CORONATION

here are two aspects in which the nation may be viewed; the first, and ar the more vital, is as a symbol of conferring of kingly power upon the n ruler of a people. The second is personal relation of the King to his le and to the official act which crowns lliance. In the case of King George personal element is subordinated to igger idea. Not that it is necessary epreciate the kingly qualities and y character of His Majesty, but that ircumstances surrounding the British ne and the British Court have kept in the back-ground, and he enters his exalted office with spurs yet to on, and niche yet to be attained in Temple of Fame. What his people ow of him is all to his credit. He most widely travelled man of all ritish Princes who have come to the e; he is a man of culture, of ideals f profound sympathy with the life occupations of his subjects. The important chapters of history are written and for this reason the does not know what sagacity, what l thought, what forbearance and courage King George may have ex- d during the brief period which has d since the death of his illustrious . It is not meet that the part of a eign in momentous issues should be nphatically outlined, but there are eople who have followed the trend nts at the heart of the Empire who realise that King George must have his part like a man, and have sed an active and potent influence direction of a peaceful solution of constitutional problems. It will be ayer of every loyal British subject reign so auspiciously inaugurated e lengthened out, and that the life an who inherits such splendid tra- , and who at the threshold of his career has manifested so earnest a to continue those traditions, may ssed with health, strength and long If in the designs of an All-wise lence this heart-felt wish of an Em- ould be realised there is no doubt e personal equation will increase y year, and that King George will earer and ever nearer to his people, ltimately fill so large a place in earts that they will learn to love s they loved the greatest of all and the wisest of all kings. But ist revert to the greater aspect of ronation. The sceptre placed in nds of King George is the symbol ority; it descends to him through line of royal ancestors; it is his by f birth and blood, but it is his also greater right of the will of a con- and loyal people. We are being most daily that this is a democratic hat King George is a democratic ndeed, so democratic as—God for- be "middle class." The only in which this is true is that the f the people was never so truly d or so directly interpreted in the Constitution as today. Ever since gn of King John we have had what never tired of referring to as the er of our Liberty," but it is becom- er and truer every year that British depends less on charter than on lightened and ever-advancing senti- f the British people. There would een no "dark ages" but for the fact inety-nine per cent. of the people n profound ignorance, and it is the l emergence of civilized peoples state of ignorance which has slow- surely widened the rights of the and curtailed the privileges of the This is the true democratizing influence, and the true test of advancing civilization, and among no people and under no Emperor or King has its advance been so marked as among the subjects of the British Empire. We are not praising ourselves merely, we are accepting the verdict of the civilized world when we claim that the British Throne and all which it represents of might, of power and of rule stands for freedom and justice, and for a greater measure of freedom and justice than has been attained by any other people. The King is the key-stone of the arch which supports this great fabric; he is not only the key-stone but happily he is the corner-stone, the ornament, the symbol both of might and of justice. Every ceremonial act in the great pageant which has filled the Empire with delight and the world with envy possesses a significance which is but faintly reflected in the gorgeous pomp of a Coronation Celebration. It is the expression of an idea which springs now from Saxon, perhaps now from Norman, now from Tudor, and now from Stuart times, but all pointing to the realization of a great idea, the preservation to the British people of British institutions, of British ideals and of the British symbol of rule. Our people everywhere are content that the highest expression of their greatness shall be centred in one ruler, who, as long as he interprets the will of his people, shall act for his people. The homage of 500,000,000 loyal subjects of diverse races and climes springs from appreciation of the blessings which have flowed from British rule, as well as from affection for the chosen representative of that rule. Let every subject of the greatest Empire the world has known bow the head and bend the knee in humble recognition of the blessings which have descended upon them from age to age, under a form of government which has not yet become too democratic to recognize a ruler, and yet which is so democratic that they have been able to realize the highest form of government yet attained, and profoundly to believe in the hand of destiny, and the guiding of a Providence supreme over all earthly sovereigns however great; that Providence which

THE VICTORIA CELEBRATION

It is not for the new-comers but rather for the old-timers to say, and they do say it, that Thursday's celebration was by far the finest in the history of the Capital City. Much of this was due to the fact that there are twice as many people in Victoria and the environs now as there were when King Edward VII came to the throne. Never was the old saying that "there is sympathy in numbers" better illustrated. Two things were most noticeable: the universal good temper and joyousness of the immense concourse of people and the picturesqueness of the scenery. The outstanding features were first and foremost the crowd. Then the superb decorations and illuminations at the heart of the pageant around James Bay Causeway; and then the fairy-like scene of magnificence of colour and of life presented on Beacon Hill Park when the whole of the parade had arrived and twenty thousand people lined the hillside. Words fail to describe the beauty of the scene. It was almost Oriental in its significance and in its luxury and riot of colour. But the gorgeous colouring of floats and decorations were subdued by the exquisite masses of broom which suggested once more "a field of the cloth of gold." It has been said, and said with truth, that probably nowhere outside the City of London was there a more brilliant display, or more universal evidences of light-hearted happiness. To this unqualified success there were many contributions. The Government did their share well, contributing substantial sums in cash and exquisitely artistic souvenir programmes, illuminations, decorations and an official reception. The City through its Council made a handsome cash donation, and the leading merchants and many private citizens, supplemented the amount. The various societies entered thoroughly into the spirit of the affair, and were well represented by "floats," most of which were models of constructive beauty. Families in every walk of life sent their lovely daughters to grace the "floats." Indeed, no one held aloof, and the celebration exemplified a unanimous feeling of loyalty and delight. Where so many people worked hard to ensure success it would be impossible to name even a small proportion of those who are entitled to praise, but it would be equally impossible to close any reference to the celebration without according the highest possible praise to the Daughters of the Empire and to a few ladies who were conspicuous in their labours by day and by night. To the Daughters of the Empire is due the credit of having organized the celebration and to the following ladies in particular every man in Victoria should take off his hat, for they set an example of self-denying, unremitting, arduous toil of which few men would have been capable and in which they could only have been sustained by the highest motives and the most devoted loyalty: Mrs. Croft, Mrs. Hasell, Mrs. R. B. McMicking, Mrs. T. Watson, Mrs. J. A. Wylde, Mrs. R. S. Day, Mrs. Maclure, Mrs. Curtis Sampson, Mrs. L. G. Tilton, Mrs. Parker Hibben, Mrs. H. C. Hanington and Mrs. Jenkins.

The local Council of the W. C. T. U. did not see fit to cancel the engagement of the Seattle "Chadband" who is so anxious to see the "Stars and Stripes" floating over the whole of the American continent. One hardly likes to suspect these estimable ladies of any lack of loyalty, especially in Coronation week when the women of Victoria have done so nobly. But it will for ever remain a mystery to the mind of mere man how these good ladies could consistently ask such a "fire-eater" to address an audience in a city like Victoria, which is nothing if not ultra loyal, after his vagaries in Vancouver had been brought to their knowledge. Obviously they did not view the matter in the same light as The Week, and they may not alter their opinion now that the Colonist has at the eleventh hour endorsed what The Week said. However, knowing something of the splendid work done by the local members of the W. C. T. U. The Week can only charitably suppose that "Dr." Matthews was not personally known to them. After seeing and hearing him on Tuesday night they will probably be disposed in future to steer clear of vulgarians of this type.

LAURIER IN LONDON

It is all very well for the Liberal Press to belittle the comments of the London papers on Sir Wilfrid Laurier's utterances at the Imperial Conference and elsewhere, but the time has not yet come when such papers as the Times, the Globe, the Pall Mall Gazette, the Morning Post and the Saturday Review are to be regarded as irresponsible journals without any sense of the importance of their editorials. All these papers unite in denouncing Sir Wilfrid's attitude on the Reciprocity question. They take the ground that the proposed treaty is antagonistic in spirit to Imperial unity and calculated to delay that perfect rapproachement between all parts of the Empire which is now universally desired. Even if, which is by no means a fact, Canada would get the best of the bargain, the policy is regarded by English critics as parochial and not Imperial. But it is not alone the attitude of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on Reciprocity which has aroused the criticism of the English Press: it is his obvious determination to evade responsibility, to disregard obligations, and if possible to constitute Canada an "independent kingdom." True he coats the pill with sugar when he adds the words "within the Empire," but he ought to know that such a thing is impossible. There can be no independent country in a coterie of nationalities. The Saturday Review puts the case in a nutshell when it says "if Canada is content to remain part of the Empire she must bear her share of the penalty of greatness." The English people have found out, what some Canadians have known all along, that this particular idol like many others who have gone before, has feet of clay.

A CHANGE OF OFFICE

Mr. W. S. Drewry, who has rendered such excellent service as Water Commissioner for the last year and a half, has been appointed to take charge of the surveys of the Government. Mr. Drewry is an expert surveyor and will be regarded by most who know him as the ideal man for the post. Mr. J. F. Armstrong of Cranbrook, who is temperarily assisting the Minister, may possibly succeed Mr. Drewry. He is one of the most popular men in the Province, having filled every position which the Government has had at its disposal in the Kootenay for the last thirty years. He is universally respected and possesses the absolute confidence of all who have been brought into contact with him. If the Government should find it possible to retain Mr. Armstrong permanently there will be nothing but commendation for so excellent an appointment.

A MUSICAL FLOAT

One of the most attractive features of the Coronation Celebration was a musical "float" which perambulated the streets after the fireworks were over and attracted a great deal of attention. The "float" was furnished by the Victoria Transfer Company and was hauled by three fine horses abreast. It was decorated and carried a piano on board. A number of the best singers in the city, male and female, mostly in carnival costume, rendered a programme of songs and choruses which was highly appreciated and applauded. This is an innovation in Victoria which was suggested by the Committee of the Amateur Dramatic Society. It should become a permanent feature in all such celebrations.

THE OVER-SEAS CLUB

The Over-Seas Club held its last meeting before the summer vacation on Monday last, and was delightfully entertained by the Cymrodorion Society. All the world knows that in the matter of singing the Welsh are pre-eminent, but all Victorians do not know what a strongly rooted organization the Cymrodorion Society is. To Mrs. Jenkins and her colleagues the hearty thanks of the Over-Seas Club is due. In this connection it may not be out of place to mention that the Over-Seas Club and the Cymrodorion Society jointly raised the sum of $50.00 which was expended in toys and other presents for the children in St. Joseph's and the Jubilee Hospitals who were prevented by sickness from otherwise enjoying the Coronation Festival.

I suppose that you have all been "coronating." If you haven't you ought to have been; and I hope you all "coronated" nicely and didn't have a head-ache yesterday morning; if you had, you deserved it. Moreover, there was no excuse for you as by special dispensation of His Majesty you had a perfect right to drink his health in any non-alcoholic beverage you liked. At the same time I admit that ice-cream sodas or straight lemonades do not conduce to that fervent pitch of vociferous loyalty which is an integral part of a Coronation ceremony. However, it is all over now and as in all probability you won't have another chance till you are old and grey-headed, keep the "head" as a souvenir of as good a celebration day as Victoria has ever seen.

Consider the crowds, and remember that it is only a few years ago that all this part of the world was practically unknown to white people. It really seems marvellous where all the people come from on these occasions. One thing is sure, and that is that we are wofully lacking in hotel accommodation, and I am sure I don't know where everybody slept on Wednesday and Thursday nights. Hotel lobbies were crowded with visitors who appeared to have had no idea that there would be any scarcity of accommodation. We need more summer hotels badly and it will be a long time before the supply will be greater than the demand.

Everyone is unanimous in declaring that the parade was a huge success. Far be it from me to venture an opinion as to the respective merits of the various floats. Probably Mrs. (Senator) Macdonald's was the finest, but I may be allowed to say that the originator of the idea of "The Cradle of Empire" float is specially deserving of congratulation. It was charming in conception and most effective in design. Of street decorations one cannot say much. They are of necessity largely the same the world over and it is impossible to introduce much originality in the decorative scheme. To my mind the most effective window decoration was that of Moore & Johnston, real estate agents, at the corner of Yates and Broad streets. The German Club are to be congratulated on the musical design outside their clubrooms; it was highly original and formed a conspicuous feature of the illuminations. Of the Parliament Buildings I need say little. It is impossible to express in words the fairylike aspect they present when illuminated; I had hoped, however, that the whole outline would have been picked out by electric light. The Empress Hotel illuminations were superb; little short of them fell those of the Post Office. The Causeway looked splendid as did the boats in the harbour. I should also like to mention the Dominion Express Co., Fletcher Bros., the Hinton Electric Co., the New Grand Theatre and the New England Hotel, where the illuminations were excellent. It is a pity to have to say that there were some storekeepers on South Government street who had not thought it worth while to go to the trouble and slight expense of putting on gala attire. I should have thought also that our big departmental store, seeing how conspicuous it is in the present state of Government street, and how many dollars it raked in for decorations, might have done more in the decorative line than hang out a few flags. One thing more I must say in connection with the celebration and that is that there were far too many covered male heads at the various singings of the National Anthem. Possibly they all belonged to Americans. The crowning feature of the day was the carnival at night which was one mad riot of good-natured fun, music and laughter.

I like to see the way in which the Coronation has pervaded everything. Take the advertisers and consider the skilful manner in which they turn a world-famous event to their own material use. I admire the inventive brain which can turn such things to good and useful account. See the pompous herald proclaiming the merits of J. N. Harvey Company; admire the striking yet subdued note struck by Weiler Bros. in their newspaper advertisements of the 22nd; just two sceptres, a crown, the Royal Arms and a patriotic sentiment. I always have been fond of reading advertisements and these two coming as they did at the right time took my fancy. Well, I have discoursed enough of the Coronation celebration. May it be many a long day before any of us witness another.

It was only just lately that I made some pungent remarks with regard to the way in which the unfortunate inhabitants of the Islands in the Gulf were now being left without proper passenger steamer service. Since that time the launch which was used to carry the mails has been burnt and the Islanders are worse off than before. However, I am pleased to be able to state that this condition of affairs is now being remedied to some extent. Messrs. Beckett & Major, a new real estate firm who have opened up an office on Langley street in the city, together with two others have placed a launch into commission which will be licensed to carry passengers, and will leave Victoria twice a week. The "Tuladi," as the boat is called, is a gasoline schooner 60 feet long with a beam of 15 feet and driven by engines of 45 horse-power. She will be capable of carrying 35 to 40 passengers and 60 tons of freight. The "Tuladi" will be under the command of Captain M. B. Wilson, F. R. G. S., late of the Liverpool Salvage Company, who was successful in raising the "Gladiator" and who brought the "Suevic" into dock after she had been cut in two. Captain Wilson with his brother, Mr. Ashley Wilson, are the other two members of the syndicate who are responsible for placing the "Tuladi" on the run. Messrs. Becket & Major have large interests throughout the Islands and state that they are in a position to bring a considerable amount of British capital into circulation.

But this is not all. Readers of The Week will notice an advertisement in the current issue to the effect that the C. P. R. is putting the steamer "Don" (Capt. Bottrill) on the Islands route. The "Don" will leave Victoria three times in the week and will carry both passengers and light freight. It would therefore seem that the Islanders will have no cause for further complaint as regards the question of transportation. They had sufficient cause, goodness knows, and at one time it seemed as though their prayers were never to be answered, but all things come to those who know how to wait long enough, and to supplement the period of waiting by the presentation of frequent petitions. By the way, it's a curious thing but I always manage to get my pen on to paper just before the needed reform is concluded. Or is it sometimes the case that the reform is the result of the pen. However, as I have remarked before, there are strange coincidences in this world.

I hear that within a short time there is to be another "grill" in Victoria. I am told that the Westholme Hotel is to institute this popular form of restaurant. There is plenty of room in the city for another "grill," provided that it be one of the right sort. "Murphy's" is invariably crowded at lunch and dinner times, and it is not always easy to find room at the Empress. The Westholme being right in the heart of town should make a success in its venture. A little bird has whispered to me that there is some chance of Professor Nagel being invited to take charge of an up-to-date orchestra in connection with this scheme. I hope that this is true, for then there can be no doubt but that good music will be "on tap" all the time. The Professor is well known throughout the city as a capable and sympathetic pianist who has the faculty of being able to drag the music out of his orchestra and who has also the divine gift of knowing how to fit his music to the occasion. If the management have really decided to have an orchestra they could not find a better man to take charge of it than Herr Nagel.

It would appear that there are occasions when the person or persons responsible for the turning out of the slight lack of common or horse slight lack of common sense or horse sense. As a rule these electric clusters are extinguished at midnight or thereabouts, but one would have thought that whenever the theatre is going to sit so late that even the tramway company have to provide extra cars after hours the lights might be left on till everybody has had a chance to make a get-away. Not so however. For instance, when the Sothern-Marlowe Company were here in their Shakespearean repertoire the audience made its way out into the darksome streets and had to find its individual cars, hacks, and Shanks' mares as best it individually could. It is a pity that "Hamlet" did not happen to have been the play of the evening, so that Mr. Sothern could have laid special emphasis on those words "There is something rotten in the State of Denmark."

When the policy of non-segragation was first inaugurated in Victoria I inveighed against it in these columns and amongst other things I said that it meant that when people went away for a prolonged holiday and let their houses, unless they took the utmost care in the negotiations they would be liable to find that their temporary tenants were drawn from an undesirable class. The truth of my prophecy has been proved. A highly respectable family in a highly respectable quarter of the town lately left for England and apparently did not exercise all the care which they should have done in examining into the credentials of their incoming tenants. A friend from the country on coming into town determined to pay a surprise visit, knowing nothing of the change. Judge of his surprise when the door was opened by a "lady" with the encarmined lips and blazoned cheeks of the demi-monde. On another occasion a householder had to warn callers to be sure and not make a mistake as to the house, as the one next door had been sub-let in ignorance to "ladies of an undesirable class." Which makes it bad again, doesn't it, for those who pride themselves on the high respectability of their neighbourhoods. Well, they know where to lay the blame, and it's not an atom of good trying to put it on the shoulders of erring humanity as a whole.

The Alien Problem

Two Irishmen visiting Victoria recently were much disturbed by the large number of Indians, Chinese and Hindoos to be found here.

"Thim furriners is gettin' an awful hold av British Columbia," said one of them.

"Yez spake thruly," said the other. "Oi was radin' over a list av persons naturalized here an' shrue ivery wan av 'em was furrin."

How about yourself?

Are you a naturalized British subject?

If so, doubtless you drank to the health of King George and Queen Mary on Coronation Day in the King of all Wines, G. H. Mumm & Co.'s "Extra Dry."

Remember, every little capsule has a meaning of its own. Mumm's genuine Extra Dry, the King of Wines, is always crowned with the pink cap.

The Old Homestead

What can possibly be said at this late day for or against, in praise or blame, of Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead?" which will be seen at the Victoria Theatre on Monday, June 26th. Criticism of this play has long since been annihilated. "Who builds stronger," queried the First Gravedigger, "the mason, the ship-wright or the carpenter?" The answer should have been, Denman Thompson. Verily the play that he builded will "last till Doomsday." It is not so much of a drama now as an institution. The production in this the twenty-fifth season of "The Old Homestead" is said to be up to the same standard of excellence which has always been the aim of the management. In fact this high standard of company and equipment is the very reason the old play has been so successful these many years.

The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary

"The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," one of the really funny comedies produced originally at the Garden Theatre, New York, was a whirlwind of success. And since this engagement, Miss May Robson has appeared in all well known cities in this country and lately duplicated her success in London, England, where her recognition as an exceptional actress was instantly acknowledged, and her eight weeks engagement at Terry's Theatre, was a very successful one both artistically and financially.

The play embraces a strong yet natural development of the humorous and pathetic and Aunt Mary is a "scream." The same company and effects that were seen in London will be seen here when Miss Robson appears on Tuesday, June 27, at Victoria Theatre.

The story of the play concerns a maiden aunt who has always lived in a country village with strong prejudices against the larger cities. Her nephew, who is a student in college contrived to avoid all peaceful pleasures by getting involved in all sorts of scrapes—the last one being a fight with a cabman whom he injured. To avoid the law and publicity, it is necessary to appeal to Aunt Mary for five hundred dollars to settle the case. The next interesting episode in the young man's career is a breach-of-promise case, to cap the climax of Aunt Mary's patience; she disinherits him, but after listening to the nephew's voluable explanations, reconsiders her decision. And all ends happily. It is during this visit to her nephew that the rejuvenation takes place. The process is extremely funny and there are no dull moments to retard the story, nor check the movements of the characters, and Miss Robson interests and amuses the audiences until the final curtain closes the incidents of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary."

Mrs. Dot

Miss Billie Burke comes to the Victoria Theatre on Thursday evening, June 29, in "Mrs. Dot," the satirical comedy by W. Somerset Maugham, the author of "Smith," in which she has scored one of her biggest hits as a star. In this piece Miss Burke has the role of an absurdly youthful widow who wants to get married again. The man she is in love with is quite willing to take her—heavy pocketbook and all—only he is already engaged to another young woman whom he can't quite see his way clear to jilt. The widow is a master of strategy, however, and her manoeuvres to get rid of the other woman furnish the material for a most amusing comedy.

INTERESTING TO CANDIDATES IN VOTING CONTEST

Candidates entering "The Week's" Ladies' Great $1,000.00 Voting Contest should provide themselves with the necessary vote and subscription blanks and receipt books without delay.

Those who are in the race and have not yet filled their nomination or acquainted "The Week" with their intentions should do so at once.

Be sure and have subscription blanks and receipt books with you. Provide some for your friends and have them secure a few votes for you. Those who are not acquainted with this feature should call on, write or telephone the Contest Manager of "The Week."

You should not fail to have your name or that of your favourite Candidate in the first publication of Candidates. It will be of great assistance to the Candidate to have her name appear in the first list. Her friends will see that she is in the race and the votes they otherwise would give to some other candidate will be given to her.

A great number of people are holding, and will hold their votes until they see who the Candidates are before casting same.

Candidates who have not taken this opportunity of announcing their candidacy may find out that some of the people they were confidently relying on for votes, have pledged their support to some other Candidate, not knowing that you were in the race.

Be in with the others. There is a distinct advantage in starting on even terms with your opponents.

If you have not sent in your own name or the name of a lady you would be pleased to see win one of the beautiful prizes, do so now. Secure all the advantage possible.

Remember Candidates will not hold back their votes to the last day, for in doing so they will lose a great percentage.

See the Vote and Subscription Schedule in this issue.

Your friends will do more for you if they see you are somewhere near the top of the list than if you were near the bottom.

One and all have an equal chance to win the Grand Prize of $300.00 in gold.

Cut out the coupon in this issue, worth twenty-five votes, and fill the lines in with name of the lady you wish to vote for and send to Contest Manager of "The Week," 1208 Government St. Phone 1283.

The names of the Candidates and the number of votes they have to their credit will be published from time to time in the columns of this paper. The first list of Candidates will be published in the near future.

Half a Century of Presbyterianism in Victoria

(Contributed)

Next Sunday, the 25th inst., First Presbyterian Church of this city will celebrate the jubilee of the introduction of Presbyterianism into British Columbia. The Rev. Professor Stalker, D.D., of Glasgow, will preach in the forenoon, and the Rev. Principal MacKay, D.D., of Westminster Hall, in the evening. A mass meeting of Presbyterian Sunday Schools and their friends will be held at 3 p.m., when Principal MacKay and Professor Stalker will give suitable addresses.

On Monday evening a Jubilee Assembly will be held when His Honour Lieut.-Governor Paterson will preside. Short addresses of congratulation will be given by delegates from the Synod of British Columbia, the B. C. Methodist Conference, the Church of England, and other organizations. At the end of this programme the ladies of the congregation will take the meeting in hand.

This celebration marks an interesting period in the history of Presbyterianism in the province. While the Church of Scotland, and the Canadian Presbyterian Church were discussing the advisability of sending a missionary to British Columbia, the Colonial Committee of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland sent to Vancouver Island the Rev. John Hall. He arrived in Victoria, and preached the first sermon midst Presbyterian auspices on the last Sabbath of June, 1861. On the 3rd February, 1862, a meeting was held, and the congregation of First Presbyterian Church was organized. In March, 1863, His Hon. Chief Justice Cameron laid the foundation stone of First Presbyterian Church, which was opened for public worship the 15th November of the same year.

On the Sabbath of the Church dedication the Rev. James Munro, missionary of the Church of Scotland, who arrived in Victoria early that year, preached an appropriate sermon in the forenoon, and the Rev. Dr. Evans of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, preached in the evening. The Colonist of the 16th November of 1863, has this item:

"Church Dedication

"The First Presbyterian Church of Vancouver Island was formally opened for divine service yesterday. Ere the deep, heavy tones of the fine new bell had ceased to vibrate through the building, it was crowded to excess by a large and attentive congregation, a great many being unable to obtain admittance. The Rev. James Munro, missionary from the Church of Scotland, officiated at the morning services, and delivered an appropriate and excellent discourse, selecting as his text the following beautiful words from the sublime prayer of Solomon at the dedication of the Temple. "The Lord our God be with us, and he was with our fathers. Let Him not leave us nor forsake us; that He may incline our hearts unto Him, to walk in all His ways, and to keep His commandments, and His statutes, and His judgments, which He commanded our fathers."

"The evening services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Evans, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, who preached to a densely crowded audience, an able and eloquent sermon from Romans 1: 16, 'For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first and also to the Gentile.'

"The collections which were taken up in aid of the building fund amounted to the handsome sum of $314, making, with the proceeds of the service lately held in the building, a gross amount of upwards of $1,000."

This Church opening was a great day of rejoicing among the little bands of Presbyterians in the city. While the Church in many ways had a checkered history, and much up-hill work, for sometimes "the winds were contrary," it did noble work for God and the people during the fifty years since the first sermon was preached by Mr. Hall on the last Sunday of June, 1861.

The Church was burnt a couple of times, and when repaired was always made larger and more comfortable than it was before the fire.

After four years' pastorate Mr. Hall resigned to go as missionary to Australia. Mr. Munro was withdrawn, and the Colonial Committee of the Church of Scotland sent out Mr. Somerville, who afterwards was for many years minister of Grey Friar's Church, Glasgow.

About two years after the arrival of Dr. Somerville, trouble arose in the congregation of First Church, and an exodus took place when Dr. Somerville and with him many of the congregation organized St. Andrew's Church.

In 1876 Dr. Reid was sent from England and re-opened services in First Church. The scattered fragments of Presbyterianism were soon gathered together, and a vigorous congregation once more worshipped at the corner of Pandora and Blanchard streets.

When Dr. Reid withdrew he was succeeded by Rev. J. Gamble of the American Presbyterian Church, whose pastorate was less than two years.

After Mr. Gamble's resignation the congregation extended a call in 1884 to the Rev. Donald Fraser, M.A., of Mount Forest, Ontario, which was accepted, and Mr. Fraser began work in Victoria in August of that year. Mr. Fraser was a man of commanding appearance and forceful character, of strong convictions and moral character, a robust highlander from the County of Glengarry. He was educated at Queen's University, and had two pastorates previous to that of First Presbyterian Church here. Mr. Fraser died in 1891, and was succeeded by the present pastor, Dr. Campbell, whose induction on the 22nd of June, 1892, was the last official act of the Presbytery of Columbia, for that month the General Assembly divided the Presbytery into three Presbyteries—Victoria, Westminster and Kamloops, to constitute the Synod of British Columbia.

In this city Presbyterianism has kept pace with the growth of population, and has been for fifty years one of the strong factors for the elevation of character, moral purity and the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Besides First Church and St. Andrew's there are now in Victoria three other vigorous and well organized congregations, St. Paul's in Victoria West, of which Dr. MacRae is pastor, Knox at Spring Ridge with Rev. T. MacConnell as pastor.

The Sabbath services and the social event on Monday evening should be largely attended, as this jubilee is of interest, not only to the old-timers, and to Presbyterians, but to all classes who have the interest of the betterment of humanity at heart. The Week extends its congratulations to the congregation of First Presbyterian Church, and wishes it greater prosperity and power for good in the next fifty years than even it had in the last half century.

CORONATION DAY

Empires of old have risen; slowly like dying stars
They have dwindled again to darkness, or perished in wrath and pain,
Ruled by the rod of terror, harried and seamed with scars,
Offsprings of vain endeavour, born of a tyrant's brain.

Weak from the lust of conquest, they lived but a little space—
Ah, must ours vanish as they did, unfitted for God's great plan?
Nay, for our fathers built it to the glory of our race
On freedom, truth, and justice, and love for our fellow man.

Therefore, true to the light that shines in our nation's soul,
We hold to the great traditions to which our race must cling,
And rivet the link that binds us into one mighty whole:
With the stern Crown of Duty this day we crown our King,

Praying that Heaven may help him in this tremendous hour;
Knowing that he will follow the path his father trod,
That his mind will grow in wisdom and his words be filled with power,
Strong in the love he bears us and the faith that he has in God.

Not in the spirit of children who fondle a glittering toy,
Although with azure and scarlet full half the world be gay,
But in deep thought with reason our hearts are stirred for joy,
For the Empire of our fathers has honoured her Throne today!

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of The Week:

Sir,—The recent decisions of the juries at the assizes has shown up the weakness or one of the weaknesses of our jury system in a strong light. The individuals who composed those juries have brought upon themselves universal condemnation, so much so that it is not too much to say that they are quite unfit to serve their fellow-citizens in that or any other responsible capacity again. For which they would probably be truly thankful. In nearly all other cases where a body of men have to perform any work or business for their fellows, the public for whom they act has an opportunity of learning how each individual carries out his part of the work, but in the case of a jury it is, or ought to be, impossible to find out how each man acted, so that a just and sensible man who desires to bring in a verdict in accordance with the facts of the case has to suffer the ignominy and obloquy incurred by a weak and silly majority. It is true that a minority can and often does (to its credit) hold out against the majority, so that the jury disagrees and is at length dismissed. But to do this requires a sacrifice of valuable time and the protraction of a very disagreeable duty performed under disagreeable conditions. It is no use pretending that this is not a money-grabbing age or that we are not a money-grabbing people, and a man deserves great praise who is ready and willing to sacrifice his interest and possibly make great financial losses in the service of the public. But because of these defects the system must not be entirely condemned. It has many obvious virtues which far outweigh its defects. Still those defects are so serious that any change will be welcome, and in these days of advanced thought and enlightenment it should surely be possible to devise a better arrangement. I regret that I have never heard even a suggestion of such a one, nor do I pretend even to have the glimmerings of one in my own brain, but I think the subject is one of such great importance that no harm can be done by turning public attention to it in the hope that some bright idea for a remedy may spring into being and so faulty a system may be replaced by one which will insure justice to all without calling for any sacrifice at all from the men who are called upon to perform it. It is a pleasure to note that the treatment of jurymen by all the officers of the court from the judge down to the lowest official is now marked by more courtesy and consideration than used to be the case only a few years ago.

I am, etc.,

FAMOUS HERD SOLD

The sale at Warlaby, North Yorkshire, on March 15th, of the famous herd of the Booth Shorthorn cattle was an event of much interest to agriculturists. The herd dates back to 1790, when Mr. Thomas Booth occupied both the Warlaby and Killerby estates, Darlington, and has been continued in unbroken succession by four generations of breeders. The herd has given to the world one of the finest types of cattle that has yet existed—a type that in its padmy days won great show yard records and commanded very big prices. The twenty-six cows, heifers, and bulls offered for sale realised 656 guineas, which was regarded as a fairly satisfactory figure.

Extension of Borough Boundaries.

The draft has been issued of a provisional order for the enlargement of the boundaries of the borough of Cambridge, so as to include parts of the districts of Chesterton, Cherryhinton, Grantchester and Trumpington. The new borough will have a population of about 57,073, and the town council is to be enlarged by the addition of five new wards, making the number of aldermen seventeen and councillors fifty-one.

The Law of the Air.

Seventeen states, including Great Britain, which was represented by Sir Thomas Barclay, Sir Frederick Pollock, Mr. Perowne, and Mr. Mesnil, took part in the International Congress of Aerial Public Law which was opened last month at Paris.

Lord Carrington's Farm.

Lord Carrington, Minister of Agriculture, at a luncheon given in his honour by the Rural Development Society, said that he intended to start an experimental farm, so that, with careful selection, people from the towns could be put on the land again to see what sort of a job they would make of it.

The Calcutta Sweep.

Dr. Bolton, the emigration agent for Trinidad at Calcutta, who drew Sunstar in the sweep, disposed of a half-share in him for £12,000. With the first prize amounting to about £65,000 this lucky man still pockets well over £40,000—a comfortable fortune.

Sale of Lord Abingdon's Estate.

Lord Abingdon's Rycote property was offered for sale at Oxford recently by Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley. Mr. Howard Frank said: "Lord Abingdon feels that if he is to pay the heavy taxes which fall upon a large landowner he must reconsider his position." The average price obtained was just over £40 an acre. Rycote Farm, 300 acres, sold for £12,152, while Church Farm and Fernhill, 244 acres, fetched £10,851.

Toasting the King.

In reference to the drinking of the King's health in non-alcoholic beverages, the Rev. E. C. Carter, vicar of St. Jude's, Whitechapel, London, has received a reply from Sir Arthur Bigge which states that the King approves of the permission given to total abstainers to drink His Majesty's health in any non-alcoholic beverage being extended to all who choose to avail themselves of it.

The General's Grace.

At an important public dinner in London lately a novel grace before meat was uttered. There was no son of the church present, and in default the chairman, without warning, called upon a very distinguished general to perform the office. All rose as the soldier did. He looked thoughtfully at the opposite wall, as though struggling with an unfriendly memory, and after a pause suddenly exclaimed, "God save the King—and bless this dinner."

Derailment Impossible.

Experts on behalf of large British railroads have reported favorably upon the invention of a safety appliance which is a modification of the bogie principle. The invention makes impossible the derailment of trains while running curves, thus allowing an increased speed. It is claimed that it will enable trains to make the 185 miles between London and Manchester in two hours.

Winchester's New Headmaster.

Mr. Montague John Rendall, at present second master of Winchester College, has been appointed headmaster, in succession to the Bishop of Southwark. Mr. Rendall, who has been second master of Winchester since 1899, has been acting headmaster for the last two years during the absence of Dr. Burge. He was born at Great Rollright (Oxon.) of which parish his father was rector in 1862, and was educated at Elstree, Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge, of which he was foundation scholar. He is a brother of Mr. Vernon Rendall, editor of the Aethenaeum and Notes and Queries.

700 Lb. Halibut.

The largest halibut on record was landed at Billingsgate Market, London, last month. It weighed 700 lb., or nearly a third of a ton, and was part of a catch of 100 tons of fish from the White Sea, North Russia, landed by the trawler Macfarlane, of Hull.

The mammoth fish was brought from the trawler into the market on planks borne on the shoulders of six porters. It was offered for sale by auction by Messrs. Peter Forge, but such is the glut of fish just now that it only realized £2 5s., or just over three farthings per lb. It was purchased by Mr. Taylor, fishmonger, of Watney street, Stepney.

Split Sundays.

In order to effect a compromise between the Sabbataian and the secular views of Sunday sport Lord Darnley suggested at the Rochester Diocesan Conference that we might be guided by the practice of the Roman Catholic Church. He regarded Sunday as a day of worship, rest and recreation.

He suggested that all churchmen attend morning services, but that after noon the church should countenance legitimate recreation and games.

A wide resolution recommending the spread of Sunday recreation to the anxious consideration of the church was adopted.

LOVE HAS WINGS and Brings Many Good Things in His Train

Cupid has made many flying trips this month from the up-to-date furniture house to the June bride. The bride-to-be should visit this leading house of leaders and she cannot come too soon. Never has there been such a complete variety of Furniture. If money is worth saving, our offers are certainly worth investigating. Look everywhere, ours are the best anywhere. Looking elsewhere "clinches" the argument that we sell the best. A bride never made a mistake in buying her first furniture when she came here.

BRITISH COLUMBIA TIMBER

e Premier of British Columbia Outlines a Brilliant Future

(Reprinted from The Financial Times, London)

That British Columbia timber has become a steadily appre- g asset is now a truism. The recent flotation of two com- s, with large capital, for the specific purpose of exploiting n timber limits in that Province of the Dominion affords an llustration of the present attitude of the City to this article. ust be confessed that, as is too often the case, London's ciers have been backward in discerning the value of Colum- timber, one of the Empire's most valuable properties. while American capital has not neglected this great oppor- y. For years past citizens of the United States interested in r, and even outside speculators with some capital to lock up, been quietly but steadily buying up timber limits in British nbia. What is more, these American purchasers seem dis- to firmly hold such standing timber as they have acquired e inevitable rise which will take place within quite a measur- period. No doubt an exact estimate of the actual extent of American holdings is difficult to form, but those with an knowledge of the timber situation in British Columbia sly estimate the amount of timber limits held by American lists at from 50 to 75 per cent. of the total timber area. are large figures, but many good judges look on 50 per cent. under-estimate of the quantity of timber actually in Ameri- ands. The United States is certainly a rich country in all s of that term. It boasts several millionaires whose fortunes nto many millions sterling, but it would be a grave error to se that America is a land abounding in loose cash. There is so much work to do in the United States in the way of ting her great natural resources that American capital is not y invested outside the land of the Stars and Stripes. It is ubt true that the American investors in Columbian timber secured an excellent property at an easy price, but collectively merican dollars invested in British Columbia timber must sent a very large sum, and hitherto this capital has been cally idle. That one fact should stamp British Columbian r as a first-class investment for the man who can afford to a certain amount of capital and wait for his returns.

The importance of this subject has been so borne in upon us ve have devoted many articles in this section of The Financial to the exposition of the British Columbian timber position, we are sure our readers will peruse with great interest the ving remarks which the Premier of British Columbia (the Richard McBride, K.C.)—now one of our welcome Oversea s—has been good enough to address to a representative of ournal. Referring to the timber limits of British Columbia, remier said:—

Men thoroughly conversant with the timber position today e North American continent are a unit in believing that h Columbia now holds the last great stand of timber left— that is to say, in no other part of that continent will you find such an extensive belt of valuable virgin timber as still exists in British Columbia. Perhaps it would be difficult to convey to people in this country a clear idea of the place which timber holds in the economic life of Canada, and, let me add, of our neighbours in the United States. Wood is the raw material of many industries which have hardly got a counterpart in the United Kingdom. Timber enters more largely into the construction of our homes than is the case here, and this is true of every part of our habitations, from the boards of the floors to the shingles on the roofs. Our railways consume an immense quantity of timber, and you must not forget that Canada is on the road to, perhaps, better the example set by her neighbour in the building of great transcontinental railways. One great line already stretches from the Atlantic to Vancouver, on the Pacific, while two other railways which are spanning the entire breadth of the Continent will soon be there, to say nothing of the line which is approaching its terminus at Prince Rupert. The mere rolling stock of those railways makes an appreciable demand for timber, to say nothing of the sleepers, of which the life is not by any means unlimited. I should say that the one item of sleeper renewal on the railroads of Canada and of the United States must alone exert a sensibly hardening influence on the value of lumber.

"Then think of the enormous demand which the constant increase of our great cities and the building of new cities must exert on the timber market. In the three Prairie Provinces of the Dominion, stretching, as they do, for hundreds of miles, from Winnipeg to the foot of the Rockies, new and handsome cities have been springing up within the past few years as if by magic. The growth in population of several of these Prairie cities is measured within a very few years by hundreds per cent. This movement is not showing any signs of slackening, but, on the contrary, the growth of our new cities in the West is accelerated year by year by the ever-rising tide of emigration from Eastern Canada, from all parts of the United States, and from Europe. You may say that every fresh homestead that is broken up by the eager settler calls, directly or indirectly, for the cutting of so much stumpage. But the Prairie Provinces, rich as they are in almost everything which civilized man can desire, are practically timberless. They must have timber, and plenty of it, from somewhere; as things are, their only store-house is British Columbia. In Eastern Canada the lumbermen have been busy—too busy, perhaps—for a quarter of a century past, and limits in the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario which were worth not more than a couple of dollars, say, fifteen years ago, would fetch $12 to $14 today per 1,000 ft. on the stump. But in British Columbia there is still a great store of standing timber, most of it of quality almost unattainable elsewhere.

"At first sight it might seem strange that such a belt of standing timber should be left in our province and be obtainable at such reasonable figures. But the explanation is simple enough. To begin with, we are a young province, in this sense—that till recently our means of communication with Eastern Canada and with our neighbours in the south were limited. Today all this is altered. It will be but a short time before our coast cities will be the western gateway of the British Empire, in direct railway communication with every part of the North American continent. The tonnage of our shipping has grown by leaps within the past decade, but what bounds can be put to its development in the near future, when the Panama Canal will afford a ready passage between the two great oceans of the world? Of course, I cannot fix the exact day, but this revolution in the world's commerce cannot now be delayed many years; probably the news that the first vessel has passed through the Canal will be flashed to all points of the globe within four years.

"It is easy to see what effect this must exercise on our great timber industry. It has been said that the active interest lately taken by American capital in our timber limits has been largely stimulated by an idea, current on the other side of the border, that some sort of reciprocal arrangement between Canada and her neighbour was imminent. I fancy there is a good deal of exaggeration in this view. Less than six months ago few American financiers, I believe, would have gambled on Reciprocity, to use one of their current terms. The fact is that, quite apart from any question of Reciprocity, it has been obvious for some years that the day was fast approaching when the United States, with nearly 100,000,000 people, would suffer something like a timber famine. Without adopting the extreme view that in twenty years no timber at all will be left in the United States, it is a fact that within the past few years saw-mills in the once well-wooded State of Minnesota have had to be shut down because the country tributary to them had been absolutely denuded of timber. The plant of those mills represented an investment of millions of dollars. The forests of Michigan have all but disappeared. Within very few years the valuable cedar limits of the southern belt of the United States will be gone. The last great standing belt of timber left to the North American continent is found in the Pacific Province of British Columbia, and I am glad to think that our reserves of this valuable article will last us, with proper care in conservation, for generations yet.

"But while I thoroughly believe in this, our great asset, I should be sorry to think that people here were about to plunge into timber speculation without taking the ordinary precautions which every man of business observes when he is investing his money. Standing timber in British Columbia today is undoubtedly cheap at the price—cheap, that is, relatively to the market value of timber, frequently of less valuable quality, in other parts of North America. But whoever offers a timber limit, even in British Columbia, makes a business proposition which must be treated on strict business lines. All our timber limits are not of the same value—that stands to reason. The variety of the timber and, again, its situation from the lumberman's point of view are essential factors in determining its value."

BRITISH COLUMBIA FOR INVESTOR AND SETTLER

By the Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of the Province

(Reprinted from The Canadian Gazette)

[The first impression one gets of the Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, is that of the man's quiet strength and sense of power, and conversation but confirms the impression. He has a commanding presence, and his shock of white hair suggests the poet and dreamer rather than the astute politician. And probably it is a combination of poetic and practical faculties that has raised Mr. McBride to a leading position in the affairs of the lusty young giant of the Pacific, and made him one of the pictur-

Grand Trunk Pacific Investors

The construction of the new transcontinental railway—the Grand Trunk Pacific—is to-day opening up new towns that in the very near future will be large and important cities. Just as the advent of the pioneer transcontinental line—The Canadian Pacific—opened and built up divisional points such as Brandon, Regina, Calgary, Lethbridge, etc., so will the new line of the Grand Trunk make large divisional points of the towns we now offer for sale.

We have secured the agency from the GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY CO. for the towns mentioned below and the shrewd investor who can recognize the many advantages for investment in these towns at the prices of to-day, will share in the large profits that will accrue as a result of their rapid development. No other investment is so safe and profitable, and if you want to get your portion of the wealth Western Canada's development is creating, take advantage of this opportunity now before it is too late.

Prices of lots in all of these divisional points are $75, $100, $150, $200 $250 and $300 on easy monthly payments, no interest and no taxes till 1912, with a 5 per cent discount for cash.

MELVILLE: The first Saskatchewan divisional point on the G. T. P. and the largest new town on the line between Winnipeg and Edmonton. Located in a rich agricultural district, an important railroad and distributing centre, Melville bids fair to become one of the important cities of Western Canada.

WATROUS: The mecca of the health seeker, situate near the shores of the famous Little Manitou Lake, and in the centre of one of the finest farming sections of Saskatchewan.

BIGGAR: The opportunity of opportunities, located in the heart of a wonderfully rich and fertile agricultural district, and with railway facilities that guarantee a future, being not only one of the most important Grand Trunk Pacific divisional points on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, but is the junction of the branch lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific to Battleford and Calgary, which will be hurried to completion at an early date. The C. P. R. runs through Biggar, and all C. P. R. trains stop there.

TOFIELD: The terminus of the branch line from Calgary, situate near the shores of the Beaver Lake. The discovery of natural gas and of clay and having at its door several square miles underlaid with lignite coal promise the development at Tofield of important manufacturing industries.

EDSON: The last prairie divisional point on main line of Grand Trunk Pacific, and the gateway to the Peace River Country. Rich in natural resources, Edson lots fulfill every requirement for safe and profitable investment.

REMEMBER THE PRICES, $75.00 to $300.00, and terms of one-tenth cash and balance in nine equal monthly payments—no interest.

What have I to say about British Columbia? Well, it is a bject in which I am naturally very interested, and I am glad to e so many British people anxious to get further knowledge of e province. I was in England four years ago, and since then I d on my present visit interest has increased four-fold. This is ry satisfactory indeed, as we in British Columbia want British tlers and British capital. A pleasing feature of my stay on s occasion is the large number of letters of inquiry relative to nditions out there from responsible and important sources which eceive by almost every post. It is very gratifying. You of the nadian Gazette have been ever generous in your support of the ovince, and at the same time protective of the interests of British estors and intending settlers, and it is little I can tell you that do not already know. But if anything I can say personally l assist you in your good work, then I shall be pleased.

"It Has Everything Needed"

The more I travel the more I am convinced that British umbia is one of the most attractive countries in the world. It everything needed—a charming and health-giving climate, gnificent scenery, land for fruit growing and general farming, materials for manufacturing, railways, inland waterways, an ensive seaboard, and a hearty welcome to British settlers and iness men. The development of the adjoining Prairie Provinces es fruit growers an ever-expanding market for their produce, horticulture, already an important industry, is attracting many lers from all parts, a large proportion of a fine type coming n England. Mixed farming and grain growing offers a field for agriculturist, and the opening up of new districts by the rail- companies will make large additional tracts of suitable land ilable for settlement.

Our mineral resources are of considerable value, and include essentials for manufacturing—iron and coal. As I told the adian Manufacturers' Association, the greatest coalfield of ish Columbia, or of Canada, is the Rocky Mountain coalfield, which 80 per cent. is in British Columbia and 20 per cent. in erta. The present British Columbian gross output of coal for whole province is 2,400,600 tons, and at this rate of production t Kootenay coalfields can keep up this supply for 15,000 years. Henry S. Poole, in the employ of the Geological Survey, says is report as to coal still remaining in the Vancouver Island fields: "Of the quantity of coal exceeding two feet in thick- within a vertical depth of 4,000 feet an estimate of 600,000,000 would seem conservative." This does not include other pro- ng fields in East Kootenay, Northern British Columbia, and e River. The estimated coal in the Rocky Mountains coalfields o less than 44,130,000,000 tons, of which some 36,000,000,000, or er cent. of the whole, is in British Columbia, all of it available n the valley of the Elk River.

With such an enormous extent of coal it is quite reasonable to ume that the Eastern part of British Columbia, from its coal- s alone, is destined to be the Pennsylvania of the Pacific Coast. timber and pulpwood resources are also of considerable extent, s well known. Then, again, the fisheries of the coast give oyment to about twelve thousand men, and this is an industry ble of considerable expansion.

British Columbia has undoubtedly a great future before it. n the country is fully developed it will be capable of sustaining pulation of many millions. The opening of the Panama Canal mean much to the progress of the province. British Columbia gateway to the East, and has the mighty markets of China Japan on the other side of the ocean. With so many blessings Nature, do you wonder at our optimism and our assurance bright future?

A Word of Warning

As a field for investment British Columbia offers many ntageous facilities, and, as I have already said, we welcome sh capital, but some of the "propositions" that occasionally their way to the London market from British Columbia can ly be described as of the soundest. The Provincial Govern- is anxious to safeguard the interests of capital, but unfor- tely we cannot prevent irresponsible men from endeavouring ist equally irresponsible schemes upon the British public. It r the British investors themselves to thoroughly investigate reliability of financial proposals and to secure independent rts where possible. The province offers many facilities for safe and remunerative employment of capital and all that is ed on the part of investors is ordinary caution and rimination.

of Winnipeg. The property for its location in this city, was acquired by the company from Messrs. T. R. Cusack and R. L. Drury for a sum in the neighbourhood of $225,000. Mr. Andrew Wright acted as the local agent for the Hudson's Bay company, and the deal was negotiated by Messrs. Grant & Lineham. The site has a frontage of 240 feet on Douglas, 120 feet on Fisguard, and 120 feet on Herald streets. The entire site will be occupied by the structure which the Hudson's Bay company purposes erecting. The church's tenancy of the site will expire on September 15th. By that date it is understood that the plans for the new departmental store will be ready, and that actual construction will commence within a month, that is before October 15th.

The announcement is probably the most important ever made in the mercantile life of the city. The decision of a company, which enjoys the highest of business reputations, to enter into the retail trade of the city on such an extensive scale, will have the effect of giving an immense impetus to the upbuilding of Victoria. The site selected on the city's widest thoroughfare must necessarily, not only enhance the values of property on Douglas street, but throughout the entire business area. In the announcement of its plans in Victoria, the company promises to build a departmental store which will be up-to-date in every particular, and which will rank beside any similar institution which it has established in Canada. While the figure to be expended on the structure has not been divulged, pending the drawing up of the plans and specifications, it is generally considered as probable that it will not fall far short of the million dollar mark.

FIELD CROPS IN CANADA

A bulletin of the Census and Statistics Office issued recently states that the season this year has been favourable for field crops in all parts of Canada, and excellent reports have been received from all the provinces. The lowest percentage of condition is made for fall wheat, which suffered from inadequate protection in the winter months, and also to some extent from spring frosts. The areas of fall wheat are greater than last year by 4.50 per cent. and of spring wheat by 13.70 per cent. The total area in wheat is 10,503,400 acres, as compared with 9,294,800 in 1910 and 7,750,400 in 1909. The per cent. condition of fall wheat at the end of May was 80.63, and of spring wheat 96.69. The area in oats is 10,279,800 acres and its condition 94.76, as compared with 9,864,100 acres and 93.95 per cent. condition last year. Barley and rye each show a small decrease in area, but the condition is higher than at the same period last year. Slight decreases are also reported for areas of peas, mixed grains, and hay and clover, with per cent. condition of over 90. Hay and clover have a reported condition of 91.45 for the Dominion, being practically 100 in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The area of the field crops named is 32,051,500 acres in 1911, compared with 30,554,200 acres for 1910 and 28,194,900 acres for 1909. In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the area in wheat, oats and barley was 3,491,413 acres in 1900; 6,009,389 acres in 1905; 11,952,000 acres in 1909, and 13,809,300 acres in 1910, and it is 15,355,500 acres this year. The increase of these crops from 1900 to 1911 was 2,663,699 acres in Manitoba, 7,364,315 acres in Saskatchewan and 1,836,073 acres in Alberta.—Archibald Blue, Chief Officer.

GIANT MERGER FOR B. C. LUMBER

Advices from Cranbrook this week state that a huge lumber merger is under way in that city. English capitalists, it is understood, are arranging to acquire the East Kootenay Lumber Co., the Baker Lumber Co., the King Lumber Co., the Rock Creek Lumber Co., and other concerns, with headquarters at or near Cranbrook. It is said that the interests seeking to acquire these lumber companies have a working capital of $20,000,000 and if the deal is put through they purpose establishing a couple of hundred retail yards on the prairies.

EIGHT THOUSAND BARRELS OF OIL PER DAY

Local shareholders in the Canadian Pacific Oil Co., owning lands in the Bakersfield region, California, are much elated at the good news received on Saturday to the effect that their bore had struck oil at the rate of 8,000 barrels per day. The oil is under control, and a contract has been made with the Standard Oil Co. for the sale to them of 500,000 barrels. The well has been inspected by a representative of that corporation, who states that it is the best he has yet seen in the Bakersfield district. A large number of shares were bought throughout the Okanagan, at the moderate price of 25 cents, and as they are bound to appreciate sharply, the fortunate shareholders are to be congratulated on the brilliant prospects of their investment.

CABLED NEWS FROM LONDON

It is expected that the Canada Cement Company before long will enter into closer working arrangements with the Associated Portland Cement Manufacturers here.

The association recently announced its intention of establishing works and depots in various foreign countries, and Canada is not included, as the directors contemplate arrangements with the Canada company, which will obviate the necessity of fresh works in Canada.

That there were many amusing "joy-riders" (carnival kind) in the Empress rotunda.

That it would be hard to say what did not happen in the midnight celebrations in the "Palace by the Sea."

That it was all very exuberant and mirth-making, but it ne'er o'erstepped the modesty of Nature.

That Manager Jackson's unfailing urbanity and good humour made him a "host" in himself.

That the Empress' Coronation Supper was a "crackerjack," and its host the hero of the hour.

That those not in fancy dress were all decorated in table cloths and napkins before the dancing in the dining-room began.

That many respected and sober-minded citizens were given a reputation though none of them lost one.

That when the Victoria A. D. C. members began to sing in the concert "float" even the dray horses bolted.

That sometimes the disguise is so good that even a wise child does not know its own father.

That the "chef" on the tea-tray was not on the staff.

That a little mask covers a multitude of mischief.

All Things Come, Etc.

Here is the latest Boy Scout yarn.

Every Boy Scout, as is generally known, has to do one good deed every day. A high personage connected with the movement once said that the most tragic spectacle he could imagine was a Boy Scout wandering about in search of a good deed and finding it not. Somebody suggested that the boys should work in couples—say, one boy might knock an old lady down and the other pick her up again. The second boy's good deed is obvious; the good deed of the first lies in having provided a good deed for the second.

However, to the story:

One unfortunate youth had utterly failed to find a good deed and had retired to bed disconsolate. As he lay sleepless with misery, he heard a faint squeaking in the room. He scrambled out of bed, and found that a mouse had got caught in a trap.

"My good deed at last!" he murmured happily, as he took out the poor little prisoner—and gave it to the cat!

Not What You Thought

As a memory of the late Eli Perkins, somebody has recalled one of the humorist's surprise stories, and his way of telling it.

"I was on a train going east one summer night," he says, "when there was a wreck. The train was derailed and all the passengers were more or less shaken up. Everybody in the sleeping ear tried to get out as hurriedly as possible, and in the confusion our clothing got considerably mixed. I had worn a pair of white duck trousers, but I couldn't find them. Finally I did find a pair of trousers. I put them on quickly, but I couldn't leave the car. You see, they were not men's trousers ——"

Here there is always general laughter, and Perkins looks about in a pained sort of way, then goes on:

"They were boy's trousers."

The Third Degree

A few days ago a second-class stoker was paraded before the commanding officer of the Devonport naval baracks on a charge of insubordination. His insubordination took the form of resistance to bieng introduced to the swimming bath. Asked what he had to say for himself, the youth replied:

"Sir, I've only bin en the navy three days. The first day the doctor drawed six of my teeth. The second day I was vaccinated. And the third day(the petty officer he says, 'Cum along, we're going to drown yer!' "

Musical Note

"Your daughter practices on the piano faithfully, I notice. Now, mine hates it."

"Mine does too. But she'd rather practice all day than help with housework."

A Small Detective

The man was nearly through taking down the awnings when the bell rang for luncheon. Little Mrs. Day looked at all her trinkets and lingered about the room on one pretense and another until her small boy, looking up with that uncanny insight so disc to his elders, observed in his treble: "You go right along, I'll watch him."

The breadth is very broad and is ed a bit evenly at the top, then where a satin band stretches ally across it. The back is correspondingly narrow, ed at the top, and about half- own is finished with a section of in ending in a train. The bodice e up over a foundation of dot- , black over white silk, with a raped girdle terminated at the back with two limp loops, all e satin edged with black velvet

Very fine hand-embroidered etted batiste is much used with ilks, and even plain batiste, mes tucked or shirred. It is, in Three yards of ribbon at least nine inches wide are required, and it encircles the waist to the centre back, to be caught there by being drawn through a buckle or else simply knotted securely with the ends of equal length. One end is allowed to fall straight down, the other is halted a little below half length and there is knife-plaited. It is then spread out fan-wise with the centre edge drawn up with a tiny heading for a finish. Another new sash has the ribbon plaited for a space of twelve or fourteen inches, and this part is stitched flat to the skirt, taking in the girdle, and with the end fringed.

It is interesting to note, as the season advances, how the position of the waistlines is shifted. The first er feature that is developing ngly is the sash. Before the was well under way it seemed gh fashion arbiters must have ed their stock of devices in he sash could figure, but al- ery day there crops up another erally a better way of using latest treatment to which the ds itself is a fan-like drapery. prophecies of spring were emphatically for the pronounced Empire effect; then there were hints that the normal line would prevail. These, in turn, were followed by intimations that the centre front would be dropped an inch or two, retaining the brightened sides, and now again has the line been shifted, all within the space of a few short weeks. As a matter of fact, the waistline that is being adopted for the moment—it may have suffered another move by the time this has been put into type—is not raised as much as it appears to be—an optical delusion, so to speak, caused by the combination of the little skirts on the bodice with the long, scant, low-trimmed skirts, which has the effect of exaggerating the apparent length of the latter and of abbreviating the former.

Beading has had its day for fashionable blouses, though the girls are still embroidering with the beads, reluctant to give up so effective a trimming. But French knot work is ahead of bead work, and even that is bound to become passe from overuse by the time the next season arrives. Heavy work on thin cottons with big side frills tells much of the story of smart waists at this hour. Coloured embroideries, coloured stitchings, coloured collars and cuffs and other introductions of colour are prevalent among the handsomest white blouses. Smart models with kimono sleeves and Dutch neck finished more often than not with Irish crochet have tucks stitched with a colour, and the same tone appears again in the hand edging the side plaiting and the turnback cuffs. Tailor waists of coquettish style have handkerchief collars with square backs and knotted fronts which introduce a pretty touch of colour and the same shade is used on the plait with a colour, and the same tone appears again in the band kerchief with an edge of the same colour. One of the smartest tailored waists is the satin one made in severe style in white or the color of the tailormade. With white serge suits nothing is smarter than this white satin shirt. Marquisette and voile are leading lingerie materials for waists and for gowns, though batiste and linens are always staple. White wash net, made in a semi-tailored style with fine tucks all over it, long sleeves and high stock are among the smart showings. These waists are washable in fact as well as name and are practical for little summer suits.

Tactful Truth

"I appeal to Mr. Verity, whose truthfulness nobody doubts," said the outraged hostess, with a glitter in her eye. "Mr. Verity, do you think I supply my boarders with bad butter?"

The others looked eager attention to see how Mr. Verity would get out of it.

"Madam," he answered, with a bow, "the truth on which you compliment me forces me to declare that your butter is one of your strong points."
