many as three dogs have been seen attacking one doe heavy with fawn. Terrified and confused the poor beast was literally torn apart and eaten alive. This happened barely outside the village limits.

Alarmed and indignant, several residents are protesting and asking why owners of animals don't try to execute some control over the wanderings of their pets until the deer go back up into the hills. Just south of Salmo seems to be the wintering place and herds of up to 17 animals have been seen browsing.

Six deer, at least, three of these does heavy with fawn, have met death in these vicious circumstances. At least a couple managed to tear away from their foe, hamstrung and bleeding profusely, to scramble up the bank to comparative safety.

Residents in the area are hoping steps will be taken to discourage owners from allowing their pets this constant day and night roaming.

We checked with the Village office just to find out how many dogs are licensed and there are 75 within the village. RCMP tell me they have issued 80 outside the limits and last year it was 100. There are quite a number without tags, both in and out of the village. So there does appear to be a great number of the beasties, roughly a quarter of our population. Some districts levy fines on owners of unlicensed animals but as one resident sourly quipped, does a licence allow owners to let their pets roam and destroy?

Fifty delegates are expected to converge here when the semi-annual West Kootenay Guide leaders conference convenes April 2. The main topic of discussion will be the International Scene on Guiding. Delegates from the area encompassing Nakusp, Rossland, Kaslo and Kootenay Bay will be in attendance. The morning session will be conducted in the library followed by luncheon under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary, then afternoon discussions will commence.

Transportation was arranged for the six Guide patrol leaders who will attend a conference in Nelson this Saturday. These crash courses do much to bring leaders up in all phases of guiding and acquaint them with any new procedures.

Committee Collects $686 for Airport

CRESTON (Staff) — A total of $686 had been collected by his committee towards the international airport at Porthill, Idaho, W. Piper reported to the executive of the Creston Board of Trade.

A further $200 had been received from the Town of Creston for the tie-down area if required, on the Canadian side, which will be matched by the board. A cheque for $50.00 from Creston Rod and Gun Club towards the airport facilities was presented by President Homer Eddy at the meeting.

Idaho cannot supply the DOT with levels data until the snow melts, Mr. Piper stated.

A reply to an editorial criticizing its attitude towards fly ash should be made the executive agreed.

Crestbrook's president Mr. Vic Brown wrote yesterday stating he agreed to be guest speaker at the March general meeting. CBC, Vancouver will be asked to provide up to the minute stock reports.

Regional College Opportunities Told

This September 1966 the first Regional College for the Nelson district will open. This college is dedicated to the student.

On Tuesday, Andrew Soles, Dean of Students; Dr. Brice Whittles, Head of Physics and Math Dept.; and Rev. Rodney Booth, Guidance Counsellor and Director of Student Activities visited L. V. Rogers High School to inform the students of the opportunities of the Regional College at Castlegar which will open this Fall.

Students from the West Kootenay District will pay a tuition fee of $200 a year compared to a $500 fee at most universities. It will cost $100 more for students outside our region and priority will be given to students from our area. Those from outlying regions will be admitted, however, in order to give "flavour and variety" to the college.

In the heart of the campus will be the library with 10,000 volumes for a start. The floor below this will be the student lounge. There are five individual education lounges, teaching may be done in small groups. In this manner, better learning will be accomplished.

There will also be a very large cafeteria designed for the benefit and pleasure of the students.

A modern gymnasium and theatre are planned but they will come as soon as possible in the third phase of building. The athletics department will specialize in track and field training.

Reverend Rodney Booth who was interviewed for this report stated that the purpose of the college is to train the student in becoming involved in his or her community. He said, "It will make better and more whole individuals of those who attend. Each person is worth something and although there will be a high standard, you don't have to be perfect."

Gordon Campbell, principal, said in an introduction in a brochure that, "The college hopes to maintain an attitude of experimentation and flexibility in the face of growth. With all concern for scientific advance, occupational requirements, and educational planning, we hope never to lose our faith in the improvement of human beings as a worthy end in itself."

The three men were very interesting speakers and I'm sure the students who attended their session enjoyed the advice.

Pollution Problem

The Nelson Jaycees are to be commended for the interest they are taking in the area's pollution problem, especially the pollution of Kootenay Lake from raw sewage.

It is high time that civic organizations such as the Jaycees realized the seriousness of the situation, and launched concerted efforts to end the nemesis of good health.

However, the concern of the Jaycees appears to be of a local nature. This is entirely wrong, for pollution, both of water and air, is widespread in the B.C. interior, and only a cure designed to stop it in every quarter can be effective.

The key elements required to bring the problem under effective control are strong legislation by both the provincial and federal governments—legislation with teeth in it whereby offenders can be forced to end pollution activities.

It is well-known today that the waters of the Kootenay and Columbia Rivers are unfit for human consumption, and that not even chlorination can make them so.

Health officials in Nelson and Trail have made this fact abundantly clear.

The city of Nelson, in dire need of an alternate water supply, has discounted the use of Kootenay Lake, in spite of its abundance and availability.

The Jaycees have undoubtedly shown that they have the best interests of the community at heart—that they are fully aware of the seriousness of the situation—and that they are prepared to concentrate their efforts in a drive to bring the problem under effective control.

It is essential, though, that their efforts be channelled in the right direction. Publicity on the situation is not sufficient,

The Jaycees and other organizations and individuals must make a concerted drive that will result in the passage of effective provincial and federal legislation that would make pollution control enforceable by law.

A drive must be made to have additional federal and provincial funds made available for the construction of sewage treatment and disposal plants, for many of the offending municipalities are not in a position, financially, to take on the construction of such systems without benefit of federal and provincial aid far in excess of that now available.

The Nelson Jaycees have made the preliminary move. Let us hope they carry through, and spearhead the drive that will eventually see our lakes and streams free of polluting elements, and our air once again crystal clear!

Bay Street Bank?

It is questionable whether the shareholder limitations proposed to the Commons finance committee last week by the sponsors of the Bank of Western Canada really meet the objections raised by a number of Western MPs.

The proposed amendments to the bank's draft charter provide that the main backers, who indirectly control about one-half of the initial capital, would begin reducing their holdings once the bank is on its feet. The reduction would be carried out under the supervision of the treasury board.

So far as dispersion of shareholdings is concerned, this really goes no further than the law is likely to require before long anyway. Last year's draft amendments to the federal Bank Act, most of which are likely to be reintroduced this season, required that no individual hold more than 10 per cent of the stock in any chartered bank.

The more fundamental objection to the Bank of Western Canada proposal is that so far as control is concerned the bank will not be a Western company at all. Its sponsors take the position that Western interests will be served by virtue of the fact that the head office will be in Winnipeg and a majority of the directors will be westerners. But how much influence are the directors likely to have when by far the largest block of stock, more than 40 per cent, is to be controlled by a small group of Toronto investors?

One of the bank's principal backers, Mr. James E. Coyne, has said that Canada could support about twice as many chartered banks as she now has and most Westerners would agree with him, particularly if the new banks will offer healthy regional competition for the older institutions.

But if the new bank is to justify calling itself the Bank of Western Canada, it will have to do something better than just appoint a few resident directors to keep the natives quiet.—Winnipeg Free Press.

". . . But we CAN'T really start an 'Un-Canadian Activities Committee' until we figure out what a Canadian is . . ."

The Washington Meeting

It is always hard to assess the value of international meetings of ministers such as last week's Washington meeting of the Canada-U.S. Joint Committee on Trade and Economic Affairs. It certainly cannot be judged by the communique. Nor can we take it as axiomatic that "the more we are together, the merrier we shall be."

These periodical meetings of Canadian and U.S. cabinet members (started in 1953) have always exemplified the danger inherent in over-simplified efforts at togetherness, It is that real problems become lost in a pink mist of official goodwill. Canadians are especially susceptible to pink mists. The more realistic Americans regard them as a deductible cost of doing business.

Meetings of ministers, in contrast to those of officials, run a double risk. The most common is that ministers—through politeness or ignorance or both—never really face the problems dividing their countries. Trained diplomats can talk around the points of conflict and understand each other very well. When responsible ministers try the same game, they too often end either by compounding misunderstanding or by evading the point altogether.

If, as we hope they did last week, ministers bring themselves to face the real points of conflict, they generally fall into the second trap—which is to disguise the event.

Some governments, having experienced a real clash, instinctively rush to hide it. They try to assure us that everything is for the best of all possible North Americas. Other governments, making a different assessment of political advantage, will pose as the defenders of Canadian chastity against the base designs of a foreign seducer. Canada has had examples of both postures within the memory of all of us.

In the present case it is a fair guess that Mr. Sharp and his colleagues would have chosen the first line — reverting to the Howe prototype—if it had not been for the brash outburst of Mr. Eric Kierans about the Johnson guidelines on foreign investment.

The official statements, however, are a poor guide to what really happened at last week's meeting. The Americans have every right to be puzzled about what Canada really wants, and we doubt if they are much clearer now. Canadian spokesmen still shuttle back and forth between a desire to attract American capital and an urge to diminish American control over our economy.

This does not mean that Canada's aims are unreasonable. Other countries with much stricter control over foreign investment retain full U.S. confidence and respect. Our problem is that we have not had a national government which knows what it wants. Instead, we have had a succession of panders trying to serve a nation which is determined both to have its cake and eat it.

Voice of French Canada

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal Le Devoir — Despite his remarkable gifts and his long experience in public affairs, Mr. Pearson has shown himself unfit to rule. In the last few months he has made several deplorable decisions. . . . He has shown in serious circumstances an astonishing lack of courage. . . . No one feels secure under his leadership any longer.

How can this paradox be explained? A prime reason evidently lies in Mr. Pearson's past. The prime minister has been a diplomat, or a civil servant, almost all his life. However, there is a world of difference between a diplomat and a political leader.

The diplomat, as a general rule, applies a policy. When he participates in the elaboration of this policy, he does it on behalf of other men who in the end will have to take the responsibility for it in the public eye. . . . The world of the diplomat is ideally one of nuances, compromises, grey solutions.

The political leader is, on the contrary, the man on whom falls the responsibility for defining and defending policies. Evan if he has not been the actual father of the policies, he must shoulder the ultimate responsibility and defend them in the face of public opinion.

Moreover, our political system rests on the assumption that the leader, having been placed at the head of the machine, must avoid making mistakes, avoid going against the mechanism or impeding the operation of the system once it has been put into motion.

Everything indicates that this role does not at all suit a man who has been formed in the art of zigzag that characterizes the diplomatic service. As a public figure, Mr. Pearson is indecisive, unstable, changeable. In him the intelligent citizen and the subtle diplomat too often win out over the political man right in the middle of a tight battle.

A careful observation of Mr. Pearson's behavior also leaves the impression that the prime minister is a poor leader of men. Mr. Pearson is powerless to act decisively in case where a rapid decision is necessary. With Mr. Pearson each affair is prolonged indefinitely.

Despite his repeated errors and the instability of his leadership, Mr. Pearson has won the sympathy of his members of Parliament and his colleagues. . . . This supply of goodwill and moral support which Mr. Pearson enjoys has up to now prevented his close helpers and supporters from raising brutal questions on the quality of his leadership. In the worst moments of crisis, the same thing is finally said: "Mr. Pearson is still by far the best man."

After three years of experience, we are convinced this beating around the bush has lasted long enough. By his paradoxes and contradictions, Mr. Pearson has led the government and Parliament into impotence. With his own hand, he has killed the myth that not so long ago was created around his name. There is nothing left for him now but to draw the unavoidable conclusion.—Claude Ryan (March 12)

Montreal La Presse—Up to the present time, this unfortunate Parliament, paralysed by vendettas, has done nothing worthwhile. It has marked time while confronted with an enormous legislative load. When will it once again become conscious of its true responsibilities? . . . The two parties in the House, which have fallen many notches in the eyes of the public, have for weeks been in the process of destroying each other. If this sorry spectacles does not soon end, our parliamentary system will only be able to come out of it staggering. It must be hoped that this prospect has already been haunting for some time the minds of the more lucid and serious members. If not, the situation is even worse than it appears. . . .

Another aspect of this interminable crisis is the profound division that it risks creating within Parliament and the two principal parties, between French - Canadians and English-Canadians. Whatever errors and responsibilities weigh on each, it must be noted that the partisan fights conducted at Ottawa in recent years have for the most part had French-Canadians as targets and victims. . . . Whatever one says, whichever way one turns, one comes back in the end to an impression of disarray, to a sort of state of impotence in face of events which exceed normal proportions. Things are at the point where only a sudden recovery close to a miracle can again give life and movement to this sorry Parliament which is at the mercy of its own contradictions.—Cyrille Felteau (March 14)

Today in History

The United tates Senate voted against ratification of the Treaty of Versailles and U.S. membership in the League of Nations 46 years ago today—in 1920—despite the protests of former president Wilson, the architect of both. The slogan of the day was "Return to normalcy" with President Warren G. Harding and no further participation in "foreign wars." In fact the United States enormously increased its foreign diplomatic activity in the postwar years, but the peacemaking League could not be expected to work without the support of the richest country in the world.

HUBERT

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Indonesia's domestic political disturbances have left her with little energy to pursue her policy of bringing down the Malaysian Federation, considered by Indonesia as an extension of British influence in Southeast Asia.

This does not necessarily mean, however, that the heavily-populated and potentially-rich Southeast Asian nation has given up her determination to crush the young federation.

The political picture has been blurred in Indonesia since last October's attempted Communist-backed coup against President Sukarno, and subsequent events have done little to clarify it.

The crushing of the coup strengthened the army's position and left Sukarno in the middle of a power struggle between the left and the right. Military leaders then stood by or encouraged mobs to slaughter an estimated 100,000 Communists.

POLITICAL BALANCE

Sukarno, 64 and weary, continued to plead that there should be a place for the Communists in Indonesian politics to balance the right wing military and Moslem organizations.

Last month he fired the defence minister, Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, one of the anti-Communist leaders, and touched off a wave of unrest, student riots and demands for a break in diplomatic relations with Peking.

The students, apparently encouraged by the army and police, increased their anti-Communist demonstrations with shouts for the ouster of Subandrio, first deputy premier and foreign minister, as well as other cabinet ministers sympathetic toward the Communist Chinese.

Sukarno has been president of the country of more than 100,000,000 since he and other revolutionary leaders proclaimed Indonesia a sovereign republic two days after the Japanese surrender during the Second World War.

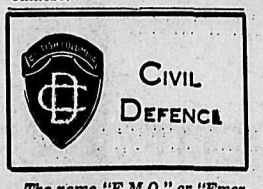
He retained the title when The Netherlands recognized Indonesia's independence in 1949 after a four-year struggle. Sukarno proclaimed himself president for life three years ago.

But Sukarno has failed to raise Indonesia, potentially the richest country in Southeast Asia, out of the economic difficulties that have plagued her since independence.

The growing economic instability and political unrest forced Sukarno last Saturday to hand over unlimited authority to Lt.-Gen. Suharto, the army minister and chief of staff. Suharto immediately banned the Indonesian Communist party.

He also promised to meet student demands, which included the ouster of Subandrio and other pro - Communist cabinet ministers.

But Wednesday night Sukarno declared that he remained in full control.



The name "E.M.O." or "Emergency Measures Organization" is used in various provinces in Canada instead of the name "Civil Defence." Essentially, however, they refer to the same organization.

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the Editor on any topic of genuine interest are welcome if they are brief, accurate and fair. They may be published over a nom de plume, but the name of the writer must be given to the Editor as evidence of good faith. Anonymous letters go into the wastepaper basket. We reserve the right to edit any letter sent in for publication for reasons of brevity, good taste or legality. Typewritten letters must be double-spaced.

To the Editor,

Dear Sir:

Section 14 of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Act (under which the Columbia land acquisitions are taking place) reads as follows:

"(1) Subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, which may be given by order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council the Authority has power

(f) to purchase or otherwise acquire, lease maintain, develop, replace, alter, administer, manage, operate and dispose of any property, real or personal."

I have emphasized these portions of the Act to show the open and unlimited authority vested in the Act to be exercised by the Hydro Authority. Arrow Lakes property owners have brought the Authorities use of the vast powers, and the manner in which such use has abused rights of the individuals to the attention of the government and all MLA's.

One can say in sureness that nowhere else in an advanced, enlightened democracy does such legislation exist, or that such wording has been slipped into legislation now to be used in the full intent of its onerous character. From knowable sources it is so far in trampling simple rights of the German people (excepting Jews, Communists, etc.), segregated sections of the country.

The Social Credit Party claims to the most in protection of the rights of the individual at election times. Under Premier Bennett they have gone further to abrogate long existing rights than anyone has ever imagined could happen. No one in a democracy could or would run for office on the basis of advocating the expropriation or taking away from one person inherent value of property to transfer to some other. This is in actuality what is being done.

If the people of the Arrow Lakes are to succumb to the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Act as it is now constituted and being used, whom is the next victim.

The Hydro Authority and present government may say to this letter that land acquired above flood line is to be retained for public use. Legislation under which land is now taken gives the Authority the right to dispose of any property real or personal without limit.

It is a sordid sequence to a so-called or self-called dynamic society that land is taken from B.C. citizens by such totally undemocratic legislation and in most cases at totally unreplaceable values and government members, though aware, turn their heads.

Hints From Heloise

By Heloise Cruse

FROM HELOISE'S KITCHEN:

Dear Folks:

Here's a new one I came across that hit me like another ton of bricks (Some day, that's going to hurt my head, eh?)

You know that a lot of us buy vegetable oil (that's the stuff we fry in and put on our salads, etc.) in big bottles because it's usually less expensive that way.

Next time you are in a quandary as to whether to buy one large bottle or two small ones—COMPARE the ounces on the side of that bottle — and see if it's not cheaper to buy the two small ones. Sometimes it is.

I am told by manufacturers that the large, heavy bottles cost more to produce, and sometimes that's the reason. So, learn to compare prices against ounces before making purchases.

Anyway, I have learned that you can pour your vegetable oil into one of those lovely, plastic, flip-top-type detergent bottles if you wash it thoroughly and rinse it in vinegar (to counteract any detergent you might not have rinsed away), then with water again.

Another thing about this great plastic bottle is that instead of getting globs of oil on anything, it comes out in a nice, thin stream. This is especially good when squirting oil on a lettuce salad, or when you want to slightly, and evenly, grease the bottom of a skillet.

Also, detergent bottles are so easy to pick up — they are usually shaped to fit our hands; and if one is dropped, it won't break. Land o' goshin, have you ever dropped a quart of oil? What a mess to clean up . . .

And, guess what else? You don't have to waste time unscrewing and screwing that ol' top back on every time you use the oil. This alone will save seconds each time, eh?

And, may I again remind you that any time you can save 10 seconds a day doing something an easier way, please do so.

Pick up your pencil and multiply that 10 seconds by the number of days in each week and see how much time you've saved.

Over the years, you can take a vacation with those piled up seconds. And, look at the energy you will have saved, too.

Any time we can save 10 seconds, let's do it, gals.

Heloise.

Dear Heloise:

If you have an old, wooden, folding ironing board, don't discard it.

It's the best portable workbench ever. It can be set up and used in the basement or garage, to mix paint, patching plaster, etc.

It can be carried into the yard or garden, and used there to clean or cut vegetables from your garden, pot plants, and for many other messy jobs.

A few layers of newspapers placed on it will keep the surface clean; or it can be washed off easily with the garden hose, if necessary.

After each use, it can be closed and stored in a handy place.

Longer Education Period Said Strain on Young

OTTAWA CP — Birth control education should begin with young children in the home, says pediatrician Dr. Harry Ebbs.

Speaking at the meeting of the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club, he said the lives of later generations may be made unpleasant and even intolerable if population growth is not checked now.

Dr. Ebbs, senior physician and director of post-graduate education at Toronto Sick Children's Hospital, said that although the world's population increases by 165,000 every day, the annual percentage increase was actually going down.

He said the main problem for modern teen-agers is not delinquency, drugs, alcohol or sex, but the increased length of time they are expected to spend in school.

"We pressure them to do an increased amount of school work while we are demanding more leisure, more pay and more security."

Because of longer university education, young people were still financially dependent on their parents, though they were old enough to marry and have children.

Art of Thinking Topic at Chapter Meet

Members of Iota Chapter Beta Sigma Phi had the opportunity to prove that they had a way with words when they met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. T. Keniston, Lakeview Crescent.

Mrs. M. Renwick and Mrs. M. Rystephanuk took an interesting approach to their program topic "The Art of Thinking" by encouraging members to think for themselves. The Chapter formed groups of four to test their vocabularies with the popular game of scrabble. Mrs. R. Kaye was presented a colorful candy dish for achieving the highest score in the game.

Following the interesting hour of scrabble, refreshments were served by Mrs. Keniston, Mrs. A. Ferguson and Miss I. Swanson.

Gump Worsley Takes Advantage Of Second New Lease on Life

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was only last May that the little round jolly guy who guards the nets for Montreal Canadiens got his second new lease on life in the National Hockey League.

And Lorne (Gump Worsley, who stands five-feet-seven and weighs 180 pounds, hasn't looked back since.

Worsley is the No. 1 goalie for the Canadiens and he and partner Charlie Hodge are headed toward winning the Vezina Trophy—the award given to the goalie or goalies having played a minimum 25 games for the team with the fewest goals scored against it.

The Montreal duo has allowed 157 goals in 62 games and lead Chicago Black Hawks' team of Glenn Hall and Dennis DeJordy by six.

The 36-year-old Worsley received his first new lease on life in the fall of 1963 when he left behind a miserable 10-year career with New York Rangers to join the Canadiens.

WAS TARGET

When Worsley toiled for the hapless Rangers, he was used for target practice by opposing sharpshooters. The Ranger defence was far from solid and more often than not he was left to fend for himself.

Some observers used to say Worsley could have been the best goalie in the NHL if he played for a first - division team. Then the big trade was made and Montreal sent veteran Jacques Plante to New York and made room for Worsley.

Things, however, didn't start off too well for Worsley as he showed up at the Canadiens' training camp overweight. And to complicate things for him, Hodge was playing sensationally at the other end of the practice rink.

Worsley started the season in Montreal, but played only 7½ games before he was injured and sent to Quebec Aces in the American League to play himself back into shape.

Hodge took over and performed admirably, winning the Vezina Trophy in the process. Meanwhile, Worsley languished in the minors and the critics began talking of him being in the twilight of his career.

GETS SECOND CHANCE

But the chubby netminder got his second chance last season after Hodge faltered badly after a good first half. He played 18 games for Montreal during the rest of the regular season and starred in the playoffs against Chicago.

His second new lease on life actually came in the final game of the Stanley Cup finals when he blanked the Hawks 5-0.

From that time on, Worsley has grown in stature in Montreal and appears to be set for at least another couple of seasons.

GUMP WORSLEY

The only trophy Worsley has ever won in the NHL was the Rookie of the Year award in 1952-53. He has never really been in contention for the Vezina until this year and it looks like he'll finally make it.

Canadiens will be out to protect their first - place lead on the weekend when they play host to the Rangers tonight and visit the second - place Hawks Sunday.

The only other game tonight has Chicago visiting Toronto Maple Leafs. Sunday's lineup has Toronto in Detroit against the Red Wings and New York visiting Boston Bruins.

Gonzalez Takes Middleweight Championship

NEW YORK (AP) — Puerto Rican-born Jose Gonzalez took the American middleweight title from Don Fullmer with a slashing body attack that earned him a unanimous 12-round decision at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The 25-year-old New Yorker, ranked No. 1 contender by the World Boxing Association, took the play from the Utah boxer from the start with his steaming pokes to the body.

It was the third straight victory for Gonzalez, who has a 31-10-1 won-lost-draw record. Fullmer's record is 36-13-13.

Although Fullmer is not ranked by the WBA, he was the 6-5 favorite.

Fullmer weighed 159, Gonzalez 158¾.

Four Rinks Unbeaten In NDUCC Bonspiel

Four rinks remained undefeated after the second draw of the Notre Dame Curling Club bonspiel Friday night. Rinks skipped by Pepper, Blondin, Jensen and Reid advanced to the third draw without a loss.

Pepper took wins over the Timoteo and Boyce rinks while Blondin defeated rinks skipped by Bonertz and Kleine. Jensen beat out Kennedy's foursome in his only game and Reid entered the second draw against Jensen without playing a first round contest.

In other first round games, Boyce won out over Winkelaar, and Kleine beat Moser.

Langston set back Fabro, and Futa defeated Etmanski. Other Friday night results had Gilchrist the winner over Bennett; Wytinck beat McCurrach; Borody defeated McLaughlin; Albo took his game with Shaw; Thorpe won out over Byrne; Morrison beat Saunders; Simister set back Yaydik; Olinger defeated Parkins; D'Arcangelo took a win over Jordan; Moore lost to McCallum and Lousier beat Schmaltz.

Pepper now meets Blondin and Jensen and Reid clash. Langston takes on Futa; Gilchrist matches stones with Wytinck; Borody and Albo meet; Thorpe goes against Morrison; Simister and Olinger throw stones against each other; and McCallum and Lousier clash.

In the "B" event, Fabro beat Etmanski, McCurrach handed Bennett his second loss, Shaw did likewise to McLaughlin; Byrne took his first win by beating Saunders; Moore edged Parkins; Moser took a win from Bonertz; Jordan defeated Kennedy and Vaydik won out over Boyce. Timateo meets Winkelaar and Kleine meets Reid in other games.

In late Friday night games in the second event, Fabro clashed with McCurrach; Shaw goes against Byrne; Moore meets the winner of Timateo-Winkelaar; Moser and Jordon throw stones; and Vaydik will meet the winner of the Kleine-Reid game.

Competing for prizes in the four events are 37 rinks from the university. The prizes are split into the "A", B, C and the outlaw events. The "outlaw" competition is a handicap event.

The bonspiel goes through Saturday and winds up Sunday evening.

Sparwood Takes Consolidation

NATAL — Playing in a four-team Men's Invitational Basketball tournament held in Blairmore last Saturday, Sparwood All-Stars playing as a team for the first time this season performed exceptionally well as they won the consolation trophy by defeating Blairmore Spartans by a 72-51 score in the final.

Sparwood led by a 38-13 score at half time. Four players hit the score for double figures for the winners with Lilio Colonello top scorer with 18 points, followed by Armand Lalonde with 14 points, Doug Chala with 11 and Peter Pagnucco with 10. For the losers, Richard Brazzoni was high scorer with 17 points. Playing in their opening game in a knockout competition, Sparwood All-Stars suffered a 69-64 loss to Coleman Cagers in a closely contested game.

Coleman held a 34-28 lead at half time, a lead which Sparwood did not overcome. Randy Milner with 26 points was the high scorer for the winners, followed by Blaine Vandals who collected 16 points and Ken Milner, 10 points. In a losing cause, Lilio Colonello had 21 points, closely followed by Armand Lalonde, who chipped in with 20 points.

Doug Resting

BOSTON (AP) — Defenceman Doug Barkley of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League was resting comfortably Friday after undergoing a second operation for an eye injury suffered in a league game.

A spokesman at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary said the surgery Thursday was "quite successful."

Barkley was struck in the eye by a stick. He underwent surgery to correct a detached retina and the second operation was to strengthen the retina.

"It is unusual to have only one operation in these cases," the spokesman said.

STOWE, Vt. (AP) — Madeliene Wuilloud of Switzerland won the women's downhill race of the U.S. alpine and international ski championships Friday, covering the soft, sticky run of just under a mile in 66.55 seconds.

Heidi Obrecht, also of Switzerland, was second in 67.68 and Christl Haas of Austria third in 68.86. The race on nosedive trail was the opening event of the three-day meet for men and women.

Camille Henry, Rod Gilbert and Bobby Hull all have one thing in common — they refuse to quit. The three have played with broken noses, braces on their backs or legs, and have still performed like champions.

Nelson Maple Leafs forward Gail Holden is such a player. He played the last half of the schedule with a bad shoulder, but took as many if not more bumps than any other player in the Western International Hockey League. But the gritty centreman refused to stop.

Wednesday night in Kimberley, some 1800 fans were left in stunned disbelief for 80 minutes and 43 seconds by the performance of Leaf netminder Jim Letcher. He kicked out 44 drives and left the spectators, the Dynamiters, and at times, his own teammates, shaking their heads as he took goal after goal away from Kimberley.

The 23-year-old goalie played the last 13 minutes and some seconds with a brace on one knee and needed the support of the net to hold himself up. But he never quit. Unable to make the brilliant moves he had shown all night, Letcher relied on his glove to stop the Dynamiter drives.

But the inevitable came at the 10:43 mark of the sudden-death overtime period when Walt Peacosh broke up a Leaf play at centre ice and went in to score.

The goal gave Kimberley the game and the semi-finals series, but to the majority of the fans it was Letcher's game all the way. After the game, one fan, his head still shaking in amazement, commented, "They'll never find a tougher competitor anywhere."

He was so right. Letcher, the man who led the Leafs to the Allan Cup finals last season, played the game with tape on both shoulders, groins and knees and finished the overtime stanzas with a steel brace on one knee.

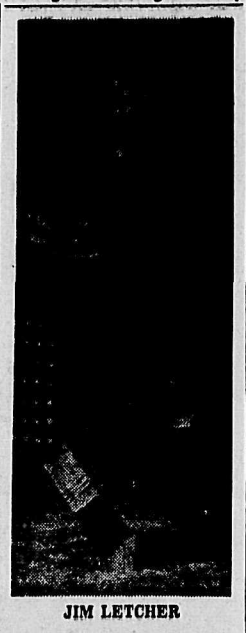
He was in obvious pain in the overtime but refused to quit. He couldn't move his leg, and depended on his glove and stick to ward off the attacking Dynamiters. Even with his brilliant moves gone, Letcher left the fans stunned as he picked off screened drives at the last possible moment. But the time had to come when he couldn't stop that last one, and it came at 10:43.

Letcher's performance was emblematic of the entire Nelson team as they gave everything they had before bowing out.

They played half the third period with a man, sometimes two, in the penalty box and exhausted themselves killing off the penalties and preventing the Dynamiters from scoring.

With Kimberley the superior team in the overtime as they found new life in the dressing room, the Leaf players were throwing themselves in front of the puck in a last ditch effort to survive.

Their only real good scoring opportunity came with 45 seconds gone in the overtime period when Carl Chwachka broke in on the right side and let fly with a shot that Wardle knocked down. Leroy Mowery and Mike Laughton had golden chances to score on the rebounds but both times they shot into the pads of the fallen Kimberley netminder.



JIM LETCHER

For the Leafs it's a short season in comparison to last year, two months shorter to be exact.

But they bowed out like champions Wednesday night to a team that was just as hungry for the win and came out on top.

The Leafs had their problems over the season with injuries as several key players were out of action at one time or another. One key player was missing for the final game of the season — Skip Holmes. The forward-defenceman remained in Nelson fighting a bout with flu, leaving a gap to be filled on the wing.

For the Leafs, it was a disappointing season. They had the talent to win, but couldn't put it all together and come up with a winner.

They gave their best, but it just wasn't enough.

Letcher was a prime example of the team. He refused to say die — the entire team just wouldn't give up. That's the kind of competitors they are.

Apartment Tenants Setting New Trend

Just as Canada settled into the image of a family living the good life, in its own home, cutting the grass and finishing the basement, along has come the greatest apartment building boom in Canadian history.

Unlike previous apartment spurts of this century, the current boom is not limited to a handful of major cities and shows every sign of becoming a permanent feature of the Canadian housing picture. Multi storey tower or two storey town house is as likely to turn up in Williams Lake or Grand Forks as in Toronto or Vancouver.

To the owner, apartment buildings are attractive investments but the rate of return is governed by that all important factor, rate of tenancy, and this is where the renting public are making their likes and dislikes known to investors and builders alike.

New apartment buildings are attractive and modern in appearance and very often have picture windows, wall to wall carpeting, ample parking and sometimes offer their tenants extras such as community recreation rooms and indoor and outdoor swimming pools. All this means that the present renting public have a much wider choice of apartment living than ever before and in some areas apartment operators are finding keen competition for tenants.

HEAT SUPPLIED

In a recent survey conducted it became evident that prospective tenants preferred apartments where the heating and hot water is supplied and included in the rent. This survey showed in most cases the occupancy rate for this type of apartment to be almost 100 per cent.

In the apartment buildings where the tenant is required to pay for his own heat and hot water through a separate meter, in addition to his rent, the occupancy rate dropped in some areas to as low as 30 or 40 per cent, rising slightly in the summer months and dropping drastically during the winter months. Indications are as more and more apartment blocks are built and the tenant has more and more choice, that this feature alone may very well make or break an apartment project.

HYDRONICS

Most apartment buildings where heating and hot water is supplied, are heated by a new term in the heating industry, "hydronics." Hydronics is a hot water system using baseboard radiators usually with individual thermostats for each apartment. This new type of hot water system is highly engineered and offers a high degree of comfort with a very low cost of operation and maintenance. Most of these hydronic installations are readily adaptable to full summer air conditioning, using the newly designed chiller system. Water in the system is chilled during the warm summer months and circulated through the same equipment as is used for the heating.

Domestic hot water is supplied by one or more central automatic water heaters, which means the tenant never runs out of hot water and also eliminates the capital cost of installing individual water heaters for each apartment.

TOTAL ENERGY:

In some of the large apartment projects, natural gas total energy has been used successfully. This is a system where a natural gas engine or turbine is used to generate all the electricity necessary for the building.

Though total energy plants produce the same 60-cycle electricity that is supplied by the electric utilities, they have the added attraction of being able to provide, with relative ease and efficiency, not only combinations of energy but also combinations of electric frequencies such as 60 cycles and 420 cycles from the same module. This feature alone has tremendous advantages for lighting in large buildings.

Fluorescent light, when operated at the high frequency, exhibits remarkable characteristics. High frequency eliminates the need for the bulk and weight of the ballast in the fixture; it reduces the watt consumption and at the same time increases the light output and improves the whiteness of the light; it increases the life of the fluorescent tube and eliminates the flicker effect. Thus electricity itself becomes a better product. The heat produced by the engine or turbine is used, through converters, to heat the building in the winter and to operate the chiller unit for summer air conditioning. In the big blackout of the Eastern seaboard in 1965, these apartment buidings were very noticeable as islands of light in the surrounding blackness.

The Modern Home

"THE CEDAR"

To meet the demand for something different, yet practical, the Building Centre Design Department presents "The Cedar", featuring the new trend in post and beam designing, with split entry and open planning . . . the living room runs the full depth of the house from front to back, with large picture windows at each . . . creating a new space concept for the limited area.

This practical and economical house should appeal to even the most discriminating of house owners, constructed as it is from our own native wood. It complements any setting . . . town or country.

The split entry makes it particularly desirable, lending itself to open planning, not only the main floor, but throughout the basement area, with plenty of space for extra bedrooms, recreation room, laundry facilities, etc. Although the floor area is only 1050 square feet, with careful designing, the rooms are large and spacious with a good sized kitchen - family - dining room opening off the large living room, good size bedrooms and a sun deck accessable from dining or family room.

Natal . . . Lion Officials Visit Club

The Lions Club district governor, district secretary and zone chairman for the area of British Columbia visited Natal recently to inquire into the possibility of establishing a new service club in the district.

These representatives of the world's largest, most active and most representative service club organization feel this area could benefit from the establishment of such a club. The Lions Club representatives were joined for lunch at the Michel Hotel by ex-Vancouver Lion member Larry Revitt of Natal who agreed to act as a contact for any interested person.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Michel Fraternal Order of Eagles recently celebrated their 37th anniversary with a pot luck supper held in Michel St. Paul's Church hall. The evening was spent in games of whist and bingo. Bingo winners were Mrs. Forrest Lewis, first and Mrs. Bernie Graham second. In whist, Mrs. M. Krall won first prize and Mrs. C. Kozler second. The Ladies Auxiliary to the Michel F.O.E. was instituted in 1929.

Not Merely Laziness Perhaps Sickness

MONTREAL (CP)—If a college student cannot study, it isn't necessarily because he's lazy.

One out of every eight students who drop out or fail does so because of serious emotional problems. With the increase of psychiatric help available on campuses, these disturbed students might be helped to go back to their studies.

The problem could arise from inability to cope with the study load, insecurity, inability to adjust, homesickness, sexual conflicts or financial strain, says Dr. J. Lohrenz, head of the psychiatric section of McGill University's Health Service.

"I don't believe in old fashioned laziness," says Dr. Lohrenz. "Any youngster who has had sufficient motivation to get into college must have undergone some kind of revolution if he stops studying."

The student's problem may be one isolated crisis: it doesn't mean he is mentally sick, Dr. Lohrenz says.

SOME BLAME EXAMS

General statistics seem to indicate six to 10 per cent of college students will seek some kind of psychiatric help if it is available.

'We see less than this percentage at McGill," Dr. Lohrenz said.

Psychiatrists can point out some of the stresses of university life, but then it is up to the administration to try to reduce them, the doctor says.

It has been suggested, for instance, that exams be replaced by another means of testing because they are a cause of panic.

All adolescents go through some mental anguish in growing up, whether they are at college or not.

The university's special intellectual atmosphere does not make existing problems more difficult, but it can provide the added stress of financial burden, and living up to scholarship standards, he said.

Your Individual Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birhtday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Sunday, March 20, 1966

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Before beginning, review your day's schedule carefully. And, in all situations, use good judgment. There are some misleading influences prevalent now.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — You may well disagree with the ideas and activities of some folks, but go along with what has been thoughtfully planned. Look for some good news in the P.M.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Some of your best ideas may come when you least expect them. Jot down anything that comes to mind now, as it may prove profitable later.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Many persons will be highly impressionable now, so be careful of the example you set. They will be watching. Keep emotions under stern control and do not mistake sheer obstinacy for tenacity of purpose.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Good solar influences. A splendid day to proceed onward toward your goals. If you are not working, at least get in some good planning. It will pay off next week.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — A fine day for personal betterment, social affairs and long-range planning. Shun a tendency toward extravagance, however. Work on a hobby could prove profitable later.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Read Virgo. Your outlook similar. In giving thought to future moves, do not consider your own interests solely. Consider how others may be involved.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — Everything may not go as planned, but revisions could prove beneficial in the long run. Innately, you are keenly perceptive, so look ahead!

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Common sense may seem to be conspicuously lacking in certain places but, by using your ingenuity, you can overcome the deficiencies of others. A rewarding day if you play your cards right.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Shun over-exciting activity; welcome serenity — there's a busy week ahead. Especially favored now: Travel, educational and domestic interests.

YOU BORN TODAY are usually quiet-spoken, clear-headed, in or out of an emergency. You strive steadily; can be disappointed because you feel others are being contrary, which they may be. But your smile could disarm. Also, your persistent good will and confidence in the future could bring about healthy changes, better progress all about. Your painstaking efforts usually bring good results. You are fitted for a position of trust and could handle many people at once. You are sympathetic, can often get returns from sources where others fail. Birthdate of: Charles W. Eliot, American author, educator; Henrik Ibsen, Norwegian dramatist.

Archeologists Work Rebuild Rare Codex

TORONTO (CP) — Archeologists in Canada and the United States are trying to piece together the shattered remains of a rare codex in an attempt to learn the history of the ancient and extinct Mayan civilization of Central America.

Dr. David Pendergast, assistant professor of anthropology at the University of Utah, says in a letter that the codex was found by a Royal Ontario Museum expedition to British Honduras last June. Dr. Pendergast headed the expedition.

He said the fragments were found in a tomb at Rockstone Pond, a giant ceremonial site about 30 miles north of the capital, Belize. The Mayan name for the site was Altun Ha.

The tomb is thought to date back to the late 9th or early 10th century AD.

A codex is the earliest kind of manuscript in book form. It replaced the earlier papyrus roll and wax tablets. Only three codices survived the Spanish conquest of the Mayans more or less intact.

DRAWINGS INCLUDED

"In the last tomb discovered in the 1965 season we found that a codex had been laid out carefully just below the feet of a priest, among several pottery vessels," Dr. Pendergast said.

"To my knowledge, the only other discovery of what were thought to be fragments of a codex was made . . . in the 1920s."

The fragments found by the expedition lay in a series of overlapping plates suggestive of folding that characterized codices.

"The most important part of this discovery lies in the presence on the stucco fragments of drawings done with a very fine brush or other writing instruments in black accompanied by red lines in several areas, all on a light green background.

"We cannot determine what the drawings represent, since the fragments are so small, but it is possible to see that the quality of the work is high. . . ."

Efforts to remove the fragments in one piece by injecting a kind of cement into the area where they lay were thwarted by rain that washed into the tomb from the entry hole in the roof.

To save the fragments, the members of the expedition had to remove them with tiny tweezers and needles.

Some Oddball Tax Queries

VANCOUVER (CP) — You've got to be an understanding guy to be a successful income tax adviser.

Otherwise you could be headed for trouble.

So said Arthur Broughton, federal income tax department official here Wednesday as he reviewed some of the queries he gets on the experimental telephone counselling service set up in Vancouver for people puzzled by their income tax forms.

One young airline stewardess, he recalled, asked if she could "take her clothes off." She, of course, simply wanted to know if she could claim her uniforms as a deduction.

He recalled a newly-married husband who asked some information "on the back side of his wife's form." The husband was talking about the second page of his wife's tax return rather than her anatomy.

"You do get some oddball questions," said Mr. Broughton. 'But these things keep the job from getting tedious."

And if you've any idea that the income tax boys are ready to slip over a fast one at the first opportunity, Mr. Broughton wants you to know it just ain't so.

He pointed out that last year, for example, the department returned $14,000,000 to taxpayers who had cheated themselves on their own returns.

"We are not a bad bunch of guys, really," said the income tax man.

Cranbrook . . . Harris Heads Rotary Club

CRANBROOK — Michael W. Harris has been named by Cranbrook Rotary board of directors as club president to take office in July. Vice-president will be Leo Nimsick Jr., secretary Malcolm McPhee and treasurer still to be named.

Preliminary information has been rounded up by Mr. McPhee, appointed in December to investigate merits of club sponsorship of organizing a Cranbrook Community Chest to coordinate the various financial appeals through the city all year. Added to his committee are Norman Cullen and Donald C. MacDonald.

Next move will be to consult various interior centres with established united fund drives as to method of organization and operation, after which the committee will make a report and recommendation to the club.

Bonds Mixed

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the Canadian bond market this week.

Short-term Canada issues lost 5 to 10 cents while the 3½-per-cent, May, 1966, issue closed at $99.81 bid and $99.86 asked.

Long-terms were off with the 5¼-per-cent, May 1, 1990, issue closing at $93⅞ bid and $94⅛ asked.

Treasury bills climbed sharply with the Bank Rate increased to 5¼ per cent from 4¾. The 91-day and the 182-day bills closed at 4.92 and 5.15 per cent.

Day-to-day money closed at 4¼ per cent. The amount available was $166,000,000 compared with $184,000,000 last week.

Chief interest on the provincial market was a new $50,000,000 HEPC 6-per-cent, 22-year debenture at 100.

Corporate and municipal trading was quiet with few price changes.

Chataway Gets Ninety Claims

Chataway Exploration today announced acquisition of 90 claims in the Brenda Lake area in the southern interior of B.C.

Company president S. W. Wright made the announcement at the Chataway annual meeting, and said the claims were 25 miles west of Brenda Mines' molybdenum prospect.

Wright also reported that trenching and stripping on the newly acquired property adjoining Cariboo-Bell in the Williams Lake area would begin as soon as possible. In addition, Wright said the company was negotiating another block of claims in the same area on a working-option basis. Chataway now has full interest in 140 claims in the Cariboo area.

Don James, chief geologist of the Bralorne Group which is developing 114 of Chataway's Highland Valley claims in Zone 4 told shareholders that drilling will begin on the Zone 4 area on or before April 11. He said all preliminary surveys have now been completed.

Regarding Chataway's wholly-owned Pine Point claims, which Bralorne is also developing on a contract basis James said line cutting was completed on the 30 claim Rye Group which adjoins Pyramid. He said an induced polarization survey would commence shortly.

James added that an induced polarization survey started on Tuesday on the 48-claim Ken Group, which is also in the Pine Point area.

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Friede, 25-year-old grandson of the late Philadelphia publisher M. L. Few University Students Of "Blue Collar" Families

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Students from working-class families are greatly under - represented at Canadian universities, says a report released Wednesday by the Canadian Union of Students.

A survey of student means by Robert Robinovitch, the report says 48 per cent of 7,611 students questioned in universities across the country gave their father's occupation as professional, proprietory or management.

Only 35 per cent of those questioned gave their father's occupation as among the so-called "blue collar" jobs. The remaining 17 per cent listed other occupations such as farming, mining, logging and fishing.

Thus, the study says, high-income "white collar" families, which make up less than one quarter of the Canadian population—23.3 per cent—send nearly half of all students to the 47 Canadian universities and Colleges surveyed in February, 1965.

SEND UNDER THIRD

The "blue collar" families, which make up 64.1 per cent of the population according to Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures, send a little over a third (35 per cent).

The report includes lengthy statistical data gathered from all Canadian universities except the three French-language ones in Quebec—Laval, Montreal and Sherbrooke.

Mr. Rabinovitch is a PhD candidate at the Wharton School of Finance of the University of Pennsylvania.

"Studies in the past have indicated Canadian students by and large are not representative of the Canadian class structure but rather bear the characteristics of the middle and upper classes of Canadian society," he says.

He implys economic reasons are most likely behind the fact that children of the working classes are in a minority.

Financial support for the survey came from the federal finance department, which contributed $14,500 and the governments of Nova Scotia and Ontario which each contributed $2,500. The project, to continue with a study of student means at technological institutes and classical colleges, already has an $18,500 deficit.

HAS OFFER

NEW YORK (CP)—Peter Jennings, 28, of Ottawa, anchorman for ABC's television network news coverage, said Friday he has had an offer to return to Canadian television. He refused, however, to say who made the offer or whether there is any likelihood he'll accept it. Jennings came to New York in September, 1964, from CTV, to challenge such firmly - established newscasting figures as Walter Cronkite of CBS and the NBC combination of Chet Huntley and David Brinkley.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Studebaker Owners Worry About Future

DETROIT (AP)—Some time within the next 10 days the last Studebaker automobile will roll off the assembly line in Hamilton, Ont., leaving 1,500,000 Studebaker owners with one burning question:

"What do I do now?"

The company's answer to that question: "Relax."

The cars will depreciate, but perhaps not as much as expected and parts will continue to be available as they are for the old Packard which Studebaker stopped making 10 years ago.

Studebaker announced earlier this month that because of falling profits it would stop making the car which it had produced for 84 years. All Studebaker car assembly has been concentrated for some months in the Ontario city.

A company spokesman said the last car will have been assembled by March 23, but he declined to say exactly when it would come off the assembly line.

STILL SELL PARTS

But Edward J. Challinor, president of Studebaker Automotive Sales Corp., said in an interview, "We anticipate a long-lived business in parts."

He said there are no plans at this time to abolish any of Studebaker's six regional parts depots in the United States.

"The whole parts operation will be run by us during the entire warranty period (two years or 24,000 miles on new Studebakers), and as long as there is a profit," he said.

Challinor pointed out that many Studebaker components are standard industry parts, also used by other auto makers.

Studebaker engines in the late 1964s, the 1965s and the 1966s were made by Chevrolet. Transmissions were furnished by Warner Gear Co.

How about depreciation?

"I don't think there's much doubt about that," he replied. "I think the depreciation (because of the closing of auto production) will occur for the first couple of years."

SEE RELATIVE VALUE

But Challinor added: 'An out-of-production automobile that's in clean shape is often worth more on the used-car market than another car of the same year."

He figured the heaviest depreciation would occur in 1963-1966 Studebakers.

The firm estimates it has 450 active dealers in the U.S. and 125 in Canada.

Obviously, some will close, Challinor said.

See Increased Paper Demand

MONTREAL (CP) — Annual world demand for paper will rise to 180,000,000 tons in 1975, Ian B. Chenoweth of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association predicted Tuesday.

Demand will increase still further to 226,000,000 tons in 1980, he added.

By comparison, world production was an estimated 109,000,000 tons in 1965. In 1963, the United States and Canada together produced and consumed half of the world's paper output.

Mr. Chenoweth, speaking at the annual meeting of the association's woodlands section of the association, said there is, however, an indirect threat to the industry in the growing competition of plastics, films and foils.

These products "are becoming cheaper every day and will make even more serious inroads in our business unless our overall costs remain competitive."

MARKS ANNIVERSARY

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, still regarded as the Roman Curia's most formidable conservative churchman, Friday celebrated his 50th anniversary of ordination as a priest. The 75-year-old cardinal is marking the jubilee Saturday with a special mass among friends and well-wishes at his ancient titular church on Rome's Coelian Hill.

Short Term Loans Bring Higher Rates

OTTAWA (CP)—As a result of the increase in the Bank of Canada interest rate, the federal treasury now is paying nearly five per cent on the best quality short-term loans available to investors.

But the bank is continuing to keep a tight rein on expansion of the money supply, its weekly statistical bulletin showed Thursday night. Cash reserves of the chartered banks remained virtually unchanged this week at $1,453,000,,000.

A yield of 4.92 per cent was established in Thursday's regular weekly auction by the finance department of 91-day treasury bills, compared with 4.69 in last week's bidding. The yield on 182-day bills was 5.15 per cent, up from 4.9 last week.

In other words, $987.88 Thursday would buy a promise of the federal treasury to pay back $1,000 in three months. A bid of $974.95 would get $1,000 in six months.

INFLUENCES MARKET

Treasury bills are short-term borrowings by the federal treasury on the money market. The government keeps about $130,000,000 worth outstanding week by week in order to meet its own day-to-day cash needs but mainly to create a market for short-term securities which it can influence and thus exert pressures on the money market generally.

The bills are sold at an auction conducted by the Bank of Canada. The central bank puts its bids into the auction for its own investment portfolio and also to swing the market up or down as a signal to the money market generally on how the Bank of Canada thinks interest rates should move in the current economic situation.

The bank increased the official bank rate last Monday to 5¼ per cent from 4¾ per cent, the rate which had prevailed since Dec. 6. This was a signal that interest rates should rise to make the cost of borrowing money more expensive and thus put some dampening effect on spending and investment, which the bank felt were exerting excessive pressure on the economy.

TOTAL DIPS

The amount of currency in circulation and chartered bank deposits held by the general public last week totalled $18,988,000,000, down $96,000,000 from the previous week but $1,725,000,000 higher than it was a year ago.

Under banking legislation and central bank regulations, the chartered banks can expand their Canadian dollar deposit liabilities only to 12 ½ times their cash reserves. Reserves this week indicated little room for growth in the money supply. It had reached nearly $20,000,000,000 late in December and since has been steadily reined in.

Record Export Wheat Hauled

MONTREAL (CP)—The CNR transported a record 114,300 cars of export wheat to terminal elevators between Aug. 1, 1965, and Feb. 28, 1966, the railway's executive vice - president announced Tuesday.

Norman J. MacMillan said the previous record, 4,400 cars less, was set during the corresponding period in 1963-64, when the first large Soviet order was placed.

At the Lakehead, grain stocks had been increased to almost 80,000,000 bushels from less than 25,000,000 when inland navigation ended.

At Churchill, Man., a record 24,700,000 bushels were cleared and stocks at Vancouver had been increased to 13,000,000 bushels from 9,100,000 last October.

Mr. MacMillan said shipments of export grain to East Coast ports are expected to end shortly after the middle of this month. He said the CNR has met its commitments fully for movement of grain to Halifax and Saint John.
