HE SPOKE OF WM. GLADSTONE

INSPIRING LECTURE GIVEN BY MR. W. E. WILLIAMS, B. A.

Presbyterian Club Listens to Entertaining and Instructive Sketch of the Great English Stateman's Career—Lecture May be Repeated.

Those members of the Presbyterian Club who braved the storm last night were rewarded by hearing an inspiring address on William Ewart Gladstone. The lecturer was Mr. W. E. Williams, B. A., and his graphic, well balanced and fact-crammed address won for him the warm appreciation of the audience. The hope was expressed after the close of the meeting, that an opportunity might be given for the citizens at large to hear the address. It is probable Mr. Williams will be asked to repeat the lecture.

Avoiding the usual chronological mode of biography, Mr. Williams, after a sketch of the great commoner's parentage, home life and university career deal with his subject analytically.

Especially he emphasised the motive power of the great life, the unsparingness of study, the self discipline, the tremendous moral earnestness and wholesouled devotion which Gladstone brought to any cause he espoused. In the remark written late in life, of his university career, "I am glad I went to Oxford, she taught me to seek truth," the lecturer found one of the great elements of Gladstone's greatness.

At the close of the lecture, and before the usual tea and cake appeared, the members took part in an informal discussion of the subject. Mr. Naden told some Gladstonian anecdotes; Mr. W.G. Dennis told of how as a boy he helped to serenade the "grand old man" as member of a tin-can brigade in the Midlothian campaign, Mr. J. S. Cowper gave some reminiscences of Mr. Gladstone's last great speech, that on the Armenian atrociti s.

Despite the storm, the evenin was voted one of the most successful in the club's history.

WEDDING BELLS AT MASSETT

REV. WILLIAM HOGAN HAS HAD A BUSY MONTH

Married Five Couples in January—Captain Daniel Stanley, Pioneer Navigator, Ventures on Sea of Matrimony—Five Hundred Guests at Present.

(Special Correspondence)

Massett, Feb. 8.—Rev. Wm. Hogan has been kept busy during the month of January uniting several of the residents of Massett Inlet, in the bonds of matrimony. No less than five couples decided to embark on the sea of married life. The last wedding was celebrated amidst the firing of cannon, while flags floated in the breeze from every flagpole. Captain Daniel Stanley, the pioneer navigator of the waters of Queen Charlotte Islands, was married on the 25th ult., to Miss Emma Spence. The wedding breakfast, provided for the four hundred guests, was a most sumptuous and elaborate affair, and was given in the town hall. Music was provided by the Massett Brass Band and dancing was indulged in until daybreak

STEWART NOT INCORPORATED

GOVERNMENT WILL NOT GRANT REQUEST AT PRESENT

Refusal Has Caused Keen Disappointment in Stewart and Surrounding Country—Means Almost a Knock to Thriving Burg.

Victoria, Feb. 8.—The government decided today not to accede to the request that Stewart become incorporated at present.

Stewart, Feb. 9.—The refusal of the government to grant incorporation to this thriving city of Northern British Columbia has caused keen disappointment among the residents and those interested in the adjoining countryside.

HARRY KINELLA ILL

Laid Up With Pleurisy Since Sunday Last

The many close friends of Harry Kinella, the young cashier in the G. T. P. freight office, will learn with regret that he is down with pleurisy. His present serious illness started with a slight chill which in time developed its dangerous form. He was at work on Sunday last when his trouble caused him to take to his bed. Since then he has been under the doctor's care.

INDIANS SHOW RAPID PROGRESS

ELECT OUR COUN ILS AT MASSETT AND SKIDEGATE

Have Their Own Public Wharves, Lighting Plant and Water Works—Are Now Thinking of Starting an Experimental Garden.

Massett, Feb. 8.—Following the example of the larger cities, the Indians of Massett and Skidegate Reserve have elected Councils and appointed committees, to oversee the many improvements contemplated in the progressive towns. In each place they hav public wharves, and streets that would e a credit to incorporated towns with thousands of inhabi ants. Each resident is taxed the sum of three dollars. The two town halls were erected b the residents, collectively, without expense for labor, and are used for all public purposes. Mas ett has a street lighting plant and Skidegate is introducing water works. The next improvement contemplated is an experimental garden.

Young Liberals' Rally

Tomorrow, (Friday) evening a eight o'clock the young Liberals of Prince Rupert intend to hold a meeting in McIntyre Hall for purposes of organisation. An educational program is to be mapped out. About eighty names are already entered. All progressive young men are invited to attend the rally.

PRINCE GEORGE BRINGS LUMBER

NINETEEN THOUSAND FEET FOR G. T. P. LINE

Prince's Late Arrival Yesterday Due to Having Coaled at Nanaimo on Her Way North—Had Good Trip Up.

The late arrival of the Prince George yesterday afternoon was the excuse for much comment among the citizens at large. Under ordinary circumstances she usually makes Prince Rupert early in the forenoon at least, whereas yesterday she did not arrive until five o'clock in the afternoon. Many were the suggestions aired as to the cause of her delay, but curiously enough, so great is the public confidence in the calibre of the steamer, none was heard to suggest the fear that she had encountered a mishap. And that confidence was amply repaid when the Prince steamed gracefully up the harbor in the afternoon.

The idea that gained ascendancy with most people was that she had stopped at some port on the way up and was delayed in taking water aboard, since the wish had gone forth during her last visit to Rupert that the company's boats water elsewhere during the present shortage in the city supply.

This suggestion though feasible enough did not prove to be correct. As a matter of fact the vessel was delayed through taking on coal at Naniamo on the north bound trip. It was intended that she should coal at that port on the way down from her last visit, but owing to the snow storm then prevailing she ran late and made straight for Vancouver with the result that she had to call on the way up.

In addition to the mixed freight cargo which she had aboard she brought up a big consignment of lumber for Messrs. Foley, Welch & Stewart. The lumber which was brought from Vancouver amounted to 19.518 feet. The lumber which is known as sheet piling is partly dressed. It will be utilised in the making of concrete forms for the bridges on the G. T. P. line. The lumber will be taken up the line as early as possible so that the work of building will not be retarded more than is necessary on account of the wretched weather.

HOW THE COTTAGE CITY WAS WRECKED

THRILLING STORY OF THE INCIDENT AS TOLD BY WIRELESS OPERATOR GITTING TO THE OPTIMIST

SPLENDID WORK OF U.S. REVENUE CUTTER

Snohomish Heard the Call for Help Two Hundred Miles Away and Steamed 16 Hours to the Vessel's Assistance--Passengers Terrible Experiences in the Boats---Three Year Old Baby Was in the Wreck--- Engineer's Close Call.

The story of a wreck may not be a story that will never die but it certainly is a story that dies hard. That is sufficient excuse for retailing a full account of the disaster which befell the Cottage City while returning from her last trip north; that, and the additional reason that the account is given specially to the Optimist by Mr. Gitting, the wireless operator of the defunct vessel, who is now acting in the same capacity on board the Romona which is taking the place of the other on the Seattle-Prince Rupert-Skagway run, and again because it illustrates the tremendous boom to humanity which the perfection of the wireless means. The story is certainly one of moving incidents and hairbreadth escapes, and can therefore be better be told in the words of the operator than in any other.

Rushed on Rocks

"We went ashore on the rocks near Cape Mudge about two o'clock in the afternoon. We were driven ashore by a raging snowstorm which blinded everything. Not more than fifteen minutes after we struck the clouds cleared and the sun came out, as if to admire the mischief his absence had wrought the vessel. Although the upper elements had ceased their violent exercise the lower ones did not. The sea seemed to have an accession of vigor when the wind and snow stopped. In a few more minutes a tremendous sea was running, with what wind there was blowing from the south east.

he Distress Signal

"Recognising that the ship was in great danger I went on to the bridge to confer with the captain. That was at 2.25 p.m. As a result of that consultation with Captain Jansen I returned to my operating room and flashed the S. O. S. From that time until ten minutes past three I continued to flash the signal across the wind and water. In each case the distress signal was followed by the location of the vessel, in this wise: 'Cottage City aground abreast of Cape Mudge, pounding very hard. Passengers being put in the boats.'

Leaving the Ship

"At 3.10 we heard Cape Lazo and they flashed the information to Point Grey and Victoria. At 3.20 we were able to tell Cape Lazo that the passengers had all left the boat and that the crew was now leaving. After again consulting with the captain I left the ship in the last boat. There were then sixteen people still aboard the doomed vessel, including Captain Jansen, the pilot captain Crockett, chief engineer Robinson, second engineer Callow, the cabin boy Tracy and a number of the crew. It had been arranged beforehand that if the third officer Marshall should make a safe landing with his load of passengers he would return to the ship and take off the remainder. When all the boats were away from the ship and the party of sixteen were absolutely without help in a terrific storm they cut loose one of the rafts to have it in readiness for the return of the boat. It was intended, as they could not all get into the boat, to tow the raft along.

Chief Engineer Overboard

"In due time, although it seemed interminable to the men who were waiting on the lost ship, the boat came back. The raft was towed on to her and everyone got off from the living grave which the Cottage City was by that time developing into. The raft was tossed about in the waters like a cork. Chief engineer, Mr. Robinson, lost his balance and fell overboard. His fall came very near a tragedy. The others in the boat and in the raft could not reach him in the trough of the waters so rather than risk more lives the tow rope was cut from the raft. In this way the men on the raft were able to pick up the chief engineer who apart from the ducking did not seem to mind the

TWO HUNDRED SETTLERS UNABLE TO FIND HOMES

Government Policy of Looking After Coal and Timber Interests Retards th Settlement of Graham Island —Five Germans Arrive.

(Special Correspondence)

Massett, Feb. 8.—Five natives of Germany arrived on Massett Inlet recently, to take up pre-emptions. They are attempting to unravel the problem which besets all new-comers in locating o Graham Island from the numerous blue prints now extant. Four others pre-emptors have been cruising land in every direction; but are not certain whether the coal and timber locations cover the ground on which they desire to pre-empt. There is no person in the Inlet in a position to give information, and over two hundred prospective settlers were unable to find homes, during the past year through the blundering way in which the lands are handled.

THE COSY CORNER

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

Cultivate Friendliness

When a truly great man or woman dies, it will usually be found that a tremendous mass of admiring testimony comes in to show how many lives he or she has touched with a really friendly hand.

Every woman can have the power of friendliness. Most women neglect it. It seems to be the nature of nine women out of ten, when they have a family and a household around them, to be careless about outsiders.

Friendliness is fundamental, if one can get it. From cats and dogs up to kings and queens, every creature wants a friend if it can get—and trust—one. Be a friend, and friends will spring up. A woman whose influence was felt more widely every year in public things died not long ago in an Eastern city. A magnificent bunch of roses was sent to her funeral, bearing the card, "From a friend," and it was found to have come from an Italian in the market, who sold fruit and vegetables, and with whom she had only dealt for a few years. He had felt the power of her friendliness, alien though he was in race and speech. It was said of another, a woman of great social gifts, that she was always perfectly and equally at ease, whether meeting a street child or a President. They were all "just folks" to her, and so she won them all.

The Law and the Ladies

Bills have been introduced in the legislatures of Kansas and Massachusetts regulating the dress of women. In each case the design is to put a stop to what the authors of the bills deem immodesty. Short bathing skirts, decollete gowns, stage tights and clocked stockings are all put under the ban.

It is not likely either measure will be enacted. Neither Kansas nor Massachusetts has yet reached the point of regulating feminine garments by legislation. But the fact that such propositions are presented in one or more legislatures every year is an illustration of the extent to which some men think women ought to be continually supervised and controlled.

The same spirit is shown in the rules of some hotels that forbid women to smoke cigarettes in rooms or roof gardens where men are permitted to smoke. Woman has long since been emancipated from the harem, but there is still a tendency to keep her hobbled in public.

Emergency Medicine Chest

There should be in every house a small chest or box containing such articles as a mother or doctor would need for instant use when something alarming or unforseen has happened in the nursery. To have to begin to look for things when a child is cut or bruised or fainting from pain is a desperate feeling indeed, and it is best to be prepared beforehand for the little emergencies that are only too likely to arise.

Such a box should contain a large quantity of absorbent cotton, a small bottle of brandy or whiskey, and one of aromatic spirits of ammonia; a spool of adhesive plaster two inches wide, court plaster, several rolls of two-inch gauze bandages, a large handkerchief for a sling, scissors, safety pins, medicine glass, medicine dropper, cosmoline, a hot water bag, an ice bag, a bottle of some antiseptic lotion, and a graduated measuring glass.

OUR DAILY RECIPE

Butterfly Cake

Four ounces of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, four ounces of sugar, three ounces of mixed ginger, cherries angelica and blanched almonds, four ounces of butter, two eggs. Cream the butter and sugar together until very light, add the flour sieved with baking powder, the mixed ginger, cherries, angelica and almonds, and, lastly the well-beaten up eggs. Put the mixture into a greased and floured cake tin and bake for half an hour in a moderate oven.

WRECKED ON ALASKAN COAST

WIRELESS BRINGS RESCUE TO TO RESCUE OF VICTORIA

Ran on the Rocks South of Cape Hinchinbrook in a Snow Storm—Vessel's Bow Rent—Passengers Taken to Cordova.

(Special to the Optimist)

Seattle, Feb. 9.—The wrecking of the Alaska steamship company's steamer Victoria proved to be another victory for the wireless. The vessel ran upon the rocks about a mile south of Cape Hinchinbrook in a thich snow storm. The vessel smashed her bow badly and started to fill. The rising tide lifted the vessel from the rocks. When it was found that she floated all right Captain Davis rushed her to Nuchuck Bay. Finding there that she might not hold out long and knowing that the lives of the passengers were in his hands he used the wireless for aid.

The Bertha which happened to be buffetting about in the same locality picked up the message and made for the distressed vessel. On coming alongside of her the passengers and mails were transferred and taken to Cordova.

CANADA GRAIN ACT PROVIDES DRASTIC PUNISHMENT

Minimum Penalty for Mixing Grain at Terminal Elevators is $5,000, Maximum $20,000 and Two Years' Imprisonment.

(Special to the Optimist)

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—The Canada Grain Act, which was introduced to the Senate by Sir William Cartwright today is the most drastic piece of legislation that has ever been drawn up affecting the grain industry of this country. By the provisions of the Act a commission of three is created. They hold office for ten years and have all the powers of administration conferred exclusively upon them. Under the Act the minimum penalty for mixing grain at the terminal elevators is fixed at $5,000, and the maximum for this not uncommon offence is two years' imprisonment with a fine of $20,000. Under the Act the officers of corporations are liable as well as the corporation itself. The bill which is based on the principles of the Minnesota Grain Act will facilitate the free movement of the Canadian grain to the United States in the event of the reciprocity agreement carrying.

WHY JOHN JARDINE TURNED CONSERVATIVE

John Oliver, President of B. C. Liberal Association, Accuses Him of Turning Because Party Denounced His Grafting---Makes Direct Accusation and Invites Jardine to Take Him to Court for Prooof---Gives Some Straight Talk

In the course of a speech made at the annual meeting of the Esquimalt District Liberal Association last week John Oliver, president of the British Columbia Liberal Association, laid before John Jardine's electors the real reason for their representative's withdrawal from the Liberal party, and for his dastardly assault upon the Minister of Mines in the Victoria office of the Federal Public Works Department last autumn. Mr. Oliver, discussing the matter said:

Jardine's Graft

"What is at the bottom of this assault? I tell you tonight of what I know, of the things of which I hold the evidence. The reason for this assault on William Templeman was that at that very time and that very place William Templeman was stopping the graft of John Jardine (loud cheers and cries 'that is true'). I tell you, my friends, that in what I say tonight I am not fenced in by the privileges of the floor of parliament, where a man is free from being taken into the courts for what he says. I stand here tonight with the honorable position I hold as president of the British Columbia Liberal Association and with the property accumulations of my life to back it, and I say to you that the cause of that assault was that William Templeman was taking steps at that time to put an end to the grafting of John Jardine.

Thousands of Dollars

"John Jardine, when he was elected in 1907, claimed that he lost work on account of his position as a Liberal representative. He appealed to the Public Works Department and was given work at the Quarantine station. He was authorized to do work to a certain extent. He went on and did work and put in claims—I am speaking conservatively—to the extent of several thousand dollars in excess of the cost of the work he was authorized to do ('that is right'). He received that money without the knowledge of the government, and William Templeman, having learned of that, went to the official who paid that money and wanted to know what authority he had to pay that without authorization, and his demand for an explanation led up to the assault. If Mr. Jardine disputes this let him take me into the courts of the land and he can find the proof.

Sell Party Any Time

"Is this the only thing? What has been the cry of your representative ever since the last election? Is it not that he has not been fairly treated by the Liberal Party; is that not the cry? (yes'). Has he not been making that cry? ('yes'). He declared yesterday that he had been making financial sacrifices and gave that as a reason why he wanted the leadership—to improve his financial position. After last session I received information that Mr. Jardine was complaining about not getting assistance from the Liberal party in paying his election expenses, and a man told me one day that there were two Liberals in the legislature and that 'Dick could have one of them any time he liked to pay his bills.'

Proofs of Graft

"There are accounts for the last provincial election in the Esquimalt district which he placed in my hands last September, and put it up to me to discharge. I stand here tonight and tell you, the Liberal electors of Esquimalt who elected Mr. Jardine as your representative, that, whether intentionally or unintentionally, these accounts are padded to the extent of hundreds of dollars. Do you know what that means? I will put it plainer. John Jardine represented his expenses to be hundreds of dollars more than what they were and tried to get the Liberal party to pay him this large sum in excess of what he spent. Do you understand? Is it plain enough? Is it plain enough to found an action at law upon? If it is let John Jardine start it tomorrow and I will stay here and give him the proofs.

A Public Duty

"I regret to have to make this statement but I refuse to allow such a man to villify the party of which I am the head. It is a duty forced upon me and I have to perform it. That is the position; that is the true position; that is why John Jardine is a Conservative today and is supporting the McBride government."

POWER PLANT IS INSURED

SCALE OF CHARGES OFF FOR ELECTRICITY

Alderman Newton Wonders How System Will Pay on Basis Decided On—General Laugh Convinces Him of His Error.

$10,000 insurance will be placed over the new electric power plant. This necessary action was taken on the recommendation of the light and telephone committee. The following scale of charges for the electricity was also recommended and adopted; meter charge 18 cents per K.W., with discount of 20 per cent if paid by the 15th of the month following that in which the current was used; minimum charge of $1 per month, exclusive of meter rent.

Alderman Newton was wondering how the system was going to pay on that basis. It struck him as being rather cheap. That this view was not general was demonstrated in the general laugh which the innocent remark created. It was stated that up till now the plant had cost $28,000.

Where Britain Is Truly Great

The admirable address of Mr. W. E. Williams on William Ewart Gladstone at the Presbyterian Club last night, eagerly listened to by an audience composed for the most part of young men, was but another illustration of the imperishableness of a strong good life. Whatever the theologians and the metaphysicians can arrive at as to man's future state, the fact is obvious, a good man's life repeats itself in the lives of others. There is a spiritual genealogy, as well as a physical. A good life reproduces itself. No man is dead and gone whose work lives on, or the recital of whose deeds can stir after generations to emulation.

It is a platitude to say that Britain owes much to her great men. Every nation owes everything to her men and women. There is no other original wealth As Whitman has said:

"The greatest city is that which has the greatest man or woman:
Though it be but a few ragged huts it is still the greatest city in the world."

The aspect in which Britain has been pre-eminently blessed in her public men is in the rounded fullness of many of their lives. Politics and statecraft is an absorbing pursuit, far beyond the demands of the average man's special work. In our own Dominion we are apt to look upon it as requiring a special type of man, possessing peculiar qualities of craft and tact. Erudition is considered almost as a handicap; a passionate adherence to moral impulse, a positive disqualification for "practical politics."

Gladstone is only one among many of Britain's great sons who have showed that erudition and moral impulse are necessary to the highest usefulness to party and the state. In remembering Gladstone as the force behind Reform Bills and Budgets, we forget the author of "The Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture;" in remembering the late Lord Salisbury's great leadership of the Conservative party in England we forget his chemical research at Hatfield. Even the volatile "Dizzy," for so long Gladstone's great protagonist, achieved fame as a brilliant novelist before he became a brilliant Parliamentary leader.

The age of giants has not passed in Britain. Haldane, Augustine Birrell, John Morley and possibly Churchill too would all have been conspicuous figures without their Cabinet reputations, while Mr. Balfour with his "Foundations of Belief," has showed his calibre, like Gladstone, in the field of metaphysics. A Canadian, now resident in Prince Rupert, was surprised in visiting London during the heat of campaign of 1910, to find that every now and then Mr. Balfour would drop out of the campaign for a day to run down to Cambridge where he was delivering a course of leccures on the Aesthetic in Letters and Art. But British political life is full of such surprises.

For showing to the world splendid examples of a well rounded life in her public men, the mother of Parliaments, has set an example to her children over the seas.

Some Well Deserved Praise

For their part in the rescue of the three unfortunate castaways on Zayas Island on Sunday, Captain Wearmouth and the officers and crew of the Prince Albert are worthy of the sincere thanks of the community. Had it not been for their efforts a tragedy which would have darkened two homes, and robbed the community of three useful lives, would undoubtedly have taken place.

It would have been an easy matter for Captain Wearmouth to have steamed on his course without stopping to investigate the bonfire he saw in the dark on the lonely island. It was none of his business. It probably was capable of some explanation. Running a steamship is not philanthrophy. His duty to his employers is to make the best passages with the least delays possible. There was the danger to his own vessel in laying to. There were a hundred easy excuses with which he might have absolved his conscience for continuing his journey and ignoring the flame on the headland.

In deciding to stop his ship and satisfy his conscience that the strange fire on Zayas Island was not the feeble effort of some unfortunate crew of castaways trying to attract attention, Captain Wearmouth was true to the best traditions for humane feeling, that the men of the British merchantile marine are everywhere honored for.

Had it not been for the action of Captain Wearmouth and the officers and crew of the Prince Albert, it is morally certain there would have been three lonely corpses on Zayas Island, and two orphaned families in our midst.

COTTAGE CITY WRECK STORY

incident which had nearly cost him his life.

Adrift on a Raft

"Immediately the line was cut the raft disappeared from view in the gathering dusk and was not seen again till everyone was safely ashore. The last boat to leave the ship reached the lighthouse at 9 o'clock, having taken two and a half hours to make the three miles lying between the wreck and that place of refuge. The raft passengers had a much tougher passage than the other but they too landed in safety after drifting aimlessly about for some considerable time. It was 10.30 before they were literally blown into Willow Point Reef near where the vessel struck originally.

Reunion at Lighthouse

"On making the shore each boat load made directly for the lighthouse. It was there that all the dread fears of others were entertained and expressed until nearly eleven o'clock at night when the raft passengers, who were first reported to be lost, joined the party and dissipated all anxiety. It was a most happy reunion. People who had scarcely spoken two words to each other in their lives exchanged experiences and sensations like brothers. The lighthouse was crammed like a sardine can. Sixty people supped there that night and sixty-eight breakfasted the next morning.

Hero or Heroine

"The hero—or it may be heroine—of the wreck was Mrs. Johnston's three year old baby. 'It' preserved an even temper and a jovial disposition throughout the trying experience, and smiled back the lagging confidence of many of its elders in the party. During the trip from the vessel to the shore it was passed into many strange hands but enjoyed rather than objected to the novelty of distributing its favors.

Praise for Snohomish

Another noteworthy feature connected with the wreck was the flying effort of the U. S. revenue cutter Snohomish to stand by the vessel. When she picked up the message she was down off Cape Flattery, over two hundred miles distant and yet she was alongside of the Cottage City in sixteen hours, fifteen minutes. The officers of the revenue cutter treated the passengers with splendid courtesy. They gave up their berths and food in order that they might have the best until they reached Victoria.

The Romono

"The Romono, which is now on the Cottage City's run has been laid up in Seattle for some time. She was in Prince Rupert once before. It was last year when she was on the Bankers' expedition. In outward appearance she resembles the Cottage City but differs from her in that she is described as "ocean-going." Her staterooms instead of opening on the outside as in the case of the City open on the inside."

CHILDREN ARE SOLD AS FODDER

GRUESOME STORIES FROM THE PLAGUE STRICKEN CHINA

Two and a Half Million People Affected by Famine at Kiang Su—Diseased Persons Fleeing from Country—Spreading Pestilence.

Nanking, China, Feb. 7.—Declarations that 2,500,000 people are affected by famine in Kiang Su and Anhui province, and that children are being sold for food by famishing thousands, are made here today by missionaries who have just arrived from the stricken region.

Tales of shocking conditions in the famine country are told by the missionaries, and many of the details are unprintable. Two hundred thousand families, they say, are without food, shelter or clothing, and in the rural districts, the unburied dead line the roadways and famine, fever and loathsome diseases are decimating the gaunt and starving victims.

The famine is due to a flood of the Kwai river, which destroyed all the crops in the region which is almost inaccessible to relief. Thousands of the inhabitants are migrating to the south and a spread of the pestilence which has gripped the fever victims is feared throughout the sections to which they are fleeing.

Foreign subscriptions in aid of the famine sufferers are being expended by relief committees here and in Shanghai but the money thus far received is only a drop in the bucket to what is needed.

The government is doing what it can to meet the situation, but its available funds are limited and the only sustenance the refugees are receiving consists of rice gruel, barley sufficient to keep them alive.

CHIPS FROM THE HUMORISTS

"Don't forget," said the ready-made philosopher, "that there is always room at the top."

"I'm working the other way," replied Mr. Growcher. "What I'm interested in is a mining proposition."

"I made a horrible break at the club last night. I asked Ashby how his wife was."

"Mercy Hadn't you heard that they had been divorced?"

"No. It was all news to me."

"What did he say?"

"He replied that she was still able to sit up and sign the alimony receipts."

He—Shall we sit out this dance?

She—Oh, no; I can't stand sitting down during a dance

Police Justice—You slugged him because he called you a blithering idiot, did you?

Prisoner—Yes, y'r honor; I didn't know jist what he meant by "blitherin'," and I wasn't goin' to take chances.

When a public official imagines he's a big gun he should be fired.

It is always advisable to know something about what you are trying to teach.

But a woman never tells all she hears—probably because she has two ears and only one tongue.

You never really know a woman until you see her in action near a crowded bargain counter.

If the good die young, must we suppose the bad become oldest inhabitants and lie about their ages, the weather, and sundry other things?

C. P. R. EXEMPT IN ALBERTA

JUDGMENT OF PRIVY COUNCIL IN LON ON

Judges Held that Unoccupied Lands Are not Taxable Until Twenty Years after Grant of Letters Patent—Decision Causes Regret.

London, Feb. 7.—Jugdment has been given by the Privy Council in the important case of the Minister of Public Works of the province of Alberta against the C. P. R., respondents, with the Attorney-General of Saskatchewan intervening. This was a test case regarding the exemption of the C. P. R. lands from taxation, and resulted in a win for the railway company all along the line, the case being dismissed without costs.

Their Lordships held that unoccupied lands were not taxable until twenty years after the actual grant of letters patent to the settler, even should there be a delay of many years on his part in taking out these letters patent. They also held that C. P. R. lands sold on the instalment plan are not taxable until all the instalments are paid.

Winnipeg, Feb. 7.—The failure o the test case of the province of Alberta before the Privy Council regardnig the taxation of C. P. R. lands will be widely regretted in the prairie provinces, practically every municipality and school district being affected. It is expected that official statements of the attitude of the law departments of the three provinces will be forthcoming, but well informed people here seem to consider the judgment as final. A further rise in C. P. R. lands is anticipated.

Turkish Baths

On and after Saturday, February 11, our Turkish Baths will be in operation and offer the public all the comforts and scientific results obtainable in a well appointed bath. We are in a position to give Turkish, vapor, steam, dry heat, Russian, shower or plain tub baths. The attendant having a thorough training and long experience in Battle Creek Sanitarium and various Turkish bath parlors. Special treatment for colds and any other ills that succomb to steam or dry heat and proper cooling rooms. We invite inspection.—Dominion Baths, Second Avenue and Seventh Street, H. A.
