ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Treatment of the Hands—How to Keep Them In Good Condition.

For perspiring hands the following lotion, applied several times a day, will be found beneficial: Four drams each of borax and salicylic acid, two ounces each of glycerin and diluted alcohol, one dram of boric acid. Rinsing the hands in alum water will sometimes allay perspiration. The hands will become wrinkled if the skin has a tendency to excessive dryness, for which condition and to retain the suppleness of the fingers the following massage cream will be found a pleasing remedy: Lanolin, 100 grams; liquid paraffin, twenty-five grams; ten drops of extract vanilla with one drop of oil of roses. A delightful cosmetic jelly is made by soaking for three days thirty grains of gum tragacanth in seven ounces of rosewater. Strain and add one ounce each of glycerin and alcohol, then half a teaspoonful of borax, in the order given. A piece of pumice stone should be on every toilet table to remove stains from the hands.

Kitchen Wisdom.

Carpet tacks and hot soapsuds are effectual in cleaning fruit jars and bottles. Cover the vessel tightly and shake well.

Boil the corks of the pickle and catchup bottles and put them in the bottles while hot, so that when they are cold the bottles will be tightly sealed.

Alum or common salt dissolved in boiling water and poured into cracks and crevices forms a sort of cement, kills vermin and preserves the wood.

To turn out any preparation of foods which have been stiffened with gelatin dip the mold entirely in warm (not boiling) water and turn it downward on the hand, shaking it gently until it slips down. Then gently place it on the dish.

A Good Scotch Broth.

This dish is particularly suitable for cold winter days. Cut into small pieces from one to two pounds (according to quantity required) of lean meat from a neck of mutton. Put this into a large stewpan or casserole, add bones, then pour over a quart of water. Let it come to a boil very slowly and then allow it to simmer for two hours. Place it aside and when cold remove all fat and take out bones. Put it again in casserole, add three ounces of pearl barley and a little salt, also about three ounces each of carrots, turnips, celery, onions and potatoes, all cut into small pieces; a little finely chopped parsley and a bunch of herbs. Let it come tender. Remove herbs, add seasoning to taste and serve hot.

Baked Rabbit.

Take a rabbit, cut it up, pepper and salt each piece and fry in butter till nicely browned.

Take the pieces out and place them in a dish with a cover over them. Then fry some sliced onions and carrots, some powdered sage and some fat ham. Add a quarter of a teaspoonful of sugar and fill up the frying pan with good stock, bringing it to a boil. Pour this quickly over the rabbit and bake it for one hour and a half. Thicken and brown the gravy, and you will find this is a delicious way of cooking a rabbit.

To Bleach Lace Curtains.

The safest way of bleaching is the old fashioned way of letting the sun do most of the work. Lay the curtains in warm water to which you have added the juice of six lemons and leave them there all night. In the morning lay them in the hottest sun you can find and wet hourly with sour water. At night leave in cold water and repeat the lemon juice process next day. It will not rot the muslin, as most bleaching powders do. Finally wash in the usual manner.

Fireproofing Cloth.

There is a very simple process by which muslin used for ladies' and children's dresses may be protected from fire. Dissolve a small piece of alum in the water in which muslins are rinsed. When dry, if a light be put to them they will smolder slowly away, but not break into a blaze. And this is far from being injurious to muslin, but improves its appearance greatly.

Needlework Notes.

An underskirt that is outgrown can be lengthened either by a yoke at the top or a ruffle at the bottom.

To mend large holes in socks or in merino underwear tack a piece of strong net and darn through it. The darn will be stronger.

To Remove Onion Odor.

To remove the smell of onions or fish from the frying pan put a little vinegar in it directly after using and put over the fire a few minutes. Then wash again in soapy water.

Turned Out on the Street

Get Out or Sell Out

This is our sad plight at present. The old unsightly store which we have occupied for the last four years is at last to be practically rebuilt and made one of the most beautiful places of business in the city. But until it is ready for us, we will actually be out on the street, for we find it impossible to secure suitable temporary quarters.

We have decided to Sell Out and retire from business until the block is completed

Our entire stock is to be sacrificed. It's a case of have to; we have no other alternative. This store must be cleared of goods before contractors begin work. We are desperately in earnest; to use the slang of the day, "we are up against it," and we must "make good." We can't afford to fool the public; we must give genuine bargains, or the stock won't move.

LABOR CANDIDATE HAS A MEETING

At Sapperton Last Night, Labor Meeting Addressed by Liberal and Labor Speakers.

The meeting in Sapperton called by J. S. Rainey, the Labor candidate, drew an audience of thirty people last night, including speakers, reporters and kids. The chair was occupied by L. F. Williams, who stated that the object of the meeting was to place before the electors the Labor platform. He then called upon F. W. Howay, the Liberal candidate, to address the meeting. Mr. Howay regretted the clash of dates of meetings which he showed had been unavoidable.

He had looked over the Labor platform, and there were some things about it to which he wished to call attention. One plank was free, compulsory education and free text books. Free education was now in force and as to the question of free text books, at the last session of the legislature on Feb. 27, 1906, John Oliver, a Liberal member of the house, brought the matter up and the McBride government stated that it was under consideration. Mr. McBride and his friends had a bad habit of being content with considering things. The disposition of coal and oil lands by the state, was one of the planks in the McBride platform during the last election. Mr. McBride, however, had failed to make good on it, and when the bill which called for such control had been brought forward, it was voted down by the Conservatives, assisted by the men who represented the Labor and Socialistic parties, as was shown by the records of the house.

The next matter dealt with was the McBride taxation enactments, which had placed all the burden upon the poorer people. The members of the opposition had voted against it but had been defeated. The McBride policy of handing timber lands over to speculators was condemned and the speaker next referred to the fact that the McBride government employes on the Fraser river bridge, were compelled to cover the twenty four hours of each day in two shifts of 12 hours each. The employes at the Provincial asylum also worked twelve hours a day.

The McBride government was now planning to assist the Salvation Army scheme to introduce what might be called pauper labor into the province, and British Columbia did not want a class of people which would be a drug upon the Labor market. There were lots of men available if a reasonable wage were forthcoming (applause). We want settlers, but not cheap labor. The members of the Liberal government at Ottawa had been the friends of the labor party. They appointed a labor bureau and abolished the sweating system. They inserted the fair wage clause in government contracts. They introduced the Alien Labor Act, and showed all through, that they were willing to help labor in all possible ways. A government must, however, legislate for all classes, and not for any particular class of men. In conclusion, Mr. Howay said "It's up to you, gentlemen, to say whether the McBride government, which has done nothing for you shall be returned to power, or whether you will mark your ballots for the Liberal party which has always shown consideration for, and willingness to aid the workingman in every possible way."

The chairman, as Mr. Howay retired, said that he had one or two things to say. It had been stated on the streets that Mr. Rainey was not in this election seriously, and that he was simply aiming to draw votes from the Liberal party for Mr. Gifford's benefit and that he would eventually drop out and support Mr. Gifford. He wished to condemn all such stories as lies. Mr. Rainey was in the contest for good and would be elected on February 2.

Mr. Perry, president of the Canadian Labor party was the next speaker. He warned his hearers to beware of being deceived by red herrings which Liberals and Conservatives would like to draw across the trail. The Labor party was growing and was bound to grow. The speaker dealt with the factory act as passed by the Martin-Semlin government. The trouble was that it had never been enforced.

With regards to speculators being given a chance, he considered that the Liberal party at Ottawa had sold thousands of acres of lands to speculators. Mr. Howay was a union man all right, and belonged to the Lawyer's Union, which was one of the closest on earth, and which was one of the strongest upholders of class legislation. The speaker condemned the McBride government's action with regard to the Salvation Army proposition to provide cheap labor. Men who would come at their own expense were the men to be desired and were not likely to cheapen labor. The Dominion government immigration policy with regard to filling Manitoba and the Northwest with Doukhobors and Gallicians was severely condemned. The audience was urged to stand for the protection of the working man by supporting the Labor party.

J. S. Rainey was somewnat late in arriving on the scene, and when he arose to speak, was well received. He repeated in great measure the address given at the recent meeting in the opera house, and went at considerable length into the platform as laid down by the Canadian Labor party. He stated that he fully expected, with the aid and support of all labor men, to head the polls on election day.

THE RED HERRING.

The Columbian prints some correspondence between the Grand Trunk Pacific Co. and the McBride government, two years ago. It dates the first letter, "1906," but this is, of course (O, of course!), a mere printer's error. The Columbian would not dream of altering a date to deceive people, would it?

That is by the way, however. The correspondence consists of a letter from the company asking for a land grant, and a refusal from the Government.

Now, be it remembered, that the McBride government had sold 10,000 acres to the company at a dollar an acre, and had dodged the law to do it. Naturally, the company thought the government was "easy" and so "touched" it for a further grant. We are willing to give the Government any credit due to it for refusing, but as it could not make such a grant without putting a bill through the House, and as it knew that no such bill would pass, the credit does not appear to be very heavy.

Why does the Columbian now print this two-year old correspondence? Apparently for the purpose of inserting in the introductory paragraph, this extraordinary sentence: "conclusion is irresistable that with a Liberal government in power, in league with the Ottawa authorities, the big corporation would quickly have its demand satisfied."

This is more like lunatic raving than anything else. A short time before the demand was made, the editor of the Columbian (he ought to remember the occasion) was on the platform with a minister of the Liberal government at Ottawa, when the latter pointed out that there was no reason why the Province should give one dollar or one acre of land as a subsidy to the G. T. P., and declared that if the government of the Province did so, it would be without excuse.

The same issue of the Columbian prints under big, black headlines, a campaign lie about Mr. McInnes which was "nailed" some days ago; and the "conclusion is irresistable" that these silly canards and crazy "arguments" are mere red herrings, intended to distract attention from the record of the government, which grows blacker with every pasing day.

A LARGE ORDER.

The New Westminster Columbian says:

"At none of Mr. Macdonald's meetings has he given the speaker on behalf of the Conservative candidate a chance to reply to him. Mr. Macdonald reserves his address for the end. It is premier McBride's habit to speak first and give an opponent an opportunity to deal with his main remarks at the meeting where they are uttered. This contrast brings into stroag relief the confidence of Mr. McBride in the strength of the position he takes; and the lack of confidence on the part of Mr. Macdonald.

"If the editor of the Columbian, J. D. Taylor, had visited Rossland with premier McBride early in the week, he would have found cause to revise his opinions. The speaker who represented the Liberal party on that occasion was compelled to take first place on the program, so that he not only had no opportunity to reply to McBride himself, but was even refused the privilege of hearing and answering the Conservative speakers who preceded the premier.

"The Columbian has every right to eulogize Hon. Richard McBride as much as it likes; but for decency sake, it should strive to confine itself to facts, or at least, to something resembling facts."—Nelson News.

That may sound like a modest request, but it is really a large order.

The Winnipeg Telegram (cons.) asserts, "There is not another province in Canada, that can equal the financial record of Manitoba during the past six years." But what of Capt. Tatlow's achievements? We understood the local government claimed first place. Says the Telegram, "And this result it has achieved by economic administration, and by taxing those interests which are best able to bear the burden of taxation." We pass.

Last summer western journals objected to the Globe's staff correspondent as a man without imagination. Describing the country, where there were mines and mills he saw mines and mills, and where there were none he saw none. He refused to let his fancy paint golden pictures of the future. And this is how this imaginationless man of facts describes the McBride government. "It is a somewhat tattered Ministry which is now seeking a renewal of confidence." Mild, is it not?

At Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—At the Liberal caucus yesterday it was announced that there will be no general election for at least eighteen months. If assurance to this effect is given to Mr. Borden, it will materially shorten the session.

Funeral.

The funeral of the late Jos. Spiers, took place yesterday afternoon from Murchie's undertaking parlors. The funeral was conducted by the Masonic order, of which he was a member.

The pall bearers were H. Hoy, R. Kelly, R. Richmond, T. A. Muir, Ang. Munn, W. G. McQuarrie. The burial service was read by the Rev. J. S. Henderson, chaplain of the order.

Old Law Suits up Again.

The two old libel suits of Hardman & Bryson vs. Chas. J. Robson, of the city hall staff, and J. E. Hughes vs. Mayor Keary, have been brought to the front again. The circumstances, which were published in these columns some months ago, are as follows:

Hardman & Bryson, plumbers, of this city, claim damages to the extent of $10,000 from Chas. J. Robson, the latter, the statement of claim says, having made assertions regarding the competency of the plumbers as regards certain sanitary arrangements, and attributing the death of Robt. J. Hall, to the unsatisfactory manner in which they installed a septic tank.

The case of Hughes vs. Keary, is the outcome of a speech by Mayor Keary, in which he attacked the hotels of Westminster, accusing them of harboring fast women, and prostitutes..

Mayor Keary publicly named the hotel Lytton among others. Hughes was then proprietor of the Lytton, and claims $5,000 as compensation for the loss caused to his business by the Mayor's statements. The writ was served and as nothing was heard of the case is was supposed to have been let drop, but further steps have now been taken.

The Pistol in London.

London, Jan. 24.—William Whitely, founder of the first big department store in London, was shot and killed this afternoon by a young man who afterwards attempted to commit suicide.

Mr. Whitely was on the point of leaving his store when his assailant rushed up to him with a revolver in his hand, fired several shots, and the merchant fell dead. The assassin then emptied the revolver into his own body, inflicting what are believed to be mortal wounds. No reason has yet been assigned for the murder. The store was crowded with shoppers at the time, and a semi-panic followed tragedy. The police were quickly on the scene. The public were ejected from the building and the doors were closed.

Later Mr. Whitely's assailant died at his room. His identity has not been ascertained. The murderer previous to the attack had been conversing with Mr. Whitely, and the latter was overheard to say as he walked away, "If you do not go I shall call the police." The shooting followed.

In San Francisco.

Business and industrial conditions in San Francisco for the last six months were unusually good. Great activity was apparent in the business districts Perhaps this was the more noticeable from the restricted area covered. Whatever the cause, the impression of prosperity was general. There was buying ability apparent in all directions. Labor of all kinds has not been so well paid in years as it has been in the last few months. The emergency of the case is no doubt responsible for this large advance in compensation. Rents have been advanced for the same cause. Conditions in time will adjust these matters. Prosperous people are generally good spenders, and good spenders contribute to the perpetuation of prosperity. Barring the unseen, and therefore the unexpected, San Francisco is facing the most prosperous year in its history. It well deserves the outlook as some compensation for the untoward events forced upon it in the eventful year just passed.—Dun's Review.

The city employes were busy clearing the snow away from the market building yesterday and gettig everything ship-shape for business.

It was a pleasure to see a number of fishing skiffs crossing and recrossing the river yesterday after their having been tied up for a week or two. A number of the dwellers on the other side of the river found it more convenient to row across for supplies than to make the long journey around by the road and pay the bridge toll.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mathewson took place this afternoon at three o'clock, from Murchie's. The deceased was over seventy years old, and was for many years a resident of New Westminster. The funeral cortege proceeded from Murchie's direct to the cemetery, a number of friends and relatives accompanying the remains to their last resting place.

The first of a number of barges which are being built in Crane's shipyard, near the Lulu Island bridge, begins to present quite a finished appearance. The hull is complete and yesterday, the warmer weather coaxed out the caulkers and the work of fixing up the cracks in the deck with oakum was going along merrily. The barge will be ready for launching almost as soon as the river is ready to operate upon.

Mrs. Peter Lawson passed away at the Royal Columbian hospital at an early hour yesterday morning, after a short illness. Deceased was a native of Manitoba, and together with her husband, came here a couple of months ago and had been residing in Port Moody. The funeral arrangements are in charge of W. E. Fales, but the time of the funeral has not been set. Deceased was 29 years old. Death resulted from pneumonia.

Amateur gardeners, farmers, nurserymen and market gardeners should take the first opportunity of securing a Sutton's Seed List for 1907, which is now ready at the sole agents, the Brackman-Ker Milling Co., Front St., New Westminster, B. C. The seeds this year are reported to be the finest ever put on the market by the famous Reading Seed House, Messrs. Sutton & Sons, who have the honor of being seedsmen to His Majesty King Edward VII.

W. A. Gilley's pile drivers are getting down to work again after their long rest. The finishing up of the contract in connection with the Millside extension of the G. N. R. railway, was resumed yesterday and Mr. Gilley expects that the work will be completed by Saturday. All will be straight ahead work for the track layers after that, and it is expected that the spur will be in operation as soon as spring opens up. The work of driving the piles for the enlargement to the engine room of the Royal City Mills, is to the commenced as soon as the mill men have got things in readiness. The addition is being built on the south side of the old engine room.

Yesterday afternoon the steamer Transfer broke through the crust of ice which had held it firmly for a couple of weeks and headed for the Lulu Island bridge. After a considerable amount of trouble the vessel passed safely through the draw and made for the C. P. N. wharf as fast as its steam could take it. The ice had been broken the previous day by the Beaver and the vessel had no difficulty in getting out to clear water opposite the Royal City mills. As the boat emerged from the ice the Beaver, which was on the first trip to Ladner and Steveston since the freeze up, passed, and the two vessels saluted each other with a gay toot, toot. The Transfer made its way to the C. P. N. wharf where the work of coaling up was commenmced. If the Beaver brings back a favorable report of the river's condition to Ladner and Steveston, the Transfer will resume its old run today. The Beaver will endeavor to break through the river ice and reach Chilliwack on Monday next.

Amateurs Delight Audience.

"Cupid in Posterland" as produced by Mr. Evans and a talented company of amateur players last night, was a great success, and fully deserved the excellent house that greeted it. There were no cases of stage fright, as often happens when amateurs are concerned, and everything went with a snap and a swing that many professionals might well envy.

"Lady Bountiful," Miss Brymner; "Miss Muffett," Vina Munn; "Mrs. Katzenjammer," Miss Grace Corbould; "the reporter," E. Sutherland; "King Cole," Harry Davis; "Foxy Grandpa," Robert Whitmare; all had good voices and pleased everyone time and time again. Mr. O'Brien, as policeman, was especially worthy of notice, taking his role in a most natural manner. As for the little tots, they were very 'cute and had evidently practised hard. As "Cupid in Posterland," will be repeated this evening and at a matinee on Saturday, it will afford those who were absent last evening an opportunity of witnessing what is, without doubt, one of the best musical comedies seen here this season.

Conundrums.

Why is "o" the noisiest of all the vowels? Because you can't make a horrid, loud noise without it, while all the others are inaudible.

Why can you never expect a fishmonger to be generous? Because his business makes him sell fish.

Why would an owl be offended at your calling him a pheasant? Because you would be making game of him.

What is that which is black, white and red all over, which shows some people to be green and makes others look black and blue? A newspaper.

Board and Ball Trick.

Get the cover of a cigar box or any other thin board about five inches long and cut two small holes in it. Then arrange the strings and balls shown in the diagram.

The trick is how to get the large ball off the string without untying it or removing any of the smaller balls.

Push the ball close up to the right hand hole and pull the right loop of the string as far toward the left hand hole as it will come. Then pass the loop through the hole and over the left ball, as indicated in the second diagram. This will cause the two loops to separate, and then the ball will come off with ease.

Reversing the operation, you can easily put the ball back into its original position. — Columbus Dispatch.

A Church For Children Only.

The Rev. Henry A. King of the Oakley Avenue M. E. church, Kansas City, proposes to start a church for children only. He wishes them to take the part of the official board, the organizers, the ushers and the congregation.

Politeness to Foreigners.

From Europe, Asia and Africa,
From North and South America,
These names of places come to me
To teach me my geography.

And so it's no more than polite
To put my playthings out of sight
And for a moment give my mind
To visitors who are so kind.

A Swiss child, aged three years, has been sentenced at the criminal assizes at Weinfelden, in the canton of Thurgovie, to three and a half months' imprisonment for theft. It appears that the little fellow was passing a toy shop and, seeing some toys dangling in the street, helped himself to two or three articles of little value and took them home. The child was carried into court and in answer to questions frankly said that he took the toys home to play with his little sister, as they had none. To the great astonishment of the court, the presiding judge sentenced the infant to three and a half months' imprisonment. The little fellow was carried out of the court crying and handed over to a prison official. The Swiss press is indignant at the unprecedented action of the judge and condemns the verdict as illegal.

The Electric Cradle.

"The electric cradle is the latest novelty in our line," said a salesman connected with a big electrical supply house. "It's a wonder that it hasn't come before this, for it's the most simple thing imaginable. With an attachment similar to that on an electric fan the rocking of the crib can easily be controlled. As soon as the current is turned on it is rocked with a smooth, soft motion, and by pressing the lever it can be made to go fast or slow. There'll be no more sleepless nights for father. When baby begins to cry he won't have to walk it. He'll just turn over, push the button, and electricity will do the rest."—Philadelphia Record.

A Great Old Lady.

Few people are aware that the Baroness Burdett-Coutts was at one time seriously discussed as a second wife for the great Duke of Wellington. Indeed, Punch had a picture on the subject representing the duke's statue outside Apsley House shaking hands with the duke himself, while underneath the legend ran: "So glad to hear the good news. Don't forget to send me cake and gloves." The baroness is now in her ninety-third year and has lived in five reigns—viz, those of George III. and IV., William IV., Queen Victoria and his present majesty.—London Tit-Bits.

Uncle Sam Can Save $60,000,000.

The United States imports annually about $60,000,000 worth of drugs and dyes made from products that could be grown in the United States just as well. Camphor now sells for 25 cents a pound, and, while not an ounce of it is grown in this country, the government has demonstrated that camphor trees are successful here. Licorice root is another thing that possesses great possibilities. The department of agriculture has demonstrated that the licorice plant is hardy as far north as Pennsylvania. Belladonna has also been shown to do well in good garden soil.—Farming.

A Hangman's Watch.

Joseph Lang, the public executioner of Vienna, wears a heavy gold watch chain and a massive watch, which is held securely in his pocket by a thief proof hook. Both the chain and the hook withstood the attack of a daring pickpocket who endeavored to relieve the hangman of his treasure in a crowded street car of the Austrian capital recently. The thief was captured, and the watch, on which the grewsome record of the owner's official activity is engraved, was saved.

Stock is now being subscribed for a company which is being formed for the purpose of extracting turpentine, pitch, wood alcohol, and other marketable substances from pine, and a 20 acre site has been secured in lot 6, S.B. 12, for the erection of a suitable factory and plant. The promoter of the company is W. G. Alcock, who has been connected with the B. C. E. R. company for many years. Mr. Alcock has been experimenting and is confident that the venture which he is engineering is one which will yield bg profits. The cost of treating a cord of wood, according to Mr. Alcock, is only about $15, while the different products extracted would be worth at least $37, leaving a good margin for profit after all expenses were paid.

MIXED RECEPTION GREETS CANDIDATES

Champion Conservative Clappers Invade Howay's Meeting at Sapperton---Rossland Speaker Replaces Gifford ---Liberal Logic Triumphant.

The great Conservative party of British Columbia had to rely upon a speaker who had travelled all the way from Rossland, in order to have a man in some way competent to meet F. W. Howay on the political platform last evening, not one of the local heelers of the McBride ministry being either willing or able to face the popular Liberal candidate. But if the local Conservatives do not care to meet their opponents, they have one good trick that they are working as hard as they know how, and this is to corral a number of their professional hand clappers and foot stampers, and tote them around from meeting to meeting, in order to create the impression, by making as much noise as possible, that the interests of the majority of the electors are vested in the Conservative party. The introduction of a couple of drunks and a few irresponsibles adds spice to the variety of the motley gathering which represents the "great" party of British Columbia.

F. W. Howay's meeting at Johnston's hall last evening was well attended, in spite of the fact that Mr. Rainey, the labor candidate, had called a meeting for the same night, and that there was a great drawing card at the Opera house. Several of the audience had evidently come there with the determination to create as much trouble as possible, and the chairman, A. Hardman, was forced to call for order several times, and also to request certain people who were in company with disorderlies, to retire from the hall with their companions.

The first speaker of the evening, W. T. Cooksley, dealt in a comprehensive manner with the policy of the Conservative government, and produced a number of incontrovertible facts dealing with live topics. The school question was debated at some length and the mistaken policy of the government in this respect was strongly condemned. Mr. Cooksley pointed out that there had been 197 special permits given out, because it had been found impossible to obtain competent teachers to undertake the work for the low wage which was being paid under the administration of the McBride ministry. These special permit teachers were for the most part irresponsible and incompetent teachers, and not in any way qualified for the onerous task of educating the rising generation. The Liberal party, he pointed out, if returned to power was pledged to return to the old school act, with some slight modifications, and it would be conceded on all sides that this could not be done any too soon. The present school law had practically wrecked the rural school system, although it was not quite so bad in the towns and cities. The question of better terms, the assessment act, were briefly dealt with. Referring to the Tory practice of flaunting the old flag always in the front of their advertisements and pamphlets, he remarked that there was no reason why the Union Jack should be used for campaign purposes in this way, there was no one in the world who was doubting the loyalty of British Columbia to the British flag. This constant display of flags and mottoes reminded the speaker of an anecdote often used by the late John A. Macdonald, who, upon once asking a small boy the reason for the display of a big union jack in a schoolroom was informed that it was there to cover upa dirty hole. This flag was being used by the Conservatives during the present campaign for similar purposes.

These remarks occasioned considerable commotion among the rank Conservatives among the audience, one of whom shouted out that the speaker was a liar. More trouble followed this brutal expression all parties chiming in and raisin[g] generally. After order had be[en] restored, Mr. Cooksley continued his speech, criticising the gove[rn]ment severely on their conduct in [re]lation to the interests of labor. T[he] hit the Tories hard was evide[nt] in their attempts to interrupt.

J. S. Rainey, [fo]llowed Mr. Cooksley, and spoke f[or] half an hour, during which he dealt with topics of more particular interest to the laboring man. The cry of class legislation, which had been raised against the advent of a labor man, he said, was raised by the politicians on both sides for the purpose of scattering votes. His party thought it was better for him to state his position clearly, and stand for labor, so that the voters might know exactly what he intended to represent. He repeated his condemnation of the McBride government fishery reports, and gently ridiculed the statements of the Tories, that McBride had made the country prosperous. Mr. Rainey received applause at the close of his speech, and immediately left to attend his own meeting in the parish hall.

A call for Conservative speakers was answered by Mr. Goodeve, of Rossland, who stepped up to the platform with a formidable array of pamphlets, all replete with facts concerning the good work accomplished by the government during the past three years. Mr. Goodeve was evidently a stranger to almost everyone at the meeting, but the imported Conservatives rose to the occasion, and nobly cheered as per instructions.

The Rossland missionary commenced his spiel in favor of the silent member for New Westminster by a glittering account of the rousing receptions tendered the Premier in his trip through the interior, and explained how all meetings were crowded, and people who were doubtful as to how to vote before hearing the Hon. Richard speak, no longer had any doubt. Three years ago, explained Mr. Goodeve, no capitalist could be induced to put money in British Columbia, but at the present time, thanks to the masterly genius of Mr. McBride and his associates, money was pouring in from all quarters of the earth. This was especially the case with the mining industries, although he would not pretend to say that the rise in the price if copper had not something to do with it.

Dealing with the timber question, he said that, during the past year, on account of the increase in the price of timber license, $200,000 more had been received in the government coffers. In one of his speeches, Mr. Macdonald had said that if the Liberals were elected, they would change this order of things and dispose of timber licenses by putting them up for auction. In his opinion this would mean that all the tmber would be disposed of to favorites, and rake-offs would be plentiful. On the Kaien island question, he said, the investigation showed that there had been nothing wrong in the transaction. The great cry that an Indian chief had been able to obtain $7.50 per acre against the government's $1 only, went to prove that the value of land in the neighborhood had been increased by the selection of the site of the future metropolis of the north. After a reference to the better terms, as interpretd by all McBride followers, he closed his address by warning the electors against the folly of allowing anyone but a Conservative to direct the government of the province.

On rising to reply, F. W. Howay was accorded a rousing reception by the audienc, none of the frequent interrupters joining in. In his opening remarks, Mr. Howay disposed of Mr. Rainey and his policy in a few brief sentences. Nobody was taking Mr. Rainey very seriously, Mr. Goodeve had not even referred to him or his speech in the course of his address, and, considering the fact that Mr. Rainey had some time ago made a public statement that he did not expect to win, this was not to be wondered at.

Mr. Howay took up the different points dealt with by the previous speaker, Mr. Gifford's substitute, and replied to each in a masterly manner. Dealing first with the prosperity of the country, while freely admitting that conditions had improved, he wished to point out that the Conservatives were trying to make out that the affairs of the country were in very much worse shape when they assumed office than was really the case. The borrowing of a million dollars, at 5 per cent. interest, and then allowing $404,000 of that amount to lie idle in a bank, drawing only 3 per cent, was ably dealt with. Mr. McBride's great ability had been shown by his being able to wait around while prosperity came to the province of British Columbia—this was something of which he was inordinately proud, although he had not done anything to hasten this prosperity. In his budget, the Hon. Mr. Tatlow attributed the prosperity of the province to the increased demand for lumber in the Northwest provinces, and to the increased price paid for copper, but then, this speech had been delivered when there was no election in the air. The country was going ahead long before McBride took up the government reins.

Three years ago, when copper was at 12c, nobody could be found to invest money in it, but at the present time, with 25c being paid, it was no wonder that the capitalists were being attracted to the province. Dealing with the timber policy, which the Rossland traveller had so eloquently praised. Mr. Howay plainly showed that it was not the small timber cruiser and prospector that was reaping the benefit of the new laws, but such men as E. J. Fader, Small & Bucklin, and a few other favored ones. Their names appeared at the foot of the timber notices, although sometimes, they were followed by another name as locator. As an instance of the policy pursued by the government, he quoted the case of the Graham island timber deal, where the reserves were disposed of to speculators for the sum of $11,000, and then sold by these people to manufacturers for $150,000.

The speaker next destroyed Mr. Goodeve's contention that the commission that sat on the Kaien island investigation was not a partisan commission by pointing out that there were three government suporters sitting against two opposition members, and as the majority ruled, they governed the case. Regarding the price obtained for the townsite, and the excuse offered that the lands in the vicinity increased in price on account of the location of the site at a particular point, Mr. Howay explained that the land belonging to the government, they had every opportunity of demanding a reasonable figure for it, as they knew when they were disposing of it, that it was to be the site of the terminus of the G. T. P. The part played in the transaction by the Andersons, Larsens, Bodwells, et al, was clearly shown, extracts from Bodwell's sworn statement plainly proving that he was not at any time the agent of the G. T. P..

A brilliant speech was concluded by a reference to the better terms question, Mr. Howay contending that the question of better terms was too big for a party question, although it had been dragged into the campaign by the government, because they were afraid to go to the country upon their record. The Liberals of British Columbia would stand shoulder to shoulder in order to get better terms, they intended to get every dollar that British Columbia was entitled to, and a few besides if possible. The meeting wound up with the usual rousing cheers for Mr. Howay, and counter cheers for the Conservatives.

POINTERS

Things do look very blue for the McBrideites. No wonder they are squealing.

Mr. Goodeve explained last night that to dispose of timber limits by public competition was a corrupt practice. Good Tory doctrine, that.

Mr. Goodeve's doctrine no doubt explains why the Kaien Island deal was kept secret for a year.

The man from Rossland is a little ahead of time. The McBride government's Good--eve is not due till Feb. 2.

Local Member Gives the House of Commons Some Pointers on Japs and Chinese.

In the House of Commons, Jan. 15, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in moving the second reading of a bill respecting the treaty between Canada and Japan, said the United States had already a treaty with Japan, and Canada was being put on an equality with her American neighbors.

Mr. Kennedy (New Westminster, B. C.) at once took up the question of the immigration of Japanese into British Columbia. Great Britain had, he said, an outlet for her surplus population in her colonies, but Japan had not, and would send her hordes of surplus popoulation to British points. British Columbia being the nearest point, they would be sent there. The Chinese, Japanese, and Hindoos were not a desirable form of immigration. People in Eastern Canada had very little idea of the class of immigration going into British Columbia. The Japanese and Chinese met with in Eastern Canada were quite a different set of people from those of whom he complained. In this part of the Dominion the Chinaman or Japanese met with was an independent individual, but in the province from which he came there were hundreds of Japanese and Chinese turned loose, men who were more in the nature of slaves brought to the country by other people, and unable to do business by themselves. British Columbia had good reason to object to the way the Japanese were allowed to come in. He drew a picture of the way in which these creatures lived huddled together like sardines, as many as 100 or 200 living in a house which an ordinary white man would consider none too large for himself and family. He protested against white men being asked to compete with such people.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the subject was one which had been before the public for some time. One reason there was no poll tax on the Japanese the same as the Chinese was that Japan was an ally of Britain. Moreover, Japan was restricting emigration, and allowing only four or five to emigrate from each province. —Mail and Empire.

Puget Sounf Fisheries.

Olympia, Jan. 24.—The administration of the state fish commissioner's office is complimented in the report of the commission appointed by Gov. Mead to investigate it.

It is recommended that the salary of the commissioner and that of the superintendent of hatcheries be increased to $2,500 and $1,800 a year respectively. The present revenues available, the commission finds, are sufficient.

The equipment for patrol service is insufficient. The fish commissioner's boat, "The Bessie," is too small and unseaworthy and it is recommended that she be repaired an enlarged and that more money be provided for a patrol system. The report of the international fish commission is endorsed and legislation to carry out its provisions recommended.

RECORDS SAY "YES" PREMIER SAYS "NO"

McBride's Statement As To a Matter of Fact Is Flatly Contradicted by Records of Department, Says An Official.

In the Vancouver World and Victoria Times, two days ago, a very serious charge against the McBride Government was published. The charge hinged upon the leasing (or alleged leasing) of certain coal lands to a syndicate which had Sir. A. Caron at its head. The name of Granville Cuppage, an official of the Lands and Works department, Victoria, was mentioned in connection with the matter.

Next morning the Colonist printed an interview with Mr Cuppage, who, while professing ignorance as to certain points, and declaring others to be incorrect, said:

"Caron, et al, did secure leases in that district under the provisions of the coal prospecting act. These were issued in the usual way, the applicants complying with the act in every particular, and the leases were granted as a matter of course. . Verification of this, also, may be obtained at the lands and works department. Any one wishing will be made acquainted with every detail simply by asking for the information."

It will be observed that Mr. Cuppage, speaking from official knowledge of the transaction, says positively that leases of coal lands were issued, to "Caron et al,"

In the Province (McBride Organ) of yesterday, there is a dispatch from Vernon, giving an account of a meeting at Armstrong, Wednesday night, which was addressed by Premier McBride. The dispatch says:

"The Premier took occasion to give an emphatic denial to statements in the Vancouver World regarding the alleged leases of coal lands on Pine River to the Transcontinental Exploration Syndicate by the late Commissioner of Lands and Works, Mr. Green, and said that not an acre of coal lands had been leased to that company."

The official admits that the coal lands were leased, and invites all and sundry to go to the office of Lands and Works and see for themselves. The Premier—speaking at Armstrong, as the head of the government—says positively that "not an acre" was leased.

Which is to be believed—the records or the Premier? One or the other is false.

OFFICIALLY DEAD HE IS ABLE TO KICK

Tynehead Man Finds That His Death Was Registered Some Months Ago—Vote Struck off.

Mr. J. G. McAdam, of Tynehead, has been placed in a rather peculiar position and apparently will be deprived of his vote, Saturday week, by a very peculiar blunder, for which he is in no way responsible.

He is, according to his own understanding of the matter, sound and capable and thoroughly alive; but he is officially informed that he is under a mis-apprehension as to that.

The story as told to a Daily News man, is this:

Yesterday, Mr. McAdam interviewed the collector of voters, Mr. Fletcher, and demanded to know why his name, which had been duly placed on the register of voters, was not there now.

Mr. Fletcher, who is nothing if not methodical, consulted the records, and having so done furnished the required information in words or to the effect following, that is to say:

"Your name is not on the list, Mr. McAdam, because you are dead."

To which Mr. McAdam, in words or to the effect following, responded:

"The dickens I am! Doesn't it strike you that I am a pretty healthy corpse?"

Mr. Fletcher had to admit that appearances did certainly seem to favor that supposition; but appearances were notoriously deceptive, while the official records must be correct, of course.

That there might be no doubt about the matter, an adjournment was made to the office of Registrar Keith, and there the triumphant officials displayed the proof in black and white, duly signed and attested, that Mr. McAdam had departed this life, Oct. 2. 1906.

To say that Mr. McAdam was "flabbergasted" is to express the thing mildly. No wonder! Dead, for nearly four months, and did not know it!

Bye and bye, however, a light dawned upon him. The registration paper was signed "G. Pittendrigh, Capt., S. M." Now, Capt. Pittendrigh is coroner, and Mr. McAdam recalled that, about the beginning of October he had acted as foreman of a Coroner's jury, which held an inquest over the remains of a Mr. Yorkson, of Langley, who had died suddenly of heart failure.

FLYER IS ENGAGED TO SMASH THE ICE

Gilley Bros. Co.'s Powerful Tug Will Make Attempt to Clear North Arm Channel.

In order to again open up the North Arm of the Fraser river to navigation it has been decided that the steam tug Flyer, belonging to Gilley Bros., will be hired for ice breaking purposes, and that, commencing today, this vessel will be set to work clearing a channel through to the open sea. Owing to the sluggish current along this arm, it would take a considerable time, under present conditions, before the ice broke away and was carried out to sea, and this step has been decided upon in order to facilitate the shipping industry.

The move was decided upon at a special meeting of the city council, board of trade, and city merchants held yesterday afternoon in the mayor's office, when the benefits to be derived from this scheme were duly discussed. An agreement was made with Mr. Gilley, and there is every reason to believe that in a short time, the water in the North Arm will again be quite clear from ice. Mr. Gilley intends to break the ice by crushing it under a heavily loaded scow, which will be pushed ahead by the Flyer. This method of breaking the ice has been found satisfactory during the present winter, and Mr. Gilley is sanguine that, barring accidents, he will have the north channel clear of the ice in a very few days.

The New Secretary.

London, Jan. 24.—Mr. Birrell is appointed to succeed Mr. Bryce in the Chief Secretaryship of State for Ireland, and Mr. R. McKenna takes Mr. Birrell's place as President of the Board of Education.

It would appear, therefore, that the Coroner, by inadvertence, inserted the name of the juryman instead of that of the dead man, in the death notice forwarded to the registrar.

And what about Mr. McAdam's vote? A nice point is raised here, and one which should have attention. There is, or was (the Daily News confesses that it has not looked at the Act for some time) a provision as to "tendered votes," but if we recollect rightly, the provision was not a very satisfactory one.
