GOVERNMENT CARRIES MANITOBA ELECTION

Incomplete Reports Show That the Majority Will Be Small.

Latest Returns Give Present Admin- istration 27, Against 19 for Liberals

Winnipeg, July 10.—Reports received up to midnight have not definitely decided the standing of the parties in the next legislature, but they indicate clearly enough that the government will have a small majority, which likely enough will be increased to a working efficiency by the three by-elections yet to be held in the deferred northern seats, which owe a considerable debt to the present administration, first because they are a part of Manitoba et al, and second because of the energetic work of northern development the Roblin government has under way. There is also the inevitable tendency of deferred elections to side with the majority, even when the majority is slim.

At midnight the liberals claimed a tie of 21 seats each, with four to be heard from. These four are claimed by the government, who also claim seven seats confidently placed by the opposition in their own column. A detached estimate might put the final standing at 25 conservatives and 21 liberals, with three deferred elections making the total of 49. What the government side now claims is 27 as against their opponents' 19. Liberals claim that six seats now standing in the government's column are so close that recounts are inevitable, such as seat being Kildonan and St. Andrews, where Dr. Montague has now a majority of but three, whereas at the recent by-election it stood in the hundreds. The result is a severe blow to the expectations of the government. Outside the loss of a number of what were considered safe seats, many other seats were held only by small majorities. Premier Roblin, whose majority at the last election was over 400, has little to spare now.

The liberals sweep Centre and South Winnipeg, and is one of the most surprising things of the campaign, and can only be attributed to a hostile Orange and church sentiment. In South Winnipeg particularly, Mr. McMeans was a good candidate, who sat in the last legislature, and earned civic popularity by taking up the cudgels of the city against the Reese interests which sought to jam a bill through, crippling the city's power development through the legislature.

Government 25, Opposition 21. Winnipeg, July 10.—Just after ten o'clock tonight the Telegram, conservative, stated it had no change to make from its figures of an hour ago, which gave a majority of eight to the government, being 27 seats against 19 to the opposition. This counts in for the government seats, about six in number, from which returns are so incomplete that nothing definite can be gained. A shrewd political observer announces that eventually four of these will go to the government and two to the opposition and this would give a total of 25 to the government and 21 to the opposition. It is likely enough that three deferred seats will go for the government, all being situated in the far north where the energetic development policy of the government is of course popular.

RELIABILITY TOUR INCLUDES THIS CITY

Seattle Autoists Will Visit New West- minster on Their Trip About Middle of August.

Some time between August 15 and 18, inclusive, New Westminster will be visited by automobilists engaged in the largest reliability tour engineered on the Pacific coast, this being the second annual run under the auspices of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and with the sanction of the American automobile association.

Last evening the pathfinding car, driven by D. C. Runner, with H. E. McDonald, official pathfinder; A. B. Smith, P.-I. staff photographer, and the automobile of the P.-I., arrived in the city at 6 o'clock after a ten-hour trip from the Sound metropolis.

H. E. McDonald is well known in the city, having been a member of The News staff two summers ago and made a success as publicity man for the R. A. & I society exhibition of 1912.

The party reported excellent roads through from Seattle to New Westminster. Leaving this city last night they journeyed on to Vancouver where the officers of the Terminal City Auto club will be approached and a route mapped out which will embrace every city of any size in the northern part of Washington state.

MAYOR GRAY DECLARES A CIVIC HOLIDAY

Stores Will Be Closed Next Wednes- day to Allow Employees to Take in Excursion.

Following a general desire of the storekeepers of the city to celebrate Wednesday as a holiday, Mayor Gray yesterday exercised his prerogative by declaring Wednesday, July 15, a civic holiday, when several hundred citizens expect to make the trip on the S.S. Princess Sophia to Bellingham, Wash.

Secretary Rashleigh of the Retail Merchants' association rounded up the merchants yesterday morning and with few exceptions all seemed anxious to allow their employees to take in the trip.

River Pilot Ford will leave for Victoria on Monday in order to return with the steamer, which should arrive up river late Tuesday night.

PADDED COSTS OF CONSTRUCTION

Government Inquiry Brings Out Sensational Evi- dence.

Expert Witnesses Show That Over- valuation Was Practiced in Con- structing Southampton Road.

Frederickton, N.B., July 10.—That David Brown, acting on an alleged hint from E. V. Johnson, federal inspector, practically padded the cost of the Southampton railway, to make sure of the double subsidy of $6400 a mile, was brought out today in the most sensational session of the government inquiry. It was shown that the Dominion department of railways and canals acted in good faith on the report submitted by Mr. Johnson.

At the end of a severe examination by the commission, Brown made the statement that, acting on a hint from Mr. Johnson the cost was too near the double subsidy limit of $12,400 a mile, and that J. K. Pinier's books would not stand an audit, he raised the value to $13,400, or about $1000 a mile. Mr. Johnson, when recalled to the stand, stoutly maintained his innocence and said that the statement credited to him by Mr. Brown was sheer nonsense.

Over-valuation shown. Edmund J. Walsh, a civil engineer, was the first witness of the morning. He had been engaged figuring the cost of the road, which from his evidence was shown to be $159,510.17, or about $12,550 per mile, instead of the $22,455 per mile shown in Mr. Johnson's statement in which the double subsidy was granted. Mr. Walsh showed an over-valuation of $132,065.83. The total value of the road, as found in the government report, is $291,517.

At the afternoon session James Milten, civil engineer, reported practically the same as J. M. Walsh. These were the important witnesses of the day.

Mr. Teed commenced session witnesses at the afternoon sitting but nothing of a sensational nature developed. It is said the inquiry will close tomorrow as the commissioners intend sitting from 9:30 until 6:00 o'clock.

BOUNCED THE CHIEF BUT ARREST FOLLOWS

Captain of Lake Steamer Fires St. Catherine's Chief of Police Bodily Off His Vessel.

St. Catharines, Ont., July 10.—The chief of police was thrown, he alleges, from the steamer Canby, an American vessel, to the canal bank, when he boarded the ship to serve a summons on Captain Sullivan. Sullivan contended that no British peace officer had the right to board an American vessel and according to the complainant, ordered two of his officers and the crew to deposit the chief of police on the bank.

Captain Sullivan was later arrested by two police officers from Port Dalhousie and held in $1000 bail.

CONGRESS GIVES AID TO SALEM SUFFERERS

Despite Opposition $200,000 is Appro- priated to Aid Those Who Lost Everything in the Fire.

Washington, July 10.—Congress appropriated today $200,000 for the relief of sufferers from the Salem, Mass. fire. The house, in spite of vigorous opposition, led by Chairman Fitzgerald of the appropriation committee, accepted by a vote of 161 to 66 a senate amendment to the sundry civil bill to provide the money.

The president had urged the appropriation in a special message and the Massachusetts delegation had been pressing for action for a week. Representative Fitzgerald told the house that while the sympathy of everyone went out to the destitute people of Salem it was no part of the federal function to appropriate money for them.

BUBONIC PLAGUE CLAIMS VICTIM

Another Death in New Or- leans Despite Past Precautions.

Health Authorities Using Every Ef- fort to Stamp Out Disease—Ra- catchers Hard at Work.

New Orleans, La., July 10.—Following the death here today of Leon de Jean, 28 years of age, a negro, from bubonic plague, health authorities started an investigation to ascertain if a new focus of infection exists. Although de Jean lived three miles from the industrial home of the volunteers of America, where two cases of plague were discovered, he was employed at a produce house well within the zone first placed under strict quarantine regulations. Dr. Wm. C. Rucker, assistant surgeon-general of the public health service, in charge of plague eradication work here, said tonight he could not determine the existence of a new focus of infection until epidemiological studies had been made.

De Jean was placed under observation in an isolation hospital July 5, but his malady was not confirmed as plague until today. Two negroes and one white man have died from plague since the contagion was discovered here on June 27. W. W. Wilkinson, a white man, is recovering. No other cases have been reported.

The force of imported rat catchers is tutoring the recruits enlisted here in the rat extermination fight. A catch of 166 rats was reported today.

ARE STILL IN JAIL FOR LACK OF BONDS

Wilson and Hillstrom Confined in Pro- vincial Jail—Bail Demanded in Sum of $20,000 Each.

Bail money amounting to $20,000 each is required before Wilson and Hillstrom, the two Vancouver men charged with manslaughter, following the automobile fatality in Burnaby, when Mrs. Oliver Lewis was killed, will be allowed their release from the custody of the provincial jail authorities.

Up to yesterday neither man had been able to secure the amount necessary, although efforts are being made by friends of the accused to raise the sum.

NEW PACIFIC CABLE WILL END AT ALBERNI

Ottawa, July 10.—Plans of a cable to be constructed by the Pacific cable board from the Pacific cable but at Bamfield to Alberni, B.C., have been deposited with the department of public works.

Left Big Fortune.

Saskatoon, July 10.—It is reported that Ida Wills McKay, living on a farm near here, has been left the sum of $3,000,000 by her late father, H. O. Wills, president of the English Tobacco company.

Good Sense Will Prevail.

London, July 11.—Mr. Winston Churchill, speaking at Dundee yesterday, said he believed that in the present controversy the British good sense would predominate and make itself effective.

WEATHER REPORT.

New Westminster and Lower Mainland—Light to moderate wind; generally fair and warm.

AUTO RUNS AMUCK ON STEEP HILL

Several Persons Injured as Heavy Truck Dashes Down Hill and Through a Window

Montreal, July 10.—Eight persons were injured, two seriously, the plate glass windows of a saloon were smashed, and a score of people narrowly escaped injury this morning when a motor delivery truck driven by W. Bibeau, of 253 St. Louis street, the property of H. L. Tourneau, of Five Fish Market, became uncontrollable, the brakes refusing to act, while descending the steep hill on St. Lawrence boulevard, near Ontario street.

Ben, aged 10 years, and Jenny Ostell, 22 years, brother and sister, were hit by the mud guards and thrown a distance of six feet. They were picked up unconscious and taken to the General hospital, along with A. Lupino, who was struck by falling glass. At the hospital it was found that the brother and sister were badly bruised and probably suffered internal injuries. The truck finished its runaway dash by crashing through the plate glass window of La Fleus saloon and was somewhat damaged.

REMAINS IN JAIL FOR THE PRESENT

Hearing of Mrs. Carman, Accused of Murder, is Postponed.

Examination Will Not Be Held Until July 21 According to Agreement of Attorneys.

Mineola, N.Y., July 10.—It will be 11 days at least before Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, accused of the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, can hope to leave the Nassau county jail here, according to an agreement reached late today between her counsel, Geo. M. Levy, and District Attorney L. J. Smith.

Mrs. Carman's examination before a justice of the peace, set for Monday, when she would go free, she had hoped because of lack of evidence, has been deferred until July 21. This change was asked for by the prosecutor with two ends in view—that he might present the case before the grand jury and also have more time to seek corroborative evidence. Mr. Smith said he would go before the grand jury next Monday.

Mrs. Carman's counsel consented to the postponement under his stipulation agreed to by the district attorney, that Mr. Levy should have the privilege of examining Elwood T. Bards, witness for the prosecution. It was chiefly on the testimony of Bards, who is held as a material witness, that the warrant for Mrs. Carman's arrest is based. Bards was passing the Carman home at the time a revolver was thrust through a window of the physician's office, he testified, and he saw a woman, walking away from the window after the shot sounded that killed Mrs. Bailey, a patient in the office.

The district attorney was informed tonight that during Dr. Carman's absence from home today detectives made a search of the physician's house. They failed to find the revolver for which they were looking. They sought for the weapon with the aid of a strong magnet which they thrust between the outer and inner walls of the building. They did find in this way the ear piece of the telephone device which Mrs. Carman installed in the house that she might overhear conversations between her husband and his patients.

NEW OIL STRIKE REPORTED IN ALBERTA

Drilling for Water Oil Was Found at a Depth of But 85 Feet—Still Flowing at 100 Feet

Irma, Alta., July 10.—According to Mr. Ainslie, secretary of the board of trade here, a strike of oil has been made on section 21, 47, 11, at a depth of 85 feet. At 100 feet the oil was still flowing. Woods and Merry were drilling for water and at the depth of 80 feet met sandstone, and five feet further down struck oil, which flowed to the surface and continued doing so all the time drilling was in progress. It had not stopped when a depth of 100 feet was reached.

New Recruit for R. N. W. M. P.

Ottawa, July 10.—The Northwest Mounted Police have a new recruit in Private Spring-Rice, who says he is a nephew of the British ambassador at Washington. Young Spring-Rice was formerly a bank clerk and came to Ottawa to secure a position in the civil service, but finally was drafted into the R. N. W. M. P. service.

ULSTER UNIONISTS FORM PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT

EVIDENCE CONCLUDED IN MINE ENQUIRY

Following Address of Counsel Today, Report Will Be Submitted by Judge Carpenter.

Hillcrest, Alta., July 10.—With the examination of three more expert witnesses and the further examination of Fire Boss Adlain, the evidence in the Hillcrest mine enquiry, which has lasted since July 2, was concluded this afternoon. There only remains the addresses of the counsel, which will be heard Saturday, after which the enquiry will close and Judge Carpenter will be in a position to go over the evidence and compile his report.

MID-SUMMER QUIET MARKS BUSINESS LIFE

Trade Indication All Over the Dom- inion Are Considered Fairly Favorable.

New York, July 10.—Despatches to Dun's Review from branches of R. G. Dun & Co., in leading trade centres of the Dominion of Canada indicate the prevalence of the usual mid-summer quiet, and that while at some points it may be slightly more pronounced than a year ago, indications on the whole are considered fairly favorable.

Montreal reports both wholesale and retail trade to be seasonably quiet, although the movement of hardware is normal and there is a fair distribution of groceries.

Marked improvement is noted at Quebec, liberal orders being received by wholesalers and retail trade is good.

While wholesale trade was not very active this week at Toronto the general feeling appears to be hopeful and confidence is expressed in the future.

Hamilton reports business fair, but the factories are not especially active, some of them working only part time.

Crops Are Favorable.

Favorable crop prospects throughout the far west and northwest maintain confidence, and while there is not such activity at present a brisk fall trade is anticipated.

Local trade at Winnipeg is dull as usual at this period and not much improvement is expected until after the harvest, but the outlook is promising and marked improvement is regarded as certain with the approach of fall.

The industrial exhibition at Calgary had a stimulating effect on business, but merchants generally are awaiting the assurance of good crops before operating to any great extent.

Favorable weather has helped the crops in the vicinity of Saskatoon and country merchants are ordering more freely.

Gross earnings of the Canadian railroads so far reporting for June show a decrease of 14.8 per cent, as compared with the earnings of the same roads for the corresponding period a year ago.

Commercial failures in the Dominion of Canada this week number 38 as against 37 last week and 24 the same week a year ago.

REBEL CAMPAIGN IS NOT PUSHED

Villa Reported With His Army Idle Five Hundred Miles From the Present War Zone.

El Paso, Tex., July 10.—Despite assurances from both Villa and Carranza supporters here that Villa would resume immediately the campaign against Huerta, no portion of his army had begun preparations for a southern movement, so far as was known here tonight. It was estimated that 17,000 of his 18,000 soldiers remained quartered in the country districts of southern Chihuahua, 500 miles from the war zone south of Aguas Calientes.

General Villa was still in Torreon tonight but will leave tomorrow for Chihuahua City. This information was given out today by Lazaro de La Garza, commercial agent for Villa in Juarez, after a telegraphic conference with the northern leader.

It was estimated that two weeks must elapse before Villa's entire army could be transported from Chihuahua to Aguas Calientes, the northern limit of Huerta's territory.

Sir Edward Carson Given a Free Hand to Take Action.

Unionists Papers Declare Crisis at Hand—Armed Volunteers Ready to Mobilize.

Belfast, July 10.—"The provisional government" formed by the Ulster Unionists at its first meeting today gave Sir Edward Carson a free hand to take whatever action he may think necessary in calling the Ulster volunteers to arms. The men were declared ready for mobilization at a moment's notice.

Sir Edward in a speech, said the time had come for the loyalists of Ulster to translate their words into action. He said something must be done to compel the British government to make up its mind. Ulster, he concluded was anxious for peace but was not going to accept peace with surrender.

Want of Confidence.

Belfast, July 10.—The official report of today's meeting of the "provisional government" announced that the executive has been instructed to act in accordance with the spirit of a declaration asserting that the provisional government's "well grounded want of confidence in the bona fides of the imperial government compels it to press on with the completion of arrangements to resist by every means in its power every attempt to impose the authority of home rule parliament on Ulster."

A resolution was also adopted expressing willingness to consider any proposal on the home rule question which "recognizes the loyalty of the Ulstermen to the crown and constitution and preserves their inalienable rights under the imperial parliament. Restraint is Urged."

Another resolution says: "Since our object only is to hold Ulster against a home rule settlement in trust for the king and the British constitution we enjoin our people to see to it that all persons within our area, while it is under our jurisdiction, irrespective of class or creed, shall be subject to the same laws and have the same civil and religious freedom they now enjoy. We earnestly desire to impress on all Ulster loyalists that the same restraint which hitherto has characterized all our actions under grave provocation should be maintained in carrying out whatever forward steps our executive may consider it desirable to take in pursuit of our policy, that the world may hereby be shown the

ELECTED PRESIDENT OF NURSES ASSN.

Miss Wright of This City Highly Hon- ored at Convention Held Yester- day in Halifax.

Halifax, July 10.—Miss Wright of New Westminster, B. C., was elected president of the Canadian National Association of Nurses at today's session of the convention here.

HIS LOVE UNREQUITED.

Benjamin Howland Drinks Acid as a Result

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 10.—Benjamin Howland for fourteen years a resident of Alaska, committed suicide by taking poison early yesterday morning on the street in front of the residence of Miss Barbara O'Connor, a nurse at St. Matthew's Hospital, after she had refused his proposal of matrimony.

Howland, who was a widower, had been a resident of Fairbanks since the early days of the camp. He had lived in the Iditarod before coming here. Soon after returning from a trip to the Chisna mining district he met and became infatuated with Miss O'Connor.

Howland went to her home at 3 o'clock yesterday morning and demanded that she marry him. When she refused he went out on the sidewalk and took the poison.

Howland's home was in Kansas City, where he had relatives.

MAILS BY AUTO ROUTE.

Quicker Service Wanted Between Vancouver and Port Moody.

In an endeavor to eliminate the long haul between this city and Port Moody via Vancouver, the residents of the Burrard inlet city are petitioning the post office authorities at Ottawa to allow the mails to be carried on the auto bus now operating between New Westminster cannot by the present way be delivered in Port Moody within 24 hours from the time of mailing, while it takes three days to secure a reply by residents of either city.

The boards of trade and public bodies of either community will be asked for support in the matter.

THE CLAFIN FAILURE.

Inquiry into the cause of the recent failure of the H. B. Clafin company, of New York, reveals the fact that the crash came simply by reason of "too much of a muchness."

Carrying thirty million dollars in liabilities, the house of Clafin staggered and crumpled up under the sheer weight of itself, a fact which has gone a long way to maintain confidence in present general business conditions in the face of this big trade reverse.

Had Clafin's been a business of normal tone; had the immense ideas and enormous organization of Clafin's been capable of producing paying results under even conditions, its failure would have been a serious blow to business just as it is beginning to recuperate from a long period of stringency. But Clafin's, as it was conducted, could not have been carried on except under the most favorable conditions and, like the weakened dyke, the pent-up waters of its liabilities destroyed it.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT.

According to the report of the National Municipal League of the United States, recently issued from Philadelphia, the commission and commission-manager forms of government for cities have proved their worth wherever they have been carefully and fairly tried out.

The committee of the league which issued the report agrees that commission government is a relative success and that the people living under it generally are more content than those where the old form obtains. The reason given for this is because the commission system is more sensitive to public opinion and does away entirely with the political affiliations of municipal government.

In smaller cities the abolition of ward lines is said to be desirable and in them the referendum-by-protest and initiative have been found exceedingly useful.

As examples of the success of the commission-manager plan, facts and figures are quoted from fourteen cities where this form has been adopted. Except Dayton, Ohio, all the places mentioned are small, and in each, one manager has been found sufficient. In Dayton it is claimed the management has been a remarkable success and has "made the city manager plan a household word."

The advantages of the system are summed up under twelve heads, chief of which are the creation of a single-headed administrative establishment; the securing of expert administration where it is most needed—at the head; permanence in office of the executive; abolition of one-man power and the abandonment of all attempts to those administrators by popular election.

There are no doubt some faults to be found with the commission and commission-manager plans of civic government, but it seems to be a certainty that in general they are almost as far ahead of the old system as that old system was in advance of the feudal plan.

GOES TO PRISON HIS FATHER BUILT

Young Kansan Inside Penitentiary Which Brought His Parent Success as Contractor.

Leavenworth, Kan., July 10.—Just fifty years ago Charles Schmidt, then a young contractor, newly married, folded his arms and looked up smilingly at the massive walls of the Lansing penitentiary and whispered to himself, "Well done."

He said "Well done" because he had been awarded the contract and had successfully carried the work through. It was a good job and others had told him so. He smiled because he remembered the girl wife at home—for they were yet in their honeymoon, and the money he would receive for that piece of work would go far toward making them happy in a home of their own.

Work came without solicitation then. Charles Schmidt's name had gone out over the state as the "kid contractor" and men of longer experience envied him. The excellent piece of work on the prison walls made him popular. Always when talking of his work he referred to it as the "job that gave him his start." It had started him on the road to success, he said.

Then a baby boy came to the Schmidt home.

Wanted Boy to See Walls.

Two years later a little pleasure trip was made down to Lansing that the wife might see for the first time the "job that brought success." The baby—Arthur—he had named him—clapped his hands and muttered baby talk when they returned home and tried to tell him of what they had seen. The father and mother imagined it to be words of praise for the great, strong walls his father had built.

Arthur grew into manhood. All his life his father had asked him to some day go to Lansing and see the walls. He explained what they had meant to himself and Mrs. Schmidt when they were married.

Last week a tall, sunburned young man stepped from a train to the station platform here. Around one wrist was a handcuff. At his side walked a stern-looking man with a black sombrero.

"Git in here," said the big man, and they rode away.

At Prison Gates.

At the gates of the prison the young man looked up at the walls. His eyes were red. His shoulders shook and he said:

"They had always wanted me to see it, but they never thought it would be like this."

The sheriff pushed him on. He walked, trembling, into the warden's office. As a guard began measuring him for his prison suit the youth moved toward the barred window and gazed down past the massive stone prison walls.

"What's he in for?" grumbled the prison secretary.

"Sellin' liquor in Winfield," replied the sheriff.

"How long'd he get?" asked the secretary.

"Four years," returned the sheriff.

"Say, you kid," growled the secretary again, while the boy still stood looking past the monster walls, "what's yet name?"

"Arthur Schmidt," said the boy.

Then he was led away down a corridor, far from the places where the real light of day gets in, to pay for his sin behind the stone walls—the ones that his father had built and which had sent him on the road to success just fifty years ago.

NUBS OF NEWS

At Rossland free milling gold ore has been struck in the 1200 foot level of the War Eagle mine.

This summer bears come down the hill and eat vegetables out of the hotel garden at Halcyon.

Ore from the Ben Hur mine at Republic is being shipped to the smelter at Hidden creek. It goes north via Seattle.

Large quantities of coal are being shipped from Coalmont to Princeton for the steam shovels working on the railway.

In order to improve the telephone communication between Vancouver and Nanaimo extensive changes in the routing of circuits are being made by the B. C. Telephone company.

E. V. Baker of Seattle, killed himself with a revolver in Alberni on Wednesday of last week but whether the shooting was accidental or intentional has not yet been decided.

Kitsumkalum and the interior valleys are not going to have a monopoly on the northern strawberry crop. A new berry country has been discovered and it promises to furnish Prince Rupert market in coming years with all the luscious strawberries she can consume and then some.

A. H. Flack, Dominion fruit inspector, who has been in Vancouver for the last 16 months, and who was formerly manager of the Penticton Fruit union, has accepted the appointment as chief fruit inspector of the three prairie provinces, with headquarters at Winnipeg. He leaves the first of the week for Winnipeg.

The mineral wealth of the Similkameen and Tulameen districts has not been scratched comparatively speaking and the development work now going on in the many rich mining camps surrounding Princeton has so far proved that the mineral deposits both alluvial and metalliferous, are continuous and richer as depth is gained.

The Vernon council at a special meeting held Wednesday morning, voted an appropriation to construct a swimming pool in Polson park. The pool, which will be 80 feet square and five feet deep, will be constructed just south of the grandstand at the ball diamond and will be fed by springs and by the water of Kalamalka creek.

As the result of the recent rebuilding and enlarging of one of the copper furnaces at the Consolidated Mining and Smelting company's smelter at Trail, the company's mines in Rossland will likely be called upon for an increased shipment of ore. Four copper furnaces are now running at the smelter. Heretofore the mines have sent down from 600 to 700 tons daily. The four furnaces will now accommodate 300 tons additional per day and this ore must come from Rossland.

Robberies are reported from New Hazelton, 100 miles inland on the G. T. P., and at Port Essington, on the Skeena river. R. G. Cunningham's store at Port Essington was broken into, the safe forced and a sum of money secured Tuesday night. On Monday night a stranger entered the office of the Northern hotel at New Hazelton, picked up the cash register and escaped before the dazed clerk could intercept him. A man named Dean has been arrested on suspicion.

Grading on the line of the Pacific Great Eastern railway is reported as practically complete from Lillooet westward to headquarters, which is 14 miles in from Squamish, formerly Newport. Trains are running from Squamish to headquarters and steel is laid for eight miles east or that point. There is some heavy trestle work now in progress in the vicinity of Bear mountain. The scenery is said to be very fine along the route and the timber and waterpowers are valuable.

Detective Jack Kilelen's proficiency in the use of a revolver served him in good stead last evening and probably saved the lives of one or two children in Vancouver who were playing in the street. A mad dog was running wildly about, its head covered with froth and snarling viciously as it went. The canine was given a wither by people in the vicinity. The detective was on his way home when he saw the dangerous looking animal tearing wildly past him. Whipping out his revolver the officer shot him as he ran, killing him instantly.

A letter from Skeena Crossing, which arrived at Prince Rupert last evening, states that George Jennings has struck ore in the new tunnel on the Great Ohio group. The tunnel is in about 265 feet and the ore depth is 350 feet, which is 200 feet deeper than the deepest shaft in the Rocher de Boule mine. This is convincing proof that the copper runs very deep in the great Rocher de Boule mountain. The new ore runs about 12 per cent copper and the owners of properties in the district anticipate something doing as a result of the new find.

The city of Vernon will proceed at once with the expenditure of about $100,000 on improving its sewage system. A new disposal plant will be erected to prevent the contamination of Kalamalka creek and Okanagan lake and an underdrainage system will also be installed to carry off ground water which now seeps into the sewer pipes and makes the flow excessive. At a special meeting of the city council on July 8, the council at the request of Dr. Young of the provincial board of health, agreed that if the under drainage flow ever became contaminated from sewer-sick ground, the council would take measures to prevent the contamination of the creek into which the under drainage system will flow. The plans of City Engineers Cymmins and Agnew for the work will receive the approval of the provincial authorities immediately.

NO RAIN FALLS IN NORTHERN CHILE

Next to Egypt, This South American Country is Most Strangely Formed in the World.

Except Egypt, there is not in the world a country as strangely formed as Chile.

Egypt is 700 miles long, and nowhere, save in the Delta, more than 12 miles wide, Chile is nearly 3,000 miles in length, nowhere more than 130 miles wide, and for the most part of her length much narrower. Even Norway, whose shape and searform best resemble those of Chile, has but 1,500 miles of coast, and has, in her south part, 250 miles of width.

Much of the Chilean territory is a barren desert; much, in fact, that is not desert, is uninhabited. Over large tracts the population is extremely thin. Yet Chile is the most united and the most ardently national in sentiment among all the Spanish-American countries, according to Lord Bryce, former British ambassador to Washington.

Not is Chile any more singular in the shape of her territory than in her physical conditions also. On the east she is bounded all the way down to Magellan straits by the Cordillera of the Andes, the height of whose summits averages, in the northern regions from 14,000 to 20,000 feet, and in the southern from 5,000 to 9,000, some few peaks exceeding these heights.

Parallel to the Cordillera, and geologically much older, there runs along the coast a range averaging from 2,000 to 3,000 feet, between the foot of which and the ocean there is practically no level ground.

The space between this coast range and the Cordillera is a long depression from 20 to 30 miles wide, sometimes ally, sometimes spreading out into plains, yet everywhere so narrow that both the coast range on one side and the spurs of the Andes on the other, are within sight of the inhabitants, who live between them. This long and narrow central depression is Chile, just as the cultivable land on each side of the Nile in Egypt, and in it all the people dwell, except those who are to be found in the few maritime towns.

Small Population.

It may seem strange that a country of this shape, 3,000 miles long, and with only 3,300,000 people, should be conspicuously homogeneous, united and patriotic. When the difference between the territorial Chile, the country of the map, and actual Chile, dwains upon the traveller his surprise disappears.

There are in the republic three distinct regions. The northern is arid desert; some of it profitable nitrate desert, most of it useless desert. The south is an archipelago of wooded isles with a narrow strip of wooded mountain on the mainland behind, both of them crunched by perpetual rains and inhabited only by a few wandering Indians, with here and there a trading post of white men. It is the central part, alone that is compactly peopled, a narrow tract about 700 miles long, most of it mountainous, but the valleys generally fertile and the climate excellent. This central part is the real Chile, the home of the nation.

The northern section, although a desert, has an economic value, and is, indeed, one of the chief sources of natural wealth in the two American continents. It is the region which supplies the agriculturists of the whole world with their nitrates, and the nitrates are here because the country is absolutely rainless. Rains would have washed the precious mineral out of the soil long ago and swept it down into the Pacific.

The nitrate fields are unmitigated desert, a region of low stony hills, dry grass. Sources of fertility to other countries, they remain themselves forever sterile. All the water is brought down in pipes from the upper course of the Loa, the stream which rises on the flanks of the volcano of San Pedro.

One can just descry in the far distance its snow-capped summit. Nitrate Manufactured on Spot. But the desert is all alive. Everywhere there are narrow-gauge lines of rails running hither and thither, with long rows of trucks passing down them, carrying lumps of rocks. Groups of men work with pickaxes breaking the ground or loading the trucks. Puffs of smoke and dust are rising from places where the rock is being blasted with dynamite. Here and there buildings with machinery and tall iron pipes show the oficinas where the rock is ground to powder, then washed and boiled, the liquid mass run off and drained and dried into a whitish powder, which is packed into sacks and sent down to the coast for shipment.

The mineral occurs in a stratum which lies about a foot below the surface, and averages three feet in thickness. It is brownish gray in color, and very hard. There is a considerable by-product of iodine which is separated and sent off for sale. The demand for it is said to be less than the supply.

Each oficina—that is the name given to the places for the reduction and preparation of the mineral—is the centre of a larger or smaller nitrate estate, and the larger and more modern ones are equipped with houses for the managers and work people, each being a sort of village where the company supplies everything to the work people, who are most Chilean rotos, sturdy peasants of half-Indian blood.

In South America one sees plenty of isolated mining villages in deserts, but here is a whole wide region unable to support human life.

These nitrate fields cover a large area in the northern provinces of Chile, but some districts in which the mineral is believed to exist are still imperfectly explored, and many in which it does exist show a comparatively poor stratum, so that it is not possible to estimate how much remains to be developed and the length of time it will take at the present rate of production to exhaust that amount. We were told, however, says Mr. Bryce, that so far as can be conjectured, the fields might (at the present rate) last nearly two centuries, before the end of which period much may happen in the field of scientific agriculture.

Where Buccaneers Used to Operate.

Between the nitrate fields and the sea there lies a strip of wholly unprofitable desert, traversed by that range of hills which rise from the coast all the way along the west side of Chile and Peru. Here the railway line forks, sending one branch to the port of Antofagasta, crushed in between the dreary, dusty hills, and the rocky shore. Landing in the surf is often difficult, and sometimes dangerous, but as the chief port of the southern nitrate country, it receives a good deal of shipping.

Nearly five hundred miles farther south are the towns of La Serena and Coquimbo, the former a quiet old Spanish city, packed back from the coast to be out of the way of the English and Dutch marauders, who were frequent and formidable visitors in these seas, after Sir Francis Drake had led the way in his famous voyage in 1578, when he sailed up and down the coast plundering towns and capturing ships.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS.

COAL MINING rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,500 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections or legal subdivisions of sections and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee will be permitted to purchase whatever available surface right may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

Deputy Minister of the Interior, W. W. CORY.

HOW THEY SEARCHED FOR GREAT EXPLORER

Survivor of Franklin Relief Expedition Tells of Early Hardships in the Far North.

There are plenty of pensioners at Plymouth—veterans of both services, says Lloyd's Weekly News, London. You can see them taking the air in Beaumont park or out on the Hoe; they are sociable old boys, and will yarn to you of many a hairbreadth escape. They have their medals, and are persons of consequence, or, at least, of dignity.

One Plymouth naval pensioner, however, is, so to speak, the "daddy" of all these, though they may have gone through the Crimea or the Mutiny. He saw service fourteen years before we went to war with Russia, and was duly decorated in recognition of the fact, at his country's leasure. His name is John Berry, he lives with his daughter and son-in-law in Lisson Grove, Mutley, and he is all but 90 years of age. He is wonderfully bright, considering his years, and although he cannot get about much, he enjoys his pipe, and is by no means averse from talking about his recollections. A chat is a tonic for him, and you soon find out that he is a rather positive old gentleman with a sense of humor.

To a representative of Lloyd's News he told his story, when he had been assured that there were people to whom it would be interesting.

The Arctic Medal.

First of all, however, there were the medals to be inspected. The first has just been alluded to; it is dated 1848, but was bestowed for service in 1840, and it bears the word "Syria." The second, and by far the most interesting, is inscribed "For Arctic Discoveries: 1818-1855."

Surmounted by a star, it is hexagonal in shape, and bears a design in relief representing a three-masted ship shut in by icebergs, and a landing party about to start inland with sleighs and dogs.

It is a beautifully executed piece of work, and it recalls to Mr. Berry a period of two and a half years which he spent in and about Behring Sea in connection with one of the many expeditions which were sent out to glean tidings with regard to the fate of Sir John Franklin and the brave companions who had sailed with him in the Erebus and Terror in 1845.

The other medal relates to service at the Antipodes, and is inscribed, "New Zealand: Virtutis Honor: 1860-1861." Round its edge is the name, "J. Berry, Captain F. Castle, H. M. S. Cordelia." These are all Mr. Berry's trophies, but the three certainly make a unique collection.

Nelson's Hardy.

He was born at Tor Point, which is where the ferry is that takes you across the Hamoaze to the Cornish shore, and his first recollections are of trips on the Tamar. When he was about 10 years old he was sent to Greenwich to a big school there where seamen were trained.

"I mind," he said, "that it was a three days' journey from Tor Point. You took three days' provisions with you, and they had to last you. There were eight hundred boys there; they learned us to climb ropes, and we had a bathing pond, but they did not learn me much else. A matter of two hundred girls were at the school as well. I never asked what they learned; I believe they went to the cookshop. But what I chiefly remember about the three years and nine months I spent at Greenwich was the times I used to see Admiral Hardy—him that was Nelson's captain on the Victory. He was the governor of the college."

Mr. Berry, it should be explained, sees no reason why Greenwich hospital should be so called. It is not an infirmary, he declares.

"Yes, Admiral Hardy was the governor of the college, and a nice old gentleman he was. I mind his having Punch and Judy into the college for him to look at. Another time he got up a cricket match amongst the disabled seamen! I saw them all drive off in wagons—eleven one-armed men were to play against eleven one-legged men. That was 'Fighting Captain Hardy'—Nelson's Hardy."

Spoiling the Egyptians.

This reminiscence of Mr. Berry's seemed to bring the great days of Trafalgar back almost to within living experience. There was a man who had seen him in whose arms the immortal Nelson died. Hardy, it may be added, died in 1839.

Young Berry left Greenwich and went home to New Passage on the other side of the Hamoaze from Tor Point, whither the family had moved. He spent a couple of months in the docks, and then shipped on board the Thunderer, and formally joined the royal navy. The vessel sailed from Plymouth to Lisbon, and on into the Mediterranean.

At this point Egypt under Mohammed Ali was in arms against the Turks, and Ibrahim, Mohammed's son, was engaged in a war of conquest in Syria. England and Austria made common cause with the Turks. Mr. Berry did not know much about these matters, but he does recollect "a bit of a rub" at Beyrout and a visit to Sidon, and especially the bombardment and capture of Acre by the British squadron.

"I was on the Thunderer," he said, "handing up the ammunition. We bombarded the place about five hours, and should have been longer only we had the luck to blow up the magazine. There were some casualties, but none on board the Thunderer—the Egyptians firing too high to do much damage. That was my first time in action; I wasn't quite 15 years old, and I earned a medal by it."

The Search for Franklin.

The cruise of the Thunderer lasted some three years, and then the lad had a succession of ships in the course of his duty. He was serving on board the Doedalus—a ship which had lately become famous on account of the solemn statement of some of her officers that they had seen a huge sea serpent while on their voyage home from China—when an inquiry was made for volunteers for service in the Arctic seas. Nothing had been heard of the fate of the Erebus and Terror, and a ship called the Plover had been sent—it must have been the first of the fifteen search expeditions which were dispatched between 1848 and 1854—to the Behring Sea. Franklin had intended to make his way west to Behring Sea from Baffin's Bay and the Plover spent some weary waiting for the men who never came. She herself gave no sign and the Doedalus went up north. She found the Plover lying in Grantley Harbor, a long, narrow inlet on the Alaska coast of the Behring Straits.

"Some of those on the Plover were coming away," said Mr. Berry, "and we took their places. The ship had weathered the year before in Kotzebue channel. We gave her coal and provisions. At Grantley harbor we found some onions growing; they had been planted by Capt. Bechey, of the Blossom in the year 1826. I say onions, but there were only a few inches of green, and there was nothing underneath that you could eat."

"The next year we wintered at Point Barrow, the most northerly point on the American continent. There was no grass there—it was a desolate spot. We found coal there, however, great pieces of it forced up by the ice pressing on the shore."

Always Was a Job.

"What did we do? There was always a job on hand. We were told off in working parties, chopping up wood or carrying snow to fill the tanks; it takes a tremendous lot of snow to make a tank of water. At Point Barrow we were afraid of the ship being smashed and breaking up, so we built a house on the beach to hold our spare sails and spars and other stores, and I remember that the Eskimos looted it. I saw bears, but I never killed one. We wore sealskin trousers and deerskin or dogskin, anything that we could barter. There is nothing like skin for traveling or working in.

"The sun, of course, was out of sight for months, but we could see the light, for it wasn't quite dark. After we got in our hammocks of a night we'd sit or lie listening for hours to one of our number who was a first rate old chap for reading."

"The next winter after that we were back at Grantley harbor. Once we went inland for thirty miles, and had to cross a bay. We had no tent, but each of us had a couple of sleigh skins; we laid on one and had the other over us. I was not properly covered and my feet became frostbitten, so that the top of my toe had to be cut off."

"In the spring at Grantley harbor there are plenty of deer, and we fared well. We would fall in with a whaler, perhaps, and get some preserved fruit from her. But in the winter we had only the ship's provisions."

All Over the World.

"I had two and a half years in the Arctic, and then it was a long time before I could get home. The Amphitrite came to Grantley harbor, and I shipped aboard her. The Russian war was on, and we subsequently took a party of Russian prisoners to Tahiti, one of the Society Islands. The Plover was sold in San Francisco for $1,800 and her crew took home the captured Russian ship from which our prisoners had come."

This was all Mr. Berry's experience in the Arctic, but it did not end his travels. An officer who had been lieutenant on the Plover sought him out at Devonport and got him to join the Cordelia and go to New Zealand, where he served during the Maori troubles of 1860 and 1861, seeing very little actual fighting, however. He left the service in the late sixties and went to work in the dockyard at Devonport, where he continued until he was superannuated.

PUT WIFE IN ASYLUM TO COURT HIS STENO.

Claiming Her Husband Confined Her in Mental Hospital to Give Him Freedom, Spouse Seeks Divorce.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 10.—Declaring her husband, Emmanuel Wandersee, caused her to be confined for nine months in the state hospital at Rochester, under a false charge of insanity that he might be free to court his stenographer, Mrs. Ethel Wandersee today began suit for divorce in the district court.

Not only did Wandersee attempt to get her out of the way, according to the wife's complaint, but he attempted, she says, to give away their two children, Fred, aged 6, and Ruth, 3, while she was in Rochester. After she was released she says he would not permit her to see her little ones or even to send them candy.

Mrs. Wandersee says she was married at Delano, Minn., in March, 1907. Early in 1912 she says Wandersee became infatuated with his stenographer, Miss Hattie Dunbar. She declares he took Miss Dunbar to theaters and on automobile rides, while she was forced to remain at home. She says he used to caress the stenographer and call her "dearie" in her presence.

When she protested she says Wandersee lodged a complaint of insanity against her and finally secured her commitment to Rochester on July 31, 1913. The night she was taken to Rochester she says Wandersee took his stenographer for a joy ride to Medicine Lake.

For nine months Mrs. Wandersee says, while she was at Rochester her husband kept constant company with Miss Dunbar and even took the girl to live with him in their home. Mrs. Wandersee says the authorities at the hospital pronounced her sound mentally, but Wandersee refused to allow her to leave the asylum. Only once in the nine months that she was there did her husband come to see her, she says and he refused to write.

In her complaint Mrs. Wandersee states that her husband is a contractor with an income of $5,000 a year. She demands a divorce, $125 a month alimony, half her husband's property and the custody of the children whom she says Wandersee is allowing to grow up among vicious associates.

HARDING'S HERITAGE.
 Romantic Photoplay to be Shown at the Edson Today
 Jean Harding, after struggling against poverty for years and making little or no headway, finally determines to seek his fortune in the South African gold mines. He leaves his son Paul in the care of a family named Farman and is gone but a few days when Paul learns that he is going to miss his father, for the Farman are cruel, not only to their young daughter Lillian, but to Paul as well, which nurtures a deep friendship between the children. The Farman's cruelty becomes so unbearable that Paul leaves his home to shift for himself.
 Three months later, Harding sends to the Farman a cheque for $300, $200 of which is to be saved for the boy and the balance to pay the Farman for the boy's board. The Farman decide to keep the entire amount and little Lillian hearing of this informs Paul. Paul hurries back with Lillian to fight for his rights, but upon their return the children find that Lillian's parents have gone. Paul persuades the wife of his employer to adopt Lillian and writes to his father in South Africa giving the news.
 Eight years later Harding, having amassed a fortune, starts for home with his partner, Jules Carahut. At the border line post office, Daniel Vandal, the postmaster, and his wife Olive plot to rob Harding and Carahut. They force the latter into a quarrel and in defending his partner, Harding is mortally wounded. On his death bed he gives Carahut a message to his son and taxes Jules with the duty of seeing that the boy secures his fortune. Paul offers his love and his wealth to Lillian who is both surprised and delighted.
 The program also includes Mr. Bunnyhug Buys a Hat for His Bride, a comedy with John Bunney and Flora Finch. A laugh from start to finish.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR BURNABY

Royal Crown Soap, L.d., Will Erect Plant at Burnaby Giving 100 Men Employment.

Announcement was made in Vancouver yesterday morning by C. A. Schooley, manager of Royal Crown Soaps, Ltd., that the company intended to rush operations on the new $250,000 plant to be located on Burnaby inlet in Burnaby. When the new plant is completed employment will be given to 100 hands. It is generally understood and was so announced last year that Lever Bros., the big British firm which operates at Port Sunlight, near Liverpool is behind the enterprise.
 Tenders for the construction of the soap factory are now being advertised. The bids will close on July 31. The plans provide for a reinforced concrete wharf extending 160 feet out into the inlet from the C. P. R. right-of-way and 125 feet in width. A subway, also of concrete, will lead under the tracks to the main building south of the railway tracks. Cars will be operated in this passage as well as belt conveyors. The main building will be erected against the slope of the hill. The front part will be eight stories in height while the back will be three floors only. It will be of the most up-to-date type, built of reinforced concrete with a big chimney. Elevators and all modern facilities will be provided. The upper floors will cover a space of 300 by 60 feet.
 Construction work is to be rushed as soon as the contracts are awarded and Mr. Schooley says he expects to have the new factory in operation within eight months from date of contract.

He gets it after a terrible chase, a black eye and almost at the cost of his wife's life. It came high but she had to have it at any cost.

COMING MONDAY

A Militant Suffragette

Pathe Drama in five parts with a very unusual story destined to create much comment. It shows most clearly the methods of the English "Mad Women," whose lawless deeds have amazed the world.

Wills

There is a period in the life of every man when he thinks about the future welfare of those dependent upon him. Sometimes this does not come until sickness overtakes him. Then he makes a will—but it may be made under wrong influence.

Had the will been made during good health, the most deserving persons—according to the deceased's wish—would have shared in the distribution of the estate.

Do you not realize that it is your sacred duty to no longer delay making your will?

The advice of the Dominion Trust company in this matter may be of value to you. All such discussions are treated in strict confidence.

THE ROYAL THEATRE.

"The Million Dollar Mystery" which Will be Seen for Two Days.
 Talking this week of the wonderful popularity of the "Million Dollar Mystery," the first instalment of which is to be shown at the Royal theatre next Monday and Tuesday and which appears as the commencement of a motion picture serial 44 reels long. Manageress Gillis had some interesting things to say with regard to the public taste in photoplays.
 "It is marvellous," she said, "how rapidly the taste of the public as regards photoplays has developed, and is developing along sound lines. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the public verdict as to what constitutes a good photoplay is unerring in its accuracy. At one time it used to be thought that any cheap, tawdry, meretricious stuff could be handed out to the patrons of the photoplay house. But the day for that has gone.
 "With photoplays, as with everything else, the demand creates the supply. Most of us live in the midst of perpetual talk, words, words, all the time. In a photoplay you get no words but action. And the change from talk to incident is a mental tonic as well as an intellectual rest."
 On Monday and Tuesday of next week the first instalment of "The Million Dollar Mystery" will be presented at the Royal theatre. This instalment is entitled "The Airship in the Night" and is the most absorbing film ever presented. This will be backed by those ever funny Keystone folks, "The Fatal Mallet," an uproarious comedy, a great Flying A, an absorbing dramatic presentation of unfathomed wealth and happiness, and two other feature films will complete the bill.
 Little Violet Wood, the clever mouth organ player, will play this evening. Come and hear her.

steadfastness of Ulstermen when suffering for their God and their country."

Carson is Touched.
 London, July 10.—After the Ulster council meeting today when the leaders were authorized to act in any emergency, and when Ulster Unionists were exhorted to preserve the same restraint as hitherto, Sir Edward Carson said:
 "I am at once proud and touched at the evidence I have had today of the increasing enthusiasm and the growing determination of Ulster. To-

ULSTER UNIONISTS FORM PROVISIONAL GOV.

The Unionist papers declare that the gravest possible crisis is at hand in Ulster, and some of them have sent large staffs to that province and have made some preparations to report unexpected events.
 On the other hand, the liberal papers contend that the followers of Carson are working up a great sensation, which is only a bluff, intended to influence the coming debates in the house of commons on the amending bill, and frighten the government into yielding all the exclusion terms demanded by the Carsonites.
 The humorous side of the situation is seen in the almost daily reports in Unionist papers of extensive landing of arms and ammunition for the Ulster volunteers, which reports are promptly contradicted by other equally trustworthy Unionist papers.

CIRCLE F REPEAT

Defeat Columbus Team 9-2—Losses Failed to Follow up Advantages.

Moose luck travelled hand in hand with Circle F last night at the local ball yard, the lumbermen getting away with a 9-3 game at the expense of the Columbus aggregation when everything appeared ripe for a victory for the tallenders.

Stealing bases on the part of the Columbus team with Finch back of the plate was a hard matter indeed in last night's game.

The Maryville twirler lacked everything but a windmill windup but somehow he managed to save his face, aided by splendid support from the infield.

Fielding stunts of big league character were pulled off from time to time, Merrill, Windblad and Jack Gay featuring throughout.

Columbus opened in the first with a tally which should have been stretched into three, the hidden ball trick being successfully worked by Weingartner with Gravin on third.

Fraser Mills did not wake up until the third when they crossed the pan for a quartette, the Columbus missing a chance to score the third double of the game in the early part of the stanza.

Gotchy settled down to business from then on, pitching nine balls in the next two innings, Columbus crept closer to the Millside boys in the fifth and sixth with one run each but the flight happened in the eighth.

Last night's game was well up to the ordinary, the crowd getting their fill of some stellar fielding features and heavy hitting. Finch, the catcher for Circle F caught a heady game, cutting off runners at second and third.

Score— R. H. E. Columbus 3 8 5 Circle F 9 7 4 Batteries: Gotchy and Stevenson; Schaefer and Finch; Umpire, Fred J. Lynch.

VICTORIA CREWS WIN

Several Events in Portland Aquatic Races Taken By Canadians—Senior Events Today.

Portland, Ore., July 10.—Portland won the junior singles and doubles, and Victoria, B.C. was victorious in the junior four oared race here today in the 23rd annual regatta of the North Pacific Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

The doubles was the feature, Cooper and Wyde won by a margin of only three seconds over Vancouver. The winners made a bad start and until near the end Vancouver was a poor third when a spurt nearly won the event.

Victoria won the four oared race easily. They took the lead and kept it from the gun. Vancouver and Portland kept their order to the end, Victoria heading Vancouver by five lengths and Portland by seven at the end.

Cooper of Portland had it easy in the singles. The senior events will be rowed tomorrow.

BASEBALL TODAY

Local All Stars Clash With Picked Team from Vancouver—Representative Selection.

Baseball will take the place of lacrosse as the sporting attraction in the city this afternoon, the local all-stars crossing bats with a picked team from Vancouver. The Royals will be at full strength and will trot out a new twirler by the name of Hulme. Little is known about the slabsman although Manager Walsh is authority that Hulme can hold his own with the best in this section of the province.

The rest of the team will be comprised of Leeper, Steele, Silver, Gravin, McCabe, Williams, Neilson and Huhnke.

AT MINORU

Racing Season Opens at Lulu Island Track—Feature Card for First Day.

The race meet at Minoru park, Lulu Island, will open this afternoon when the crack steeds of the northwest will be sent to the barrier. Indications point to a bumper crowd and plenty of excitement during the seven events. The association has secured the best officials obtainable while the grounds have been laid out at great expense which, with the races will appeal to all.

Special accommodation for patrons to the course have been made by the B. C. E. R., while the roads leading to Brighthouse have been placed in fine condition for autoists.

Sport Comment

The retirement of the Vancouver Athletics from the field of lacrosse marks the passing of a brief career of two would-be professional sport magnates, Messrs. Oppenheimer and Clark. Coming through with all kinds of promises to the Salmon Bellies as to how strong their team would be, that the salaries of the players on the split-gate basis would be better than ever and that the Vancouver sporting element were backing them to a man, they were strong enough at the beginning of the season to head off Con Jones, and allow the Royals to fall for their offers. Jones had been tried before and while not, according to many Westminster fans, the best sportsman in the world, he did make a go of lacrosse. The Vancouver sport promoter did what many a fighter attempts to do but fails, retire without being licked. He pulled up stakes when the feeling between the two mainland cities was tense over lacrosse matters.

Whether Con Jones will again break into the game remains to be seen. Most probably the Westminster players to a man would jump with glee to see him back at the head of the Greenshirts. It is altogether probable that the players formerly under the Athletic colors would not be averse to playing under Con Jones knowing that their pay would be secure. The former Australian will be back in Vancouver early next week when an announcement is likely to be made.

LOOK FOR VICTORY

New Westminster Cricket Club Making Eid for Championship. New Westminster cricketers will attempt to climb the league still further this afternoon when the Public Schools eleven of Vancouver will be the visitors on the asyru grounds. During the past few weeks the local knights of the willow have been travelling along at a rapid pace and with the eleven selected for today, they should have no difficulty in disposing of the visitors. The team will be as follows: F. C. B. Cave, W. A. Wells, F. A. Rose, L. C. Davies, L. W. Peel, G. Irving, J. E. C. Brown, W. R. Hamilton, E. T. Dunford, J. Duncan and H. Walton.

BAYLEY VS O'LEARY

Lightweight Eattle at Brighthouse Today—Victoria Boy Will Attempt to Come Back.

The Canadian lightweight title will be at stake at Brighthouse this afternoon when Johnny O'Leary, who defeated Frenchy Vaise on Dominion day will stack up against the former title holder, Joe aBayley of Victoria. That the mill will be a fast one is the opinion of a host of sports who will be in attendance and even money is being offered that the Victoria boy will again be the possessor of the title. Bayley never knows when he is defeated until knocked out and the records do not show many sleep tags being administered to Joe.

The millings will start at 1 o'clock sharp with a six round preliminary, followed by the main bout at 1:30. A record attendance is looked for, seeing that the races open at Minoru park the same afternoon.

AT CHILLIWACK.

Electrics with Slaton Will Clash with Hurley and Company.

Slaton and Hood will form the battery for the Electrics this afternoon when they meet the Chilliwack nine at the Vedder mountain terminus of the Fraser valley line. This is the first game this season between New Westminster and Chilliwack and while not altogether strong with the bat the homsters are planning to give Slaton the time of his life by having the Sumas battery, Hurley and Triplett, under operation. The following players will leave on the 9 o'clock train this morning: Slaton, Weingartner Decker, Papke, Moir, Hood, Marmont, Ames and Wyard.

SPORT CHATTER.

(By the Potter.)

When not officiating at ball games and looking after the cares of business, Fred J. Lynch spends his time at Crescent Beach. He awakened all the campers yesterday morning when he trod on a spiked board preparatory to taking his semi-daily dip.

Maillardville and Port Coquitlam mixed in an overtime battle at Fraser Mills last night, a one-all draw resulting. The Frenchmen went wild over the result, this being the first time in weeks that the Maillardville boys have been able to hold their own against the leaders.

The dopesters will have a busy yet precarious time at Minoru this afternoon picking the winners. In many instances the sure thing stuff from the hangers on will be missing.

And we hear of some fellows who would stake their money on Joe Bayley in his fight with Johnny O'Leary at Brighthouse this afternoon. It's a cinch that Joe will make a game attempt to regain the championship. Both Bayley and his manager, Morris Condon, have had a hard time during the past few months gathering together enough change to take in the movies.

"The force of the ball made me clam my mitt." This was the excuse Vic Windblad gave when he stubbed a hot one from Merrill last night which looked good for a sure single.

An all star nine from Vancouver, wearing Western Canada Power company's uniforms will be the attraction at Fraser Mills tomorrow afternoon.

Victoria would virtually present New Westminster with the Mann cup should the Capitals manage to slip one over the V. A. C. this afternoon. The cupholders have not practiced during the week although they will have some good assistance from "Dutch" Kendall, the self-confessed professional.

WHEN JEFF STOPPED CORBETT IN THE 23rd ROUND

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON

The 63th minute of the heavyweight battle between James J. Jeffries and James J. Corbett before the Seaside Athletic Club at Coney Island on the evening of May 11, 1900, was the most dramatic in the history of boxing.

Corbett had emerged from retirement to meet Jeffries, the new coming king of the prize ring, in the face of taunts and the derision of the boxing public. A "has been" declared by many to be only a clever boxer and never a fighter, Corbett came from a year of recuperation to battle the stolid cave man who had served his apprenticeship in Corbett's own camp.

Seldom were two men more different in style or appearance. The sporting public of New York swarmed to the seaside and among the wiser ones the news had gone forth that Corbett was fit. The huge building was packed to suffocation on a night unearthy hot for the season. Trim, lean of loin and waist, clean-cut, fast, and every muscle rippling white under satinsmooth skin, Corbett faced the stolid hairy giant, who, sullen and lowering slouched toward him. Corbett Shows Up Jeff. From the instant that Charley White the referee, stepped back as the first kong clanged, Corbett showed his skill. Smiling, he raced in and out, sidestepped, dodged, and with whip-like lefts he battered the sullen visage of the giant who lumbered after him. Round after round he toyed with the hulking champion, cutting his face with whiplike blows, driving short jabs to the huge barrel of a body, and taunting his adversary as he danced always just out of reach. The 20th round came. Jeffries was tired, hurt, sullen and vicious. Behind

HOW THE CLAFLIN FAILURE OCCURED

No Suggestion of Fraud or Lack of Money—Plain Case of Ruin by Inefficiency.

Montreal, July 9.—Not in many years has there been such a resounding crash in the mercantile world as the collapse of the H. B. Clafin enterprises, with headquarters in New York. There is not, as in the Siegel failure, any suggestion of fraud. Nor was the failure due primarily to any lack of money, for at one time or another the Clafin enterprises had at their command more money probably than any other retail business in the world. They had J. P. Morgan in with them. Seven or eight years ago H. B. Clafin was in difficulties, but J. P. Morgan came to his rescue. It may be that the aid of Morgan was the underlying cause of the recent failure. Clafin tried to do with stores what Morgan had done with railroads. On the surface he seemed to succeed. The financial manipulations were successful, but the goods were not being sold at a profit. A railroad has always some sort of monopoly. A department store has not. It has to meet the prices of its next-door neighbor. A railroad probably doesn't have a next door neighbor.

To Meet New Conditions.
Originally the H. B. Clafin enterprise was a wholesaler or jobber, supplying retail dry goods stores. The business was a profitable one, and grew to be the largest in the United States. In the past ten or fifteen years, however, the big jobbers have had to meet new conditions. The growth of department stores doing business on a cash basis has led to the cutting out of the middleman. Most department stores are able to deal directly with the manufacturer, and can buy in large enough quantities to get as good a price as the big jobber. They save, therefore, this commission. Confronted with this problem, the Clafin store calculated that all that was necessary was to bribe a sufficient number of department stores to buy from it, and it need not fear for its business. It sought to attach the retail stores by giving great extensions of credit. These stores were not expected to deal exclusively with Clafin, but to buy from manufacturers when their was better, and only to patronize Clafin when they could not do better anywhere else.

The Clafin String.
The United Dry Goods Company, formed in May, 1909, with John Clafin as president, took over from the Associated Merchants Company which had been formed in 1901, with much the same purpose, the H. B. Clafin wholesale house and several large department stores—two under the name of McCreery's and the O'Neill-Adams, in New York city; Stewart and Co., Baltimore; J. M. Adams and Co., Buffalo, and four-fifths of the common stock of the G. G. Gunter's Sons, fur, in New York. Later, the United Dry Goods Company bought from Mr. Clafin Hahne and Co., the largest department store in Newark; the Powers Mercantile Company, Minneapolis; the William Hengeler Company, Buffalo, and the Stewart Dry Goods Company, Louisville. In 1910 the United Dry Goods Company bought a controlling interest in Lord and Taylor, New York. Mr. Clafin himself owned about thirty other department stores scattered over the country. Through these great department stores it was hoped that the United Dry Goods Company, as a holding company, would create a sufficient attachment to the idea of the Clafin capital to bring increased buying orders to the H. B. Clafin wholesale company.

Ruined by Inefficiency.
The Clafin enterprises were the largest in the country, and the idea seemed to be that because they could control the most capital they could control the most business. This they failed to do. The parent organization was not efficient, and this lack of efficiency prevented Clafin and his associates from seeing that the other business to which they were extending their credit were not efficient, either. In stockkeeping they fell down badly. They had no system, it is said, for telling how any given lot of goods was selling. At the end of a season they would discover what was left on hand, and this would be sacrificed at a great loss. Most of the salespeople were paid on commission. The result was that the salespeople would do everything in their power to sell the more popular lines of goods. They had no interest in the slow sellers, and these were kept too long instead of their weakness being at once detected and the loss cut immediately.

Each Leaned; Both Fell.
There was also a bad system in vogue of sending half a dozen or more salespeople to one department store, each specializing in a single line, or, at most, a few lines of goods. Now the Armour's, who sell everything from meats to violin strings and toilet articles, employ 4,000 salesmen and each one takes orders for everything that Armour manufactures. A tremendous waste of money, and a loss of co-operation, marked the Clafin system, and was hidden only by the huge capital resources of the enterprises. Had they not been in possession of so much money, they would have been driven to overhaul and modernize their systems long ago, and the great crash might have been avoided. With this weakness in the parent company, it is plain that other weaknesses in the subsidiary companies would not be quickly found out. The smaller stores, in fact, got in the habit of leaning on the parent organization, whereas the parent organization thought it was being nourished and protected by its progeny. The result was the biggest failure in many years.

FOOD DEMANDED BY THE HINDUS

Serious Situation Existed for Short Time—Smiles Greet Visitors When Provisions Arrive.

Vancouver, July 10.—Although the government officials announce that they will not provision the Komagata Maru it is likely that that course will become necessary. The owners, who are at Kobe, Japan, refuse provisions, placing the responsibility upon its charterers, who first were Gurdit Singh and his followers, and later were the committee of Vancouver Hindus. The Gurdit Singh outfit confesses to bankruptcy, and the shore Hindus refuse to put up any more money now that the courts have decided the Komagata Maru men cannot land here. The people on the Komagata Maru cannot be allowed to starve, and it is to the interest of all concerned to speed the departing guests. If the government can force the owners to pay for the provisions, that may be accomplished in some way later, possibly by the libeling of the ship. So soon as the proposition was clearly laid before the immigration officials, that the Komagata Hindus were willing to waive any further judicial or semi-judicial proceedings and return to Hongkong provided the ship was provisioned, the officers prepared to complete the proceedings of the board of inquiry, and this move, regarded as hostile, was met by something approaching rebellion aboard the Komagata Maru.

Requests for Food.
Prior to the arrival of Superintendent Malcolm R. J. Reid, Inspector Hopkinson, Mr. Howard and two lady stenographers, constituting the board of inquiry on the Komagata, requests were received by the officials for food and water, and these were referred to Mr. J. Edward Bird, representing the Komagata Hindus and the Vancouver charterers of the vessel. The Hindus being short of provisions, were not in a happy mood and the reopening of the board of inquiry, ordered by the department at Ottawa, seemed to act as an extreme irritant. The Hindus crowded around the officials upon their arrival on the ship in a threatening manner. The Hindu committee in charge refused point blank to allow the inquiry to proceed, and the discussion became so animated that Mr. Reid judged it wise to send the two lady stenographers ashore forthwith.

After further discussion the Hindus informed Mr. Reid that he would not be permitted to leave the ship until provisions were sent out. But Mr. Reid did not propose to be bluffed, and finally he made his way out of the cabin by the back door, shouldered a pathway through the Hindus and went down the ladder to the launch, his departure being a signal for howls of wrath from the Komagata passengers.

Provisions Provided.
Later in the evening Mr. Reid with other officials, and a cargo of provisions returned to the Komagata and Inspector Hopkinson, the interpreter, held parley with the Hindus before boarding the ship. Instructed by Mr. Reid, Mr. Hopkinson told the Hindus that the provisioning of the ship was a matter between the owners, the charterers and the captain of the ship and neither the government nor the city was responsible. They were also informed that the officers regretted that the Hindus had been "misled by certain attorneys," both before the departure from Hongkong and after their arrival here with promises that they would win through. The superintendent also informed the Hindus that they were under the laws of the city and must obey the same. To this the Hindus replied that they would interfere with no one if they were not interfered with.

The parleying having concluded, Mr. Reid ordered the provisions taken aboard and a remarkable change became noticeable in the attitude of the Hindus. When Superintendent Reid and his officers departed for shore, the Hindus wished them "Godspeed."

Mr. B. Reid to Mr. Reid.

Mr. Reid yesterday received the following letter from Mr. Reid:
"Dear Sir,—Mr. Pratt, of my office, has called me up asking me to see you and Mr. Ladner, one of your counsel, in connection with the serious condition on board ship, owing to the starvation of passengers on board the Komagata Maru. There are numbers of men on board this ship that are new there under deportation order, and all have done what they could to put themselves in your control for deportation. I would respectfully point out that these men are in effect, and some of them are actually, under arrest and held in detention for deportation, and they are only bound to put up $20 apiece to provide food for themselves in case they are appealing to the minister. This implies that you are to feed them while you are holding them for deportation, and you will fail in this at your peril."
"Yours truly,
"J. EDWARD BIRD."

In answer to a communication, asking for instructions, Mr. Bird received a telegraphic message from the department of immigration at Ottawa yesterday, which ran as follows:
"Complete boards of enquiry as rapidly as possible, carefully complying with the provisions of the law. In view of difficulties surrounding deportation via Komagata Maru you may suggest to the master of the ship that the department is willing to arrange to deport the passengers by other vessels, provided the owners of the Komagata Maru give security for payment of expenses so incurred. The department understand that the Japanese consul will urge this course upon the captain. Facilitate lightening ship's cargo."

IN DESPAIR KILLS SELF AND WIFE

Doctor in Middle Western States Ends His Own Life and That of His Mate.

Minneapolis, July 10.—Pressed for money, believing his run of bad luck never was going to end, Dr. Knute Teigen shot and killed his wife and took his own life in his apartments last night.

The physician first gave his wife, Amanda Teigen, an anaesthetic and then shot her through the head as she lay unconscious. He shot himself with the same gun, the bullet entering above the right ear.

The bodies were found by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Chreiman. Mrs. Chreiman was a niece of Mrs. Teigen.

Teigen was a well known physician of South Minneapolis. He had a big practice up to ten years ago. Then he began writing books on monism and Socialism. He gave all his time to this.

A man whom Teigen believed his friend induced him to invest some $30,000, all his savings, in Montana gold mines. The mines proved worthless.

Later Teigen fell and was injured as he stepped from a street car. The injury caused the formation of a blood clot on his brain, which left him partially paralyzed.

Teigen attempted to get a settlement from the street car company, but failed, the company claiming that he fell after he left the car and that it was in no way responsible.

Teigen began to brood over his bad luck.

Several times the broken physician threatened to kill himself. Each time his wife persuaded him to "try again." Saturday night, Teigen waited until all others living in the apartment house had gone out. Then he planned carefully the death of his wife and himself.

He and his wife sent a joint letter to the Chreimans in which Mrs. Teigen said she believed in her husband and said he never had been appreciated, and that he and she would be "one in death as in life." Two other letters were written, one to a son of Dr. Teigen.

When the Chreimans, who were at Lake Minnetonka, returned home, they found the special delivery letter waiting for them, telling of the death plans of the Teigen's.

With Patrolman Frank Smith they hurried to the apartment. They had to break in the door. The bodies of the physician and his wife were stretched out side by side on the bed, and on the face of each was a twisted smile, marred by the blood streaks from the revolver wounds.

Miss Bontor left on Wednesday for a month's holiday to Woodlands.

Mrs. Pyne is the guest of her sister Mrs. Kenneth Macrae, of Vancouver.

Mrs. Coverdale Watson has left for Boundary Bay where she will spend the next six weeks.

Miss Rickman is spending two months with her aunt, Mrs. W. H. Falding of Rossland.

Miss McIntyre of Winnipeg is spending some weeks the guest of Mrs. N. B. Gauvreau.

Miss Jessie Fraser is the guest of the Misses Trapp at their summer home near Port Moody.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Corbould have returned from the East, where Mrs. Corbould has spent the past six months.

Mrs. W. J. Mathers of Burnaby Lake has staying with her sister, Miss Lyle Whelan of the Victoria high school staff.

Among the hostesses who have entertained informally at croquet or tea this week have been Mrs. T. L. Briggs, Mrs. H. R. Davidson and Mrs. G. D. Brymner.

After spending two months in Kamloops, Miss L. C. Jones has returned to the city accompanied by Miss Isabelle Burton, who will spend the summer months on the coast.

An interesting wedding took place in Queen's Avenue church on Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock when Mr. Elmore Meredith, of Vancouver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Meredith, Fifth Avenue, was united in matrimony to Miss Laura Watson, daughter of Mrs. Coverdale Watson, Third Avenue. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Dr. Sippell, assisted by the Rev. W. W. Abbott, and only the immediate families of the bridal pair were present. The young bride looked lovely in her wedding gown of silk velvet with bodice and tunic of silk crepe brocaded with velvet. Exquisite Venetian rose point lace adorned the bodice and tunic and the tulle vest was embroidered with seed pearls. A square train of velvet finished the skirt. Her veil was worn under lace and orange blossoms arranged as a Dutch cap, and her bouquet was of cream rose buds and lilies of the valley. She wore the groom's gift, a platinum and diamond bracelet. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. J. Allan, Ritchie, as matron of honor, who wore a dress of dull green silk velvet with bodice of real lace and old rose girdle finished with a butterfly bow. Her bouquet was of pink rose buds and she wore a jade and gold brooch, the gift of the groom. The groomsmen was the groom's brother, Mr. Edwin Meredith. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to Mrs. Watson's home where they were met by the wedding guests, and as they entered Mrs. T. R. Pearson played the wedding march. The different rooms were decorated with a lavish profusion of mid-summer flowers. In the living room, where the young couple received the congratulations of their friends, roses, sweet peas, lilies and foxgloves were used in large quantities, while in the dining room roses and lilies of the valley with similar and white ribbon made a very lovely breakfast table. The veranda, just off the dining room, with its shade and coolness and bright flowers, made a delightful rendezvous for the guests. During the serving of the wedding breakfast Miss Jessie Drew sang "Beloved, It is Morn." Mr. and Mrs. Meredith left for Vancouver where they took the afternoon boat for Victoria, where they will spend a few days before starting on a motor tour of Vancouver Island. The latter was wearing a smart tailored suit of shot blue and black silk with hat en suite. Mrs. Watson, the bride's mother, was wearing a handsome gown of mauve silk brocaded crepe du chene with the bodice trimmed with Carrick Macross lace and a smart black hat trimmed with plume. Mrs. Meredith, the groom's mother, was dressed in a dull blue costume with a black satin cloak and hat. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Meredith will occupy Mrs. Watson's house until the autumn when they will settle in Vancouver.

MAKES MONEY FASTER THAN HEART BEATS

How Uncle Sam Manufactures Wealth—Turns Out Cash for Other Countries, Too.

Washington, D. C., July 10.—One hundred and twenty-nine years ago the decimal system of money now used was adopted by the United States congress. It was the first step toward a national currency, but seven years elapsed before the first national mint was established. Up to this time the monetary system was in a chaotic condition. The actual money in circulation in this country consisted of for-eight coins, distributed in different sections according to the nativity of the settlers, or money coined by individuals and the colonies.

In New England the English pound and shilling flourished; in New York there was the Dutch florin and thaler; the latter being the word from which our "dollar" is derived; in the southern colonies the money of Spain and France was the medium of exchange, and everywhere the system of barter was in use.

Wheat was legally authorized as the equivalent of coin in Massachusetts. Tobacco was accepted across the store counter in Virginia and Maryland. This was the condition when congress adopted the decimal system and the mint began to issue the first national currency. Paper money took its place in national currency during the civil war.

Today there is $2,500,000,000 in coins and paper money circulating throughout the United States. Four great government mints and the largest money printing offices in the world are in constant operation to supply the demand for money. Every year the mints alone are turning out a stream of wealth that is valued at $96,000,000 in gold coins and $10,000,000 in silver coins.

More than 4,000 expert money makers are constantly engaged in making the greenbacks and other paper money. Ingenious coin presses in the mints manufacture money more rapidly than the normal human heart beats; at top speed they produce about 110 coins every minute.

Recently, to meet the emergency demanded by the issue of the "buffalo" nickel, the mints turned them out at the rate of 1,440,000 a day. This industry is so highly organized that the United States mints can make money more economically than any others in the world. U. S. mints are to-day making pesos and other coins for Mexico and several of the Central and South American countries.

ENGLISH SPARROWS TOO MUCH FOR TEXAS RODENTS

Fort Worth, Texas, July 10.—Many stories have been told of the prowess of rats in combat with other animals, and the fact that one can kill a dog is well known, but the fact that they themselves are warred upon and exterminated by the lowly English sparrow has just been brought to light.

At North Fort Worth the erection of three brick buildings in a peculiar manner left a small court in the rear of one building with no outlet except the blue sky above.

This court has for some time been used as a playground for unusually big rats that are almost driving the grocers and butcher in that vicinity to distraction.

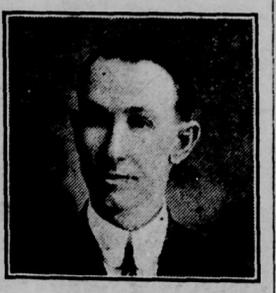

English sparrows have of late become attracted to this court and wish to use it as a nesting place. That rats and sparrows cannot live together is a settled thing, therefore the sparrows have decided that the rats must leave and daily they are killing them off in large numbers.

HUGE ROCK BLAST AT ALBERT HEAD

Charge of Dynamite Losens Thirty Thousand Tons of Material for Victoria Harbor Work.

Victoria, July 10.—Albert Head was the scene of a most successful demonstration in the art of quarrying yesterday at noon, when accompanied by a terrific explosion, many thousand tons of solid rock was bodily removed from the face of the towering cliffs within the short space of a few seconds.

The occasion was the blasting of material for use in the construction of the Victoria breakwater which is now rapidly nearing the surface at Ozden Point.

Forced outward by a charge of seventeen hundred pounds of dynamite, a huge slice of the mountain side parted, and tumbled momentarily in mid-air, before making its downward course, a seething avalanche of rocks and boulders split clean by the terrific force of the sunken dynamite. The thrilling sight was eagerly watched by a small company of newspaper men who had been invited to witness the explosion by the breakwater contractors, Sir John Jackson, Ltd.

Immediately after the upheaval it was estimated that 30,000 tons of rock had been removed by the blast. This amount of material, which was dislodged almost instantaneously, will occupy a small army of men and a fleet of tugs and hopper barges for a period of two weeks, in removing it from the quarry to Albert Head to the site of the breakwater. The operations were carried out with clocklike precision and not the slightest mishap marred the dislodgment of such an unusual amount of solid rock. The charge was fired under the supervision of William Knight, superintendent of the Albert Head quarry, a pastmaster in the business, who has been in the employ of Sir John Jackson, Ltd., for the past thirty years.

The preliminary operations in drilling and placing the necessary amount of dynamite occupied three days. Twenty-two holes were drilled and these averaged from twenty-six to thirty feet in depth. After these had been driven to the desired depth, cavities were blasted out at the bottom by means of dynamite "pops." These cavities were then filled with the powerful explosive and all the holes connected by means of electrical wiring. According to statements made by the engineers the rock runs in veins in a southeasterly direction and this fact is always taken into consideration when drilling operations are under way for a blast. By driving the rock out in the direction of the formation, the contractors are enabled to get the desired results in the size of rubble with the minimum shock. While the greater part of the rock removed was of handy size, some of the pieces weighed in the neighborhood of ten tons. It is not necessary to break these large boulders up, as they are easily removed by the powerful traveling cranes, of which there are many in operation at Albert Head.

NAMED THREE JUDGES

Cabinet Appoints to Supreme Court of Alberta.

Ottawa, July 10.—The cabinet at a meeting yesterday filled the three vacant supreme court judgeships of Alberta. The new members are Mr. Matland S. McCarthy, ex-M.P., Mr. J. D. Hyndman, of Edmonton, and Mr. W. C. Ives, of Lethbridge. They are all prominent members of the Alberta bar. Mr. McCarthy was a member of the Dominion House for two sessions, and is a son of Judge McCarthy of Alberta.

Mr. Hyndman contested Edmonton twice in the conservative interests. He is a son-in-law of Sir Louis Davies. Mr. Ives has been prominent in politics and legal affairs in Southern Alberta. He is a brother-in-law of Mr. Justice McNeill.

ADVERTISING TALKS

By D. Maxwell Merry

It may surprise many advertiser or would-be advertisers to know that most advertisements contain too many words. If a man who has something to sell would only sit down and write out the complete story of his proposition and then eliminate the unnecessary words and sentences he would not only save the reader the tedium of wading through unnecessary phrases, but he would save himself a considerable amount of expense during the course of the year.

The majority of advertisers who prepare their own "copy" look at their position purely from a selling point of view and not from the point of view of the prospective customer. This is the point that I have continually referred to in this series of "Advertising Talks," but it is one which means the difference between success and failure in advertising.

To bring customers to your store, it is absolutely essential that in presenting the proposition to them you should look at your goods as you expect your prospective purchaser to look at them.

If you are selling something that is purely seasonal, you must present the seasonable features. If you desire to sell furs, it is not only necessary to tell your readers that you keep the best quality of furs at the price, but it is important to illustrate to them the discomfort they will suffer if they do not wear furs.

Advertising only appeals to the customer when it is presented in the light that appeals to his immediate demands. Therefore it is necessary that every word should be directed towards interesting him in the product that you have to sell. He is not interested in the least in seeing your name in large type nor in seeing illustrations which are irrelevant to the goods he is looking for. But if you describe to him the article or articles that you have to sell in a clear, concrete manner, showing him the quality, novelty feature and also the price advantages, you are likely to interest him at the moment when he is receptive towards your particular product.

In a storekeeper, instead of announcing his name in the biggest and blackest type and filling up the space with a few generalities, would write for his advertisement the kind of things he would say to a customer who showed interest in something he had for sale, he would invariably be using the best selling talk at his command. This is not frequently done, however, except by professional advertising writers, because the advertiser is too anxious to get into the space that he uses a few polished phrases that do not sound natural when being read by men and women who are not dominated by the personality of the salesman. A true story of the facts of the proposition, told in short, crisp, vigorous sentences is the essence of advertising, and every successful advertiser has already appreciated the accuracy of this statement.

ULSTER VOLUNTEERS EQUAL REGULARS

Carson's Bodyguard Make Fine Appearance—Too Late to End Trouble by Compromise.

London, July 10.—Mr. Walter Long, who arrived from Belfast today said: "It is quite clear that any attempt to patch up peace on some compromise terms would be a doomed failure. What might have been accomplished six months ago would not be accepted today. These people who go hanging on, thinking something is going to happen to make a settlement more on their lines, possibly do not realize the intense bitterness this prolongation is causing."

Mr. Long is to review, or, as he prefers to call it, "see" some of the volunteer forces tomorrow. Commenting on the volunteers he said: "I am not a soldier and don't pretend to be an expert, but I have never seen regular troops better than the two companies which acted as a bodyguard to Sir Edward Carson today."

It is said that the volunteers have been ordered mobilized.

Police Were Powerless.

London, July 11.—This morning's ministerial papers declare that yesterday's Belfast demonstration revealed absolutely nothing new. They admit Carson's bodyguard had everything their own way and that the regular police were powerless.

WHEN JEFF STOPPED CORBETT IN 23rd ROUND

him, a slim elderly man, the greatest general prize he ever has known, goaded him on. It was Billy Delaney, maker of champions, spurring, urging, taunting and forcing Jeffries to keep fighting.

Corbett's smile had disappeared. He was pantherlike and the light of victory shone in his face. He had the fight won, his great foe cut and slashed and beaten. Again he was within the reach of the championship. At the end of the 20th round, Corbett, his eyes flashing, jumped back to his chair.

"I can get him! I can finish him!" he said excitedly. "Let me at him! I'll finish him!"

"Whoa! Whoa!" cautioned Billy Brady. "You've got him beat. Stay away. For heaven's sake stay away and cut him up!"

"He's tired," remarked Con McVey. "He's doctored, but he's dangerous. Keep away from him."

The 21st round passed, Jeffries, plodding after his will-o'-the-wisp foe, lunged viciously. Twice Corbett laughed tauntingly as he danced out of the way of terrific blows.

Over in one corner (Delaney told me this long afterward) Jeffries, weary, sick, discouraged, was grumbling and cursing. "You big, yellow stiff!" grieved Delaney. "You going to quit! You dog! Go fight!"

With abuse and scorn he spurred his champion on. In the other corner Corbett, in a frenzy of excitement, begged his backers to let him go in. Again and again they begged with him to be cautious.

The 22nd round came and passed, Corbett keeping away, flicking the beaten giant with cutting lefts always keeping just out of range and Jeffries stumbling after him.

"I'll go in and finish him," said Corbett as he leapt for the 23rd. "He's licked."

"For God's sake keep away, Jim, begged Brady.

In the other corner Delaney was using the goad of his sarcasm, lashing Jeffries into a fury, so that Jeffries was blind with rage, threatening to whip his own seconds.

The going rang. The huge crowd was roaring and howling with excitement. Like a panther Corbett sprang to the center of the ring and met the bull-like rush of Jeffries squarely.

With a bellow Jeffries swung, and to the amazement of the crowd Corbett met him at his own game and actually drove the giant back. Again Jeffries charged, and Corbett met him again, and fought him into a clinch.

Corbett loses his head. In Corbett's corner his seconds and backers were screaming at him to keep away. But it was in vain. Corbett was mad with excitement, frenzied with the desire to knock out the hulk of a giant he had worn down by his blows.

Two minutes of fierce fighting, two desperate encounters, broken by two short clinches, and they rushed together for the third time. Corbett met him, gave ground after a brief clash—and suddenly from nowhere Jeffries drove his left, a short arm jab that caught the retreating fighter flush on the jaw.

As a man stricken, Corbett dropped backward, fell in a sitting position, rolled over on his side, and lay, helpless, quivering, while over him Jeffries sullenly stood, glaring as his expression of vicious anger slowly turned to surprise.

The crowd was a maelstrom of noise—thousands of screaming men stood on the chairs—and for an instant a silence fell—a silence of stunned surprise.

In all that great amphitheater not a sound arose save the voice of Charley White counting.

Jeffries turned toward his corner—a smile slowly broke over his battered face, and as he smiled the crowd awoke and cheered him. They lifted Corbett—and as they lifted him another cheer broke—greater than the first.
