C. P. R. Orders a Duplicate of the Princess Adelaide for the Northern Run---C. N. R. Will Also Put Two Steamers on a Weekly Service

There is every probability that during next summer Prince Rupert, the seat of the great last west will have a daily steamship service with Vancouver and the south. This almost startling development is made possible by the announcement that the Canadian Pacific company has duplicated its order for another Princess Adelaide to ply between Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Stewart.

The Adelaide

The Adelaide was built by the Fairfield Shipbuilding & Engineering company and on her trials she made an average speed of 18.25 knots. She sailed from the Clyde on October 4, and arrived at Victoria on December 16 Captain Lindgren, formerly skipper of the Mexican liner Lonsdale, brought her out. She is 290 feet long, 46 feet boom and 17 feet deep. She is constructed of steel throughout, with cellular double bottom, two watertight flats and is practically unsinkable.

Perfect Replica

The order for the duplication was wired to the builders almost immediately the Princess Adelaide was seen in Pacific waters. Her style was so much above reproach and her utility so obvious that

CHINAMAN BADLY BEATEN BY A COUPLE OF THUGS

Mah Ling Was Set Upon on Comox Avenue Last Night and Beaten Up---His Wad of Bills Containing About $45 is Missing

A Chinaman named Mah Ling met with disaster last night. He was wending his homeward way along the straight and narrow path of Comox avenue picking his steps with care, when suddenly two dark figures loomed up against the snow from behind him and the next he knew he was twirled round, jostled, and assaulted roughly.

Mah Ling hit back and held his own on the plankway, and the conversation between the contestants was choicely expressed. Breaking away from his assailants the Oreintal hurried on to Fulton street.

Just there he was overtaken by the two shadowdy ones, and in great alarm he tried to guard himself. Blows and more abuse were bandied. A minute later Mah Ling found himself sailing through the air off the sidewalk headfirst into a four-foot snow drift. When he emerged his assailants were gone.

Later, the Chinaman discovered that a roll of bills, about $45 he says, had also gone. Whether he was robbed or whether he simply lost the wad in the topsy turvy stunt he did in the snow drift is not certain. Mah Ling who has a bad black eye and has been mauled quite a bit, has put the matter in the hands of the police.

By taking the fastest steamers and trains he may travel from London to Seattle in a little more than nine days. Tsurga is said to be becoming a port of vast importance, and the trans-Siberian railroad is handling an enormous volume of traffic.

INQUEST FRIDAY NIGHT

Victim of Rock Accident Died From Own Negligence

At the inquest held Friday night on Rade Maslovitch crushed by a falling rock in the First avenue grade cut at Water street, the jury decided that deceased met his death through negligence on his own part.

It was clearly estabilised from the evidence of Tom Mazlum, Rade Csipovitch and Jos. Mazdum that though there was time for him to have got off the rock as it began to move, Maslovitch had stayed with it thinking it would simply slide to the bottom of the cut. Instead, it turned completely over carrying him down and crushing him to death.

It was not established that deceased's sweater had caught in the drill he was holding.

REV. W. F. KERR PREACHES SERMON ON THE SOCIAL EVIL

Thinks This Paper Had No Business to Report the Gosden Incident or to Add That the Speech Made a Favorable Impression.

The Rev. F. W. Kerr preached a sermon upon "the social evil" to a large congregation in the First Presbyterian Church of Prince Rupert last night in the course of which he criticised a paragraph which appeared in the Optimist some time ago in a report of one of the municipal campaign meetings.

The paragraph referred to was that which reported a Mr. Gosden defending his action earning his living as a dishwasher in a restaurant down the dead line. The Rev. Mr. Kerr said "that for a paper to give publicity to the statements of a man from the segregated district who defended his working there by declaring that it was a part of the social system shows to my mind exceedingly bad judgment and bad taste, especially when the comment is added that the speech made a favorable impression. The tenderloin of Prince Rupert is no more a part of the social system than barnacles are a part of the ship."

BIG FIRE ON THIRD AVENUE

BOARDING HOUSE OF MRS. HAUDENSCHILD GOES UP IN SMOKE BEFORE EIGHT O'CLOCK THIS MORNING

BOARDER MADE A LEAP FOR LIFE

Fire Brigade Got Smartly to the Scene, but Owing to the Lack of Water Pressure Was of No Service--Absence of Breeze Fortunately Prevented Flames from Spreading to the Electric Light Plant.

What is without doubt the biggest and most dangerous fire that has visited Prince Rupert since incorporation broke out this morning and completely destroyed a two storeyed house belonging to Mr. Haudenschild on Third avenue about two blocks east of McBride street and within about thirty feet of the new electric light plant. The building which was a wooden structure succumbed to the flames like matchwood and the residents had to make an expeditious exit. One of the boarders roused from his bed just in time, took a life and death chance by leaping from the second storey through the dense smoke on to the slush and snow below. Fortunately he was uninjured. Through the smart work of Miss Haudenschild, one of the daughters of the house, a considerable portion of the furniture located on the basement floor was saved.

Began at the Top

The fire stared in the top floor, and from all accounts it had its beginning in the room occupied by a negro lodger. Rising about seven o'clock he lit the fire to cook himself a meal. After he had eaten and gone to his work the fire began to emit sparks, and it is believed one of these first ignited some paper in the room, and that in turn set the woodwork in flame. Certain it is at any rate that the fire began in that room. All unconscious of the danger the other residents of the house slumbered on. The flames got a hold of the pannelling and ate their way to the roof. A small blaze very soon served to indicate to outsiders that the house was on fire.

The Alarm and Rescue

Young Kelly who chanced to be on the spot noticed the flame and understood its purport. He at once raised the alarm and then phoned to the fire brigade. In a few minutes the house was in uproar. There were eight people in the house at the time, Mrs. Haudenschild her son and daughter, and five boarders. The daughter Sophie rose hurriedly, and arrayed in deshabile began to carry out the valuables and place them outside in safety. With the assistance of her brother and one or two of the other men she managed to save the piano and a large quantity of the other furniture on the basement floor.

In the desperate hurry they had not time to take them far, so the pieces were left at various distances decorating the undulating snow field.

A Leap for Life

One tall Frenchman who slept in the house did not hear the first alarm and one of his mates rushed up stairs through the volumes of smoke and spits of flame to rouse him. By that time the tall one was awake, and in a terrible state of exceitment. Through the dense clouds of smoke it was impossible to see anything and he came to the conclusion that the fire was working up instead of down. His only escape seemed to be by the window. He was a big man, in every respect. He threw the window open. Realizing that his only hope lay in a leap in the dark he gathered his courage about him, got on the outside of the casement, and threw himself trustingly to the earth. His luck was in. He alighted in the snow and sustained very little hurt.

Thought He Was Dead

Seen later by an Optimist reporter about his daring escapade, he smiled, and in his broken but pleasant way explained that it was his only chance of escaping from the burning house. He said he thought he was surely dead when he fell. In spite of that he is very much alive, though the fire means a loss to him of at least a hundred dollars which he had in clothes and cash.

A Cherished Trophy

Another of the men who succeeded in saving his skin and little more, was seen fondling a small book as if he cherished it more than all the world, which in a sense he probably did. He submitted the book to the examination of the inquisitive reporter who dis-

Is Women Suffrage Important

The industrial era—for all the ill we say of it, we must say this great good, that it has made possible and inevitable the physical, and social, and moral, and intellectual liberation of women. The simplification of home life through invention and manufacture, the growth of large cities with their popular education, and above all the division of labor, have given her a free place in the active world. This fact is the distinctive feature of these ages. To a distant and universal historian—a historian who writes the lives of the people—that change in the position of women will appear, not only the most striking, but the most excellent achievement of ours. For we will never evolve a heroic race of people on the earth until we give them a twofold inheritance and tradition of active, intelligent virtue. That we have begun to do. And no act at the present time can more urge and certify this great step in the history of life than to give it a political expression and guarantee. Citizenship will rouse and educate women, it will develop our ideal of them; therefore, it is a dominant necessity of advancing civilization that they have it.—The North American Review.

Happy Marriage Recipe

The experience of a married couple who have lived together for 70 years in New York without a quarrel possesses a practical value which outweighs any amount of theorising. "We just loved each other, and that was all there was to it," said the wife when asked the secret of the couple's happiness. But the true recipe seems to be contained in the husband's remark that "he minded his own business while she tended to her own affairs." In this simple policy of non-interference is comprised all the philosophy not only of happy marriages, but of harmonious human relations in the broader sense. A general application of the policy is all that is needed to make marriage a blessing, and not a curse.

TAKING A COLLEGE COURSE

"Mother, may I go out to school,
Go to a woman's college?
For every girl goes as a rule,
To gather special knowledge.
She goes away from friends and home
With all her gems and laces,
The halls and campuses to roam
And other classic places."

"What! Would you go away to school?
Would you my little daughter,
There to drink at the knowledge pool,
Of wisdom's sparkling water?
Would you sit there at night alone,
Over your studies poring,
Making the ancient lore your own,
In all your classes scoring?"

"Why, mother, mother, how you talk
Of lore and stuff and knowledge!
Just in the classic halls I'd walk
Of some swell woman's college;
There I would wear the college pin
And as the gay year passes,
Through all the games and spreads I'd spin
And not go near the classes!"

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To Iron Shirtwaists

Iron the collar band first on the right side, then on the wrong, till perfectly dry. Next turn the waist inside out and lay it on the board with the back down; the right side of the waist will be up. Begin to iron between shoulders to collar, across back to sleeves, around neck across shoulder seams toward fronts to about same depth as across back. This gives the right bulge to front of shoulders. Then turn the waist around and iron the remainder of fronts; turn back again and iron remainder of back and under arms. Finally iron a cuff and up on the sleeve opening until almost dry, then turn the sleeve right side out, finish cuff, and iron sleeve. If you follow these directions the waist will be right side out when the last sleeve is turned, and will not be wrinkled.

GOWGANDA TRAPPER MEETS A TERRIBLE FATE

Bride of a Week Nearly Demented—Her Hair Turns Gray with Fear—Found by Friends in a Terrible Condition.

(Special to the Optimist)

Cobalt, Ont., Jan. 28.—A terrible story comes from the district of Gowganda. A young trapper named Wilson was devoured by wolves. His bride of a week almost perished in the snow from exposure and fear. She had insisted upon coming with her husband to the district to stand by him in his hours of trial in the search for fortune. He went on a tour of inspection to review the condition of the traps he was operating but never returned. A friend of his named Dumont who has come into town tells how he came across a tent containing a number of cooking utensils but no trapper. Realizing that something was amiss he organized a search party and returned to the scene of the tent, making a journey of about seventy miles altogether.

On reaching the tent on this occasion they found Mrs. Wilson in a terrible condition. She was suffering from hysteria. Her beautiful chestnut hair was ashen gray. She was a broken spirited and pitiful creature to behold. On being revived she explained incoherently how she had made an effort to get to the settlement when her husband did not return. Without snowshoes she had made two miles in two days and then losing heart she returned to the tent. With the little food she had in the shack she managed to keep alive. The howling of the wolves at the door almost made her mad.

She has been taken to Gowganda. No trace of Mr. Wilson has been found, and it seems certain that he fell a prey to the wolves.

Contention of Vancouver Board of Trade Is Strictly Desired by Company—Western Rates Are Claimed to be Excessive.

(Special to the Optimist)

Montreal, Jan. 30.—The commissioners continued the hearing of the evidence in connection with the application of the Vancouver Board of Trade for an order directing the Canadian Pacific Railway. The case charges the company with alleged discrimination in the freight rates west of Lake Superior.

Mr. McInnes, the general traffic manager, denied emphatically that it was the desire of the company to destroy the natural advantages of Vancouver as a seaport. This had been alleged by the complainants. He claimed that the rates charged were fair. The western rates were higher simply because of the greater cost of operation.

DAILY EDITION. MONDAY, JAN. 30

The Victoria Comic Opera

A splendid tribute to the Federal Government's efforts to lighten the burden of food taxation on the people, is to be given on Wednesday in the Provincial Legislature, when Deputy Speaker Hayward will introduce a resolution condemning the proposed treaty. All of the members, who are favorable to corporation interests—and they are practically all of the members—will support the resolution.

As is usual among politicians, another than the real reason for their action will be given. Alarm is to be expressed over what will become of the poor people if food becomes cheap. It will be represented that the bottom will fall out of our existence, and chaos and bankruptcy result. Many who know no better will probably be deceived thereby.

Premier McBride is already reported to have said he regards the treaty as certain to work immense damage to provincial industries, agriculture, and the railways. "Poultry and eggs and such commodities from the East will be replaced by demands on California, Oregon and Washington," he says, and holds up his hands in horror at the prospect. This vision of crates of eggs and bales of turkeys and chickens coming into British Columbia without having to pay heavy tolls to the C. P. R. is a fearful one. It means that we will get more eggs and fresher, more turkeys and fatter, while the English stockholders in the C. P. R. who took $40,000,000 in profits from Canada last year will have to look mournfully out of their club windows in Pall-Mall and reflect that they can get only a ten per cent rake off on their investments. It is a sad picture.

There is only one sadder picture, that is the spectacle of a gathering of Anglo-Saxons in the twentieth century, sitting spell-bound while a politician explains to them that it is a deadly sin to eat the fruit of a tree which grows six feet to one side of the 49th parallel, and a virtue to eat the fruit of a tree that grows six feet to the other side; that the way for a community to grow rich is not to eat the things which are near at hand, but to place a heavy tax on them, and instead bring stale food products a distance of three thousand miles at great expense, paying tolls to railways and a host of middlemen on the way.

The proposals of the Federal Government to place $60,000,000 of food on the free list, directly rebating $7,000,000 of food taxes to the people and reducing thereby the cost of all food-products is one that can hurt only the corporations, who have all along relied on the tariff to keep people from buying in the natural market under the most favorable circumstances. It will lessen the profits of the corporation leeches, who have been fattening on the people's need for food. It will lessen the profits of the railway corporations who heretofore have been able to exact unnecessary tolls for transporting food for the people from a distance. But the people will benefit by cheaper and better food, and trade in general will benefit by trade being permitted to develop along natural channels.

The spectacle of Hon. Richard McBride and his satellites preparing to appear in sackcloth and ashes next Wednesday is one for the gods to laugh at.

A Bad Case of Sour Grapes

The following is the "evening knocker's" tribute to the Optimist's exclusive announcement of the purchase by an American steel corporation of a mineral tract on Louise Island for $250,000 with the view of starting an iron and steel plant in the vicinity of Prince Rupert:

"Some prominence has been given in the editorial and news columns of a contemporary, to the acquirement of a tract of iron ore deposits, so called, in the Queen Charlotte Islands. Coupled with this is the assurance that a steel plant, to rank with the most thriving on the American continent will shortly be established here. If one may judge from the expressed opinions of some of the most substantial and well informed citizens, the published statements are extremely far-fetched. The tendency to jump with such vigor at conclusions, is misleading and mischievous."

Our contemporary seems sad, after its campaign of knocking to know that money and people still insist on coming here. We venture the assertion that not one substantial or well informed citizen has made any such statement. It reads too much like the editor's opinion.

CHIPS FROM THE HUMORISTS

Richard Croker at a dinner in New York, expressed a disgust of aeroplanes.

"There's nothing underneath them," he said. "If the least thing goes wrong, down they drop."

"I said to a Londerner the other day, "How is your son getting on since he bought a flying machine?"

"'On crutches, like the rest of them," the Londoner replied."

"Doctor, I've tried everything and I can't get to sleep," complained the voice at the other end of the telephone. "Can't you do something for me?"

"Yes," said the doctor, kindly. "Just hold the wire and I'll sing you a lullaby."

Ted—Has the girl's mother intimated that she favors your suit?

Ned—Not exactly, but when we all go out in their motor car she always lets us sit together in the back seat.

"Where can I hide?" gasped the mining stock promoter as he burst into his office. "The police are coming."

"Get into the simplified card-index case," cried the chief clerk. "I defy anyone to find anything in there!"

GREAT AUTHOR'S TRAGIC DEATH

SHOT BY FRENZIED MUSICIAN WHO NURSED ILL WILL

Murderer Believed That the Novelist Had Wronged American Women in Some of His Writings—A Promising Career Closed.

New York, Jan. 28.—Mr. David Graham Phillips, the author, has lost his brave fight for life. He died in the Bellevue Hospital, a victim of Fitzhugh Coyle Goldsborough, an eccentric musician, who, although of refined tastes and aristocratic Southern stock, shot the novelist down for a fancied grievance, and then killed himself. Mr. Phillips was conscious up to within a quarter of an hour of his death.

Although the surgeons did everything in their power the end was inevitable.

It is believed, from some notes in a diary left by Goldsborough, that the assassination was the result of a belief on the part of Goldsborough that Phillips had wronged the American woman in some of his writings. This obsession grew until he shot the man he hated and sacrificed his own life.

It was a curious coincidence that while Mr. Phillips was breathing his last in the hospital room., a silent procession from a nearby undertakers was carrying the body of his assassin to the railway station in Jersey City. The casket with its load of tragedy, was put aboard a train at midnight and was shipped to Washington where the young man's remains will be buried.

Robert W. Chambers, the novelist, who had been Phillips' closest associate in New York said:

"He was one of the best of men. He was high-minded and true and one of the finest of American writers. His best work seemed yet to come. He was just finding himself and had struck a vein that promised richly for the future."

Mr. Phillips was born in Madison, Ind., in 1867, was a Princeton graduate and unmarried. He was one of the group of story tellers which includes Booth Tarkington, George Ade, Meredith Nicholson, Charles Major and many others. He had written twenty novels, many of the "best sellers" among them, and numerous magazine articles. His father was David Graham Phillips, a banker. His mother is now living in Los Agneles.

the company felt they could not do better than have her replica operating in the waters of Northern British Columbia for them.

Bi-Weekly Service

Of course it is possible that she may replace the Beatrice on the run just as the Adelaide has replaced the Charmer on the trip to Victoria, but it is regarded in shipping circles both in Prince Rupert and Vancouver that during the summer months at any rate when the trade of the coast is booming with the influx of settlers and the consequent output of material, that both the steamers will be run and will form a bi-weekly service in the same way as the Prince George and Prince Rupert of the G. T. P. are expected to do.

A Steamer Per Day

In this way the possibility of a daily service with the south looms promisingly upon the horizon. With the fleets of the G. T. P. the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern, and the Union steamship vessel, the Camosun, there will be seven regular ships making this port with passengers and freight every week.

Conditions Improving

Of course by the time the promises of today are realized many changes may have taken place in the personnel of the coasting boats of the north Pacific but it is not at all likely that whatever alterations may be made they will be any diminution in the sevice. The forecast is based upon the present conditions, and although the ships may come and go it is not to be believed that the circumstances of trade and commerce will deteriorate, the reverse order of things being much the more probable eventuation.

Will Make Trade

The very fact that these great shipping organizations have seen fit to undertake the task of developing the trade of the coast of British Columbia by putting on a service which will be more than adequate for the present demands, is not only a huge advertisement for the Province, it is a stimulant that will inevitably bring about its own reward by facilitating the trade relations of the north and the south, and thereby developing the great and inherent resources of the country.

BIG FIRE ON THIRD AVENUE

covered that it was neither in his own nor in the owner's language. The owner modestly admitted his acquaintance with several tongues. To his mind English was easy, and he spoke it with considerable facility of expression to prove it; French was also easy but the Oriental languages he admitted were hard. He was a worker who had lost practically his all in the blaze, but it seemed to disturb his "lettered heart" less than the saving of the book.

Fire Apparatus Arrives

The house belonged to Mr. Haudenschild who with his family took up residence there early in the summer of last year. At the present time he is out of town and knows nothing of his loss. To the energy and thoughtfulness of his wife he owes what little there may be left of the family possessions.

The fire brigade though early on the scene was not able to do anything to save the building.

Two Feet Pressure

In the first place the men could not get to the seat of operations on account of the street being up in that particular vicinity. By taking a roundabout route they got within a hundred yards of the fire. From there they unwound their hose but when they turned it on the fire the water only squirted about two feet from the nozzle. The sight was pitiable to behold. The attempt was useless. In any case it is questionable whether any amount of water would have saved the house by that time. If there ever was a chance however that settled it. In a very short time the wooden walls of the house fell inwards with a crash.

Electric Plant Danger

It was a most fortunate thing that the morning broke calm and windless. The new electric power plant was only thirty feet away from the burning house and a breeze might have meant its utter ruin. The man in charge of the plant awoke with a start when the fire was at its highest, and in his own words did not breathe for quite a few minutes with anxiety. He dived into his clothes with a speed that put any protean artist to shame, and rushed out to gauge the chances of contagion. And it was with a sense of personal, almost of bodily relief, that he calculated upon the safety of the station.

Building Insured

Miss Sophie Haudenschild stated that the house and gear was insured. The exact damage is impossible to estimate, but it will cover several thousand dollars.

Had a History

The house burned down this morning was one of the oldest in the Vickersville district. It has known several tenants and was the scene of the first fatal blasting accident on the townsite when the little boy Nehring lost his life when a rock came through the roof.

MEETING OF WAGE WORKER

Wage Rate and Labor Conditions Were Discussed

At last night's meeting of the Prince Rupert Industrial Association a very large gathering of the wage workers assembled, and strong sympathy was shown with the objects of the association as set forth by their various speakers.

In the discussion of the wage rate and conditions of labor in this city arguments were put forward in favor of the increase demanded. One leading speaker referring to the city council's question regarding the numerical strength of the association warned his hearers that that question betrayed their desire to ingore the demand unless the workers are banded in sufficient strength to enforce it.

The call to wage workers one and all to join in swelling the ranks of the association met with appreciative response. A membership roll of a thousand strong is looked for in the near future.

All speakers strongly impressedon the assembled workers the great essential that only by uniting can they gain the advantage of improved living conditions they are seeking.
