Enthusiastic Reading Given Divorce Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill that makes marriage breakdown grounds for divorce won enthusiastic first reading in the Commons Monday night.

Adultery, bigamy, physical or mental cruelty, and sodomy, bestiality, rape and homosexuality are listed in the bill as specific grounds.

In addition, either husband or wife when living apart may petition for divorce on the grounds that there has been a permanent breakdown in their marriage.

However, marriage breakdown must be proved in the courts, Justice Minister Trudeau said.

The breakdown must be based on one of the following circumstances:

—The respondent has been imprisoned for not less than three of the five years prior to the petition;

—The respondent has been imprisoned for not less than two years prior to the petition but on a sentence of death or more than 10 years, with the appeal process exhausted;

—The respondent has for not less than three years before the petition been "grossly addicted to alcohol or a narcotic" without reasonable expectation of rehabilitation;

—The petitioner hasn't heard from or has been unable to locate the partner for three years;

—The respondent has refused to consummate the marriage or has been unable to because of illness or disability for at least one year;

—The couple has been separated for at least five years because of desertion of the petitioner;

The couple has been separated for any other reason for not less than three years.

A barrage of complimentary speeches followed introduction of the bill by Justice Minister Trudeau, a 46-year-old Montreal bachelor.

CHRISTMAS GIFT

Arnold Peters (NDP—Temiskaming) said the minister has given a Christmas present to the "500,000 people the Canadian Bar Association says are living in common law marriages . . ."

Many would be able to legalize their relationships, Mr. Peters said. He was among the MPs who a few years ago blockaded the passage of divorce bills through Parliament to force drafting of new legislation.

Ron Basford (L—Vancouver-Burrard), who was co-chairman with 90-year-old Senator Arthur Roebuck of a special parliamentary committee on divorce, described it as "an historic night."

Most divorce laws in Canada were 100 years old and were "stupid, antiquated and outdated," Mr. Basford said.

$500,000 FIRE RAGES IN LETHBRIDGE

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — A restaurant and at least three businesses housed in a hotel-convention centre were destroyed Monday night in a $500,000 fire.

Firemen were hampered for a while by exploding high-calibre ammunition stored in a gun craft shop. They also watered down an area of the shop where two kegs of gunpowder were threatened by the fire.

The main complex, which contains a year-old 1400 seat convention centre, occupies a city block in the city's eastern shopping area. It is valued at between $1,250,000 and $1,500,000.

IWA Picket Lines Ignored As Mill Men Return to Work

By PETER RICKWOOD

CRESTON — A rift between the carpenters' and woodworkers' unions in the Kootenays grew last night after mill workers here announced that they will cross IWA picket lines again today.

Monday morning, Crestbrook Forest Industries employees ignored IWA picketers who barred their way to the Crestbrook mill.

In a sharp attack on the carpenters, IWA business agent Jack Munro said in Nelson: "I guess when you build a union on a foundation of scabbery it doesn't improve."

He claimed that the carpenters' union became certified in the Crestbrook plant after the "1953 legal IWA strike".

"The carpenters organized people who scabbed on that strike," said Mr. Munro.

Mr. Munro said that picketers will be in their place again this morning.

"This plant has been picketed since Wednesday on a 24-hour basis. We have the legal right to picket this plant — it was established in the courts".

Twenty-seven IWA strikers from Cranbrook and Nelson faced more than 100 Crestbrook workers Monday morning.

RCMP stood by, and, commented Jack Munro, who was among the picketers: "I was very happy to see them there to protect our picketers."

But he alleged: "One of the strike breakers tried to hit one of our picketers with his car."

Carpenters Union local president Axel Jensen said: "There were a few hot words thrown back and forth. I told one of our members to shut his mouth."

Mr. Jensen said he thought the IWA was being "unfair".

In a letter to the Nelson Daily News, he explains the reasons behind the decision by his union to cross the picket lines.

(In a weekend vote, 95 per cent were in favor of crossing the picket lines.)

The letter says: "We were never approached at any time or in any way by the IWA to solicit our support, either morally or financially in their present strike.

SOUGHT AGREEMENT

"The executive members of our union arranged a meeting with the executive members of the IWA to try to arrive at an agreement not to impose their picket lines on this operation.

"We proposed the following: 1. We offered no strike bound machinery with work for Creston division. 2. We offered that no foreman or employee from strike bound operations would work on Creston operations. 3. We would not allow any increase in production by additional shifts. 4. We also stated that we would not sign an agreement with the company due to the fact that it could impair their bargaining position.

"At this meeting E. Atwood, business agent for the IWA Cranbrook local, stated: 'The reason we want to shut Creston Division down, is that it is supplying Fort Plywood (veneer plant at Fort Macleod, Alta.) with raw material'." The carpenters say that the Fort plant is an IWA operation.

The letter continues: "We said that raw material is also being shipped by Kicking Horse Forest Products at Golden, B.C. (also an IWA operation) and therefore, closure of this operation would not affect Fort Plywood to the point of closing.

"NOT REASONABLE"

"Since some of the IWA locals do not support their union's demands, we feel that it is unreasonable to expect our membership to support them."

But the IWA would not consider the Creston Carpenters' proposals, adds the letter.

"Because of the existing labor law in B.C., if a local union is forced out of work, due to a picket line, it is impossible to draw any assistancec from the unemployment insurance commission or from social welfare.

"The IWA asked us to honor their picket lines for three days, which we have done. Now they have requested a further two-day extension. We feel that this condition could continue indefinitely as the first vcie-president of the IWA said that once a picket line goes on, it will remain on for the duration of the strike.

"The IWA will not support us financially in return for our moral support. Our provincial Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America is not able to assist us financially because of our union bylaws. Since the aforementioned meeting, we have reached an agreement with our employers. The labor laws state that we must honor a signed agreement."

The letter concludes: "Two alternatives were placed before all employees at three well attended meetings. The following were considered:

1. Honor the picket lines and receive no financial support from any source for an indefinite length of time.

2. Return to work with all aspects of the law supporting our action and fulfil our responsibility to the economic welfare of this community before morally supporting conditions or pickets by an outside union."

The letter adds: "The employees supported the second alternative by an overwhelming majority of 95 per cent."

Mr. Jensen said that the real test for the carpenters would come today.

"The IWA is supposed to be here in full force."

But last night, Jack Munro said: "We aren't looking for a showdown. Our people are instructed that we don't want violence."

Carpenters' business agent John Hecker said that he will be at the Crestbrook plant this morning when the employees go to work.

He would make no further comment, though.

Monday, when the carpenters crossed the picket lines, they returned to work with a new working agreement.

Friday night the Lumber and Sawmill Workers of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, ratified the new agreement by 96 per cent.

It gives a 44-cent increase across the board in every category with 40 category provisions ranging from three cents to 44 cents above the base hourly increase.

Other gains made under the contract include a union security clause, travel time and bush operations and a health and welfare plan, said Business Agent John Hecker.

The contract is retroactive to October 1967 and expires on November 1, 1969. It has been negotiated during the last three months.

Britain Bans Meat Imports In Battle Against Disease

LONDON (AP) — An epidemic of foot - and - mouth disease, ravaging farm animals since October, forced the British government Monday to ban imports of meat from all countries where the disease is prevalent.

Hit hardest by the temporary ban are Argentina and Uruguay. North American meat exporters are not affected. Argentina supplies 90 per cent of Britain's chilled beef supplies.

Meat dealers in London expressed fears the ban would drive meat prices up for housewives already paying up to six cents more a pound because of devaluation of the currency last month and a long dock strike. A current slowdown by labor union workers on the nation's railroads could make matters worse if it continues or expands into a strike.

British farmers have been pressing the agriculture ministry to ban imports of meat from countries where foot-and-mouth disease is prevalent, although experts have been unable to trace the present epidemic to imported stocks.

So far the agriculture ministry has ordered the slaughter of 254,942 infected cattle, sheep, pigs and goats. Farmers are reimbursed by the government.

Announcement of the ban was made by Agriculture Minister Fred Peart. He told Parliament meat importers would "suspend for the time being new shipments from all countries in the world except those very few where foot and mouth is unknown, or which have a long history of freedom from it."

Makarios Accepts U Thant Proposal

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus Monday joined Greek and Turkish leaders in accepting UN Secretary-General U Thant's proposals for averting war over the Mediterranean island republic.

The Cypriot president called for the complete withdrawal of Greek and Turkish troops on Cyprus and for UN Security Council action to bar any military intervention.

Greece and Turkey had accepted the proposals soon after they were presented Sunday, including Thant's appeal for withdrawal of Greek and Turkish forces above the levels prescribed in the 1960 Cyprus independence agreements. Thant described such withdrawals as the first step in a long-term settlement.

Makarios, a Greek Orthodox archbishop, said in his delayed response that he welcomed Thant's appeal as "a significant and constructive contribution to the cause of peace."

Thant also had suggested that "it might be considered desirable" to enlarge the responsibilities of the UN peace force on the island to help prevent bloodshed between the bitterly antagonistic Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot populations.

Canadian Prisoner Escapes Lynch Mob

APALACHICOLA, Fla. (AP) — A Canadian prisoner accused of murdering a policeman with a stolen gun has been spirited out of this small Florida Panhandle town to save him from a possible lynch mob.

He remained hidden at an undisclosed jail Monday while the sheriff's office polished its case.

David Edward Barlow, 29, of Guelph, Ont., was charged with first-degree murder in the Friday night shooting of Patrolman Fred Babb.

Police said Barlow was captured after a 23-mile chase at 100 miles an hour when he crashed Babb's patrol car into a pine tree.

After an hour in the Franklin County jail in northwest Florida, Sheriff H. O. Marshall and deputies sneaked him out the back door and took him to another jail because a mob of 100 to 150 angry persons gathered in front of the building.

"The town got pretty hot," Marshall said. "It looked like we might have a lynching party, so we moved him for his own safety."

Marshall said a gun taken from Barlow was the one used to kill Babb, shot down when he tried to arrest a man for allegedly stealing a deputy's car at gunpoint from the sheriff's office.

Labor Relations Board Clarification Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — A government proposal to clarify powers of the Canada Labor Relations Board and give it authority to hear certain appeals touched off heated Commons debate Monday.

Before the dust settled, Conservative Leader Stanfield and other opposition members had accused Labor Minister Nicholson of reneging on what they termed an assurance he had given the House.

Mr. Nicholson opened debate on a measure, later given first reading, to give the 19-year-old board a new appeal division. It would hear appeals only on board rulings concerning the appropriateness of labor bargaining units.

The bill, an amendment to the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act, apparently is designed in part to meet complaints of the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions.

HAS 10 MEMBERS

The CLRB now is composed of a chairman, vice-chairman and eight members, evenly divided between management and labor representatives.

Three of the labor members represent the Canadian Labor Congress and one represents the CNTU. The latter has complained that in issues between the two labor bodies, it does not get fair treatment.

The CNTU also has challenged the board's policy of refusing to break up national bargaining units to allow the CNTU to represent units when it has a preponderance of members regionally.

This complaint apparently is the basis for a clause in the amendment clarifying the board's powers "to determine that employees in one or more self-contained establishments or in one or more local regional or other distinct geographical areas within Canada constitute a unit that is appropriate for collective bargaining."

Other proposed changes:

—Creation of an appeal division to hear appeals of board rulings only on the appropriateness of bargaining units. The division would be headed by the board chairman or one of its vice-chairmen and two new "public-interest representatives.

—Appointment of a second vice-chairman.

—The board would be empowered to sit in panels made up of the chairman or a vice-chairman and two members, possibly simultaneously at various points across Canada.

British Rail Traffic On Go-Slow

LONDON (AP) — A go-slow campaign of British locomotive engineers built up steadily through the day and hit homeward-bound London commuters hard Monday night. Railway spokesmen said it will be worse this morning.

Transport Minister Barbara Castle said more than 100 commuter trains were cancelled during the Monday morning rush period but emergency arrangements to speed vital supplies had worked "very smoothly."

Voter Apathy Inevitable Says Municipal Minister

VICTORIA (CP)—Disinterest by the majority of voters in Saturday's B.C. municipal elections is inevitable, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Monday.

Told many local officers are predicting a poor turnout at the polls Saturday, Mr. Campbell said "that is to be regretted."

"I hope they're wrong in their prediction."

It is a poor argument for democracy that important referenda and municipal questions "are resolved on less than 25 per cent of the people turning out," he said.

Mr. Campbell made his comments in a brief corridor interview shortly before a regular cabinet meeting.

Asked if B.C. might change to a two-year system rather than holding municipal elections every year, Mr. Campbell said "we have not had any requests from the municipal people themselves."

"The answer cannot lie with playing around with the dates or technical procedures—it's something much deeper than that."

Heart Transplant Patient Sips Fluids

CAPE TOWN (AP) — A South African with a transplanted heart spoke for the first time Monday, saying: "I am feeling much better." But doctors warned a crucial period for him is expected by the week's end.

Louis Washkansky, 55, underwent an operation Sunday, receiving the transplanted heart of Denise Ann Darvall, 25, fatally injured in an automobile accident the day before. Her heart was kept "alive" for three hours with a flow of fluid from the time of her death until the operation.

Prof. Jan. H. Louw of Cape Town University's medical school, said Washkansky's condition is good after what was described as the first human heart transplant in medical history.

He sipped his first fluids Monday about 38 hours after his operation.

The patient's temperature, pulse and blood pressure were normal, his condition was better than expected and he slept well Sunday night, Louw reported.

Washkansky's heart had been so bad that he had not been expected to live long.

He was being fed intravenously. A respirator which aids his breathing was removed, permitting him to speak.

The transplanted heart was in good condition, Louw said, and required only a single shock to start it beating after being transplanted during the five hour operation.

Rejection of the heart by Washkansky's body was the greatest danger now, doctors reported. Louw said drugs were being administered to lessen the chances of such a rejection.

The most serious possibility of rejection will come at the end of a week," he added. "This is the crucial time for the success of the operation. He may not show any effects, but this is the time when we will get a bit anxious.

"As this is the first operation of its kind, there are many questions that are unanswered and this is one of them. We must meet them as they arise."

Washkansky, a Lithuanian-born Cape Town businessman, could be kept alive on a heart-lung machine if the transplant is rejected, said one specialist, but only for 24 hours at the most.

"If the heart is rejected by the patient, we are at the point of no return," the specialist added.

The 30-year gap in ages between donor and receiver makes no difference, said Prof. Christian Barnard, who led the surgical team that performed the transplant at Groote Schuur hospital.

Three years of research with animals preceded the operation.

"This research was to work out a technique," Barnard said.

"Once we decided we had this worked out, we felt we could do a transplant on a human. . . . We realized that the donor would probably have to be a victim of a motor accident.

"I think a cheer went up in the operating theatre when we gave the heart a shock and it started."

A young doctor who watched the 30-man team of medical specialists perform the operation told of the tension and the later feeling of relief.

MADE HISTORY

"We were all tangibly aware that this was medical history in the making," he related. "There was terrific tension. Most of the time was taken up with anastomosis—the painstaking work of suturing main arteries and veins of the patient to those of the donor heart.

"Then, when the last anastomosis was in place they clamped the tubes leading from the heart to the pump. This was the moment of truth. Everybody leaned forward. There was a hush in the theatre.

Prof. Barnard muttered: 'It's going to work.' The four surgeons stood back with their hands clasped, waiting. Time seemed to stand still. Then the patient's heart took over.

Edward G. Darval, the donor's father, said if his daughter had been conscious just before she died she would willingly have granted permission for the transplant.

"I know she would have wanted me to give my permission," he said. "I wish Mr. Washkansky lots of luck and hope that he will pull through."

Mrs. Washkansky has not been allowed to see her husband since the operation but she said the doctors are keeping her informed of his progress.

Slim Christmas Seen for Woodworkers

AS THE MEALS ON WHEELS SERVICE began yesterday, Nelson's old folk discovered how heart-warming it was to have a nice hot meal brought to their homes. At top left Mrs. Stella Johnson, Sister Mary Luca and Mrs. E. McEachern are shown dishing up meals for delivery. At top right, Frank Bentley, 88, is being served his dinner by Mrs. R. H. Procter and lower right, Alex McDonald, 86, ties in to a bowl of hot soup to start his meal off. The meals are being cooked by the staff at Mount St. Francis and members of Beta Sigma Phi are taking care of delivering the meals where required.

IWA PLANS BONUSES, CHILDREN'S PARTIES

There are growing indications that Christmas 1967 is going to be a Yuletide without the Yule for thousands of families of woodworkers in the Southern Interior.

Signs of any settlement of the two-month-old dispute seemed further away than ever Monday.

In Kelowna, Jack Moore, regional president of the IWA, said his union will give a bonus in Christmas strike pay packets and plans for children's parties will go ahead.

And following a weekend meeting of the employers, a news release from the Interior Forest Labor Relations Association, said that operators resolved to maintain their offer of 44 cents hourly.

The statement added that some employers "did not think they should be committed to such a large wage increase any longer in view of the consequences of the prolonged strike."

The release accused the union of being "unrealistic" in prolonging the strike.

But Jack Moore said that the next step is not up to the union.

UP TO COMPANIES

"It's up to them now (the companies), or someone acting as a mediator," he said.

There were indications some lumber firms wanted to negotiate, he said, but the association was holding them back.

In Nelson, Jack Munro, IWA business agent, said a Quesnel plywood and sawmill operation had proved that operators could afford to pay parity.

He said that a $1.4 million expansion and improvement program has been started at Weldwood of Canada's plywood and sawmill operations in Quesnel.

The project is to be completed in May and will provide employment for an additional 25 to 30 men.

At present the Quesnel operations of Weldwood employ about 650 workers and the annual payroll exceeds $4 million a year.

The expansion follows last year's completion of a two-year, two and a half million dollar renovation at the same operation.

And last year, Weldwood signed an agreement with the IWA granting two 24-cent-an-hour increases, plus the Coast increase and 16 cents in the final instalment on September 1, 1968.

WILL HAVE PARITY

On that date IWA members employed by Weldwood at Quesnel will have achieved complete Coast base rate parity coupled with complete Coast job parity in the plywood operation through plywood evaluation.

"This clearly indicates that the 'equal pay for equal work' demand by IWA members employed in the Southern Interior Forest Industry are completely justified and do not spell ruination for the employers."

In a fresh development in the East Kootenay Monday, construction trade unions affected by picketing of the Skookumchuck pulp mill construction site, planned to meet today.

IWA picket lines have been firmly respected by the construction workers since they went into place two weeks ago.

Their meeting today will discuss the financial implications of respecting the pickets.

The 480 idled employees do not qualify for any assistance in the form of strike pay or welfare and have a four-week wait for unemployment insurance.

Police Ask Aid in Search For Hit-Run Vehicle

Nelson City Police have issued a plea to area residents to be on the lookout for a car involved in a hit-and-run accident here on Saturday night.

Police said that a car, described as a 1964 Pontiac, black with red upholstery, was north-bound on Stanley Street and collided with a parked car owned by Bill Ogden of Nelson at the intersection of Hall Mines Road.

Police said the accident occurred about 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

They said the wanted vehicle received damage to the right front headlight and fender. Anyone with information is requested to contact the Nelson City Police Department.

Will City Have Say? Alderman Queries

Concern over whether Nelson City Council would have any say on how money given by them towards regional planning would be spent was expressed by Ald. Kennedy Facchina at Monday night's council meeting.

Question arose on receipt of a letter from Regional District of Central Kootenay explaining that Miss Vestey had been appointed planning director, to commence March 1, 1968, at a salary of $6600 per annum.

Ald. Facchina enquired whether City Council would have any say on budgetting pertaining to regional planning. "Do we have any say on how these moneys are spent?" he asked.

Ald. J. H. MacMillan, City Council representative on the Regional District Board, assured Ald. Facchina: "The time you will have a say is when you deal with this budget."

It was pointed out by Mayor Louis Maglio and Ald. Fritz Farenholtz that the appointment of a planning director was something that Council had asked for.

"We asked for this planner ourselves," said Mayor Maglio, "so we are committed to it. But we could dispute this consultant planner idea when the time comes."

The planning director salary item was referred to the provisional budget of the Regional District.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Burglars stole about $1,000 in cash and goods when they ransacked the home of city police inspector Norman Will at the weekend. Among items missing: an old police inspector's badge.

Police Car Winds Up Chase As First Safe Driving Casualty

Nelson City Police were covering up their blushes Monday after admitting that the first vehicle involved in an accident in the city during Safe Driving Week was — an empty police car.

Momentarily deprived of its driver, the car found its path obstructed by a telephone pole and . . . crash!

As if that was not embarrassing enough for the unfortunate policeman involved, the car-meets-pole incident happened on Nelson's main thoroughfare — Baker Street.

The episode began about 9 p.m. Friday (first day of the nation-wide Safe Driving Week campaign), when Cpl. Keith Nicol was on mobile patrol.

At that time the officer visited the washroom of a cafe at the east end of Baker Street and apprehended a youth who, police said, appeared to be inebriated and causing some trouble.

The 17-year-old youth was taken to City Police station and left sititng in the court room while Cpl. Nichol interviewed another person.

However, the prisoner did a quick disappearing trick . . . through a window. The police officer jumped in the car and began combing the streets.

He located the escapee on Baker Street just east of Railway Street, jumped out of the car and again apprehended the youth, who made no attempt to get away.

Until, that was, Cpl. Nicol placed him in the front passenger seat and started the car forward to move it from the centre of the road before applying handcuffs to the prisoner.

That was a signal for the youth to attempt a second escape bid.

The policeman grabbed his coat. But he, his spotlight and the radio microphone were yanked right out of the car in the tussle.

Meanwhile the car proceeded on its way. Cpl. Nicol quickly regained his balance on the icy pavement, and bounded after the runaway vehicle.

HITS POLE

But before he could reach the steering wheel, the left side front of the police car had made the acquaintance of the telephone pole, at a cost of about $300.

Needless to say, the youth had fled once again. But his freedom was short-lived. Ten minutes later Cpl. Nicol found him hiding in a doorway and this time made no mistake.

Police said Monday that charges of escaping unlawful custody and causing a disturbance would be laid against the youth.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Frederick Laboucan, 20, was sentenced to 50 days jail after pleading guilty to pointing a firearm and assaulting a police officer. He was arrested after an argument with a woman at the Fraser Bridge Trailer Court, Nov. 27.

Presidents' Club Proposal Meeting With Approval

There are encouraging indications that the proposed Presidents' Club for Nelson will receive solid backing from local service clubs, lodges and other groups.

The idea and the general concept behind it, was put by R. E. Nelson in his capacity as president of Nelson Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of representatives of various organizations November 14.

Mr. Nelson explained that the functions of the proposed Presidents' Club would be to co-ordinate the pooling of efforts to take on the bigger projects which are too much for individual organizations to tackle alone.

After the initial meeting the attending representatives were to report to their clubs and explain the ideas behind the proposal.

Wednesday this week, at the Nelson Hotel, the second and most crucial meeting of representatives will be held.

Then they will siguify whether their respective organizations are behind the idea.

Although nothing has been officially made known, general feeling is that the proposal has been well received and that plans to inaugurate a Presidents' Club will be set in motion.

Rites Held For John Farkas

Many friends gathered at Thompson Funeral Chapel Saturday when funeral services were held for John Farkas. Rev. David A. Cline conducted the service and Mrs. W. A. Manson was at the organ.

Hymns were "How Great Thou Art" and "God Be With You."

Serving as pallbearers were Nello Stedile, Doug Colley, Harry Horton, John Styler, Nick Verigin and John Bickert.

Interment was in Nelson Memorial Park.

ENCOURAGE NATIVITY SCENES

SPARWOOD — A "Keep Christ in Christmas" campaign will be conducted in the District of Sparwood for the third straight time this year sponsored by the Natal Father Anthony OMI Council, Knights of Columbus.

Plans for continuing the project were completed at a recent regular meeting in St. Michael's Hall in Natal. Prizes will be awarded once again for the district's home judged as having the best outdoor scene throughout the area portraying Christmas as the birthday of Christ. Awards will be made for first and second place in the competition.

In other business the council set aside Saturday, Dec. 9 as the night for the council's annual Knights of Columbus Christmas turkey bingo, to be held in St. Michael's Hall in Natal.

Twelve turkeys will be played for, also consolation prizes. Proceeds will go towards the council's charity fund.

Four Churches Served Settlers At N. Denver at Turn of Century

By GUS STANKOVEN

New Denver was extremely well provided for in the earlier days in the matter of places of worship.

It was not oblivious of the fact that considerable mischief had been done, and serious pecuniary loss sustained, in times past, by most indiscriminate misrepresentations made by enterprising and precious land agents in the old country, with a view to tempt people to venture their future lot in the Dominion of Canada.

Strange to relate, comparatively little effort had been made prior to 1908 to attract immigrants to this charming, healthy and promising district. As a place of residence, and for mining, lumbering and fruit cultivation.

There was no more delightful resort than the Slocan, offering exceptional advantages. When coming out from the old country to a new colony, to form a new "home", the natural enquiries for family men to make were: was there a church representing my faith? Were there schools for the education of our children? Was the district healthy and the sanitary conditions under control?

To each of these important questions, New Denver in 1908 could give the most satisfactory answers. In all the towns, there were four places of worship, exceptionally well represented — Catholic, Rev. Father Jeannotte; Anglican, Missionary Baynes; Presbyterian, Pastor W. M. Chalmers; Methodist, W. A. Gifford. There were two efficient schools in the town, ably conducted by T. T. Rankine and Miss L. McVicar, and all the other towns enjoyed scholastic advantages.

In the Slocan there were five Catholic churches, at New Denver, Sandon, Silverton, Slocan City and Nakusp, and these were all served by Rev. Desire Jeannotte, a priest of French-Canadian blend, beloved by persons of all sects and thought.

BUSY PRIEST

A typical Father O'Flynn in many of his mannerisms, he whipped the delinquents to their Christian duties and applied the healing salve to all afflicted souls. He was perhaps the busiest rustler in the district. Besides the five churches mentioned, he had also to serve Kaslo, a rising city of importance on Kootenay Lake, and 37 other missions.

He visited all the small points and wherever one went, he was liable to hear the tinkle of the sanctuary bell, whether it had been in the bunkhouse of a mine, a logging camp, sawmill or farm house.

The first Catholic church was built in Sandon in 1900 and Father Cote was the resident priest. He remained there for five years and in the rough sphere did excellent missionary work.

In 1905 Father Jeannotte arrived from Medicine Hat, Alta., and during the time, the Catholic community had become very strong and all the churches were free from debt.

The Anglican church of St. Stephen was prettily designed and the well-appointed church was consecrated by the Lord Bishop of the diocese, John Dart, DD, June 21, 1904, but opened for divine services May 14, 1899.

New Denver—like many other townships in the province — had experienced times of adversity, and consequently the church suffered, but resuscitated since Missionary Baynes had been in charge, from October, 1906. Mr. Baynes, previously at Malakwa and Arrowhead missions, was popular amongst all classes — a sound churchman with moderate views — a practical preacher and worker. He raised the mission to a satisfactory position, which was confirmed by increased congregations, well represented by the young men of the district.

TRAVEL BY BATEAU

The Methodist church in New Denver was founded in the days when men reached the camp by "poling" a bateau from Lemon Creek to Lake Slocan, and rowing it thence to New Denver. The bateau carried three or four tons of freight, and passengers paid $3 each for the privilege of supplying the motor power.

Rev. James Turner, who enjoyed the affection of "old timers" from the Yukon to the boundary, reached camp in the spring of 1892. Messrs. McGillivray and Farwell were then engaged in a lawsuit to determine who owned the townsite, but both agreed that whoever won the suit would devote land for a church and parsonage.

The government later reserved the land along the lakefront, and itself donated a site for the Methodist church. In 1908, there were still several men in New Denver who "packed" lumber from the wharf to the church site, and helped Mr. Turner erect the building in the spring of 1893. It was not until the approach of winter that "the boys" put on a play in the Denver House, and the women served lunch, to secure money with which to put in the windows.

The superintendent of the Sabbath School for the first 10 years was Mr. Pyman. His "yarns", his quaint expressions and original methods were still remembered, and his faithfulness in work had become a proverb. The superintendent in 1908 was Capt. Amos Thompson, while the pastor then was Rev. W. A. Gifford, who came to New Denver in 1907 from Toronto. Mr. Gifford was a graduate in arts of the University of Toronto, and in divinity of Victoria College, Toronto.

ONCE A MINER

The Knox Presbyterian Church was served by Rev. W. M. Chalmers. Originally a miner in Scotland, after seven years work as such, he felt called to the ministry and began his studies in 1899, take a course of medicine in the Andersonian College, which is affiliated to the Glasgow University, with the object of becoming a medical missionary. After completing 10 years of medicine, he went to Hailey College, London, England, and there studied arts and theology in the winter, and in the summer months was engaged by the Gordon Evangelistic Mission in itinerary work among the highland villages in Aberdeenshire, and also in Banff and Morayshire.

During his last year in London, he was accepted by the directors of the North African general mission for service in Algiers, when, under a plea made by the late Dr. John Robertson, on behalf of the great Canadian west, he was led hither. He spent two years in Manitoba College, Winnipeg, and in 1908 had worked for the B.C. mission for four years, and had occupied the pulpit of the Knox church for 12 months.

He received the full status of a minister of the Presbyterian church in Canada by consent of the General Assembly of the Canadian Presbyterian Church, which met in Winnipeg June 4, 1908.

The Methodist Church, now named the Turner Memorial United Church after its founder, Rev. James Turner, still stands on Bellevue Avenue and is the oldest church in the community. True, it has undergone renovations, repairs and changes but still stands in its original site and is definitely an historic building in this village.

Mr .and Mrs. J. Draper, along with Mrs. E. Kirkwood, all residing here today, are the only ones left of the original living members of the old Methodist congregation of 55 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. J. Draper, who are well known throughout the district, were married Nov. 14, 1914, by the minister of the Methodist church, Rev. William Robert Welch.

Fernie Anticipates Increase in Taxes

FERNIE — A $32,000 works crew wage demand, increased education costs, expected additional salary increases for city hall administrative staff and increasing costs across the board will force a definite hike in this year's taxes.

This was the almost unanimous view of city council in its last meeting before the Dec. 9 election.

The public works wage demand is still subject to negotiation and it is hoped that the 39 per cent wage hike will be trimmed somewhat, but a hefty increase is feared for the 18 full-time men and one half-time man working in the city's public works and electrical departments.

The wage demand, which would give raises varying from 29 per cent to 57 per cent to everyone on the crew from laborers to foreman, has been submitted by the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Council anticipates that whatever final settlement is reached in negotiations starting immediately will have to be followed by similar increases to salaried administrative staff, adding another $10,000 to $15,000 to the city's cost.

Also anticipated is another hike in the bill from the school board to cover expected increases in wages of school janitors, bus drivers and stationary engineers whose unions are beginning wage negotiations. Teachers already have had a wage increase, part of the cost of which the city must share.

Question of raising rents in city apartment blocks or selling both blocks were suggested as possible revenue producers, with aldermen charging that submarket rents are being charged to a large proportion of the occupants as a form of unnecessary city subsidy. Without costs which a private owner would have to pay, the apartments are considered to bring in about $12,000 revenue a year. Taxes, normal maintenance, insurance and depreciation would reduce this figure if they were privately owned.

New Office Opened At Edgewood

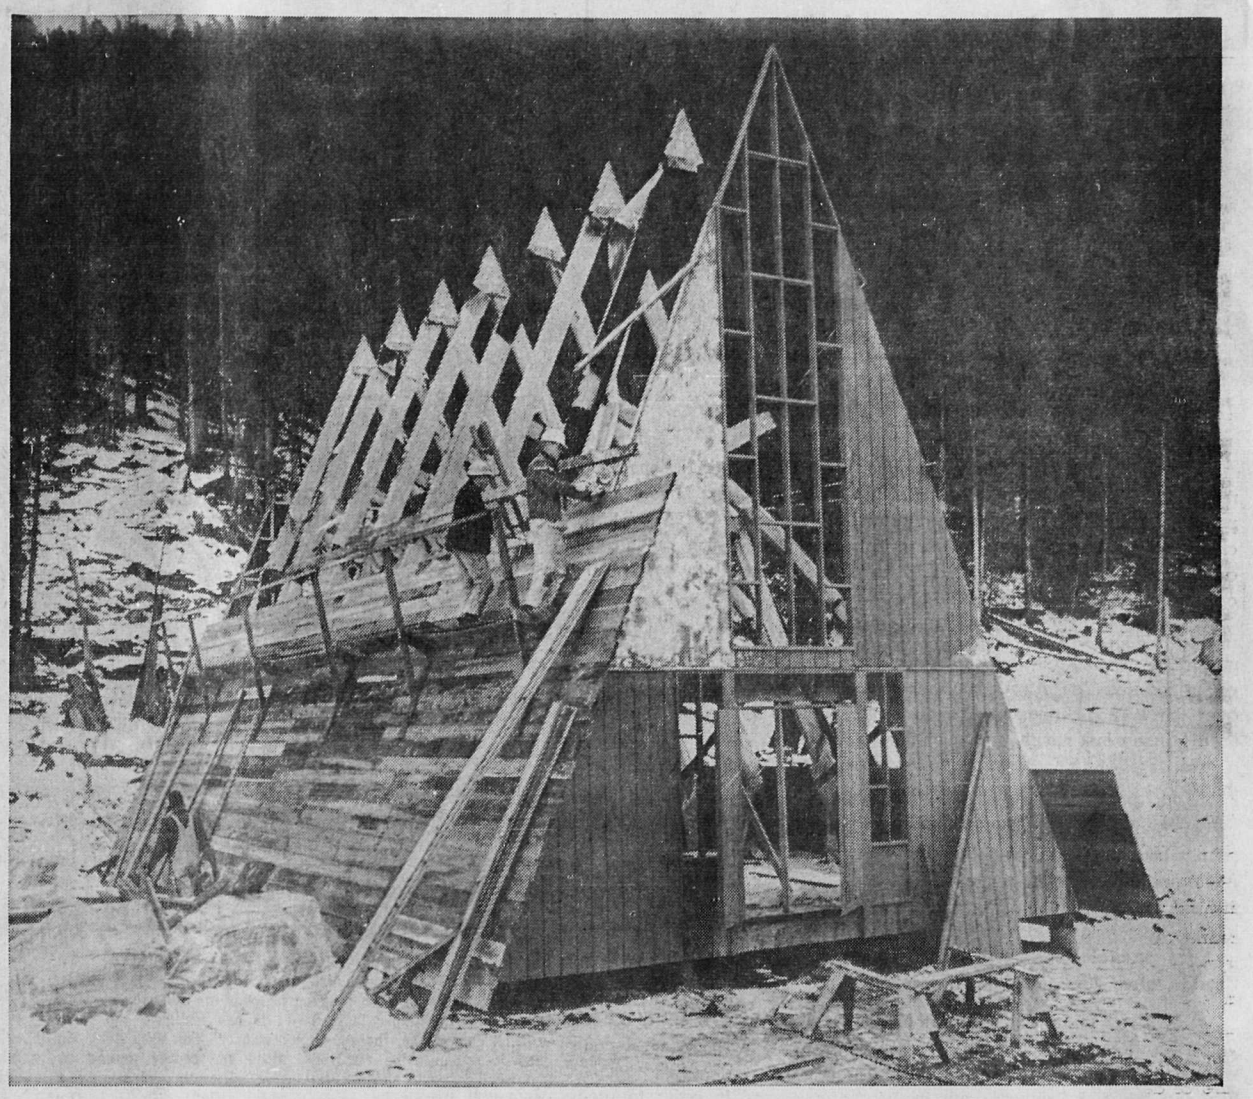
EDGEWOOD — The Arrow Credit Union has moved to the new office. The modern building is of block construction and the front is recessed with two large windows and door.

The main office is decorated in teakwood with a pale yellow feature wall. The counter runs the length of the office and is topped with arborite to match the brown walls. Below the counter are sliding doors which allow for ample storage space for supplies.

The back of the building will be used for a meeting room and back-filing cabinets. Between the two main rooms are the bathroom, coat cupboard and the safe.

Mrs. R. N. Donselaar is the Treasurer Manager with Mrs. R. E. Bateman as Clerk.

A Church for Mica Creek Village



Now nearing completion at Mica Creek Village, 79 miles north of Revelstoke, is what is believed to be the first three-denominational church in British Columbia. Doors will open for an interfaith Christmas service on December 17. Rev. Reginald Mathews, resident Anglican minister, and Rev. Father Albert Corradin, Roman Catholic priest of Revelstoke will officiate. The "A" frame church will serve Mica Dam construction workers and their families in the isolated community. Roman Catholic, Anglicans and United Church members agreed to establish one building for all three groups.

Beginning For Peace

For the first time since the June war the United Nations has managed to open a door on the path that could lead to a Middle East peace settlement. The unanimous approval which the 15 Security Council members gave recently to the British resolution, which authorized appointment of a UN mediator, is a major step forward to agreement on the eventual peace terms.

Britain's Lord Caradon deserves the highest credit for this. He moved in as a draftsman only after the General Assembly had failed to reconcile an Afro-Asian and a Latin-American version in July, after the 10 non-permanent Council members had also failed to agree on a formula last month, and after the United States had then produced a draft that was unacceptable to several on the Council.

He disregarded those who suggested that, as an old colonial power and a participant in the 1956 Suez invasion, Britain would simply be giving the kiss-of-death to any draft it sponsored on its own. As an ex-administrator in the old Palestine Mandate, he has probably felt more intensely than any other council member the agonies of the Middle East today. And he worked himself to exhaustion to win support for a resolution that is much more than a colorless compromise. Canada gave him full support throughout.

While it is obviously a compromise between other rejected drafts (Lord Caradon called it a "distillation" of them), it is still a resolution with teeth. The mediator, or special representative, is asked "to establish and maintain contacts with the states concerned in order to promote agreement and assist efforts to achieve a peaceful settlement". This is a more activist role than Israel would have liked, and gives the mediator more scope than the American draft would have allowed.

The principles, on which he will try to work, carefully balance the withdrawal of Israeli troops against the termination of Arab claims of belligerency. The Arabs accepted, as part of the statement of principles, a phrase formulated by the Israelis: "The right of every state to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries." This surely provides the opening to Arab recognition of the statehood of Israel.

Before the vote Indian and Russian delegates added their own gloss to the diluted 'withdrawal" phrase, which affirms "withdrawal of Israeli armed forces from territories occupied in the recent conflict." The Russian stressed it meant "all" Israeli troops, and the Indian that it meant "all" territories.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban countered by pointing out the resolution "says what it says, and not what it has specially and consciously avoided saying."

But the Indian and Russian delegates had a point, for the resolution's preamble emphasizes "the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by war". True, this phrase is in the preamble rather than in an operative paragraph. It nevertheless commits all the council members (including the United States fully for the first time), to saying Israel cannot hold any of the occupied areas — whether the Old City of Jerusalem, Jordan's West Bank, or the Syrian highlands — simply by act of military conquest.

Whether some part of these areas will be formally ceded to Israel as part of a full peace settlement is a quite different question. What the British resolution does is tackle the situation from a basis of first principles.

The man who is to be appointed special representative is Swedish diplomat Gunnar Jarring, who was a UN mediator in the Kashmir dispute. He faces as difficult a task in the Middle East as his compatriot, Count Folke Bernadotte, who was assassinated there 19 years ago. Success will depend a great deal on how much pressure the United States is prepared to exert on Israel. The Arabs have shifted a long way in tacitly accepting the British draft, for it commits them to peaceful acceptance of Israel. The next move in peacemaking is up to Tel-Aviv.

The Flaw in the Sales Pitch

The news from the savings bond front is hardly helpful to a finance minister hard-pressed for cash. Purchases of the bonds between October 1 and November 20, according to the finance department, are 34.3 per cent lower than they were in the same period a year ago. The reason for the drop, it seems, is not that the public has failed to grasp that you can double your money by buying and holding bonds for 13 years. Rather, it is that the public knows that doubling your money is no victory if it is only worth half as much when you get it back.

This awareness of dollar erosion could also explain why even the people who are holding on to old bonds are tempted to forget about the doubling talk and cut and cash their interest coupons as quickly as they can.

Put it this way: A man who has several hundreds of dollars tied up in coupons knows that he will have to pay income tax on his gains when he cashes them. He can't be exactly sure what that rate will be for Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's tax announcements on November 30 are likely to escalate the levy on personal incomes. Still, if he doesn't cash them before December 31 there is a strong possibility that the income tax bite will be even larger in 1968 if Mr. Sharp is forced to go to the well again to underwrite medicare.

It may contribute to national inflation to spend the coupons now but it could contribute to personal deflation to keep them. With dilemmas like that, potential bond purchasers may be excused their hesitancy.—Toronto Globe and Mail.

"That'll outsmart those nasty mailmen, honey — but how will the little darlings be able to bite anyone any more . . .?"

Diamond Dynasty's Designer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — "There were many parties and my father learned to drink champagne. Indeed, he liked it so much he resolved that when he could afford it, he would drink nothing else.

"It was one of his sadnesses that by the time he could afford it he had already come to prefer whisky and soda."

"Father" was Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, German-born multimillionaire diamond expert and financier who in 1917 formed the now-gigantic Anglo American Corp.

The anecdote of his early life came from his son, Harry, 58, who took over on his father's death 10 years ago as head of the Anglo American group.

Harry Frederick Oppenheimer, art collector and racehorse breeder, has shown his father's financial skill in greatly expanding Anglo American's enterprises in the last decade.

He has continued the family control of the vast gold, diamond and copper mining empire, currently celebrating its 50th birthday.

Control of Anglo American seems destined to remain in the Oppenheimer family for many years. Harry's only son, Nicholas, 22, has just returned to South Africa after completing his education overseas and will join the corporation after completing nine months compulsory military training.

STARTED YOUNG

Ernest Oppenheimer was a boy of 16 when he left Germany to join a small London diamond firm which was part of a syndicate marketing diamonds produced by the De Beers Co. in South Africa.

In 1902, at the age of 22, Ernest was sent to South Africa to take charge of the firm's office in Kimberley and it was at parties during the next few years that he acquired his taste for champagne.

In 1917, the opening up of a gold reef east of Johannesburg led him to seek financial backing from the United States to exploit the gold resources.

He launched Anglo American with an initial capital of $2,800,000, half subscribed in the United States and half in Britain and South Africa.

Only two years after forming Anglo American, he brought German diamond interests in South-West Africa together to form the Consolidated Diamond Mines of South-West Africa, under the general control of Anglo American. Consolidated now is the largest producer of gem diamonds in the world.

Anglo American continued to grow, gathering De Beers shares until it was the largest individual shareholder. Ernest became chairman of De Beers, one of his greatest ambitions.

The corporation took a leading part in developing the rich copperbelt of Northern Rhodesia, now Zambia.

It now has interests in gold, diamonds, copper, finance, engineering, manufacturing, property, fishing, citrus and many other fields.

It operates in five continents and 15 countries and administers more than 150 companies.

Gold mining, however, remains the main source of the group's strength.

Anglo American's first balance sheet showed a profit of about $32.50. The 50th annual report showed profits of $43,444,800.

Prosperity Coming in Russia

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Prosperity is coming to the average Russian but thus far it has shown itself in increased bank deposits rather than in increased buying of new cars, clothing and refrigerators.

The Russian worker's problem now is not earning money, but finding something worth spending it on.

Even in Moscow, long lines form during the periodic shortages of razor blades, refrigerators, powdered soap and a variety of women's goods, including clothing, cosmetics and handbags.

The waiting list for a new car has been as long as three years. A Volga car, Russia's powerful family sedan, costs 4,500 rubles (about $4,950) or about four times the average worker's annual wage.

Yet, Russians say, if five Volgas were put on sale at a Moscow street corner in the dead of night, they would be snapped up within the hour by ordinary workers paying cash.

The average monthly family income is 214 rubles (about $235), allowing for 1.6 workers in a family and adding in the value of free education, medical treatment and pensions. This is enough to provide for all the basic necessities and such luxuries as television sets, radios and refrigerators when they are available.

The monthly minimum wage, paid to workers in the so-called first category unskilled, has just been raised to 60 rubles (about $66) a month.

Russians say it costs about 45 rubles (about $49) a month to feed one person well—that is, to provide a diet which includes meat at least once a day, and allows for luxury items like fruit juices, chocolate, caviar and vodka.

Rent in a state flat, in which the majority of the people live, is about 10 rubles (about $11) a month, including heat and sometimes a television set or refrigerator. Electricity and gas are cheap and are charged for on the basis of an all-in tariff per head per month.

Once these basic expenses are paid, the problems begin. Clothing costs are high, and quality generally is not up to Western standards. A Russian man will pay 20 rubles (about $22), or one-fifth of the average bachelor's salary, for an imported nylon shirt. He could buy a cheaper Russian shirt, but with the new prosperity has come a discerning attitude toward quality.

Russians say they would rather put their money in a bank than buy badly-made goods.

Wartime Prosperity

Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., backbone of the Cape Breton economy, may be closed down next spring unless the Nova Scotia government is successful in efforts to save it. This story describes the problems that have beset Dosco since the Second World War boom period.

By DAL WARRINGTON

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — The Second World War brought ne wprosperity to the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., the industrial giant that was the heart of Nova Scotia's economy.

Production of coal and steel zoomed to meet defence needs. Coal output, which had slipped to 4,103,000 tons in 1933, reached 7,735,000 tons in 1940, a level never since equalled.

Dosco boosted basic steel production to 725,000 tons a year from 450,000.

In an effort to secure its markets, Dosco had acquired through the years control of several steel finishing companies in Ontario and Quebec. At war's end the Dosco empire extended to five provinces and employed 28,000 workers.

The return to more normal conditions after the war brought production and marketing problems for both coal and steel. Dosco tried to offset competitive handicaps by increasing efficiency, with government aid.

Mines were more highly mechanized. Steel operations were modernized, with ingot capacity raised to 1,100,000 tons a year. There was a new battery of coke ovens in 1949, another in 1953, a new rail finishing mill in 1952. Company officials said they spent $83,000,000 on expansion and modernization between 1949 and 1955.

FREIGHT COSTS HIGH

But solutions were not easily found. The management said diversified finished steel products could not be made at Sydney because of high freight costs. Sydney's future was as a producer of basic semi-finished steel.

Oil, gas and electricity displaced coal, even where it could be sold without subvention assistance. The biggest blow was the railroads' conversion from steam to diesel power. Overproduction led to the closing of collieries, putting miners out of work. Successive government investigations held out little hope for the industry.

Control of Dosco changed hands again in 1957. The Hawker Siddeley Group of Britain, one of the world's largest industrial organizations, obtained 77 per cent of Dosco stock for an estimated $60,000,000 through a Canadian subsidiary.

Two Nova Scotia directors of Dosco, millionaire industrialist Roy Jodrey and chain supermarket president Frank Sobey, opposed the deal. They said Hawker Siddeley had an interest in Algoma, a competing steel producer at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. In a conflict of interests they might "reduce or eliminate operations in this part of the country."

Mr. Jodrey said Dosco's empire was worth $300,000,000, five times the price offered. He called the transaction "nothing but a scientific steal" by outside interests.

SET UP THREE GROUPS

Hawker Siddeley reorganized Dosco's network of 33 subsidiary companies into three main groups—Dosco Steel Ltd., comprising the Sydney steel plant and auxiliary operations; Dominion Coal Co., operating mines in Glace Bay and New .Waterford, and Dosco Industries *Ltd., controlling steel finish*ing plants in central Canada, Halifax shipyards and all other mining activity.

The Trenton mills and car works were placed directly under Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd.

The new management's plan to build $20,000,000 rolling mills at Contrecoeur, Que., brought rumors in Cape Breton that Sydney would close. Four days after he became Dosco president in 1959 Albert L. Fairley Jr. went to Sydney and in a speech denied the reports:

"We must adjust our plans to suit the changing times and the varying economic climate, but as far as we can see now, certainly for the next 15 years, and possibly much longer, the Sydney plant will be supplying steel to Contrecoeur."

But the Sydney steelworkers, through their union executives and provincial labor leaders, continued to voice their apprehension about the future.

'DIVERSIFY OR DIE'

Harry J. Waisglass, Canadian research director for the United Steelworkers of America, told the provincial government in a 1965 labor brief:

"Nova Scotia's basic steel industry must diversify or die. . . . In order to stabilize production and employment and to establish a basis for growth, the diversification of its products is essential. The alternative is stagnation and deterioration, and ultimately disaster."

Because Nova Scotia had been shut out of central Canadian steel markets by high freight costs and from its natural markets in New England by tariff policies, he said the federal and provincial governments should strive for "free trade" in steel between Canada and the United States, patterned after the recent automobile agreement.

In 1965 another coal inquiry, by Montreal economist J. R. Donald, recommended the coal mines be gradually closed down over the next 15 years. A Crown corporation should take over the pits from Dosco and promote new industries with jobs to replace those in mining.

In January, 1966, the federal government announced the Donald recommendations had been accepted. As that year ended only about 6,500 men remained in five Dosco mines, half the number employed 15 years earlier. In 1967, with provincial government participation, the Cape Breton Development Corp. was created to take over the collieries.

HIT BY SURPLUS

Meanwhile the Sydney steel industry was trying to adjust to changing times. But to its perennial problems of tariffs and transportation new problems were added. A world surplus of steel depressed export markets and cut prices at home. Worse still, the company contended, Sydney's old advantages of cheap coal and iron ore had vanished.

To increase steel-making efficiency Dosco bought higher-quality United States coal and now got only 20 per cent of its needs in Cape Breton. New higher-grade iron ore in Labrador and elsewhere made the Bell Island mines uneconomic and they were closed last year.

Employment at the plant, 5,100 men in 1952, totalled only about 3,200 late in 1967 after dropping to about 2,000 during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Buckmaster

Buckmaster - Bell Vows Exchanged at Victoria

A wedding of interest to both Coastal and Interior points took place recently in Victoria when Mary I. Bell exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Arthur H. Buckmaster.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hayes at St. Alban's Church.

Entering the church on the arm of her grandson, Harlan Burton, the petite silver-haired bride was becomingly gowned in a two-piece suit in crushed grape shade with hat en tone. Her accessories were dusty pink and corsage of pink rosebuds.

A unique highlight of the wedding party was that three of the bride's great-granddaughters preceded her to the altar. The little girls ranging in age from six to 11 were Karen and Sian Burton, Lynne Dodd and granddaughter Wendy Harlan. Their dresses were in shades of winter green and white with headbands of pink daisy 'mums.

Matron of honor Mrs. L. W. Dodd, granddaughter of the bride, was smartly gowned in a street-length dress of silk in muted tones of blue with matching whimsy, black accessories and corsage of pink rosebuds.

Best man for the occasion was Norman Harlan, son of the bride.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was enjoyed at the Old England Inn. A small but dainty wedding cake in white and pink was traditionally cut by the happy couple. Topping the cake was the silver bell in heart frame used originally on the wedding cake of the bride's daughter, Mrs. Roy Burton. Mr. and Mrs. Burton travelled from Salmo to be on hand for the occasion.

A family reception was later held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Harlan. Mr. and Mrs. S. Pugh of Saanichton, old family friends; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ross and daughter Donna; groom's nephew, Robbin Harlan, Mrs. W. Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Robbins and Mrs. Harlan Burton were the only other guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Buckmaster will reside in Victoria, where the couple, 81 and 83 years of age, met at the Silver Threads Club.

Some Hollywood Stars Will Admit Their Ages

HOLLYWOOD (Reuters) — Most movie stars hide their age no matter how old they are.

Press agents who provide studio biographies will gladly supply a star's birthday—that is to say, the day and the month, but not the year. They know that biographies have a habit of popping up in the files 20 years later when a 45-year-old actor is still playing parts which call for a man of 30.

Movie fans may not realize it, but Rock Hudson, who looks 10 years younger, has just passed his 40th birthday. Glenn Ford, the native of Portneuf, Que., who now plays roles of men about 40, is 51. Henry Fonda is 62 and John Wayne at 60 is still adept at two-fisted he-man roles.

Such old-timers as Maurice Chevalier, 79, Jimmie Durante, 74, and George Raft, 71, admit their ages and wear their years as badges of distinction.

Ingrid Bergman, 50, Myrna Loy, 62, and Hedy Lamarr, 52, confess their years now that they have given up playing young film heroines.

But there is always a sense of nostalgia in recalling Miss Lamarr as an extravagantly beautiful teen-ager in Ecstacy, or the young and lovely Ingrid Bergman in Intermezzo in 1939. Standing in front of a Hollywood high school there is a nude statue of Miss Loy when she was 18. She is still slender and still acting.

Screen goddess Kim Novak is 34 and Jane Fonda, who could play a teen-ager, is turning 30.

Cary Grant, now 63, has only recently begun acting the mature man in his film life, while Bob Hope, at 64, is still the spry comedian he was 30 years ago. Bing Crosby, a year younger, is also going strong.

Some stars go into retirement. For instance, James Cagney at 68 could make a film any time he wished but prefers to remain out of the limelight.

Pat O'Brien, 67, has just published a book, The Wind at My Back. Chester Morris, 64, the Boston Blackie of the detective film series many years ago, plays legitimate theatre roles and John Payne, at 55,

Underwear To Be Outer Wear Next

By PATRICK E. O'KEEFE

NEW YORK (AP) — Girls: Throw away those old qualms about being seen in your underwear. Next spring and summer it may be the ultra-chic outdoors thing to do.

Outerwear underwear has definitely arrived, says a new line of airy lingerie shown by Formfit-Rogers and featuring the splashy, color-swirling latest by Emilio Pucci.

As sportswear and cocktail dress designers wow the fashion world with little semi-sheer things for home and office which they say must be worn without bras, the bra makers are getting ready to strike back.

"It comes from the ease and comfort and freedom that's part of the decade we're living in," says young Ann Fulton, a trim brunette fashion commentator for the Formfit showings.

"Girls are not bothering with more than the bare essentials."

Very striking were two-piece lemon yellow pyjamas—flouncy upper, wide-bottom pants and bare midriff—and Pucci's willowy sleeveless "robe" of nylon tricot that ends just below the hips.

The robe was described as "something to answer the doorbell in" but it's clear this sexy number may be ringing doorbells itself at informal pool parties soon after the Pucci lines goes on the racks in March.

FORMFIT TEMPTS

Formfit is tempting those who like to travel light on weekends with a matching group of shift, bra and bikini shorts in green with white polkadots that comes with a drawstring tote bag.

A girl could start out with the shift over the bra and shorts, put the shift in the tote bag on arrival and go sunning or even swimming. It's still lingerie, Miss Fulton insists, and will be sold in the intimate apparel section, not in beachwear.

Models flitted through the salon in the new outerwear—underwear carrying signs such as:

"The less the better."

"Who needs more?"

Pucci's '67 spring lingerie colors in apricot, lime and charcoal, with prices up to $60 for some outgoing pyjamas, begged not to be hidden under dresses or suits.

"Some way-out things in there," said one little lady buyer leaving the show. "But then I guess we're living in a way-out world."

Her Project Beach Combing

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mrs. John Smaizys picked an unusual centennial project for a prairie dweller—beach combing.

After a summer of collecting, all available space in her living and dining rooms is spread with ornaments, paperweights and sculpture representing birds, ballerinas, animals and famous personalities.

Her husband was responsible for starting her on her collection. He brought home and finished a piece of driftwood into a sturdy cane.

That was in 1966. Last summer Mrs. Smaizys started to search the beaches for driftwood and so far has completed at least 125 and is working on another 50.

"Collecting is like an illness, it can't be cured," she says.

LANGUAGE ADJUSTMENT NOT EASY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Canadian girls who spent the summer learning French in Paris found the return to the English language wasn't easy when they got back to Vancouver.

"It was rather hard to make the adjustment back to English," says Ellen Hunter, 20.

There is little doubt that she and Elisabeth Tubbesing, also 20, became totally immersed in their studies in France. They led their graduating class at Institut d'Etudes Francais.

The class was composed of more than 150 students from around the world.

During the summer months they also studied at Alliance Francaise in Paris and at the Institut, in Pau, France. Both are fourth-year French honor students at the University of British Columbia.

Legion LA To Send Gifts To Elderly

INVERMERE — The November meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 71, here made plans for Christmas gifts to patients in the Windermere District Hospital and guests of Pynelogs Rest Home. Elderly relatives of veterans will be sent flowers. It was decided to invite ex-service-women to the Christmas party of the auxiliary.

Succeeding Mrs. Gee Wah as president, Mrs. Arthur Godlien was elected to the office and Mrs. Gordon Lake is first vice-president, with Mrs. Ronald Bradshaw as second vice-president. The treasurer is Mrs. Wes Carlow. Mrs. Lloyd Anderson is sergeant-at-arms.

The executive committee is Mrs. Lloyd Hemmelgarn, Mrs. Jack Jones, Mrs. Carl Jones, Mrs. Helen Andrews, Mrs. Norman Kellough, Mrs. George Annis.

ROBINS AIR FORCE BASE, Ga. (AP)—Not many women can claim they have saved $4,600,000, but Nell Sims can—officially. During a retirement ceremony for her recently, the air force said the saving to the government was made possible when she suggested research to eliminate 1,776 high-priced radio units.

Dentist Speaks For Fluoridation

INVERMERE — Women's Institute members at the November meeting heard Dr. A. S. Richardson, dental consultant for the Kootenays, discuss dental health with special reference to the fluoridation of drinking water. Dr. Richardson said tooth decay and dental disease should be as preventable as TB, polio and smallpox.

Dr. Richardson described the preventative dentistry program now in effect, in grades three, four and five. In this district he said the program recorded 296 fillings and 34 extractions. Cost of program was $1644. He said the shortage of dentists will continue for some years; that the first dental graduates from UBC will be available in the spring of 1968, and there are only six of them. "Prevention is less expensive than dental work," he added, "we should bend all our efforts to prevention of dental trouble." The speaker went on to describe the relationship between the frequency and tooth decay. He said that between-meal snacks are dangerous, especially when they include sugar. He advocated allowing children to eat all their "loot" from Hallowe'en at a sitting to avoid constant nibbling at sweets. Immediate brushing after eating will prevent considerable tooth decay, he said.

Prevention of tooth troubles can also be obtained by fluoridation of water supply, the dental consultant said. "All water supplies contain some fluoride," he added, "but often an inadequate supply." He remarked that the Invermere water analysis shows no measurable amount of fluoride.

Dr. Richardson illustrated his talk with slides. Some of these showed the remarkable absence of dental cavities in children of a Kelowna kindergarten, compared to children in a Cranbrook kindergarten. The Kelowna water supply is fluoridated and the Cranbrook water is not.

Dr. Richardson says fluoride can be painted on the outside of teeth, and that this is done in pre-school preventive programs.

THE GIFT TABLE was well patronized as well as the bake table when the Women's Auxiliary to the North Shore Hall held a coffee party Friday morning. It was well attended and funds go toward the upkeep of the hall. Pictured here at the gift table are from left, Mrs. J. W. Bieber, Mrs. B. J. Frocklage and Mrs. W. C. Curran. Convenors were Mrs. J. J. McKen and Mrs. Bieber.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all—results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

DEAR HELOISE:

Mothers who run a family taxi service often spend a good deal of time waiting in the car for passengers.

For such otherwise wasted interludes, I have a "Goeswithme Box." It's full of items to be written, read, repaired or otherwise dealt with within the confines of the car.

Besides the obvious mending and correspondence, this box has held loose trading stamps and their books, manicure set, etc.

Start a "Goeswithme Box" and your whole family will be suggesting something that goes in it.

DEAR HELOISE:

The straps on my 8-month-old son's crawlers were always falling off. I tried crossing the straps but that didn't help.

I solved this by putting a rubber ponytail holder (with the arrow-like end) around the straps just under his shoulder blades. It doesn't slide or tear the cloth and it can be put on without unfastening the straps.

Worked great for me.

Approximately twelve years of rheumatoid arthritis has taught me some tricks that may help others:

A nylon sheet plus a nylon nightie enables the arthritic to turn over more easily. Also a thermo blanket or electric blanket provides our aching bones with lightweight warmth.

Twisted hands can't always open refrigerator or some cabinet doors. So a long sprig of plastic ivy dangling from the handle provides a practical, decorative touch and makes them much easier to open.

To keep my little ones amused, I draw simple figures or large capital letters on stiff paper or cardboard from shirts, and punch holes along the lines with an ice pick.

The children love it, and are always so proud of their finished product.

I just discovered something I could really use in our house on windy, drafty days . . . a door stop. So I made one from a plastic lid on an empty coffee can.

I just bent the plastic lid in half with the lip or ridge on the outside and slipped it under the door. It really grips and will last a long time.

Peacetime Cyprus Show Place

NICOSIA (AP) — Blessed by prosperity, kissed by the sun, bathed by hate and torn by the spectre of war. . . .

This is Cyprus today as it simmers in yet another of the recurrent crises which could flash into bloody disaster for the island's Greeks and Turks, who have lost the secret of how to live together.

But for the mutual fears and hatreds that have turned this sunny Mediterranean isle into two desperate armed camps, Cyprus could be a showplace in the Middle East.

Remarkably good weather and an abundance of sun and beaches make it a natural magnet for tourists.

VARED ECONOMY

The economy is varied and productive. It is a mixture of farming, wine making, small home industries making lace, and bustling local commerce in towns and cities.

Cyprus is the most intensively farmed country in this part of the world, with more than half of its acreage under cultivation. In recent years, Cyprus has been experiencing an economic and population boom. Until 1963, both the Greek-Cypriot majority and the Turkish minority were benefitting from this.

But that year the tension gathering in the wake of discord since the establishment of Cyprus' independence in 1960 blew up into violence and killings that wrenched the communities totally apart.

Cut off from the main stream of economic life, the 100,000 Turkish-Cypriots have suffered economic disaster. Many now exist on charity—loans and aid from Turkey—while the Greek-Cypriot community of 500,000 continues to progress.

The barricaded Turkish quarter in Nicosia is run down, dirty and pathetically poor. Most of the rest of the city is a growing sprawl of modern pastel plaster buildings that spell prosperity in this part of the world.

Before the troubles that erupted four years ago, there were perhaps 100 villages where Greeks and Turks lived as neighbors. The communities kept to themselves, and in an uneasy manner they got along.

Gold Fever Danger To Markets

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gold fever, now sweeping the world, brings with it the threat of a collapse in world trade. A lot will depend on the weapons the United States employs to protect its shrinking gold stockpile from French and other raids.

There are several reasons for the roaring demand for gold: The spreading view that paper currency cannot be trusted, that the American dollars is overvalued in terms of gold and that there is a serious imbalance in the over-all post-war monetary structure.

This crumbling of monetary stability, on which the terms of world trade are based, was dramatically illustrated by the sudden decision forced on Britain to devalue its currency.

Recurring foreign trade deficits meant that large amounts of British currency were floating around the world. When the world lost faith with the exchange rate and demanded other currency instead, Britain soon found that her foreign currency cupboard was bare. She cut the value of the pound.

HAS GOLD FORTUNE

Now may countries, including France, believe the American dollar, which also is floating around the world in large volume, is overvalued. France is one of those countries demanding gold instead of U.S. dollars. France now holds a huge fortune in gold, apparently concluding the official gold price may soon be forced up sharply.

The world's most important gold market is in London, run by five merchant bankers headed by N. M. Rothschild and Sons. Their main client is the Bank of England which, until France withdrew in June, represented a pool made up of eight countries—U.S., Britain, West Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, The Netherlands and France.

These countries agreed to provide a percentage of legitimate market demands for gold. The U.S. portion was 50 per cent before French withdrawal and now it may be 59 per cent, to cover the French portion.

Here comes that man again...

Suez Canal Closure Costly One

By ALY MAHMOUD

SUEZ, Egypt (AP) — The Suez Canal, once bustling with ships carrying an estimated 5,000,000 barrels of oil a day, now is a gloomy, partially deserted area dotted with big enemy guns facing each other across the water.

The closing of the 103-mile canal during the Arab-Israeli war in June is costing Egypt an estimated total of $1,000,000 in lost tolls every two days.

Egypt says repeatedly the canal will remain closed until total elimination of any danger from the east bank, seized by the Israelis in the war. It calls this "a matter of security. . . Safety of transitting vessels cannot be guaranteed with Israeli guns directed at the canal."

Israel is set on staying until the Arabs agree to face-to-face negotiations. Flareups of fighting have been frequent.

Nine sunken obstacles block the vital waterway between the Mediterranean and the Red Sea, stranding 15 ships which were going through the day the war broke out—June 5.

FRIENDLY RIVALS

Most of their sailors were sent home, but skeleton crews totalling 130 men stand watch on the ships—four British, two American, two Polish, one Bulgarian, one Czechoslovak, one French, two West German and two Swedish.

While their countries may squabble, seamen of Western and Communist nations exchange friendly visits and compete in sports in what one British sailor described as "fine companionship."

The ships probably will have to stay anchored in the Great Bitter Lakes, near the southern outlet of the canal, for months more.

Mashour Ahmed Mashour, chairman of the Suez Canal Authority, said it would take four to six months to clear the waterway. He said Egypt has all the equipment needed but once the reopening order comes "we may seek international help to speed it up."

The whole operation, including repair of Israeli bomb damage described as considerable and dredging to remedy silting, would cost about $48,000,000 sources said.

Wilson Gives No Sign Of Yielding

LONDON (AP) — Vain right-wing moves to replace Harold Wilson with James Callaghan as prime minister find Britain's leader indebted to his leftist followers.

Informed politicians forecast that consequently Wilson is likely to meet fresh pressure to inject more socialism into his policies. Among key left wing demands:

—A stiffer attitude toward the U.S. position in Vietnam;

—A more substantial cut of the nation's defence program than any so far. This would include reductions in Britain's nuclear weapons program and in orders for 50 American F-111 swing-wing strike bombers.

But there is no sign Wilson is prepared to yield as a means of ensuring his leadership.

Some of Wilson's opponents believe his position could quickly crumble if left-of-centre Labor MPs—a third of the parliamentary party—turn their backs on him.

SOME SEE PLOT

What is being portrayed by leftists and some members of Wilson's entourage as a plot to replace him with Callaghan emerged during the political inquest since devaluation of the pound.

Callaghan has not yet positively defined his position or intentions. But the chancellor, who recommended devaluation after fighting beside Wilson for three years to preserve the pound, has spread the impression he wants to leave his post.

Some colleagues think he may retire for a while, perhaps hoping to be summoned back by the party to take over a discredited Wilson.

Some Laborites cite several factors which they say support talk of an anti-Wilson conspiracy.

In the post-devaluation furor, anti-Wilson Laborite factions teamed up with opposition Conservatives, some British newspapers and financial interests in an effort to isolate the prime minister as the man chiefly responsible for Britain's failed economic policies.

BOSTON THREESOME GANGS UP ON HULL

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston's bustling Bruins are in first place in the National Hockey League's East Division today, and it took a member of that club to displace Bobby Hull atop the individual scoring race.

Veteran left winger Johnny Bucyk holds a one-point edge over the Chicago Black Hawks ace, but what is more important Bucyk's linemates—centre Fred Stanfield and John McKenzie—have caught up to Hull.

This threesome have paced the Bruins this season with a total of 91 points. Of Boston's 84-goal output in 22 games, the Bucyk, Stanfield, McKenzie trio have scored 34.

Bucyk now leads the race with 31 points on 16 goals and 15 assists. Hull has 19 goals and 11 assists for 30 points and is still the league's top goal scorer.

McKenzie has produced 11 goals and assisted in 19 others, while rookie Stanfield has scored seven times and holds the high in assists with 23.

The three Boston players had seven points each last week. Bucyk, the first Bruin to lead the scoring parade since Bronco Horvath during the 1959-60 season, has become Boston's all-time leader in goals with 243 and total points of 607.

There is a seven-point gap between the four leaders and Phil Goyette of New York Rangers, who picked up six points last week to jump from a 12th-place tie into fifth spot with 23 points. Goyette has scored 10 goals and assisted in 13 others.

They are Mike Walton of Toronto Maple Leafs, with 14 goals and eight assists, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings with 12 and 10, Pittsburgh Penguins Andy Bathgate—top scorer in the expansion West Division—with nine goals and 13 assists and Detroit centre Alex Delvecchio, who has scored four goals and helped on 18 others.

The West's top goal-scorer is Bill Sutherut of Philadelphia Flyers. He has counted 10 and assisted in five others.

Don Awrey, a Boston defenceman, took over the lead in penalties when he was assessed a record-tying 37 minutes Sunday against Montreal Canadiens in Boston. He now has 81 minutes for the season.

Veteran Toronto netminder John Bower posted his second shutout of the season to tie Montreal's Lorne Worsley in scoreless performances.

Bower, and his goaltending partner Bruce Gamble, have the best goals-against average at 2.17, but Worsley is the individual leader with a brilliant 1.58.

Juvenile Reps Drop Pair Against Spokane Juves

Nelson Minor Hockey League's Juvenile Rep team dropped two games on their weekend jaunt to Spokane to play a juvenile rep team there.

They were beaten 9-0 in the first game, and 7-5 in the second after taking an early lead, dropping it, then tying the game before wilting.

Prior to the first game, Spokane Jets treated them to the senior game between Kimberley and Spokane.

The opening game was never in doubt as Spokane scored once in the first period, twice in the second and six in the third. Of the 22 penalties handed out by Bill Savenkoff of Castlegar, 15 went to Spokane.

Evans led Spokane with three goals and singles were added by Squires, Nany, Dunlop, Foger, Olson and Vadeau.

In the second game, Nelson took an early lead on a goal by Pat Lindsay from Scott McClenaghan and Grieg Joyce. Spokane came right back to take a 3-1 lead on two goals by Nelson and one by Nany. Nany made it 4-1 on a pass from Ed Murrey.

By the end of the second Nelson had changed the picture, cutting the lead to 4-3 on goals by Grieg Joyce from John Whitfield and Harold Lyons and Don Maglio from Scott McClenaghan.

Spokane scored early in the third on a goal by Vadeau but Nelson came right back when Harold Lyons took a pass from Walter Popoff and Peter Whitely made it 5-5 assisted by Harold Lyons and Walter Popoff.

Nany and Nelson poked in two more past Nelson goalie Colin Kirk for the win.

Nine of 11 penalties went to Spokane.

Next game for the Nelson team will be Sunday in Castlegar.

Ti-Cats Win Applause From Across Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sports columnists across Canada Monday applauded quarterback Joe Zuger, head coach Ralph Sazio and the menacing defence of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Most of the writers in Canadian Football League cities listed these as the main ingredients in Hamilton's 24-1 triumph over Saskatchewan Roughriders in Saturday's Grey Cup at Ottawa.

Only a couple of columnists branded the final as dull or criticized the Tiger-Cats' style of play.

Hal Walker, Calgary Herald, wrote: "Joe Zuger won't have to worry about how the fans back home will feel about him now. He gained maturity and new respect from the world of Canadian football in the Grey Cup final Saturday."

Walker also said Hamilton proved it "owned one of the more magnificent defences in the history of Canadian football."

LAUDED SAZIO

Bob Hanley, Hamilton Spectator, praised Sazio as the major reason behind Hamilton's success.

"Here was the guy who 'cased' the operation with film studies, who designed attack and defence, who hand picked the bandits who pulled off the job."

Writing in the Vancouver Sun, Denny Boyd referred to Sazio as a "hard-bitten perfectionist" who accomplished "one of the most astonishing rebuilding jobs in the ruin-filled history of sports."

Jack Matheson, Winnipeg Tribune, singled out Angelo Mosca as the key to the stingy Hamilton defence.

"It's entirely possible that Mosca has never played a better football game in his whole life," he wrote. "He made 13 tackles, by my computer, and if any one man was responsible for turning the Roughrider offence into a powder puff, it was big Angie."

GOT VOTES

Mosca received several votes as the game's outstanding player, an honor which went to Zuger.

Ted Reeve in the Toronto Telegram suggested the Ticats might wish they "had a game or two more for 1967 with someone" because "they have been coming on in power and teamplay over the past month."

Wayne Overland, Edmonton Journal, was another who regarded Sazio as the main architect of victory.

"During most of the season, the Tiger-Cats were rebuilding, a job coach Ralph Sazio completed just in time for the playoffs."

Milt Dunnell, Toronto Star, commented: "The difference was that Ticats made the big plays all afternoon: Riders never made them."

'SMOTHERED REGINA'

Dick Beddoes, Toronto Globe and Mail, said the Tiger-Cats "had spitefully smothered Regina, dominant by a wider margin than anyone believed possible. . . ."

Marcel Desjardins, Montreal La Presse, said that "cold, efficient strategy" and an "inspired effort" by the Hamilton players led to victory.

Laurie Artiss, Regina Leader-Post, said: "It was a disappointing day all around, except for Hamilton fans who live by the adage: It matters not how you played the game, it's whether you won or lost.

"The Tiger-Cats did win, but they didn't do it very artistically." Eric Whitehead, Vancouver Province, commented: "The local season was a bust, and so were the 2½ hours spent Saturday afternoon in front of the idiot box."

He called the Grey Cup final "an 18-karat dud."

Broncos' Win Drops Jets Into AFL Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Denver turned five interceptions and a 72-yard punt return by Floyd Little into a 26-point second quarter as the Broncos stunned New York Jets 33-24 Sunday in the American Football League.

The loss dropped the Jets into a tie with Houston for first place in the AFL's Eastern Division. The Oilers defeated Miami 17-14 and pulled even with the Jets. Each now has a 7-3-1 record and three games to go.

In other AFL games Sunday, Kansas City came from behind to beat Buffalo 23-13 and Oakland whipped San Diego 41-21.

Passing through a driving rain, New York's Joe Namath never had a chance against the Broncos. Denver packed three touchdowns and two field goals into 10 minutes midway through the second and than halted New York's only penetration of the first half with its fifth interception.

Ottawa Grey Cup Handling Praised

OTTAWA (CP) — Mayor Don Reid of Ottawa says the city's handling of Grey Cup week was so successful that he hopes it will be considered for another cup "in a few years."

Ottawa has set an example that other cities will have to follow in the years ahead, he said.

"It must be clear to everyone connected with the Grey Cup that future celebrations will require more of that extra pep which was injected into our festivities."

The city received a multitude of plaudits from visitors and residents alike for its staging of the annual football game.

Former Ottawa mayor Charlotte Whitton said the city handled Grey Cup week with dignity and showed the country it wasn't a drab old city.

Arnold Armstrong who travelled from Calgary for the game said he couldn't believe what he saw.

"I'd always been told Ottawa was a lack-lustre town. But when I saw your main street Friday night, I was convinced you just can't believe everything you hear."

Your Individual Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Wednesday, Dec. 6, 1967.

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries)—Mixed influences. You may have a desire to do something "different" but, before you do, be certain that it will be to your advantage. Some tendencies toward carelessness, needless controversy indicated: Avoid!

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) Some changes of plan may be suggested. Discuss fully and agree only if they seem truly feasible. Don't cause needless controversy, however, and above all, don't worry!

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) You may run into some opposition now, but your keenness and sense of humor will help you win more points than would force obstinacy. Stress efficiency, tact, serenity.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) You may have to make some compromises. Restrain no one from expressing his opinion, but be careful whom you eventually follow. Don't, however, suspect that all suggestions are ill-conceived. This would only lead to undue skepticism and, eventually, a "do-nothing" attitude.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) A friendly day! You should pick up new interests here and there, have an opportunity to use your creative abilities. Wrap up essentials first, then enjoy outside activities.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo)—Do not become disenchanted with those who do not approve of your ideas or who are unwilling to make improvements you suggest. Recognize that everyone is not able to act when you wish — and, usually, for valid reasons.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra)—Ride along with propitious influences now. Acquaint yourself with new trends and take measures as occasion demands.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio)—With your innate enthusiasm and competence, you should be able to reap a fine harvest now. Some good opportunities for advancing your interests in the offing.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius)—You usually enjoy a challenge, and you may meet some interesting ones now. Meet with your usual vigor, but don't undertake enterprises you would not ordinarily consider.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Fine gains for like efforts. However, be on the lookout for "gimmicks" that could trip you, persons who would undermine your self-confidence by belittling your efforts.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius)—Some changes or adjustments may be necessary. If so, handle in your usual philosophical manner. Where you should "stand pat," however, be firm — but in a tactful manner.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces)—Avoid haste and recklessness in the mistaken notion that you will get ahead more quickly. Easy does it now! Some distant goals may be brought closer.

YOU BORN TODAY are usually mentally, as well as physically, "on the go." Many inventors, sportsmen, athletes, writers, vitally energetic speakers and entertainers were born in this Sign. You are ready for travel, new devices, fresh interests always; your mind thrives on them. Your fields — and this goes for pastimes, too, are the creative ones, or those that permit expression of your ingenuity and gift for organization. Birthdate of: J. L. Gay Lussac, French physicist, chemist; Warren Hastings, first governor-general British India; Dave Brubeck, jazz pianist.

Aerial Tramway To Beat Freeze-Ups

By THOL RETALLACK
Canadian Press Correspondent

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (CP)—A 1,500-foot aerial tramway last week carried the vanguard shipment of 25 tons of asbestos from Canada's most northerly open pit mine across the Yukon River here.

The tramway, last link in a truck line from Clinton Creek, 60 miles away, near the Yukon-Alaska border, will swing 200 tons of asbestos a day across the river to the landing platform. It was built to avoid delays at freeze-up and break-up while ferry service cannot operate on the river.

The $24,000,000 mine and mill complex at Clinton began production almost a year to the day after the last of the Klondike's big gold mining operations, Yukon Consolidated Gold Corporation, closed down.

Some 200 men have been employed in construction of the similar operations in Quebec and British Columbia. About 190 persons will make Clinton Creek home. A modern townsite is under construction.

The tramway across the Yukon is one of two serving the operation. Ore from the pit travels from hilltop to hilltop via a mile-long aerial tramway with a capacity of 300 tons an hour to a seven-storey processing plant, in stark contrast to the wilderness surrounding it.

Heavy outdoor quipment will be kept from freezing during the winter with electricity. Hot water coils are part of cement floors in garages, shops and warehouses at the pit.

A power plant will supply hot water heating for the townsite.

The townsite gets residents away from their work, and as close to the meagre winter sunlight, 40 miles south of the Arctic Circle, as possible.

Short-Term Bonds Gain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Short-term Government of Canada bonds were up fractionally on the Canadian bond market last week. The 5½-per-cent Dec. 15, 1969, issue closed at 99.15 bid and 99.25 asked.

Long-term Canada bonds remained steady at the week's close showing no reaction to Finance Minister Sharp's supplementary budget Thursday. The 4½-per-cent Sept. 1, 1983, issue closed at 80⅛ bid and 80⅜ asked.

Corporate bonds were fractionally higher with Bell Telephone 6¾-per-cent 1992, issue closing at 96½ bid and 97½ asked.

Provincials were generally ¼ point higher with Ontario Hydro 6½-per-cent Sept. 20, 1989, issue closing at 96½ bid and 97½ asked.

Day-to-day money jumped ¾ to 5½ per cent.

Treasury bills were higher with 91-day bills closing at 5.46 per cent and 182-day bills at 5.63 per cent, respectively, compared with 4.96 and 5.54.

More than 16,000 new telephones were installed in Manitoba during the year ended March 31.
