EXCESSIVE HEAT HAS DEADLY RESULT

TERRIBLE RESULTS OF WARM WAVE IN EASTERN STATES—NITRO-GLYCERINE AND GASOLINE EXPLODE—MANY DEATHS

Toronto, July 5.—So intense has been the heat here that no fewer than forty-three children have succumbed to the stifling atmosphere in the past three days. Owing to the continued heat the wells which have irrigated the fields of crops have failed, and it looks as if the customary fruit supply will also be seriously interferred with, unless there is a rain fall in the immediate future. The temperature at midnight fell to 92.

Marietta, Ohio, July 4.—Where the Mariette Torpedo company's nitroglycerine plant stood, three miles from this city, there is today a big hole in the ground. Six hundred quarts of the explosive were set off yesterday by the excessive heat and the plant was blown to atoms. This city was shaken and many windows were shattered, including expensive stained glass in several churches. Three men were slightly injured.

Butler, Pa., July 4.—A barrel of gasoline lying in the hot sun all day exploded at a garage here last night saturating the clothing of employees and patrons. The liquid spouted in the direction of a rubbish pile and in a twinkling there was a big fire. The men, with clothing aflame, rushed from the garage that had already become a mass of flames. But before the men could be rescued, Charles McForan, 25 years old, and Robert Leith, 17 years old, were fatally burned, and three others were seriously burned.

Washington, July 4.—The third day of the heat wave spread like a hot blanket from New England to Western Kansas, brings no hope of marked relief. A slight barometric disturbance, as the weather sharps say, now forming in the northwest, is the only hope now held out. Unless it grows to a full-fledged rainstorm, there is no immediate prospect of rescue from the abnormal temperatures and oppressive humidity which have collected a record-breaking toll of death and suffering.

New York, July 4—Fourteen deaths and more than 200 prostrations marked the beginning here today of the city's third holiday. The temperature today was more terrible than it has been for the past 48 hours. The thermometer registered 82 at eight o'clock, and was only 84 at ten o'clock, as against 94 at the same hour yesterday. A slight breeze, which sprang up early today, also eased the terrible suffering of the myriads on the lower East Side.

Chicago, July 4.—Forenoon temperatures indicated that today may be even hotter in Chicago than yesterday, for at ten o'clock the mercury registered 95 degrees, two higher than at the same time yesterday. Yesterday's high mark was 99.5 at 4 p.m.

Cleveland, July 4.—Including five infants, sixteen are dead here and scores are prostrated by the heat. The city's water supply is taxed to the limit and the city officials have given notice that, if the heat continues, regulations will be put in force limiting the amount to be allowed each family.

Montreal, July 4.—Yesterday's torrid wave continued today and Montreal sweltered in the broiling sun with the temperature around the 90 mark. This morning several prostrations were reported and one death, the first since the hot spell set in. A man named C. B. Alexander, a cook on the Delaware & Hudson dining car which arrived in the city this morning, was taken to the general hospital stricken with heat and died shortly afterwards.

R. S. Lea, the expert sewage engineer of Montreal, who has been studying local conditions here and in Vancouver, left yesterday for his home in the east, but before his departure paid a high compliment to the work of the city engineer of West minster, J. W. B. Blackman. Speaking to a Daily News representative, Mr. Lea said, "This is the only city in B. C. which has a city contour map, and maps of this nature are urgently required by every council or municipality. Westminster is likewise in the lead, as it is the only city in the province which has been resurveyed. When I return to Vancouver to take charge of some of that city's work I will strongly recommend that a rain guage be bought by the civic fathers. Westminster has, by procuring one of these trustworthy machines, come into line with the great eastern cities, and the adoption of this puts her in advance of many of the big cities in the western country."

WILL LAY FIRST STONE OF SIXTH AVENUE CHURCH

Honor Will Fall to George Cunningham, Senior, Tonight—Prominent Methodists Present.

This evening at seven o'clock the foundation stone of the new Sixth avenue Methodist church will be laid by George Cunningham, senior. The site is a good one facing south on the avenue, convenient to the car line on Twelfth street.

Mr. Cunningham, who is the oldest member of the congregation, will be presented with a special trowel for the occasion. Among those who will be present are Rev. A. E. Roberts, president, and for several terms secrteary of the B. C. conference, Rev. C. W. Brown, Rev. Dr. White and various Methodist laymen.

A handsome building, with all modern conveniences is being erected for the housing of this progressive and growing west end congregation.

Germans Unwelcome.

Mogador, Morocco, July 4.—The Agadir district is calm. The Kaids recently refused to sell their lands to the Germans as the Algeciras agreement made the consent of the sultan necessary to such sale.

FISHING SEASON TO START IN EARNEST

PREPARATIONS FOR RUN EXPECTED IN FRASER SHORTLY FEW CANNERIES TO OPERATE HERE THIS YEAR.

Preparations are under way for the run of salmon which is expected in the river in about a week or ten days, and which, although it is an off-run this season, will mean a busy period to hundreds in this district.

A few boats have been out in the river, but the fish have not yet come through in any quantity, and the rough weather will have a tendency to keep the salmon outside the heads. A thousand sockeyes were taken out of the traps on the Vancouver island side one day last week, and the traps on the American side are also reported to be busy. Rivers Inlet and the Skeena, the two other principal centres of the industry, have seen few fish yet, and they are earlier than the Fraser. It is expected that about eleven canneries will be operated on the river this year, the nearest to the city being the Industrial, Ewen's, and St. Mungo. Eight others in Canoe pass and on the Steveston side are declared as being likely to open this season. The pack, however, will not be large in any case.

Among the boats which will act as protectors for the fishermen will be the Georgia, Swan, Elk and Restless, the last named on her return to the Fraser at the end of the month. There will also be a small boat stationed at Hammond. These are all Dominion boats, and there will also be some similar provision made by the provincial government.

The fishermen are not hampered now by the troublesome arrangements which prevailed two years ago when the Dominion and provincial governments were at law over the control of the river. A straight $5 licehse is now necessary from each government. There will be but a few Indians down from the reserves for the fishing this season, as the lumber and allied industries pay them better than casual work on the river or in the canneries.

Seven pound salmon are bringing the fishermen now 35 cents each, at five cents a pound. These are the quotations at the canneries for fine good fish.

KING REVIEWS EMPIRE'S BOY SCOUTS

London, July 5.—At Windsor castle yesterday afternoon the king and queen reviewed boy scouts from all parts of the British empire. The sight was a magnificent one, and at the close of the ceremonies his majesty complimented the chief officers on the smart appearances of the future soldiers. The uniformed devotees of Major General Sir Robert Baden-Powell numbered 35,000.

THE EDRIE SEIZURE.

It is rumored that the projected auction of the American schooner Edrie will not take place, owing to an appeal to the courts by the owners, the Chilonec Fishing company, of Seattle. The boat was seized for illegally fishing for halibut within territorial waters early in the year, and was brought here to await events.

CITIZENS PICNIC STILL UNDECIDED

COMMITTEE UNABLE TO COME TO DEFINITE ARRANGEMENT OWING TO DIFFICULTY OF SECURING STEAMER.

At a meeting of the citizens picnic committee held yesterday in the board of trade room under the presidency of D. E. MacKenzie, the special committee on transportation reported that they had had an interview with H. W. Brodie, assistant general passenger agent of the C. P. R., and that official had put them in touch with Captain Troup, the company's representative for navigation on this coast. The result of this was that it would be possible to secure the steamer Princess Royal for Tuesday, July 20.

It was felt by members of the committee last night that the time in which to make the necessary arrangements was too limited, and the general concensus of opinion was that a date in August would find greater favor with those who annually take part in the outing.

In the event of an August date being decided upon at the next meeting, either Bellingham or Victoria will be visited, while some members of the committee thought that a trip to Chilliwack by the B. C. E. R. would prove acceptable.

Given, however, a suitable place, and date, and an available boat, it is very doubtful if the committee will break through the rule of previous years, to have a marine excursion.

The transportation committee was given further time to report.

TWO PERSONS INJURED IN CAFE EXPLOSION

Toronto, July 5.—Word having been sent to the gas company that a leak was manifesting itself in one of the pipes of Schiller's restaurant, employees were sent out, and were busily engaged hunting for the escape when a spark from an electric fan set up ignition. The interior of this well known cafe was totally wrecked, and so badly injured were Arthur Brady and Jessie Cartwright that their lives are despaired of.

The concussion was of such an extent as to wreck the frontages of three adjoining buildings.

Broken Leg Seven Days.

Hoquiam, July 4.—Seven days at sea with a broken leg, suffering, in his bunk, terrible pain, is an experience Ted Olsen, sailor, had on the steamer Fillapa, which arrived in port today from San Francisco. Olsen was taken to the hospital. He was injured a few hours after the vessel put to sea by a falling gang plank.

PLANS GREAT RECEPTION FOR PREMIER LAURIER

Authorities at Montreal Will Give Canadian Prime Minister Record Welcome.

Montreal, July 5.—Arrangements have been practically completed in connection with the celebrations to be held when Sir Wilfrid Laurier touches Canadian territory on his return from the motherland on Monday next. The reception will eclipse anything of this nature ever before attempted in the Dominion. The plans, which were discussed at a meeting held here last night, make provision for illuminations on the river at St. Heliers Island, Jacques Cartier square, Champ de Mars and the principal thoroughfares of the city. The premier will arrive from Quebec on a private yacht, and is due to reach the main wharf about seven o'clock in the evening.

E. R. McMillan, M.A., acting principal of the High school for some months, to be principal vice H. M. Stramberg, retired.

Miss Margaret H. Strong, M.A., Hamilton, Ont., to be principal of the Girls' Central school, vice Miss Clark, who has removed to North Vancouver.

Girls' Central: Miss Bradley and Miss Davidson.

Boys' Central: Miss Forrester.

Sapperton: W. G. Gamble, first assistant; extra teacher, Miss Oliver.

Test Game Laws.

New York, July 4.—The Eastern Millinery association brought suit here today in the United States circuit court to test the constitutionality of the amended forest, fish and game law of this state. The section of the law objected to forbids the sale after July 1 of any plumage specified in the act, whether imported or not.

GENEROUS DONOR'S NEW GIFT TO McGILL

Montreal, July 5.—Sir William McDonald's gifts to the McGill university now amounts to the gigantic sum of ten million dollars, by the most recent purchase, which was completed yesterday afternoon, of the Molson and Law estates at a cost of $1,000,000. The property, which will assist in the proposed extension to the university, has been on the market for some little time.

Temporary connection having been made with the big main from Coquitlam lake, permission was last night granted by the water committee of the city council for ratepayers with permits to use water for irrigation purposes from 6:30 until 8:30 each evening until further notice. At this time of the season this news will be welcomed by those who take a delight in giving their gardens a bright appearance.

MANY LEADING SPEECHES AT BOARD OF TRADE DINNER

Second Banquet at Cloverdale—Reeve Weart on Municipal Progress Locally.

At the annual banquet of the Surrey board of trade held in the Columbia hotel, Cloverdale, on Monday evening a large party of Westminster citizens were present by invitation, chief among these being Reeve J. W. Weart, of Burnaby, and J. D. Taylor, M.P., and C. H. Stuart Wade, secretary of the Westminster board of trade. Captain Bose presided, and after the dinner a long toast list was entered upon.

Mr. Weart, whose name was coupled with that of the local member in the toast of the Dominion government, spoke at length on the good work which had been carried out by the municipality of Surrey. He took leave to bring to the front his own municipality of Burnaby, and gave facts and figures which proved even to the most skeptical that they in Burnaby were working on the same lines as their friends of Surrey. The Pacific highways which the Surrey ratepayers and residents were so proud of had done a deal of good to the municipality, and this would be further benefitted when the Burnaby roads were completed. It was a matter for deep regret that the committee which had had charge of the publicity campaign had fallen down on the scheme, with only $715 collected. A good idea, he thought, would be for a fresh start to be made.

Mr. Stuart Wade congratulated the municipality of Surrey on the splendid showing it had made in the agricultural field, and spoke of the good work accomplished by the board of trade of that district.

JAPANESE BOARDING HOUSE BURNT OUT IN WEST END

Fire Destroys Old Shack Used by Mill Workers—Probably Not Rebuilt.

A Japanese boarding house situate in the Walsh Sash and Door factory's yard, and belonging to the Small & Bucklin Lumber company, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon.

The inmates had a number of personal belongings scattered round upstairs, and for these a wild rush was made by the owners, and a large quantity was saved.

Nos. 1, 2 and 5 halls responded to the call, and five streams from three standpipes and a hydrant were soon at work. The fire was brought under control within 25 minutes. Several stoves had been in use, and from them the outbreak is supposed to have arisen. The place was old and of dry lumber, and quickly burst in flames once it took fire.

It is doubtful if the boarding house will be rebuilt, as it was located in a dangerous place for the lumber yards round, and perhaps a very serious fire would have resulted from this minor outbreak had the building taken ignition during the night time.

The loss has not been estimated, but will not be heavy.

FEWER FATALITIES ON FOURTH OF JULY

SANER CELEBRATION OF INDEPENDENCE DAY — RECORDS SHOW THIRTEEN DEATHS AND THREE HUNDRED INJURED.

Washington, July 5.—The widespread movement for a sane Fourth of July is proving its worth, and the death roll this year is greatly decreased from previous celebrations. From actual figures compiled at a late hour last evening, there were but thirteen deaths reported, while the accident list contains only 294 names, this showing a big falling off from previous years.

Louis Fred, an Italian, was found by the police with a revolver on Front street yesterday, and as he had some resemblance to Elias Pilato, a fellow countryman who is wanted for shooting Charles Geiser at Vancouver, he was held pending a visit from the Terminal City officers. A detective came over during the evening, and failed to identify him as the man wanted. He will, therefore, have to face a charge this morning of carrying concealed weapons.

A VETERAN COUPLE.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Holt on 58th Anniversary.

A pleasant function occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fales Holt at 1412 Fifth avenue, last evening when the fifty-eighth anniversary of their wedding was celebrated by a gathering of the surviving daughters, Mrs. J. T. Butterfield, and Mrs. Russell Smither, representatives of the 19 grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Holt had a family of five, three of whom are dead. They were married in 1853 at Bath, Maine, both being Nova Scotians, Mr. Holt, who is 84, being a native of Colchester county, and Mrs. Holt, aged 83, belonging to Halifax county. They lived in their early married life in Nova Scotia, and about 1866 came west by way of the Panama isthmus. They stayed a few years in California, and then came north in 1877, being residents of the Royal City ever since.

Both the octogenarians are in good health, and were able to enjoy the company of their kinsfolk.

BASEBALL.

FIRE AFTER CELEBRATION.

Kansas City, July 5.—At a late hour last night telephonic messages were received in official quarters that the neighboring town of Princeton was half consumed by fire as the result of Fourth of July celebrations. It is believed that the fire has spread to the residential district. Special trains were ordered by the authorities, and left well supplied with fire fighters and apparatus. Help is also being sent from Trenton.

OUTLINES METHOD OF WHITE PLAGUE WAR

DR. FAGAN DEALS WITH HISTORY OF CAMPAIGN AGAINST CONSUMPTION IN B.C.—THE TRANQUILLE SANATORIUM.

Paper read by Dr. Fagan at the Tuberculosis meeting held in New Westminster on June 26:

Consumption is no less a domestic problem in Canada than it is in other and less favored lands. It is a problem with which all the civilized communities of the world are struggling today. It has at all times attracted attention because of its malignant influence upon the lives and well-being of the people.

Consumption is a peculiar disease. It is as secret as it is deadly, and gives no definite sign, until, too often, it has taken firm hold and got, to more or less extent, beyond control. It has moreover the assistance of the prevailing public ignorance, prejudice and superstition as to its nature, so much so that even at this day the true knowledge as to its cause and effect will remain obscured by the old-fashioned fictions of former years. In late years it has forced itself upon the notice of the authorities for the reason that we now know what its cause is and how it spreads; how it may be cured and how it can be prevented. This knowledge places power in our hands and the responsibility is ours if we neglect to use it.

With Pasteur's discovery of micro-organic life, the medical world entered upon a new epoch. Many mysteries were explained and certain diseases were brought within the control of man on a rational and exact basis.

Discovery of Cause.

In the year 1882 Koch discovered the cause of consumption, the bacillus tuberculosis. Heretofore we were led to believe it was hereditary; we now know that pre-disposition may come from our parents, but not the disease. We were also told that it came from the hand of Providence and was outside [illegible] for when we so frequently see instance, ignorance and neglect of the common ordinary laws and cleanliness and sanitary reform contributing so largely to the spread of consumption.

Koch has proved, and it is now accepted as an absolute fact, that the one and only cause of consumption is a germ, that is that the consumption germ has to enter and live and multiply in the body to start consumption. Here then is a fact of overwhelming importance; it is the one fact around which all practical action revolves.

Since 1882 thousands of scientists have studied the life of the consumption germ, and as a result we know under what conditions it lives and thrives, and how, under conditions, it weakens and dies.

Sunlight is its greatest enemy, for five minutes exposure to direct rays will kill the germ. When it is deposited in clean, dry and well-lighted quarters it will soon fade and die, whereas dark, moist and ill-ventilated places will hold the germ alive and active for lengthened periods.

Briefly, such is its history outside the body, and experience tells us when it enters the human system a similar life history may be noted.

If the body into which the germ has gained entrance is not debilitated by hereditary weakness, by sickness or worry, by over-work of body or mind, by sleeping in rooms or working in places over-crowded and in which the air is not sufficiently changed and purified by entry of fresh air and sunlight, by unreasonable excesses, there is small likelihood, unless the exposure is continued, that the germ will live or become active in such a body, while on the other hand the presence of any of the above conditions together with the presence of the germ, may lead to the development of the disease.

Entrance of Germ.

There are two main ways through which the germ usually finds an entrance, by breathing or by swallowing. I will now briefly refer to each.

The means of entry of the animal germ is most usually through milk, butter or cream. The stomach and intestines of adults are not so liable to admit the germ to the system as children. For children there is great danger, and while it is but right that the demand for pure milk be pressed, yet it must be remembered that the milk supplied to children may by pasteurization be rendered harmless as a consumption carrier. In saying this I must not be misunderstood as advocating that all dairy requirements are met by the adoption of pasteurization. I do not think so, but I do advance the plea for true pasteurization of milk as it is supplied today for the food of children. By this means the transference of consumption through milk to children is checked.

Let us now touch lightly on the transmission of consumption from man to man. It is now established and universally accepted that in the sputum, or spit of the consumptive,

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS BIG DOUBLE VOTE OFFER NOW IT WILL NOT LAST FOR EVER

Candidates In the Daily News Big Automobile Contest Must Work Now While Votes Are Being Given Away at the Ratio of Two for One—This Offer Closes One Week From Saturday.

CONTEST DEPARTMENT
Open Every Evening.

The contest department will be open every evening until 8 o'clock from now on for the benefit of those who cannot call during the day. Also all day Saturdays.

Never before has an offer been instituted in any struggle for prizes that has contained as many advantages or as many opportunities for vote getting as this big Special Double vote offer now being run in the Daily News' $3,000 contest. The magnitude of its generosity outrivals and excells any previous attempts ever inaugurated n this paper or any other. The double vote alone should serve as sufficient inducement to a great many of you towards reserving your spare time for the purpose of gathering the needed votes with which to catch any of your competitors who, either by an earlier start or more persistant display of effort, have been a little more fortunate than yourself and have consequently obtained a slight lead over you.

Remember that you have probably just as many friends as the above mentioned leader who are just as willing to help YOU as hers were herself, and all that they want and are waiting for it to be asked for their subscriptions. They want to see you win and are perfectly satisfied to assist you in securing one of the coveted prizes through the medium of their needed votes but they do NOT want to come to you and tell you about it. They would rather that you first show them that you entertain the desire yourself to get out and win and by a display of effort, to announce to the public that you are sincere in that desire. They would not think for a minute of giving you a subscription if they supposed that you were not going to use it as an inspiration to your ambitions, and that you were not going to add more to it and make their contribution to the results of your labors count for something; a link in the chain of success, so to speak.

A Problem in Mathematics.

First, we have the canidate who from the very start has put her whole heart and soul into the contest; who from day to day has made a continual canvass of her friends and acquaintances and has made her efforts bear fruit and count for something. She stands among the leaders in the race today, works with confidence and a persistent display of energy and realizes that she stands just as much chance as her rival when the goal posts come in view. On the other hand, consider the contestant who has worked from start to finish in a half-hearted manner and an I-don't-care fashion; who has relied on her friends for what votes she has secured and who is naturally rather dubious as to whether she is going to receive even a minor reward for the efforts she put forth. Why shouldn't she be entitled to just what she earns? Not what she is able to do but what he actually does. Nor is it necessary for her to stick to the do class, when by exerting herself a little further it would be an easy matter to change over to the other side.

Do likewise Miss Candidate, and get busy now. Work night and day for the short time remaining and secure every available vote. If you do not, there is going to be a mighty difference between you and your competitor's opportunities and that difference will be a McLaughlin auto, a piano, a scholarship, a furniture set or a gold watch.

How to Get Votes.

There are two methods of securing votes. One is a slow way and the other is fast. But neither should be neglected by a candidate who wishes and expects to win.

The slow way is to clip the coupons published every day in the News. At first these coupons will be worth ten votes each. Later they will be reduced to five votes and finally to one.

The fast way of getting votes is, of course, the subscription method. The scale published below shows just how many votes are allowed on each subscription to the News. The outside of the back cover of your subscription blank book also bears this scale. If you are an active candidate you will soon know it by heart.

Several of the rules of the contest published on this page have a distinct bearing on the voting power of subscriptions. Read them carefully.

Remember that the final count for the awarding of the big prizes will be made on a basis of the number of votes secured and not upon the amount of cash this or that candidate has turned in.

Future Subscriptions.

Contestants may find in some cases friends who wish to help them in the contest by subscribing for the Daily News, but are already taking a local paper, which is paid in advance and do not desire to receive more than one local daily in their home at the same time. The contest department has arranged to accept and issue votes on all such subscriptions, the paper to start at any future date that the subscriber may designate.

Securing Subscriptions.

Candidates in any certain district are in no way restricted from securing subscribers in any locality that they may wish. For instance, a candidate in District 1 may secure subscriptions in District No. 1 and District No. 2 may secure subscriptions in District No. 1; in fact, candidates may secure subscribers wherever they can get them.

Unpaid Subscriptions Count.

All subscribers to the Daily News who are in arrears on their subscription account, and who settle same, are entitled to votes according to the schedule. When you pay your subscription be sure you receive the votes to which you are entitled.

A Prize for an Effort.

This is your opportunity to secure one of the eleven costly and desirable gifts absolutely free. Nothing is ever gained by standing back and allowing others to secure the prizes of life. Here is an exceptional offer in which many valuable prizes will be awarded to popular ladies strictly on their ambition and energy.

Standing of Candidates.

FRESH WATER LOBSTER LANDED IN NEW YORK

Saranac Lake, N. Y., July 3.—While angling for bullheads, J. R. Tait and Charles Wendlekin hooked and landed a strange crayfish, which has since been called a lobster by persons who say they know what they are talking about.

It has the claws, tail, legs and long smellers and is the color of a lobster. It is a young one, and has attracted much attention because it is the first of its kind ever caught in the fresh waters of the Adirondacks.

L. R. Bolton, of Boston, formerly interested in Maine lobsteries, says the fish is a lobster and the first he ever knew to be found in fresh water. He says there must be others in the Upper Saranac, and the catch will be brought to the attention of the state culturist.

The visit of 1913 would serve at the same time as a return of the call recently made at Kronstadt by the American battleships.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made from Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs, which, unfortunately, are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hairs, however, are not always an indication of advancing age, for many people have gray hairs quite early in life. Of course, it is unnatural, and indicates that there is something wrong with the individual, and that Nature needs assistance in correcting the trouble. The same is true of hair that is constantly falling out and becoming thinner every day. If everything is right with Nature, the hair, even in comparatively elderly people, should be long, thick and glossy, without even a streak of gray.

The ideal assistant to Nature in restoring and preserving the hair is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a clean and wholesome dressing for daily use. It not only removes dandruff, but strengthens weak, thin and falling hair and promotes its growth. A few applications will restore faded or gray hair to its natural color.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

ST. AIDAN.

St. Aidan, to whom the West End Presbyterian church has just been dedicated, is one of the lesser known lights of the saints' calendar, but is nevertheless an important personage among the array of those who make up the history of good and holy men. He was the founder of the Northumbrian church, in Saxon times, being sent from Iona in 635 A.D. in answer to King Oswald's summons, to become the Bishop of Northumbria. He established himself in the Island of Lindisfarne, and thence making missionary journeys to the mainland achieved a great work in spite of the ravages of Penda, the heathen ruler of Mercia. St. Aidan died at Bamborough, Yorks, August, 651.

So much for the life and work of the sainted man of Northumbria. But his place of origin, the wild and beautiful Iona, which forms one of the Hebrides group, has associations which are not without interest to the people of British Columbia. It was on this romantic spot that Columbia landed in 563 A.D., after leaving the shores of Ireland, with twelve disciples, and founded a famous monastry. From the sixth to the end of the eighth century this foundation was scarcely second to any in the British Isles. Dr. Johnson, in his "Journey to the Hebrides," has described Iona as "that illustrious island which was once the lumniary of the Caledonian regions, whence savage clans and roving barbarians received the benefits of knowledge and the blessings of religion." St. Columbia's foundation was sacked and destroyed by the heathen Norsemen first in 795, again in 802, and finally in 986. Towards the end of the next century the venerated fabric was restored by Margaret, the queen of Malcolm Canmore. The ruins of the Benedictine cathedral erected in 1203 still exist, but practically nothing remains of the ancient monastery of St. Columbia.

A CONSISTENT POLITICIAN.

Few men are better known or more widely honored and respected in this province than the Hon. William Templeman, minister of inland revenue and member for Comox-Atlin. The fact that he is an ardent supporter of the Liberal policy, esteemed by all as a sturdy member of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government and as the representative of British Columbia in the cabinet will be sufficient to ensure careful attention to his speech at the mass meeting at St. Patrick's hall on Thursday evening.

Mr. Templeman gives and has given, from the beginning, his consistent support to the policy of reciprocity with the United States. There are no reservations, nor exceptions, nor any half-hearted approval on his part of the reciprocity agreement. He believes and says that this will be for the benefit of the Dominion at large, and as one having a life-long connection with the work and affairs of British Columbia he says it will be a good thing for this province if the agreement is carried into effect. For the lumberman and the fruit grower, the poultryman and the market gardener he declares reciprocity will be an advantage and a gain. Mr. Templeman's activities in the past have proved him to be deliberate in his conclusions and sincere in acting upon these, and his views on this important question must therefore be such as to command universal respect.

Looking at this question of reciprocity in a broad and reasonable way it is difficult to understand how any fair minded and unbiassed person can do other than approve of an agreement which permits of the free interchange of natural products, and which make for closer friendship between two great branches of the English-speaking race. As President Taft said the other day, "The closer we can come together commercially and socially the better for us both." And again, as Senator Dandurand remarked to the Canadians gathered together at the coronation banquet of the Canadian society of New York, "We have travelled far and wide to extend our markets and it is childish to try and say that it is an unwise policy to trade with our next door neighbor." The logic is an applicable to Canada as it is to the United States.

thorities runs as high as 70 and 80 per cent.

As to relapses. No doubt, there are many. Why? Because the patient is often compelled to return to overcrowded and ill-ventilated living rooms and workshops, and may be subjected to strain or over-fatigue. or his resolve to lead a more wholesome life fails, and he returns to old evil habits of drink, excitement and consequent worry, etc. Of course he is then ready for a fresh infection or the old infected centres break down. In this connection it must be remembered that no amount of fresh air during work will compensate for the lack of sufficient nourishing food or bad accommodation during the rest of the day.

These conditions, happily, do not prevail in Canada to the same extent as they do in older and more populous countries. It presents an aspect, however, of the problem which can and must be met if we are to continue to claim the title of civilized people.

Methods of Handling.

Let us then consider what is the best method of handling our consumptives. As I said before, the Germans lead the world in actual results obtained, and statistics show that the death rate from consumption has been reduced 62 per cent during the last 20 years. I understand their sanitary laws are actively administered and they have more sanatoria for the treatment of consumptives than any other country in the world. The insurance companies, too, finance and control a number of sanatoria and are increasing the accommodation. Is this from philanthropic motives or good finance?

There is no chronic disease requiring more persistent and watchful care, more absolute personal control on the part of the physician, than consumption. The doctor must regulate every little detail of the patient's life, must enjoy his entire confidence, must inspire him with his own enthusiasm. Upon these principles, and the skillful application of remedies to meet complications, the modern and successful treatment of consumption depends.

In a sanatorium no fanciful theories, untried methods or mere experiments are proposed. The simple God-given remedies, viz., fresh air, suitable food, rest and exercise under expert supervision, and suitable cheerful surroundings, have more than proved their efficiency.

A further advantage connected with such an institution is that the admission of a patient means the removal of one source of contagion from the general community; and when, after treatment, such person is returned cured, or otherwise, to the ranks of the public, he or she is an educational centre of first importance, because the first principle impressed on a patient on entering a sanatorium is the care he should exercise in his personal habits; the necessity for cleanliness, for care in disposal of anything about him which would spread, or even be likely to spread, contagion; in a word, he is persisently taught to move and live so that no other human being shall be likely, in the remotest sense, to suffer on account of any thoughtlessness on his part in the care of himself. Such a person, when discharged from the institution, is by his training in the sanatorium not only impressed with the necessity for continuing such caution, but, because of his knowledge so gained, becomes in his family and general surroundings an educational influence infinitely more effective than all the literature and arguments of physicians and authorities on the subject. Need more be said in support of the view that the sanatorium is the best place for the consumptive?

I know of no other objection to the construction of sanitoria than that of cost. Of course, if money considerations compare with lives, valuable to the community and capable of being saved at reasonable cost, then argument becomes useless.

The Germans paid over forty-five million dollars prior to 1905 for handling consumptives and carrying out sanitary reforms with special reference to consumption, and thus reduced their death rate 62 per cent. This reduction means the saving of some 200,000 lives.

The Germans are not sentimental, but are practical philosophers, and that they are correct, is I think, more than proved by the following figures adopted from Marshall Leighton and worked out by Dr. Richer, of Montreal:

A human life at the period of industrial usefulness is worth $6000, distributed as follows:

To the federal government, $1000 (which is the universally accepted figure).

To the provincial government $500.

To the municipal government $500.

To the community and family $4000.

The above calculations have been made from the 'rationale" of productiveness, based upon the expectancy of life at the period of industrial usefulness as follows: At 25 years, the average age at which tuberculosis is fatal, the expectancy of industrial usefulness is twenty years, the average earning capacity $500 per year, five per cent of which goes to the provincial and five to the municipal government, making a total of $500 to each in the course of twenty years. These contributions are both direct and indirect, and according to the law of mutuality, represent a sum superior to $500, but this sum-total, if it errs, does so on the side of conservatism.

In conclusion, let me bring home the facts that a duty is cast on the community as a body, rich and poor alike, to lend not merely an apathetic assistance to this movement; not that the rich man should write out his cheque for his subscription, nor that the poor man should pay his dollar, and that then both should sit back complacently and say "My duty is done."

Humanity first, mutual safety second, calls for united action between the north and south poles of society. Millionaire and working man, master and servant, are equal in this greatest of modern missions among mankind; there is no distinction of class or quality; disease and death bring all men to a common level; we cannot, either by united or any other effort, defeat death ultimately, but we have it in our power to combat disease, some kinds partially, some effectually. That the work we have commenced is necessary, cannot be denied; that it is effective is amply proved. The man, the woman ,the father, the mother, the brother, the sister, who stands aloof, says in effect: "Let danger surround me, let those sink who cannot swim." The one without family, without kindred, who adopts a similar stand says: "What is society or what is my brother man to me?" In short, they stand on the banks of a river into which people have fallen, and when they could save them by stretching forth a helping hand, they allow them to perish miserably and hopelessly. To do this actually, would be criminal, to do it morally, is almost the same. The person capable with positions reversed, would be the first to cry out for assistance. I cannot believe there is such a one in Canada, and am satisfied it is only thoughtlessness or ignorance of Christ's command as given through the Bible that hinders any citizen from doing his part, be it great or small.

SECOND MEETING OF LIGHTWEIGHTS RESULTS IN OWEN MORAN'S DEFEAT

Plucky Britisher's Science Offset By Michigan Bearcat Rushes—Winner Deluged With Challenges—Contest Goes Fifty Minutes—Knockout in Thirteenth Round

San Francisco, July 4—After a bout lasting twelve and a half rounds today Owen Moran, the British aspirant to the lightweight crown worn by Bearcat Wolgast, had to succumb to terrible punishment meted out by the American champion, and although Jeff Perry claimed on behalf of the Englishman that he had been fouled, Referee Jack Welsh disallowed the protest, and had no option but to award the decision to Adolph, who once again proved that youth will be served. Although but four years divide the two representatives, the American has only been before the sporting public for a little less than five years, while on the other hand, Moran has been in the public gaze since 1899.

The contest under note was one of the few for which Moran trained steadily. He has a big love for hitting the high spots, and this has taken much of the stamina from his make-up, and told today when in the eleventh round he fell to pieces. Although he recovered wonderfully in the following three minutes fighting it was plain that he was a loser, and it was only a matter of time before the American would pierce through and land on the vulnerable spot. And so it happened. If anything the Englishman had the better of the exchanges in the twelfth, but to ringsiders Wolgast did not seem to be greatly exerting himself, and was apparently content to block the blows delivered by the challenger. Wolgast did not appear to be in any eagerness to put forth his terrible hooks and even when at close quarters he missed with both hands, this it was which gave the partisans of the Britisher more heart.

No Police Trouble.

The contest was noteworthy for the laxitude allowed by the referee to Moran, who was repeatedly cautioned for too freely using his bent elbow to Wolgast. Clinching also was of too great frequence to be enjoyed by the huge crowd.

Rumors were afloat that the police would raid the arena immediately before the commencement of the bout, but although there was a large number of uniformed and plain clothes officers present, no steps were taken by them to call a halt to the proceedings, which were carried through in an orderly manner.

The contest by rounds follows:

First Round.

After instructions from the third man in the ring, the rivals shook hands, stepped back and then Moran felt out with a short left. Both went to clinch, coming out of which Wolgast visited the other's ear with a hard blow. A second clinch immediately afterwards, and in this Wolgast dug to Moran's kidneys thrice before they broke. Both were apparently out for the shortest route to the long end of the purse, and the roughing tactics plainly showed that no love was lost between the pair. Wolgast using fine judgment whisked the left to the mark and the right glove at the same moment found the jaw. A lengthy clinch in which Moran was severely mauled, followed and on the call to break from Welsh, Wolgast threw a wicked right to the left temple and the message almost toppled the little Britisher. First blood for the American was signalled when at long range and feinting for an opening it was seen that Moran's mouth was bleeding profusely. When the gong sounded, the referee had to get between the lads.

Second Round.

The gong had but sounded for the resumption when both jumped to the middle and clinched. They failed to break on the call and the referee had to prize them apart. When this was repeated, Wolgast, who seemed to be hitting the stronger, thumped the kidneys, Moran wriggling clear. Wolgast chased him to his own corner and again they came to a fondle. Breaking ground, Wolgast delivered a cross to the jaw and remaining inside Moran's guard, hooked the left again to the point and followed this up with a punch with the dexter glove swaying the Englishman's head. A fourth attempt to find the jaw failed, but nothing daunted the Michigan Bearcat came back and only a fraction divided his right glove from Moran's nose. In two fast clinches, Wolgast, who had a big lead on points, half armed to the mark and the blows staggered the other, who jumped back, but the leader was on him as fast as lightning and again visited downstairs with the right, Moran going to a clinch to save himself. In the open again, Moran spurted, and two swift messages seemed to surprise the American. Owen sent a rapid fire series of blows to the mouth, two hooks to the jaw and one to the stomach, and the bell rang with the couple in an embrace.

Third Round.

Wolgast slowed down at starting and missed a left to the face. Moran warming to his work returned and several short arm blows raised his stock. Both swung at the same moment to the jaw, but it was plain that the power behind the blows was all in favor of the Yankee. Moran marking time on the other's right eye, soon had it discolored and swollen. A subsequent, and what looked like a deliberate butt, did not improve the look of the optic. In a clinch to recover, Wolgast covered the blows from the Britisher falling on the other's gloves. Coming from a clinch Wolgast shot a hard one to the ear and Moran almost fell back. He went to the ropes and the rebound brought him up against his opponent, who went in to finish, but a series of clinches spoiled his chances, Moran carefully covering when at close quarters. The latter made a wrong use of his elbow, and clipped a hard smash to Wolgast's right cheek, being cautioned by Welsh. Although he continued to freely use his elbows against the other, the referee did not speak to him, incurring the wrath of ringsiders for not interferring. Moran brought a long left into action for the first time and its introduction bothered Wolgast.

Fourth Round.

From their corners to a prolonged clinch in which both played on the kidneys, Moran having the better of the work and pinking Wolgast plainly behind. Moran feinted and then weaving in essayed for the jaw, but the blow was wide. Moran nothing daunted bored in, but Wolgast sidestepped and clinched. The champion visited the jaw with looped punches at quarter length and the visits told on the receiver, whose head went back. At close range Moran again brought his elbows into action and Welsh loudly told him to desist. Moran countered prettily, but seemed to be sparring for the gong. Wolgast just before the timekeeper got busy found the other's eye and a heavy smash worried the Englishman, who did not reply, but instead clinched, and again used his elbows. In his own corner and when receiving attention from his seconds, Welsh walked over and told Moran he must not again fight foul, the referee's action being loudly cheered.

Fifth Round.

Inside work from both characterized the opening of the round, with Wolgast having the better of the exchanges. From each break Wolgast swung a short jab to the face, but Moran retaliated by stabbing the other's upper body. Wolgast showed that he had in his previous contests been under-rated, as a double handed contestant; he used both members with precision and seemed to have an equally hard punch with either glove. He kept up a fusilade with the left on Moran's stomach, Owen thrice dropping his guard to protect. From a clinch, Moran threw his opponent back, Wolgast reeling against the ropes momentarily. Doubtless fancying he had his man beaten, the Englishman rushed, but Wolgast sidestepped and planted a hook to the jaw, Moran clinching. After some fast exchanges, Moran was the receiver of a terrible left to the point, the blow catching the visitor square on the jaw. Moran was a bit sick and sparred at long range, but each time Wolgast came in Moran covered. Just as the bell rang Wolgast fooled his opponent and instead of hooking with the left as Moran fancied he would Wolgast changed his tactics and a full powerful blow to the mark steadied the other, who was assisted to his corner.

Sixth Round.

Immediately they resumed with Moran greatly refreshed, he missed badly twice, Wolgast easily skipping from the danger zone. The champion too eager possibly likewise failed to connect his right with the jaw, but a second attempt was more successful, the visit to the kidneys distressing Moran. Despite repeated cautions, the Englishman again made use of his elbows, but Welsh was on the wrong side and did not see the foul action. A straight left from Moran on the break was a points getter for the Birmingham representative, the blow smashing home to the nose and momentarily blinding the receiver. Wolgast broke ground for a moment, but again came in and beat the other down with a rain of blows to the stomach and face. Moran held and refused to leave hold on the call. Wolgast appealed to the referee, who forced Moran off. Two uppercuts from Wolgast to the point and a reply from the other directed to the ear brought the pair to a hug until the bell.

Seventh Round.

A deal of time was spent in feinting. Thrice they looked like business, but on each occasion Wolgast adroitly side-stepped and was apparently content to tire his opponent out. The pace they had been travelling was telling on the footwork which was a degree slower than heretofore. Wolgast, on instructions from his corner, went into his man with heavy guns and hooked twice to the jaw and thrice to the stomach without reply. Wolgast from a clinch went to Moran's corner and here the Englishman used both hands to advantage, his straight lefts being splendid expositions of the old English style, which her representative was not using in that manner which had in the past won so many battles. Once when Wolgast had missed a wicked left Moran took a big hand in the engagement and had the leader looking badly in need of a rest. Unmercifully did Moran belabor his antagonist and Wolgast failed for once to get away from danger, the other hemming him in and sending a succession of blows to the other face, body and in clinches, to the kidneys. Coming back after a twenty second clinch, Wolgast was the master and his work on the kidneys showed that he was a past master of this branch of the sport.

Eighth Round.

Moran was unlucky to connect a strong left with the ear, the blow falling short by a fraction. Coming back he found the nose and brought blood streaming from that organ. The Englishman looked to be fresh and escaped many dangerous visits by his pretty footwork. In a clinch, Moran was seen to advantage. He protected better than previously and saved himself from the kidney blows in a manner which brought cheers from the British crowd on the bleachers. It was only for a brief period that Moran had a lead, as Wolgast taking advantage of his opponent rebounding from the ropes, smashed the face and followed this up with a severe clip to the mark and without a halt again swung to the ribs, the trio of visits badly bothering Moran, who went to safety by clinching, but freeing himself, Wolgast, thoroughly roused, hooked to the stomach, the blow doubling the Britisher and partially sending him through the ropes. The round was one of the best in the whole contest and was Wolgast's.

Ninth Round.

In the opening clinch, body blows were plied by either, but without telling effect, both being careful to cover. Wolgast hooked a left to the jaw, but the blow carried little or no steam behind it. Moran wakened up and two straight lefts steadied the leader for a moment. Immediately afterwards Moran temporarily lost control of himself and almost wrestled the champion through the ropes, being soundly hissed for his action. Even work by both was seen for a brief spell, Wolgast's hooks being offset by Moran's straight lefts. Contesting every inch of the rink Moran was seen to advantage in the closing minute of the round, his work being cleaner and more effective than that from the American. The round was Moran's.

Tenth Round.

Moran took up the running and worried the other by his persistent attacks, the visitor did not ease up for a moment and followed up every opening, swinging to the point and hooking with the right in the clinches and on the breakaways. Wolgast half way through the round pulled the speedier traveller up with a sharp the tubercle bacillus, the germ (the only cause of the disease) abounds in countless numbers (one spit contains millions of germs). When the sputum dries and is broken up by sweeping or other means, the germs are carried through the air and so may be lodged in the throat or breathed into the lungs. To realize this, let it be remembered how small are these germs. It takes thousands packed together to be capable ofbeing seen by the naked eye. It will then be easily understood how such a minute body as one or two of these germs attaching themselves to dust particles may float in the air. In order to fully understand the importance of this fact, look at the illuminating path of a ray of sunlight passing through a small opening into a darkened room. The small dust particles may be seen floating in such numbers that it can readily be understood how impossible it is to avoid breathing them; and when consumption germs, derived from the spit of the careless consumptive are attached, it will further be seen how consumption is spread and why so many authorities term it a "House Disease."

Quarter of Century's Work.

The full significance of Dr. Koch's discoveries bearing on the prevention of tuberculosis has been but slowly comprehended. These discoveries were made twenty-six years ago and even now a part of the medical profession and a large proportion of the public have failed to grasp its vast influence on the happiness and prosperity of the human race. The animal aspect will never be effectively handled unless under government control, and this will not be done until popular demand compels. The spread from man to man depends on knowledge and sense of responsibility in persons afflicted with tuberculosis. As already indicated, the sputum is the channel through which the germ passes from man to man. I hesitate to use the word "spit." It sounds objectionable and its use almost calls for an apology. If the mere word is offensive, how much more so must the act be?

The filthy and dangerous habit of spitting cannot be too severely condemned. If the dictates of decency will not influence, then common humanity should guide, for there are many diseases, other than consumption, conveyed through the spit.

Expectoration.

The injury done to many by spitting is a matter of indifference to some people. As a result it is now contrary to law to spit on floors in public places, or in cars, on on sidewalks. The law is necessary for the careless and ignorant, but it is expected that thoughtful and honest-minded citizens will desist from acquiring the habit. When it is absolutely necessary to spit, do so in such a manner that persons are not liable to carry it on the soles of boots or on long skirts into their homes. There is little doubt that many deaths have resulted from carelessness in this respect.

The breath of the consumptive does not contain the germs, nor can they get into the air around him except through the drying of his sputum, or by coughing without covering the mouth. A consumptive is, therefore, not in any way dangerous to speak to or sit with so long as he is scrupulously clean in his habits, catches and destroys every particle of expectoration, always coughs into a paper napkin or cloth and properly disposes.

From the above broad and brief statements of fact we can readily see why consumption is now termed a communicable disease, and that it can be prevented, and it is then with every assurance of ultimate success that we may enter upon the task of controlling and eventually exterminating this terrible malady.

Apart from the humane and pathetic side, which to any thinking human must appeal, there i sthe business or economic side, which we as a nation, cannot afford to neglect. The life of every citizen has its fixed proportionate value to the state, based upon the extent of his earning capacity and productive working power. The force, therefore, whatever it may be, which has power to sweep our wage-earners and workers, in thousands, to the grave, and to reduce by its enervating influence the working capacity of tens of thousands more, is a force which in ordinary self-defence must be fought against by every conceivable means —and such is tuberculosis.

To its death roll Canada contributes 12,000 lives every year, one-seventh of the total of all deaths; and one in every three deaths between the ages of 15 and 35 is due to consumption. Add to these the accepted calculation that, at the lowest estimate, five cases of the disease are in evidence for every one death occurring.

Communicable Disease.

These are bad facts, but when in conjunction with them, as we know, that consumption is a communicable, preventable and curable disease, it is a cause for wonder and pain when such numbers of otherwise kind-hearted human beings and pious Christians calmly look on and never lift a hand to assist in a fight against a huge evil, which science and experience tell us can be conquered. I am satisfied this neglect is due to lack of knowledge or thoughtlessness.

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair which was the envy of my friends and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers, but as I grew older it commenced to come out. When my hair was quite thin and gray, I was induced by the many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to try a bottle; and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found my hair was fast coming back to its natural condition. I continued to use Sage and Sulphur until my hair was as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. It is now four years since I began using Sage and Sulphur and my hair is in splendid condition.

Consumption causes the death of one Canadian citizen every hour during the day and every half hour during the night, and at an age when they are most useful to their families and the community. Mildly put, this is serious, but when we further know that it is within our power to lessen this morality at once by united action, and eventually to stop it, we cannot be otherwise than distressed at the suggestion that anyone refuses to take his or her stand in rendering such assistance as is reasonably within their power.

As I said before, the fight against consumption is one with which all civilized communities are now engaged. Germany leads and already can show great results. The government and the people spent money liberally and methodically in preventive measures. The Germans were the first to adopt special treatment in hospitals and sanatoria. The home treatment was closely attended to by improving general sanitation and bettering conditions of living. The public were educated how to live and the spread of the disease was checked by looking after those affected. The result was a reduction of the death rate from tuberculosis by 62 per cent during the last twenty years.

In opposition to this excellent showing we find that up to the last few years certain countries have taken no action. I could name one in which the consumption death rate has increased in twenty years 15 per cent, and another in which it has doubled in the last six years. Need more be said?

I would, however, like to point what kind of action our shrewd cousins in the south are taking. On January the 1st, 1905, twenty-four associations, 115 sanatoria, and nineteen tuberculosis dispensaries were in action. On January the 1st, 1911, there were 394 associations, 386 sanatoria, and 215 tuberculosis dispensaries. It is thus evident that our cousins have risen to a feeling of responsibility. Let us pray this feeling will extend to the north.

In face of such facts as these, who can entertain a doubt as to what is our manifest duty.

Provincial Problem.

The tuberculosis problem in British Columbia is one of grave importance and considerable difficulty, owing largely to a scattered population and great distances. It is, in other respects, pretty much on the same lines of proportion as elsewhere. There are nevertheless special features which serve to increase the chances of infection and the spread of the trouble. The chief of these is the necessary herding together of people in considerable numbers in insanitary and ill-ventilated quarters in the workshops which constitute a large proportion of the principal industries of the country. The airtight heater has taken the place of the open fire-place and everywhere, more or less, the modern methods of living fight on the side of the disease.

Public interest in the Anti-Tuberculosis movement commenced in the year 1904 and since have been gradually increasing. It was at the commencement of that year that, in sympathy with the world-wide campaign, the British Columbia Anti-Tuberculosis society was formed under the auspices of the lieutenant-governor, the mayor of Victoria and a few leading citizens. Active operations were shortly entered upon and a plan of campaign was inaugurated which claimed as its ambitious objects:

1. The eventual eradication of tuberculosis.
2. The education of the people as to its cause and its prevention.
3. The care or alleviation of suffering.
4. The care and safe disposal of advanced cases, dangerous in their immediate surroundings and a menace to the community at large.

Formation of Society.

The society was formally incorporated by an act passed by the Legislative Assembly during the session of 1907. It is controlled by a court of governors and managed by a board of directors comprising many of the leading men of the province. It was honored with the patronage of his late majesty, King Edward, and the same distinction was extended to the enterprise by his excellency the governor-general of Canada and his honor the lieutenant-governor of the province. The movement has the strong moral and financial support of the Provincial government and to a large extent, of the municipal authorities and the citizens of the province generally, who have treated it with sympathy and generosity, the list of contributors is now being prepared and will be printed and published before the end of the present year.

As the best means of circulating a knowledge of the disease and its possibilities, together with the methods to be adopted to prevent its spread, and with a view to the discovery and prompt treatment of local cases, as well as the more extensive collection of funds, branch societies to the number of 29 have been formed throughout the provincial centers, working like the parent society under an established constitution, and tributary to the latter.

As another sure means of circulating information, literature appropriate to its various uses has been forwarded to every school in the province for distribution to the children, and addresses and appeals have been sent to the clergy, the teachers and all leaders of industry and employers of labor and heads of trade, institutions and friendly societies with the object of engaging their sympathy and co-operation.

In addition to pamphlets sent in such numbers that every child attending school could receive one, a special chapter on tuberculosis has been added to our official text book on hygine. This book is used in every school in the province.

Kamloops Sanatorium.

The first development of activity in the anti-tuberculosis campaign in British Columbia was the purchase by the Society of a property in the Kamloops vicinity at a cost of $58,000 for the purposes of a sanatorium for the treatment of incipient consumption.

The property consists of 600 acres of productive and well-watered land, with 8000 acres of grazing leased from the Dominion government at a nominal rental.

The name of the place is appropriately called Tranquille, and the group of houses on the property, which, after the necessary alterations and additions to adapt them to the purpose, form the nucleus of the institution which is known as the Tranquille Sanatorium.

Tranquille is situated on the north side of Kamloops Lake, about eight miles west of the town of Kamloops and 250 miles east of Vancouver. It has a southerly aspect and an elevation of 1100 feet. It is fairly well protected from the prevailing southeast winds which though sometimes strong, are seldom cold, and also from the northwest, whence at times the wind blows up the lake both cold and strong. The highest recorded precipitation is 10.6 inches, eight inches being in the form of rain and the remainder snow. The average highest temperature for a number of years is 97 degrees, and the lowest six below zero. The mean temperature is 47 degrees. The average relative humidity is about 80 degrees in the winter and 60 degrees in summer, and the average pressure of vapor is about 190 degrees in winter and 350 degrees in summer.

Here then, as will be apparent is an institution surrounded by its own farm land which provides the necessary food supply of known purity in milk, meat, butter, eggs and vegetables. Here the sufferer is given a fair fighting chance of life under the best conditions in our power to present.

Institution's Work.

The institution was open to receive patients on November 28, 1907. Our first accommodations was for sixteen patients. We now handle sixty, and in the coming September will be able to accommodate 96 consumptives.

During last year 97 patients received treatment, and all those who have passed through the institution only 20 percent were able to pay in full; 58 per cent paid in part, from $3.00 to $10.00 per week, and the remaining 22 per cent were unable to pay at all. Thus taken in the aggregate the patients themselves contributed 88c per day of the cost of maintenance.

The cost per patient has amounted to $2.00 per day. This is met from the following sources, viz:

(b) Municipal grants.

(c) Fees from patients, charges being modified in accordance with their means, with a maximum charge of $15 per week.

(d) Contributions from local societies.

The work has been an arduous one and sometimes very trying and difficult. Individuals ignorant of exact conditions are liable to interfere, criticise and look for impossible results. It is, however, with no little satisfaction that we are able to say that the result has been, on the whole, of a most encouraging nature, notwithstanding inadequate accommodation.

During the period of ten and one-half years since this work has been in progress, the thought and energies of the directorate have been concentrated upon the construction of an institutional building adequate to the full requirements of the province, and every means has been employed to raise funds for this purpose.

After careful inspection by the society's architect of kindred institutions in eastern Canada and America, a plan was decided upon in which is sought to embody all the latest scientific ideas suitable to our purpose, and the result has been that we have now a building of a type recognized in construction. This building is not yet completely furnished because of lack of funds. To meet this and other necessaries an appeal is now made.

There are many proposals as to what is the best method of handling consumptives. Some people advocate that the consumptive be treated in his own home; others think that dispensory advice, providing when necessary, tents or shacks, is sufficient; while others look on special hospitals as too expensive for the results obtained. These views arise from two causes:

1. The enormity of the problem and the consequent apparent impossibility of affecting the desired end.
2. The failure to cure a majority of patients and the relapse of many who were thought to be cured.

Two Out of Seven.

The magnitude of the problem is certainly appalling, for we know that two out of every seven deaths occurring between the ages of 16 and 35 are due to consumption. The great civil war in the United States destroyed 650,000 persons in four years. The cause of this war was just, but the destruction of human life is looked on with horror. We know that 600,000 persons perish from consumption every four years in the United States. This, unlike the civil war, is not justified, because it can be prevented. Of course, then, the contemplation of the problem is almost paralyzing, but, to meet the difficulty, we will look in vain to inaction. A policy of drift cannot be permitted in the present stage of progress and knowledge.

As to the question of failure to cure consumptive patients. No doubt in too many instances, the unfortunate patient is beyond help; but why? Once consumption gets a strong hold on an enfeebled constitution it is rarely cured. Its progress may be checked, but the patient need not expect to be physically reconstructed. He may be patched, but he can never be made whole again.

It is, however, different with a case recognized in its very early stage. If the constitution be good and if what is termed the "resisting power" be high, then the results are most satisfactory and the actual percentage of cures vouched for by reliable au-

Meeting of Lightweights Results In Moran's Defeat

jolt on the chin and this may be said to have taken much of the fire out of Moran's after work. The blow was a short arm jab and caught the Britisher square on the point sending his head back. Taking full advantage of this Wolgast weaved in and almost upset the other coming from a clinch. Moran picked out four pretty pointers without reply and a long clinch ensued. Missing a heavy hook, gave Moran an opening of which he took full advantage and although he lacked the steam of the other in the blows he was in the front with cleaner work.

Eleventh Round.

Fourteen times did the pair clinch in this round, and while Wolgast fought at hurricane speed during the first half, Moran picked out his attack and showed that he had the science. Wolgast paid special attention to Moran's stomach, which was red from the blows which had been rained there. Moran at close range was responsible for a series of face smashes, while Wolgast's ear was swollen and bore testimony to the visits paid by the plucky Englishman. The round was a fairly even one with Wolgast a shade leader.

Twelfth Round.

Wolgast had not got into attitude before Moran sent a straight left, but quick as a shot the champion escaped the message by a side step and a reply found Moran wanting. Keeping his blows centred to the mark, Wolgast smothered the little man, but it was not for long as after a bit of by play when he tried to fool the other by turning on his heel, Moran suddenly wheeled and caught Wolgast on the left jaw with the right and on the mark with the left, dazing the American wonder. On a break Moran sent his followers into the heavens of delight by non-plussing the other and getting five times to the face without Wolgast scoring a single point. Wolgast seemed to tire, but before the round closed he found the kidneys with cruel punches and regained some of his points, but the round was easily Moran's.

Thirteenth and Last Round.

A clinch followed the bell, and coming free Wolgast thumped the stomach, the blowing winding Moran, who danced round for recovery. Against the ropes Wolgast again got to the mark twice without a reply from Moran. For a brief moment Wolgast stood back and then finding that he had his opponent beaten went back to finish the battle. Three smashes to the stomach and a weak right to the jaw took all the heart from Moran and despite the shouts from his corner to get away from danger, Moran could not and collapsed to the ground. Just as he was toppling, Wolgast uppercut to the jaw and this half stopped the Englishman for a brief second. Then the end came. With a far away look in his eyes, Moran sank down and took the count of "nine-out." A foul was claimed, but Referee Welsh disallowed it.
