KING EDWARD

At the moment of going to press the sad news of the death of the King has just been flashed over the cables to Victoria, and simultaneously in every part of the civilized world there will be a pause in the day's occupation, and men and women will pay the passing tribute of a sigh to the memory of a man who was every inch a man and every inch a King. There could be no higher praise, and no truer eulogium for King Edward than that he worthily maintained the glorious traditions established by his illustrious and revered mother. For ten years he has been permitted by an All-wise Providence to rule over the greatest Empire of which the world has knowledge; and he has done this with a daily increasing respect for his pre-eminent abilities and for his personal character. Years ago he earned the title of "Peacemaker," and possibly it was only by his passing that we shall learn how potent has been his influence in the preservation of peace. The time is all too short, and it is yet too soon, in the distraction of so sudden and unexpected a bereavement, to collect one's thoughts, still less to appraise the virtues and claims of the sleeping King; but there will be no man proud to be called Briton, and no man who loves the Empire, and no man who appreciates the wisdom and the graciousness of King Edward's rule, who will not sorrow tonight.

EXONERATING THE CHIEF

Judge Lampman's Report, which was referred to in the last issue of The Week, and also briefly commented upon by the local press, completely exonerates the Police Commissioners from any charge of complicity in graft. It is a little singular, however, that the daily papers did not think it necessary to enlarge upon that portion of the report which dealt more particularly with the Chief of Police and the members of his staff. While the Commission was one directing Judge Lampman "to enquire into all actions of the Commissioners of Police for the City of Victoria for the year 1910," it naturally devolved that the conduct of the Chief of Police was brought into question. This was inevitable because of his intimate association with the Police Commissioners, whose executive officer he is; and also because it was impossible to probe into any matter connected with the administration of the law without canvassing the conduct and methods of those to whom its administration is entrusted. It is only fair to say that Chief Langley and the official members of his staff, including such well-known officers as Perdue and Palmer, come out of the enquiry in every way as creditably as the Police Commissioners themselves; and since the comments of the Commissioner with respect to the latter were published verbatim, his comments with respect to the Chief of Police and his staff should also be published. In referring to the attempt made in the early part of this year to suppress gambling in Chinatown, the report says:—

"As to Mayor Morley: Shortly after his election he met Mr. Lee Mon Kow, an influential Chinaman, and asked him to co-operate with him in improving conditions in Chinatown, and particularly in regard to the gambling, the idea being that some of the leading Chinamen should endeavour to have the Chinese gaming houses closed down. The Mayor and Mr. Lee Mong Kow had a few conversations on the matter, and eventually the Mayor says, Mr. Lee Mong Kow informed him that the merchants fell in with the suggestion, and that the gambling would cease. The Mayor was carrying on these negotiations independently of the other Commissioners, but the whole thing was quite harmless—there was certainly no evidence of any wrongdoing.

"About the same time, Chief of Police Langley and Inspector Palmer, accompanied by an interpreter, made a tour through Chinatown, and issued warnings to all places suspected of being gaming houses. That some rivalry existed between the Mayor and the Chief as to who was entitled to the credit of putting a stop to the gambling was apparent, but without wishing to detract from the Mayor's effort I must say that I WOULD RATHER DEPEND ON THE METHOD TAKEN BY THE CHIEF. It is only fair to the Mayor to say that he only adopted his method after he had about concluded that the others that had been tried before were futile.

"That the Mayor's method of 'moral suasion' and the Chief's method of threatening a raid occurred at about the same time would have been unfortunate were it not for the fact that the two methods combined stopped the gambling for only a few days. Otherwise, if the different methods had been employed at different times some useful data as to their relative merits might have been obtained."

The preference expressed by Judge Lampman for the constitutional methods adopted by the Chief, as compared with the jejune innovation of the Mayor, will not escape the notice of attentive readers. Commenting on a case which arose in connection with the intended prosecution of a woman who had located on Discovery street, and which attracted considerable attention in consequence of the evidence adduced at the enquiry, the report says:

"This case was discussed pretty thoroughly before me by all three Commissioners, and especially by the Mayor, who seemed to find more fault with the manner in which the adjudication was arrived at and conveyed to Chief Langley than with the adjudication itself; but the Chief was the only one who had anything to do with it who took what I venture to think was the correct view. When the woman bought the house, the Chief told her she had invaded a street outside the restricted district and she would not be allowed to open up. By their action (in allowing the prosecution to drop) the majority of the Commissioners have added that particular part of Discovery street to the restricted district. * * * That the decision of the Commissioners was communicated to the Chief in an informal way, and over-rode his view, Mayor Morley seemed to think, was akin to a slight on him, but I think the other Commissioners have more cause to complain at certain acts of the Mayor, as shown in his correspondence with the Chief, as there is no record that this correspondence was ever laid before or brought to the attention of the Board, or that the request hereinafter referred to was ordered by the Board. For instance, on the 4th March he requested (by letter) the Chief to put a detective on a certain assignment and stated his preference as to the officer. The Mayor pointed out that he signed his letters as Mayor, and not in his capacity as Police Commissioner, but by law he has no jurisdiction over the Chief except in his capacity as Police Commissioner. At any rate, this idea of a dual capacity is making a very fine distinction, and I notice that the Chief's letter in reply is addressed to 'His Worship the Mayor, Chairman of the Board of Police Commissioners.'"

The foregoing extract is a further testimony to the intelligence and perspicuity of the Chief, who, in the most delicate manner possible, intimated that His Worship the Mayor had, in this particular instance, misconceived his true position. In concluding his report, Judge Lampman effectually explodes the theory which Mayor Morley has time and again advanced,—that he, and he alone, is the true moral reformer in the circle of the Police Commissioners. That the Board has acted in good faith, and with a due sense of its responsibilities to the public in permitting a restricted district cannot be questioned; but that any one Commissioner can adopt the attitude which is best expressed by the phrase, "I am holier than thou," is preposterous in view of the finding of the report as contained in the following pregnant sentence:

"Now, in coming to the conclusion that the Commissioners have not acted improperly, I have not been unmindful of the fact that they have ALL countenanced the policy of allowing common bawdy houses to run openly in the restricted district."

From a perusal of the report, it is clear that Judge Lampman considers that on the whole the Police affairs of the city are administered in an admirable manner, and the result of the enquiry cannot but be regarded as a triumph for Chief Langley and the members of his staff. In spite of repeated slanders on the part of those who ought to know better, if they do not, Victoria is undoubtedly one of the safest cities in Canada, and it would be difficult, if not impossible, to find a place where the law is held in higher respect, or its provisions more reasonably enforced.

THE STRANGE FRUIT

JOHN BULL—I know a Naval Orange, but this is a Naval Lemon.

THE CANADIAN NAVY

If anyone is in doubt as to the precise market value of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Canadian "Navee," he should read the interview with Mr. G. H. Barnard, M.P., published in yesterday's Colonist. He points out that the most serious objection to this patchwork policy is that, if there ever arises an emergency calling for the defence of the Empire, the Naval Construction Bill will not help the situation at all. It has been practically admitted by the Government that it will not be less than six years before the ships can be completed. It will take about two years to build shipyards, and another four to build the ships. Therefore, Mr. Barnard observes, "So far as being of any immediate assistance to the Empire, the Bill does not amount to anything." But this does not exhaust his very pertinent criticism, for he shews that, when Naval Defence was discussed at a Conference with the Admiralty last year, it was clearly set forth that the best thing Canada could do would be to contribute a Fleet Unit and station it on the Pacific Coast. The Admiralty pointed out that the essential part of the a Fleet Unit was a Dreadnought battleship, and it was made clear then that the idea of the Admiralty was to have the unit stationed on the Pacific Coast. Now the Government has dropped the Dreadnought altogether, and decided to put the bulk of the ships on the Atlantic Coast, which is only five days' steam from headquarters, and not seriously in need of protection. No doubt the Hon. William Templeman will applaud the decision of the Government, in spite of the fact that such decision minimizes the importance of Esquimalt as a Naval base. As the Times studies the very incisive and caustic comments of Mr. Barnard, it will probably modify the opinion which it has expressed as to his ineffectiveness on the floor of the House. The fact is that Mr. Barnard is making good, and shewing that he is not only capable of taking a broad and statesmanlike view of public questions, but that he is always keenly alive to the interests of his constituents.

At The Street Corner

By THE LOUNGER

In the present matter of fact days we like to know the reason and wherefor of everything which takes place, and anything extraordinary, or abnormal, we seek for an explanation in the nearest and most handy cause, and so long as we settle on something tangible, or intangible, we are for the time being satisfied. Just now Halley's Comet is responsible for a great many things which in the ordinary course of events would be unnoticed or merely regarded as slightly out of the ordinary. If our favourite speckled hen lays an abnormally large egg, Halley's Comet is responsible, if the garden plants do not thrive as they did about this time last year, and show signs of blight, poor old Halley's Comet is again dragged up as the culprit for this vagary of the flowers. Halley's Comet can be seen somewhere about 2.30 a.m., and the other morning after carefully setting the alarm clock for 2.15 I retired. I awoke with a start, that infernal machine, designed by some ruthless murderer of sleep, was tingling merrily; I looked at my watch and wondered what it was ringing for, and was on the point of flinging the wretched thing to the other end of the room and piling all the available furniture on it to keep it quiet when I remembered Halley's Comet. I crawled out of bed and donning a dressing gown and slippers, I went to the window and gazed pensively at the stars. I saw a lot of stars, but they did not seem to be anything exciting about them, I mean they were not wildly hilarious, or trailing about with tails, or anything like that. Suddenly I was startled by an unearthly yell which seemed to come from the garden below—could it be some poor soul in torment, but no, it was only a philandering Thomas who was browsing in the realms of minstrel joy seeking his lady-love, who, perchance, was peering at him from a neighbouring roof. Throwing a flower pot at him, I retired back to bed again, grievously disappointed at seeing no strange phenomenon, and thinking Halley's Comet greatly over-rated.

Now that we are getting the grand weather for which Victoria is so justly famous; we have our water songsters again. I don't mean the birds but the dear old frog; he can be heard nightly and seems to enjoys himself immensely. I wonder why he croaks, or for that reason why does any kind of animal croak or chirp, or bellow, or make any other sound? Is it for the pure pleasure of living or are they talking to one another? A man once had a cage built and tried to study the monkey language in Central Africa, but only succeeded in finding out that one word or sound recurred continually so that mankind generally is no nearer in learning the language of animals. One often wonders what the domestic cat would say first if it could suddenly speak; the parrot we know is given to using profane language; this seems to be its favourite pastime. I once heard a man make rather a neat speech, he was the recipient of a gift and in expressing his thanks he said: "A cat can purr, and a dog can wag his tail to show his appreciation, but a human being can only say thank you." In the same way perhaps the frog is croaking to let us know his gladness that the summer has come back again, he might even be singing in another language: "The Spring has come, the Spring has come."

The new wharf for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway affords a great deal of curiosity and every day one can see a group, of a score or more people leaning over the railings on Wharf Street and watching the opertions. The dredger too, is interesting to watch, the huge crane which burries itself under the water shortly to reappear carrying in it capacious maw, mud and stones and rubbish which it deposits on a lighter by opening its jaws is quite fascinating, and reminds one of a primeval monster of the deep.

The Empress Hotel is in course of time going to possess a garden which will be one of the sights of Victoria. Right in front, facing the water, there is not much floral decoration for the reason that the wind does not allow anything to flourish in such an unsheltered spot, but the wallflowers close round the Hotel itself are gorgeous and seem to revel in their sun bath sheltered from the wind. At the back there is every variety of flower and young rose trees, and to think that this land was once a swamp only goes to prove what can be done with capital and perseverance. Probably many people have not noticed the tiny waterfall and lake on the north front. The lake, which is about five feet deep in its deepest part, contains some trout. After the new extension to the Hotel is finished a bowling green will be laid out on the north front which should prove an added attraction. The Empress has lately lost her genial manager, Mr. Humble, who, during the time he held office, made himself generally popular. The Hotel is now in the capable hands of Mr. Jackson who, before coming to the Empress, was at the Banff Hotel, and is also deservedly popular.

Now that the fine weather is here and the roads are good there is no excuse for cyclists riding on the sidewalks, yet this nuisance still continues and these offenders actually have the cheek to expect pedestrians on the path to get off onto the road to let them pass. If two or three of these were fined perhaps it would have a salutary effect and deter others from using the sidewalk as a bicycle track.

Victoria is a city of surprises. I was entertained in a real houseboat the other night. There were no geraniums, or singing birds on the roof, but I almost imagined I was back at Henley except that I missed the soft, silvery beauty of old Father Thames by night, and saw the soap works in the distance. The approach to the Saucy Anne was perilous in the extreme, in one place a narrow gangway, round a tortuous corner where one's fate hung in the balance, was the only method of gaining the vessel. After partaking of the liberal hospitality of mine hosts this method of reaching terra firma did not appeal to me at all, as the water looked wet and cold. However, "all's well that ends well," and I regained the shore in safety.

Old Banff Old Banff

There are a lot of good whiskies on the market, and, alas, some very bad ones (THEY are for every reason unmentionable), but OLD BANFF, some people know, and very good judges at that of old Highland malt whisky, beats them all, or shall we say (to say the least) Old Banff equals ANY, age for age. It has never before been obtainable retail, being only sold to the large blenders at home. It is now, therefore, up to you, the public, to test and try it for yourselves. Submit it to ANY test or comparison, or analysis you like. It has all the essential requirements the severest critic can demand—quality, absolute purity, a guarantee of age on every bottle by the distillers, James Simpson & Sons, Limited, established 1823, Banff, Scotland, a guarantee that may be implicitly relied on, and the price is all right—quite moderate. So ask your dealer for it. Have it in your home. Call for it in your favorite saloon, in your hotel and on the Princesses.

MUSIC
AND THE STAGE

The Allen Stock Co.

With this evening's performance the Allen Stock Company terminate its engagement at the Victoria Theatre after having played to large houses for a period of six weeks. There is no question that the Allen Company has established a more favourable record than any of its predecessors. It was not heralded by any flourish of trumpets; there was a total absence of red plush curtains and gilt gingerbread, but instead of these gewgaws the company settled down to business, and gave good representations of good plays. The scenery and stage accessories would put many of the travelling star companies to the blush and the management was always intelligent and courteous, which is more than can be said of some stock companies which have visited Victoria. The company was a well balanced one; it had no ragged edge. Every member was competent and two or three superior to what one might expect to find in a stock aggregation. Miss Felton and Mr. Kennedy stand out prominently. The former although quite a girl has successfully essayed a repertoire which would have taxed the abilities of any star. Her work is always intelligent and thorough, at times it is thrilling. She should be assured of a bright and prosperous future. Mr. Kennedy is a young man of exceptional ability if he could overcome a temperamental weakness, which is always difficult he would be almost in the same class as Miss Felton. What he lacks is a little more ginger, or snap. At times weakness, which is always difficult, he walking and talking in his sleep, other times he gives glimpses of great possibilities. On the whole Mr. Allen the genial manager of the company should have no reason to regret his visit to Victoria. He has given the fullest satisfaction from a dramatic standpoint and he has demonstrated that a good all round stock company which means business can be made to pay. It is to be hoped that the Company will return to the Victoria Theatre at on distant date.

MOMUS.

Damrosch

This season Walter Damrosch will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his appearance as an orchestral conductor in New York. When the death of his father, the late Dr. Leopold Damrosch—who was greatly beloved in the profession as well as by the public—suddenly forced upon him serious responsibilities, Walter Damrosch was in his twenty-third year.

His record is certainly an astonishing one. He was, it will be remembered, for a dozen years or more conductor of opera; then he had his own company for four years, with which he brought out a number of the German music-dramas all over the country. He has put his Symphony Society on a permanent basis for some time, which means that its members draw yearly salaries and meet constantly for rehearsals. It can also be placed to Mr. Damrosch's credit that his was the first orchestra of standing to be placed in such a position of permanency.

It can be said of Mr. Damrosch that he has never at any time endeavoured to appeal either for public support or public applause by meretricious means. The press agent has not known him or his work. Indeed, if anything, Mr. Damrosch has gone to the extreme of conservatism in the other direction, and so, perhaps, has made enemies where he might have had friends, had he been more unbending and a little more inclined to conciliate people who wanted to take an interest in him, his work and his success.

If he had any particular bane it is the notoriety-seeking "society woman," who had no real interest in music, but was ever ready to take up the conductor, or a soloist, or a composer, for the reflected glory that it might bring upon her. His unwillingness to be exploited in this direction speaks much to his credit. It shows that with him music is an art, also a serious profession, and has a right to be treated as such.

Jesse Maclachlan

Words of praise only for Jesse Maclachlan, who will appear at the Victoria Theatre, Monday May 23th: "Toronto World, (Nov. 5th, 1909)—Miss Maclachlan, who displayed a remarkably melodious voice, which she used with all the graces that belong to accomplished vocalism. She is a finished artist; her interpretation of sentiment is psychologically true; her vocal nuances in the expression of the thought and emotion of a given song are thoroughly artistic. And above all her singing has the distinguishing quality of soul fervor. She is indeed, even if she is not heralded as a Melba, Sembrich or Gadski, a great vocalist, the people's songstress. . . Miss Maclachlan is to be felicitated over the fact that she proved by her lovely vocalism how true it is that the Celts are the supreme melodists of the world.

New Grand Theatre

One of the best known novelties known in vaudeville in recent years is the musical surprise, "A Yard of Music," to be presented by Bouton & Tillson at the Grand next week. They not only render musical selections in a unique order, but are incomparable instrumentalists and their renditions are beautiful, and worth going a long way to hear. The scene is that of a farm yard, with all the necessary farm implements lying about, which later turn out to be musical instruments bringing forth wholesome melody.

Vaudeville's top-notch Vocal (4) is the Trocadero Quartette, who are to be here next week. Every member of this organization is a soloist and every one of the musical numbers whether solo, or quartette, are immensely effective. They have a faculty of gathering in, the latest and best songs and introducing them in a manner that makes them sung and whistled all over town. A particular feature in this number is the rendition of four different melodies at the same time harmonizing.

Two of the best people in the head balancing line are Fields and Co-Co. Their feats consist of remarkable balancing from head to head and hand to hand as well as executing some of the most astounding feats known to the world. This feature will be one of the big numbers next week.

Charles Wolfe, and the Misses Moore and Young, are a trio of rollicking entertainers. They will offer a budget of timely songs, and dancing that is incomparable and their costumes are conceded to be the best presented in vaudeville.

The usual song and moving pictures are billed too.

Majestic Theatre

On Monday and Tuesday some thrilling films portraying the emotional side of the human character will be portrayed at this bright little Theatre and to picture lovers they should prove a source of real entertainment, "The Love of Lady Irma" and "The Eleventh Hour," are two intensely dramatic situations which are well spoken of in the press as possessing unique features of interest.

Empress Theatre

This theatre continues its well deserving success and the full houses which are attracted nightly speak well for its popularity. The $20 gold piece is a great attraction, and this, combined with the excellence of the pictures and the music are the reasons of its well earned success.

A Gilt Edged Investment

The Week has recently stated on the highest authority that the Victoria Banks hold on deposit no less a sum than 21,000,000. They pay three per cent. interest on this amount which totals $630,000 a year. The Banks reinvest this amount in the Canadian Northwest and on call loans in New York, and it is generally accepted that it earns an average of 12 to 15 per cent. The depositor could just as easily place his own money in a gilt edged investment as secure as the bank and realise 8 per cent., but in Victoria he has no ambition to do so. Just why Victoria capitalists are willing to sacrifice $1,050,$00 every year, the difference between 3 per cent. and 8 per cent. on their $21,000,000 deposits is not easy to understand. If they were looking for call loans in New York or indeed for any speculative investment no doubt they would require the assistance of an expert financier to enable them to steer clear of risky ventures, but when it comes to bona fide investments in enterprises which have no element of speculation and about which they know as much as the Banks, it is hardly necessary to pay the latter a premium of 5 per cent. for placing their money. There are certain stocks which are recognized in financial circles as secure, such as Bank stock, trust stock, fire and life insurance stock. Of all of these the stock of a well established Fire Insurance Company is at once the safest and the most profitable. Among Fire Insurance Companies there is none which stands higher than the Pacific Coast Company whatever test may be applied. Its President, Mr. T. T. Langlois, is recognized as one of the leading financiers of the Province, he is supported by a Board of Directors such as no other Company can produce. Every Director is conspicuously a successful business man and the most conspicuous of them all is the Hon. Richard McBride, the Premier. The Company can point to a successful history, having traded under the present management for eight years and the management is admittedly the most expert engaged in the business of fire insurance. Of late years much has been said about the need for more western financial institutions. The West has too long relied upon the East and has paid too dearly for the privilege of exporting its own currency for re-investment in the older provinces. There is no reason why western money could not be re-invested where it is made, and every institution which furnishes an opportunity for this on safe and reasonable terms is a public benefactor and is helping to lay deeper and broader the foundations upon which the newest, furthest west world is being built up. Among such institutions there is not one more worthy of confidence than the Pacific Coast Fire Insurance Company, which is already doing so well. It is an established, profitable business and is for the first time giving the general public an opportunity to acquire stock and to take a hand in managing their own insurance. Every dollar which the public receives as a bonus or dividend on its insurance stock is a dollar written off from the actual cost of insurance; when business men realise this fact they will take their insurance to a company in which they hold stock themselves, and so secure the full benefit of an outlay which is at once a protection and an investment.

Still Rusticating

By Bohemian

I fancy a good many people living in Victoria and Vancouver, to say nothing of the dwellers in the Upper Country, would be more than surprised could they realise how rapidly development is progressing in the interior of the Island. Five years ago the main road between Nanaimo and Alberni was deserted, save for the daily passing of the stage and the infrequent journeys of ranchers to the nearest settlement to buy supplies. "Mais nous avons change tout cela," and now it is the exception rather than the rule to walk three miles without encountering some vehicle, mechanical or otherwise, speeding to or from Nanaimo. Labour is being brought over from the Mainland at present at the rate of over sixty men a week. From the steamer they are instantly transported to an I. X. L. wagonette, and speedily driven off nearly thirty miles to a place of safety, to be conducted without delay to the scene of their labours in the vicinity of Cameron Lake and The Summit. Like Charles II, after the death of old Noll, Vancouver Island is on the verge of coming into its own.

I wonder whether other Old Countrymen are as much struck as I always am, when out of town, by the comparative absence of sheep in the pastures. At first it took me a long time to realise exactly what it was that was lacking; in fact I never did realise it until I happened to come across a few specimens of the genus mutton. Of course as long as we have cayuses, no, it's coyotes I mean, and panthers and other savage epicures, I suppose real live sheep are bound to be a somewhat minus quantity. However, if they are lacking in the open, it cannot be denied that there are plenty of the black variety to be found in the cities and towns, whilst shearing is still an art, albeit somewhat on the wane, under the style and cognomen of "fleecing."

'Tis May 1st on which I am writing; a glorious First of May. A deep blue sky, an equally blue and unruffled sea, a balmy breeze, an unclouded sun and the everlasting mountains still capped with snow;—add the humming of insect life, a distant cow-bell;—what could be more perfect? I wish that I had a copy of Gray's Elegy with me; it is the ideal afternoon on which to read it, and then to ponder in the post-prandial soporific state which is so sweetly induced by good living and fine weather, on all the thoughts of the past, present and future, which the poem inspires. But alas, nothing in this world is perfect and this afternoon it is a bumble-bee which is turning my pleasure into ashes and rendering impossible the real dolce far niente which I am endeavouring to achieve. There is something peculiarly annoying about a bumble-bee at close quarters. He is the epitome of inquisitiveness; he reminds me of a fat female trotting along on the scent of scandal, and though he is said to differ from her, in that he does not leave a sting behind, I have never had the courage to pick one up to make sure. He is also a source of mental worry to me, as after an interview with him I invariably find myself pondering as to whether Charles Dickens named the beadle for the bee, or whether the bee was raised to the ranks of the hyphenated in memory of the beadle.

I always wish that Tennyson had never written those verses about the conceited little creature whom her misguided school-fellows had chosen to be Queen of the May. I plead guilty to a general dislike of poetry; I believe it is constitutional, and I have a very strong idea that it is inherited. I believe that, to use the correct expression, I lack the soul to appreciate it. I have tried to write verses myself, and some of you may have been fortunate enough to see specimens in these columns, but the Editor is always very cruel about them and says that I have no ear for rythm. However, that may be, I do like Tennyson, always excepting that May Morning horror. It affects me in the same way that some hymns do. If I go to Church and the hymn list includes "We Plough the Fields and Scatter," or "A Few More Years Shall Roll," I am far better outside than in. I feel sure that the vain child of whom the Laureate wrote was the best hated girl in the village when evening shadows fell on May 1st.

But May Day festivities in those times were more natural than they are now. How I hate the artificial May Day celebrations of the present time, when children are laboriously trained to dance and sing what time they weave colonial ribbons into fantastic combinations. The charm of the olden customs was the spontaneity and lack of affectation, except in the case of Tennyson's May Queen, which characterised them. But the age of spontaneity is past, and in its place come artifice and set device.

Law Students Debate

The long pending debate between the law students of B. C. and Washington will take place next Saturday night, May 13th, in the Carnegie Hall. The subject for debate is: "Resolved, that Free Trade would be more beneficial to the people of U. S. than a system of protective tariffs." The B. C. law students have selected as their spokesmen Messrs. D. S. Tait and Sears. The debate will be an interesting one and the public will be welcomed.

Mr. Wilkerson Returns

Mr. W. H. Wilkerson, the jeweler, has returned after a six weeks' purchasing trip to the east, having met in Toronto, Montreal and New York representatives of the leading European, American and Canalian manufacturers of all goods pertaining to his business. Some very extensive purchases in diamonds were made by him, direct from the Amsterdam cutters, and in Buffalo he procured the very latest and most up-to-date tools for his factory which is now second to none on this coast. Mr. Wilkerson distributed through the East a quantity of pamphlets in the interests of the Vancouver Island Development League, having had a great many inquiries about Victoria and the Island. The easterners can hardly realize the climatic conditions of Vancouver Island, as Mr. Wilkerson puts it, "the finest spot on the continent of America," which, he declares, he is glad to get back to.

The City of the North

Public interest continues to centre in Stewart, the coming city of the North. Since the last issue of The Week a record price has been established by the sale of one lot on Eighth avenue for $2,800. As the date of the Government sale draws near it is more than ever obvious that there will be a rush for lots and that the prices realised will be startling. This will be due to the restricted area available for building purposes and to the fact that there is no longer any doubt that Stewart will be the headquarters of a permanent mining camp.

The Oriental Trading Company

During the last three or four weeks the ladies of Victoria have been supplementing their stock of rare apparel by depleting the stock of the Oriental Trading Company. The time has gone by when any lady in Victoria is content to dress with inartistic goods. In this city of great prosperity, and in this day of exceptional progress men are determined that their womenkind shall have the best that money can procure, and by common consent the most delightful, artistic, and alluring fabrics must be sought in the Orient. The stiff cottons, and linens, of years ago have given place to the soft luxurious fabrics which form the staple of the Oriental trade and today Pongee silk and Crepe de Chine are indispensable to the wardrobe of every lady of fashion. The time honoured dressing gown of severe cut and wall-paper design has been entirely superseeded by the graceful kimono, without which no lady's trousseau is complete. The Oriental Importing Co. have ransacked the bazaars of Hong Kong, Canton and Yokohama in order to furnish their Victoria customers with the best that money can buy. This company carries the largest stock of Pongee in the Dominion and the last length must be disposed of before the sale closes tonight. The prices have been brought within the reach of the most modest purse and any Victoria girl who wants a dainty Summer dress at a modest price will have only herself to blame if she misses this opportunity.

Making Good

There are some people who have ken a superficial view of the pre- nt activity in Victoria real estate, d have called it a "boom," thus ssifying it with a number of mush- om townsites, and other similar eculative ventures. On the other nd, there are some who, looking low the surface, realize that Vic- ia has started on an era of per- nent prosperity, towards which it s been moving for several years st. Compared with the prices of al estate in other cities, Victoria s yet considerable leeway to make , and one of the most astute ob- vers remarked, only this week, that a man were to be blindfolded and rchase land anywhere within 10 or miles of Victoria he would be cer- n to realise a handsome profit in e near future. Apart from the in- nsic value of Victoria real estate, ere are pessimists who have de- ared that in the matter of agencies e thing has been overdone, and that re was not enough business to keep e established firms profitably occu- d. It has remained for a new ar- al to disprove this statement, for arriott & Fellows, of 619 Trounce enue, whose head office is in Van- uver, have, within two or three eks, done sufficient business to fully tify their enterprise in coming here. ey have secured control of import- t estates, and have at the same time gratiated themselves with the in- sting public by their up-to-date thods. This is largely due to the mpetency and popularity of their al manager, Mr. G. E. Jubb, as- ted by one of the best advertising nts on the Pacific Coast, Mr. Geo. Ellison, who is at present adver- ng solely for the above firm. The n is a large and influential one, ing another branch office at 635 lumbia street, New Westminster, l corresponding agencies in St. l, Chicago, New York, Montreal, ronto, and London, Eng.

'Twas through the fragrant woods of May
They wandered long ago,
'Neath boughs with apple-blossoms flushed,
Or chilled with cherry's snow.

Two friends were by her side that day,
And filled the groves with song;
While Life was naught but light and flowers,
So gay they danced along.

She turned from Spring's far dome of blue,
To gaze in Love's deep eyes;
And saw within that sapphire shrine
A fairer heaven rise.

A slender hand then touched her own,
A golden voice laughed low;
While Youth's bright hair in radiance gleamed
'Neath May's soft wreaths of snow.

The wistful shades of twilight fell,
The blue eyes smiled "Good-bye."
"And must we part?" she sighing said—
"Ah, well, one friend have I."

She turned to clasp a comrade true,
But Youth escaped her hold;
The distant hills one moment glowed
As flashed her hair of gold.

Beyond the purple peaks they passed,
Beyond the ocean blue.
How could she know when Love had gone
That Youth must leave her too?

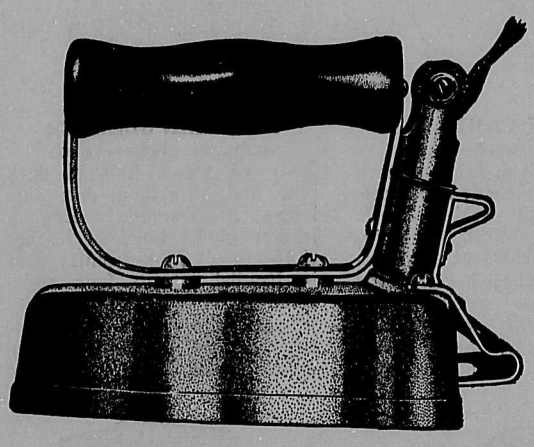
The "HOT POINT" Electric Iron

Will Satisfy Anyone



The tremendous success the Hot Point electric iron has made in the households of the country is because this iron was first constructed to meet the exact requirements of laundry service. An electric iron that will satisfy a laundryman will satisfy anyone. It must be able to stand up under continuous service, be hot enough to handle all classes of work, use the current economically, be convenient, easy to handle and quickly repaired. This is an exact illustration of the Hot Point Electric Iron. It makes ironing pleasant work. It saves money, steps, time, trouble, temper and perspiration. It makes the "maid" contented because she can iron faster and better and have more time to herself. It is a wonderful boon to the "mistress" because she can attach it to the electric light socket on the back porch during the war weather and iron her costly lace, that she will not trust to other hands, in comfort.

Most up-to-date women now-a-days carry an Electric Iron with them when travelling. It has become a necessity. For this, the "Hot Point" has many commendable features. Call here and see it in operation. We allow ten days' free trial to Victorians.

The Recent Revision

The Voters' List at present in use is the result of the applications made since 1903. Its size at present is a fair indication of the continuous growth and is perhaps the cleanest Voters' List in British Columbia. When a person once applies to go on the List, he remains on until he makes application to the Registrar to have it removed, or unless it is objected to by a voter who has the knowledge that the voter has ceased to reside in the district for a period of six months. With almost a condition of things amounting to Manhood Suffrage, the Government only requiring that an applicant should be of the full age of 21, a resident in the province for six months, and a British subject of the male sex, every opportunity is offered to make it easy to register the eligible voter. However, with great opportunities and the rapid upbuilding of the Province, men are continuously moving round, and oftentimes through ignorance of the law, persons make application to go on the Voters' List without applying for a transfer from the Registrar of Voters in their former riding. The several parties in the province keep a strict vigil on the absentee voter, and more especially on the duplicate. Many voters and especially those in Victoria, feel they have to make application to go on the list every year on account of the law in relation to the municipal voter, who has to do so. This year objections were laid to over 1,100 names and the withdrawals, amounting to about 135, shows that a commendable attempt is being made to strip the List of all the previous objectionable and invalid votes. In Esquimalt 205 objections were laid and of these over 190 were sustained. In this work the representatives of both parties work in harmony and bears witness to the wise legislation of the Government for regulating the machinery in connection with the Voters' List.

Mr. MacIntosh and Mr. Ditchburn for the Liberals and Mr. W. H. Price, the honorary secretary for the Conservatives, pay especial tribue to Mr. Harvey Coombe, the Registrar, for his fairness and impartiality.

April 22nd last, Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt was tendered a banquet by President Fallieres, at the Elysee, Paris, France. On the 26th ult., the municipality of Paris extended to Mr. Roosevelt a formal welcome and a luncheon was given in his honour. At both these important functions G. H. Mumm & Co.'s Champagne was the only champagne used. This shows that "Mumm's" is thought as highly of in "Gay Paree" as it is elsewhere throughout the ciivlized world. stic Criticism of Victoria Schools

Editor of The Week:

r,—I wonder does it ever strike of your readers, that there is a t deal of time wasted by the hers in the Public Schools in Vica.

ne day last week I was visiting a d, and her son, a boy of between nd 14 years, came from the Cen- School with a small paper box. used to call them fly traps). His s had spent the greater part of afternoon learning to make this Were you to ask this boy how h four times eight were he could answer. Fancy a boy of near 14 ting his time on kindergarten k! I am not alone in thinking we paying a great deal too much to teachers for the knowledge they rt to our children. They give h home lessons, they don't under- d and either parents or elder bro- s or sisters must teach them. n the paid instructors may look and correct, that is if they have after they have read the morn- paper, or done a little fancy , or they might, perchance, fan- me fruit, or candy, then a young- is sent out to purchase the article ed. After this it is to be eaten all in school hours.

here are very few children even e high school can write an intel- t letter.

d, Mr. Editor, did you read the twaddle printed in the Colonist ay? If not, I should like you to hear your opinion.

d we pay for this. It's time par- rose in a body to stop the pro- of such teaching.

The Cheapest City Realty in the West

Is the distinction enjoyed by Victoria at the present time. Surrounded as it is with almost unlimited natural resources, with its beautiful climate and excellent harbor, the first port of call for Canadian trans-Pacific liners, as well as for boats from the South and the North, Victoria is receiving the attention of speculators and investors from all parts of the Globe. This last few months they have been buying, and are still buying the choicest properties Victoria has to offer. One of the greatest railroad men in the West, and one who has taken more than a passing interest in Victoria and Vancouver Island in general, said a few days ago: "Watch the South end of Vancouver Island. There will be an unprecedented rise in realty values, and the excitement will be fully warranted." Within the next few years, our most sanguine hopes of Victoria for that time will not only be realized, but eclopsed. It is up to you to 'Get in with the winners," "Boost for your home town," and share in the prosperity of the next few years.

Below are a few carefully selected properties we have to offer. They are all in good locations, and in a direct line with civic improvements and the trend of development. They can be bought with a feeling of security for immediate and future enhancement of values. We recommend them as being Victoria's cheapest Realty bargains, and incidentally THE CHEAPEST IN THE WEST.
