Broken Hill Mine

Doald McLeod the original discoverer of the Broken Hill mine in the Bridge river district, has returned to Vancouver after working on the property for the property for the past month. Mr. McLeod is one of the heaviest shareholders in the company, and his principal object in going to work in the tunnel was to satisfy himself as to the worth of the property. He is now satisfied that the labor expended during the last 20 years in safeguarding this discovery have not been wasted.

More than two decades ago Mr. McLeod discovered the immense contact fissue along the course of which the Broken Hill property is located, and realizing that its value hinged entirely on the question of obtaining capital for the development, and that it was not a proposition for any one prospector or group of prospectors to attempt to place on a paying basis, he simply hung on through the years until the proposition could be financed. This was accomplished through his taking Jark Hunt in partnership. After putting in three solid yeara on the claims Mr. Hunt succeeded in interesting people who have advanced the money necessary to bring the property to its present stage of developement.

At the present time the main working tunnel, which encountered the ore some two weeks ago, is into the ore body a distance of thirty feet, and is being steadily driven ahead to encounter a lenze of high-grade ore which shows on the surface and in some instances carries exceptional values. A large sample representing an average of the ore so far exposed in the tunnel was received in Vancouver last week, and assayed $18.53 in gold and silver, with gold values predominating. The ore is capable of being concentrated on a ten-to-one ratio which will make a product capable of being shipped at a profit to any smelter.—Province.

Wise or Otherwise

"Woman is considered the weaker vessel," she remarked, "and yet—" "Well?" he queried, as she hesitated. "And yet," she continued, "man is oftener broke!"

Magistrate: "Can't this case be settled out of court?"

Pat: "That's what we were trying to do, your honour, when the police interfered."

"What is it," the school teacher asked, "that binds us together and makes us better than we are by nature?" "Our corsets, sir," piped a wise little girl of eight.

Golf Professor (giving a lesson) "You know, sir, you lift your elbow two much to play golf properly." New Member: "How dare you! I'll report you to the committee! I'm a lifelong teetotaller."

Germans know very well they can place orders in any neutral country for war material, but they also know that they are not in a position to take delivery owing to the ubiquitous activity of the British fleet. The grapes, in fact, have become sour, because the enemy cannot get them.

Dominion Day Duly Devoted to Divers Delights and Daring Deeds

Lovely Lillooet Lets Loose Lots of Levity and Life.

And what a Celebration it was! With "Sunshine Guaranteed" by a far seeing businesslike management, with the P.G.E. (which it may be mentioned for the benefit of the stranger is a Railway recently built from Lillooet to Vancouver making the latter place tributary to Lillooet) offering the chance of a lifetime to the dwellers along the route of the line to see the world.

And yet again (and, by no means an unimportant consideration) large sums of money were available for competition.

And let it be known that Lillooet is not lacking in that which is known by the name of dollars and cents.

Enthusiastic collectors had found (as they always do find in our little city) a ready response to their request for prize money.

And, as in the past, a spirit of keen rivalry was evident among the large numbers of those who competed for the various honors.

Just as "business as usual" is the Old Country motto in war time, so the Lillooet spirit is "sport as usual, only more so."

This year's celebration of Dominion Day was the "best yet" and rightly so, for has not the Dominion and especially the Province of B.C. grasped eagerly at the privilege of sending its money and its men to help crush that which would make the glorious freedom of the British an impossibility? So Lillooet said "Let us give one tenth of our prize money to the War Fund."

And so it is not surprising that July 1st and 2nd, 1915 in Lillooet were days to be remembered. Men, women, and children flocked into town from all quarters and the Main street of the Town was bright with flags and bunting. New stores had opened in heart of Lillooet's busines quarter a few days before the Festival, the hotels were buzzing centres of gaiety (both of them renorvated and offering every inducement to the tourist and holiday maker) large numbers of visitors camped on the outskirts of the Town, the latest tpye of luxurious auto jostled the pack horse from the hills. The local authorities had not failed to tidy up the town, and as one paraded streets which were models of cleanliness, feminine styles were to be seen which would have made the Parisian leaders of fashion turn green with envy.

Needless to say the horse races were an outstanding feature and for days before the races, fine specimens of horseflesh were on show along the course.

Some fine talent was in town for the Cowby races which were well contested.

The Klootchmans' races were run off in worthy fashion by fair ones who sported racing colours and costumes varying from the the "simple native" to the latest and most daring creations seen in the windows of the local department stores.

The children of all kinds and colors, white, Indian, half, quarter, one-eight, etc. etc. etc. were offered prizes to the extent of $65.00 and were keen on the efforts to secure them. This is always a most pleasing feature of the festivities and a thoughtful management had made this year no exception to the rule. The children ran as if the Kaiser were after them with an asphyxiating bomb.

Twenty bucks was the prize for the Bucking Contest which was bucked for as no bucker ever bucked before or behind. And the buck-jumper who bore the brunt as the next best bucking broncho buster bore away a bonny brace of boots.

The Pemberton Indian Brass Band of 22 pieces discoursed sweet music the while. Did we say the band consisted of 22 pieces? From what we saw if bucking broncho had had his way the band would have consisted of 22,000 pieces but the way that band made way for him was a sight for the gods. They never stayed to finish the note.

Prize money was wisely allotted and was available for women as well as men riders. Judging was on a high level and gave universal satisfaction.

A. D. Kean, Cowboy Photographer of B.C. was a visitor in Lillooet during Dominion Day Celebration and was kept busy with his moving picture camera obtaining a most animated record representing series of all important events. These pictures will be shown here at a latter date, together with the scenery obtained enroute over the P.G.E. from Vancouver.

Mr. Kean as "Chief of Cowboys" for the Vancouver Fair, to take place August 13 to 21, has made arrangements with several local riders to appear in the Provincial Championship Contest and stated that many new features will be included in this years 'Range Days" programme.

War Gleanings

The White Star liner is rumor- to be singled out for attack by German submarines. This ship, under ordinary circumstances, would enter the danger zone on Tuesday evening, July 6.

There is practically little change in the war situation; the Allied forces are holding their own, and in some places are slowly, but surely, making advances.

The Italian forces in the Tyrol are encountering snow, storms and fog, but are reported as doing great work.

Teutons continue to assault the Russian positions in Galicia but are driven back with very heavy losses.

The quick-firing section organized in the Yukon has arrived at Shorncliff, England, and have gone into training.

Three hundred Carranza soldiers, their wives and children lost their lives in a train wreck near Monte Morelos, between Tampico and Monterey.

V. E. Keeley, late proprietor of the Victoria Hotel, is spending a few days in town.

H. Graham, Indian agent, and Dominion Constable McLeod, are visitors to town.

Dr. H. A. Christie, has, this week, erected a new fifty foot flagstaff, at the side of his surgery.

"There's some good stuff in that brother of yours, Miss Ethel." "I should say there was. He has just finished eating that two pound box of chocolates you brought me."

If W. E. Innes, Englishman, (supposed to be in the Bridge River section) will communicate with the Provincial Police, he will hear something to his benefit People in England are seeking information.

The political orator inflated his chest, and started in on another characteristic of his candidate—bravery. "In war," he said, in ringing tones, "in war, my friends, he was always found where the bullets were thickest." "Hiding behind the amunition wagon," inquired a shrill voice from the rear of the hall.

Fred: "That's a nasty cut you've got over your eye, old man. How did it happen?"
Harry: "The wife and I had a word this morning, that's all."
Fred: "But she used to be such a shy girl before you were married."
Harry: "So she is now; she's always shying. And she's a good shot, too!"

One Sunday morning a farther suggested to his daughter that she ought to go to church in the evening, the subject of the discourse being "An Hour with favorite Hymns," and he expected it would be very interesting. 'Father," said the daughter, with a smile, "I should like to go very much, but I have made an engagement to spend several hours with my favorite him to-night."

Canadian Newspaper Directory

It is now nearly a quarter of a century since Mr. A. Kim, who established the first independent Advertising agency in this countrr, completed the rather ambitious task of publishingthe first Directory of Canadian publications. The nine successive editions of this valuable work provide the most complete and detailed record available of the growth of Canadian periodicals.

The 1915 edition, of which we have just received a copy, shows that the great war has not seriously affected the newspapers of Canada. While the birth-rate of new publications has received a check, and the death-rate of the weak ones has perhaps increased a trifle, most of the leading papers, particularly the dailies, show very healthy increases in circulation. Three metropolitan dailies have reached or passed the hundred thousand mark.

A census of the papers listed and described in the 1915 Directory shows a total of over 1575 publications. This means approximately one daily to every 10,000 families, and one weekly to every 1,500 families. From this one would infer that for a comparatively new country, Canada is well-read.
