GREECE REFUSES TO SIGN PEACE PROTOCOL

Turkish and Bulgarian Delegates Conclude Matters, Latter Representing Servia and Montenegro--Abstention May Mean Serious Split Among Allies--Attitude of Athens Unexplained--Turkey to Enter Balkan Customs League.

London, Dec. 3.—The protocol arranging an armistice was signed late this evening by the Turkish and Bulgarian delegates, the latter representing also Servia and Montenegro. Prior to this there had been a long sitting of the Turkish council of ministers to consider fresh proposals submitted by the allies.

Apparently the Greek delegate did not sign the protocol. At present nothing is known definitely on this point or of the terms of the armistice as revised today.

The refusal of Greece to sign the armistice is susceptible of different interpretations.

London Is Likely.

In the first place as a tacit armistice has been in existence more than a week it is not impossible that the negotiations may have served to bring about an agreement on the general principles of the peace terms, such as would promise the speedy arrangement of a peace treaty when the conference meets as is now expected in London. In this case the fact that Greece is standing out from the peace protocol would not be of great importance.

In the second place the Greek abstention may mean a serious split among the allies, arising from jealousies concerning the possession of Saloniki and the insistance of the Greeks on the capitulation of Adrianople, Scutari and Janina.

Turkey Tested Greece.

Other factors that may influence the situation are to be found in the fact that Turkey recently sought to conclude a separate treaty of peace with Greece, that Bulgaria apparently is not unwilling to enter into an alliance with Turkey, and that the allies are desirous that Turkey shall enter the Balkan Customs League.

There is a rumor in Sofia that a suggestion has been made to substitute Roumania for Greece in the Balkan League. It seems clear from the report that Bulgaria will ignore the Greek offer to land an army in Gallipoli Peninsula and to send her fleet to attack the Dardanelles, that the relations between Greece and Bulgaria are greatly strained and these signs of dissension among the allies leave the situation full of dangerous possibilities.

Can Continue War.

It is reported that France is trying to persuade Greece to adopt a less unyielding attitude. It is understood that financial pressure and the exhaustion of their forces had much to do with the willingness of Bulgaria and Servia to conclude peace, and in this respect, Greece, which secured her victories with less expense, is better able to continue hostilities.

Bulgarians Kill Greeks.

London, Dec. 4.—A Vienna despatch to the Daily Telegraph that official quarters there have received information that the dissensions between the Greeks and Bulgarians have become serious and that 250 Greeks were killed when 3000 of their troops attempted forcibly to occupy the town of Serres, which was already occupied by Bulgarians.

RAILWAY SILENT ON TERMINAL QUESTION

English Bondholders Want Say in the Matter—Developments in Ferry Service Expected.

The remarkable silence of the officials of the Canadian Northern Railway Company regarding the location of their terminals on the False Creek tide flats, Vancouver, is a matter which is being followed closely by residents of New Westminster.

It is only a matter of two weeks ago that everything appeared to have been fixed up between the company and the city of Vancouver. Since then, however, no word has been received from the head officials and a general belief is prevalent that pressure is being brought to bear which will result in the changing of the whole plans of the railway as far as terminals are concerned.

A few days ago a Vancouver morning paper came out with the announcement that the English bondholders who had been induced to buy Port Mann property on the strength that it was to be the western terminal of the C. N. R., are kicking at the proposal to locate on the False Creek flats, and the continued silence leads to the belief that the C. N. R. are not desirous of entering into an agreement with Vancouver in this regard.

Colonel A. D. Davidson, who has been the spokesman for the C. N. R. in all western terminal matters, is now in the East, and is not expected to return for several weeks. This again lends color to the above.

A rumor is now being circulated that the C. N. R. is preparing plans and will soon let the contract for the construction of a line from Port Mann to Steveston, near the mouth of the Fraser. Should this be correct, it is probable that the company is preparing to locate its ferry terminals at that point to connect with a port on Vancouver Island, which will also link up with Victoria.

The company has repeatedly given out statements that a ferry service would be located near the mouth of the Fraser and developments are expected in this regard within a very short time.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES PECK AND THORNBER CONSIDERING

Interviewed yesterday Trustees Peck and Thornber of the school board, whose terms expire in January, stated that they had not definitely decided whether they would stand for re-election.

The chief consideration with both is the time it takes to attend to the duties of trusteeship, but they expect to be in a position to announce their intentions during the latter part of this month.

At the expiry of this term Mr. J. W. Peck will have served eight successive years on the board, during which time the school system of the city has advanced in keeping with the general progress.

PROMINENT TYPO LEAVES

For Upper Country on Tour—Plans for Labor Celebration.

Mr. R. A. Stoney, of this city, who is the International Typographical Union organizer for British Columbia, will probably leave for the upper country within the next few days in the interests of the I. T. U. Mr. Stoney is just recovering from a serious illness, but expects to feel fit enough to visit the various small towns of the interior, where he will pay special attention to the territory covered by the Vernon local.

He expects to be away from the city until Christmas time and after the New Year will visit points on Vancouver Island and Prince Rupert. As the Royal City is planning a monster labor celebration for Labor Day, 1913, this trip will give Mr. Stoney a good chance of informing union men throughout the province upon the progress this city is making. He will urge the different locals to make preparations for being represented at the time of the celebration.

All Quiet in Surrey.

So far there is not even the simmering of an agitation for a change in the personnel of the Surrey municipal council and up to the present it does not seem likely there will be a contested election.

WESTMINSTER FIRM HELPS VANCOUVER

Is Tearing Down Old Granville Street Bridge—Pile Driving Prospects Are Bright.

The Fraser River Pile Driving Company has commenced on a big contract of tearing down the old Granville street bridge in Vancouver. Six thousand dollars is mentioned as the contract price, while the company will retain all the material from the old structure.

A pile driving outfit will leave Westminster this morning in tow of the tug Firefly and will be taken around the point to False creek. The wrecking work will consume about two months' time, and includes the lowering of one steel span and a draw span also on to scows, which will be taken and stored at some convenient point near Vancouver.

The company is now located in their new offices at room 510 Westminster Trust block. Two of their outfits are at present working at the Fraser Mills on the new cedar mill being built by the Canadian Western Lumber Company. The Pile Driving Company has a dredge at work at that point deepening the channel so that booms can be floated at low water.

According to Mr. Jones of the Pile Driving Company, more work is in sight than ever before in the history of the city and he did not expect any lay-offs for his men at all. The company is at present figuring on large contracts through the whole of the lower mainland.

HALF MILLION FOR FIRST YEAR'S WORK

If the Clarke & Lewis Steel Corporation can make a satisfactory agreement with the city in securing the necessary site for the establishment of a big plant they will be prepared to go ahead four months after the papers are signed with the actual construction work on the buildings of a plant and expend the sum of at least $500,000 within one year.

This much was given out by Mr. Stuart Wade, who has been conducting the preliminary negotiations with the steel concern.

Furthermore Mr. Wade stated that the provisional arrangements of the concern provide for an additional expenditure of $1,000,000 the following year and increasing amounts year by year after until the total sum of $10,000,000 is outlayed.

What considerations required from the city by the corporation have only been discussed tentatively so far and nothing will be definitely decided upon until the principals meet the council some time during this month. It is expected, however, that something along the line of the lease just given the Schaake Machine Works will be suggested.

The Westminster branch of the Lewis & Clarke Steel Corporation, as it is planned to have it called if the negotiations are carried through successfully, will be run in conjunction with their plant now being established at Chambers Creek, near Tacoma and also the Tacoma Railway and Marine Terminal Company. The proposed expenditure of $500,000 the first year here will be for the purpose of erecting the buildings and supplying the necessary equipment for the plant.

It is understood that Mr. Henry Hewitt, junior, a multi-millionaire of Tacoma, identified with the corporation, has under his control vast mineral and coal deposits on this coast which will probably supply in part the material necessary for the work of the plant immediately after establishment.

At both New Westminster and Tacoma it is intended to erect a modern iron and steel manufacturing plant with complete modern blast furnaces, open hearth steel plant, rolling mill and kindred industries including a gas plant. The works when in operation will have an actual completed working capacity of 100 tons of finished product per day.

One of the difficulties in the past with large steel plants has been the obtaining of the necessary fluxing material, but it is also understood that the corporation holds a fifty year contract which will supply it with the crude material.

STOCK BREEDERS TO CONVENE IN CITY

During January Next—Claims of Fertile Fraser Valley Are Again Recognized.

Mr. D. E. MacKenzie, secretary of the R. A. & I. Society, announced yesterday that the next annual convention of the B. C. Stockbreeders' Association will be held in New Westminster in January. The exact dates have not been settled as yet. This makes a total of two conventions to be held in this city during the first month of the New Year, dates having already been arranged for the annual gathering of the B. C. Dairymen's Association here.

As was the custom heretofore with the Dairymen's Association the conventions of the Stockbreeders' have generally been held in Victoria, but the executive, realizing the important position New Westminster occupies as regards the Fraser valley, one of the largest agricultural and breeding districts of the province, decided that it would profit the organization greatly to meet here this coming occasion.

Mr. MacKenzie was helpful to a great extent in the making of this decision and a great deal of credit is due also to him for securing the B. C. Dairymen's gathering for this city.

WAY NOW CLEAR FOR NAVAL BILL

His Own Move Censuring Ministers Over Recent Elections Is Defeated —Address Adopted.

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—By a vote of 119 to 71 Sir Wilfrid Laurier's amendment to the address from the throne was rejected by the Commons at midnight. It was the first division of the session and as is usually the case, brought forth a full attendance in the galleries. The amendment ran thus:

"We beg to represent to Your Royal Highness that in the elections at MacDonald and Richelieu, there were practices calculated to terrorize and corrupt the electorate which were connived at by your ministers and which deserve the censure of the House."

Both leaders got rounds of applause as they arose to vote, as did the ministers and several of the new members.

Mr. Morrison, the new member for MacDonald, received a particularly warm reception from the Conservatives as he recorded his vote.

Sir Rodolphe Forget, Mr. Lemieux, Mr. Pelletier, Mr. J. P. Carden, Mr. Wilson, of Wentworth, Mr. Charles Murphy and Mr. Wilson, of Laval, all spoke on the question.

Mondou Is Swamped.

Mr. Mondou, member for Yamaska arose and after a speech in French moved an amendment to the address calling for representation in the British council before contributing to the navy. He was followed by four other French speakers and then Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Borden.

Sir Wilfrid said that the Mondou amendment was of far reaching effect and its mover would have been better advised to bring it up at a better time. The speech from the throne indicated that the naval defence bill would be brought in, and, until that was done, he would not express himself either positively or negatively on the principle itself, but he would vote against this amendment.

Borden Praises Laurier.

Mr. Borden commended Sir Wilfrid on his stand and objected to the wording of the amendment.

On a vote being taken four voted for and 183 against the motion.

The address in reply to the speech from the throne was then adopted without amendment and the way is now clear for the introduction of the naval bill. The House arose shortly after 1 o'clock.

CHAIRMAN MARSHALL WILL STAND FOR SURREY AGAIN

Mr. A. G. Marshall, South Westminster, chairman of the Surrey school trustees, has consented to present himself for re-election.

The school trustees will meet next Saturday at Brownsville school, South Westminster. The old Brownsville school has been condemned for its inadequate accommodation and the subject of a new school will be considered and discussed.

MORE SHIPS BOUND FOR FRASER RIVER

Carrying Rails for C. N. R. at Port Mann—Steel Coming by Car Also.

Port Mann, Dec. 3.—Two additional cargoes of steel rails of 6000 tons each have been ordered by the Canadian Northern Railway for delivery in March and April next.

These rails will be shipped from Sydney, Cape Breton, and will be brought by steamers around the Horn. The C. N. R. has recently placed an order for 15,000 tons of steel rails at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., which will be used on the western division of the company.

The shipment will be hauled across the continent by C. P. R. for delivery at Kamloops early in January.

BUSINESS MEN RALLY TO BANNER OF PROGRESS

All is prepared for the meeting which is being held by the Progressive Association at 3:30 this afternoon in the City Hall. A big attendance of the leading business men in the city and the members in general is expected and it is confidently anticipated that everything will pass off successfully and that the occasion will be but one more proof of the aggressive spirit that now animates the citizens of New Westminster.

Dr. Smith, the president of the association, will be in the chair. He has been spending a holiday down in Seattle but is returning in time for the meeting. Mayor Lee has also promised to be present and address the gathering.

Aldermen D. S. Curtis and A. E. White and Messrs. D. W. Gilchrist, Nels Nelson, H. Schaake and J. R. Duncan have been busy interesting the merchants and manufacturers in the meeting and it only remains for the public in general to prove their efforts successful by turning up enthusiastically at 3:30 this afternoon.

FRUITS, FEASTS AND FURTHER PUBLICITY

Financial Campaign Has Hearty Support of Whole Executive—Information for C. P. R.

The ways and means of the big financial publicity campaign was the chief topic of discussion at the meeting of the executive of the Progressive Association last evening. Several practicable schemes were considered, but outside of preparing plans for the big meeting to be held in the city hall this afternoon at 3:30 no definite action was taken.

From the enthusiasm evinced at the meeting any campaign launched will have the hearty support and co-operation of every member of the executive.

In reply to a communication from Mr. Otway Wilkie, of the industrial committee, inquiring as to what steps the government was taking towards improving the systems of packing fruit at present in vogue, Mr. R. M. Winslow, provincial horticulturist, stated that packing schools were being established in various parts of the province. Accompanying Mr. Winslow's answer was detailed information concerning the class and a suggestion that the association help the government out in its efforts. The data and letter was left with a special committee which will consider them thoroughly and bring in a later recommendation as the whole matter was considered very important.

In response to a letter of inquiry from Mr. Myers, secretary, Clare Bros., of Preston, Ont., stated that they had not decided to establish a stove and furnace factory in British Columbia, but that they had the matter under consideration, and when the time came for action they would look about for a location. The letter was filed for reference.

The Canadian Pacific Irrigation and Colonization Company wrote stating that they would be agreeable to accept a short story concerning the Fraser valley and district at least once a week. The matter was left with the secretary.

Mr. W. J. Kerr, reporting for the entertainment committee, stated that everything would probably be in shape for holding a luncheon next week. Mayor Lee has agreed to be the speaker on the occasion.

MERCHANTS PERFECT ORGANIZATION PLANS

Secretary Appointed—Thirty-four City Tradesmen Have Already Flocked to Banner.

At a meeting of the executive of the New Westminster Merchants' Association last night the aims of the organization were further discussed, a permanent secretary appointed and plans laid for further meetings, when it is expected that every merchant in the city and district will come under its wing and thus form one big protective association.

Mr. R. S. Jamieson was appointed secretary and will commence his duties in a very short while. He is a former resident of New Westminster and is at present employed as accountant of the Arrow Lake Lumber Company, Arrowhead.

The membership committee reported that they had secured the names of 34 merchants and had not yet covered the whole of the city.

The executive will hold another meeting next Monday evening when it is expected that a general meeting will be called later in the week to which all merchants of the city will be invited.

ELEVATOR AND MILL FOR GRAIN GROWERS

Permit for $4000 Is Taken Out—Will Do Gristing—Dean Block Alterations.

A permit for $4000 was taken out yesterday by the B. C. Grain Growers' Agency for the erection of a small elevator and feed mill on property leased from the C. P. R. at the corner of Twelfth street and Royal avenue, and adjoining the C. P. R. roundhouse.

The elevator, which will include a grist mill also, will be 50 feet in length with a width tapering from 33 feet at one end to 22 feet 6 inches at the other.

The structure will be 76 feet high and probably built of corrugated iron with wood frame. Hoppers and grist mill machinery will be installed inside.

The agency has a warehouse measuring about 165 feet already on the ground and the elevator will be constructed on the western end of it.

The only other permit issued was for $1000, taken out by E. B. Dean for alterations to the top storeys of his block on Columbia street.

NORTH BURNABY LAYS DEEP PLAN

Will First Move for Ward Redistribution—Bent on Getting Electric Transportation.

North Burnaby, Dec. 3.—Although little has been shown outwardly the fact remains that there is a deep political plot being arranged in the northern section of Burnaby, which, if successful, will revolutionize the whole of the municipality.

Ever since the B. C. E. R. franchise matter was turned down by the Burnaby council a few weeks ago, the property-owners of North Burnaby have been holding secret sessions and have decided to come out flatfootedly in favor of a redistribution of the present ward system. This is said to be the first move towards secession from the southern portion of Burnaby and the launching of a new municipality.

Motor Bus Project.

In conversation with one of the originators of this movement, a News representative yesterday learned that the proposed motorbus service is only a temporary project. The electorate of the north will sink or swim in an effort to secure electric transportation.

Councillor MacDonald has been approached respecting the reeveship. His reply to the delegation was that he would make the run should he be nominated and that his platform would then be a greater ward system and secession from the other portion of Burnaby.

The residents of North Burnaby figure that they will have a chance of electing their man together with two councillors who favor a B. C. E. R. franchise. They intend to vote a solid poll, whereas with so many candidates in the south a great deal of split voting is expected to result.

Will Show South.

"We are by no means finished with the fight for better ecognition," said one of the men at the head of the scheme, "and we intend to make South Burnaby see the error of their ways before many weeks have passed.

"Any candidate for the reeveship who is opposed to a franchise will get a heckling when once he sets foot in our districts, and will wish he had never seen North Burnaby by the time we get through with him."

COUNCILLOR MAYNE RENDERS ACCOUNTS

Ward Six Ratepayers Ask Many Questions—Got Lion's Share of Improvement Work.

McKay, Burnaby, Dec. 3—The trials and tribulations of an urban councillor, when the time arrives for seeking re-election, were set forth in vivid colors in the McKay hall this evening, the occasion being a meeting of the Ward Six Ratepayers' Association to ask an account of Councillor Mayne's stewardship on the Burnaby council.

It was an old fashioned meeting to start with, even the friends of Mr. Mayne coming well prepared with questions concerning certain work done in the Central Park district during the past year.

The queries were many and to the point, but when the storm clouds had blown away, a vote of thanks was passed to the councillor for his work done on the council.

"Ward six got the lion's share of the road, waterworks and sidewalk work during the past year," stated the councillor," and it was secured honestly. The only man I had to fight was Councillor MacDonald and, good fellow that he is; he has the impression that North Burnaby is the whole works. I have got five miles of rocked road while MacDonald got two. I also got three and a quarter miles of graded roads and three and a half miles of trail roads for settlers."

"In sidewalks I secured altogether nearly seven miles. When it comes to street lights I secured forty arc lights altogether, or one-fifth of those installed throughout the municipality. Quite a record gentlemen!"

Mr. Mayne gave a lengthy account of his work which lasted well into the evening.

Although a vote of thanks was passed, no attempt was made to endorse the candidature of Councillor Mayne for re-election, although he announced himself as a candidate.

LATEST PARIS CRY.

SUIT OF TAN BROADCLOTH.

A decided novelty in tailored wear is this coat with cutaway fronts and a watteau plait at the back. Under the plait the coat fits the figure trimly, and the waist line is clearly defined.

The costume is by a famous French dressmaker, and the combination of tan broadcloth coat and pannier skirt of brown velvet is thought very chic in Paris.

BATHROOM LUXURY.

Portable Shower Spray That Is Practical and Convenient.

Almost every person can afford the luxury of a shower bath, since it is possible to buy a portable one at such modest prices. A shower bath of the most practical kind is marked at a few pennies less than $5, and after demonstrating its merits no one would go without such a comfort who had the price to pay for it. The fittings were substantial, arranged with fixtures for attaching to the wall, an extremely strong rubber pipe and curtains of heavy sail duck such as tents are made of.

These would be a perfect protection to walls or paper.

At such a low price one expects only the most flimsy outfit, and to pay $5 for something that would soon get out of order or prove impracticable is just like throwing money away. Then for those who feel even $5 is beyond their purse there is a bath spray that is not at all a bad substitute for the shower bath. The prices for rubber and rose nozzle begin at 50 cents for the small size. For rinsing the hair these sprays are excellent, as the force sends water right into the scalp, cleansing it from soap most thoroughly. By the way, there is a little shampoo bag lately introduced which costs only 10 cents and can be dried and used over and over again. The outer covering is cheesecloth, with a spongy substance inside charged with soap and perfumed powders, said to be very cool, cleansing and refreshing.

Violet Toilet Sets.

One of the most attractive toilet novelties seen in some time is the new violet toned toilet sets. They are made of a special brand of celluloid in Germany, tinted a rich violet, and some of them are decorated with gold. Although of celluloid they are by no means to be classed among the cheap articles, as they are rich in appearance and decidedly costly, some of the pieces costing more than the average silver articles. In the gold decked ware a set of thirteen pieces is sold at $49. Thirteen does not cover the number of articles obtainable, however, as there are all sorts of brushes and manicure implements, powder boxes, jewel cases, etc., which make a complete set of the plain violet number about thirty and cost between $70 and $80. A ring mirror, for instance, is $9.50. The simplest little piece of the manicure set is 50 cents. The articles are very pretty and novel and sure of a pronounced vogue.

Omit Soap.

Do not use soap in cleaning paint. Soapsuds usually fog the polish and make the furniture look dingy. One tablespoonful of coal oil to a washpan of water applied sparingly with a moistened cloth will usually take the fog from any fine piece of furniture, even the piano. Do not use too much water on any painted, stained or varnished surface. Coal oil used alone will fog the wood, and too much of it used and left on will make the finest polish dull and sticky. Every particle of the oil should be either rubbed in or wiped off.

LADIES OF ZANZIBAR.

Cream Colored Damsels Who Wear Masks and Only Visit at Night.

The Arab ladies of Zanzibar are very light in color, many of them in fact being what might be termed cream colored. Their features are regular and good and they have very dark eyes and silky hair. They paint under their fetching orbs and stain their hands and nails a reddish color with henna. These far-away damsels live in great seclusion in large white houses, never going out in the daytime from one year's end to another. A little cooking and sweetmeat making is their only recognized employment, though some few of them can do beautiful embroidery. To lie on their beds and be fanned by their slave girls is the usual occupation of the richer women of Zanzibar. When they choose to visit or, as is more often the case, to perambulate the town, they wait until darkness has well set in and after a gun has been fired, warning all that it is the last hour of prayer, then they may go out. But they go entirely enveloped in a large mantle and their faces are completely hidden by very ugly gilt masks, with oblong slits for the eyes.

Many of them even wear these masks in the privacy of their homes. Their other garments are trousers and a tunic reaching below the knees, which is often embroidered and trimmed with gold braid. They wear numerous ornaments of gold and silver, such as ear-rings, nose rings, bracelets, anklets and necklaces. Whenever these mystic women travel any distance they ride through the narrow streets on large white asses stained a brick red, their slaves running by their sides, and at night their slaves surround them, each carrying a lantern as big as a street lamp. They all return to their homes before 4 in the morning, when another gun is fired, signalizing the Mohammedan's first hour of prayer.

He Really Needed the Money.

The envoy of the Sultan of Morocco had an unanswerable argument when the French Government objected to the income of $800,000 which he demanded for his master. The French Minister of Finance pointed out that such an allowance was impossible, seeing that the President of the republic himself drew only $300,000 a year. "Yes," replied the envoy, "but then it is to be remember that President Fallieres has only one wife, whereas my august master, the Sultan, has thirty." That envoy was evidently a man of parts. He knew exactly where the shoe pinched and how to base revenue upon expenditure. And his computations were eminently fair. A more mercenary envoy would have insisted upon a flat rate of $300,000 a year per wife which would have amounted to $9,000,000 a year for the thirty ladies. But he was willing to allow wholesale prices and the usual reductions upon a quantity. In fact, he brought the rate down to about $26,000 a year per wife, and those of us who have wives will know that the estimate was a reasonable and proper one.

Be Sunny.

Almost everybody will admit that a sense of humor and a love of fun tide their possessors over some very real sorrows. Austerity has no particular claim to be considered saintly, and folly with its cap and bells once in awhile does angelic work. Blessings on the children with their merry laughter. Blessings on the old people who have not forgotten how to be sunny. Take it all in all, this world of ours is not so bad a place. Every season brings its gifts of love from heaven, the skies are oftener blue than gray, the birds sing in the branches, fathers and mothers bend over the cradle, and the joy of life is deeper than the woe.—Christian Herald.

An Ingenious Ruse.

Herodotus tells of an ingenious ruse employed to carry an important message through the lines of the enemy. Histiaeus, being anxious to give Aristagoras orders to revolt, could think of no means to send the message to his ally, as all the roads were carefully guarded. Finally he hit upon a scheme. Calling his trustiest servant to him he ordered that the man's hair be shaven off. He then pricked the desired message on the scalp of the slave and, waiting until his hair was grown out, dispatched him upon the errand. The messenger passed safely through the lines, and when he reached Aristagoras his head was again shaved and the message read.

The Catlike Fox.

The fox is an excellent mouser. He will lie and watch for a field mouse in the long grass like a cat, pounce upon it, kill it with a bite and lay it on one side until he has caught another and another when picking them all up, as many as he can carry in his mouth, he will canter away with them to serve them out to the cubs.

He Laid.

"Don't waste your time in clipping off the branches," said the woodman to his son; "but lay your axe at the root of the tree." And the young man went out and laid his axe at the foot of the tree, like a good and dutiful boy, and then he went fishing. Truly there is nothing so beautiful as filial obedience.—Strand Magazine.

Heartless.

"Why am I gloomy?" demanded the undesirable suitor whom she had heartlessly ignored. "Isn't it enough to make a man gloomy to be cut by the one he loves best?"

"The idea!" exclaimed the heartless girl. "I didn't even know that you shaved yourself."

Knew What Was Coming.

Mrs. Wise—If you are going to the club to-night you had better take your overcoat.

Mr. Wise—Are you going to sit up and wait for me until I come home?

Mrs. Wise—Certainly.

Mr. Wise—Then I'll take my storm coat.

A Cobweb With a Story.

A gigantic spider's web is painted on the ceiling of one of the rooms in Sans Souci, the renowned palace of Frederick the Great. This apartment, the King's breakfast room, adjoined his bedchamber. Every morning when his majesty entered the room he was accustomed to take a cup of chocolate but on one occasion just as he was about to drink he thought of something he had forgotten and returned to his bedroom. When he again entered the breakfast room he discovered that a great spider had dropped from the ceiling into the cup and he ordered fresh chocolate to be prepared. A few minutes later he was startled by a pistol shot. No sooner had the cook received the order than he blew out his brains—not because the king had refused the chocolate but because he had poisoned the cup and thought himself discovered. It was in remembrance of this narrow escape that his majesty ordered the spider with its web to be painted on the ceiling.

When the Earth Was Top Shaped.

After people dropped the old-fashioned idea that the earth was as flat as a pancake they did not immediately grasp the globe or spherical idea as it is applied to worlds. The people of the time of Columbus believed that the earth was a body shaped like a top or cone, the surface rising from the north to the south. There are several letters written by Columbus and still in existence which go to prove that such was his conception of the shape of the earth. The top-shaped idea of the earth seems to have originated with one John Blauvis about 1479 and to have immediately become very popular.

Original Meaning of "Garble."

The word "garble" originally meant "to select for a purpose." There used to be an officer called "the garbler of spices," and it was his duty to visit the stores, examine the spices and order those that did not come up to standard to be destroyed. In this way the garbled goods were those which had been sifted of all impurities. So a "garbled" report is one that is sifted down and bereft of some of its original contents. Nowadays anything "garbled" is misleading and chopped up so as to give a wrong impression.

Expert Dyers.

The Tyrians, it is claimed, were the most expert dyers of ancient times. The fabrics dyed with the famous tyrian purple did not assume their proper color until after two days' exposure to the light and air. During this time they passed through a gradation of shades of yellow, green, blue, violet and red, which the dyers understood how to arrest and fix at any moment.

His Brand of Economy.

"What is your idea of economy?" asked one statesman.

"Making everybody except my constituents get along with as little money as possible," replied the other.

An Exception.

"Some philosopher says there is always a right way and a wrong of doing a thing."

"I wonder if he ever tried to fall downstairs the right way."

Shoes For Geese.

To protect their feet geese reared at Bulpham, Essex, England, when driven to the various markets are made to walk through sand and tar, thus forming "shoes."

Penzance is the westernmost seaport and watering place in England.

The Biggest Bell.

The largest bell in the world is the great bell of Moscow, cast in 1733, it being twenty-one feet high, twenty-one feet in diameter and weighing 432,000 pounds.

The Canary's Bath.

If you have difficulty in inducing your canary to take his daily bath, says Good Housekeeping, sprinkle a few seeds upon the water. You will find that this added attraction will make the bath become a habit with the little fellow.

People and Land.

FIRE PROTECTION IS LUMBERMEN'S THEME

British Columbia Representatives Take Part in Western Forestry Convention in Seattle.

Seattle, Dec. 3.—The Washington Hotel was thronged today with some two hundred members of the timber industry in the Northwestern States, assembled in the semi-annual convention of the Western Forestry and Conservation Association. British Columbia was represented by Chief Forester MacMillan and others of the Forest Branch.

The proceedings brought forth keen discussion of the essential matter in the protection of forests. The spirit of willingness to co-operate in the most advanced policies was manifested by timbermen, railroad men and Government officials who attended. The attitude of one lumberman, who said that his foreman was excused if he fell down on his log output, but that he was dismissed if he had a single fire, showed the growing esntiment in favor of fire protection.

Mr. D. Ray Cameron of the Dominion Forest Branch and Mr. R. D. Pietie of the C. P. R., took part in the discussion on the matter of fires along the right-of-way of railroads. Safeguarding lumbering operations and slash disposal were the other matters discussed.

In the evening a banquet was tendered to the visiting delegates by the Seattle lumbermen, at which speeches were made by Col. J. B. White, the Grand Old Man of lumbering in the United States; President Flewelling, John R. Toole, of Montana, and Mr. Paterson, of Vancouver, who emphasized the good feeling existing between the two nations, and expressed the hope that the next meeting of the association would be held in Vancouver. In the second day's session Mr. R. E. Benedict will address the meeting on "Patrol Efficiency."

MONTREAL PORT HAD SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Both Imports and Exports Large, Although Only Few Tramps Called in.

Montreal, Dec. 3.—With the sailing of the steamer Brayhead this morning there came to a conclusion the most successful shipping season ever known in the port of Montreal.

With still one week to be added, shipments during the season are as follows, according to the records kept by the Montreal Board of Trade:

Wheat, 24,727,671 bushels; oats, 6,154,865 bushels; barley, 884,832 bushels; rye, 57,342 bushels; flour, 1,789,719 sacks; meal, 109,836 sacks; peas, 295,000 sacks; cheese, 1,514,195 boxes; butter, 70 boxes; apples, 167,509 barrels; hay, 498,105 bales.

The number of visits paid by ocean vessels during the season was 406, the number of ships that came to the port was 125. Of this number only 20 were tramps, a considerable falling off from last year.

The shortage of the tramps helped materially to reduce exportations and is explained by the high rates of insurance charged on the vessels and their cargoes trading in the St. Lawrence route.

Speaking of the season, Major G. W. Stephens, retiring president of the Harbor Board, felt that it had been a very successful as well as a profitable one to the entire Dominion. Customs collections were higher than ever, which proves that the port's trade is advancing.

Imports were very large as were also the exports. Shipping men are satisfied with the year.

MYSTERY PARTIALLY CLEARS.

Finding of Woman's Body Throws Some Light on Cornwall Affair.

London, Dec. 3.—A solution in part came today of a mystery which has attracted interest for a week past by the discovery of the body of Mrs. Nowill, 30 years old, who disappeared form a hotel at Newquay, where she was staying with her mother.

Another visitor at the hotel, Mr. Delay, a retired Singapore lawyer, who was on friendly terms with Mrs. Nowill, said he observed the woman kill herself. Mr. Delay hanged himself, leaving a codicil to his will leaving to Mrs. Nowill $150,000. The law is clear on the point that if a codicil is not in order then the legatee under the will inherits.

If the codicil is in order, another question arises: Did Mrs. Nowill survive Mr. Delay? Here again the law is clear. If Mrs. Nowill's death occurred after Delay committed suicide then her heirs or next of kin in turn will inherit the fortune. If she predeceased Delay the legacy lapses.

At present there is strong presumptive evidence that Mrs. Nowill's death occurred on Nov. 23, while Mr. Delay's death did not occur until the following night.

SITS ON POWDER, LIGHTS FUSE.

Insane Man Chooses Novel Way to Commit Suicide.

Prince Rupert, Dec. 3.—Sitting on a box of powder and lighting the fuse with the result that he was hurled to his death, was the insane act of James Bell, a Queen Charlotte Islands rancher. Bell's mind it is believed had become unbalanced through a prolonged debauch.

That Bell deliberately planned to take his life is indicated by a note which he left in his cabin, stating that he intended to kill himself. A search party located the suicide's mangled remains in the woods, some distance from his cabin.

TERRIBLE SCENES IN FAMOUS MOSQUES

London, Dec. 3.—The following terrible description of cholera conditions in the Turkish capital has just been received by mail from George A. Fenwick, special correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle at Constantinople:

"Today I went to some of the mosques in Constantinople. They are still beyond description. At St. Sophia, for instance, there are more than two thousand stricken soldiers mostly suffering from cholera. They fill the sacred building and in the city yard one can see them groaning and dying. A cordon of soldiers on guard surrounds the place.

"For the past week not a single doctor has visited this awful hell of suffering. A doctor passed through there this morning counted 136 dead bodies in the courtyards. Hard bread is the only food the poor wretches receive.

"Yesterday two municipal doctors were sent to see what they could do but they quailed before the hideous spectacle. Some of the stricken men drag themselves to the railing in the vain hope that some one will give them water, but the soldiers keep a wide space clear beyond the railings. The ground beyond is painted green with disinfectant. Those who might have pity and might be able to render a little temporary comfort are held at bay by fixed bayonets. No one may enter; no one may leave.

"In one corner of the courtyard is a grim sight. Stricken men look down the narrow street where others are sawing wood and hammering making coffins in which the weary watchers will soon be carried away.

"At the mosque of Sultan Armed the same conditions prevail. The proudest and most sacred of the edifices of Islam have been turned by the god of war into the most infernal dens of horror which the imagination can conjure up. The black hole of Calcutta beside them sinks into trivial insignificance.

"The local authorities confess their complete impotence and as one wanders through Stamboul he wonders that its twisting rank streets are not swept by an epidemic which would clear it of the living. Only the cold bright weather stands guard against such a frightful visitation."

FROST FOILS PLOT TO BLOW UP BRIDGE

Twenty-Five Sticks of Dynamite Freeze Under Trent River Structure and Burn.

Nanaimo, B. C., Dec. 3.—A dastardly attempt to blow up the Trent river bridge with dynamite has been foiled by the elements and the police department is searching for the person or persons who it is believed intended destroying the bridge in order to prevent the hauling of coal to Union bay, the shipping point for the Canadian colleries.

Twenty-five sticks of dynamite were placed under the bridge, which is 35 feet high and has a span of about 120 feet. The point where the dynamite was placed is four miles from Union bay.

Attached to the dynamite was a long fuse which extended fifty yards distant into the woods, where it was lighted. Being a frosty night, the dynamite, according to the police, must have frozen, and by the time the lighted fuse reached the cap the dynamite only burned up in place of exploding as it would have done under ordinary conditions.

To the fact that the night was frosty therefore can be attributed the saving of the bridge. As it is, one of the uprights to the bridge was burnt through by the burning of the dynamite.

The chief of the provincial police, Constable Stephenson, believes that the malefactor or malefactors will be apprehended. All union miners deplore the attempt to commit such a crime.

WOMAN JURY PRAYS FIRST.

Before Starting to Consider Evidence Ladies Worship.

Eldorado, Kan., ec. 3.—When the first woman's jury in a Kansas court of record entered the juryroom yesterday to begin a deliberating on its first case the twelve members paused a trifle uncertain as to the first move.

"I believe we should pray," one juror said. So the twelve women jurors bowed their heads in silent prayer. The jury then organized, electing Miss Hattie Riley, its oldest member, "forewoman" and plunged into a discussion of the case.

"It seemed as if all of the twelve women were talking at once," one of the jurors confessed, "but we were terribly in earnest. We had respected the judge's instructions and days we had not spoken a word about the case, so naturally there was a good deal to be said."

The case went to the jury at 8:30 o'clock. Exactly three hours later, the twelve women, escorted by a woman bailiff, returned to the courtroom with the verdict, which awarded the plaintiff $1200 damages, the verdict being based upon the alleged misrepresentation of the title to a quarter section of land. A year ago the same case was tried before a jury of men who were unable to agree on a verdict.

"I don't regret my experience, for there is a valuable lesson in jury service," Mrs. A. O. Owleski, one of the jurors, exclaimed.

EMPIRE CHAIN OF WIRELESS EVOLVING

Sydney, N. S. W., Dec. 3.—Arrangements are being completed for the erection of the Port Darwin wireless station which will be the highest power station in the world. When this is completed it will be possible to communicate with Singapore, through which messages will reach London via Bangalore, Aden and Cairo. A high power station will also be constructed at Pretoria in order that South Africa may be linked to the chain via Aden. From the New Zealand station it is intended to communicate with Sydney, thus practically establishing an Imperial wireless connection.

Under the heading "Will Canada Be Americanized" the Sydney "Daily Telegraph" asks "How long can a community of eight million people resist the enormous attractive forces of a contiguous nation of nearly one hundred million. The recent overwhelming defeat of the Laurier government on the reciprocity issue has been held to demonstrate that Canada would not consent to absorption by her powerful neighbor, that she will not consent now and that she will always refuse."

It is announced that there are now nearly fifty million dollars in Australian government notes in circulation.

SCOTTISH NEWS.

The death occurred of Mrs. Barron-wife of James Barron, editor of the Inverness Courier.

Pioneer-Sergeant Mauchan, Fourth Gordon Highlanders, of Aberdeen, was presented with a purse of sovereigns by the Sergeants Mess on the occasion of his departure for Canada.

Mrs. Mary Robertson, Footdee, who died at the age of 94, was the widow of George Robertson, seaman, and had been employed for over 40 years in the North British Railway offices in Aberdeen.

A 15-year-old lad named Hayes, son of Absalom Hayes, landlord of the Crown Vaults, Buckley, Flintshire, lies in a serious condition as the result of being accidently shot by his brother.

The oldest inhabitant of Hawick, Mrs. Euphemia Waugh, widow of ex-Bailie Waugh, clothier, passed away in her 99th year. Mrs. Waugh displayed wonderful ivgor, and was an interesting personality.

A Dundee engineer, Alexander Rollo, made a desperate attempt to end his life by cutting his throat, and for several days lay in the Royal Infirmary in a grave condition until death relieved him of his pain.

Betsy Bell or Higgins, made her 103rd appearance at the bar of Dundee Police Court, when she was charged with drunkenness. She pleaded guilty, and was fined 40 shillings or 20 days' imprisonment.

Miss Agnes Thomson, who disappeared from Crieff Hydro on Sept. 9, was found dead by a gamekeeper, hanging from a tree in Aberturrel Wood. She was a daughter of the late Rev. A. Thomson, of Alloa.

Prompted by the Glasgow Knox Club, a Protestant meeting "to support the Irish Protestants in their religious objections to the Home Rule Bill," was held in the City Hall, with an attendance of about 3000.

A fine of £2, with £1 1s of expenses, was imposed on Robert P. Duff, Perth, for being in a state of intoxication and allowing two other men to be in his public house, while drunk after ten o'clock at night.

At the commencement of the service in Broughton-place United Free Church, Edinburgh, Peter Bell, one of the managers, was seen to faint in his pew. When removed to the outer lobby, it was found life was extinct.

Anthony Frank, a Polish miner, of Motherwell, with other Poles, was card playing, and had lost, when he requested, and was given, one of his wife's wedding rings. Upon her refusing a second ring he struck her. Frank was fined £2.

At St. George's Hall, Liverpool, Lord Derby opened a two-day exhibition and sale of the products of Scottish industries. Among articles on sale were Orkney chairs, Shetland tweeds and knitted goods, and handwrought metal work.

Two small boys John Henry, aged 12, and Duncan McKellar, aged 9, of Rothesay, Bute, were ordered the birch for breaking into a quarry shed and stealing nine gelignite cartridges, two pounds of gunpowder and other explosives.

The story of a bitter rivalry between two farm servants for the smiles of a buxom country lass was related at Aberdeen Sheriff Court. John Stephen, a farmer of Culsalmond was charged with assaulting two other servants, and was fined £2.

At Wishaw two Craigneuk Poles named Charles Thomson and Joseph Bicpackis were fined for outrageous behavior. The last named, who is said to have drawn a knife and threatened to kill a number of people, had several previous convictions.

Peter MacLeod, an Indian Mutiny veteran with a stirring record, died in the hospital ward of Inverness. It is 59 years since he joined the East Indian Company Regiment. He served in the Highland Light Infantry and in the 93rd, and took part in the hottest fights during the Mutiny.

A remarkable story is told of the adventures of three Glasgow boys 15 years of age, and well-connected. One of them, as alleged, secured £60 from his parents' house, and they purchased three ponies and saddles and bridles. They bought slouch hats and bayonets, and in this warlike array the cavalcade left Glasgow and arrived at Balfron, near Stirling, where they spent the night in the open air. The following night they put up at a farm house at Shettleston, the farmer believing their story that they were scouts, and hospitably giving them lodging and stabling. The Lanarkshire police handed them over to their parents.

Stoker Brown, a Navy man, who had an eventful career, has died at Aberdeen. One incident in his life has been enshrined in standard history books as a type of the valor of the British Navy. Stoker Brown was one of the crew of the ill-starred transport boat Mageria. When off the island of St. Paul, in the Southern Ocean, the Mageria sprung a leak. All hopes of saving either crew or vessel was given up, when Stoker Brown, crawled down into the hold of the vessel, found the leak, and successfully fixed an iron plate over it. After three months the crew had very little to eat, and were on the verge of starvation, when Brown went down to the disabled vessel, and by firing the boilers was the means of refloating the boat.

COURT OF IMPEACHMENT.

U. S. Senate for Ninth Time in History Will Hear Charges.

Washington, Dec. 3.—For the ninth time in its history the senate convened today as a high court of impeachment. It was to try Judge Robert W. Archbald, of the commerce court, on thirteen separate charges alleged to constitute "high crimes and misdemeanors."

Counsel for the judge has admitted commission of all the acts alleged, but denies that any was improper.

Judge Archbald and his attorneys entered the chamber promptly as did the house members. The court adopted formal orders, setting the hour of meeting daily at 2 o'clock, and provided that the opening statements of the case should be made by one person on each side. That will confine the opening statements to Representative Clayton, who had been designated by the house managers, and A. S. Worthington, chief of the counsel for Judge Archbald. The court then took a brief recess.

RESTORED TO LIFE.

Woman Legally Dead for Seventeen Years Wins Fight and Property.

Boston, Dec. 3.—Miss Mable E. Allen, of 260 Henry street, Brooklyn, who has been legally dead for more than seventeen years, was restored to life by the law in the Suffolk County Probate Court yesterday and incidentally came into some property.

In 1895, when the courts attempted to divide the share of the award of the French spoilation claims, allowed to descendants of Jonatham Merry, an old-time Boston merchant, relatives of Miss Allen declared she had not been seen since the World's Fair at Chicago, when she was in the last stages of consumption. The woman was accordingly declared legally dead.

The decree was later affirmed by the supreme court of Massachusetts and the supreme court of the United States. The funds were held, in the meantime, by a receiver and the award would have been distributed had Miss Allen not accidentally learned of the decree.

The decree of 1895 was revoked and Miss Allen will get about $20,000 as her share of the spoilation claims.

Forty-Eight Years Service.

Toronto, Dec. 3.—After forty-eight years of railroading in the Grand Trunk service, Conductor Richard Boundy made his last trip Saturday from Port Hope, a trip he had covered since 1864, when the Port Hope and Peterboro Railroad controlled that section of the midland division of the Grand Trunk. Despite his long service, Mr. Boundy has only figured in three wrecks. The last one was at Agincourt 16 years ago.

KEEP THE BALL ROLLING.

This afternoon a meeting of particular importance to the city and valley as a whole is to be held in the city hall, for upon its result there rests to a very large extent the fate of the New Westminster and Fraser Valley Progressive Association.

This association of citizens should need no commendation here, the work that has been achieved during the past six months will speak for itself. But to carry on this work and to broaden its scope into a fitting adjunct for a city of Westminster's standing, it is absolutely necessary that the business men of the city, particularly, and all who are working for a Greater Westminster in general, should renew that interest which was plainly in evidence at the beginning of the association's activities and which we believe is now only suffering from a temporary lapse.

There are many people here who will dig up instances from the past to show that the record of many new societies and associations in Westminster has been that of a slow decay from an effusive beginning. We will let the dead past bury its dead, neither do we think there is much need for us to point out that should the Progressive Association come to an untimely end, it would proclaim to all Canada that this city has taken a backward step.

We believe that the times have changed, no man who glances back at the record of this year which has nearly sped can think otherwise, and that being so, we believe that the business men of Westminster will rally to the side of a much needed institution, one that has already done yeoman service to the city and one that only waits their word to go on to much greater things.

CANADA THE PIVOT.

The mail brings a report of a significant speech made on Sept. 24 by Mr. Allen, the Minister of Defence for New Zealand. This official deliverance is in part condensed as follows: "New Zealand should shoulder her responsibilities, and, as a return, receive the confidence of the Old Land.

The pivot of the Empire today might be Great Britain, but who was to say what it would be fifty or a hundred years hence? Perhaps in that time Great Britain might no longer be the pivot. This made the problem intensely interesting. Perhaps Canada might become the pivot instead of Great Britain. What did it matter to them as long as it stood for the old traditions? Such a possibility would make a vast difference to New Zealand.

Centralized control in the Atlantic and North Sea might be essential today, but they mjust not lose sight of the fact that they had responsibilities in all individual parts of the empire."

Surely this is the patriotic Imperial attitude. New Zealand is not jealous of Great Britain as the dominating State in the Empire, or of Canada as the State that possibly may become the Imperial centre of gravity in the future.

The essential thing is that all parts of the Empire and all British citizens the world over shall get together for mutual advantage, common defence, and the preservation of British traditions and the world's peace.—Toronto News.

THE TENANT'S RIGHT.

In support of the proposal to permit house renters to vote on money bylaws, and thus pledge the property of others for money borrowed, it is argued that the rent pays the taxes, and that, therefore, the tenant has a right to a voice in their disposition.

There can be no doubt that in a great many cases a part of the money collected in rent is set aside for the payment of taxes, but it is equally true that the rest of it is devoted to other uses, and if the tenant can be said to pay the taxes he can be said to pay other accounts as well. Suppose the case of a man who owns a score of houses, from which he derives his whole income. Of course he pays his taxes with a part of his rent. With the remainder he pays his own living expenses. Perhaps he buys a cigar when he feels like it, or a new suit of clothes.

According to the theory that the tenant pays the taxes, the tenant also buys the tobacco and the neckties of the landlord. Should not the tenant have a voice in their selection? Should not the tenant be permitted to say whether the landlord should smoke a domestic or an imported cigar, or whether, in short, he should smoke at all? If the tenant is to be permitted to say what disposition shall be made of the part of the rent money that is spent in taxes, why should he not have the right to specify the purposes to which the other part is put?

As regards the relative economy of tenant and landlord in such cases, it is probable, the balance would lie with the tenant, for, when it comes to criticizing the expenditure of another, a man is sometimes more opposed to waste than in his own outlays. Landlords would live frugally if their expenditure accounts had to go before a committee of tenants to be examined. They would squander little money in luxury, and less in vain display. They would be encouraged to live so well within their income that it would be possible for them to keep up repairs and reduce rentals.

The only question at issue is the right of a man to do what he chooses with his own money, and with his own property. This right is interfered with when some one else is permitted to place a mortgage on that property.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

EXPORT CATTLE TRADE RAPIDLY DIMINISHES

Last February there were brought together at Ottawa from the various provinces upwards of one hundred men officially delegated to represent 44 live stock and record associations, the various features of the live stock industry.

This gathering which constituted the third general convention of the National Live Stock Association spent two days each of three busy sessions upon its program, which included reviews of the conditions of the live stock industry prevailing in the respective provinces, interprovincial trade in pure-bred live stock, the beef cattle industry in the east and the west, the dairy cattle industry, the development of the sheep and swine industries, the market for Canadian horses, transportation of live stock, stallion legislation, the chilled meat trade, bovine tuberculosis, and other business.

A full report of the addresses and discussions that took place has been printed for the information of persons interested in the live stock or in fact the general agricultural welfare of the Dominion. Among many other striking things it was brought out that our export cattle trade is rapidly approaching the vanishing point, that South American tinned beef is being used all the way across the Dominion, that we are exporting very little mutton and importing a great deal, while millions of pounds of pork are each year imported into Canada.

This report which constitutes a book of 130 pages embodies a fairly complete review of the live stock situation in Canada and offers many wise suggestions for its much-needed improvement. The distribution of this work is in the hands of the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, to whom applications for copies should be sent.

WORTH PRESERVING.

Our Lumber Industry Is Only One-Quarter Developed.

At least $100,000,000 annually is the value placed upon the potential growth of British Columbia forests by R. E. Benedict, Chief of Operation in the Forest Branch of the Department of Lands.

"Bringing the estimate down to its very lowest, the area of timber-producing land in the province is $65,000,000 acres," says Mr. Benedict, "and every acre should produce 100 board feet per annum. This would make our timber crop six and one-half billion feet, worth about six and one-half million dollars to the Government, and probably fifteen times that amount to the community before it is in its final state of manufacture."

At the present time, in British Columbia there is being cut about one and one-half billion feet per annum. It is evident, therefore, that the lumbering industry is just one-quarter developed.

But before the full expansion can take place, the timber must be protected from fire. A dry season and a little carelessness might combine at any time to start a blaze which would undermine the prosperity of the country. The importance of preventing fires it is impossible to overstate. The growth of the province depends upon the forest.

Elect Vice-President.

Montreal, Dec. 3.—Mr. H. V. Meredith was elected vice-president of the Bank of Montreal at a subsequent meeting of the bank directors this morning following the election of three new directors. Mr. H. V. Meredith will thus fill the office held by Sir Edward Clouston at the time of the latter's death.

Shut Off Opium Joints.

Wu Chang, China, Dec. 3.—Every opium shop in Wu Chang was closed today. Forcible measures were necessary in some cases. Opium can be obtained at a government depot.

THE MANAGER'S CORNER.

We are all advertisers, though our publicity methods may differ. No man can do business without advertising. Even the man who says he does not believe in it, or the man who thinks it unprofessional must advertise in some way, or his chances are good of starving. Advertising may take the form of personal solicitation, church or club membership, the dressing of store windows, turning out high-class work, fancy signs, or any of a thousand and one devices, but when it comes right down to continuous, every hour, right-up-to-the-minute publicity, the daily newspaper outclasses every known variety, and it is after all, the cheapest you can buy.

GARDEN CITIES.

Henry Vivian Describes What Is Being Done In England.

Henry Vivian, chairman of the co-partnership tenants' movement in England and an ex-member of Parliament from Birkenhead, recently described the growth of the garden city idea in England.

To illustrate the value of suburban garden towns for the housing of workmen of large cities and their families Mr. Vivian gave some interesting statistics. He said that the average child of seven years brought up in one of these communities had been shown to be three inches taller than the average child of the same age living in a densely populated city.

At the age of fourteen the difference was still more marked. A garden city youth of this age averaged five inches more in height and thirty pounds more in weight than one of the same age from the big cities. In some of the crowded manufacturing towns of England, he said, the death rate was forty for every thousand inhabitants, while in garden cities the rate had been reduced to between eight and nine a thousand.

These statistics were gathered by a committee of Parliament, of which Mr. Vivian was a member. On the report of this committee the housing and town planning act was passed in 1909 by Parliament. This act gave government support to the building of ideal suburbs around the great centres of population in the British Isles.

The co-partnership tenants' movement, Mr. Vivian said, had designed suburbs near Liverpool, Hampstead, Ealing, Manchester, Birmingham, Stoke-on-Trent and elsewhere. The most perfect type of the garden city, he said, was at Hampstead. One of the cardinal principles in laying out such a suburb, he said, was to leave the trees untouched so far as possible. The land is parceled into large lots, so that on an average there are not more than two houses to an acre.

The laws governing such suburb building prevent land speculation and are all framed for the benefit of those who are to live there. Any kind of home may be built, from a cottage to a mansion, the building restrictions providing, however, against structures which would mar the architectural harmony. Large spaces are set aside for parks and playgrounds. The gardens are the distinguishing feature of these suburbs, as those dwelling in them are aided by the city in surrounding their homes with flowers.

Hampstead is laid out so that the view up and down every street ends in the sight of a handsome house, the speaker said. The suburb at Hampstead covers between 700 and 800 acres and is building for a population of 30,000. Factories are allowed, but they are built in an area set apart for them, where they do not mar the beauty of the community. Care is taken to place them where the prevailing winds will blow the smoke and odors away from the city. The garden city at Hampstead, Mr. Vivian said, was the most beautiful city in the world.

A Flea Collector.

The life ambition of one of the world's richest men is — fleas. He possesses them from everywhere—fleas from the Arctics and fleas from Australia. Big fleas, little fleas, medium-sized ones, fleas with spots and fleas without. Hon. Charles Rothschild, son of the late Lord Rothschild, and a member of the richest family in the world, loves them all and has resolved his life into one grand song whereof the refrain is fleas, fleas, fleas.

In the zoological museum owned by his brother, Walter Rothschild, at Thring, a little town in Herefordshire, 30 miles from London, Charles Rothschild wanders among his flea cabinets, gloating over his rare specimens, planning the capture of more. For 15 years he has pursued fleas persistently, internationally, paying large sums or small sums to achieve his desire, until now his flea collection ranks as the greatest in the world.

A Queer Australian Well

A curious form of water hole is found in places in western Australia, dry by day but yielding an abundant supply of water at night. The flow of water is preceded by hissings and soundings of rushing air. The phenomenon is discussed by Dr. Malcolm Maclaren, who has located and examined one of these wells.

He found that the water supply occurred in a long, narrow trench, at the bottom of which was a thin plate of gneiss, separated by a cavity from the main rock mass beneath. Apparently the heat of the days causes this plate to expand in the form of a depression, into which the water retreats. When it cools and contracts at night it forces first air and then water back into the trench.

DISENFRANCHISE DESERTERS.

French Chamber Talks of Danger to Country.

Paris, Dec. 3.—The danger to the defence of the country caused by the activity of the anti-military propaganda was the object of a lively debate in the Chamber of Deputies today. M. Bonnefous, referring to the fact that more than eighty thousand citizens had either eluded millitary service or deserted, proposed a bill whereby all deserters or persons who mutilated themselves to avoid service should be deprived of their electoral rights.

M. Millerand, the Minister of War, in an impassioned speech, amid an uproar on the part of the Socialists, declared his entire agreement with such a measure. While he did not believe that many French youths would be found to shirk at the moment of danger, nevertheless, he said it was the duty of all parties to unite against such a detestable campaign and put the people on their guard against an agitation which advocated a most abominable and national crime. The bill was referred to committee.

WE HAVE secured the services of Mr. Howard Mills, late of London, who will furnish us with a complete line of cooked meats and first-class sausages of all kinds for our Delicatessen Department. When you do not feel like getting up a dinner, or when in need of something in a hurry, call on us.

PROPOSED NEW MUNICIPALITY AT COQUITLAM.

To Editor, Westminster Daily News:

Sir—I see that a proposal has been made to form a separate municipality of the land contiguous to the C. P. R. terminals. Roughly it embraces the flat, low-lying ground between the Pitt and Coquitlam rivers, and the small area of high ground known as Maryhill, on the Fraser river frontage. To break up the original municipality into petty townships is, I think, a grave mistake, and a retrograde step, entirely out of harmony with the progressive spirit of the times.

The original municipality, with its matchless diversity of surface, is an ideal one whereon to found a great city, and fussy, hurried attempts to bread it up as at present, should be firmly resisted. If the interests in the proposed area are of such a special character as to require special treatment the remedy lies in forming it into a special district, as provided for in the existing municipal laws. If the promoters of this absurd scheme are bent on going to the Provincial Government let them do so, but the ratepayers should insist that the cost falls on the promoters, and not on the general body of ratepayers.

The crudities of the proposal are so obvious that serious discussion is needless. Only one item, that of the name, may be selected as a sample. The proposed name for this pompous proposal is "Port Coquitlam." To a navigator that means a port on the Coquitlam. But the port is not to be on the Coquitlam river at all, but upon the Pitt river. Navigators' law and common sense would dictate that the port should be named after the river where it is located, and thus the name of the would-be city should be Port Pitt. There is Lake Coquitlam, River Coquitlam, and latterly Mount Coquitlam, but few people seem to know that the original residential Coquitlam is outside the limits of the present municipality, and is located at the upper end of Burrard Inlet, within the township of Port Moody, where traces of the old settlement have been found.

I am your, etc.,
WILLIAM SINCLAIR,
Dunpenderhame.

English Law Not So Strict.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Captain Robert Dollar, of San Francisco, before a senate committee today, recommended changes in the Seamen's Involuntary Servitude Act, and declared his company, American owned, operated under the British flag 40 per cent cheaper than it could under the Stars and Stripes, because Britain's laws were not so strict.

MOOSE ARE READY FOR HOCKEY SEASON

Special Executive Appointed—Red and White Will Chase Elusive Puck.

The Moose Ice Hockey Club is the latest to organize and following their meeting held last evening, all the four clubs that will comprise the Westminster Hockey League have completed their arrangements and are waiting for the ice to be formed when the whirl of the puck and rasp of the skate will be heard.

The meeting of the Moose was well attended and much enthusiasm was shown. The managerial end of the work will be in the hands of Mr. W. F. Graham, late of baseball fame. Mr. W. T. Ramsay was elected secretary; Mr. J. H. Price treasurer, and Jack Phillips trainer.

The colors of the fraternal men will be red and white, red sweaters, white pants, barred stockings, while a white moose head will decorate the sweaters.

JIMMY GARDNER IS NOW IN VANCOUVER

Will Again Manage Westminster's Hockey Team—Johnson and Lehmann Expected Soon.

Jimmy Gardner, the captain of the New Westminster hockey team, and who will again act as manager during the coming season, arrived in Vancouver yesterday from Montreal. Until the arena in this city is complete Gardner will stay over in Vancouver and will organize his players on the Terminal City rink.

Ernie Johnson and Hugh Lehmann are the only players needed to make up the Royal City septette and are expected here within the next two days. Although no definite word has been received, it is understood that Lehmann and Johnson are keeping company on their trip to the coast.

Although Vancouver will be stronger than ever this winter and will be a formidable bunch to stack up against, the line-up of the Westminsters looks equally as strong and a great struggle will be witnessed if the Paterson trophy is to leave the banks of the Fraser.

OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL.

Donaldson, Boston's new star, was tried by Sheffield United, but evidently the Ripley youth did not impress the "Blades" directors.

It is said that Bolton was after Billy Hibbert. The Wanderers, however, don't believe in $7500 transfer fees.

Aston Villa have taken $35,000 in their seven home matches so far, or an average of $5000 per game. At this rate they should score a record this season.

Mackay, the old Derby County and Bradford City goalkeeper, is playing well for Stalybridge Celtic in the Central League.

Harold Hardman, the one-time Everton idol, is the most consistent forward Stoke possesses.

There have been complains at Blackburn this season that Simpson is not being treated fairly by some of his opponents.

Everton are said to be after Lamb, of Swindon. With Beare on the right and Lamb on the left there ought to be some "tasty" displays.

The trainers at the Manchester United vs. Notts match earned their money and no mistake. There seemed to be someone knocked out just every five minutes or so. Linkson got three teeth knocked out, Alec Turnbull got an inch and a half cut on the head, and Steele, the Notts goalkeeper, had his collar bone broken. It wasn't a parlor game by any means.

George Chapman, the Rovers' center forward, has just purchased a hatter's business in Church street, Blackburn, and commences business there on Monday first. Thus another is added to the long list of noted Rovers who have other business interests, in addition to chasing the inflated leather.

Spittal, the 18-year-old inside right whom Woolwich Arsenal obtained early in the season from Southfields, is proving most useful to the reserve team. He scored thirteen goals up to the end of October—four on one occasion and three on another.

Albion Rovers hold the record. They have reared three internationalists, and all three Coatbridge boys, too. They gave Haddow, a goalkeper, to Scotland, Peter Boyle to Ireland, and James Conlin to England.

Archie Rigg, who has turned out again for Halifax, first played with them 21 years ago. He must be a wonder.

Sunderland, now that they have got into the stride, are not going in for narrower victories. In four successive games they scored 16 goals.

HOCKEY CHATTER.

There were tears in Fred Taylor's voice the other day as he talked to his friends just before boarding his train for the Pacific Coast, where he goes to play hockey. He was sorry to leave Ottawa, sorry to leave the East, and it was not the lure of the West or the jingle of the Patricks' money-bags that made him hie away, but the clanking of the chains of slavery that Eastern magnates have forged for the hockey players. It was a case of the Coast and liberty, or the East and slavery; and, as much as Freddie loves the East he loves liberty more. The case is almost as heart rending as that of down-trodden women, as depicted by that exquisite suffragette now touring Canada.

There is a most significant movement of population going on at Ottawa these times. Hockey players are pouring out of the city, while politicians are pouring in. Men, whose work is play, are leaving town on almost every train, while men, whose play is working for their country, are pouring in on every train. On the whole, is Ottawa a gainer or loser by the operation? He would be a wise man and a brave man, too, who would strike the balance.

CONVICT DEFIES COURT.

Refuses to Give Evidence and Challenges Judge to Sentence Him.

Sacramento, Cal., Dec. 3.—What is a court to do when a convict who is serving a twenty-year term says he neither will swear nor affirm to tell the truth in a case where another convict's life hangs in the balance?

This question was presented today to Judge Hughes after the trial of Convict Samuel E. Swearingen, charged with having assaulted Convict William Robinson with a knife, was begun. Convict Jordan has been brought from Folsom to testify for the people in the case. He declined to tell what his Christian name was, to take an oath of affirmation, or to discuss the case.

Judge Hughes mentioned contempt of court and Jordan wanted to know, "What are you going to do about it?"

"I'm serving a twenty-year sentence in that prison. What more can you do to me by giving me a sentence for contempt of court?" he asked.

Jordan won his point and stepped from the witness stand without any questions that referred to the assault.

JAPANESE PREMIER TO RESIGN.

Difficulty of Finding New Minister of War Causes Prime Minister to Act.

Toyko, Dec. 3.—Marquis Saionji, the Japanese Premier, has, it is understood, decided to tender his resignation to the Emperor tomorrow, owing to the difficulty of finding a successor to Lieutenant-General Uyehara as Minister of War.

Premier Saionji made an appeal today to Field Marshal Prince Aritomo Yamagata, president of the Privy Council, and a former minister of war, but without success, as the militarists are boycotting the portfolio of minister of war.

The Japanese press severely criticised the action of Prince Yamagata, the Asahi declaring that it is now a straight fight between military anti-constitutionalists and the constitution.

PRAIRIE CITIES ELECT THEIR MUNICIPAL HEADS

Nominations took place in Saskatchewan and Alberta cities yesterday for municipal and school officials. The following cities elected mayors by acclamation:

ROYAL THEATRE A YEAR OLD.

Just one year ago the Royal theatre first opened its doors in this city under the management of Al. W. Gillis, who has directed its destinies through a most successful year, the house having become a most popular resort for amusement lovers and playing to capacity audiences at a large share of the performances. In making this house popular Mr. Gillis has been ably assisted by the employees of the house, the majority of whom have been with him through the entire year, and who have been uniformly courteous and obliging to the patrons.

Among some of the best acts that have been seen at the Royal are Arnoldo and his troupe of trained leopards; the Morton-Jewell troupe of jugglers; King Pharaoh, the educated horse; the Oliva trio, who are Italian singers; the Royal Midgets; Dolly Burton's dog circus and also Trevitt's military dogs.

Manager Gillis states that owing to the fact that the Royal circuit has been enlarged, it will be possible in the future to get even better acts than in the past, and that the local house will be kept up to the standard of other houses on the circuit.

He adds that for the first anniversary program he has secured one of the best programs, if not the best, that has ever played in this theatre. Every act on the bill will be a distinct feature and will be known as the Royal Road Show No. 1, and will open here Thursday, December 5.

"COLLEEN BAWN."

Patrons of the moving picture shows have something especially good in store for them today and tomorrow, Manager Kerr, of the Edison theatre, announcing last night that he had secured the famous Kalem film, "Colleen Bawn," which will be shown at each performance. When it is stated that the film is in three reels, followers of the "movies" will readily understand that the film is far above the average.

Every scene in the entire production was made in its proper setting in Ireland and the scenic effects are well worth seeing, to say nothing of the dramatic story so clearly depicted.

The story is laid in the baronial estates of the Cregans in 1794, and its protrayal is by one of the cleverest casts in the picture world. Gene Gauntier, who plays the part of the Colleen Bawn, is already known to those having a predilection for Kalem films. The remainder of the cast is also up to this standard. There is a pretty love story, sufficient complications to hold the interest of the most astute, and like all good pictures, all differences are cleared up before the close.

GUY FAWKES ARRESTED.

Not He of Powder Plot Fame, but Direct Descendant, He Says.

Aberdeen, Wash., Dec. 3.—Guy Fawkes, calling himself a descendant of Guy Fawkes of English history who plotted to blow up parliament 300 years ago in the "Gunpowder Plot," fell into the toils of the law here last night.

He refused to walk, however, and the officer making the arrest had to impress into service a small boy with a red tin wagon.

The procession moved toward the jail through the principal streets, followed by a large crowd.

ANSWER THIS

Does it pay to have your money deposited in the bank drawing 3 per cent. interest when you can buy a lot in

MERRITT AND IN VOGHT RESERVE FOR $150

AND ON TERMS OF

$25 CASH, and balance $8 Monthly?

For instance: Suppose you deposit $150 in a bank and leave it there for one year; what returns do you get? You receive three per cent. interest from the bank for the use of that money for one year, which means that your $150 has earned you the magnificent sum of $4.50 in one year. Will you get rich on this?

MY ARGUMENT: Buy a lot in Merritt and in Voght Reserve for $150 and if you cannot grow more than $4.50 (bank interest for one year) worth of produce in one year on a Voght Reserve lot, I will give you a clear title to the lot for nothing. Why any person would pay you $10 for the use of the lot for one year. Then why leave your money in the bank at 3 per cent. I have only to repeat Russell Sage's words: "Real Estate is an imperishable asset ever increasing in value."

Do you realize that Business Men, Miners, Ranchers, Railroad Men, Brokers and even Bankers are buying lots in Voght Reserve? Then why not you?

IS WINNIPEG'S MAYOR

RICHARD D. WAUGH HAS MANY IRONS IN THE FIRE.

Energetic Westerner Who Has Been Elected Vice-President of the Union of Canadian Municipalities Was a Pioneer In the Good Roads Movement and Has Worked For Baths and Playgrounds In His City.

Twenty-nine years ago, a Scotch lad, fifteen years old, came to Winnipeg and got a job in a law office at not much per week. To-day he is Richard Deans Waugh, mayor of the city, who recently was elected vice-president of the Union of Canadian Municipalities. Few men with as meagre a chance have got ahead as fast in Winnipeg as the mayor. He has made a large fortune in land and in financial manoeuvring, and at the same time has found time to identify himself with the big movements which have made Winnipeg the buckle of the wheat belt.

Mr. Waugh's first venture as a municipal politician was when he served on the Cycle Paths Board. Strange, but he has never lost sight of the Good Roads idea. It was largely his advocacy of the "Good Roads Bill" which got that measure through the Manitoba Legislature last session. In 1903 he was first elected to the Board of Control. In the following two years he was re-elected controller. In 1911 he became mayor of the city. A feature of his work is that Mr. Waugh has done much to extend sanitary facilities in Winnipeg. He was the pioneer worker for the public baths and playgrounds in the city.

Personally, the mayor is of the very likeable, popular, earnest type of citizen. Though a very busy man he is not at all of a fogey. He belongs to at least a dozen athletic clubs; Mr. Waugh is an enthusiast at curling, cricket and swimming. He has perhaps a preference for the Scotch game of curling, and is president of the Granite Club, the parent curling club of the city.—Canadian Courier.

Smoking In Churches.

The vicar of Lancaster, Eng., who has been obliged to put up a notice forbidding visitors to smoke in church, may not know that smoking in church is not only irreverent, but a breach of the English law. Some time ago an Essex farm laborer was seen to be smoking when he entered the church for watch-night service, and smoke afterward was observed to be issuing from his pew. He received a smart fine in court next day. Had the offender lived one or two centuries ago he could have smoked with impunity in church. Wooden spittoons filled with sawdust were placed about the church for the smokers, and they sometimes left their long clays, or "church-wardens," in the care of the verger until next Sunday came around. It is told of the incumbent of a Warwickshire church that he used to smoke regularly in the vestry while the congregation were singing the hymn before the sermon. He made a point of selecting a long hymn to give himself time to get through his pipe. "My people," he said, "like long hymns, but I prefer a long pipe."

Then His Smile Faded.

Ramsay Calles in his reminiscences says he was once traveling in a smoking compartment on an Irish railway. The only other person in the compartment was a gentleman who was smoking a pipe with evident satisfaction, but whose tobacco had a particularly disgusting smell. Not having any tobacco himself with which to overcome this appalling smell, Mr. Calles opened the window. But the weather was very cold, and he was obliged to shut it again almost at once. It then occurred to him that possibly good humored remonstrance might prevail and abate the nuisance, so he said, with a conciliatory smile, "Pardon me, sir, but really your tobacco would poison a toad."

Without moving a muscle of his face the smoker took his pipe from his mouth and replied:

"Evidently!"

Plants Which Look Like Stones.

In South Africa there is found a plant of the genus Mesembryanthemum growing on stony ground, which so closely resembles a pebble that it is invariably taken by the stranger to be a stone. Another species of the same plant produces two leaves about as large as ducks' eggs, having a surface resembling weathered stone of brownish gray color, tinged with green. These plants look like stones; but for a short time they put forth bright yellow flowers. Still another species of the same plant resembles the quartz pebbles among which it grows.

RE-ENACTING HISTORY

DOLLARD'S BATTLE FOUGHT OVER AGAIN AT LONG SAULT.

Moving Picture Artists Have Spent the Summer Reconstructing Scenes From Canadian History and Have Leased the Place With a View to Returning Next Year—Story of Dollard Is Their First Effort.

Down on the St. Lawrence River—at Lake St. Joseph—a staff of moving picture actors and operators are engaged on a work which is of interest to all Canadians, and particularly to students of Canadian history. They are reconstructing for generations to come, scenes from the early days of the French in the new world. This summer has been spent on the story of Dollard and his fight at the Long Sault.

The south shore of Lake St. Louis, which is an expansion of the St. Lawrence river, two miles above the Indian village of Caughnawaga, is in a state of nature—a woodland with open glades here and there, bordered by haw-trees red with ripe fruit, and occasionally a butternut and maple converted into natural arbors by the trailing vines of the wild grape, from which the fruit hangs in purple clusters. A little bay sets in. The water is shallow, and on the sand bars rushes bend before the current. The bank is sandy, but a maple grove of second growth comes down almost to the water. This is the natural stage on which Dollard's heroic deeds are being "acted" for the benefit, not of spectators on the spot, but for the wonderful camera that catches the views for the motion picture show.

Back a little distance are the cottage-like buildings erected for the use of the permanent staff—for the company has leased the shore for a number of years, and will use it summer after summer as a stage on which to reproduce dramatic scenes from our early history. These modern habitations, of course, never appear in the pictures.

Excluding these buildings of raw, new lumber, the remainder of the camp makes it easy for the visitor to imagine that he is back in early times, when at any moment a bloodthirsty Iroquois was likely to spring from behind a tree with tomahawk or scalping knife in hand. Here is a cluster of tepees, or lodges of bark and skin, each bearing the outline of the totem of its occupants, but the whole discolored by smoke and dirt. These are the lodges of Dollard's Huron allies. A few yards distant, but somewhat nearer the shore, are lodges of rushes ingeniously woven, the whole capped by comical-shaped roofs of birch-bark. These most picturesque but equally uncomfortable dwellings housed the Algonquin warriors, who, be it said to their credit, stood more loyally by Dollard than did the Hurons, who went over to the enemy.

In another part of the camp is a log building, constructed exactly as were the buildings of the first settlers. The logs are joined together and the crevices are filled with moss and clay, and clay is the mortar, that holds together the rough stone of which the chimney is built. No iron is used in the structure. The hinges on the doors and windows are of wood, and so too, are the latches.

Not far away is the altar, at which Dollard and his companions received the sacrament before setting out on their expedition; and back in the woods is the stockade around which the fight raged and in which Dollard and his companies were slain.

Such is the stage. For actors the dramatic profession and the Indians of the Caughnawaga reservation, only two miles distant, were drawn upon, and whites and redmen, when they "acted" the famous fight were in every sense dressed as were the white men and redmen who fought and died at the Long Sault two and a half centuries ago.

When all this is depicted by motion pictures the spectators will see the famous fight as complete in every detail as it is possible to make it.

Such pictures should certainly possess the power to thrill, and possibly they will do more. They should not fail to stimulate an interest in history, and especially in the history of those early days so filled with the stories of heroism and self-sacrifice, of those times Dollard and his men were worthy representatives.

It is not necessary here to recount the thrilling story of Dollard's memorable feat of heroism; but its essential facts may be briefly enumerated. The drama may be said to open with the scene in the church in Montreal, in which Dollard and his French-Canadian associates received the sacrament before setting out on their quest of a large band of Iroquois, known to have wintered in the Ottawa Valley in order that with the oncoming of spring they may strike New France a fatal blow by capturing the western outpost of Ville Marie, or Montreal, then only eight years old.

Then follows the voyage in canoes from Lachine up the western arm of Lake St. Louis, through the Lake of Two Mountains to its head, where the lake contracts and the great watercourse becomes the Ottawa river.

Here, at the foot of the Long Sault they land, and near the landing place they find the ruins of a rude stockade used by the Algonquins a few seasons before in a fight with the Iroquois, the common enemy of Algonquins, Hurons, and French. On the bank of the river they pitch their tents, swing their kettles and set about preparing a meal. The Iroquois shoot the rapids and build a camp nearby. Then follow the bloody scenes of the drama. Again and again the Iroquois attack Dollard's stockade, but as often as they attack they are driven back with heavy losses. Reinforcements arrive, and at last the Frenchmen are wiped out.

A CRISIS

The Remedy Applied Was Successful

By ELLEN T. ARMSTRONG

Edward Ingersoll married when he was twenty-two and lived happily with his wife for eleven years, when she died without having borne him children. In three years he married a second wife, who was the same age as his first at the time of his first marriage.

Whether the second Mrs. Ingersoll was more wayward than the first had been at the time of the first marriage is a question. Perhaps if Ingersoll had remained twenty-two he would have got on more easily with the second. As it was, she seemed very restive to him. He realized that she was young and needed to be carefully handled. But with all his patience and gentleness she showed an increased disposition to be fretful. This led to occasional upbraidings on her part, which were met with efforts to soothe her on her husband's part.

He came home one evening from business to find her gone. He was astonished, disappointed.

After the first shock he began to consider what course to pursue in the premises. He had little faith in severity, realizing that it would be more likely to widen the breach than to heal it. On the other hand, if he begged his wife to return to him he would probably be obliged to continue to be a beggar. And yet there did not seem to be any middle course unless he should leave her to see her error and return to him of her own accord. This last course he determined upon, but resolved to take advantage of any current they might drift into whereby he might facilitate their reunion. He waited a few days for her to return, or at least communicate with him, but she did neither. He knew she was at her former home, in which she had been born and was now petted and sympathized with by all her family, being admirably situated to stand a long siege.

He wrote her that in consequence of her having left him with no housekeeper it would be necessary for him to procure one. Since she would doubtless not care to have a woman come into the house to find her effects exposed he suggested that she come and put away such articles as she would prefer should not fall into other hands if she did not care to come herself she might send some one to act for her.

If Ingersoll intended to get her back with a view to keeping her the ruse failed. She wrote him that she would send her sister Edith and asked when it would be convenient for him to have her come. He replied that as soon as he could find a housekeeper he would let her know. Then Edith might come, put away such things as were to be put away and turn over the house to the new manager.

The words new manager had an unpleasant sound to Mrs. Ingersoll, but as she pictured some elderly woman of low degree taking care of the house of which she had been the mistress she managed to swallow the pill. In due time a note came stating that a housekeeper had been engaged and would enter upon her duties the next evening. Mrs. Ingersoll sent her sister during the afternoon of the day mentioned in order that after she had put the things away she might have a look at the housekeeper and report.

When Miss Edith Martin had locked up everything according to her sister's instructions she sat down and waited for the new housekeeper, ostensibly to give her certain information, but really to see what kind of a creature she might be. Presently she heard a latchkey at work in the front door and going into the hall met a woman.

"Pardon me," said Edith. "I thought it was the new housekeeper."

"I am the new housekeeper."

"You?"

"Yes. You are Miss Martin, I suppose. Mr. Ingersoll told me I would probably find you here."

Miss Martin gasped for breath. The housekeeper was about twenty-eight years old and a very beautiful woman. Her hair was a soft glossy chestnut; her eyes were large liquid ones; her mouth is best described as kissable. Her manner was fully as attractive as her person. She smiled sweetly on Miss Martin and said that if she had not finished her work she would gladly help her and if she found anything left out that should be locked up she would notify her or Mrs. Ingersoll. In short, she sent Miss Martin away charmed with her in spite of the lady's disposition to quarrel with her on her sister's account.

When Mrs. Ingersoll was informed that the housekeeper was an attractive woman she sank down in a heap, as if she had been shot. The family gathered round her to brace her up, the stimulant used being reproaches cast upon her husband. "Brute, monster, villain," and similar epithets rattled about the room like pistol balls. The patient did not respond for a time, then suddenly straightened up and called for her hat and coat.

"Where are you going, dear?" asked mamma in astonishment.

"I'm going to turn that woman out of my house."

"For heaven's sake don't. You will meet your brute of a husband, and there will be a dreadful scene," said the mother.

"You'll make a goose of yourself," put in Miss Edith. "She's very ladylike, and your quarrel is not with her; it's with Edward."

"Well, I'll tell him just what I think of him."

"You can do that here," said papa, "and avoid an altercation with the housekeeper."

"What the dickens do you care who takes care of his house," put in Jimmie, Mrs. Ingersoll's younger and favorite brother, "since you don't wish to do it yourself?"

"Shut up, Jim. You talk like a fool," retorted Mrs. Ingersoll.

"It seems to me," said papa, "that you are the illogical one. My recommendation is for you to either let Edward alone or go back and assume your position as head of his house."

"My dear," interposed Mrs. Martin to her husband, "how can you expect that such a brute will take her back? He has doubtless treated her as he has in order to get her out of the way to make room for this vile woman."

At this Mrs. Ingersoll threw up her hands, gave a piercing shriek and fell into her father's arms. This finished the family conclave for the evening. Mrs. Ingersoll was put to bed and a sedative administered. She tossed about feverishly till morning, when she went to sleep, and the household walked about on tiptoe till 10 o'clock, when she awoke to a renewal of her misery. There was another family consultation, and she finally determined to go home and find out the worst. This meant that she wished to know what the introduction of a pretty young woman into her husband's home in lieu of a housekeeper meant. She sent a note to her husband stating that she would meet him at their former home when he returned after business, and she requested that his housekeeper be not present. She had so far recovered her equanimity as to make an excuse for the meeting and did not give away the fact that in case there was nothing in the way involving the housekeeper she was ready to come down from her high horse and be good.

Receiving a favorable reply at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, she went home and found her husband there. Her first words were:

"Who is this creature who has disgraced herself by"—

"Please do not speak so of an estimable woman," interrupted Ingersoll.

"Is there anything between you and her?"

"Anything what?"

"Anything wrong."

"No; she is my housekeeper."

There was a short silence, at the end of which Mrs. Ingersoll said:

"Edward, I have acted hastily."

"You certainly have."

"I'm sorry."

"That's quite sufficient, sweetheart. I have no desire to humiliate you, but let me tell you that you took a step which in most cases would have led to crimination, and this would have drawn forth recrimination. I chose an entirely different course to show you the folly of your act. In doing so I was obliged to take a risk, but must take the chances of our permanent separation"—

"Oh, heaven!" she gasped.

"Whatever course I might pursue was fraught with danger."

By this time she was nestling in his arms, and the danger they had incurred had passed. It had been more than danger; it had been a crisis. But the crisis once passed the disease was broken.

Mr. Ingersoll informed her that his housekeeper was the wife of one of his intimate friends, who with her husband's consent had played the part for her—or rather their—benefit. She had only been in the house when she had come there to meet Miss Martin, and her husband was waiting for her outside.

Mrs. Ingersoll went to the telephone and called up her mother. This is what she said to her:

"My husband is the noblest man that ever lived: He has saved us from the horror of a permanent separation, and I love him far better than ever before."

"For heaven's sake!" interposed the husband. "Can't you wait till you see your mother without informing the world of my virtues through a telephone?"

While after this crisis Mr. and Mrs Ingersoll had their disagreements, the lady was more cautious and never again "took the bit in her mouth." Indeed, as she gained in experience she realized and shuddered at the danger through which they had passed. She came also to admire the course her husband had pursued with her and admitted that leaving her to infer that her place was or might be supplied was an efficient remedy.

A BLACK AMAZON.

African Chieftainess Leads Tribesmen Against Europeans.

The Anglo-German-Belgian Boundary Commission having completed its work in Africa, Major E. M. Jack, the British Commissioner, has returned to England.

The frontier which has now been delimited is that between the Uganda Protectorate and, on the west, the Belgian colony of the Congo (lately Congo Free State), and, on the south, German East Africa. It lies, says Reuter, in the neighborhood of the celebrated Mfumbiro volcanoes, whose peaks were first seen by Speke on his journey through Ruanda to Uganda. Three of the eight volcanoes, one of which a few years ago showed signs of activity, are partly in British territory.

The country traversed and mapped by the British Commission is for the greater part of the wildest and roughest description, consisting of massive mountains intersected by steep narrow valleys, at the bottoms of which are large swamps. Parts of the country are covered with impenetrable forests, others with bamboo.

The whole region lies at a high altitude, varying from 6,000 feet to 8,000 feet above sea level, while the volcanoes vary from 11,000 feet to 14,000 feet. The climate is, in consequence, cool and healthy, but near the volcanoes subject to violent winds and thunderstorms. The slopes of most of the volcanoes are thickly clothed with bamboo forest, and in these are found elephant, buffalo and lion.

While the commission was surveying the Anglo-German frontier, however, it was not safe for porters and soldiers to travel alone, and several men were attacked and killed.

On one occasion a chieftainess, a "witch-doctor" named Mumusa, collected a considerable following and announced her intention of driving the Europeans out of the country. A portion of the British escort was detached to co-operate with Capt. Reid, of the King's African Rifles, in an attack on her position, but before the two forces joined Capt. Reid had successfully surprised Mumusa, capturing her and dispersing her followers. After that no further trouble was experienced.

By the delimitation of this portion of the frontier the international boundaries on the west and south of the Uganda Protectorate are now complete.

A Scissor-Grinder's Will.

Some years ago a certain David Fenby, who was working as a scissor-grinder in Sheffield at $6 per week, having saved a little money—thanks to the assistance of an admirable wife who shared her husband's thrifty habits—determined to launch out into the grocery and general business. They started with a little shop in a back street, Fenby fetching his groceries and smallware from the market on a wheelbarrow, which he hired until he could afford to buy one. Ultimately he was able to purchase a donkey and cart, and after two years in his little shop was able to take a grocer's shop with an off-license, and to pay $150 valuation.

A few days ago Fenby died worth no less than $100,000. A man of keen business acumen and energy, he was able after nine years' trading in his grocer's shop, to buy a shop and no fewer than nine adjoining houses. At the same time he carried on a business as furniture remover, his wife looking after the shop. He was afterwards able to move to bigger premises and became a wealthy man; but he and his wife continued to live in a very moderate style until his death. Mr. Fenby has left bequests of $2,500 each to four charitable institutions of Sheffield.

A Very Funny Englishman.

A story is told concerning Beerbohm Tree, who, after an evening at one of the London clubs, called a hansom from a nearby stand he frequently patronized.

"Home," shouted Tree to the cabby, who was a new one about town.

"Beg pardon," said the man.

"Home," repeated Tree in commanding tone, and the driver whipped up his horse. He drove his fare about for half an hour or so and then returned again. Stopping his horse and arousing the sleepy actor, he apologized and asked to what number he should drive.

"Home," thundered Mr. Tree, this time thoroughly indignant.

"And where might your home be?" queried the cabby, shaking in his boots.

"You idiot," replied Tree, "do you think I'm going to tell you where my beautiful home is?"

The Kings Private Name.

If the King were to renounce the throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be King George's surname? This is the answer:

Queen Victoria married Albert, Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the House of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches—the Ernestine and Albertine—of the House of Saxony. The name comes from the castle of Wettin, near Magdeburg, which claimed Wittekind as the founder of the race.

Fishing for Millions.

In the waters of the Zuyder Zee British divers are fishing for millions in gold bullion. The gross value of the treasure is estimated at $8,570,000. It is entombed in the wreck of the British frigate Lutine, which foundered in a storm at the entrance of the Zuyder Zee in October, 1799. For the better part of a century a dispute continued between the Governments of the Netherlands and Great Britain as to the rights of salvage. An agreement was ultimately come to, but in the meantime the sands covered the wreck, and now many charges of dynamite will have to be employed before the divers can hope to get at the gold.

WILSON SHOCKS SOCIETY.

U. S. President-Elect Wears Brown Fedora With Cutaway Coat.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Dec. 3.—President-elect Wilson shocked British society here on Saturday afternoon. He wore his famous brown fedora, with a cutaway coat, to the "tea and tennis" given by the governor-general, Sir George and Lady Bullock.

Everybody who knows anything about Piccadilly is aware that a "topper" is the only thing that goes correctly with a "mawning coat," and the company at this tea and tennis knew Piccadilly perfectly. Nobody said anything, but everybody looked his or her horror. That is, they looked it for a minute. Then, with a slight gasp, the gathering recovered itself and politely pretended not to know that anything was the matter.

The president-elect took his family, his stenographer and ten newspaper correspondents to the "tea and tennis" with him. It was the first public reception they have attended in Bermuda. A large party was on hand to meet them. The whole affair was held in the Bullocks' garden.

Four Are Discharged.

Indianapolis, Dec. 2.—Four of the 45 defendants in the "dynamite conspiracy" trial were discharged by the government today on the grounds that the charges against them had not been sustained.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS.

COAL MINING rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories and in a portion of the province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the leasee will be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY.
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

"Count Your Blessings"

Would you be willing to go back to the standards of living that prevailed in 1812?

In spite of all the praise of "the good old days," would you be content to give up the many conveniences we have gained in the past century?

Former generations knew nothing of the luxuries of modern travel with its observation cars, individual lights in Pullman berths, phonograph recitals, rich appointments, home-like comforts, and special safety devices with which the modern railway system surrounds its passengers.

The rural telephone now places the farmer in instant communication with the source of the latest market reports, and saves him many hours of precious time in the event of sickness or accident.

The introduction of the typewriter and adding machine has lightened the load and lengthened the day of the business office.

It was Advertising that first proclaimed the usefulness of these devices, that created an immediate and universal demand for them, that established a world-wide distribution which made them readily accessible to us all.

McCormick invented the reaper and thereby made himself an everlasting benefactor of the farmer. But it was Advertising that carried the wonderful news with its far-reaching significence to "the man with the hoe."

You know what house work used to be. Realise what it is now, since the advent of sanitary plumbing fixtures, hot water heating, vacuum cleaners, and electric household appliances. Advertising has brought these things into your home. It has eliminated drudgery.

Advertising is service. Science, invention, commerce, are all indebted to its aid. It has raised the standard of living, elevated business ethics, and put us within reach of more real comforts, more real blessings than we ever enjoyed before.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Building, Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write, if interested.

LOCAL NOTES

Weather Today.

Victoria, Dec. 2.—The weather forecast for the lower mainland for the next twenty-four hours is as follows: Light to moderate winds; partly cloudy with showers tonight or Thursday. Not much change in temperature.

Mr. John Oliver, of the Delta, drove into the city yesterday.

Mr. E. Simpson, Mission, was in the city yesterday on business.

Christmas Cakes. See our window, Eighth Street Bakery, Tele. 281. (203)

Mr. C. C. Worsfold, government resident engineer, was absent from the city yesterday on a business visit to Victoria.

Chief Watson, of the fire department, attended a demonstration of a new combined chemical and hose truck at North Vancouver on Monday.

Tickets are being sold at the West End Pharmacy, 409 Eighth street, for the lecture to be given by Rev. W. S. A. Crux in Sixth Avenue Methodist church Thursday evening. (206)

Messrs. J. G. Robson and E. H. Bucklin, of this city, are among the British Columbia men attending the Western Forestry and Conservation Association convention being held at Seattle this week.

The splitting of the switch near the Columbia street depot yesterday afternoon resulted in three ballast cars going off the track. The B. C. E. R. workmen soon righted matters with little delay to passenger traffic.

The officials of the B. C. E. R. are rearranging the schedule on lines meeting at Highland Park. This will result in the city cars making good connection with those on the interurban service.

Why does John Rindal, the tailor, sell a first class $40.00 suit for $30.00? Because the location of his business is out of the high rent district. John Rindal, 612 Carnarvon. (204)

The receipts of the land registry office for the month of November were $11,245, as compared with $9776.35 for the corresponding period of last year.

The county court was further adjourned yesterday from December 10 to January 14 on account of the fact that the court room will probably be occupied until about that date with the hearing of a number of civil cases in the assize court.

The Ladies' Aid of Sapperton Baptist church will hold their annual sale of work at the home of Mrs. Howard Welsh, 325 Sherbrooke street this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Tea will be served. (196)

A successful opium joint raid was carried out by the local police yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock and as a result four orientals are locked up and will answer charges this morning. A quantity of pipes and taels of opium were confiscated and will be produced in evidence.

The fire department has had considerable trouble during the past few days with the fire alarm system on account of the crossing of several wires connecting with boxes in various parts of the city. Men from No. 1 hall were out the greater part of the day yesterday making repairs and the alarms are now in excellent working order again.

The case of Wolfe vs. Surrey municipality, which was down for trial at the assizes yesterday, was postponed until today. The adjournment was made necessary owing to plaintiff's solicitor having subpoenaed his witnesess for today, it being anticipated that the Martin vs. B. C. Electric Company case which finished yesterday would take another day to reach a conclusion.

Coroner Dr. A. L. McQuarrie viewed the body of Wong Hong, the Chinaman, who died in the Chinese hospital on Agnes street on Sunday, and decided an inquest was not necessary. Wong, it appears, was attended by a fully qualified physician and died from natural causes. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from Murchie & Son's parlors to the Chinese cemetery.

According to the monthly report of Dr. C. E. Doherty, medical superintendent, a total of 796 patients received treatment in the public hospital for the insane during the month of November. Of this number 567 were males and 229 females. At the close of the month there was a total of 740 patients in the institution, an increase of eight over November 1. Two patients escaped during the month, 17 were discharged at the expiry of probation, 13 on probation and three without probation. Four women and three men died. At the close of the month 56 patients in all were out on probation.

ABBOTSFORD BUSY

Getting Fire Protection—Will Consider Publicity Bureau Membership.

As the result of a visit from a deputation consisting of Mr. J. A. Bates, of Mission; Mr. R. W. Hulbert, of Coquitlam, and Mr. Stuart Wade, of this city, on Monday evening the Abbotsford Board of Trade regards more kindly the Fraser Valley Publicity Bureau and have taken under consideration the application of membership to the organization.

Messrs. Bates, Hulbert and Wade are members of the committee appointed at the last meeting of the bureau to interview the Boards of Trade not holding membership. This was their first effort and it met with a satisfactory response.

Mr. Stuart Wade states that the Abbotsford Board of Trade is at present evolving a scheme of fire protection for the town which has hitherto been devoid of any fire fighting apparatus whatever. A volunteer bucket brigade is being organized.

The Abbotsford body has also under consideration a change in its constitution mounting practically to reorganization.

LIGHTS TO BE INSTALLED IN NEARBY TERRITORY

The Western Canada Power Company is preparing plans for the lighting of Maillardville, or Frenchtown, in the municipality of Coquitlam. Incandescent lamps will be used to the number of 20, while many of the residents are clamoring for house lighting.

The material for such work is expected within the next few days and the linemen will start at once just as soon as it arrives. The company will also place lights on the North road, near the Burnaby boundary.

Will Sell Timber.

The right to cut timber on two stretches of land known as Berths No. 537 and 548 in the Pitt Lake district, will be sold by public auction in the Dominion lands office in this city on Wednesday, December 11, at 2 o'clock. Berth No. 537 comprises 665 acres, while Berth No. 548 contains 1198 acres. The upset price of the former will be $3257.25 and the latter $2682.80.

BRIXTON BURGLARY BRINGS DOWN HOUSE

St. George's Amateur Dramatic Society Win Fresh Laurels at Opera House.

The clerk of the weather, evidently a cricket enthusiast, was kindly, with the result that a well dressed house greeted the St. George Amateur Dramatic Society's presentation of "The Brixton Burglary," a three act farcical comedy, at the opera house last night given as a benefit for the Westminster Cricket Club.

Of the play itself, "The Brixton Burglary" provides endless scope for much laughter making and amusing business. James Martin, the man servant, and his master, Septimus Pontifex, both, unknown to the other, spend a night out during the absence of the mistress, and from this results a continual series of complications and misunderstandings.

Mr. Algernon Wells as the master carried through in a highly creditable manner, and though rather prone to overact the part, a fault that further experience of the "boards" will no doubt relieve him of, was without doubt one of the hits of the evening. Mr. Brown was extremely good.

To Miss Grace Pinder, who, as Petunia, the housemaid, had one of the leading parts, must be yielded the palm. This young lady rose magnificently to the occasion and carried the house with her throughout. With a clear enunciation and fine acting presence the manner with which she alternately screened master and man, while at the same time holding a sword of Damocles, in the shape of a photo of the "Bounding Sisters," over the former, was excruciatingly funny and fully deserved the continuous applause meted out to her.

Fraser Green, father-in-law of Septimus Pontifex, was also much "in the soup," and Mr. R. B. Hill, who portrayed the part, kept his end up well despite the fact that his imaginations did not always coincide with those of his worthy, or shall we say, unworthy son-in-law.

Mrs. J. D. Taylor in the character of Alicia Green, wife of Fraser Green, made the most of a not over large part, and displayed the art of the finished actress.

Of the rest of the cast, while the parts were not of any great prominence, each one did his or her best. These parts were portrayed by Miss Ruth Petter, Miss Ethel Homer, Mr. L. Avory White, Mr. Charles Brown, Mr. Frank Hill and Mr. Minard Hill.

The whole presentation showed undoubtedly that much time and pains had been taken with rehearsals, and though the general tendency ran towards overacting, this is a fault not uncommon among the amateur "profession" and is only remedied by experience, so, to somewhat garble Alicia Green's final words before the curtain, "No doubt they will be at it again."

CALL BOY.

Report of Westminster

With a new propeller shipped and repairs made following the tough struggle in the gulf which took place a little over a week ago, the steamer Burin, which is on the inter-city run between New Westminster and Victoria, left the ways of the Westminster Marine Company yesterday morning and started for Victoria later in the day. The refitting of the propeller was carried out with despatch by the Schaake Machine Company.

The American tug Challenger arrived at Port Mann yesterday with two scows of coal for the Canadian Northern Railway. The coal came from across the line.

INCREASE DEMURRAGE RATES.

Dominion Railway Commission Grants Road Special Rate.

Ottawa, Dec. 3.—The Dominion Railway Commission this afternoon issued an order granting the application of the C. P. R., Grand Trunk, Canadian Northern and Michigan Central railroads to increase their demurrage on freight cars from $1 per day to $2 and $3.

The increased rates, however, will be allowed only from Dec. 15 of this year to March 31 of next year. The railways asked for $2, $3 and $4 for the first, second and third day respectively, after the free time allowed, but the $4 charge was not sanctioned by the board. Henceforth $2 will be assessed by the rialways for the first twenty-four hours free time, and $3 for the succeeding day.

The order, however, is not to apply to cars held in transit at stop-over points under published tariffs which have been filed by the board.

CHIEF WITNESS CRAZY.

Prosecution of Former Opposition Leader for Alienation of Affections.

Toronto, Dec. 3.—The prosecution of Hon. A. G. MacKay, former opposition leader in Ontario, and now of Edmonton, by W. H. Haines, for alleged alienation of his wife's affections dropped when the case reached Mr. Justice Leitch at the Milton assizes today.

Mrs. Haines, an inmate of a Toronto asylum, had been subpoenaed to give evidence, but the asylum authorities would not consent. Dr. Smith, inspector of prisons and asylums, and Dr. Foster, superintendent of the Toronto asylum, testified that Mrs. Haines was laboring under hallucinations and had been in that condition for some time.

They maintained that it would be utterly wrong for her to give evidence in the case. Dr. Smith insisted that it would be monstrous to allow any patient to be brought from an asylum to the witness stand.

In the court, after hearing Doctors Smith, Foster and Clare, the court agreed that it would not be right to ask for Mrs. Haines under such circumstances. The prosecution was then abandoned as the whole case was based on what experts state were Mrs. Haines' hallucinations.
