B.C.E.R. EMPLOYEES GO BACK TO SCHOOL

Motormen and Conductors Must Show Knowledge of Rules and Appliances.

"What is a train?" asked one of a group of B. C. E. R. employees of his fellows yesterday afternoon.

All the boys in uniform laughed. One of them remarked, "I wish they were all as easy."

Before a News man who overheard the foolish question could reach the group the car pulled out.

All conductors, motormen and brakemen in the employ of the B. C. E. R. are at the present time devoting their spare time to the studying of a book of rules which is to govern their course of conduct in the future. In the past the men have been expected to study these rules, in a general way, but the company had no means of ascertaining whether the men were really conversant with the regulations. All that is now changed.

For several days past from a dozen to thirty men have been under examination as to their competency to run or operate cars, the ordeal lasting about a day. The exams are held in one of the company's rooms in the Westminster Trust building, the school being equipped with working models of every device in use on the railway system. The men are required to show by practical demonstration that they thoroughly understand the working of every appliance, theoretical knowledge being considered of value, but not of sufficient value if accompanied by a hesitating or halting style in the handling of the little models.

Practical Man Is Examiner.

W. H. Elson, formerly of Winnipeg, where he was connected with the C P. R., and now trainmaster on the Fraser Valley branch of the B. C. E. R., discharges the duties of examiner. Three practical instructors are assisting him.

Each day a number of men, sometimes a dozen and sometimes a score or more, is put through a stiff examination, different papers being prepared for each class. Up to date the company's officials have every reason to be satisfied with the showing made by their employees.

Despatchers are Through.

The despatchers were the first to be examined, their papers being all written last week.

In all 120 men will reply to the examiner's questions by the end of this month, when it is expected the task will be completed.

Scheme Is New Here.

While the examining scheme is new in this city, and on this coast insofar as the B. C. E. R. is concerned, it has been in vogue on all steam railways on the continent for some time. The innovation is along the policy now being pursued by the company of bringing the operating of the road on a par with steam railways anywhere in America.

New Men Must Study.

In the past any man applying for a position as motorman or conductor with the B. C. E. R. was merely told to wait until a vacancy occurred, when he would be hired, given a book of rules and told to study these up carefully. Then he would be put on a run. As a general thing applicants studied the rules, but in some cases this was overlooked. In future applicants will be given a book of rules and informed that as soon as they can pass an examination they will be in line for a position. This will ensure new men having as good a theoretical knowledge of operating cars as employees actually on the runs.

Will Improve Conditions.

In discussing the new move yesterday afternoon, Manager of Interurban Lines Allan Purvis informed a News man that the qualifications required of applicants would make for the betterment of the service.

"Every steam railroad in America insists upon employees passing an examination before going on the road," explained Mr. Purvis, "and now that the railway act just passed in the provincial legislature places us, in many respects, on a par with steam railroads, we have decided to introduce the system here."

ANCIENT CHINESE EGGS SAVED FROM DESTRUCTION

Montreal, Feb. 1.—Justice Guerin today granted an injunction to the John Layton company, a firm of New York importers, restraining the Montreal city officials from seizing and destroying a $100,000 shipment of eggs from China.

The city alleges that the eggs are unfit for human consumption and had ordered them to be destroyed. The injunction order holds till Friday, when the arguments in the case will be heard.

Explosion Kills Thirty.

New York, Feb. 1.—A dynamite explosion in the downtown district today resulted in the death of probably thirty people and a property loss of $350,000.

SURREY NURSERIES SOLD.

Thirty-five Acres in Surrey Bought by Syndicate for $52,000.

The Surrey nurseries, comprising about thirty-five acres of land just back of Port Mann, have been sold to a local syndicate for $52,000, this averaging at $1500 per acre, a figure not considered exorbitant by competent judges of present day land values in that district.

The property was purchased about two years ago from John Crean for $175 per acre, the seller taking stock in the company. The other shareholders were D. S. Curtis, W. S. Collister, W. C. Curtis, J. H. Curtis, M. C. Curtis, White, Shiles & Co., J. D. Kennedy, P. Crankshaw, of Chilliwack, and I. Vanderbone, of Holland.

It is probable the nursery stock on the land, which is valued at $20,000 will be transferred to Chilliwack, negotiations now being on for the purchase of a site near that city.

WATER MAIN TAPPED AT BRUNETTE MILLS

Peculiar Condition of Affairs Discovered by Ald. Bryson —Much Fluid Wasted.

Sixty-seven thousand gallons of valuable city water shooting into the empty air every day and the water main at the Brunette mills tapped by a one inch pipe just above the meter constitute an astonishing state of affairs discovered by Alderman Bryson the other day.

The mystery came to light when something went wrong with the pipe at the mill and the waterworks department sent some men out to repair it. In the four inch pipe running into the mill they found a smooth round half inch hole out of which the water was pouring and being absorbed in the sawdust; eight dollars and fifty cents worth of water per day, enough to supply one thousand people, fast filtering into the thirsty earth.

"It looks as though the person who made the hole wanted to injure the Brunette Sawmills company or the city," said Alderman Bryson, when he reported the matter to the council last night, "for the city was losing $8.50 every day and the mills did not have the pressure they required."

Further revelations in the Brunette water affair were related by Alderman Bryson in his well known dramatic style.

"When we had shut off the water to make the repairs," said he, "we heard a man shouting down at the wharf that he could get no water there. We went down to the wharf and found that a pipe from which the steamers and men on the wharf had been supplied had been connected to the water main some distance above the meter. All the water running through the hole and all that running through the one inch pipe did not register in the meter. This condition of things might have been in existence for three years or for three months as far as we could tell."

On Alderman Bryson's motion to have an investigation the water committee was given power to prosecute inquiries. The trouble is the most serious that Alderman Bryson has discovered since he has been connected with the water committee.

The water alderman produced the four inch pipe with the hole in it at the council meeting. It did not look as if it could possibly have been made by an accident, as it was perfectly circular and had every appearance of being bored.

Statue to Peacemaker.

Quebec, Feb. 2.—A statue to the late King Edward, the Peacemaker, will be erected on the historic Plains of Abraham and presented to the Battlefields association.

Train Ditched in Quebec.

St. Johns, P. Q., Feb. 1.—The Moitreal-Ruttand express struck a loose switch at L'Acadie near here today. The train was ditched and five people, including the engine crew, were injured.

Zero in Fernie.

Fernie, Feb. 1.—All previous records have been eclipsed by the storm raging here today. A foot of snow has already been added to what has been the deepest blanket of snow ever seen in the pass. The temperature has fallen to zero. All freight trains are blocked and passenger trains are running from twenty-four to forty-eight hours behind schedule time.

Fierce Blizzard.

Winnipeg, Feb. 1.—A fierce blizzard is raging from the Rocky mountains to Lake Superior. At Port Arthur there is the worst storm that has been experienced for many years. All the G. T. P. trains on the prairies are tied up.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENT IS FEASIBLE SCHEME

Engineer A. O. Powell, of Seattle, Confident Waterfront Can be Bettered.

A long step towards the fulfillment of the harbor improvement scheme was taken yesterday, when Engineer A. O. Powell, of Seattle, came to New Westminster and looked over the situation here.

He was shown all over the waterfront by Mayor Lee and later in the afternoon, at five o'clock, he was present at a special meeting of the council, when he explained his plans.

He reported in effect that it was possible and desirable to draw up such a plan so that all future development might be entered upon systematically. Other cities, he pointed out, had suffered considerably and had lost millions of dollars by letting their waterfront go until after the development came.

He estimated the cost of preparing plans, negotiating with the railways effected, surveying and preliminary engineering would be $15,000.

At the suggestion of Alderman Lynch it was agreed to have Mr. Powell submit his report in writing, when it could be fully discussed by the council. If the scheme is thought well of, the council would then submit a by-law to the people for the expenditure of the necessary money.

The length of time occupied by this preliminary work on the harbor would be about six months, according to Mr. Powell, and he offered his services to the city for one year.

Mayor Lee suggested the inclusion of several districts around New Westminster so that a "Port District" could be created. This point will doubtless be touched on when Mr. Powell submits his written report.

The engineer was very favorably impressed with the possibilities of Westminster as a great seaport and stated that if the work were undertaken he would enter into it with confidence born of the conviction that he was aiding in the development of a worthy enterprise.

MUSIC IS MOST FLEXIBLE AND EFFECTIVE OF ARTS

Prof. W. Waugh Lauder Gives Interesting Lecture Before Educational Club—Art of Debussy.

Considering the fact that in a new country music is naturally not a factor in the lives of the bulk of the population, there was a very good attendance in St. Patrick's hall yesterday afternoon at the first of a series of pianotalks given by W. Waugh Lauder, under the auspices of the Educational club.

Beginning with a dissertation on art, Mr. Lauder urged his belief that art is not a mere amusement, but one of the most important means of self expression, of that fullest and freest expression of individuality the development of which is the ultimate goal of all human activity. Proceeding, the lecturer spoke more particularly on the art of music, which he claimed to be the most flexible and effective of all the arts for conveying to the great masses of the people certain ideas and influences which could not otherwise be conveyed. Music, he said, is in its highest interpretation a Voice, speaking not of things as they are, but as they might or ought to be.

This brought him to the main subject of his lecture, which was the peculiar art of M. Debussy. Like every other pioneer, every original thinker, every searcher-out of newer modes of expressing the same truths, Debussy has met with a storm of adverse criticism. His music is described as being without form and void, sans melody, sans harmony, and sans rhythm. In fact, it is not music, but only a weird combination of reasonless sounds. To a student of history, this was absurd. It was the same criticism which had been directed against Strauss, who out-Wagnered Wagner. Against Wagner it had been even more fiercely turned, before that great creative genius was exalted to his rightful place beside Beethoven and

PROTESTS WILL NOT STOP IMPROVEMENTS

In Spite of Opposition, Third St. Will Soon be Properly Fixed up.

It is probable that the Third street improvements will be proceeded with in spite of the protests and delays which have occurred. At last night's meeting of the council Alderman Lynch, chairman of a special committee selected to look into the matter reported that the number of people who had signed the petition against the improvements was not sufficient to stop the work being carried on.

The report recommended, however, that owing to the large number of workmen who lived on the street it would be hard on them if the improvements were proceeded with, it would be well if only the storm sewers and sidewalks were constructed at present.

Mayor Lee explained that the whole business or none at all would have to be proceeded with. If a sufficient number of objectors were not found there was only one course open and that was to proceed with the entire work.

Then Alderman Lynch amended his report simply stating that the committee had found that there was not sufficient property represented on the opposition petition to stop the work.

Many Seek Jobs.

Several applications for the position of the keeper of the city stores were received and filed.

The Dominion Wood Pipe company notified the city that they were building a fence around their plant and as the new survey of the city might result in a slight change in the lines of their lot, they were building the fence on their own property, without prejudice should legislation arise.

The secretary of the R. A. & I. society wrote to the effect that Aldermen Lynch, Johnston and Gray, as chairmen of the parks, finance and light committees respectively, had been elected to the board of directors of the society.

KISSING MAY BE ALL RIGHT BUT YOU NEVER CAN TELL

White Man Harrison and Black Man Johnson Differ on Subject, So Cutting Argument Is Used.

Kissing is a serious business. Sometimes it's all right, and sometimes it means trouble. In the case under consideration the last definition goes, strong.

Henry Johnson, shaded and built after the pattern of the Johnson who achieved fame at the divorce headquarters of the United States on July 4 last, and William Harrison (no relation to the ninth president of the Union) last night endorsed the suggestion that a kiss breeds trouble. And for a wonder there was no woman in it.

Johnson is a shoe shine artist who puts a gloss on the footwear on whoever will tarry at his stand in front of the Depot hotel poolroom and part with the small sum of one dime—ten cents. About seven o'clock last night business was a trifle slow, so Johnson stepped into the pool room and became the motive power behind a cue. Harrison exercised behind another prodstick. Things went well until Harrison drove a ball into a pocket, "kissing" another rounded chunk of ivory on the way.

"Kisses don't go," advised the Nubian.

"Kisses go," retorted the Caucasian.

Thereupon Johnson stabbed Harrison in the head with a knife.

Even that argument failed to convince the pugnacious white man. The police were called in to arbitrate, but kissing rules are not found in the police regulations. In hunting for information, however, Chief Bradshaw came across a clause in the criminal code which says that any person stabbing another with a knife in the back of the head, in a poolroom or elsewhere, is liable to qualify for a three year sojourn in a government institution at Sapperton. Magistrate Ed-

Princess Adelaide Aground; Serious Damage Not Feared

Vancouver, Feb. 2.—The new C. P. R. steamer Princess Adelaide went ashore at Apple Tree Point in a blinding snowstorm at 10:10 p.m. yesterday.

The spot where the steamer grounded is half way between Seattle and Port Townsend.

Victoria, Feb. 2.—Wireless reports received here at half past two o'clock this morning state that the Princess Adelaide is not badly damaged. The steamer struck soft mud bottom when she ran aground.

The master of the vessel is of the opinion that she will be floated off at high tide at four o'clock this morning.

All the passengers remain on board the boat.

Libelled the King.

London, Feb. 1—Found guilty of circulating a libel to the effect that King George contracted a morganatic marriage in 1890, F. Mylius was sentenced to one year's imprisonment today.

CANADIAN PACIFIC LOSERS IN ACTION

Toronto, Feb. 1.—Mr. Justice Clute has dismissed the action brought by the C. P. R. against Louis Rosin, of Ottawa, for specific performance of an alleged option on certain property which the railway wished to acquire. The option was given by one Brisson, who claimed to be acting for Rosin, but Rosin claimed that he had said that he could get a purchaser for the property within ten days. He failed to do it within the time specified, and the defendant then refused to sell. Another fact which his lordship stated counted against the plaintiffs, was that they were not the original party who had secured the option, but they had merely taken over that party's interest. There was no obligation to sell to the C. P. R., even without considering the other circumstances.

WILL MODEL BILL AFTER ENGLISH ACT

McBride Informs Williams That Miners Will Not Elect Own Inspectors.

Victoria, Feb. 2.—In moving the second reading of the bill to amend the coal mines regulation act in the house here last evening, the premier reviewed the coal mining conditions in British Columbia.

Eulogizing the mineral wealth of the province he stated that he had no doubt that British Columbia possessed the most extensive coal measures in the world.

Prospectors from the northern part of the province had reported large finds of coal lands in the Peace river country and other districts. The fame of the mines in the Crow's Nest was known the world over and there were other deposits which, when developed, would be equally famous.

He announced that the bill before the house was modelled after the English act and intimated that it was not the intention of the government to accept the suggestion of the member from Newcastle that the miners should elect their own inspectors, as this system had not worked well in Pennsylvania.

LIKE OLD TIMES.

Trapper and Hunter Lands From Steamer in Full Array.

Victoria, Jan. 31.—An incident which recalled the early days of the Hudson Bay regime occurred yesterday, when Charles E. Hill, an old time trapper and hunter, landed on the wharf from the Vancouver boat. Mr. Hill was dressed in regulation woodsman style, with a long rifle over his shoulder and a dangerous looking weapon, which he called his six-gun, stuck in his belt.

The old-timer, speaking to a reporter, stated that ever since 1874 he has been trekking across the continent from north to south and from east to west, subsisting on the spoils of his gun and his traps. He sadly lamented the fact that owing to the encroachment of civilization he has had to abandon this free and easy life and settle down on a ranch.

During his lifetime he had twice driven over the trail back and forth from Nebraska to Alberta, and very bitterly does he rail at the officers, both on the American and Canadian side, who on his last trip seized his horses and shot them. Mr. Hill is something of a poet, too, and his style though rough-and-ready, is forceful. He describes his experience in Alberta, where he had tried ranching for a while, in the following lines:

I'll strike for the salt, warm breeze on the old Pacific Coast,
And I'll leave this darned Alberta for the land agents to boost.
For of all the infernal countries the good Lord ever made,
This sweet, sunny, South Alberta sure throws them all in the shade.
There's six months good hard winter, another one late in the fall,
And it rains and freezes the rest of the time and snows on top of it all.
And it's my candid opinion, though I didn't go to see,
That a quarter section way down below is better suited for me.

Mr. Hill has arrived on the warm Pacific coast and intends taking up a piece of land on the northern part of the island.

Russian Immigrants Coming.

Victoria, Feb. 2.—Arrangements have been made for the encouragement of the emigration into Northwest Canada of a large number of Russian immigrants by way of the different steamship lines in the trans-Pacific trade. The immigrants will disembark at Vancouver and be sent to Calgary, which will be the distribution point.

SIXTY MINUTE TALK BRINGS NO RESULT

Proposed Agreement Between City and B.C.E.R. to be Discussed In Private

At a meeting of the council held at seven o'clock last night, before the regular meeting, an attempt was made to discuss the proposed agreement which Mayor Lee desires to present to the B. C. E. R. concerning the matters about which there has been some dispute between the city and the company.

After an hour's aimless discussion it was decided to leave the matter over for future consideration, and it is unlikely that the press will be present at the next meeting, for his worship spoke strongly against the admittance of the press while things were in such an indefinite shape.

Mayor Favors Caucus.

He said: "I absolutely refuse to play all my cards in public at this time, and all the B. C. E. R. will have to do is to say, 'I will call your trick.' Some things must be discussed in caucus."

The first clause in the proposed agreement, or basis of agreement, as it was finally considered after a great deal of questioning and explanation, dealt with the purity of the water, and required the B. C. E. R. to keep it pure. Some of the members of the council, notably Alderman Johnston and Alderman Bryson, wanted inserted into that clause a penalty clause to the effect that in case at any time the water was found to be impure the B. C. E. R. would be bound to open the flood gates or remove the dam so that the water would be brought to its original level and its purity restored.

No Motion Made.

This clause occupied the entire time of the council and although it is hard to say just what some of the members did desire, no motion to insert such a penalty clause was made and the matter was finally left for future consideration.

It could be seen that Mayor Lee was embarrassed by the presence of representatives of the press and perhaps the next meeting, from which the fourth estate is to be barred, will be productive of more result.

A suggestion to have representatives of the B. C. E. R. at the next meeting was opposed on the grounds that the council did not know at present exactly what it wanted, and until it came to some conclusion it would be useless to hold a meeting.

MEDICAL COUNCIL FOR THE DOMINION

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—Dr. Black's bill providing for a Dominion medical council instead of a separate council for each province was considered by a special committee of the commons today and was reported minus its most important clause. This clause may be passed later.

The chief objection to the bill came from Dr. Neeley, of Humboldt, who said that he had been instructed by the medical council of Saskatchewan to oppose the bill, more particularly owing to the provision for the representation of medical universities on the council, Saskatchewan not having a medical college.

WINNIPEG IMPORTING MILK FROM MINNESOTA

Washington, Feb. 1.—The province of Manitoba, Canada, is suffering from a milk famine, according to United States Consul General Jones at Winnipeg. More than one thousand gallons of milk are poured into Winnipeg daily from Minnesota, although with the duty of 17½ per cent., the milk has risen in price to the point where the dealer can not profit.

German Balloon Sails.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—The military dirigible balloon Gross III ascended at 8:15 o'clock this morning, for its first voyage of the year. The announced destination was Gotha, but it is understood that the airship will continue to Strassburg.

MEAN HINDU STOLE MONEY MEANT TO LIFT MORTGAGE

Bala Singh Punished for Diverting Muncha Singh's Ninety Dollars—Complicated Evidence.

A Hindu named Bala Singh was given one month in jail and sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or go to jail for three more months yesterday for the theft of $90 from a fellow countryman. It appeared from the evidence that Muncha Singh had given Bala Singh the ninety dollars to send to India to lift a mortgage on the former's property there.

The money never reached India. Hence the proceedings. The evidence was very contradictory, but with the aid of an interpreter it was finally sifted sufficiently for Magistrate Edmonds to arrive at the conclusion that the man was guilty.

JOHN BULL'S MONEY ALL OVER THE WORLD

He Puts It Out at Interest and Does Not Hoard It up In Stocking.

London, Feb. 1.—John Bull, unlike the French, does not hoard up his savings in a woolen stocking, but puts them out at interest all over the world, with results that are sometimes surprising even to himself.

In the last sixty years the United Kingdom has invested abroad on the average about a quarter of its annual savings. Last year the proportion appears to be nearer on half. The Statist calculates that the total savings of the nation in 1910 have reached the unprecedented figure of $1,750,000,000.

Of this $1,160,000,000 has been taken up by subscriptions to publicly issued securities, and the rest by private investments. Of public subscriptions roughly $626,000,000 has been in respect of home and colonial governments, and enterprises, while foreign governments and undertakings have absorbed $534,000,000. The United States comes first in the list with $197,950,000, mostly for railroad bonds, and Argentina next with $114,325,000, while Canada, among the British possessions is responsible for $14,410,000.

The first question that presents itself is : Where has the money come from? By far the greater part has been divided by the British public, either directly or through banks and institutions. The present time is remarkable for the confidence of the British investor in industrial and financial conditions all over the world, and the knowledge of this has prompted the flotation of all kinds of enterprises on the London market.

Is England exporting old accumulation or capital? The Statist thinks not. It argues that the large subscriptions to new issues must represent new savings. An individual investor, it says, can sell home securities that he has held for years and invest the proceeds of the sale in colonial and foreign securities, but for him to do this some other investor must purchase his home securities, and in such a case the capital invested abroad is the new savings of the person who has purchased the home securities from him.

That a larger proportion than the average of Bhitish savings is invested abroad arises from economic- necessity, concludes the Statist, and results from the rapid increase in the wealth of the British people.

LITTLE BOYS LOST ON PRAIRIE ALL NIGHT LONG

Kiddies Kept Moving in a Blizzard, With Thermometer Way Below the Zero Mark.

Calgary, Feb. 1.—Two little boys, Tony Wilms, aged eleven, his brother, Bernie, aged ten, and a collie dog named Brindle, living in section 36, Township 35, Range 13, near Red Deer River, had a most perilous journey last week. They wandered all night in a blizzard with the thermometer way down below, but arrived in the morning at their destination.

The two little boys, who live with their father, were commissioned to go to the gorcery store kept by I. D. Chappell, for groceries. It was clear and fine when they set off with no sign of a blizzard, and it did not take them long to walk the two and one-half miles to the store.

When they left on their homeward journey, there was a light snow falling, and the wind was beginning to rise. The trail was clear, however.

After they had gone the thermometer dropped alarmingly, the wind rose strong, and a regular blizzard set in. It became so fierce that all trace of the trail was obliterated by the drifting snow. At five o'clock that evening the failure of the boys to return caused their father great uneasiness. He set out for Chappell's place to see what had become of them. The blizzard was so fierce that he lost the way himself, and after two hours weary wrestling with the storm, found his way home again.

Then he got a lantern and made a tedious trip along the trail to Chappell's. This time he reached it but all the way he had to be on the alert for fear of losing himself. At nine o'clock that night he arrived at Chappell's, hoping against hope that the boys would be waiting there out of the storm. He almost broke down when he found they had left for home six hours earlier.

He insisted on going out on to the now trackless prairie, and Chappell accompanied him with lanterns. At midnight the search had to be abandoned as the futility of it was obvious. Mr. Wilms did not sleep that night, and at daybreak he took the homeward trail hoping that his sons would have safely landed there through the storm.

The whole district was aroused by daylight and the search was frantically renewed. At 8:30 three dark objects were observed on a butte, but Mr. Chappell took them to be searchers.

However, one of the searchers, named Roy Phelen, exclaimed: "Why, there are the boys."

Fagged and weary after their night on the prairie, the boys had to be almost carried. Tony's left ear was frozen, and the other's feet were tinged. They had kept themselves from freezing by running up and down an exposed piece of trail they found, and rubbing their hands in the long hair of the dog when they became cold. They came across an empty shack during the night, but dared not enter it. When morning came they had no idea where they were, but walked straight ahead in the hope of meeting some one. Then they saw Chappell's place.

"We made it up that we would now and then run to keep ourselves from freezing. We knew we could keep on for another two days and that we should meet some one before then," said Tony.

The father almost broke down when he met them again and the return was truly a miracle.

SCARLET FEVER CASES EPIDEMIC IN REGINA

Regina, Feb. 1.—The number of cases of scarlet fever in the city assuming the proportions of an epidemic. Within the past two weeks about fifteen cases have been reported, and the medical authorities are unable to account for the spread of the disease. Some of the cases are serious, and one death has been reported, Miss Grace Broder passing away from the disease at an early hour this morning. The number of cases is constantly increasing, three having been reported in the past two days.

The medical authorities of the city are at a loss of account for the spread of the disease. Scarlet fever is contagious, but the natural causes which would explain the spread of tphoid, such as the shortage of water, do not apply to scarlet fever. Impure milk may be the cause of it, however.

There are also a large number of cases of German measles in the city, but all are of a mild type, and the disease is not usually considered dangerous.

THE PROVINCIAL JAIL.

On more than one occasion within the last two years the presentment of grand juries have contained a strong recommendation for the enlargement of the provincial jail in this city. Then too, in the fall of 1909, Earl Grey, the governor general, when on a visit to this city, also called attention to the crowded state of this jail, with the consequent herding together of prisoners on remand and convicted persons, and expressed the hope that increased accommodation would soon be provided. Notwithstanding these strong representations, however, nothing has so far been done.

The provincial jail in New Westminster receives prisoners from districts spread over quite a large area of British Columbia, including the populous city of Vancouver. Its accomodation is practically the same as when it was first built, many years ago. The population has, however, increased very considerably since that time. As is well known, crime increases in volume side by side with the growth of population. The proportion of increase in crime to the growth of population is of course larger in cities than in the rural parts of the country. Hence we find Vancouver alone contributing quite a large percentage of prisoners for incarceration in our provincial jail.

Each week that goes by sees the situation become more serious. In order to afford some relief to the pressure put upon our local institution, batches of prisoners have to be removed to the jail at Victoria or Nelson from time to time, a proceeding that is both dangerous and expensive. Over 180 prisoners were so removed during the year just ended. It is certain that sooner or later our jail will have to be enlarged. With the strong probability of an increase of crime, as the population multiplies, it is surely high time that the work was taken in hand.

The reconstruction and enlargement of this institution in a manner that would fit it to receive and retain all prisoners committed within this part of the province would be an advantage to the well-being of the general community, would afford a considerable relief from worry and anxiety to the various officials charged with the capture and detention of law-breakers; and would be a distinct gain to the commercial interests of this city. The importance of the last named feature will be apparent when account is taken of the amount lost to the merchants of New Westminster through the removal of 181 prisoners from here to one of the other jails in the province. The average cost of each prisoner detained in New Westminster jail is 50 cents per diem, which represents in the course of a year no less a sum than $32,950. Some allowance must, of course, be made for short term sentences; but even if one-third is deducted on this account, there yet remains a total of over $20,000 which has been lost by not being spent in New Westminster.

We hope the government will take this matter into consideration without further delay, and that Premier McBride will exert his personal influence in this direction, so that his native city may enjoy the full advantage accruing to the presence of so important an institution in her midst.

CITY STREET WORK.

Now that we have had some months of experience with the new paved roadway of Columbia street it is possible to judge of the general character and suitability of the work. There are one or two defects in connection with this road way which strike a layman. The most noticeable of these is the faulty character of the grading. This defect is all too apparent in wet weather, when the water lays in pools, whilst the street does not drain away by the side channels, as it should do, but by the center. The rails of the car line thus practically becomes surface water drains. This circumstance produces a very unpleasant result, for when a car is travelling its wheels splash up the water for some distance on either side, greatly to the discomfort of intending passengers waiting to be picked up. This grading appears to us to be an entire reversal of the general rule obtaining in street laying, which is that the surface should be arched so that the center is higher than the sides. The fault is one that cannot now be easily remedied, except at considerable cost; but we hope care will be taken in connection with the further section of this street now under construction to secure a proper grade, so that the roadway will drain properly to the side channels.

Another matter for which the board of works is responsible calls for comment. This is the laying of sidewalks on the side streets. For instance the sidewalk on McKenzie street was torn up from end to end just at a time when bad weather was almost certain to be experienced. The snow came and the work has been left in a condition which renders the use of the sidewalk impossible, to the great annoyance and inconvenience of hundreds of people who use this street every day. If a little foresight had been exercised, this work might have either been commenced and completed before the bad weather came, or left until the climatic conditions were a little more settled.

FRUIT PESTS.

Editor, Daily News:

Sir—The public press of this province without distinction of party has always given this department very efficient assistance; indeed, I have always held that without the co-operation of the press we could never have enforced our horticultural regulations, which are proving of such immense advantage to the fruit growing industry of British Columbia. I would, therefore, take the liberty of requesting you to grant me the use of your valuable columns to direct the attention of all importers of nursery stock to section 4 of the Horticultural Regulations, which provides that certified invoices of all shipments of nursery stock, trees and plants, must be furnished to the inspector of fruit pests at Vancouver, at the time when such shipments are delivered for inspection.

The reason for this is that when a case of goods arrives, we know by the invoice what it should contain, and are prepared to check the contents over with the invoice. This greatly expedites the business of inspection and enables us to deal promptly with all importations.

It is clearly in the interests of the importers that we should be able to detect any mistake that may have been made in shipping the goods. All this was carefully considered when the horticultural rules were adopted, but unfortunately many of the importers neglect to comply with this regulation.

I would, therefore, urge that a general observance of this rule be adopted.

The importations of nursery stock are largely on the increase, and I am just completing additional facilities for inspection.

Our staff will be doubled this year, so that whatever delays may have occurred in the past may be avoided in future, if the importers comply with the regulation above referred to.

CONGO STATE BOOMING.

No Difficulty in Obtaining Labor and Rubber Gathered Well.

Brussels, Feb. 1.—Introducing the budget relating to the Congo Independent state in the chamber of deputies today, M. Renkin, minister of colonies, declared that the first year's administration of the new colony fully justified expectations. No difficulty had been found in obtaining voluntary labor. Villages were multiplying and the rubber crop was gathered without trouble. The payment of taxes in money instead of by labor, he said, had proved most satisfactory. The mining prospects promised surprising results in the near future, and the open door policy was a great stimulus of trade. Already many foreign firms had established houses.

Annual Report of the Directors

To be submitted at the Ordinary General Meeting to be held at the Head Office on the 6th of February, 1911, at 7:30 o'clock p. m.

The Directors of The People's Trust Company, Limited, beg to submit herewith a report of the past year's business.

A dividend of 12 per cent. to be paid in cash has been declared and the substantial sum of $20,000.00 to be carried as a RESERVE.

Considering the late date in the year at which the different offices of your Company were opened, and the large expenditure naturally incurred by the opening of the same, we are indeed gratified at the results herein contained. The Company has been materially strengthened by the opening of the several branches, which will facilitate the handling of our already large business, willingly placed in our hands by the rapidly increasing number of shareholders and clients. The Directorate respectfully urges upon the shareholders the importance of attending Annual Meetings to consider the questions of moment and the further extension of business, as well as the ratification of various policies inaugurated by the Board and Management.

SPORTS

POOL ROOMS AND ALLEYS TO CLOSE AT MIDNIGHT

Gambling on Premises Barred in Future—Penalty Is Fine or Imprisonment.

A by-law which will considerably curtail the privileges of the sporting fraternity of the city, the bowling alleys and pool room regulation by-law, was introduced and read a first time in the council last night.

It provides for the closing of all pool rooms and bowling alleys at 12 o'clock at night. Heretofore they have been allowed to keep open without restriction.

The measure also makes provision for the repression of gambling. None is to be permitted and notices to that effect are to be posted on the walls of all such places. Boys under the age of eighteen years are prohibited from entering all bowling alleys and pool rooms.

The by-law provides a penalty of a fine not exceeding $100 or a term of imprisonment not exceeding three months.

FAKING AT AN END AMONG BEST WRESTLERS

"The days of faking by the best wrestlers is a thing of the past," says Dr. Roller. "Almost every one of the big men in the game is a wealthy man and does not have to fake to get the coin. I am anxious to win the title of champion, and I can't afford to let any one get the best of me on the mat, and it is the same way with Zbysco and Hackenschmidt. The latter is worth several hundred thousand dollars, and he made it all by being on the square. Look over the list of old-timers who tried to get the money by faking, and see how many of them have anything now.

"Wrestling is a fine thing for a man, and he can stick to it much longer than a fighter can. Look at Farmer Burns, who is fifty years old. I'll bet $1000 on him right now against any man in the world of any age at 170 pounds. A wrestler gets so many chances to wrestle in friendly bouts that he can keep busy all the time, and this keeps him always in shape. A fighter, on the other hand, fights maybe once or twice a year, and each time he has to work hard to get into condition. That gradually saps his vitality, and by the time he is my age the average fighter is all through.

"I believe I could fight better than I can wrestle. I have tried out with some of the best boxers, and once I thought of getting into the game and going after the heavyweight championship. I don't need the money, however, and when you go into the prize ring you not only have to fight the other man, but you are fighting the police and society in general. I intend to keep up my medicine, and there is more or less stigma attached to the fighter, so that I decided that I could not afford to go into it.

"I have been wrestling ever since I was a kid, but never appeared in public until four years ago, when I met and beat Carkeek, once the champion of the world, up in the northwest.

"Two years ago Gotch beat me in Kansas City, but it took one hour and fourteen minutes to get the first fall. In the same city Zbysco and I wrestled for two hours and twenty minutes without a fall. Both of those matches were work, I tell you, and I lost about fifteen pounds in each."

STANLEY CUP NOW SASKATOON'S AIM

Saskatoon, Feb. 1.—The hockey season is now on its second lap and it is only now that the hockey bee seems to be really buzzing in the city. The team has been greatly strengthened.

At the same time there are several strong hockey fans in the city who are already looking out for big things next year, and The Phoenix hears of a movement that will have considerable financial backing to start at once the building of a team for next year which will be of the calibre to go after the Stanley Cup, and what is more, have a good chance of bringing it home to the University City with them.

Abandon Lacrosse.

A despatch from Baltimore has it that lacrosse has been abolished at the John Hopkin's University, which is interesting reading in view of the fact that the Baltimore college was one of the first American institutions to take up the Canadian game. Internal disruption is given as the cause of the move.

Protests Will Not Stop Improvements

wrote to the effect that the statement made at the last meeting of the council that their client, Walter Heaton, had been receiving money from the city at the time when he placed in the hands of his solicitors his claim against the city, was unfounded.

Referred to Board of Works.

A communication from W. H. Fadden, regarding the opening up of Kingston street from Twelfth street east, was referred to the board of works for report, and a complaint about the surface drainage on the south side of Fourth avenue, preferred by Frank B. Dill, was referred to the same committee with power to act.

A request for the opening up of Sixteenth street from Seventh to Eighth avenues was referred to the board of works as was also a request by Charles Parsons for a sidewalk on the south side of Sixth avenue, between First and Second streets.

Oppenheimer Memorial.

The secretary of the Hon. David Oppenheimer Memorial committee wrote to the council asking for a donation towards the bust to be erected in honor of Mr. Oppenheimer. The request was referred to the finance committee for report.

The Dominion Trust company was given permission to take up the side walk on Front street to repair a water pipe.

The request of C. C. Bennett, district staff adjutant of military district eleven, for a rebate on the drill hall light bill, was refused.

The application of Arthur Smith, who asked for a job laying out the city parks, was referred to the parks committee.

Alderman Gray reported that one of the men on the Lulu island bridge was ill and a temporary man had been appointed.

Grounds Improvements.

Alderman Lynch reported that Dr. C. E. Doherty, of the provincial asylum, had agreed to put the strip between Leopold Place and the asylum grounds in good condition as soon as the weather improved. He also reported that arrangements were made for the clearing of underbrush and the cutting down of superfluous trees on Tipperary.

The board of works was given permission to construct a small portable office for use on the Eighth street sewerage system. This palace on wheels will cost about $70, but will be a great convenience to the engineering department. On the recommendation of the city engineer it was decided to employ an assistant in the city engineer's office. The man will be a sewerage expert and will be employed until the sewer systems at present under construction are completed.

Forty-five Miles of Water Pipes.

Alderman Bryson reported that the waterworks department now had forty-five miles of pipe in the city with a total value of $98,827. The figures had been compiled in the annual stock-taking of the department.

It was decided to place an arc light at the corner of Sixth avenue and Eighth street.

At the close of the meeting Auditor Cotsworth appeared and gave the council an address on proper forms to use in the different city departments. The finance committee was given power to secure whatever forms might be necessary.

A STRONG MEMORY.

Its Possession Not Always Proof of a Great Mind.

The trouble with old men usually is that their memories become overloaded with actual and psychic facts, among which they are unable to distinguish those that have a value for the present and those that have become obsolete. Generally speaking, an old man knows a great deal more than a young man, but, says the Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette, it does not necessarily follow that he is wiser. While, therefore, a strong memory is a great convenience, it is not necessarily an advantage.

Cardinal Mezzofanti, whose memory for words was so retentive that he never forgot one after hearing it once, and which enabled him to acquire more than a hundred languages, was in most respects a very ordinary person. Pliny relates that Mithridates, King of Pontus, had so excellent a memory that he was able to speak fluently twenty-two languages native to the provinces of his vast empire. Yet he was a cruel barbarian.

A well known peripatetic elocutionist and reciter still living declares that he can repeat without further preparation about 3000 selections in prose and poetry. He probably tells the truth, since he has been training his mind in this particular direction for many years.

On the other hand, such men as Sir Walter Scott, Macaulay and Gladstone were not only the possessors of excellent memories; they were also men of good judgment.

Among human beings children have the most remarkable memories. Under favorable circumstances they will learn three of even four languages, so as to be able to express their thoughts with equal ease in any one of them by the time they are six or seven years of age.

And they accomplish this remarkable feat without any aid from the mnemonic devices to which adults are compelled to resort when they undertake a similar task. They learn words and phrases unconsciously, and rarely forget them as long as they live. On the other hand, grown-ups rarely acquire an accurate pronunciation of a foreign language, although they may be able to use it with entire correctness.

It is a common belief that the memory is more tenacious in early life than in later years. That seems to depend almost entirely on the individual.

Music Is Most Flexible And Effective of Arts

the other great masters whose works he had been told to consider as a model. Like a chorus of yelping curs they had hounded him from one end of Europe to the other, and now the wheels of his Juggernaut rolled in the mud made of the souls of his one-time critics.

And so on down the list. Beethoven was told to look at the works of Mozart if he would know anything of form, and Mozart was referred to some great forerunner, and in all probability Orpheus himself was chidden with the name of a singer who was gone.

Concluding, the speaker urged his hearers to believe that music like every other activity of the human race was changing in form, that there was no necessity to conform to the laws laid down for a previous generation, and that a man who had a message to convey was entitled to break every law in the Decalogue (of music).

Mr. Lauder is not a lecturer. His remarks, while illuminating, are rather discursive and show a tendency to digression, but he interests his audiences and he has something to say which, while open to controversy, has at least an honest personal conviction back of it.

The musical part of the program consisted of two piano solos, a work of Weber's and Beethoven's Sonata Appassionata, both of which Mr. Lauder rendered well, although his technique is not of course equal to that of the great artistes one is accustomed to hear in works of that nature. Miss Lauder also rendered a group of songs, which were evidently chosen with a fine eye to artistic balance. Her voice is a very smooth mezzo soprano, and her rendition has all the earmarks of thorough training.

In the evening Miss Lauder recited the poem of Enoch Arden, the musical setting of which, by Richard Strauss, was played by Mr. Lauder.

CARNEGIE'S OWN LIBRARY.

Many of the Fine Volumes Show Few Signs of Use by Their Owner.

(From The New York Press.)

Andrew Carnegie has been the greatest giver of libraries in the world. He has a library of his own that is wonderful, probably as remarkable a collection of books as is owned by any private individual in America or elsewhere. It takes up a vast and beautiful room in his great mansion on Fifth avenue, and is alongside the plain and businesslike office of the master of iron and of innumerable millions. But herein lies a curious circumstance. While Andrew Carnegie's fame will rest largely in future ages upon his having founded so many libraries for public use, there is little evidence in his own library that he has much use for books.

Mr. Carnegie may love books, but no one can go through this beautiful library and think so. This man of hundreds of millions of dollars may know books, but you wouldn't believe it after examing the proof this library furnishes. In fact, you would be forced to the conclusion that Mr. Carnegie's love of books and knowledge of books is a pretence, or a pose, and that his reading is scant and his library is simply for display.

A lover of literature or an enthusiast on the art of bookmaking, binding, typography, engraving, or ideal color printing would revel in the great bookroom in the big mansion on Fifth avenue. The thousands of volumes that are in the high apartment are masterpieces. They fill every inch of wall space, except where doors, windows and fireplace stand, and are heaped upon great center tables. A great number of them are presentation copies, not the ordinary books turned out for the average purchaser, but specially bound volumes, each the cream of volumes de luxe. Probably no other man ever has received so many presentation copies. They make up the most wonderful of collections. Mr. Carnegie's name is inscribed upon them in letters of gold. But as the visitor takes up these and others on the innumerable shelves, opening splendid volume after volume, he finds they show no sign of ever having been opened by their owner.

RATS!

They puffed the hair in wads and mats,
Adorned the dome with bushel of brush,
And peeked about from under the hats,
Or else came out in a bargain store rush.
They were the cause of marital spats,
They took up room in tiny flats,
And needed many of womanly pats
To keep them from dropping
And falling and popping
From under milady's drooping hats.

Into the ring Dame Fashion step,
Smiling first a little smile.
As if she knew what magic slept
Within her voice and flippant wile.
She looked on coils so smooth—marcelled,
And mountainous mops with padding swelled.
Ere three shrill notes Dame Fashion had uttered.
There came a babel of setiments muttered,
And the muttering grew to a grumbling,
And the grumbling grew to a great rumbling,
And off fair heads the rats came tumbling,
Fat rats and thin rats, stout and all-in rats,
Brown rats and gray rats, on-with-a-pin rats,
Clumsy hair bundles, long Marlowe switches,
Rose from their homes and looked all around.
Then with ominous hairlike twitches
Fell from their place and on to the ground,
Followed Dame Fashion as if for their lives,
Rats from the heads of debutantes and wives.
Dame Fashion piped her lay, advancing,
And at her heels the rats came dancing
Until they came to the Chicago river,
Wherein all plunged and perished—
Save one—without a quiver.
Now that's a curio highly cherished

In the meantime Dr. Hall has closed a gap in Harrison's cranium, thereby saving the latter much valuable red fluid.

But the important question of the kiss is still unsettled. Sometimes kissing is a mighty poor business.

SCIENCE'S THEORY OF THE BIRTH OF LIFE ON EARTH

Prof. A. B. Macallum Addresses Medical Society of Toronto University on a Mysterious Subject.

Toronto, Feb. 1.—The mystery of the origin of life on this globe has kept scientists busy theorizing and investigating ever since primal man advanced far enough in civilization to bother himself with thinking. Topsy's "'Spec's I growed," leaves quite a few blanks in the course of evolution and the various attempts to fill these in scientifically were ably described and discussed by Prof. A. B. Macallum before the Medical society of the University of Toronto yesterday afternoon.

The address was delivered in the North Lecture theatre of the Medical building, which was well filled with students of the four years. These meetings are held every month and are times of general good fellowship as well as instructions, and the musical program is always a big drawing card. Good natured chaffing and the more or less melodious rendition of the students' favorite theory of evolution. "We are here because we're here-" prevented the entertainment from becoming too conventional and effectively filled in time of waiting for the lecturer to appear.

How We Happened.

According to the account of the lecturer, scientists haven't all bothered a great deal whether their theories of the origin of life fitted in exactly with that account which figures in the opening chapters of Genesis. Way back in the dim morning twilight of history some old philosopher propounded the theory that the first living form arose as the product of the action of physical and chemical forces on the constituents of the water and the atmosphere, and of course that would by no means be accepted as orthodox by present-day theologians. Lucretius, the Greek poet, said "the earth has rightly received the name of mother, since all things are begotten of it, having been generated by the rains and the warm mists formed by the sun." And this belief prevailed even till the nineteenth century. One popular form in which is found expression was the idea that if a horse hair were thrown into water and left there for an indefinite length of time it would become an eel, an instance which, by the way, the learned professor overlooked. Investigators, observing that if meat were exposed to the free air and sunshine at summer temperature, young forms of flies and other insects appeared on it somewhat mysteriously, jumped to the conclusion that they had been gathered in some mysterious way from the substance of the meat. Other scientists got busy, however, sealed up the meat hermetically in bottles which had been so treated as to exclude all forms of the most persistent micro-organisms and proved that one might wait for ever and a day without any form of life appearing therein, if the meat were also previously sterilized. And all this served to prove that the forms of life which appeared on the meat had not been generated therefrom, but had, in the natural course of events, been evolved from eggs laid on the meat by busy little flies.

Riding on Meteorites.

Just about the time the finishing body blow had been delivered generation of life, Lord Kelvin gave his fellow scientists something to quarrel over. Said he: "The only way to account for life on this planet is to suppose that it was originally borne by meteorites from outside the solar system."

"It can't be did," retorted critics. "The nearest star to the solar system is Centaur, and that is so far distant that a meteor would take 62,000,000 years to make the little journey to the earth from thence, traveling at the rate of forty miles an hour. You couldn't get an organism to live that long. All the micro-organisms we know of get tired of life in a very few years. Besides, supposing there were Methuselahs amongst micro-organisms in these days, they'd be toasted brown by the heat which would be generated by the friction of their passage through the earth's atmosphere. No, sir, it can't be did."

Going Some.

Just about the time that the aforementioned critics opined they had the Kelvin theory beaten to a frazzle, Arrhenius, a Swedish chemist, came to the rescue with a modified presentation of the same proposition. Some chap with lots of patience had measured the pressure exerted by a beam of light.

"There's your propelling force," said Arrhenius. "Under that influence you can reduce the time of the journey from Centaur to the earth from 62,000,000 years to a mere matter of 9000 years." That, of course, puts the meteorite corporation out of business.

Then the problem was to protect the germs from the intense cold of travelling through space and the equally destructive heat of friction incurred in the trip through the earth's atmosphere.

But it was pointed out that organisms had been discovered which could be exposed to sunlight for a month without undergoing injury, and also that the spores or seeds of bacteria had lived even when kept at 200 degrees below zero, Centigrade. In fact, investigation proved that living micro-organisms might make a little journey of 3,000,000,000 years through space with no more injury to themselves than they would incur from one day's exposure to a spring temperature and sunlight on this planet. Also, the journey inside the solar system would be so short that the micro-organisms could easily survive it. That sounds very plausible, but Prof. Macallum knocks the theory endways, thuswise:

Where Did Life Originate?

"There are two main objections. The first and chief is that it does not account in the last analysis for the origin of life, but merely assumes that life began somewhere else in this universe, how and in what form it does not explain. The burden which lies on those who believe the theory is to prove that life did not originate primarily on this planet.

"If terrestrial forms of life owe their origin to a form generated elsewhere, the latter must have been specially fitted to begin and continue life on this globe. There are some difficulties in undertsanding how an organism, even if it escaped destruction in transit, could find a terrestrial medium which would permit it to thrive and reproduce itself."

Prof. Macallum then proceeded to discuss the chemical theories concerned with the beginnings of life. Jawbreaking, scientific terms, lengthened out with letters of the Greek alphabet, were used to describe the primal elements of the matters that go to make up a man. The individual is really a community made up of a multitude of cells, each group differentiated to some particular work. And the basis of these cells were found in the mysterious chemical elements on which the lecturer dwelt at considerable length.

The Beginnings of Life.

"When we seek to explain the origin of life," said Prof. Macallum, "we do not need to postulate a highly complex organism such as we can see even with the low power of the microscope as being the primal parent of all, but rather one which consists of a few molecules only, and of such a size that it is beyond the limits of vision with the highest powers of a microscope." Then, having made man look extremely small, the lecturer propounded the staggering question: "Did conditions ever exist in the history of the globe which favored the production by natural means of such ultra-microscopic organisms? The question which I would make to this question is an affirmative one."

And then, drawing evidence from natural sources, Prof, Macallum proceeded to elaborate and prove his theory to the uttermost consideration. And the mere layman who had sat out this scientific discussion of life and the mysteries of its origin, staggered out with his brain awhirl, half persuaded to join the ranks of the higher critics and take a tilt with Hon. S. H. Blake, et al.

The Man and His Work.

Prof. Macallum, the lecturer, is a classic type of the student and the philosopher. He drops his words calmly and with an authority such as befits the sage who has pried deeply into nature's secrets. He occupies and does much honor to the chair of biochemistry in Toronto university, and is recognized the world over as a leader in the realms of physiological research. Attached to his name is a string of letters that has sadly impoverished the alphabet, for the leading educational institutions have hastened to do him much honor. And he knows human nature well, too, does this man of many parts. A reporter called on him one day to do the interviewing stunt. He found the rofessor very accessible and very willing to answer pertinent questions.

Presently the newspaper man rose leave the office laboratory. Dr. Macallum looked him thoughtfully in the face and said, "You were a school teacher at one time, young man, were you not?" He had been some years previously. The professor knew men. "Character," says he, "looks out through the window of the face."

DIVORCE LACKS CLERICAL SANCTION

Bishop of London Strongly Disapproves of Marriage of Divorced Persons.

New York, Feb. 1.—The Tribune's London correspondent cables: No little stir has been occasioned in church circles by a remarkable letter from the Bishop of London expressing his strong disapproval of the action of the chancellor of the diocese in issuing licenses for the marriage of divorced persons or of a man with his deceased wife's sister. The issue of such licenses, though in accordance with the civil law, has never received the sanction of the church, and the bishop maintains that it is contrary to the practice and custom of the diocese.

So strongly does he feel on the subject that he forbids all licenses in his name without his previous consent in writing.

The difference between the bishop and the chancellor is one of old standing, but the present action is due to the objection taken in certain quarters to the remarriage of a woman petitioner is a recent divorce suit.

The diocesan chancellor has been in the habit lately of issuing licenses under his own hand and seal, without the bishop taking any part in the proceedings. His view is that the applicant has a right to a license as a matter of law, and that it remains for him or her afterwards to find a clergyman willing to solemnize the marriage. In some directions the attitude of the bishop is held to be a long step on the road to the disestablishment of the Church of England.

CANNOT DEPORT ASIATIC.

Chief Justice of South Africa Delivers an Important Ruling.

Capetown, Feb. 1.—In connection with the agitation for the exclusion of Asiatics from South Africa, Baron de Villiers, chief justice of the supreme court of South Africa, has just given an interesting decision in the appellate court, reserving the decision of the lower courts, which declined to issue a registration certificate to an Indian on his attaining the age of sixteen, and ordered his deportation.

Justice de Villiers said that the liberty of a subject was more important, than the prevention of undesirable immigration, and ordered that the certificate be issued.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Between William Murray, plaintiff, and Harold R. Wolstenholme, defendant.

To Harold R. Wolstenholme, late of Mt. Lehman, B. C., Employment Agent.

Take notice that William Murray has commenced an action in the Supreme Court of British Columbia against you the above named Harold B. Wolstenholme to have an account taken of what is due to him the said William Murray for principal and interest and costs on a mortgage dated the 16th day of June, A.D. 1910, and made between you and the said William Murray and that the mortgage may be enforced by foreclosure or sale;

And further take notice that by an order in the said action made by the Honorable Mr. Justice Gregory on the 20th day of January, 1911, service of a writ of summons on you was ordered to be made by publishing notice of the said writ of summons in two issues of a weekly newspaper published in the city of New Westminster and for ten days in a daily newspaper published in the city of Vancouver and that such publication be good and sufficient service of the said writ of summons upon you and that the time for appearance to the said writ of summons be within eight days after the last publication of the said notice.

And further take notice that you are required within eight days after the last publication of the said notice as aforesaid to cause an appearance to be entered for you in the said action at the office of the District Registrar of this Court at the Court House, Vancouver, B. C., and that in default of your so doing the plaintiff may proceed therein and judgment may be given in your absence.

Dated the 27th day of January, A.D. 1911.

WADE, WHEALLER, McQUARRIE & MARTIN,
Solicitors for the Plaintiff.
Room 20 Williams Building, 413 Granville Street, Vancouver, B. C.

CLEVER RETORTS BY POLITICIANS

A Few Echoes From Recent Elections for the British Parliament.

At a meeting in Liverpool during the last British general election a candidate was eloquently appealing for the support of his audience. Suddenly a raucous voice bellowed forth, "I'd rather vote for the devil."

Swiftly but sweetly came the retort, "Yes, but as your champion is not standing, may I not rely upon your vote?" This not only brought down the house, but secured a convert.

From the center of the hall the eulogy of the candidate was interrupted with the remark, "I never saw a bigger fool in my life."

"Then go home and look in the glass," was the instant rejoinder, which set the meeting in a roar. The laughter increased as amidst cries of "He's going," the discomfited interrupter got up and left the hall.

At another meeting an elector was unkind enough to hurl an ancient egg at the candidate who was speaking. It missed its intended victim and struck the wall, its malodorous character at once becoming evident.

The candidate paused for a moment, looked at the bespattered wall, and then at the egg-thrower, following this up with the remark, "Can you wonder that the Opposition fail, seeing that their aim is as rotten as their arguments?"

Talking of eggs is remindful of the reply given by the late Sir Henry Havelock-Allan to the thrower of an egg at an election meeting. In this instance the aim was truer than in the previous one, for the egg struck Sir Henry on the neck.

Pausing in his speech and fixing his gaze on that part of the hall from which the egg had been thrown, the candidate smilingly exclaimed, "I say, friend, the hen that laid that egg had very bad breath."

The disturbing powers of one man with a big voice at a political meeting are great. This was well illustrated at Glasgow, where, seated in the centre of a group of his sympathizers in the middle of a long seat, a man would persist in interjecting remarks.

The meeting, indeed, was on the point of proving a fiasco through his sallies, when suddenly a voice rang out from the platform, "Shut up, Smith, or I'll send for your wife." The audience simply roared, but none so much as interrrupter's own particular supporters.

Well they might, too, for nobody knew better than they what a terror Smith's wife was in her own territory, or how she was dreaded by her noisy spouse. He collapsed at once, so the hint conveyed in a note to the chairman was the means of saving the situation.

At the 1906 election a speaker was addressing an audience in the North of England. In the course of his speech he happened to put his hands in his pocket, whereon "a rude fellow of the baser sort" shouted from among the audience. "Take your hand out of your pocket."

The speaker, however, kept it there, quietly replying, "I put my hand into my pocket; the interrupter is, perhaps, too fond of putting his into other people's." There was no further interruptions from the quarter, and the audience were hugely delighted.

To be strictly impartial, one should quote some instances where the laugh was with the interrupter. It was very much so in the case of a candidate who was wooing a certain constituency in the provinces.

In illustration of his great devotion to truth, the would-be M. P. stated at one of his election meetings that he underwent a thrashing when a boy for telling the truth. Imagine the sickly feeling which came over him when a gruff voice called out from the center of the audience, "I guess it's cured yer, guv'nor!"

Almost as damaging was an interruption of which Sir William Temple was at one election meeting the victim. He had come straight from his duties in India to become a candidate for this particular seat, and proceeded to tell the meeting of the fact.

He remarked that he had 'travelled 8000 miles and surrendered £5000 for the privilege of contesting, and, he hoped, representing this great constituency."

The statement seemed likely to carry great weight with the audience until the whole effect was spoilt by some merciless wag amongst them suddenly shouting out, "Oh, what a fool!"

A certain Unionist candidate, holding a meeting in Auld Reekie in January, at which the heckler was much in evidence, failed to give a single answer which was judged to be satisfactory by his audience. Towards the end of the meeting a canny elector rose and quietly asked:

"Sir, would you tell us what might be the name your second initial stands for?"

The unfortunate candidate, greatly puzzled at the purport of the question, asked in what way might that interest the audience.

"Just to see if you could answer one question, anyway," came the reply—and the resolution was negatived amidst much laughter.

Of the few nippy retorts that lent zest to the last general election, one is credited to Sir Robert Cranston. An elector of somewhat pompous bearing was heckling the genial knight, and a section of the audience made no attempt to suppress their feelings.

"I must be heard," shouted the consequential gentleman, "for I belong to the town."

"That may be," responded Sir Robert; "but the town doesn't belong to you."

Captain Ward-Jackson, who unsuccessfully contested South Manchester in January last, conducted his campaign on genial lines. At one of his meetings he had been sorely put to it by the hecklers. Oranges, said one of them, came from Spain for the most part, not from our colonies.

"Now, if you put an import tax on oranges it will not do our colonies any good, and moreover——"

The man was going on at great length when the Captain stopped him.

"Say," he said, regarding his heckler genially, "What an awful nuisance you must be to your friends."

The chairman of a Liberal association in the east of Scotland, who is also a landed proprietor in the county, was presiding over a rather turbulent audience. Number one, a flourishing commission agent with a rubicund countenance, got up and in an angry tone said to the chairman:

"Don't you think I pay as much in the way of taxes as you do?"

"Perhaps you do," said the last named gentleman; "but if there was a tax on lemonade I might beat you there."

CAPE TO CAIRO.

London, Feb. 1.—Five Englishmen left London today for Capetown, South Africa, from which point they expect to motor the entire length of the dark continent to Cairo. Within two weeks after their departure from Capetown a German party will follow in automobiles by a slightly different route. It will be an international contest of skill and endurance. The Englishmen are Captain Bede Bentley, who has already driven an automobile through Somaliland and Abyssinia; Captain Kelsey, an African big game hunter, John Henderson, a newspaperman; a photographer and a mechanician.

The Englishmen's route will be by way of the Transvaal, British Central Africa, Lake Tanganyika and British East Africa to Fashoda, Khartoum and Cairo. The distance is 5800 miles, and Bentley expects to cover it in 120 days.

The English expedition has the encouragement of the colonial office and the British South African company. The German party is subsidized by Germany for $50,000.

FIXED STANDARD FOR WHITE BREAD

National Necessity Declare Eminent London Physicians—Legislation is Urged

London, Feb. 1.—Following a newspaper discussion of the superior nutritiveness of bread made from whole meal flour, compared with fine white flour, eight physicians and surgeons, including Dr. Sir Alfred Fripp, surgeon-in-ordinary to the king, and others of equal eminence have issued a jointly signed statement expressing the opinion that there is a national necessity that a standard be fixed for nutritive value of what is sold as bread, the same as is already done for milk.

The standardization of bread, however, is the more important, as it forms about two-fifths of the weight of the food of the working classes. They add: "In view of the inferior nourishing qualities of the white bread commonly sold, we urge legislation making it compulsory that all bread sold as such should be made of unadulterated wheat flour, containing at least 8 per cent of whole wheat, including the germ and semolina."

ACTORS' CHURCH UNION.

Branch of English Organization Being Started in Montreal.

Montreal, Feb. 1.—Each of Montreal's theatres, music halls and similar places of amusement will have its own particular chaplain when the Actors' Church Union gets its branch in this city into working order.

Edward Terry, the English actor, who was here last week, is responsible for the formation of this society, which will be made a branch of the Actors' Church Union, now flourishing to a large extent in England. While in Montreal Mr. Terry approached the Bishop of Montreal, who called a meeting of his clergy for the purpose of organizing a branch of the union.

The vital statistics for the months of January show fifty births, thirty marriages and thirty-four deaths. During the past year 505 births, 233 marriages and 315 deaths were recorded.

During the month of January 175 boats passed through the draw in the Lulu island bridge. The number is considerably smaller than usual owing to the presence of ice in the river.

The water in all the city reservoirs has now practically reached its normal level and the pump on Eighth avenue, which has been almost continually in operation since the first spell of cold weather, will be given a rest.

There are no new developments in the smallpox situation. Alderman Dodd, chairman of the health committee of the city council, reported last night that as yet there had been no cases discovered in New Westminster.

F. Webb, a man employed in a B. C. E. R. camp at Burnaby, yesterday evening lost a wage cheque for $11.55, payable to bearer. Payment of the cheque has been stopped at the bank. The finder is requested to notify the city police.

George Armstrong, a man giving his address as Seattle, was arrested yesterday for having stolen goods in his possession. A roll of bedding constitutes the booty which he is supposed to have come into possession of in an illegal way.

Professor Alexander, lecturer and phrenologist, will begin a series of lecture entertainments at St. Patrick's hall on Tuesday evening. He has just completed a successful course in Vancouver, where his work was favorably commented on by the press.

F. H. Cunningham, government superintendent of fish culture, has been appointed chief Dominion inspector of fisheries for British Columbia, with headquarters in this city. Mr. Cunningham will enter on his duties early in March.

W. N. Townsend caught an English partridge near the Merchants bank, Columbia street, yesterday afternoon, the bird being almost paralyzed with hunger and cold. Mr. Townsend will ship the bird down to the Delta today, where it will be liberated.
