THE WEEK, SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1908

ONE DOLLAR PER ANNUM

EDITORIAL

Signs are already accumulating that the Socialist boom in Canada is on the wane. The Convention called this week in Vancouver to select a candidate had to be adjourned because of insufficient attendance to justify the transaction of business. It would not be safe to argue much from a solitary incident like this, but close observers have noticed for some months past that the activity of the various Socialist organizations has sensibly diminished. If this figured an abandonment of the Socialist propaganda it might not be regarded as unmixed evil because however much a thoughtful man may decry the extravagances of those who have been known as leaders of the Socialist party, he has always recognized the germ of truth contained in the propaganda. It is not so much the aim of Socialism which is to be denounced, as the illogical arguments and impracticable methods of its advocates. Socialism did no more than arouse public attention to the evils and excrecences of the present social system, it could have justified its existence, and if its disappearance were an active propaganda would dedicate a return to apathy and tolerance on the part of social reformers, then far better it were kept alive even at the cost of some extravagances. But it is these very extravagances which constitute its greatest weakness, and furnish its opponents with their strongest weapon. The national convention of the Socialist Labour party of the United States recently nominated Martin R. Weston as their candidate for Presidency, and yet this man is several years younger than the constitutional age requirement, and is at present in jail serving a twenty-five years' sentence in the Nevada State prison for the murder of a moon keeper at Goldfield. The platform of the Socialist Labour party declares for a co-operative Commonwealth to replace the present state of Social disorder," and apparently would do it by making a convicted murderer the ruler of the latest Republic in the world. The antics of Socialist leaders could be ludicrous if they were pitiful; it is not what they represent but what they represent, which gives them force; it is human suffering behind them which constitutes their reality; it is when he views the misery of the race that the Socialist gives vent to the hysterical cry which Shakespeare heaped upon the lips of Hamlet:

"The world is up-side down
Wretched spite that ever I was born
to set it right."

The one mistake of the Socialist is the mistake of mankind, the failure to understand, and the leaving out of the dominating factor, human nature. More than half the tragedies of our life arise from this same ignorance; we go from cause to effect; we attribute our own result to an unknown cause; we base all our judgments to a mathematical basis; we determine human conduct by the arbitrary ruling of axioms, but we leave out of our calculation the unknown, the uncertain, and the variant element of human nature itself, with all its impulses and ambitions, its intuitions and tendencies, and so make tragedy. There was more wisdom than the world wots of in the dictum of Alexander Pope, "The proper study of mankind is man." While his studies should not end there they should begin there, and the Socialist might do worse than amend his curriculum, and abandon, at least for a time, the abstruse theories of so-called "Social economics" for a closer examination of human nature which is the same in all ages but of which we appear to know less in this than in the preceding ones.

The Nanaimo Nomination.

The Victoria Times appears to be greatly exercised over the Conservative nomination for the Nanaimo

Conservative leaders to receive the condolences of the Liberal press. The Times would have the public believe that Capt. Wolley, Mr. Helmcken and Mr. Beckwith have been badly treated, and that their long and valuable services to the Conservative party have met with base ingratitude. Unless The Week is greatly mistaken the gentlemen in question will be as indifferent to the condolences as they have been to the criticisms of the Times. They well know that if either of them had been selected they would at once have become the butt of all the political venom which the Times could direct at them; in spite of the fact that it is now so solicitous for their interests. There is little doubt that the Times would have been glad for either of the gentlemen named to receive the nomination, and it entirely fails to appreciate the considerations which led Capt.

constituency. The antics of the Times in this connection have been distinctly amusing; it has made guesses innumerable all wide of the mark, and now that Mr. Shepherd has been nominated and even the Times is obliged to admit that he is an estimable citizen, who for twenty-eight years has lived in the constituency with the respect of his fellows, it is hard put to make political capital out of the situation. Since it can say nothing to the discredit of the nominee, it is devoting itself to what is surely a work of supererogation in offering condolences to gentlemen who might, should, would or could have been nominated. It is a long time since so many crocodile tears were shed over what the Times would have us believe are the blighted hopes of disappointed candidates. But it is a new development even in partizan journalism for

Wolley to decline nomination. The splendid convention held at Ladysmith goes to show that Conservatives are able to sink all their differences and all their personal ambitions in the interests of their party, a virtue which the party championed by the Victoria Times has yet to learn. Mr. Shepherd will have no more willing and whole-souled worker than Capt. Wolley, who is too broad-gauged a man to be sized up by a narrow gauged Grit. No better nomination could have been made than that of Mr. Shepherd, who possesses all the qualifications of a popular candidate. He is a life-long Conservative, an almost life-long resident in the constituency, a man of education, of special attainments, and of high personal character. In short he is not the kind of candidate to suit the Times which is perhaps his highest recommendation. The space devoted to condoling with Capt. Wolley and other prominent Conservatives could be better utilized in furnishing arguments to Mr. Ralph Smith who will need all the help he can get when he meets Mr. Shepherd in the campaign.

Defying The City.

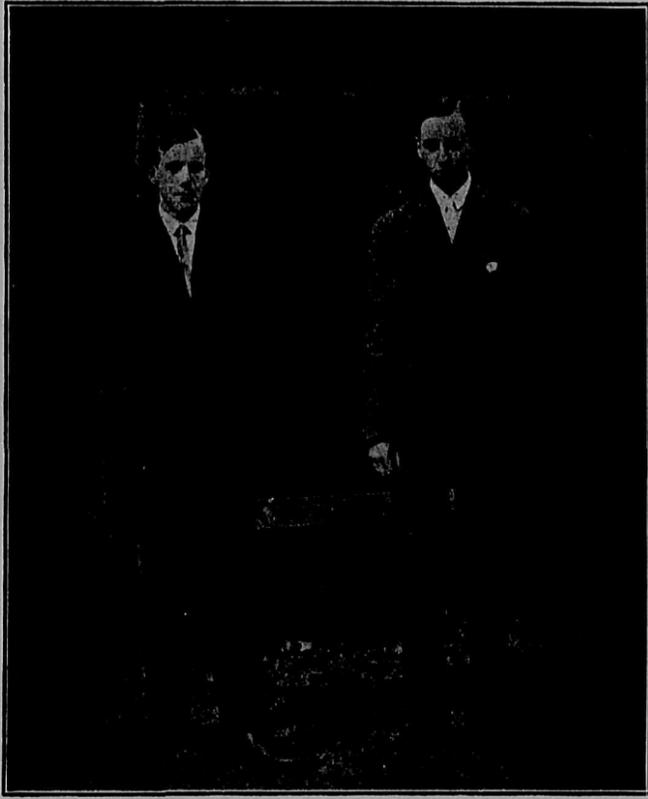

It is not to question the decision of the Chief Justice in the Carroll case to say that the result constitutes a menace to public morals and at the same time places the City in a most serious position. The appellant is a notorious woman who has plied an infamous trade in Victoria for many years. This is a matter of common knowledge and not disputed. Last year she built a new and expensive residence in a locality vetoed by the authorities for the purpose of continuing her trade. She persisted in this course although warned by the police that it would not be tolerated. In due time the house was opened; the woman defied the authorities and declared that no one could stop her, that she should locate where she pleased and carry on her trade in spite of everybody. So far she has been successful, every attempt to convict her of being the keeper of a disorderly house has failed, although convictions for selling drink without a license have been sustained, and have brought with them a notoriety which is absolutely conclusive as to the character of her house. The police had no alternative but to assert their authority. They imported unknown men who were successful in securing conclusive evidence. Their evidence stands today uncontradicted, and the acts to which they deposed are sufficient apart from technicality to ensure a conviction. City Magistrate Jay had no difficulty in finding to this effect and in the eye of the law he alone is the arbiter upon the facts. Then Mr. J. A. Aikman comes on the scene with an application before the Chief Justice "in certiorari," to quash the conviction, on the ground that the evidence did not show a guilty knowledge of the acts complained of on the part of Carroll. The application to everyone's amazement was successful and the conviction was quashed, and further, unless this decision is reversed on appeal the prosecution of the keepers of disorderly houses will be a thing of the past. To appreciate the full significance of the decision it must be borne in mind that in an application 'in certiorari,' the credibility of the witnesses and the reliability of their evidence is not in question, and cannot be canvassed. The Magistrate is supposed to have disposed of that aspect of the case, the Court is simply required to determine whether, the evidence being unimpeached, a conviction is a legal and inevitable consequence. The point upon which the Chief Justice ruled to the contrary in this case was the absence of evidence to show that Carroll was present and witnessed the acts complained of; surely with all respect to the law a proposition which is a "reductio ad absurdum." Evasion of such a condition would be so easy on the part of every keeper of such a house that proof of guilty knowledge would be absolutely impossible, a conclusion which could never have been contemplated or intended by the framers of the law. The Chief Justice may be perfectly right in his interpretation, but in the interest of morality, of law and of order, it is to be sincerely hoped that for once in an illustrious career he has made a mistake.

At The Street Corner

By THE LOUNGER

For the first time since I came to live in Victoria I went up the line on Tuesday to spend a day in the country. I did not go alone, but lounged on the fringe of a party who went to enjoy the hospitality of the South Cowichan Tennis Club. I cannot say enough of the hospitality dispensed, or of the splendid courts and beautiful surroundings. It was a revelation to me and to the other visitors who had not been there before. There were six beautiful grass courts as level as a billiard table, surrounded by as fine a group of maples as could be found in Canada, and only a few yards away one glimpsed the waters of the lake. Living in Victoria it is easy to think, as we are all apt to think and to say, that we are thrice blessed, and that nothing could be better; but it all depends on what one asks of life. I think it would be hard to find a more perfect retreat to automobiles as to many other instruments in themselves harmless, but capable of becoming dangerous, "eternal vigilance is the price of safety." The invitation of the promoters of the Kiltie Show to all loyal Scotsmen to appear in the national garb "for this occasion only" did not meet with a very hearty response. Much might be said on the subject of kilts, but in this as in many other matters "brevity is the soul of wit." There are some who will never be able to understand how full grown men can be induced to disport themselves in the classic garb of their clan for the mere delectation of a mob, but such are "Sassenach brutes." I would have given a good deal to see a nearby friend who hales from Scotland in his native garb, but he did not answer the roll call, and when I saw the two giants who headed the procession I ceased to wonder at his defection. Of course the day was rather chilly, and that may have had something to do with it, but after all it must be admitted that the enthusiasm of the sons of Scotia who reside in Victoria was not very marked, and long residence in a civilized city appears to have extinguished their respect for kilts.

than the Duncans district. I am sure it would be impossible to find a more hospitable colony, and that is just what it is, and being altogether English nothing remains to be said. The voice of protest against the destruction of our trees gains in volume and in a certain stridency of tone which betokens a coming storm. The courts have, as I anticipated, granted an injunction to Dr. Hart and it becomes more than ever a matter of wonderment how the city officials can have the temerity to continue their iconoclastic work in the face of public opinion and of the very determined attitude of the courts. The Streets Committee and the City Engineer may as well make up their minds first as last that no more trees will be cut down in the public thoroughfares, and the sooner they modify their plans upon these lines the better for all concerned. It is fortunate that no act of violence has been provoked by their foolish and ill-advised procedure.

I am pleased to notice a marked improvement in the conduct of the chauffeurs who ply for hire in Victoria; they furnish just one more illustration of the sufficiency of British law when properly enforced to meet every case. When the police began to take action they were told that the by-laws could not be complied with, but a few short weeks of persistent enforcing have effected all that could be desired, and within the City at any rate there are no reckless drivers at the moment. With respect

My sympathies are entirely with Mr. Leonard Solly in his protest against the condition of our roads through neglect to remove noxious weeds and prickly growths which are so injurious to the dog; but my sympathies go a great deal further than this as I may have occasion to explain shortly. The action of our sapient city fathers with reference to the new by-laws governing the canine race seems to predicate the extinction of dogs in a future civilization. The regulations are almost too stupid to be believable. They can never be enforced and in the interests of their reputation the members of the Council would do well to abandon them forthwith, and consult men who know something about dogs before they undertake to legislate man's best friend out of existence.

Victoria Lawn Tennis Handicap Tournament, 1908.

The Victoria Lawn Tennis Handicap Tournament which was pulled off last week was in many respects most successful. The entries numbered one hundred and three, the largest for many years, the number last year being sixty. Some of the games were close and exciting as in an average Open Tournament, but perhaps the accuracy and steadiness that come from experience will enable her at no distant date to rank with the lady champions. Miss Loenholm also played a greatly improved game. Too much credit cannot be given to F. Rome and C. Drake who defeated the brothers Todd in the finals remarkably well, indeed the play of Miss Pitts, who appears for the first time in the Club Tournament, was one of the most gratifying features of the week; with practice and a little more energy she will in the course of a few years become a formidable rival of her brilliant sister. Keefer also played a greatly im-most satisfactory feature was the presence of young players, and the splendid fight they made with the veterans. The handicapping Committee worked hard to equalize the chances, and on the whole were successful. In the end honours were equally divided, for of eight final winners four were players with established reputations and four by commission young players, who for the first time forged their way to the front. Perhaps the most meritorious win that of Miss Holmes and Miss Loenholm in the Ladies' Doubles, the former in particular playing a dashing and courageous game, which with accuracy and steadiness that come from experience will enable her at no distant date to rank with the lady champions. Miss Loenholm also played a greatly improved game. Too much credit cannot be given to F. Rome and C. Drake who defeated the brothers Todd in the finals proved game, and was one of the men upon whom the handicappers failed to get an accurate line. Probably everyone expected Miss Marion Pitts to win out in the Flumerfelt Cup competition, but as the week wore on and Miss Pooley continued to play really brilliant tennis there were not a few who favoured her chance. She is undoubtedly playing much better this year than ever before; her play is steadier; her stroke harder and her control of the ball decidedly improved. She has a long, low hard drive from one corner of the courts to the other—diagonally,

Of the other finalists Miss Pooley and McDougall had little difficulty in pulling off the Mixed Doubles. They were opposed by Miss Gladys Pitts and P. W. Keefer, who in the earlier stages of the Tournament had done with a swift turn, the curtain was removed and a full moon shone in all her splendour against the indigo canopy, and my hand was a broad pathway leading—whither? Cooler and cooler the air became, and the fingers of the night smoothed away the wrinkles of care. Once in a while I heard the twitter of a finch, the cracking of a broom pod, or the gentle swish of water on the shore.

As the night wore on a steady light at mæsthead came sailing from the South, and in a few minutes the swift carvanserai, with its cargo of human freight, was but a speck upon the verge of light.

But this I heeded little, for once I was far from the madding crowd, and far from care, and far from thoughts of aught but rest and peace and memories. Poets have sung of scenes less fair, and the wisest of men have found solace in the various moods of nature. One of the wisest enjoined communion with her "whose touch has still its healing power." Some seek solitude in the whispering woods, others on the murmuring waves, but I found it "on a balcony" from which I saw the golden bar of light that danced upon the waves, but more than that, "the light that never was on land or sea."

moment when he reclined at Ophelia's feet and nervously dangled her fan, his wits meanwhile all alert, and a set purpose evident, the audience followed him breathlessly, and when heaping accusation on accusation he grasped the affrighted King, and the scene broke up in general confusion, the audience had one of those rare thrills, which is the highest testimony to genius.

But I must not linger on Mr. Mantell's really brilliant interpretation of Hamlet, but hark back to Monday night, when he played Othello as no man living can begin to play the part, and as no man has played it since the days of Salvini the elder.

Mr. Mantell looks and lives the part of the swarthy Moor, in build, in make-up in barbaric gesture, and in voice he is absolutely perfect. What a difference between the deep, bass organ, with its limited range and the flexible, weak, lighter tones, which characterized the voice of Hamlet. There were only odd moments when one could readily conceive that they were listening to the same actor.

Mr. Mantell has modelled his Othello on that of Salvini, with whom he vies in ruggedness, barbaric splendour, and natural force. No one who had followed him closely through the stormy scenes of the play could have anticipated the tenderness which he infused into the murder scene. It was easy to see that the great heart was broken and that his thoughts were more of the lost Desdemona than of revenge. It is impossible not to admire Mr. Mantell's exquisite rendering of the death speech beginning, "I have done the State some service." Many actors, great ones, render this as if it were an oration; it fell from Mr. Mantell's lips almost like a soliloquy, and was infinitely more pathetic, more convincing and more natural.

Even great actors have their limitations, and Mr. Mantell is no exception, he was handicapped to some extent by adopting the Mansfield version, which is emasculated to suit the susceptibilities of Boston audiences, and which suffers greatly in the process. Shakespeare requires no polishing, and the attempt induces affectation.

Mr. Mantell, despite his greatness, has one personal limitation; he is not profoundly intellectual. His work is not suggestive. He plays rather for the public than for the student. Not for a moment can this be considered a defect in one of his vocation but in instituting a comparison with his predecessors in such classic roles the point cannot be overlooked. Of no Shakespearean actor, at any rate since the days of Kean, can it be said that he was great in all parts. In the long roll so admirably played by Irving, only one real success was scored—Shylock. Every part was popular and drew crowded houses, but when the glamour of the magnificent setting and the brilliant support receded in the distance, and the individual work of the actor stood out, it was admitted that even in his own time others had excelled him in every part but that of the Jew. And so it is too much to expect from Mr. Mantell more than one or two really transcendent portrayals, and unless I am greatly mistaken the best judges will crown him for Othello and King Lear.

Mr. Mantell will be heard in Victoria again. If he lives, this is inevitable, and if next time he appears in a new theatre with proper stage accessories, his success will be more notable though it cannot be more emphatic than that achieved on the occasion of his first visit.

MOMUS.

The New Grand.

Next week's bill will be headed by Juno Salmo, an act that has been featured in Europe, and in London at the Empire Theatre of Varieties proved a great drawing card. His performance is absolutely novel and consists of some astounding feats on a trapeze, which is represented as hung in the infernal regions. The effects are extremely weird and most curious. Another big feature will be Terley, in an act of impersonations which is described as nothing short of magnificent. It includes an illusion which shows the impersonations as Bohemian.

Music and The Drama.

Robert Mantell.

Robert Mantell has paid his first visit to Victoria; he has appeared twice at the theatre and has been entertained as the guest of the Canadian Club. With respect to the latter incident it may at once be said that the Club is to be congratulated on having gone outside the beaten track to entertain a man of Mr. Mantell's distinction in a profession which receives too little recognition from our representative institutions.

With respect to his theatrical work, it is difficult to know where to begin and what to say. From personal knowledge extending over the whole of his career, I ventured to speak of him in advance in terms which some people considered extravagant; I have had the satisfaction of reading in both the daily papers that he is the greatest Shakespearean actor ever seen in Victoria, a verdict which is thoroughly endorsed by all who had the privilege of seeing him.

It is not my intention to give a detailed criticism of the two roles which he essayed. Of the two I still think that his Othello is the finer, mainly because he is temperamentally better suited to the part than Hamlet. Mr. Mantell is essentially a robust actor, and in spite of the excellence of what may be called minor passages he scores his most marked success and achieves his greatest success when he rises to the heights of passionate declamation. The finest moment of the two nights was at the end of the Players' scene in Hamlet, when he fastened the guilt of his Father's murder upon his Uncle, and denounced him. Critics have always been divided in opinion as to whether the Players' scene or the scene between Hamlet and his Mother is the greater. My view is that it depends entirely on the actor. Edmund Kean, admittedly the greatest Hamlet since Garrick, favoured the latter, and was generally conceded to have reached the high-water mark of excellence in its portrayal. Fechter and G. V. Brooke triumphed in the Players' act. Of latter day tragedians, Irving Forbes Robertson and Mansfield were stronger in the boudoir scene, Mantell in my judgment in the other.

For a piece of sustained convincing acting, hurried along with resistless impetuosity to a dramatic conclusion nothing finer could be conceived than Mr. Mantell's work in this great scene. From the moment he came on the stage, with a half-assumed air of indifference, and especially from the

On a Balcony.

Lo! some we loved, the loveliest and the best
That Time and Fate of all their vintage prest,
Have drunk their Cup a Round or two before,
And one by one crept silently to rest.
—Omar Khayyam.

This is not Browning's balcony, nor Juliet's, nor yet the one from which "The Blessed Damosel" looked on a fevered world. Nor is my balcony in tropic climes or scorching desert, where blazing sun beats pitilessly down, and quivering heat fevers the blood. And yet the day had been a trying one, by common consent almost a record for Victoria, and restlessness had marked its passing hours. No cool spot could I find. The sultry, saturating, heat was everywhere. In the shadow of the trees was no welcome zephyr, even the acacia leaves hung limp and motionless. As the day wore on, physical restlessness induced mental uneasiness, and tired brain waited on an exhausted body.

With the passing of the sun in a golden glory beyond the Sooke hills I remembered a balcony and cursed my forgetfulness that for a whole sweltering day had left me pining reliefless. Under the bluest of skies, in the gathering twilight, I wandered off along a country lane. High banks of blossomless broom encroached upon the roadway; I looked between them to the dimpling sea and beyond to the snow-clad Olympics.

In silence and in darkness I reached my balcony. Light or sound would have been a desecration of this perfect retreat. A soft breeze rippled the air. Just over the edge of the cliff lay the brooding waters of the Straits, away to the left twinkled the light on Trial Island. The blue sky darkened to indigo, then across it spread banks of black cloud, their coming revealed by the shining of a light behind the curtain which they formed. On the surface of the water fell one silvery band which showed the tiny wavelets dancing. The band broadened until I glimpsed a street of gold, running out from the edge of the cliff to meet the farther shore. As the light broadened the clouds broke and were barred. Then, as if

Truth Comes Home Slowly.

"I guess," said the wise old codger, "the public must be satisfied that I've been nothing but an old fossil for the past twenty years or so."
"What led you to that conclusion?"
"The fact that I'm just beginning to realize that I'm not as young as used to be."

The Village Gossips.

Silas Hardacre—Yes, every Tuesday and Thursday night is "ripping night" with the ladies' sewing society in this town.

City Drummer—Indeed! And do they rip up?

Silas Hardacre—Carpet rags, grees and the absent members.

Careful.

"Lend me your umbrella, old man," "You've got one," replied Goo

You told me your wife gave you a fine one for your birthday last year. Why don't you use that?"

"Oh, I'm afraid of losing that."

The Art of Curtainry

CASEMENT CURTAINS.

Everybody knows we make a leading feature of Casement Curtains, but few realise the wealth of materials we stock for this branch of our business—such as Alpaca, Bermuda Cloth, Chalic Cloth, Art Linens, Chintz, etc.—nor the fact that our expert's advice and assistance are always at your service without charge.

The majority of windows in new homes are built for Casement Curtains. In addition to being the most artistic of all curtains they have the additional advantage of being very economical. If you are building a new home, it will repay you to have our expert figure out the Casement Curtain scheme.

GENUINE DRESDEN CHINA.

A superb selection of A. Sachs' Dresden Fruit Stands, each piece is a work of art, literally covered with dainty artistic figures. Every china cabinet and banquet table should contain one of these exquisite productions, priced from $10.00 to $20.00

LACE CURTAINS.

Our vast experience of curtain materials teaches us what to buy and what to avoid—that is the chief reason why our curtains always drape gracefully and wear well. Another reason is in the fact that we carry such a very large and varied stock you have no difficulty in purchasing the sort of curtain suitable for your windows. As to prices, we quote herein the lowest prices in five styles—it would take columns to give you every price in every style:—

- NOTTINGHAM LACE CURTAINS,
Per pair, from$1.25
- CABLE LACE CURTAINS,
Per pair, from$2.00
- SWISS LACE CURTAINS,
Per pair, from$3.50
- BOBBINET CURTAINS,

which very much resembles her brother's famous stroke and which is almost unplayable. As long as she kept the ball near the side it was rarely returned. In the final, however, the cupholder upset all calculations in favour of Miss Pooley, and it must in fairness be admitted that she outclassed her opponent. She was more active, more flexible and more versatile in her style, her backhand stroke in particular being effective. She won out rather easily, and in view of the fact that she was not really extended, it is still a moot point as to what Miss Pitts could do at her best.

The other final between B. P. Schwengers and C. S. Jephson will long be memorable in the annals of the Belcher St. Courts. With two sets all, the issue was in doubt. On the previous play, when the fifth set began, it was a toss-up who would win, and if the champion had not adopted entirely different tactics he would have gone down to defeat. He won out by "going after" his opponent, playing at his full strength and at top speed. This policy discovered Jephson's weakness, and enabled Schwengers to establish a somewhat pronounced victory in the fifth set. Before the match Schwengers expressed the opinion that Jephson could win, for said he, "Nobody knows just how good Jephson is." His opinion is a remarkable testimony to Schwengers' judgment; just the final result was an equally remarkable confirmation of the handicappers' estimate.

As this was easily the most important match of the series it may be interesting to analyze the record as shown by the Umpire's sheet. In the series of five sets Schwengers won 249 strokes to Jephson's 155. Game by game the strokes were as follows: First game, Schwengers 51, Jephson 30; second game, Schwengers 38, Jephson 36; third game, Schwengers 71, Jephson 37; fourth game, Schwengers 48, Jephson 35; fifth game, Schwengers 40, Jephson 17. A second analysis is even more interesting, because it affords an excellent test of the handicapping. It is worked out thus: Eliminating the strokes which Schwengers had to make to work off his handicap the result is as follows:—First game, Schwengers 31, Jephson 30; second game, Schwengers 23, Jephson 36; fourth game, Schwengers 40, Jephson 37; fifth game, Schwengers 21, Jephson 35; sixth game, Schwengers 24, Jephson 17, a total of, Schwengers 138, Jephson 155. So nearly did the handicappers bring these players together that in the course of five sets, comprising fifty-two games, there was only a difference, outside the handicap, of seventeen strokes. The features of this remarkable match were the strength and accuracy of Schwengers' play, and the dexterity and resourcefulness of Jephson's. The latter is one of the prettiest players ever seen on the Victoria Courts, his forte being recovery from apparently hopeless positions. He must have learned his tennis in a good school, and at the present time can be classed amongst the best players in the Province.

The tournament, which was well attended by the general public, is a splendid indication of what may be expected in the future. With an addition of forty members to the Club this year and a large number of young players coming to the front, the prospects are most hopeful, and there will be a general consensus of opinion that the time has come for acquiring permanent grounds commensurate to the requirements of a club which now numbers nearly two hundred.

It would not be fair to close this account without recognition of the admirable manner in which Mrs. Genge and the Ladies' Committee catered for the members and their friends. The furnishing of refreshments for sixty or eighty people every afternoon involved no little preparation and hard work, which was cheerfully undertaken by the Ladies' Committee.

ONE—WEEK—
Miss G. Hickey arrived by Sunday's boat from Vancouver and is visiting friends in Victoria.

Mrs. Gerald Pike, who has been spending the past three months with her mother in Victoria, left on Wednesday for China.

Mrs. Corsan of Seattle came over to attend Miss Gaudin's wedding last Wednesday and is the guest of Mrs. James Raymour.

A very pretty and artistic wedding was solemnized at St. Saviour's, Victoria West, on Wednesday last, when Miss Marie Gaudin and Mr. Roger Wilby were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The church was beautifully decorated by the numerous girl friends of the bride, with large lillies and canterbury bells and foliage plants.

The choir was composed of friends and the solo was rendered by Mrs. Hinton.

The bride, who was given away by her father, Captain Gaudin, was most beautifully gowned in Japanese embroidered crepe de chine with court train trimmed with lovely old lace and a dainty wreath of orange blossoms, tulle veil and carried a bouquet of large lillies tied with white tulle.

The bridesmaids, Miss Beatrice Gaudin, and Miss Ross Arbuthnot, looked very sweet in flowered white crepe de chine, Empire frocks, and wore silver grapes and tulle veils in the hair.

The mother of the bride looked very handsome in a black Spanish lace gown over grey and a toque with white osprey and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Katie Gaudin was greatly admired in a lovely frock of embroidered crepe de chine over pale green, and a white hat with pale green roses, and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Jas. Harvey, sister of the bride, looked very sweet in old rose crepe de chine, with hat of same shade, trimmed with roses and tulle.

Mrs. Jas. Anderson, aunt and godmother to the bride, was very handsomely gowned in rich black satin, trimmed with old Brussels rose point and a dainty mauve bonnet and bouquet of sweet peas of the same shade.

Mrs. Charles wore a smart gown of black.

Among the numerous guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. C. McCallum, Miss Hawthornthwaite, Mrs. Holmes, Miss Cleland, Mrs. Corsan pale pink muslin, blue hat and pink roses; Mrs. J. Raymour, white linen suit; Mrs. Spratt, lovely Paris gown and hat of pink roses; Mrs. Griffiths, Mrs. Gibb, Mrs. C. Baker, Miss Clapham, Miss Saunders in pale green, Miss Miles, Mrs. (Col.) Holmes, Miss Holmes, Mrs. Brady, Mrs. Blackwood, Mrs. R. Troupe, Mrs. H. Helmcken, Mrs. (Capt.) Troupe, Miss Troupe, Mrs. Butchart, Miss O'Reilly, Mrs. Charles, Mrs. Eberts in grey silk, Miss Eberts in white muslin and picture hat, Miss Lorna Eberts, Mrs. Cuppage, Mrs. Gordon Hunter, Mrs. J. Monteith, Mrs. Hind, Mrs. R. Jones, Mrs. Rismuller in pale blue, Mrs. Rithet, Miss T. Drake, Mrs. J. Irving, Misses Irving, Miss Paula Irving, Miss Norah Coombe, Miss Bullen, Mrs. Bushby, Miss H. Peters, Mrs. Stevenson in a violet costume, Miss D. Mason in flowered Empire muslin, Mrs. W. Gore, black gown with Irish crochet, Mrs. Griffen, Mrs. T. S. Gore in pale green, Mrs. B. Heisterman, Mrs. H. Tye, Mrs. B. Tye, Mrs. Lagan, Miss Phyllis Mason, Mrs. Croft, Mrs. Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, Col. and Mrs. Landes, Misses Landes, Mrs. Courtney, Mrs. Johnstone, Miss Johnstone in pale green, Mrs. Newling in violet linen, Miss Newling in pink muslin Empire, Miss Hickey in white Princess, Mrs. Matson, Mrs. Coles, Miss Davie in white lace, cerise hat, Mrs. Arbuthnot, Mrs. S. Robertson, Mrs. Hermann Robertson, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Luxton, Mrs. Dumolin, Mrs. Bogs, Misses Page, Mrs. J. Laing, Mr. J. Bridgeman, Mrs. Englehart, Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Carmichael, Mrs. Shallcross, Mrs. Day, Miss Galt, Misses Work, Mrs. Devereux, Miss Devereux, Mrs. Gibb, Mrs. J. Graham, Mrs. Nare, Mrs. (Col.) Hall, Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. Hogg, Miss Newcombe, Misses McMicking, Mrs. Matthews, Miss Innes, Mrs. Berkeley, Mrs. Hirsch.

The Messrs. Newcombe, Arbuckle, Ewart, Gore and Lucas acted as ushers, and Mr. Ernest Brae supported the groom.

The decorations in the drawing room were very effective, the color scheme being salmon pink.

A marquee was erected on the lawn and hung with garlands and baskets of white sweet peas, roses and maiden hair fern where the usual speeches and responses took place.

The bride's going away frock was of Alice blue cloth and hat to match. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch bracelet, and to the bridesmaids pearl brooches.

The honeymoon is being spent in Seattle and Portland. Upon their return they will take up their residence on Dunsmuir Road.

"Those responsible for the management of last week's handicap tennis tournament are entitled to unstinted praise. The games were brought off systematically. There wasn't a hitch from the opening day, every class being worked off to the finals by Saturday and the deciding matches being brought so close to scheduled time that all enthusiasts were able to witness those they were anxious to see by keeping themselves posted. The players are all right; so are the officials; but the courts badly need fixing.—Colonist.

Sporting Comment.

The Bellingham ball players went down before the Victoria team at Oak Bay last Saturday in a very tedious game which had very few interesting points. The game was late in starting owing to the visitors travelling by the Chippewa. This, however, cannot be put down to them as they intended taking passage on the Princess Victoria, but owing to some sharp practice on the part of the steamboat owners in Seattle they were held on board the boat in Seattle until after the departure of the Victoria. The game itself was very uninteresting to watch. The first innings proved the undoing for the visitors when they very kindly threw the ball away and allowed the home boys to score three runs. After this neither team had any the best of it but the locals managed to hold their lead and run out winners. The local team will not be playing this afternoon, the grounds being given over to the Caledonia Society for its annual sports.

As an example how the Inland Navigation Company is assisting Victoria it was shown this week when at the request of the local baseball club the management of the steamboat company absolutely refused to hold the Chippewa for a couple of hours to enable the Seattle league team to get home, in consequence of this the Victoria fans will be deprived of the pleasure of witnessing the Seattle team in action. Manager Dugdale of the Seattle team was in town on Saturday evening last and arranged with Manager Willie that these teams should play at Oak Bay on Monday. These arrangements are off owing to the failure of the steamboat company to come to their assistance.

The next match in which the locals take part will be played at Oak Bay one week today, the opponents being the Websters of Seattle. According to Manager Dugdale this team is the fastest outside of the regular league teams and if the locals manage to lower their colors it will be a big feather in their caps.

At last the baseball fans are supplied with the daily scores of the Northwest league in the local dailies. I have dwelt on this subject several times, but never with as much pleasure as this, and I am pleased to see that the request of many fans has at last been acceded to.

This afternoon the local lacrosse players will try conclusions with the Maple Leafs at the Royal Athletic Park. From all accounts this should be a good game and despite their many setbacks I pick the locals to win. The team as a whole has never been in better shape and they will set a pace that will be hard for their opponents to maintain. The game will start at 3 o'clock and I hope there will be a good turn out.

THE WEEK, SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1908

ONE DOLLAR PER ANNUM

EDITORIAL

Signs are already accumulating that the Socialist boom in Canada is on the wane. The Convention called this week in Vancouver to select a candidate had to be adjourned because the attendance was insufficient to justify the transaction of business. It would not be safe to argue much from a solitary accident like this, but close observers have noticed for some months past that the activity of the various Socialist organizations has sensibly diminished. If this figured an abandonment of the Socialist propaganda it might not be regarded as an unmixed evil because however much the thoughtful man may decry the extravagances of those who have been known as leaders of the Socialist party, he has always recognized the germ of truth contained in the propaganda. It is not so much the aim of Socialism which is to be pronounced, as the illogical arguments and the impracticable methods of its advocates. Socialism did no more than arouse public attention to the evils and excrescences of the present social system, it could have justified its existence, and if its disappearance were an active propaganda would dedicate a return to apathy and dolence on the part of social reformers, then far better it were kept alive even at the cost of some extravagances. But it is these very extravagances which constitute its greatest weakness, and furnish its opponents with their strongest weapon. The national convention of the Socialist Labour party of the United States recently nominated Martin R. Weston as their candidate for the Presidency, and yet this man is several years younger than the constitutional age requirement, and is at present in prison serving a twenty-five years' sentence in the Nevada State Prison for the murder of a moon keeper at Goldfield. The platform of the Socialist Labour party declares for a co-operative Commonwealth to replace the present state of Social disorder," and apparently would do it by making a convicted murderer the ruler of the greatest Republic in the world. The antics of Socialist leaders could be ludicrous if they were not pitiful; it is not what they represent but what they represent, which gives them force; it is the human suffering behind them which constitutes their reality; it is when he views the misery of the race that the Socialist gives vent to the hysterical cry which Shakespeare heard upon the lips of Hamlet:

"The world is up-side down
to set it right."

The one mistake of the Socialist is the mistake of mankind, the failure to understand, and the leaving out of the dominating factor, human nature. More than half the tragedies of our life arise from this same ignorance; we go from cause to effect; we attribute the known result to an unknown cause; we base all our judgments to a mathematical basis; we determine human conduct on the arbitrary ruling of axioms, but we leave out of our calculation the unknown, the uncertain, and the variant element of human nature itself, with all its impulses and ambitions, its intuitions and tendencies, and so make tragedy. There was more wisdom than the world wots of in the dictum of Alexander Pope, "The proper study of mankind is man." While his studies should not end there they should begin there, and the Socialist might do worse than amend his curriculum, and abandon, at least for a time, the abstruse theories of so-called "Social economics" for a closer examination of human nature which is the same in all ages but of which we appear to know less in this than in the proceeding ones.

The Nanaimo Nomination.

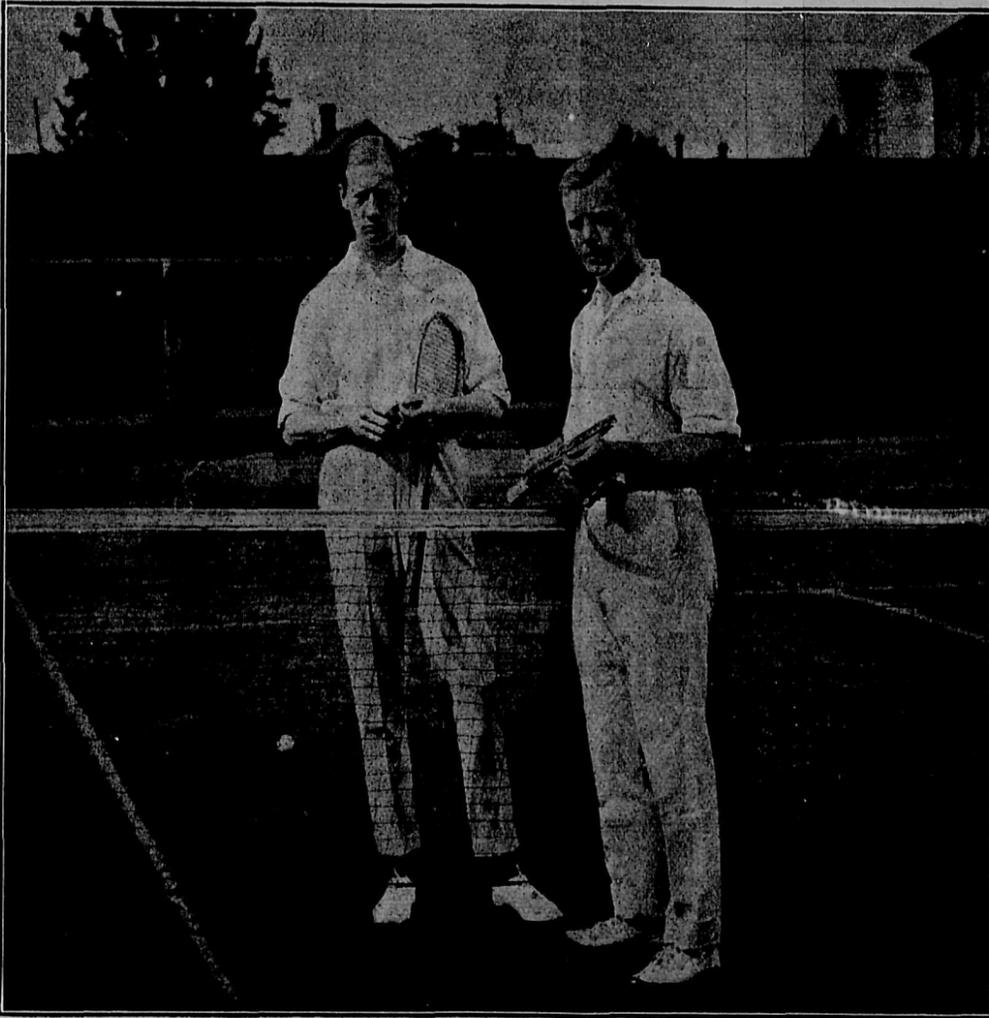

The Victoria Times appears to be greatly exercised over the Conservative nomination for the Nanaimo

Conservative leaders to receive the condolences of the Liberal press. The Times would have the public believe that Capt. Wolley, Mr. Helmcken and Mr. Beckwith have been badly treated, and that their long and valuable services to the Conservative party have met with base ingratitude. Unless The Week is greatly mistaken the gentlemen in question will be as indifferent to the condolences as they have been to the criticisms of the Times. They well know that if either of them had been selected they would at once have become the butt of all the political venom which the Times could direct at them; in spite of the fact that it is now so solicitous for their interests. There is little doubt that the Times would have been glad for either of the gentlemen named to receive the nomination, and it entirely fails to appreciate the considerations which led Capt.

ation. The space devoted to condoling with Capt. Wolley and other prominent Conservatives could be better utilized in furnishing arguments to Mr. Ralph Smith who will need all the help he can get when he meets Mr. Shepherd in the campaign.

Defying The City.

It is not to question the decision of the Chief Justice in the Carroll case to say that the result constitutes a menace to public morals and at the same time places the City in a most serious position. The appellant is a notorious woman who has plied an infamous trade in Victoria for many years. This is a matter of common knowledge and not disputed. Last year she built a new and expensive residence in a locality vetoed by the authorities for the purpose of continuing her trade. She persisted in this course although warned by the police that it would not be tolerated. In due time the house was opened; the woman defied the authorities and declared that no one could stop her, that she should locate where she pleased and carry on her trade in spite of everybody. So far she has been successful, every attempt to convict her of being the keeper of a disorderly house has failed, although convictions for selling drink without a license have been sustained, and have brought with them a notoriety which is absolutely conclusive as to the character of her house. The police had no alternative but to assert their authority. They imported unknown men who were successful in securing conclusive evidence. Their evidence stands today uncontradicted, and the acts to which they deposed are sufficient apart from technicality to ensure a conviction. City Magistrate Jay had no difficulty in finding to this effect and in the eye of the law he alone is the arbiter upon the facts. Then Mr. J. A. Aikman comes on the scene with an application before the Chief Justice "in certiorari," to quash the conviction, on the ground that the evidence did not show a guilty knowledge of the acts complained of on the part of Carroll. The application to everyone's amazement was successful and the conviction was quashed, and further, unless this decision is reversed on appeal the prosecution of the keepers of disorderly houses will be a thing of the past. To appreciate the full significance of the decision it must be borne in mind that in an application "in certiorari," the credibility of the witnesses and the reliability of their evidence is not in question, and cannot be canvassed. The Magistrate is supposed to have disposed of that aspect of the case, the Court is simply required to determine whether, the evidence being unimpeached, a conviction is a legal and inevitable consequence. The point upon which the Chief Justice ruled to the contrary in this case was the absence of evidence to show that Carroll was present and witnessed the acts complained of; surely with all respect to the law a proposition which is a "reductio ad absurdum." Evasion of such a condition would be so easy on the part of every keeper of such a house that proof of guilty knowledge would be absolutely impossible, a conclusion which could never have been contemplated or intended by the framers of the law. The Chief Justice may be perfectly right in his interpretation, but in the interest of morality, of law and of order, it is to be sincerely hoped that for once in an illustrious career he has made a mistake.

constituency. The antics of the Times in this connection have been distinctly amusing; it has made guesses innumerable all wide of the mark, and now that Mr. Shepherd has been nominated and even the Times is obliged to admit that he is an estimable citizen, who for twenty-eight years has lived in the constituency with the respect of his fellows, it is hard put to make political capital out of the situation. Since it can say nothing to the discredit of the nominee, it is devoting itself to what is surely a work of supererogation in offering condolences to gentlemen who might, should, would or could have been nominated. It is a long time since so many crocodile tears were shed over what the Times would have us believe are the blighted hopes of disappointed candidates. But it is a new development even in partizan journalism for

Wolley to decline nomination. The splendid convention held at Ladysmith goes to show that Conservatives are able to sink all their differences and all their personal ambitions in the interests of their party, a virtue which the party championed by the Victoria Times has yet to learn. Mr. Shepherd will have no more willing and whole-souled worker than Capt. Wolley, who is too broad-gauged a man to be sized up by a narrow gauged Grit. No better nomination could have been made than that of Mr. Shepherd, who possesses all the qualifications of a popular candidate. He is a life-long Conservative, an almost life-long resident in the constituency, a man of education, of special attainments, and of high personal character. In short he is not the kind of candidate to suit the Times which is perhaps his highest recommend-

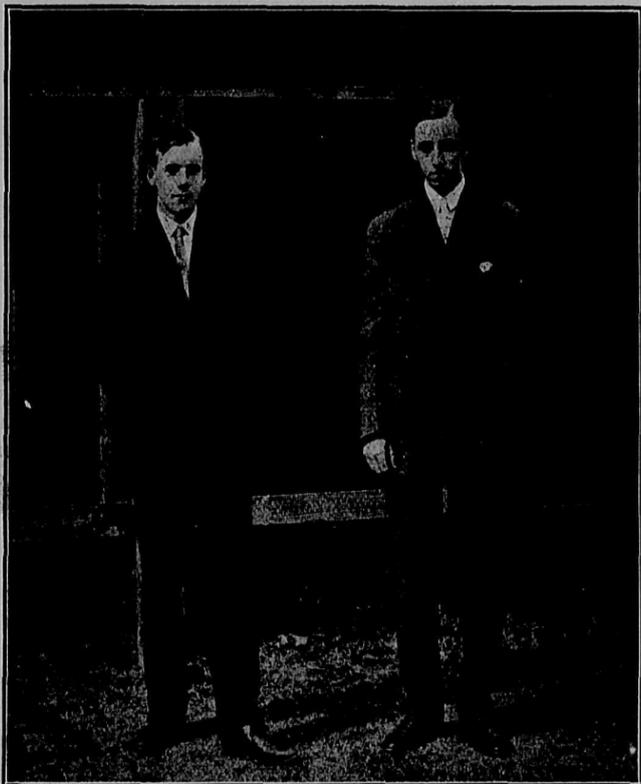

At The Street Corner

By THE LOUNGER

For the first time since I came to live in Victoria I went up the line on Tuesday to spend a day in the country. I did not go alone, but lounged on the fringe of a party who went to enjoy the hospitality of the South Cowichan Tennis Club. I cannot say enough of the hospitality dispensed, or of the splendid courts and beautiful surroundings. It was a revelation to me and to the other visitors who had not been there before. There were six beautiful grass courts as level as a billiard table, surrounded by as fine a group of maples as could be found in Canada, and only a few yards away one glimpsed the waters of the lake. Living in Victoria it is easy to think, as we are all apt to think and to say, that we are thrice blessed, and that nothing could be better; but it all depends on what one asks of life. I think it would be hard to find a more perfect retreat to automobiles as to many other instruments in themselves harmless, but capable of becoming dangerous, "eternal vigilance is the price of safety."

The invitation of the promoters of the Kiltie Show to all loyal Scotsmen to appear in the national garb "for this occasion only" did not meet with a very hearty response. Much might be said on the subject of kilts, but in this as in many other matters "brevity is the soul of wit." There are some who will never be able to understand how full grown men can be induced to disport themselves in the classic garb of their clan for the mere delectation of a mob, but such are "Sassenach brutes." I would have given a good deal to see a near-by friend who hales from Scotland in his native garb, but he did not answer the roll call, and when I saw the two giants who headed the procession I ceased to wonder at his defection. Of course the day was rather chilly, and that may have had something to do with it, but after all it must be admitted that the enthusiasm of the sons of Scotia who reside in Victoria was not very marked, and long residence in a civilized city appears to have extinguished their respect for kilts.

than the Duncans district. I am sure it would be impossible to find a more hospitable colony, and that is just what it is, and being altogether English nothing remains to be said.

The voice of protest against the destruction of our trees gains in volume and in a certain stridency of tone which betokens a coming storm. The courts have, as I anticipated, granted an injunction to Dr. Hart and it becomes more than ever a matter of wonderment how the city officials can have the temerity to continue their iconoclastic work in the face of public opinion and of the very determined attitude of the courts. The Streets Committee and the City Engineer may as well make up their minds first as last that no more trees will be cut down in the public thoroughfares, and the sooner they modify their plans upon these lines the better for all concerned. It is fortunate that no act of violence has been provoked by their foolish and ill-advised procedure.

I am pleased to notice a marked improvement in the conduct of the chauffeurs who ply for hire in Victoria; they furnish just one more illustration of the sufficiency of British law when properly enforced to meet every case. When the police began to take action they were told that the by-laws could not be complied with, but a few short weeks of persistent enforcing have effected all that could be desired, and within the City at any rate there are no reckless drivers at the moment. With respect

My sympathies are entirely with Mr. Leonard Solly in his protest against the condition of our roads through neglect to remove noxious weeds and prickly growths which are so injurious to the dog; but my sympathies go a great deal further than this as I may have occasion to explain shortly. The action of our sapient city fathers with reference to the new by-laws governing the canine race seems to predicate the extinction of dogs in a future civilization. The regulations are almost too stupid to be believable. They can never be enforced and in the interests of their reputation the members of the Council would do well to abandon them forthwith, and consult men who know something about dogs before they undertake to legislate man's best friend out of existence.

Victoria Lawn Tennis Handicap Tournament, 1908.

The Victoria Lawn Tennis Handicap Tournament which was pulled off last week was in many respects most successful. The entries numbered one hundred and three, the largest for many years, the number last year being sixty. Some of the games were as close and exciting as in an average Open Tournament, but perhaps the

ing and courageous game, which with accuracy and steadiness that come from experience will enable her at no distant date to rank with the lady champions. Miss Loenholm also played a greatly improved game. Too much credit cannot be given to F. Rome and C. Drake who defeated the brothers Todd in the finals remarkably well, indeed the play of Miss Pitts, who appears for the first time in the Club Tournament, was one of the most gratifying features of the week; with practice and a little more energy she will in the course of a few years become a formidable rival of her brilliant sister. Keefer also played a greatly im-st satisfactory feature was the presence of young players, and the splendid fight they made with the veterans. The handicapping Committee worked hard to equalize the chances, and on the whole were successful. In the end honours were equally divided, for of eight final winners four were players with established reputations and four by comparison young players, who for the first time forged their way to the net. Perhaps the most meritorious winner was that of Miss Holmes and Miss Loenholm in the Ladies' Doubles, the former in particular playing a dash-for the Men's Doubles. After the splendid fight which the latter put up when they vanquished the stars, B. P. Schwengers and R. H. Pooley, it looked any odds on them for the finals, but Rome and Drake rose to the occasion and their opponents found that giving odds and receiving odds are very different propositions; the winners thoroughly deserved their victory. Of the other finalists Miss Pooley and McDougall had little difficulty in pulling off the Mixed Doubles. They were opposed by Miss Gladys Pitts and P. W. Keefer, who in the earlier stages of the Tournament had done proved game, and was one of the men upon whom the handicappers failed to get an accurate line. Probably everyone expected Miss Marion Pitts to win out in the Flumerfelt Cup competition, but as the week wore on and Miss Pooley continued to play really brilliant tennis there were not a few who favoured her chance. She is undoubtedly playing much better this year than ever before; her play is steadier; her stroke harder and her control of the ball decidedly improved. She has a long, low hard drive from one corner of the courts to the other—diagonally, (Continued on Page Five)

On a Balcony.

Lo! some we loved, the loveliest and the best
That Time and Fate of all their vintage prest,
Have drunk their Cup a Round or two before,
And one by one crept silently to rest.
—Omar Khayyam.

This is not Browning's balcony, nor Juliet's, nor yet the one from which "The Blessed Damosel" looked on a fevered world. Nor is my balcony in tropic climes or scorching desert, where blazing sun beats pitilessly down, and quivering heat fevers the blood. And yet the day had been a trying one, by common consent almost a record for Victoria, and restlessness had marked its passing hours. No cool spot could I find. The sultry, saturating, heat was everywhere. In the shadow of the trees was no welcome zephyr, even the acacia leaves hung limp and motionless. As the day wore on, physical restlessness induced mental uneasiness, and tired brain waited on an exhausted body.

With the passing of the sun in a golden glory beyond the Sooke hills I remembered a balcony and cursed my forgetfulness that for a whole sweltering day had left me pining reliefless. Under the bluest of skies, in the gathering twilight, I wandered off along a country lane. High banks of blossomless broom encroached upon the roadway; I looked between them to the dimpling sea and beyond to the snow-clad Olympics.

In silence and in darkness I reached my balcony. Light or sound would have been a desecration of this perfect retreat. A soft breeze rippled the air. Just over the edge of the cliff lay the brooding waters of the Straits, away to the left twinkled the light on Trial Island. The blue sky darkened to indigo, then across it spread banks of black cloud, their coming revealed by the shining of a light behind the curtain which they formed. On the surface of the water fell one silvery band which showed the tiny wavelets dancing. The band broadened until I glimpsed a street of gold, running out from the edge of the cliff to meet the farther shore. As the light broadened the clouds broke and were barred. Then, as if

with a swift turn, the curtain was removed and a full moon shone in all her splendour against the indigo canopy, and my band was a broad pathway leading—whither? Cooler and cooler the air became, and the fingers of the night smoothed away the wrinkles of care. Once in a while I heard the twitter of a finch, the cracking of a broom pod, or the gentle swish of water on the shore.

As the night wore on a steady light at masthead came sailing from the South, and in a few minutes the swift carvanserai, with its cargo of human freight, was but a speck upon the verge of light.

But this I heeded little, for once I was far from the madding crowd, and far from care, and far from thoughts of aught but rest and peace and memories. Poets have sung of scenes less fair, and the wisest of men have found solace in the various moods of nature. One of the wisest enjoined communion with her "whose touch has still its healing power." Some seek solitude in the whispering woods, others on the murmuring waves, but I found it "on a balcony" from which I saw the golden bar of light that danced upon the waves, but more than that, "the light that never was on land or sea."

moment when he reclined at Ophelia's feet and nervously dangled her fan, his wits meanwhile all alert, and a set purpose evident, the audience followed him breathlessly, and when heaping accusation on accusation he grasped the affrighted King, and the scene broke up in general confusion, the audience had one of those rare thrills, which is the highest testimony to genius.

But I must not linger on Mr. Mantell's really brilliant interpretation of Hamlet, but hark back to Monday night, when he played Othello as no man living can begin to play the part, and as no man has played it since the days of Salvini the elder.

Mr. Mantell looks and lives the part of the swarthy Moor, in build, in make-up in barbaric gesture, and in voice he is absolutely perfect. What a difference between the deep, bass organ, with its limited range and the flexible, weak, lighter tones, which characterized the voice of Hamlet. There were only odd moments when one could readily conceive that they were listening to the same actor.

Mr. Mantell has modelled his Othello on that of Salvini, with whom he vies in ruggedness, barbaric splendour, and natural force. No one who had followed him closely through the stormy scenes of the play could have anticipated the tenderness which he infused into the murder scene. It was easy to see that the great heart was broken and that his thoughts were more of the lost Desdemona than of revenge. It is impossible not to admire Mr. Mantell's exquisite rendering of the death speech beginning, "I have done the State some service." Many actors, great ones, render this as if it were an oration; it fell from Mr. Mantell's lips almost like a soliloquy, and was infinitely more pathetic, more convincing and more natural.

Even great actors have their limitations, and Mr. Mantell is no exception, he was handicapped to some extent by adopting the Mansfield version, which is emasculated to suit the susceptibilities of Boston audiences, and which suffers greatly in the process. Shakespeare requires no polishing, and the attempt induces affectation.

Mr. Mantell, despite his greatness, has one personal limitation; he is not profoundly intellectual. His work is not suggestive. He plays rather for the public than for the student. Not for a moment can this be considered a defect in one of his vocation but in instituting a comparison with his predecessors in such classic roles the point cannot be overlooked. Of no Shakespearean actor, at any rate since the days of Kean, can it be said that he was great in all parts. In the long roll so admirably played by Irving, only one real success was scored—Shylock. Every part was popular and drew crowded houses, but when the glamour of the magnificent setting and the brilliant support receded in the distance, and the individual work of the actor stood out, it was admitted that even in his own time others had excelled him in every part but that of the Jew. And so it is too much to expect from Mr. Mantell more than one or two really transcendent portrayals, and unless I am greatly mistaken the best judges will crown him for Othello and King Lear.

Mr. Mantell will be heard in Victoria again. If he lives, this is inevitable, and if next time he appears in a new theatre with proper stage accessories, his success will be more notable though it cannot be more emphatic than that achieved on the occasion of his first visit.

The New Grand.

Next week's bill will be headed by Juno Salmo, an act that has been featured in Europe, and in London at the Empire Theatre of Varieties proved a great drawing card. His performance is absolutely novel and consists of some astounding feats on a trapeze, which is represented as hung in the infernal regions. The effects are extremely wierd and most curious. Another big feature will be Terley, in an act of impersonations which is described as nothing short of magnificent. It includes an illusion which shows the impersonations as

The Art of Curtainry

CASEMENT CURTAINS.

Everybody knows we make a leading feature of Casement Curtains, but few realise the wealth of materials we stock for this branch of our business—such as Alpaca, Bermuda Cloth, Chalic Cloth, Art Linens, Chintz, etc.—nor the fact that our expert's advice and assistance are always at your service without charge.

The majority of windows in new homes are built for Casement Curtains. In addition to being the most artistic of all curtains they have the additional advantage of being very economical. If you are building a new home, it will repay you to have our expert figure out the Casement Curtain scheme.

GENUINE DRESDEN CHINA.

A superb selection of A. Sachs' Dresden Fruit Stands, each piece is a work of art, literally covered with dainty artistic figures. Every china cabinet and banquet table should contain one of these exquisite productions, priced from$10.00 to $20.00

LACE CURTAINS.

Our vast experience of curtain materials teaches us what to buy and what to avoid—that is the chief reason why our curtains always drape gracefully and wear well. Another reason is in the fact that we carry such a very large and varied stock you have no difficulty in purchasing the sort of curtain suitable for your windows. As to prices, we quote herein the lowest prices in five styles—it would take columns to give you every price in every style:—

LAWN TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

which very much resembles her brother's famous stroke and which is most unplayable. As long as she kept the ball near the side it was easily returned. In the final, however, the cupholder upset all calculations in favour of Miss Pooley, and must in fairness be admitted that she outclassed her opponent. She is more active, more flexible and more versatile in her style, her backstroke in particular being effective. She won out rather easily, and in view of the fact that she was not really extended, it is still a moot point as to what Miss Pitts could do at her best.

The other final between B. P. Schwengers and C. S. Jephson will be memorable in the annals of the Belcher St. Courts. With two sets all, the issue was in doubt. On the previous play, when the fifth set began, it was a toss-up who would win, and if the champion had not adopted entirely different tactics he could have gone down to defeat. He was out by "going after" his opponent, playing at his full strength and top speed. This policy discovered Schwengers' weakness, and enabled Schwengers to establish a somewhat pronounced victory in the fifth set. Before the match Schwengers expressed the opinion that Jephson could win, for said he, "Nobody knows just how good Jephson is." His opinion is a remarkable testimony to Schwengers' judgment; just the final result was an equally remarkable confirmation of the handicappers' estimate.

As this was easily the most important match of the series it may be interesting to analyze the record

as shown by the Umpire's sheet. In the series of five sets Schwengers won 249 strokes to Jephson's 155. Game by game the strokes were as follows: First game, Schwengers 51, Jephson 30; second game, Schwengers 38, Jephson 36; third game, Schwengers 71, Jephson 37; fourth game, Schwengers 48, Jephson 35; fifth game, Schwengers 40, Jephson 17. A second analysis is even more interesting, because it affords an excellent test of the handicapping. It is worked out thus: Eliminating the strokes which Schwengers had to make to work off his handicap the result is as follows:—First game, Schwengers 31, Jephson 30; second game, Schwengers 23, Jephson 36; fourth game, Schwengers 40, Jephson 37; fifth game, Schwengers 21, Jephson 35; sixth game, Schwengers 24, Jephson 17, a total of, Schwengers 138, Jephson 155. So nearly did the handicappers bring these players together that in the course of five sets, comprising fifty-two games, there was only a difference, outside the handicap, of seventeen strokes.

The features of this remarkable match were the strength and accuracy of Schwengers' play, and the dexterity and resourcefulness of Jephson's. The latter is one of the prettiest players ever seen on the Victoria Courts, his forte being recovery from apparently hopeless positions. He must have learned his tennis in a good school, and at the present time can be classed amongst the best players in the Province.

The tournament, which was well attended by the general public, is a splendid indication of what may be expected in the future. With an addition of forty members to the Club this year and a large number of young players coming to the front, the prospects are most hopeful, and there will be a general consensus of opinion that the time has come for acquiring permanent grounds commensurate to the requirements of a club which now numbers nearly two hundred.

It would not be fair to close this account without recognition of the admirable manner in which Mrs. Genge and the Ladies' Committee catered for the members and their friends. The furnishing of refreshments for sixty or eighty people every afternoon involved no little preparation and hard work, which was cheerfully undertaken by the Ladies' Committee.

Mrs. McGuire of Los Angeles is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Innes, Dallas Road.

Miss Edith Davie, after an absence of three years, arrived by the Frisco boat on Tuesday last.

Dr. J. C. Davie, after a year's absence spent in California, returned home last Wednesday.

ONE-WEEK—

Miss G. Hickey arrived by Sunday's boat from Vancouver and is visiting friends in Victoria.

Mrs. Gerald Pike, who has been spending the past three months with her mother in Victoria, left on Wednesday for China.

Mrs. Corsan of Seattle came over to attend Miss Gaudin's wedding last Wednesday and is the guest of Mrs. James Raymour.

A very pretty and artistic wedding was solemnized at St. Saviour's, Victoria West, on Wednesday last, when Miss Marie Gaudin and Mr. Roger Wilby were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The church was beautifully decorated by the numerous girl friends of the bride, with large lilies and canterbury bells and foliage plants.

The choir was composed of friends and the solo was rendered by Mrs. Hinton.

The bride, who was given away by her father, Captain Gaudin, was most beautifully gowned in Japanese embroidered crepe de chine with court train trimmed with lovely old lace and a dainty wreath of orange blossoms, tulle veil and carried a bouquet of large lilies tied with white tulle.

The bridesmaids, Miss Beatrice Gaudin, and Miss Ross Arbuthnot, looked very sweet in flowered white crepe de chine, Empire frocks, and wore silver grapes and tulle veils in the hair.

The mother of the bride looked very handsome in a black Spanish lace gown over grey and a toque with white osprey and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Katie Gaudin was greatly admired in a lovely frock of embroidered crepe de chine over pale green, and a white hat with pale green roses, and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Jas. Harvey, sister of the bride, looked very sweet in old rose crepe de chine, with hat of same shade, trimmed with roses and tulle.

Mrs. Jas. Anderson, aunt and god-mother to the bride, was very handsomely gowned in rich black satin, trimmed with old Brussels rose point and a dainty mauve bonnet and bouquet of sweet peas of the same shade.

Mrs. Charles wore a smart gown of black.

Among the numerous guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. C. McCallum, Miss Hawthornthwaite, Mrs. Holmes, Miss Cleland, Mrs. Corsan pale pink muslin, blue hat and pink roses; Mrs. J. Raymour, white linen suit; Mrs. Spratt, lovely Paris gown and hat of pink roses; Mrs. Griffiths, Mrs. Gibb, Mrs. C. Baker, Miss Clapham, Miss Saunders in pale green, Miss Miles, Mrs. (Col.) Holmes, Miss Holmes, Mrs. Brady, Mrs. Blackwood, Mrs. R. Troupe, Mrs. H. Helmcken, Mrs. (Capt.) Troupe, Miss Troupe, Mrs. Butchart, Miss O'Reilly, Mrs. Charles, Mrs. Eberts in grey silk, Miss Eberts in white muslin and picture hat, Miss Lorna Eberts, Mrs. Cuppage, Mrs. Gordon Hunter, Mrs. J. Monteith, Mrs. Hind, Mrs. R. Jones, Mrs. Rismuller in pale blue, Mrs. Rithet, Miss T. Drake, Mrs. J. Irving, Misses Irving, Miss Paula Irving, Miss Norah Coombe, Miss Bullen, Mrs. Bushby, Miss H. Peters, Mrs. Stevenson in a violet costume, Miss D. Mason in flowered Empire muslin, Mrs. W. Gore, black gown with Irish crochet, Mrs. Griffen, Mrs. T. S. Gore in pale green, Mrs. B. Heisterman, Mrs. H. Tye, Mrs. B. Tye, Mrs. Lagan, Miss Phyllis Mason, Mrs. Croft, Mrs. Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, Col. and Mrs. Landes, Misses Landes, Mrs. Courtney, Mrs. Johnstone, Miss Johnstone in pale green, Mrs. Newling in violet linen, Miss Newling in pink muslin Empire, Miss Hickey in white Princess, Mrs. Matson, Mrs. Coles, Miss Davie in white lace, cerise hat, Mrs. Arbuthnot, Mrs. S. Robertson, Mrs. Hermann Robertson, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Luxton, Mrs. Dumolin, Mrs. Boggs, Misses Page, Mrs. J. Laing, Mr. J. Bridgeman, Mrs. Englehart, Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Carmichael, Mrs. Shallcross, Mrs. Day, Miss Galt, Misses Work, Mrs. Devereux, Miss Devereux, Mrs. Gibb, Mrs. J. Graham, Mrs. Nare, Mrs. (Col.) Hall, Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. Hogg, Miss Newcombe, Misses McMicking, Mrs. Matthews, Miss Innes, Mrs. Berkeley, Mrs. Hirsch.

The Messrs. Newcombe, Arbuckle, Ewart, Gore and Lucas acted as ushers, and Mr. Ernest Brae supported the groom.

The decorations in the drawing room were very effective, the color scheme being salmon pink.

A marquee was erected on the lawn and hung with garlands and baskets of white sweet peas, roses and maiden hair fern where the usual speeches and responses took place.

The bride's going away frock was of Alice blue cloth and hat to match. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch bracelet, and to the bridesmaids pearl brooches.

The honeymoon is being spent in Seattle and Portland. Upon their return they will take up their residence on Dunsmuir Road.

The Good Old Summertime

Is here and the weather is warm. If you feel hot and thirsty, call for a glass of the best that is brewed—Allsopp's Pale Ale—at your hotel, club or restaurant. On draught everywhere and the same honest Ale that gladdened the heart and refreshed the inner man in England 50 year ago. Yet Allsopp's Pale Ale is better known today. It is recognized not only as the best Ale brewed in England, but the best Ale distributed on the four continents. We import it in casks and kegs direct from the famous Burton-on-Trent Brewery.

Your dealer can supply you with a small keg for home use.

Ask for Allsopp's XXXX Pale Ale.

"Those responsible for the management of last week's handicap tennis tournament are entitled to unstinted praise. The games were brought off systematically. There wasn't a hitch from the opening day, every class being worked off to the finals by Saturday and the deciding matches being brought so close to scheduled time that all enthusiasts were able to witness those they were anxious to see by keeping themselves posted. The players are all right; so are the officials; but the courts badly need fixing.—Colonist.

undoing for the visitors when they very kindly threw the ball away and allowed the home boys to score three runs. After this neither team had any the best of it but the locals managed to hold their lead and run out winners. The local team will not be playing this afternoon, the grounds being given over to the Caledonia Society for its annual sports.

As an example how the Inland Navigation Company is assisting Victoria it was shown this week when at the request of the local baseball club the management of the steamboat company absolutely refused to hold the Chippewa for a couple of hours to enable the Seattle league team to get home, in consequence of this the Victoria fans will be deprived of the pleasure of witnessing the Seattle team in action. Manager Dugdale of the Seattle team was in town on Saturday evening last and arranged with Manager Willie that these teams should play at Oak Bay on Monday. These arrangements are off owing to the failure of the steamboat company to come to their assistance.

The next match in which the locals take part will be played at Oak Bay one week today, the opponents being the Websters of Seattle. According to Manager Dugdale this team is the fastest outside of the regular league teams and if the locals manage to lower their colors it will be a big feather in their caps.

At last the baseball fans are supplied with the daily scores of the Northwest league in the local dailies. I have dwelt on this subject several times, but never with as much pleasure as this, and I am pleased to see that the request of many fans has at last been acceded to.

This afternoon the local lacrosse players will try conclusions with the Maple Leafs at the Royal Athletic Park. From all accounts this should be a good game and despite their many setbacks I pick the locals to win. The team as a whole has never been in better shape and they will set a pace that will be hard for their opponents to maintain. The game will start at 3 o'clock and I hope there will be a good turn out.

A Nature Note.

"Crows are hardy birds," remarked the boarder. "In cold weather I have known them to go five days without food."

"That's nothing," chuckled the comedian boarder, "I've known crows to go five months without food."

Great Scott!! What kind of crows were they?"

"Why, scarecrows, of course."

Sporting Comment.

The Bellingham ball players went down before the Victoria team at Oak Bay last Saturday in a very tedious game which had very few interesting points. The game was late in starting owing to the visitors travelling by the Chippewa. This, however, cannot be put down to them as they intended taking passage on the Princess Victoria, but owing to some sharp practice on the part of the steamboat owners in Seattle they were held on board the boat in Seattle until after the departure of the Victoria. The game itself was very uninteresting to watch. The first innings proved the
