PUGSLEY ACCUSED OF GRAFTING

Denies the Charge and Faces His Accusers

Suffragettes Riot in London—G.T.P. Officials in Vancouver—Other News by Telegraph

St. John, N. B., October 15---Before a public meeting Premier Hazen read an affidavit, signed by G. S, Mayes, a contractor who had the work of deepening the St.John harbor, alleging that he secured the contract by takeng Geo. McAvity in with him and raising the price five cents a yard, which increase went to McAvity. The affidavit further stated that Mayes gave the Hon. Wm. Pugsley a note for $2,000 and paid McAvity $35,933.

Immediately upon hearing of these charges Pugsley hastened to St. John and before a large audience defended himself from the charges of graft levelled at him by Premier Hazen, through the Mayes affidavit. He proved the note bore the date of October, 1905, two years before he became minister, and claimed the note was given as payment for professional services. Pugsley denounced Hazen, Mayes and all who had to do with preparing the affidavit, as men unfit to move in decent society.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT NEWS.

F. A. Jackson returned from a short trip to the coast, on the last boat.

B. P. Cooke and wife, of the Bulkley Nalley, were in Hazelton for a few days,

Fred Heal Jr. was an arrival on the last boat and went out to the Bulkley Valley, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bell, of Telkwa, are in Hazelton and may go to the coast for the winter.

E. E. Charleson and Barney Mulvany are in the Bulkley Valley this week.

The road gang is now camped about half way between Morricetown and the Glacier House.

R. E. Loring, Indian Agent, returned from Kitwangar on the Hazelton.

E. Brendon, proprietor of the Glacier House in the Bulkley Valley, was in town on business for a few days.

Miss Higgins, who has been with Mrs. Percy Bell at Telkwa during the summer, was a passenger down the river Thursday.

Rev. A. E. Green, superintendent for the Methodist Missions made a flying trip up the river on the Hazelton.

At last reports the Jensen shaft was down ninety some feet when work had to be stopped on account of a shortage of grub.

Ezra Evans, one of the pioneers of early days in the Omineca, is in Hazelton and will spend the winter here,

Temporary repairs to the Port Simpson have been completed and she is once more in commission, operating on the lower river.

Jas. Thomson, manager for the Hudson's Bay Company at Victoria, made a trip to Hazelton this week, returning to Victoria after a stop of one day.

Jim May, who has rounded out a full half century in the Omineca district, was an arrival from Tom creek Monday. In spite of his seventy-seven years, the old pioneer still looks fit and none the worse for his long hike.

As a means of welcoming the large number of placer miners who arrived in Hazelton lately from the various placer diggings of the district a smoker was given in their honor Wednesday evening at the Omineca Hotel. Tables were cleared from the dining room, and with songs, recitations and reminiscences of former days the evening was spent very pleasantly.

Last year's rumors of new boats to be built and put in commission on the Skeena are being repeated and this time with more apparent foundation. There is sure to be need for more steamers on the river next year outside of anything that may be built by the G. T. P. or the contractors. The Hudson's Bay Company has announced that they will not build any more steamers for the Skeena

Wednesday night an Indian named John Paul made his escape from the local bastile and took his departure from Hazelton without waiting to say good-by to the authorities. He is of the Kispiox tribe and was charged with taking a shot at A. N. Einboden one of the ranchers in that valley. His trial was to have been Thursday. He undoubtedly had nelp in getting out as some one on the out side used a shovel in digging a hole underneath the timbers comprising the jail walls. By tearing up the floor of his cell escape was thus an easy matter. Paul's escape was not known until morning, when Constable Deane immediatly started in pursuit.

Ingenica Happenings

James Bates and his partner Frank Olson, Bert Glassy and a number of others arrived Monday from the Ingenica, being about the last to come out this fall. Previous opinions regarding the value of the Ingenica as a placer camp are comfirmed and it is reported that some of the claims are paying better than at first. Stark and Stanier were making about $2.75 to the shovel per hour and at that their sluice boxes were only equipped to handle the coarse gold. Estimating that they were losing at least forty per cent of the gold, this if they had the time to get properly equipped, would make their claims worth about fifty dollars a day to the shovel. They are working under adverse conditions, having to wheel the dirt for forty feet in wheelbarrows.

Sufficient preliminary work has been done this year to make it a safe statement that considerable gold will come out from there next year, from claims already proven. If the expected happens and the Ingenica Mining Co. makes a good strike this winter on bed rock, McConnell Creek will come to the front.

Tony Menard is reported as doing well, recovering two ounces a day or a little better.

Nineteen men will winter on the Ingenica.

H. M. Beach, manager for the Kildare Mining Co., operating on Manson Creek, arrived in Hazelton Sunday last from the mines, where operations for the present season have ceased.

From a financial standpoint the present season has been entirely satisfactory, more gold being taken out than in the two previous years, and that with a crippled plant, owing to a breakdown of the elevator early in the season. A pay streak has been opened up one hundred feet in length with the width not yet determined, from which every pan taken yielded twenty-four cents and better, the best pan going $1.75. Five pans taken at one time from different places gave $7.50. Next year an effort will be made to determine the width of the pay-streak. More water will be brought on the mine and the plant put in shape to handle a much larger output.

The Kildare Co. and the preceeding company have spent a great deal of money in opening up their property and it has been a long uphill struggle to bring it to a financial success. This being assured Mr. Beach's faith in the property is fully justified.

The Kildare Company's property is on Manson creek, about 180 miles from Hazelton and is in the watershed of the Parsnip river. Manson creek was the scene of quite an excitement several years ago when, for a time, there was a large number of men along the creek and government offices were established with F. W. Valleau in charge. Considerable gold was taken out but, owing to the depth of the ground and high cost of supplies, it never turned out to be a poor man's proposition to any great extent and, with the exception of the Kildare Company, has been practically abandoned for the past few years.

However, with the general revival of placer mining in the northern interior, and the present success of the one operating company, Manson will again come to the front.

Monday the Condit brothers Ned, Frank and Carl and Jim May came in from Tom Creek. Ned and Carl Condit have been in the Ingenica the past summer, Carl being mining recorder for that district, while Frank has been running the placer work at Tom Creek. The past season has been the most successful of any they have had. After allowing wages for themselves they were able to divide something in the way of a dividend. Although no statement could be obtained as to the amount of gold they brought out, previous estimates by others, of about $10,000, is thought to be conservative. After outfitting and spending a few days in town the Condits will return to the property and put in the winter. Their property is worked by drifting, following the channel of an older creek. Development work is so far ahead that they are sure of another two years of work without speculating on the unknown.

The provincial department of mines is preparing a bulletin in regard to mining in this province and has issued in pamphlet form the first chapter. The bulletin says: The first authenticated discovery of placer gold on the Thompson river was about 1857, and soon afterwards rich finds at Hill Bar, near Yale, on the Fraser river, were reported. This was the beginning of the great Fraser river excitement. It is stated that in 1858 between 15,000 and 20,000 persons embarked from San Francisco for the new El Dorado; but while this was the inauguration of gold mining in British Columbia, the production in 1858, roughly estimated at $705,000, was considered disappointing, and so great were the natural difficulties of the country at that time—unprovided too, as it was then, with means to support a comparatively large population—that many of the immigrants returned to California early in the next year. From the season of 1858, though, dates the history of mining in British Columbia. In 1859-60 gold diggings were discovered at Fountain, above Lillooet, on the Fraser river; on the Thompson river; on the Similkameen river; and at Antler creek, in the Cariboo district. But it was not until 1861 that the two most noteworthy discoveries—Williams and Lightning creeks—were made, and these finds induced a considerable migration of miners to the province, this increasing in volume until 1864. The averag value of gold obtained per lineal foot of channel on certain claims on Williams creek is given in the report of the provincial minister of mines for 1875 as $1,075. The production of Lightning creek, while in the aggregate only about on e-tenth that Williams creek is given was greater while it lasted, and from this creek alone gold to the value of $2,179,272 was extracted prior to 1875. From available statistics it appears that the maximum production was reached in 1863, in which year the output, almost entirely from the Cariboo district, and from Wild Horse creek, in East Kootenay, was $3,913,563, and the average earnings per man were stated to have been $899.

Of the Cariboo diggings the following has been printed repeatedly. In 1861 after laborious journeyings of daring prospectors, Williams and Lightning creeks, two of the most noted gold producers of British olumbia, were discovered, and in this and the next following year most of the other rich creeks in Cariboo became known. Then began the second rush which is the most notable event in the history of British Columbia, and one that has had the most lasting effects in determining its future. The finds were very rich, and the lucky prospectors who became owners of claims amassed large sums of money in a very short time. Dr Dawson wrote of these creeks: "Williams creek has yielded more gold than any other stream in British Columbia. As examples of its yield in the early days, Steele's claim gave a maximum yield of 409 oz. a day. More than $100,000 in all was taken from this claim of 80 by 25 feet. In 1862, Cunningham's claim produced gold to the value of nearly $2,000 a day for the season, while on several days as much as 52 lb. weight was taken out. The Adams claim yielded to each of its three owners $40,000 a year. These claims were above 'the canyon' in shallow ground. The deep ground below the canyon was first bottomed towards the end of 1861, by the Barker Co. (whence the name of the town Barkerville); the Diller Co. was the next successful in this, as it is creditably stated that here on one occasion, 200 lbs of gold was obtained in one day. In 1863, three claims below the canyon yielded $300,000, and twenty claims were steadily producing from 70 to 490 oz. a day. About 400 miners were at work on Williams creek in this year—'the golden year'. The aggregate of Williams creek for the first seven years of working, for which no returns are available, was very large. In 1861, $200,000 worth of gold was taken from Campbell's discovery claim and the adjacent Whitehall claim, both on Lightning creek. Attempts were made almost from the start to reach the deep channel of the creek, but, after much work, were abandoned in 1864. Sinking was, however, resumed in 1870, and, having proved successful, led to the subsequent great developments.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1908.

Placer mining has been an industry in British Columbia for the past fifty years and is by no means exhausted yet. Less than a year has passed since the first news of the Ingenica find was brought out by the discoverers and since that time over a hundred men have gone in there and staked claims and practically all of those who worked their claims at all made wages or better. Some of the older creeks are turning out quite considerable sums this year. Of course nothing like the great bonanzas of the Yukon and Alaska but still enough that the owners can do better by working the claims than they could in any other line. During the past summer two parties have gone back to the old diggings and relocated ground as placer leases which they will prospect and open up to be worked when transportation gets better. In both these parties were men who had been in the country before and they all stated that there are a great number of low grade placers that will pay well when once it is possible to get hydraulic machinery on the ground without having to pack it on horse back for one hundred and seventy-five miles or more.

The following is clipped from the Vancouver Daily Province of October, 3.

Mr. Hays and party reached here late yesterday afternoon from Edmonton via the Canadian Pacific railway,

The president and his party will sail to-night for Prince Rupert on the Princess May. It is expected they will spend one week in the north. Making Prince Rupert their headquarters it is proposed to make a trip up the Skeena River as far as Kitsalas canyon to inspect the railway contruction now in progress. Mr. Hays said:

"After a trip by rail over our main line as far west as Battle river bridge, we drove overland to Edmonton before inspecting the route to a point about seventy-five miles west of Edmonton. We were amazed at the grain-growing possibilities of the entire region we traversed. Contracts for the building of a section 120 miles west of Edmonton, to Wolfe river, are now being carried out at a very satisfactory rate, and within thirty days the company will ask for bids for building an additional 200 miles beyond. This will bring us well over the Yellowhead pass into British Columbia.

"Simultaneously tenders for constructing an additional hundred miles to a point in the Bulkley valley beyond Hazelton will also be called for. It is proposed to rush construction with all possible speed. In order to comply with our contract with the Dominion Government we hope to have all rail communication between the head of the Great Lakes and Prince Rupert well within the next three yesrs. We realize the importance of attacking this big undertaking by starting work in the interior of British Columbia rather than by constructing the line from the Pacific coast and the prairies. The question will be decided after a conference with the provincial government. The merits of various routes from the main line of the C. P. R. and via which men and supplies can be shipped into the central interior, are now in our possession."

It is hoped that the above is a sincere expression on the part of Mr. Hays, and there is no reason for believing otherwise. However, it will be just as well for the residents of the Northern Interior to keep this statement in mind and see how it checks out with the actual happenings. Numerous stories and opinions have been floating about the country for the last few months concerning the time which would be taken in getting the rails into Hazelton and the Bulkley Valley. Some of these were to the effect that it would be four years before rails would be at Hazelton and seven years before the entire line would be completed: that the G. T. P. would apply for an extension at the next session of the house and, getting it, would take their own time in building the railroad. Railroad building is a different matter nowadays to what it was when the C. P. R. was built, or what it was even a few years ago. The construction of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul through to Seattle in three years shows what can be accomplished when sufficient pressure is brought to bear.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's announcement that a separate portfolio or labor would be created and that Mackenzie King would be the first minster to take it, will be received with satisfaction by the country at large. His selection of the man could not be better, for no other man in Canada is as well qualified by ability and experience for the position as is Mr. King.

It is regrettable that announcements of such importance are held until the heat of a campaign and then made in the shape of election promises. There is no doubt that Sir Wilfrid Lanrier carefully considered the voting value of that announcement and made it with that idea in mind.

However, it will be a good thing for the chuntry, and if not productive of class legislation should work out to the benefit of all. In the hands of a strong man like Mr. King abuses of that nature are not likely to crop up, however. Saturday Sunset.

The Kispiox Indians

The Kispiox Indian reservation and village is about nine miles up the Skeena River from Hazelton and at the junction of the Kispiox and Skeena Rivers. The reservation is favorably situated and comprises about twelve square miles. In population the village located on the reservation is the largest of any along the Skeena, numbering about four hundred. All the natives are anxious to take on the ways of the white man. They are industrious, anxious to work and earn a good living and in the main are far different to the accepted idea of Indians with their hand to mouth style of living. Government on the reservation is maintained by a council composed of twelve chiefs, organized by consent of the Indian Agent. This council settles all disputes arising among the inhabitants and in case of failure to pay any fines imposed upon a culprit, the guilty one is sent down to Hazelton for a jail sentence.

Farming is carried on to a sufficient extent to supply their needs and the products of the soil, together with the salmon taken rrom the river provide nearly all their requirements.

The missionary in charge, Rev. W. H. Pierce of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has been on the Skeena River for twenty-six years, engaged in the work of educating and improving the condition of the Indians as well as giving religious instruction. The present condition of the Indians, not only at Kispiox but all along the river, speaks volumes for the work done by the missionaries toward improving the living condition of the Indians.

Under the tutelage of Rev. Pierce industries have been established of which the most important is the saw mill of twenty-seven horse power. This is a co-operative institution and the shares are all owned by Indians of the reservation, except a few which are owned at Hazelton. Logging in the winter time and running the mill in the summer keeps a number of men busy. The product of this mill supplies all the needs of the reservation for building material, the other Indian villages lower down the Skeena and the town of Hazelton. The demand for lumber is increasing, and it is proposed to meet it by installing a new and larger plant early next season. The machinery is to be purchased this coming winter and everything will be in readiness to receive it as soon as it can be shipped up the river in the spring.

Three stores, owned by separate co-operative associations among the Indians are now doing business on the reservation and another store is being built at Hazelton. These, as well as the saw mill, are conducted entirely by the Indians without any interference by white men.

The large area of coal lands which had been held for eight years by the Indians have been sold to a strong company, composed of Victoria and Vancouver capitalists. Work on these properties is to be commenced in earnest next season and the mines developed with a large force of men. At the present time the Indians are filling small orders for coal from these mines, bringing the coal down the river by canoe. As a domestic coal, tests have shown it to be superior to the best coal mined on Vancouver Island.

With a wagon road into the Kispiox Valley and a bridge across the Skeena, expected improvement for next year, coal will be sold at Hazelton as fuel in competition with wood.

In regard to the present shortage of lumber it might be as well to state here the Indians' side of the story. When the change in the timber regulations was made last winter it was proposed to charge the Indians, or any one else for that matter, fifty dollars each for a hand logger's licence. This was considered prohibitive and no logging was done. Representations were made to the authorities at Victoria and by the time the licence restriction was modified the season was so far gone that no supply of logs could be cut and hauled out of the woods. At present the tax on lumbering by Indians is a royalty of fifty cents per thousand on all logs cut and one per cent of the sales of lumber. Under these conditions preparations are being made this fall for a large output the coming winter and with next spring an endeavor will be made to meet all demands for lumber so far as can be anticipated.
