KING EDWARD VII

It is doubtful whether the English people knew how much King Edward VII had done for the Empire and the World, or how much he had endeared himself to them until he was so suddenly and unexpectedly snatched away. Not that he lacked appreciation either as a Monarch or a man, but that with his taking away men's eyes were opened, and for the first time they saw clearly how great and majestic a figure he was. In the latter years of her life his illustrious Mother, our ever beloved Queen Victoria, continually came nearer to her people. During the long years of her reign and widowhood the imagination conceived of her as an august, benignant, and isolated figure; when the weakness of age crept on the veil behind which she had for so long enshrouded herself was drawn aside. Pathos succeeded splendour, sovereignty blended with humanness, and the touch which makes all flesh kin effected a transformation from Queen and Empress to Mother of her people. It was in this light that she was regarded for some years before her passing. The approaching shadows subdued the aspect of sovereignty and embraced in their folds Queen and people alike. No correct analysis of the relation in which King Edward stood with his people during the last five or six years could fail to recognise that he too, without doffing the ermine and purple, had stepped into the same close relationship which his great Mother enjoyed; and when all is said and done what greater achievement can be placed to the credit of any monarch than that the vast social gulf which separates him from his people shall be bridged by sympathy and profound understanding, until without forgetting that he is a King both he and his subjects are able to realise that he is a man, and a man whose memory will forever be enshrined in the hearts of his subjects. But King Edward was much more than this, his death has demonstrated that his influence was not limited by the bounds of the Empire for tributes of appreciation and affection have poured in from every part of the civilized world. Never has there been so universal a recognition of the virtues and influence of a Monarch, and tributes from Nations which owed him no allegiance are not one bit less profound and sympathetic than those which have been offered by every nation of the people over whom he ruled. What could be finer than that of Le Petit Parisien: "France bows before the bier of Edward VII, a Chief of State who really understood the meaning of liberty and the value of peace." The German Press is not to be outdone in its appreciation of one who has been credited with imposing some measure of control even on its Kaiser. The Neue Nachrichten says: "King Edward was the most influential monarch the world had seen since William I. Germans, silent before the King's bier, will forget the dissensions of days full of strife, and will think only of his Kingly qualities, sharing the sorrow of the great Nation which has lost him." The New York Herald says: "The whole world sorrows over the death of King Edward." The Neue Freie Presse of Vienna, not unmindful of its own illustrious Emperor Joseph, does not hesitate to declare that "King Edward was perhaps the most influential man in the world, he was the right King for the twentieth century, modern to the finger tips." The tribute of the Novoe Vremya, St. Petersburg, is one of whole-souled appreciation. That National organ says: "May the earth rest lightly on him. May his successor inherit his fine qualities, his love of peace, loyalty to friends, and broad comprehension of the needs of humanity and the State. The day of King Edward's death is a day of mourning for Russia." Even Portugal in the pages of the Mundo, which is an extremely radical publication, avers that "The best, the most manly, the most democratic of Kings is dead, by his acts as King he succeeded in increasing the prosperity of England and winning the admiration and sympathy of the whole world, although a King he knew how to be a citizen and a friend of liberty and justice." Among tributes from within the Empire, one of the most aptly worded is from the Daily News, Perth, Western Australia: "King Edward was more than King, more than Emperor. He was a man whose splendid humanity appealed to men, he did not stand above the world, but on it, and loved it. He possessed the genius of common sense, and knew how to do the right thing at the right time and in the right way." Almost as fine is the comment of the Melbourne Argus: "His death is mourned not with the decorous and formal grief which is displayed when the mere official head of a Nation passes away, but with deep and genuine sorrow. He undertook a great part and greatly played it." Perhaps, however the most exquisitely worded and absolutely fitting sentiment was expressed in an editorial in the Standard: "To King Edward's subjects underneath the immediate shadow of bereavement it is enough for the moment to reflect that the first of Englishmen has passed away—a Monarch whose name is written among the highest in the roll of their long line, a Sovereign, a patriot, a statesman, a governor well fitted by the vigour of his intellect and the engaging charm of his temperament to be the actual as well as the ceremonial chief of a people he loved so well, and an Empire he ruled with such memorable success." Alongside these tokens of appreciation and affection, so exquisitely phrased and so charged with sensibility, The Week lays its tribute in the beautiful poem, "Le Roi est Mort," which appeared on the front page of last issue, a poem which in the opinion of the best judges has not been approached in merit by any other contribution, and which The Week believes is destined to become an Empire Poem, if not the Classic on the passing of King Edward.

THE UNIVERSITY COMMISSION

Having decided to relegate the duty of selecting the site of the Provincial University to a body of non-resident Commissioners the Government has undoubtedly gone the best way to work. The selection of Commissioners could not have been happier, and their personnel will inspire confidence. Whatever representations may be made, no one can doubt that the ultimate selection will be the best, and when within a few years the stately proportions of the foremost educational building in the West rises to view, rivalry will be forgotten and every energy will be devoted to make the new University a veritable "seat of learning." The Week could have wished that no representations were to be made to the Commission, but that the members simply travelled round and inspected the country, arriving at their conclusion without having to balance the conflicting claims of rival delegations. Not that the result will be affected by these, but that the Commissioners would have been spared a great deal of unnecessary and tedious work, but it seems to be accepted that delegations will be received and will be permitted to set forth the claims of their respective districts. The Week believes that all things considered the best location would be in the outskirts of Victoria on a site similar to that occupied by University College, Mount Tolmie; just near enough to enjoy the advantages, without being subjected to the disadvantages of City life. The grounds on which it holds this opinion are briefly that the climate of Victoria is the best in the Province; that Victoria is destined to be mainly a residential and not a manufacturing city, it will therefore be less affected by the disagreeable concomitants of a large industrial centre and for the same reason will be free from the turmoil and temptations of a bustling city, such as Vancouver is destined to become; and since it is the capital of the Province, the seat of Government, and the head of the Civil Service it seems appropriate that it should also be the head of what is after all the most important branch of Government. All these facts will be patent to the Commissioners even without being voiced by a delegation, but perhaps there is no harm in giving utterance to them in the Press. It is gratifying to know that financial considerations are not to be allowed any weight, if they were, Victoria would stand a very poor chance, and energetic Vancouver would have a "walk over," but the Government has wisely decided that no considerations of cost, no premiums, and no bonuses, are to be taken into account; since it is prepared to carry out the University project entirely without the assistance of local co-operation and with sole regard to the fitness of the locality for University purposes. The Commissioners have already reached the City, they have been received by Premier McBride, and Dr. Young, Minister of Education. Dean Weldon of Dalhousie, N.S., has been selected by his confreres as Chairman, and Principal Murray, of Saskatchewan, will act as Secretary. The Commission will hold its sittings in Victoria, Duncan, Ladysmith, Nanaimo and Alberni before proceeding to the mainland, when it will commence at Vancouver and make an itinerary of at least a dozen of the principal cities, including New Westminster, Kamloops, Revelstoke, Nelson and Cranbrook. The first sitting will be held in the Executive Chamber of the Parliament Buildings on Monday next at 10.30 a.m. Mr. George Jay, the respected Chairman of the School Trustees, is the chairman of the local reception committee.

THE SCOTT ACT

It is well that the people who live in British Columbia should familiarize themselves with the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act, better known as the "Scott Act," because if Dr. Spencer and his colleagues are able to get their way some benighted district in the Province will soon have a taste of its quality. The Act was passed in 1864 but has been revised and amended as late as 1908. It has been in operation in Nova Scotia for many years, at least twenty, to the knowledge of the writer, but has never been able to justify its title of a "Temperance Act." They tried it in Ontario, but after three years experience were only too glad to vote it out of operation. The amendment introduced in the last session of Parliament by Mr. Murphy, and adopted without discussion, provides the machinery for bringing it into operation in British Columbia. The procedure is that one-fourth of the persons whose names appear on the voters' list for the last General Election are required to sign a petition addressed to the Governor-General invoking the application of the Act. The petition is deposited with the Sheriff or Registrar, and also advertised in the Canada Gazette and the Provincial Gazette, then a public vote is taken by ballot, just the same as at an election, and a bare majority either way decides the question. If the majority is in favour of the Act it becomes operative for at least three years, and cannot be got rid of except by a similar process of voting; and it continues in operation until revoked. The Act provides that no alcoholic beverage of any kind can be sold in a Scott Act district except on a medical certificate, or for sacramental purposes. No brewery or distillery situated in a Scott Act district can sell for local consumption, the product must be shipped out, and can only be consigned to a district in which the Scott Act is not in operation. No merchant, trader or wholesaler, even though already established in a Scott Act district, can sell for local consumption except for medical purposes. On the other hand there is nothing to prevent the unlimited importation of liquor from the outside so long as it is purchased and paid for on the outside. The administration of the Act and its penalties are so drastic as to be unfair and un-English. Unlimited power is placed in the hands of local magistrates against whose decision, if they are of the status of a stipendary, there is no appeal. An amendment has recently been incorporated which throws the onus on an accused, who must prove his innocence, instead of on the accuser to prove his guilt. The penalty for a first offence is $50 or a month's imprisonment, for a second offence $100 or two months, and for a third and every subsequent offence imprisonment for four months WITHOUT THE OPTION OF A FINE. The most unrestricted authority is given to search premises, even including private houses, to discover liquor where it is supposed to be kept or used in violation of the Act. In short, when the penalties and the administration of the Act are taken into consideration it will be seen that it imposes conditions to which no self respecting British people would submit; which accounts for its abject failure by alienating public sympathy and arousing the hostility of law-abiding citizens. Such is the Scott Act which Dr. Spencer seeks to impose upon the subjects of a King who established a universal reputation for British justice and fair play.

LOTUS LAND

A week after his arrival, which must be pretty nearly a month ago, the attention of the City Engineer was directed to an extremely dangerous condition which exists at the lower end of Rockland Avenue, just East of Cook Street. It was a matter of urgency, and one which might easily land the City in a heavy suit for damages; nothing has yet been done. The Week has given Mr. Angus Smith more than sufficient time. Perhaps he is asleep and needs to be awakened.

At The Street Corner

By THE LOUNGER

The English papers to hand are filled with the news of the late King's death and it is touching to read about the widespread grief from all Countries, all Sects, all Political bodies and all Nationalities. The late King was a great man and so endeared himself to all classes of the community by his tact, kindness, and wonderful knowledge of human character that his loss is a world-wide one. One cannot realize on an occasion of that kind the wonderful mechanism of a big London daily paper. Early in the evening of the King's death news came through that his condition was critical. Imagine a Daily with the type set with news for the next day and news coming in every minute from every quarter of the Globe and the uncertainty as to whether it would all have to be cut out, and a nearly new paper made up containing entirely different news; as who would read anything else next morning but news of the passing of the great Monarch, if, and there was always the if, it was to be. Then towards midnight word came that no further news would be given out at the royal palace until morning. The mass of news was quickly made ready for the press; column after column was got ready for the final stages, then at between a quarter and twenty past twelve fresh news came in; the King was dead. There was no time for anything but the work ahead, the papers already nearly finished, had to be nearly wholly discarded, the ordinary news deleted and the melancholy intelligence with full details and with columns lined with black took its place. And so page after page was made up again. The people would only want to read about one thing. Then in the grey dawn carts filled with the newspapers were distributing their loads at different centres to be quickly disseminated by various sources of transport to the far ends of the United Kingdom. How many of the readers next day gave a thought to the machinery which supplied them with the news and the uncertainty and stress underlying the work of a London daily at a time such as that.

On Tuesday morning the fire engines and escapes turned out in force for a parade and made a very fair showing and gave the crowd in the street a nice little free performance. They were photographed and the cinematograph also got going. Driving three horses who want to go all the time, is exciting work and requires a good deal of skill. Rounding corners with the long escape is ticklish work, as whilst the front part is round in safety the rear may be hobnobbing with a telegraph pole unless great care is exercised. Driving ten mules is an exciting pastime also which I can safely recommend to anyone requiring a little exercise both for the temper and the arms. Mules have earned the reputation for stubbornness and in that respect they are certainly not maligned.

The Vancouver boat was filled to its utmost capacity on Empire Day and 1,500 people came over to the City from Vancouver, whilst some hundreds more could not get aboard at all. It was wonderful where all these people got to. The Gorge cars were full and picnic parties much in evidence, whilst the baseball game attracted a large number to Oak Bay. Victoria is certainly keeping up its reputation as a Show City and does its best to provide amusement for sightseers. A good water shoot should do well and other kindred amusements of the same kind.

The Gorge is very crowded nowadays with pleasure seekers and all kinds of craft negotiate the waterways. The crowd seem to take great interest watching the boats going through the bridge where the current runs fast and critics shout derisive advice to canoeists. Some people think that the big rock in the centre of the stream under the bridge might be blasted away with advantage, but if that was done the conditions at low tide would probably leave much to be desired as the mud would be much in evidence. The best thing if practical, would be a lock. Things were fairly humming on Tuesday, the Gorge Park theatre opened the previous day with an Oriental concert and moving pictures; these performances change every Thursday night. The Japanese Tea Gardens were crowded. Mr. Hamilton has laid in a large stock of new Peterborough canoes to meet the increasing demand. The merry-go-round had its usual number of juvenile patrons. The addition to the ladies' bath house is also an improvement. Altogether the Gorge is a very pleasant place and its popularity is deserved.

The comet on Monday night could be plainly seen, also the tail which was supposed to be lost. It is not often we get the chance of seeing an eclipse of the moon and a comet at the same time. The Press all over the world has been very busy writing up the comet and now that it has left us again there will be a blank for something to dish up to its readers; it is not even the silly season now. It is about time we got some more sea serpent stories—it is always a pretty safe subject to write about as nobody knows much about it and it lends itself to extensive criticism. It's a great pity we cannot catch the monster of the deep and tame it as it would be invaluable for searching for lost cables, it would never cost anything for its board and could follow a cable repairing ship about and whilst off duty might be sent fishing for revictualing the ship and be useful in a host of other ways.

Yachting News

The Victoria Yacht Club is very active this season preparing for the International Regatta to be held here in July. The resignation of Commodore Gibb on account of ill health was a severe blow. He was an energetic Commodore, and devoted a great deal of his spare time to the interests of the Club. In appointing a new Commodore, the Club's choice fell upon Mr. Cuppage, the late Fleet Captain, and owner of the smart auxiliary yawl "Ailsa." As it is due to the strenuous efforts of Mr. Cuppage for the last two years that the Yacht Club is in its present state of prosperity, it is safe to predict that the choice was a wise one. Mrs. Cuppage is also a keen sailor, and thoroughly understands the engineering end of the modern auxiliary yacht, besides being a talented hostess when occasion demands.

he various committees in connection with this big regatta are at work, all realizing the advantage to Victoria in making a success of such a big event. Commodore Cuppage has appointed as his Fleet Captain, Guy T. Temple, owner of the "Clytie." His knowledge of seamanship, and his many friends outside the Yacht Club ensure his worthiness of the honour of this position.

MUSIC AND THE STAGE

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, a feature of the show presented by the Kiniscope Co. was undoubtedly the singing and acting of Mr. Harry Glyn, in his impersonation of Prince Danillo of Merry Widow fame. He gave the famous Maxim song in splendid style, and followed with the love scene in the second act of that popular comedy. Mr. Glyn will be seen in a change of act twice a week at these popular entertainments, and, as we said last week, the management is especially fortunate in securing his services.

The Grand Amateur Contest to be held at the Victoria Theatre next week commencing on Monday, 30th, in connection with the Kiniscope Pictures, bids fair to be a great success. The valuable prize—$75.00—has already attracted a large number of contestants who have entered their names for the competition. The class of talent that is coming forward is exceptionally good, and the public may look forward to having a week's amusement of an extraordinary character. The contest will be decided by vote taken in the theatre at each performance and the lady or gentleman registering the largest number of votes at the end of the week (Saturday, June 4th), will be declared the winner of the $75.00 prize—a ladies' necklace or gentleman's gold watch. These articles are on exhibition in J. M. Whitney & Co.'s jewelry store, 1003 Government street. Should the winner wish to change they can select any article in the store to the value of $75 in place of the prizes which have been selected. Entries for the competition close on Monday at 5 p.m. Those wishing to compete should apply at box office of the theatre as early as possible.

New Grand Theatre

To fall from a height and alight at a standstill on a rest held in the hands of another without the man's hands moving a fraction of an inch, will be in the muscle straining feats of the Three Nevarros who lead the bill at the Grand next week. Their act is billed as the acme of originality and the feats performed by them are said to be the most sensational of all the sensational equilibristic acts at present showing. There are three in the act, two men and a woman.

Phil Staats, the big three hundred pounder, brim full of fun and frolic, will be here. Those who have heard him before will remember his magnetic stage presence and wholesome turn full of surprises. He has another just the same, but not having been to Victoria before will be a welcome number on the Grand bill. For real voice training and technique in delivery of songs, no artist in vaudeville can compare with Emily Benner, the phenomenal baritone soloist, who is in the Grand bill next week. Miss Benner has a stunning figure, a pretty face and a fetching smile, but her voice would make those boastings of operatic reputations, sit up and take notice.

A clever and artistic exhibition of bag punching and equilibristic feats will be presented by the Misses Excela and FRANKS. These ladies are perfect specimens of physical culture tributes, being beautiful in figure and face. Their offering is exceedingly sprightly and refreshing.

Thomas J. Price will sing the songs and there will be the usual orchestral selections and moving pictures.

Pantages Theatre

At Pantages this week the Schillings have been amazing the public with their skill with the rifle and pistol, there is no trick shooting in their performance but they depend wholly on a good eye and the excellence of their weapons. Master Clifford Carr, the child humourist, who with his parents gives such a remarkable entertainment, is a prodigy with wonderful gifts. The rest of the performance is up to its usual high standard.

Empress Theatre

Extensive alterations are taking place at this popular theatre including new front and a ladies' cloak-room with a large mirror in it to enable lady patrons to replace their hats after removing them for the performance. This is a most excellent feature and should find favour with the general public as well as the ladies concerned. The first class films exhibited here continue nightly despite alterations.

Majestic Theatre

The first class programme will be presented at this theatre on Monday and Tuesday next. "The Clay Baker" is an intense drama of human emotion entered in pictures and the principal character in the name part was played by the well known actor, Wilfrid V. Mong, supported by the Kiniscope Company of the Selig Polyscope Company and the pictures are and lifelike.

Table Manners

By TOM-TIT

There is a good deal of controversy going on in Victoria just now about the correct way to lay a dinner table. Of course there are different kinds of dinner tables, in the same way that there are different kinds of diners, and some are laid correctly and others are not. Sometimes these matters seem to crop up and become a theme of interest for no known reason or cause. Whatever the reason is, as it appears to be a source of interest, it might perhaps be well to discourse on the subject and quote a few authorities on this topic. A dinner table, say, for twelve people should be laid with the white table cloth covering the entire table top. Table centres are not, now, used. The cloth should be clean and free from spots or stains, which so annoy the gourmet. The knives should be laid on the right hand side of the diner and not stuck downwards in a bowl or dish; the forks forming the other side of the hollow square within which the plate reposes. If sweets are served a spoon and fork should be placed at the top, and lengthwise between the knives on the right and the forks on the left. The cutlery should be clean and if the spoons are bright enough to use as a mirror all the better. It is not considered good manners to tap the table with a spoon whilst awaiting a dish, or playfully pat your escort's head (if he should unfortunately happen to be bald) and say: "Excuse me, I thought it was an Ostrich egg." Bread should be taken from a dish with the fingers and not by digging a fork into it, nor is it customary in polite society to wipe one's knife on the bread before putting it into the butter. A knife should always be provided for the butter. Whilst eating the fork goes into the mouth, not the knife. Custard is generally eaten with a spoon, not by picking up the plate and letting it glide slowly into the mouth and down the throat as some epicures are so fond of doing. Salt should also be taken with a spoon and not sifted over the gravy. Sugar is only served this way when strawberries are eaten. Try and catch the hostess' eye before commencing to eat, so many people eat everything on their plate before the hostess has begun and turn it upside down on the table to attract the attention of the waiter or waitress; this is not, strictly speaking, polite, as it greases the cloth. Potatoes should be delicately cut and not put into the mouth whole; if your vis-a-vis speaks to you across the table whilst you are digesting a morsel of Xmas pudding make signs to her that your mouth is full by gently raising your fork and placing it on your head; this method of "silent esteem" is now always usual at the best dinner tables. After masticating your pudding which on no account must be "gulped" or forced down the throat with the back of a fork, you signify your willingness to speak by observing, quietly: "I am now in a position to reply to the conversation." Should the lady, or gentleman, as the case may be, have forgotten the subject he, or she, were going to speak about, whilst waiting, you usually politely observe: "Have you noticed the excellence of the pickled pork," or "This ham is well cured," thus giving them time to overcome their well-bred confusion. Should your dining partner swallow a fish-bone and commence to cough, on no account slap him violently on the back; this is an old time remedy which has long been abandoned; the custom now is to pour a little sweet oil down his back or tickle the lobe of his ear with an asparagus tip, remarking jocularly, "There, there, you'll soon be alright again," or soothingly, but sotto voce, "Try a drop of gin, old dear," the endearing phrase "Old dear" is not (as it might appear) lacking in good taste nor is it a surplus of familiarity, but it is intending to convey to the sufferer your apparent unconcern as to any alarming symptoms. Should he get worse have him removed by the nearest flunkey and lay him flat on the drawing-room carpet and tickle his nose gently with a feather steeped in turpentine and treacle. In overcoming the natural shyness of debutantes at their first dinner party one should observe to them before sitting down (that is, if you are so fortunate as to take in a young and pretty girl), "Be careful of sitting suddenly on a pin—it has a disquieting effect." This gives them a sense of security whilst dining with you as it shows you are eager to minister to their comfort and spare them pain. Should you observe a hair in the soup it is not customary to take it out with the cheese knife; the correct way is to borrow a corkscrew and twine the offending hair round the screw, then gently drop the corkscrew with the hair attached behind your chair, at the same time winking at the nearest waiter who will stumble (if he is a well trained servant) and in doing so will drop a serviette over the offending object, which, as he recovers himself, he will gently remove from the floor and sedately leave the room. Should you be so unfortunate as to overturn the gorgonzola cheese which is kept nowadays chained to the table leg, say nothing, but watch which way it is making for, so that you will be in time to intercept it before it does any damage. Should you require more champagne and the nearest bottle is some distance from you, that is supposing it is resting on the table, do not say, "Will you kindly pass the bubbly" but insinuate to your neighbour on the right or left that you are interested in seals on bottles, or affirm that the wire on the bottle is made of silver, the bottle will then, probably, be obtained for your inspection, when, if you are dexterous and used to society dinners, you can easily contrive to fill your soup plate (should soup be the course) with the generous vintage, by absent-mindedly turning the bottle upside down to emphasize a point, you can then easily carry off the contretemps which would naturally occur, by observing, "How lucky my plate was there or it might have gone on the cloth"; during the adulation you would undoubtedly receive at not having spilt the fluid on the cloth you could go on drinking your soup with a preoccupied air, and the rest of the diners would not notice it was champagne in the excitement of the moment. A few more hints such as these might be given but it is best to go to a Society dinner party personally and take notes on your shirt cuff or the back of the menu card of anything which might strike you as being unfamiliar.

VIOLETTA

Violetta clad in garments
Very gauzy, snowy white
Gazed upon the silvery water
From the giddy mountain height.

She was wondering if the roses
Which were trailing down the slope
Bloomed for ever in that valley
Full of sunshine, full of hope.

Where the shadows soft, kept creeping
O'er the water's placid face
And the swallows swiftly wheeling
Winged a never ceasing race.

Then she spied a water lily
All alone upon the pool,
Like a glistening water naid,
Or a fleecy ball of wool.

Plunged she straightway in the water
Lost her garb of snowy white,
And emerging from the deepness
Nude, bemoaned her sorry plight.

Till young Cupid lent a covering,
And it fitted her so well
That you couldn't say she wore one,
Perhaps she didn't, who can tell.

Changed she then her garb to Violet
Pickle, little elfin sprite,
Now is seen in mossy fragrance
Sometimes Violet, sometimes white.

When earth's last paper is printed, and
The formes and the metal are cold,
When the newest scandal is ancient,
And the latest extra is sold,
We shall loaf—and, Lord, how we Need it!—with nothing at all to do
Till the boss of the perfect paper
Shall call us to work anew.

And then we shall work as we'd like
To, each on his own machine;
And the truth shall be in our copy and
Nothing shall intervene;
We shall write real stories about them

The Indiscreet Bird

Young Simpkins (making a call)
—You have had that parrot a long time, Miss Ethel.
Miss Ethel—Yes, we have had him
several years.
Young Simpkins—Quite intelligent,
is he not?
Miss Ethel—Very. He can imitate
almost anything.
Young Simpkins—They have a remarkably clever parrot over at the Castletons', Miss Ethel. It can imitate the sound of a kiss to perfection.
Is that among the accomplishments of our feathered friend here in the corner?
Miss Ethel (indignantly)—No, sir.
He does not attempt an imitation of a sound he is not accustomed to hear, Mr. Simpkins.
The Parrot (reminiscently)—Wait,
George dear, till I take this bird out of the room.

Why Don't You Use a Gas Range?

It is so convenient. It is always ready. You can prepare a light luncheon or a large dinner with Gas with very little trouble even on the hottest day, and it is so clean to work with. You don't have to be shovelling coal all day like a fireman. 'Tis cooking makes the world go round, but let the stove be a poor, out-of-date one and the world wobbles from bad digestion.

You are most cordially welcome to visit our show-rooms whether you desire to purchase or merely to look. We will gladly explain the many advantages of gas for cooking and heating purposes. Easy payments if desired.

Much time is wasted in chopping 'kindling' for coal or wood stoves, and carrying dusty coal or ashes backwards and forwards. A kitchen where a gas stove is in use is always tidy, should be spic and span. Quick as a wink you have your fire without trouble of building—turn off the gas tap and it is out; drudgery, worry and money saved. The lower oven in a Gas Range is a wonder-worker for roasts and broilings; juices of the meat are retained; both sides of a steak are broiled in four minutes at a trifling expense. With coal half the juice is lost, the cost is one-third more and the inconvenience, dirt and worry can never be figured.

Victoria Gas Company, Ltd.

Cor. Fort and Langley Sts., Victoria, B.C. Telephone 1609

The Montelius Piano Co., whose well known store is at 1104 Government street and corner of Fort, is an established firm of long standing in British Columbia. Their stock of pianos is a large one and include such well known makers as Broadwood, London, Bell of Canada, Chickering, Knabe, Kranich & Bach, and Haines of America. All these pianos are so well known to the musical public that they do not require any recapitulation. Besides the above stock of pianos mentioned the firm have a large stock of talking machines and a advantageous ten minutes can be spent in listening to the latest new songs which the genial manager, Mr. Green, is always willing to set going for his customers.

The Western Motor and Supply Company have recently moved into new premises at 1410 Broad street, and there a number of the celebrated McLaughlin-Buick cars can be seen. These cars are strongly built, compact, and handsome in body lines. There is a big sale for them in Victoria as the present season's returns show and their popularity is undeniable. A new line of delivery trucks with a 2,000-lbs. carrying capacity have just arrived and will be much appreciated by all firms who require quick transport. The McLaughlin cars are manufactured at Oshawa, Ontario and carry four cylinders; the engines are made in England.

Another company recently organized for operation in the Portland Canal District is the King Edward Mines Limited, non-personal liability. The property owned by this company comprises four claims on the Georgia River, these claims having been purchased from the well known gentlemen, Henry Heisterman, locator of Main Reef and part owner of the Little Wonder Claims; J. Lydden, one of the locators of The Red Cliff Mines; John Peterson, also one of the locators of Red Cliff, and W. Harrison, locator of The Bear River Canyon property. The claims were staked in 1906 and as they are located less than one mile from deep water. This should be one of the first mines to ship ore from this district. The proposed directors are: Colonel A. W. Currie, Commander Fifth Regiment, C.A., Victoria, B.C.; A. T. Frampton, timber broker, Victoria, B.C.; W. H. Cowley, accountant, Victoria, B.C.; B. O. Erickson, mine owner, Stewart, B.C.; J. T. Dea-ville, merchant, Victoria, B.C.

Welcome

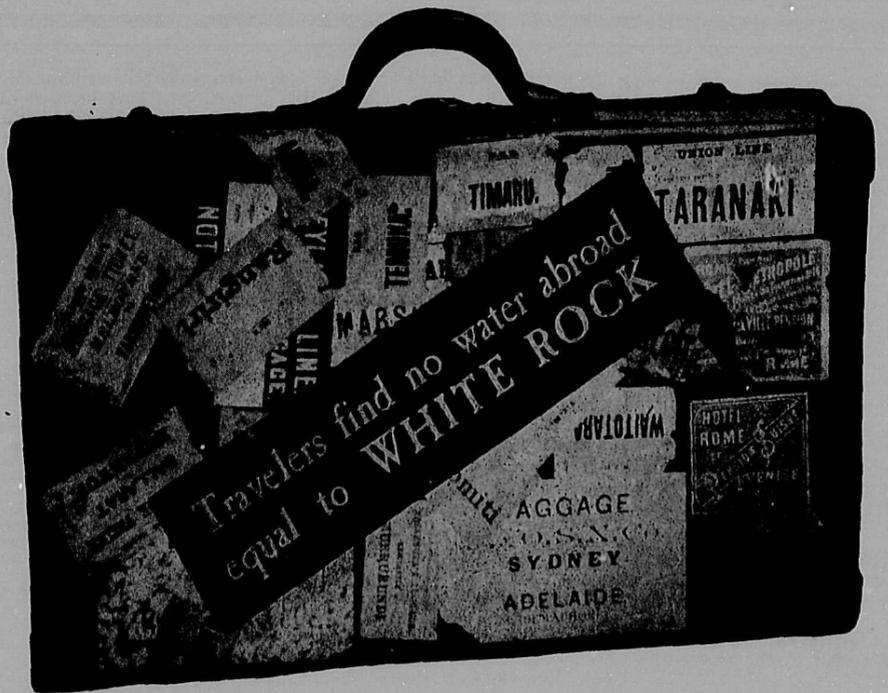

The Rev. A. J. Doull, M.A., who has arrived in the city to take up the Rectorship of Christ Church Cathedral, has received a fitting and hearty welcome from the Press. It is a welcome which is deserved, for while no one claims that Mr. Doull is a brilliant genius or a pulpit orator he is far more and far better than either, for he is that rarest of all clerics in this pleasure seeking age a faithful parish priest and a faithful expounder of the gospel. The writer enjoyed the privilege of attending Mr. Doull's church in Westmount on many occasions between 1900 and 1903 and has no hesitation in saying that Christ Church Cathedral is fortunate in having secured a Rector of such intellectual attainments, such a Christian spirit and such conspicuous devotion to duty. If Mr. Doull receives the whole soul, sympathetic co-operation of his people the Church of England will be immeasurably strengthened and its influence increased in Victoria. As a matter of reference it may be well to append an official list of Mr. Doull's previous incumbencies:

Rev. Alexander John Doull, Oriol College, Oxford, B.A. (3rd class Modern History) 1894, M. A. 1898, Cuddesdon College 1895, Deacon 1896, Priest 1898, Ripon. Curate of Leeds 1896-1899, Curate of Church of the Advent (Westmount, Montreal) 1899-1901, Rector of Church of the Advent (Westmount, Montreal) 1901-1910, Rector of Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria, B.C., May 29th, 1910.

Stewart City

Next Tuesday the long looked for sale of lots in Stewart City will take place and the Auctioneer, Mr. Stewart Williams, is already overloaded with applications for plans and information. Letters by the hundred have poured in from all parts of Canada, and the United States, and it is safe to say that there will be a record attendance and record prices. The interesting letter from Col. E. S. Topping which appeared a few days ago in a local paper will be accepted by all who know him as satisfactory evidence of the progress of the new city of the North. Col. Topping says Stewart City has come to stay and that it will be a second Rossland. As one of the original founders of Rossland he is in a position to know.

Farm, 34 acres cleared, the best of soil, excellent buildings, considerable stock, close to city, only $15,000. Good terms.

13 acres, very good soil, nearly all cleared, new house well built, large and good outbuildings, 4 miles from city, only $8,500.

500 acres on "Hardy Bay," the coming great industrial and shipping center of Vancouver Island.

Victoria Schools

Sir,—Whilst this subject of school teachers, etc., is open it might not be amiss to enquire into the system of examinations for passing at it obtains in Victoria. Here the children are elevated to a higher grade by two means:

1st. An examination by means of papers which are given by other teachers;

2nd. By "Pulling up."

Now, for instance, the teacher in No. 1 room gives the examination papers for No. 2 or 3, and vice versa. Then the teacher of each room puts the questions on the board, collects all books (as for as they know) bearing on the questions, sees as far as possible that they are worked out, fairly, and then the teacher who has given the papers corrects the work done, pronounces whether the pupils are to be promoted or "put up" (which is the way of making room for those who in their turn are being also promoted or "put up").

Very often children who have ranked well during the term not always by fair means do not have to make the examination at all, but are promoted on their merits (?), which is anything but fair to those who have worked conscientiously.

Why cannot there be proper examiners, who would at once detect if the pupils had been thoroughly taught and had assimilated what they had been taught?

Give the teacher a capitation grant, so, as incentive. Surely there are plenty of well educated men here, who could as examiners see at once if a boy or girl should be promoted to a higher grade and effectually bar his rotten system of "putting up" pupils into room after room until they reach the top and are pronounced "through"; knowing nothing thoroughly in spite of all the hours spent in study by them. Ratepayers' money wasted like dirty water and years lost, they would gladly recall, when they realize what an unstable foundation their so-called education has. A house built on sand is solid in comparison. And then, Mr. Editor, they will have every right to call us to account for not trying to give them their rights.

There is a sense of fair play which is here sadly lacking, both in work and play too, indeed it would appear

"If by fair you can't succeed
Foul, foul, until you do," (or appear to do).

Let us all remember—
If we succeed—'tis not success
In that we reach our goal;
The way by which we reach to it
Makes the success of soul.

We but succeed in all that builds
Our souls to higher height;
Success is failure oft—and failure oft
Success—, but out of sight."

CHANTECLER JEWELRY

Madam la Mode has set her seal of approval upon these charming novelties, therefore Chantecler Jewelry is something more than a mere craze.

Every reader of Rostand—the youngest "Immortal" ever admitted to the French Academy and a poet who ranks only second to our own Shakespeare, will like to wear some souvenir of his original and quaint conception, this great barnyard play, which has not only astonished all Paris, but all the world as well.

We are sole agents for Chantecler Jewelry and now show a delightful display of Belt Pins, Brooches, Beauty Pins, Hat Pins, etc.
