Bowser Is Confident Of Success At The Polls Tomorrow

Vancouver, B.C., September 12, 1916

Prince Rupert Journal, Prince Rupert, B.C.

Now that I have been in every constituency in the Province I think from my political experience I can draw a fair conclusion as to what the result Thursday will be. Giving the Liberals every seat where the contest is close I am confident the Government will have two supporters for every Liberal returned to the House. The Government's return is certain.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC SMOKER HELD

HON. WILLIAM MANSON WARMLY RECEIVED LAST EVENING

Public Meeting Will Be Held This Evening In Westholme Theatre.

An excellent smoker was given in the Conservative Committee rooms last evening when a programme of music was rendered by members of the Association.

Hon. William Manson was given a splendid reception and on the conclusion of the meeting was heartily cheered. The final rally will be in the Westholme Theatre tonight.

He told of his visits to the different parts of the constituency and the excellent receptions he had received. He found that the public was getting tired of the carping criticism of the Opposition now and was supporting the sane course of the Government.

Gosden Unearthed Plans Carried Out In Plugging Episode In Vancover Charging M. A. Macdonald With Prominent Part In It

(Special to The Journal.)

Vancouver, Sept. 12.—In the Labor Temple last night Robert Gosden electrified a capacity audience when he stated that M. A. Macdonald had offered to place his sessional indemnity in a common fund for the purpose of carrying on, in the general elections, the by-election plugging operations. Mr. Gosden's speech lasted an hour and twenty minutes.

Why He Got Job.

At times he was vigorously applauded and cheered, and during his remarks he became somewhat affected as he related how he got the job of janitor in the Parliament Buildings in Victoria.

His explanation was that his father and mother, both over eighty years of age, were threatened with the foreclosure of a mortgage and that they needed $100 to wipe that out, and by perserverance with Sir Richard McBride and Hon. Thomas Taylor he got the position, at which he worked for six weeks. Then Gosden followed with a sensational address.

Crooked Work.

He never hesitated a moment when telling, what he declared were facts. In a voice that reached every heart in the audience he told how he became connected with the plugging operations, who handled the funds, where they were obtained to carry on the plugging and the part played by Anderson and McTaggart in the affair, closing with a reference to his trial for perjury.

He admitted that what he had done was "crooked work" and he did not feel proud of it, but he was here, he said, to tell his side of the story and he did not wish to influence a single voter by his address.

Scored Macdonald.

Macdonald is a member of a party that has power over a large section of the press and he is going into every town in the Province. He has had unique opportunities and he has availed himself of them to do what is known as ultra vires. I think that means he has added contempt of court to one or two other things.

More especially is that reprehensible in a practicing lawyer who realizes more fully than you or I would the responsibility of his action and the significance of it. More especially is that so when running as he is for the office which, if successful, will make him the highest legal authority in British Columbia, and, as such, a great factor in the handling of the prosecution of myself.

He would be in the unique position, if he is successful, of having prejudiced the venires of jurymen throughout the length and breadth of the Province from which the twelve good men and true would determine my liberty.

Gosden's Undertaking.

Three weeks before the election I was working for Scott. Part of my work was to act in co-operation with Brocky Phil Robinson. The part that I and Phil were to play as teammates was, first of all to get authentic data pertaining to the whole of the workers along the waterfront.

We managed to get as near as possible the data with the means at our disposal, classified as follows: Those who were dead and in the cemetery, those who were gone to the front, those gone to Australia and many other places. They numbered many hundreds within the Union.

The Union had no knowledge of what was going on.

Dodged The Conservatives.

My business with Scott was where my own part in this crooked work comes in.

Phil's business was to show a little change and make himself a good fellow. We thought if the Conservatives had any spies around they would do what most people do under such circumstances ,they would go and look around where there is a big group of workers. The other part of my work was dealing with crooked me at the suggestion of Macdonald through Scott, through me. Macdonald was the man (Cheers) through whose brains these ideas came, with any suggestions Scott might put to it or I might put to it in the general scheme of things formulated as far

THE VOTING TOMORROW.

Tomorrow the electorate makes its choice in the matter of the Provincial Government. A message received by us from Hon. Mr. Bowser indicates that he has no doubt about the results. Certainly, if the Province votes as Prince Rupert will there would be too strong a sweep. The Conservative party will undoubtedly be returned to power and this riding will have Hon. William Manson as its representative as a Minister of the Crown. Mr. Manson should be in a position to help Prince Rupert in many respects. The electorate looking to its own interests will be ready to return the Government member.

At the election tomorrow, however, a plebiscite will be taken on the question of prohibition. It is not a plebiscite in the usual acceptation that an abstract propostion is to be voted upon. In this case a bill is before the public. On it the electorate vote as to whether it shall become law. There has been a great deal of discussion of the bill by the friends of both sides. It is undoubtedly far from being perfect.

But laying aside all these objections and admitting what few will care to advocate today—the evils of insobriety there is to our mind a danger in taking the step proposed in the bill, that of attempting prohibition. To be effective, a prohibitory liquor law or any other law for that matter must have behind it a very pronounced public opinion. British Columbia has not had such a popular feeling favorable to abolishing liquor. We have the case of the Province of Ontario where sentiment has been undergoing education along the line of prohibition for long years. Within the past few months the Government of Ontario has had it brought home to it very forcibly through two by-elections that there is a limit to which the people of that Province even will not go in the direction of total prohibition. Will the prevailing sentiment of British Columbia, and we mean by that the normal sentiment or that made manifest when the war is over and conditions become more stable and the public mind more rational, be that which will tend towards the enforcement of prohibition? We are afraid it will not. We believe a strict license law to which people have become accustomed would work to the benefit of the prohibition sentiment that a short cut like this proposed might not have for its result.

On the Woman Suffrage question the electorate is asked to vote. We have extended the franchise to the widest extent for men. In doing so we have undoubtedly taken serious risk, but it has been found difficult to establish a satisfactory test in the matter of the Suffrage. Now it is proposed to add to the voting strength, the women. We believe women should be given the vote, but it might be better to grant it by degrees rather than by a wholesale plan that would embrace practically all women. Certainly under such a mode we would favor the mothers of the land being the first to be recognized.

GOSDEN UNEARTHED PLANS

as my own knowledge was concerned.

From Scott I received my money from time to time to handle my end of the situation. Scott referred to every move and had it sanctioned by Macdonald before he would move. I never spoke to Macdonald personally during that campaign, no more than you had the ear of any of the candidates.

Voted About 1,400.

My business was to bring into this city men enough to fill the gap of 1,500 men who had gone away. My business first of all was to help get the lists.

Gosden said that one copy of the lists contained 1,500 names, and that he kept a copy of them. He added that they did not vote them all, but that there must have been at least 1,400 who did vote.

Scott asked me if I could fill a certain number, which was about 1,500.

I said yes.

He asked me how I could do it and I showed him. I said, what I want is so much money to send information to certain places and at certain times and that I would require the money to get these men.

Getting Staff Together.

What I needed money for was to send one man across the line to go into Seattle and see certain men, and go to Tacoma to pass the word to certain men who would pass it on to other men; to send a man to Revelstoke and put certain things on the freight cars that leave Vancouver. That was the work I had to do. Therefore, men who were travelling, not those who travel on cushions, could read the news where they were. In the United States or Canada that Vancouver was a place where a pile of change could be pocketed; and there were many who headed this way.

Three days before the election Macdonald tells Scott that he had reason to believe that Anderson's and McTaggart's suspicions were aroused about their operations.

Liberty Against $50.

Here Gosden was interrupted by a voice which asked:

"HOW DID YOU KNOW THAT—"

The remainder of the question being lost in the uproar that followed.

Gosden returned, he can not break the thread of my remarks for this reason, that my liberty is at stake and my liberty is my life against Macdonald's $50. (Cheers).

The uproar was renewed and there were insistent cried of "Throw him out."

Macdonald Grew Afraid.

Continuing, he said that Anderson and McTaggart were doing legitimate work, and due to this antagonism that had arisen and the magnitude of these operations which included the Seattle bunches which testified later, Macdonald was afraid, and he had reason to fear. He was afraid that, in ttheir antagonism to Scott, not himself personally, they would spring something at the last minute and jeopardize the whole thing.

He told Scott, "between us we will have to fix up something to find out just how much or how little they know, and if they do know anything to put them on a find hunt." It was there the application of this much talked of list came in, and for the reason that neither Anderson nor McTaggart knew the real reason nor any Conservative.

To Wait Until Last.

These lists were concocted between us. We drew them up and with the sanction of Macdonald it was put forward that we would wait until the last day to find out whether they had got anything of what we were going to spring. The next morning they would not be in a position to clear up the whole thing.

Plugging On Big Scale.

In each ward there were 250 men not to be challenged, with the result that in wards three, four and five these men did just what they were ordered to do, and those men who happened to be unlucky enough to be legitimately there had a tremendous job to get their vote. While they were looking for suspicious characters, the real pluggers were going in by the hundreds.

A Fall Out.

To cover the remaining wards that had not been covered Scott used the telephone and tells these scrutineers not to challenge anyone between R and W any time in the afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock, but the real men had gone in long before that. After the announcement of the poll, Anderson and McTaggart were absolutely crazy, because they realized, in spite of the fact that they had safeguarded against this, that somehow something had been slipped over on them, with the result that they came into the office and there was more or less strife that I testified to.

Macdonald's Offer.

And then the plan was arranged by Macdonald that he would give his indemnity of $1,500 for a start, that he would get those who were anxious to run or who he thought might run, and by this means he would be willing to throw so much into the machine, have that organized and with that fund to form the nucleus in every town, a body of men to act along the lines we acted upon as far as Vancouver was concerned, to fill in voters for the convenience of this machine and to transfer men from the United States.

Cowper, Smith and McIntosh, I was told, were never taken into the plan, as they had no money, they were tto be ditched. Farris was going to be approached, and if he did not come through he was to get his.

I got $50 from Macdonald in front of the post office, and if the great architect of this universe were to paralyze this hand, I received $50 from Macdonald in just the same place that I said. (Cheers).

IRISH REGIMENTS COVERED THEMSELVES WITH GLORY

London, Sep. 12.—The official report of the Guillemont battle, in which the British forces swept the Germans before them, states that the Irish regiments were wild and irresistible. Nothing could withstand the ferocity of their attack.

Their storming of the first, second and third line of German trenches is described as a human avalanche, and the British assert that such a charge has never been equalled in the history of the British army. The enemy were driven back with such a rush that they found it impossible to safeguard their rear ground. The rapidity of the advancement took them so completely by surprise that they pleaded for mercy and surrendered.

W. X. MACDONALD TO BE RETURNED

SPLNDID MEETING IN HIS INTERESTS HELD AT ANYOX

R. R. Maitland, Of Vancouver, Spoke For Two Hours At Gathering.

Anyox, Sept. 12.—A highly successful rally was held tonight at Anyox in the interests of W. X. Macdonald.

The principal speaker, R. R. Maitland, of Vancouver, ably expounded the principles of the Conserative party in a two-hour address. Despite interruptions by Liberal hecklers the meeting was a good one.

From the feeling, as expressed by the meeting, W. X. Macdonald will be returned by a large majority on election day.

Mr. Maitland proved himself a very ready speaker, meeting all questions put up to him.

Mr. Macdonald spoke for thirty-five minutes and made a most favorable impression. He was given an excellent reception.

QUEBEC BRIDGE SCENE OF ANOTHER SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Quebec, Sept. 12.—Twenty minutes following the departure of the Dominion Parliamentary party, and in the presence of thousands of cheering onlookers, assembled to witness the erection of the five thousand-ton, six hundred and forty-foot steel central suspension span, marking the completion of the Quebec bridge, notwithstanding every scientific engineering method that had been adopted to prevent disaster, the supporting girder, carrying sixteen workmen, buckled immediately the pontoons were cut loose, dropping the span into the river.

Nine men were killed but the remainder were saved by boats which were in the vicinity carrying sightseers.

The representative of Sir Robert Borden on the Quebec Commission asserts that the span is absolutely lost and that salvage is impossible. The main cantilevers and the lifting arrangement remain undamaged.

Colonel McBain, who was a guest on Colonel Talbot's yacht, desiring to claim the honor of being the first to make the passage under the span, narrowly escaped instant death.

This is the second big disaster to the big new railroad bridge at this point. In the year 1907 the upper structure was carried away and a number of men killed and drowned.

MORE MEN THAN WOME HAVE APENDICITIS

Surgeons state men are slightly more subject to appendicitis than women. Prince Rupert people should know that a few doses of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka, often relieve or prevent appendicitis. This mixture removes such surprising foul matter that ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas. The INSTANT, easy action of Adler-i-ka is surprising. drydock within a very short time and undergo repairs. The details in connection with it are kept quiet and no unnecessary advertising is being done in connection with it.

The work would afford the opportunity to get started at the dock.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC.

With respect to the drydock here he had been doing all he could to bring it into operation. He understood now that there was some little delay, but he did not anticipate that it would be for any length of time.

Mr. Manson read a message from the Premier in which he stated that he was assured that there would be two Conservative to every one Liberal elected, and that his assurances from London were that eighty-five per cent. of the soldier vote was for the Government.

YES, LIQUOR IS SOLD IN BANGOR

Thirty-Four Arraigned For Drunkenness At Thursday's Session Of City Court.

Thirty-four were arraigned in the municipal court on Thursday for intoxication. With but 20 cells, the police station was quite comfortably filled the night before, a number beside those arraigned being turned loose before court came in.

On Thursday the busiest man in the city, apparently, was the driver of the police auto patrol, calls coming in frequently from all parts of the city. Every call was filled, and more, too, in the middle of the afternoon, and still the arrests continued.

In many parts of the city drunks staggered along the sidewalks in various stages of hilarity, while the public autos did a good business in carrying other drunken men from point to point.

But There Are Other Places.

A practical politician has been in Bangor this week investigating the number of arrests for intoxication. It would appear from this that Bangor is again to be a shining mark in some campaign presentations.

The attention of the investigator was called to conditions in other cities and towns, however, and some enlightment was given him in regard to a comparison with other places. For instance, the investigator was informed that in Old Town is one of the handsomest bars in the state, plate glass mirrors being in abundance and the fixtures on an elaborate and sumptuous scale, while a large force of bartenders is employed there constantly. The bar is one of the sights of that city, the investigator was informed, and he was advised to proceed with his searching for figures and facts to other cities, as he could not fail to discover much of interest.

WILL SEEK TO HAVE ALL VOTERS REGISTER

Trades And Labor Council Dealt With Subject At Meeting.

The Trades and Labor Council met in the Carpenters' Hall last evening, President Macdonald presiding.

The Labor Day committees report having had the most successful Labor Day celebration that has yet been held in the city, both in a financial way and otherwise.

A communication was read from Mr. McVety in answer to the invitation sent him by the Trades Council to be present and give an address on Labor Day. He was unable to attend on account of being busy in connection with other duties in the south.

Further action was taken so as to have every wage earner register his vote before the end of October. A man will be employed for two weeks in an endeavor to induce everyone to register who is interested in the next Municipal campaign from a wage earners standpoint. The Executive Committee was instructed to bring in a report at next meeting as to the best course to pursue in getting the workmen to register.

The sale of refreshments, including lunches, tea, etc., at the Fair will be under the direction of The Red Cross Society, the proceeds being for "Our Day," the day set aside throughout the Empire for raising funds for the British Red Cross Society.

Take also the highest priced Waltham, a 23 Jeweled Vanguard at $44.60. Our Price is $45.00. Not very much difference.

Many articles, of course, are not so easily compared, and are made in many qualities and often look big for the money in the catalogue.
