L. IX. No. 32 EIGHTH YEAR THE WEEK, SATURDAY, AUGUST 12, 1911 ~~EIGHTH~~ YEAR ONE DOLLAR PER ANNUM

R. G. H. BARNARD—Before The Week goes to press again, Mr. G. H. Barnard will have been nom- unanimously by his party, as the late for Victoria in the forthcoming n. No other name has been sug- or even thought of and it must be a for gratification to Mr. Barnard that is such a general concensus of opinion favour. Mr. Barnard has represent- ctoria in the Federal House during fetime of one Parliament, and has so in a manner which has caused the intense satisfaction to his constitu- He has done this in spite of the con- s belittlement of the Victoria Times has won out because he has proved f to be a conscientious, hard-working, representative. The House of Com- at Ottawa has heard more about Vic- since Mr. Barnard has been a mem- an ever before. He has not bored House with frequent and lengthy es, but he has kept his eye on things, as never missed an opportunity of Victoria and her affairs into the ht when there was a good purpose served. Reference has already been o the action of Mr. Barnard in con- with the Naval Debate, when he resented the claims of Esquimalt as ral naval harbour and the logical of naval shipbuilding. He has, time gain, enforced the requests of the of Trade and other public bodies for r improvements. This is ad record for a member whom the affects to believe is of "no account." rate it has been sufficient to con- he Conservative Electorate that he right man in the right place," and is activity and loyalty are contrasted e inertia and indifference of his pre- r, no man who wishes to see Vic- rge ahead will vote for a return to ner regime.

ODGED ISSUE—The Week has several times pointed out that the Liberal Press is carefully dodging reme issue of the coming campaign ling the straight political aspect of stion. Liberal papers and Liberal s are eager at all times to devote ed time and space to the question price of potatoes and apples, and spects of a larger market in lumber, y fight shy every time of the argu- hich stands in the fore-front of the vative lines, that all the economic of the question sink into insigni- when compared with the political. ly excuse offered by the Liberals for g to recognise the supreme import- f this phase of the question is that ffect to disbelieve in its pertinency. ry to laugh the case out of court ground that it involves the accept- f the theory that Canadian loyalty be brought into question, and that it be absurd even to discuss the pos- of such a thing. But, it will readily that this is an evasion and a very ient method of dodging a very per- ssue. There are a great many men, t all of them Liberals, who believe eciprocity would be the first step to- annexation. The Week has never his far, but if it had, it would have d the lead of Liberals as eminent Edmund Walker, Mr. Z. A. Lash and R. Wood. It is possible, however, t regarding annexation as inevitable, se that the following of an American native of commercial union or commercial ruin. Then, when they have dragged us into Commercial Union, with the aid of the American Colony in the West, with the consent of thousands who would be ruined by a return to old conditions, with the assistance of a "school" among our own politicians who would be quite capable of arguing that Commercial Union was only a business bargain and did not tend towards political union, they would, holding our tariff in their hands and in full control of our natural resources, present to us another alternative. They would repeat the language of James G. Blaine, and tell us that, if we desired to share the benefits of the American market, we must share the burdens of the American nation. Of course it is open to the Liberals to say that such conclusions are far-fetched if not impossible, but conclusions are matters of opinion, and whatever Liberals may think, Conservatives believe that these conclusions are both logical and probable if not inevitable. Long before the campaign is over the Government supporters will be obliged to face this issue and to discuss the grounds on which it is based. "Dodging" it will deceive nobody, and its importance is emphasized by the continued defection of men of position and influence, who for the first time in their lives are lining up with a Conservative Opposition.

THE WIDER MARKET—The principal ground on which Sir Wilfrid Laurier relies for carrying the country is that Reciprocity will mean a "wider market" for the Canadian producer. This is another of the fallacies necessary to accept in swallowing the Reciprocity pact. The Week has, from the first, strongly suspected that when the imaginary talk of the Government supporters had given place to the cold facts furnished by trade statistics, this fallacy would stand exposed. A careful examination of the Trade Returns of recent years fully confirms this anticipation and shows that, while there may be individual districts in which the Canadian farmer will be able to export his produce in larger quantities to a section of American territory which does not produce the same class of goods, the net result of the "wider market" will be to widen it on the Canadian side of the line for the benefit of the American farmer. This is not a mere speculative opinion, it is a certainty, based upon ascertained facts. The Canadian Trade Returns show that between 1909 and 1911 Canadian exports of cattle to the United States increased by only $48,360; but American exports of cattle to Canada increased in the same period over half a million dollars. In the same period our exportation of breadstuffs to the United States decreased by $175,309, and American exports of breadstuffs to Canada increased by over three millions and a quarter of dollars. Canada exported $182,677 less of fruit to the United States in 1911 than in 1909, and Canada imported $2,527,846 more of fruit from the United States in 1911 than in 1909. Where is the "Wider Market?" What will happen in the next two years, if the pact goes into force? The American mechanic and factory operative is not working full time. Unemployment has curtailed his expenditure; and the American farmer is suffering in consequence. Under Reciprocity the Canadian market will become as his very own. Our "protected" operatives, with steady employment and high wages, will look good to the American farmer and the food trusts. And the Canadian Agriculturist will have to grin and bear their unscrupulous competition. The Canadian operative will send his money to a country that bars out our manufactures, the product of his labour. The Canadian farmer—the operative's best customer—will have less money to buy goods with, and the operative will suffer along with the farmer. "Cheap" food, under such conditions, is "dear" food.

EFFECT ON WAGES—Sooner or later the bearing of Reciprocity on wages was bound to become an important issue. The Liberal Press is anxious to convince the working man that under Sir Wilfrid's nostrum the cost of living will be reduced and the rate of wages increased. This is a large order, because it involves a reversal of all human experience. There is not a labour leader in the world who does not know that any sensible reduction in the cost of living is always followed by a reduction in wages. There is not a labour leader in the world who does not make the cost of living the basis of his demand for higher pay, and as the cost of living has advanced universally, the logic of this argument has been admitted and wages have risen automatically. By what process can Sir Wilfrid Laurier guarantee to make water run up hill in the labour market? If he has any patent for producing such an unheard of result, the secret has not been disclosed. This may be one of the "surprise packets" which the Victoria Times has assured its readers is in store for them. Meanwhile, however, the wage-earner will be more apt to rely upon the experience of the past than on the rosy and altogether imaginary picture which Sir Wilfrid paints of the future. In this connection, the Victoria Times has surpassed itself. In Thursday's issue it makes the following remarkable editorial statement: "Intelligent labouring men know that the cost of living has nothing to do with the rate of the wages." The working-man who did not know better than this would not be very "intelligent," whatever else he might be; indeed, there are a few working-men, even in Victoria, sufficiently "intelligent" to remember that within the last few years at least two advances have been made in the wages of city workmen, solely on the ground of the increased cost of living. They are also "intelligent" enough to know that other grades of workmen than those usually designated by the term, have had similar advances and that the authorities have, without demur, conceded the legitimacy of the claim. The Times has been singularly unhappy, even for it, in the handling of the subject, and its unhappiest move was the appeal to the "intelligence" of the working-man. The whole argument savours too much of "Codling's your friend not Short."

Miss McB. Smith Secures Lead

Miss McB. Smith secures the lead over all the contestants in The Week great voting contest.

All candidates are now on the home stretch and according to present indications more votes will be polled in this next and last two weeks than at any time previous during the contest.

Candidates should make it a point to overcome at least one or two opponents, thereby placing them in a position to receive one of the more valuable prizes.

One week from today the third and second last period closes. All subscriptions turned in up to August 19th will receive a greater number of votes than if turned in during the last week of the contest.

Candidates and their friends may rest assured that no votes will be held back after Saturday, August 19th. Friends of the different candidates would do far more in behalf of their favourite when they see she is near the top of the list and has a chance of winning.

One or two hundred votes or less than the equivalent to one yearly subscription may decide the winner or the loser of the Grand and District prizes.

All subscriptions and proper remittance covering same turned in after August 19th up to August 26th will be deposited in a ballot box in the office of The Week. At 10 o'clock p.m., August 26th, the ballot box will be opened, the votes counted, the winners announced and the prizes awarded then and there.

After August 19 no personal cheques will be accepted as payment for subscriptions. Postoffice and Express Money Orders will be accepted as cash. Subscribers paying their subscription by cheque will kindly make same payable to the Candidate they wish to vote for and the Candidate will have such cheques cashed and turn in the currency with subscriptions.

Following is the standing of the Candidates up to noon Friday, August 11th:—

Two weeks have elapsed since I challenged Mr. Drury to make good his oft-repeated statement that the Dominion Trust, Ltd., had abandoned the building of their new offices because of the proximity of the Public Convenience. I did not expect that the chance of winning $5.00 would offer any attraction to a gentleman of Mr. Drury's means, but I thought that as he imagined himself to be right he would be willing to enrich one of the hospitals to that extent by allowing me to demonstrate that he was wrong. That is where I misjudged Mr. Drury. I now beg to give him the following additional information which he can verify on enquiry at the head office of the company at Vancouver. The real reason for the abandonment of the office block was that during the absence of the Managing Director, Mr. Mathers, in London, Mr. Arnold got busy among his friends, purchased control through the acquisition of treasury stock on which only a small percentage had to be paid and promptly vetoed Mr. Mathers' plans for building the office block in question, at the same time placing the site on the market at $125,000, at which figure Mr. Drury or any of his friends can purchase it today. As I am still anxious for one of the hospitals to get that $5.00 I hereby renew my challenge to Mr. Drury that if he will disprove the above statement I will pay up and look pleasant. Hereafter I hope he will not allow himself to be misled by people who do not know what they are talking about.

The thing which has always been worrying me since I have been in Victoria is the time at which the Vancouver mail goes out. The exigencies of the office mail tell me when it goes out on Saturdays, but time and again people meet me on the street and say: "Lounger, you are supposed to know all about the mails." I plead guilty to knowing nothing. To my relief have come the London Pub. Co., who have put on the market a most excellent book which they call the "green book." This little pamphlet, which will fold up into your pocket, tells you about all the mails, it tells you about where to buy everything, it tells you about all the hotels in Victoria, in fact it tells you about everything worth knowing in Victoria.

* * *

By a strange coincidence Mr. T. N. Hibben of 1219 Langley street, has produced a guide to Victoria at just about the same time as the London Pub. Co. Mr. Hibben's guide contains two most comprehensive maps, one of the city and one of the vicinity. Mr. Hibben is to be congratulated on the concise manner in which this little Victoria guide is gotten up; it is neat and handy, and will doubtless prove a great boon to the many who know Victoria well and would like to know it better.

I think it was three weeks ago that I spoke about a weighing machine which occupied a prominent part of the sidewalk outside one big departmental store on View street. The weighing machine is still there. Incidentally, I notice that the firm's packing cases are still usurping the greater part of the sidewalk and road. Trounce avenue, I also observe, is at the time of writing blocked up with numerous cases consigned to a prominent "gent's furnisher" on Government street. Of course a poor little Lounger knows nothing about these things, but he is apt to wonder why the Mayor and Council sit in their Chamber of State and allow their fair city to be the laughing stock of chance tourists. This paragraph is inspired by a friend from the Prairie Provinces.

I quite realize that the B. C. Electric and the city are distinctly "up against it" on Fort street, but I don't quite see why they should lay traps for the unwary in the most unlikely places. I, of course, am not a respectable member of society; a Lounger never is; but, I defy his worship the Mayor after dark to walk up Fort street from Douglas to Blanchard without an accident.

Lounger.

Building Stopped by Reciprocity

S. P. Pond, manager for the Taylor Milling and Elevator Company at Nelson, received instructions from the head office of the company at Lethbridge to proceed with the construction of an elevator and a warehouse on the four lots at the foot of Stanley street purchased for the purpose last fall, but has decided that he will take no action on account of the reciprocity pact.

"The company's instructions to me," said Mr. Pond, "were to arrange for the building of a warehouse and an elevator with a capacity of 10,000 bushels, but my recent trip to Washington state has convinced me that such a step would be ill-advised at this time on account of the proposed reciprocity agreement with the United States.

"Consequently I have written in these terms to Lethbridge and the proposition will be held up until we see which way the cat jumps.

"My visit to Washington has made it appear to me that if the pact is ratified by the Canadian House of Commons it would pay us better to move our headquarters in this territory from here to Spokane and conduct our business from that city, constructing our proposed warehouse and elevator there.

"But that, of course, is a matter for the future," concluded Mr. Pond. "In the meantime we shall not build here while reciprocity is in the air."

Design of New Coins

An extra of the Gazette proclaims the design for the new 50-cent and 10-cent pieces. The obverse impression will have an effigy of King George with the imperial crown and robe and the inscription of "George V. Rex et Ind. Imp." and for the reverse "50 cents," the year, a wreath of maple leaves and the imperial crown. The impression of the 10-cent piece will be the same except in denomination.

Tribute to Its Founder

Another tribute is being paid to the memory of the late John Houston, by the dedication of a ward in the Prince Rupert General Hospital. The engraved brass plate was received at Prince Rupert by Dr. Reddie, recently, and arrangements have been made to have it mounted and put in place. The tablet is inscribed as follows:

> This ward is dedicated to the Memory of the Late John Houston, Pioneer, Philanthrophist, the Original Founder of this Institution.

With the placing in position of the plate the John Houston Ward will be complete. Already the ward has done useful service as part of the efficient General Hospital of the terminal city of the G. T. P.

For Fishery Protection

Plans are being formulated at Ottawa for a protected cruiser to be used in the fishery protection service on the Pacific Coast. The size and cost of the vessel has not yet been determined.

Optimistic Victoria

Victoria has grown so big with optimism there is no room for th pessimist. The pessimist—the "moss-back"—is the only man th flocks here alone now.

He is like Rudyard Kipling's feline, "The cat that walked b himself. But his days are numbered. Victoria now knows enough bury her dead and the pessimist—the cat who walks by himself—w be catalogued away in the archives of the past with other ancie catastrophal history.

Victoria's head optimist is the man who can see double. But has no eyes in the back of his head. He can't see backward.

He'll walk around the corner at any time to smile, and he'll gr like a Cheshire cat when he considers he might have bought th very corner for one-quarter the price it commands now.

Yes! He smiles broadly from ear to ear, nay, from here yonder, when he thinks of the fat cheque he has just planked dow for it.

"A rosy view for mine," says Victoria, for she realizes that h citizens are now abreast of the times. They may have to gnaw bone occasionally, but when they do they'll just declare it quail toast—the only kind of quail Victoria will recognize—so they'll toa themselves in the best there is—Mumm's. There's prosperity Victoria and prosperity begets Mumm's Champagne.

Once there was a man who fell out of a 23-storey building; he passed the 10th floor he said: "Everything is all right, so far." skidoo story, simply an optimistical illustration of getting the Victoria, however, is getting up the storey instead of down—sh getting there with both feet.

So let us drink to the health of "Optimistic Victoria" in the b beverage, G. H. Mumm & Co.'s "Extra Dry," the bottle with the pi cap. Pither and Leiser, wholesale agents for B.C., Victo Vancouver and Nelson.

rip this time was a combin- business and vacation," said vage. "After I finished my missions, I supplemented my h a three weeks' vacation in Baden, which was a genuine —the first I have had in years. most enjoyable time, so much I remained a week longer original schedule called for, m feeling 'as fit as a fiddle.'

"From a musical standpoint, probably the most important of my contracts is the engagement of Maestro Giorgo Polacco as my first conductor, who was the personal choice of Puccini himself. He was the guest of Puccini at the premiere of the opera in Rome, in order that he might acquaint himself with the score under the immediate personal and technical supervision of the composer. Signor Polacco's long experience at Genoa, Naples and Buenos Ayres, combined with a thorough knowledge of America gained during two seasons with Tetrazzini, will afford most valuable assistance to the rendition of the opera in the manner desired by the composer.

"Puccini is intensely interested in the American presentation of 'The Girl of the Golden West' in English, not only on account of the success of 'Madam Butterfly' in English, but chiefly because of the story and the traditions of the theme being entirely American, that the motifs of his music can be more clearly appreciated when accompanied by a libretto so frankly appealing to the American people.

"I will give the opera a generous production, quite in keeping with the dignity of Mr. Belasco's drama, and the masterful score of the famous Italian composer. I will employ an orchestra of fifty-two pieces, and all of the supernumeraries will be rehearsed in New York and accompany the organization throughout the tour, which is scheduled to begin about November 1st, and will embrace the principal cities from coast to coast and from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada."

One of the most important of Mr. Savage's early productions will be "Le Million," a new light comedy that achieved a striking hit at the Palais Royal, Paris, last year, and of which the most enthusiastic cabled reports have reached New York. In some respects it follows the lines of Sardou's "A Scrap of Paper." The American adaptation has been made by Leo Ditrichstein. In this adaptation Mr. Savage believes that Mr. Ditrichstein has fairly outdone any of his previous efforts in farcical writing. The piece is a farce pure and simple.

"In Leon de Souza I have another tenor of rare personality and vocal qualifications. He is a grandson of the great La Blanche, and is a splendid actor as well as singer.

"For the role of the Sheriff I have engaged William Beck, last season specially engaged for the Paris opera. Beck is a prize baritone with a voice of wonderful power and range. He is a Hungarian by birth, but sings with equal ease and diction in English as in foreign languages. He was formerly with the Covent Garden Company in London, and has sung in this country in a varied repertoire in the Hammerstein and Andreas Dippel companies.

"In Cologne I engaged Irma Delossy, a wonderful dramatic soprano, full of temperament, with a voice of exceptional range, covering nearly three octaves. Mme. Delossy will alternate the role of Minnie with Edna Blanche Showalter and Mme. Luisa Villani, whom I engaged on this side before sailing.

"Another of my important grand opera engagements is Mme. Dina Pughlia for the character part of Wowkle, the Indian woman.

TENNIS

By Bohemian

Among the many things which are booming in Victoria just now Tennis must undoubtedly be reckoned. With a six days' tournament just closed, in which there were 271 entries, Tennis can fairly lay claim to the premier position.

In pointing this out I do not wish in the slightest degree to detract from the merits of the other sports which are so popular in the city, but I do feel a peculiar satisfaction in watching the development of a game at which I have played for more than forty years, and of which Victoria may fairly be considered the Western headquarters.

Before saying a few words about the local tournament I must refer to the doings of B. P. Schwengers in the East. Since the last issue of The Week he has won the Quebec Championship, meeting the crack Montreal players and winding up in the final by defeating Gurd in three straight, almost love, setts. Gurd is a brilliant young player and the victory is a notable one.

Schwengers goes to Niagara-on-the-Lake where he will meet at any rate some of the best American players as well as the best Canadians. Among the latter he will not meet any superior to the men whom he has already vanquished, but among the American players will almost certainly be several better than any of the Canadians, and this is where he will have his first real test.

At Newport he is bound to come up against the very strongest of the American players, and this is where most people expect him to meet his Waterloo; not so Bohemian, who still thinks that Schwengers' phenomenal strength and skill will be more than a match for the greater finesse of the American cracks.

Turning to local affairs it must be admitted that the recent tournament was the best on record. With such a huge total as 271 entries, with 50 entries from outside players, with perfect weather all the week, with excellent management by the Tournament Secretary, Mr. Dickson, everything passed off so charmingly that there is not room for a word of criticism. It is true that the tournament was shorn of its greatest attraction by the absence of the champion, but this left matters more open and at the beginning of the week it was generally felt that there were half-a-dozen players, any one of whom might win the championship.

Of course it looked to be odds on Tyler, but with recollections of the brilliant game which Cardinal played against Schwengers last year and the consistent form of Capt, Foulkes, Rhodes, Garrett and Marshall he would have been a bold man who would have undertaken to pick the winner. As matters turned out there were the usual surprises, and the interest of the contest was maintained to the finish.

Tyler won the Singles easily; in fact so easily as to demonstrate that he is playing better today than at any previous time. It was a perfect delight to watch the ease with which he played, and especially the gracefulness of his back-hand stroke. It is true he worked this over-time, but his excuse must be found in its deadly effectiveness. On the form which he displayed in Victoria, Tyler would have given Schwengers a better game than for three or four years past.

Capt. Foulkes played a consistent, steady game, but was vanquished by a younger, more versatile and more active player. Garrett was rather disappointing, for after playing well for four days he encountered a "Black Friday" and fell down badly in all his events. But this was not his true form, and it is quite likely that he will redeem himself in the Club Tournament.

Cardinal was disappointing. On form he should have given Foulkes a fairly even game; instead of losing his first game, 0—6. Afterwards he played splendidly, winning the second sett, but he was out of condition and could only struggle for three games in the third. I still think that five times out of six he would play Foulkes an even game.

Rhodes too failed to do all that was expected of him, although he got into the final with Tyler. The latter beat him altogether too easily for the form to be true.

Among the ladies Mrs. Talbot was easily best, although Miss Kennedy followed her pluckily to the finish. Mrs. Talbot is in the same class as Miss Marion Pitts and Miss Violet Pooley, and there is not much to choose between.

Everyone was pleased to see Dickson and Miss Gillespie win the Mixed Doubles; they were a little fortunate in the semi-final in catching their opponents off colour, but it would be unfair to detract from the merit of the win, which was the result of steady, consistent play.

The tournament produced one dark horse in the person of Edwards, an ex-South of Ireland Champion, who has not played half-a-dozen games for the last few years, and is therefore dead out of form and condition. It is probable that if he succeeds in getting back into condition he will give pointers to the best of our local players and later on put up a good game against Schwengers.

Congratulations to the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club on a splendid Tournament, well managed and on excellent prospects for the future.

Notabilities in B. C.

Written Specially for the Week by Gilbert Malcolm Sproat

Judging from conversation, few people here know the connection, with our Island, of Mr. Justice T. C. Haliburton, the famous Nova Scotian, author of "The Clockmaker," "The Old Judge," and other books, almost the only real literary humourist British North America has produced. He was a director, for several years, of the original Coal Mining Company at Nanaimo.

To me the old man, after he went to England, was a most interesting personage, but I never spoke to him, though knowing his sons, one of whom afterwards became a peer. The family was from the Scottish border—"Burton" being a place-name, to which the prefix "Halig," or "Haly," in the Saxon, became attached owing to the presence of a religious house. Sir Walter Scott's grandmother was a Haliburton. The Nova Scotia judge, I believe, visited in the sixties, the supposed ancestral scene, but I never heard the result of his genealogical inquiries.

Becoming a British M.P. very like an English Squire in person and manner, Haliburton seldom took part in debate and there was not a hint of the genial satire of the "Clockmaker" in his few parliamentary utterances. He was not a ready speaker, but some of his public addresses in the Colony, though, maybe, too ornate, were of fine quality, almost as good as the best of Joseph Howe. Haliburton, in England, was too old to adapt himself to the parliamentary life in a new scene. I dare say, nevertheless, sitting with half-shut eyes in squirearchic repose, he enjoyed a sense of the ridiculous, softened by a mixture of human feelings, and by the meditative habit more or less common in old age. Sometimes he may have wondered if anyone in the House could answer the famous question, "How many fins a cod has, at a word?"

* * *

Another notable Easterner, whose connection with our country is ill remembered, is Francis Hincks, an Irishman of English extraction, who, settling in Canada in the thirties, through active journalism and politics finally led the Hincks-Morin administration, 1851 to 1854. The next stage in his career was unusual. He became Governor-in-chief of Barbadoes and the Windward Islands from 1855 to 1862, and won a C. B. Promoted to British Guiana, on retiring therefrom in 1869, he was made a K. C.M.G. Having returned to Canada, North Renfrew made Sir Francis an M. P. and he was Do Minister of Finance until 1873. Renfrew having gone back c distinguished official, he was re and sat for Vancouver until h retirement at the general elec 1874.

But the most remarkable c Eastern derelicts courting t west occurred long before, nar 1862, the case of Malcolm C (not "John Hillyard" or "H Cameron). Malcolm's desire be Governor of British Co He had been a member of the Hincks-Morin government. Th liamentary Companion, of 187 that, "having visited B. This amusing travesty of fact. Sir Douglas was then Governor o and was succeeded, in 1864, b mour, who had instructions stroy the "self-government" in the Island, and to promot of the two colonies under "Crown Colony" system. So ple, it is true, did what is stated, but Mr. Cameron's and hopes were regarded in as amusing. I knew him w was chairman of a banquet him here, largely by hospita zens. BANKING IN CANADA

Edmund Walker Reviews Its History for Londoners—English Bankers Would Like to Adopt Certain Canadian Features

(Reprinted from the "Monetary Times" of July 15)

An interesting address on Canadian banking was given by Sir und Walker at the London Institution. Sir Edmund reviewed the m as applied to trade and industry, and stated that in the history of ing Canada was not, as might be supposed, one of the new tries of the world. Following the systems of barter established by the history of currency in the old Canada, which preceded Confed- on, began in 1685 with the issue by the French Colony of one of arliest forms of flat paper money in the western half of the world; d, this ingenious experiment was supposed to have inspired the sh colonists of Massachusetts to venture upon the same kind of y. The general use later on of such paper issues by all the ial governments was naturally followed by the famous continental ncy of the revolution. It was because none of this paper money later issues was paid in full, and much of it was not redeemed y manner, that the people of old Canada were so wary and incre- s when, after the establishment of representative government, s were unsuccessfully made in 1792, 1807, and 1808 to obtain the rity of Parliament for banks of issue.

To Pay War Expenses

n order to pay the expenses of the war, issues of flat money, for n the credit of Great Britain was pledged, were made from 1812 to through the Army Bill office, and were redeemed during the ng four or five years. It was not until after this, in 1817 and that the first banks were created in Lower Canada, now Quebec. were at first private corporations, but obtained charters in 1821, hich the Royal Assent (then necessary) was given in 1822. In the Provincial Parliament of Upper Canada (now Ontario) was asked to incorporate a bank, and consented, the Lieutenant- rnor, however, reserving his signature for the Royal Assent, was given in 1821. There was a dispute between two sections pper Canada over this charter, and eventually it took shape as a in which the Provincial Government owned about one-fourth of ock, with a right to name four out of fifteen directors; the only ce, fortunately, of state ownership in our banking history. It safely be said that the three charters granted in Lower Canada, actically alike, were the substructure on which all subsequent vements had been built, and that no very radical changes had t any time necessary.

Clearing Houses for Country's Products

ndeed, there were many provisions in these charters which were quently included, almost unchanged, in the general Banking Act. anks soon opened branches and agencies, and imperfect in detail was at that time, the present system of banking began its course. the first the banks exercised, under the scrutiny of Government ress, the great franchise of note issues unsecured by any special e; they possessed the identity given by separate charters and distinguishing titles; they opened branches and assumed the functions of banking without discussing the precise powers led by these charters. Possessing capital quite as large relatively size of the community as they had now, they assumed without ion a national position as clearing houses for the exchange of untry's products.

f the banks thus created—three in Lower Canada, one in Upper a, two in Nova Scotia, and one in New Brunswick—all but one ebec became leading institutions, and all were either in high ng today or have honourably amalgamated with existing banks, the institution in Upper Canada, unhappily joined to the State id to have been swayed by politics. It failed in 1866, after a of nearly half a century—the most serious calamity in the y of banking in Canada up to the time of Confederation.

Private Note Issues

revious to 1830, while a charter with express power to issue cir- ng notes was most desirable, there was no law forbidding private duals to issue notes. In Lower Canada, in that year, an Act was l partially prohibiting such private issues. But during the dis- ized state of trade and finance at the time of the Rebellion in notwithstanding the penalties, there was a flood of paper issues vate banks and merchants, largely for sums less than a dollar, and found necessary, temporarily, to make these issues legal. Until bellion it was still possible in Upper Canada for private banks to notes, and during the period of trade expansion which preceded neral financial collapse in North America in 1837, several ven- with titles sounding like incorporated bodies, but really private came into existence.

s a result, Upper Canada also passed legislation making such illegal. During the ten years preceding the union of Lower and Canada in 1841, ambitious schemes of public improvement had ndertaken, there had been much speculation in land, and trading lly exceeded the financial capacity. In the United States the conditions had brought about most unsound ideas regarding The people, especially in Upper Canada, were much influenced se novel views on banking, and about 25 bills on the subject of g and currency were introduced, but, as such measures had then referred to the Colonial Office for Royal allowance, none of these es came into effect, and, much as they enjoyed the benefits of rule today, they had to thank the Colonial Office after this lapse e for its attitude, although there was much criticism of that tment at the moment. Thus far no joint-stock bank had failed.

Provincial Bank of Issue

The first Governor-General of the new province was Lord Sydenham, who held the same currency views as Lord Overstone, and it was at that period that the controversies were being carried on, which resulted, in England, in the Bank Act of 1844. Lord Sydenham favoured for Canada a provincial bank of issue, and he outlined a scheme under which he proposed to cancel the right of issue by the chartered banks, remunerating them therefor; and by giving it to this institution, which was not to do a general banking business, he hoped to make a large profit for the Government. He proposed a gold reserve of one-fourth of the issue, with Government bonds for the balance and a fixed maximum for the issue, and he claimed that such a system would ensure ready convertibility. But the Canadian people were intelligent enough to see the defects of such a system, and, apart from other faults, the lack of elasticity alone condemned it. It was opposed, of course, by the banks; but, also, on many grounds, by the general public, and did not become law. The Legislature, however, took advantage of the opportunity to impose a tax on bank notes of one per cent. per annum, on the average amount of circulation. Since 1880 note issues had been a prior lien upon the estate of a bank, prior even to a debt due to the Crown. This legislation was prompted by the failure of a small bank in 1879, which did not pay its notes in full.

Two Minor Defects

At the revision of the Act in 1890 it was recognized that there were still two minor, though serious, defects in the system. It was frequently alleged by those who admired the National Bank Act of the United States that, while the currency created by it might not be elastic, the notes could not, for any reason, fail to be paid in full, or to circulate without discount throughout the entire area of the United States, while in Canada no similar boast could be made. The area of Canada was enormous relatively to population, and the notes of banks in one province certainly passed at a discount in some of the others—a recurrence in a less aggravated form of a defect in the old State-bank issues of the United States.

And, while it might be confidently asserted that all bank issues secured by being a first lien on the estate of the banks would eventually be paid in full, it was nevertheless true that, because of doubt and delay, the notes of a suspended bank might fall to a discount for the time being. To meet these two defects the bankers at that time proposed the following new features, which were adopted by the Government: (1) To avoid discount at the moment of suspension of a bank, either because of delay in the payment of the note issue by the liquidator or of doubt as to ultimate payment, each bank was obliged to keep in the hands of the Government a deposit equal to 5 per cent. on its average circulation, the average being taken from the maximum circulation of each bank in each month of the year.

Circulation Redemption Fund

This was called the Bank of Circulation Redemption Fund, and should any liquidator fail to redeem the notes of a failed bank, recourse might be had to the entire fund, if necessary. As a matter of fact, liquidators were almost invariably able to redeem the note issues as they were presented; but, in order that all solvent banks might accept without loss the notes of an insolvent bank, these notes bore 5 per cent. interest from the date of suspension to the date of the liquidator's announcement that he is ready to redeem. (2) To avoid discount for geographical reasons, each bank was obliged to arrange for the redemption of its notes in certain named commercial centres throughout the Dominion.

In Canada gold was not used as a currency, but as a bank reserve. Of the legal tenders issued by the Government, over seven-ninths were held as bank reserves, while the remainder were the change-making notes—those smaller than five dollars. So that the business of the country, apart from cheques and other credit instruments, was done with bank notes and small legal tenders.

Fluctuations in Business Volume

As Canada was a country with wide fluctuations in the volume of business during the year, owing to crop moving and to the great variation in the seasons, it required great flexibility in the currency. Although the number of establishments was very few, branch banking began soon after the first banks were created in 1817. For 60 or 70 years few banks had more than 25 or 30 offices, but the development of Canada, and especially of the west, had greatly changed conditions. At March 31, 1911, the chartered banks of Canada had 2,482 branches, 2,420 of which were in Canada. The two largest banks had at the present time about 236 and 153 branches respectively. The most striking feature was, of course, not the number of branches belonging to any one bank, because, compared with Great Britain, the figures would look quite moderate, but the great area over which these branches were spread and the variety in the circumstances surrounding the banking business at the important points.

At one moment they might be considering the conditions of a particular manufacturing industry, as would be the case in Great Britain; at the next those of one of the five or six widely separated timber areas, each having its own particular characteristics; the fishing interests of the Atlantic or of the Pacific; placer gold mining in the Yukon, copper smelting in British Columbia, silver mining at Cobalt, or the prospects of the new Porcupine country; the great agricultural, pastoral, dairying, and fruit industries; or immigration and settlement and their effect upon town and railway building. Indeed, there were few things connected with the life of Canada that the banker could afford to leave unstudied, and it naturally followed that a bank with an army of trained observers and a well-organized system for the intercommunication of information other than the facts which must appear in bank returns and ordinary correspondence was likely to have an advantage over those less well informed.

As to Bad Banking

Doubtless there was a considerable percentage of bad banking in Canada, as in other new countries, but he doubted whether banks in any country were as a rule more explicit in the establishment of credits or do so upon more complete information. Bank failures in Canada showed clearly that there was plenty of careless and unwarrantable banking; but, while he had referred to the system of only one particular bank, he believed that, as a rule, the Canadian banker had a very clear notion of what he regarded as good or bad banking, and that his relations with his customer were marked by a sensible blending of

Grand Trunk Pacific Investors

The construction of the new transcontinental railway—the Grand Trunk Pacific—is to-day opening up new towns that in the very near future will be large and important cities. Just as the advent of the pioneer transcontinental line—The Canadian Pacific—opened and built up divisional points such as Brandon, Regina, Calgary, Lethbridge, etc., so will the new line of the Grand Trunk make large divisional points of the towns we now offer for sale.

We have secured the agency from the GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY CO. for the towns mentioned below and the shrewd investors who can recognize the many advantages for investment in these towns at the prices of today, will share in the large profits that will accrue as a result of their rapid development. No other investment is so safe and profitable, and if you want to get your portion of the wealth Western Canada's development is creating, take advantage of this opportunity now before it is too late.

Prices of lots in all of these divisional points are $75, $100, $150, $200, $250 and $300 on easy monthly payments, no interest and no taxes till 1912, with a 5 per cent. discount for cash.

MELVILLE—The first Saskatchewan divisional point on the G. T. P. and the largest new town on the line between Winnipeg and Edmonton. Located in a rich agricultural district, an important railroad and distributing centre. Melville bids fair to become one of the important cities of Western Canada.

WATROUS—The mecca of the health seeker, situate near the shores of the famous Little Manitou Lake, and in the centre of one of the finest farming sections of Saskatchewan.

BIGGAR—The opportunity of opportunities, located in the heart of a wonderfully rich and fertile agricultural district, and with railway facilities that guarantee a future, being not only one of the most important Grand Trunk Pacific divisional points on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, but is the junction of the branch lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific to Battleford and Calgary, which will be hurried to completion at an early date. The C. P. R. runs through Biggar, and all C. P. R. trains stop there.

TOFIELD—The terminus of the branch line from Calgary, situate near the shores of the Beaver Lake. The discovery of natural gas and of clay, and having at its door several square miles underlaid with lignite coal, promise the development at Tofield of important manufacturing industries.

EDSON—The last prairie divisional point on main line of Grand Trunk Pacific, and the gateway to the Peace River Country. Rich in natural resources, Edson lots fulfill every requirement for safe and profitable investment.

REMEMBER THE PRICES, $75.00 to $300.00, and terms of one-tenth cash and balance in nine equal monthly payments—no interest.

In view of the great expansion of credit in Canada, the er of their available reserves was gravely important, and they were large enough to be also keenly interested in the financial condi- of the rest of the world, especially of London and New York. anada, the average, for many years, of actual cash held in gold egal tenders, as against all liabilities to the public, had been about er cent.

But, owing to the system of bank note issues, very little of this required for daily use, the tills of bank offices being filled with the 's own notes, which did not appear in its statements as cash ise they were not in circulation. Practically, the business across ounter, when not transacted with other paper instruments, was by means of this till money; the settlements of balances with banks were made in legal tenders, or by drafts on the chief com- ial centres.

As to Inspection and Audit

n Canada they had no system under which the annual statements nks were verified by independent auditors, nor had they, as in the d States, a system of Government bank examiners. At the on of the Bank Act in 1890 they resisted the attempt to introduce of these systems, because, in their opinion, they tended to ce in the public mind an assurance of safety which would cer- not be warranted by anything that external examination could plish. Recent failures, accompanied by false statements and criminal acts, had caused a widespread demand for some kind lependent examination, and, as they were at the moment engaged e of their decennial revisions of the Bank Act, the subject was f unusual interest in Canada. Facts showed that, in the main, who needed protection were the shareholders, and common sense hem that, so long as banks failed, shareholders must lose, and o inspection would prevent the making of bad loans, from which most failures arose. Audit had not prevented bad failures, and cord of Government inspection was worse. What, then, could o?

Canada and Its Neighbour

Ir. F. Hugh Jackson, in proposing a vote of thanks to Sir Edmund r for his interesting address, drew attention to the contrast of nking systems now in operation in Canada and the United States. nada they had a number of small banks, but connected with tions with ample resources, which automatically supplied them funds when required for crop movements. As he had said , public opinion was the best censor of banking practice, and it fficiently strong to keep every bank going on sound principles.

r Felix Schuster, in seconding, said that those present had d to a most interesting address, and one which was full of le advice from every point of view, while there was a good deal hich bankers in the United Kingdom might take to heart with age. He was struck by the usefulness of the issue of notes in f crop movements, by which an elasticity in finance was obtained which was most valuable. He felt it difficult to advise on the different systems of banking, and thought that it was a subject upon which each country must find its own salvation. He considered that the Canadian banks were in a most enviable position in being able to write down their premises account to such a large extent. He thought that the rule adopted, of borrowers only being allowed to have one bank, was one that could be followed out with great advantage in England.

Again, the fact of a customer producing his own balance-sheet when applying for a loan was another proposal he would like to see carried out in the United Kingdom. There could be nothing discreditable in a customer showing his banker an investigation of his accounts for any demand on the banker he might make. The payment of advances within one year was also a very sound banking principle. He inquired whether the savings banks deposits, which were received by banks, were held apart from other deposits, or if they formed part of the ordinary assets of the bank. The question of having an independent auditor was also one of great importance. He believed that an independent audit, although they could not safeguard the public altogether, would be of very great value to the institution itself.

Mr. W. R. Lawson said that what had appealed to him most about Canadian banking was the system of mutual inspection, and this he would like to see adopted by all banks in Great Britain.

EAST KOOTENAY LUMBER MILLS MERGER

Mr. J. S. Dennis, it is stated, is at the financial end of the East Kootenay lumber mills merger. Mr. Dennis is assistant to the second vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and resident at Calgary. He knows the West well, and during the past few years has given much attention to the development of the resources of eastern British Columbia. This lumber merger is not the only enterprise in which he is interested. For some years there has been a prospect of development of the power at Bull River Falls, not far from Cranbrook, and he has promised the money, $250,000, necessary to carry through. Only a short time ago announcement was made of a strong and influential company to develop land resources in the Columbia River Valley at Windermere, and Mr. Dennis was prominent in that.

The Norton Griffiths Company, Limited, is extending its interests in this part of Canada. This is the name of the original company, but with the securing of several large building contracts the Norton Griffiths Steel Construction Company, Limited, was organized. It is proposed to invest $100,000 in a clay proposition at Clayburn, near Mission Junction. There has been a pressed brick works at this place for some years, and the clay is of the finest for facing brick, for which there is a big demand in this city. The property belongs to the Maclure family and they will still retain a large interest.

The Norton Griffiths Company may also become interested in a railway to the Peace River country, and incidentally to its holdings in the Naas River country. An agitation has been started here for the construction of a line to the Peace River, so that the coast cities may secure some of the trade that will arise there.

Fire Ravages Timber

Damage estimated at $500,000 has been caused by forest fires at Squamish. The timber through which the flames fought their way, it is stated by officials of the provincial timber inspector's office, is one of the finest in British Columbia. The fire which is said to have originated near the limits of the Newport timber camp has almost wiped out the camps of that company, it is stated.

To Exploit Yukon Gold Fields

It is reported that the Consolidated Gold Co. of South Africa, acting under the advice of John Hays Hammond, has acquired a considerable interest in Yukon fields, and intends to float a company with a capital of $8,000,000.

An Increased Output

That the gold mines of the Yukon territory will produce more gold this season than taken out in any one of the past four years and, that the great $4,000,000 output of 1907 will be surpassed by the big harvest of yellow metal of this year, is the news brought down from the Northland by retiring Commissioner Alexander Henderson, K.C., who, with his wife and daughter, returned to Vancouver last month, on the steamer Princess Mary, after a long stay in the Yukon.

Missed

As the result of measures taken by the business men of Saskatoon to ensure an accurate census enumeration, over 2,000 sent in their names to the board of trade, nearly all of these claiming that they were missed by the regular enumerators.

A Projected Tunnel

A new project is on foot for the construction of a tunnel under the St. Lawrence in order to give better communication between Montreal and the rapidly growing south shore district.

The concluding series of auctions for the disposal of the Duke of Bedford's estates in Devonshire were begun at Plymouth on Tuesday, July 18, when pasture and arable land at Plymstock and Oreston sold at prices ranging from £80 to £190 an acre. Nineteen lots changed hands for a total of £10,610. It was announced that up to Monday evening £550,000 had been realised, including sales by private treaty.

The Breaking-Up of Estates

The Bretby Hall Estate, Burton-on-Trent, the seat of the Earl of Carnarvon and the ancestral home of the Chesterfields, was put up to auction at Burton recently. The property included the whole village of Bretby, in all 2,470 acres. The auctioneer said the Earl of Carnarvon's action was largely influenced by the growing desire of his tenants to become owners of their farms. The Hall, grounds, and park, seven farms and the small holdings, together with Bretby village, were offered in one lot and were withdrawn at £39,000, and the remaining farms were also withdrawn. Only a number of fields, fetching £2,745, were sold.

Greater London Railway

The Greater London Railway Bill, which provides for the construction of a railway round the outer part of northern London, for the purpose of tapping the traffic of the great trunk lines before it reaches the congested area, has now reached the House of Lords from the House of Commons, where it was passed in a slightly modified form. The Bill has been referred to the examiners and will shortly be taken into consideration.

New Governor of Mauritius

The King has approved the appointment of Major John Robert Chancellor, D.S.O., R.E., to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Mauritius, in succession to Sir Cavendish Boyle.

The Canadian Magazine for August contains an article by Professor Ira A. Mackay, entitled "Canada Not Independent," which is a reply to an article in the same magazine by John S. Ewart, entitled 'Canadian Independence." Professor Mackay makes a strong case against independence. "Saints and Smugglers" is the title of a charming sketch by H. M. Clark of a walking tour in Cornwall. Louise Hayter Birchall gives a novel impression of London, under the title "A City of Dreams." Other articles of excellent merit are "Mrs. Simcoe and Her Diary," by Emily P. Weaver; "The Passing of the Sailing Ship," by Chandos St. John Brenon; "Pope's Folly," by A. Wylie Mahon; "Seigneur Julien Du Buque," by Sipko Francis Rederus, and "Former Landmarks of Toronto," by Mrs. Forsyth Grant. There are some excellent short stories by A. Clark McCurdy, Frank Packard, Nina E. Bacon, and St. Clair Moor, all Canadian writers.

RED HERRINGS

To the Editor of The Week:

Sir,—The two daily papers have begun a discussion, that if prolonged may be made very interesting, upon the subject of the title of this letter. I know by experience the difficulty an editor has in finding subjects for his daily writings and here is a splendid subject, and judging by the daily mess dished up in their columns, consisting of reciprocity pie mixed with virtue and personalities a new subject would be hailed with delight. It certainly would be by the readers. But then these two scribes are not editors and possibly may not experience the difficulties that real editors suffer from, or at any rate do not consider it worth while to try to avoid them.

Now the red herring from egg to barrel offers a tempting subject in natural history, applied science, and social economy, while the metaphorical red herring should surely give a splendid opportunity for the display of editorial erudition in the pages of history both ancient and modern.

There seems to me to be a splendid specimen of the red herring ramping (if herrings may be said to ramp) right across Canada just now. Is not reciprocity itself a red herring drawn across the political path to distract the scent of Canadians from the trail of Laurier's naval policy? Surely it is conceivable that the wily premier knowing his weakness on the latter subject carefully arranged the international scheme to divert attention from it and to make it a matter of apparently smaller importance. As such it was a masterly piece of statecraft, and deserves to rank with the finest specimens that have ever been discovered, but it should not be successful, and in the struggle now approaching the naval policy of Canada should not be obscured by the other subject.

I am, etc.,

CHARLES ST. BARBE.

Victoria, B.C., 7th August, 1911.

AN AUGEAN STABLE

To the Editor of The Week:

Sir,—In common with other residents on this street I was presented with a brand new garbage can, accompanied by a sheet telling how all rubbish that could be burnt should be burnt and leaving only tins, etc., and ashes to be deposited therein, as a safeguard against the fly nuisance.

Now sir, on this street is a stable out of which every morning at least five horses are taken. The manure receptacle is of concrete but with no cover and there is always an equal quantity of manure lying there uncovered. Contents are removed about once a week. I use fly pads, fly coils, carbolic, and formaldehyde, but day and night we are pestered with these filthy pests.

I know you have a happy knack of "keeping on, keeping on," until nuisances of this kind are done away with. Please keep on in this. I am sure my fellow residents will join with me in a hearty vote of thanks if this eyesore and menace to health is abolished. I may say the name of the street is Burdette between Cook and Linden.

SANITAS.

Parliament Buildings,
August 7th, 1911.

To the Editor of The Week:

Sir,—Being an admirer of William J. Locke's writings, I should like to remind "Bohemian" that "The Usurper" and "Idols" are two of his earlier works.

In last Saturday's edition of your popular paper "Bohemian" states that Locke has deteriorated, mentioning the books named above as a proof. As both were written prior to "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne" the inimitable "Beloved Vagabond" and "Septimus" any lover of a good novel will admit Locke, instead of deteriorating, has advanced both in style and popularity.

Yours sincerely,

F. G. KENNY.

AMBITIOUS

"Well, James," said the clergyman to a labourer whom he was visiting, "what are you going to make of this youngster here, eh?"

James mysteriously extracts a dirty scrap of paper from the depths of an old tobacco pouch, and answers reflectively:—

"I be thinkin' of havin' him taught to write."

"Oh, of course, he must learn to write and to read," says the parson.

"I don't know so much about the readin'," remarked James reflectively. "Writin's the thing now, sir. Just you be so good, sir, as to cast your eye over that. Maybe you haven't seen it before."

The parson does as he is requested. It is but a short paragraph, clipped apparently from the corner of the county newspaper, and it runs as follows:—

"It is said that the late Mr. ———, the eminent author, made upwards of $325,000 by writing."

It was useless for the parson to say much. So he took his hat, smiled and departed, with a murmured, "Well, well!" which did not commit him to anything.

AN APT RETORT

It was at an afternoon concert, and in a row near the front sat a smartly dressed girl and the young man who deemed her the most precious jewel of the universe. Behind them sat a couple of the type of suburban concert-goers who came rather to discuss the audience than to listen to the music. "Look at that girl just in front of us," commented one in a very audible whisper. "She's shop assistant at L———'s. I should like to know what business she has at a gathering of this sort. And just look at her hat? She served me the other day with the one I am wearing, and I suppose she persuades herself that there is no difference between it and mine. I never——." The girl in front turned with a crimson face. "Oh, yes, madam there is a difference," she said, quietly; "mine is paid for."

The M.F. Corporation

ıe following extract from a Se- paper will prove of interest to oria automobilists. Mr. Harry re; of 1012 Yates street, is acting ıgent in Victoria for E-M-F, ınas Flyer, Marmon, Dominion, ders and Detroit Electric cars.

ınnouncement is formally made y by the E-M-F-Studebaker Cor- tion of Detroit of a new 1912 el fore-door thirty horsepower ng car. Equipped with the same r plant as the company's last "thirty," the machine's wheel has been lengthened four inches, h provides a roomier toppeau adds to the comfort of the r.

ll around, it is the classiest l ever turned out by the E-M-F ɔany and stands second to none s class. The extra long wheel the rake of the steering column, lrop frame, which puts the car the ground, still affording it e clearance, gives the 1912 pro- the torpedo effect that is so de- e to users of this type of ine.

ıere is a shipment en route to e at the present time, and Man- P. E. Sands, of the local branch e E-M-F Company, expects to delivery of cars the latter part s month. With only photo- s to work with, the sales force Seattle house has already piled large number of orders for the nachines.

st as soon as the demonstrator s, Manager Sands expects to e an enormous trade. With ab- ly every car within his reach the branch is well prepared to ter the 1912 trade. So heavy een the volume of business that Sands' allowance of cars from ctory was quickly used up, and had to be obtained from the nd branch.

ring the past week practically E-M-F agents in Western Washington came to Seattle to arrange for shipments of new cars. They all reported their 1911 business cleaned up and are anticipating a big season this year. The demand for the E-M-F product is steadily increasing throughout the Northwest and as a result the Detroit factory is preparing to accommodate the big trade.

"Additional buildings and added facilities has enabled the Studebaker corporation to greatly increase its output, and during the present year the big factories are expected to turn out in the neighbourhood of 40,000 E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars.

"Manager Sands says that with this enormous production he should have little difficulty in getting sufficient cars to supply the demand. During the past season it was a continual fight for more gasoline buggies, and he finally had to appeal to Western branch houses to help him out."

BISHOP AND COACHMAN

The late Archbishop Tait was driven by a coachman of the old-world sort, of whom Dr. Benson used to tell this good story.

One day a clergyman who called at the palace asked him whether he still had as much to do as ever. The answer was sublime.

"There's always a goodish bit doing, sir; but it has been a trifle easier since we took young Mr. Parry into the business." The Right Rev. Edward Parry had then recently been appointed Bishop Suffragan of Dover.

Another story he used to tell of a coachman will be new to many.

A gentleman living in the neighbourhood of Addington, finding that the stablemen were not in the habit of attending church, spoke to his coachman about it.

"They ought to go," he said.

"That's just what I say myself, sir," was the rejoinder. "I says to them, 'Look at me. I go, and what harm does it do to me?' "

The marriage of Miss Olive Dorothy Wynne Day, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Day, of Rockland avenue, and Captain Lestock, W. S. Cockburn, son of Dr. Cockburn, of Hamilton, Ont., was solemnized at the Church of Our Lord on Wednesday, the 9th.

The church had been beautifully decorated for the occasion with Shasta daisies, blue hydrangeas, asparagus fern and pots of palms.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a lovely gown of Liberty satin, with an over-dress of chiffon, embroidered in silver, and a yoke of Irish crochet; the train also was of satin-draped with chicon and caught up with knots of orange blossoms. She wore a tulle veil held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and maidenhair fern tied with satin streamers.

Miss Olive Day, sister of the bride, made a charming maid of honour, and the bridesmaids, Miss Lily Day (cousin), Miss Paula Irving, Miss Ross Arbuthnot, Miss Florence Gillespie. Their frocks were of pale blue Liberty satin with over-dress of pale blue marquisette beaded in silver, and long white tulle veils and knob caps. trimmed with rosettes of forget-me-nots. They carried dainty baskets of white sweet peas and maidenhair fern, tied with pale blue tulle.

The gifts from the groom were brooches with the initials of the Royal Canadian Artillery in gold with drops of turquoise.

Major Lindsay ably supported the groom, while Captain Gillan, R.C.A., Captain Stern, 5th Regiment, Mr. Spalding, 5th Regiment, and Mr. Scudmore, 6th Regiment, Vancouver, acted as ushers.

The groom's gift to the best man and ushers were very handsome silver cigarette cases.

After the ceremony a reception was held at "Derreen," the residence of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Day, mother of the bride, wore a handsome gown of corn flower blue brocade and a black tegal straw hat with white French plumes.

After receiving the congratulations and good wishes of their many friends, Captain and Mrs. Cockburn left by the afternoon boat for Seattle en route to Lake Hayden.

The bride's going-away costume was of biscuit Rajah silk with a sailor collar and cuffs of black and white striped silk and a burnt straw toque, with touches of black velvet and coral plumes.

The Impossible Accomplished

For the first time in history a motor car has climbed to the summit of Mt. Lowe. This hair-raising feat, probably the most dangerous motor trip ever made in Southern California, was accomplished by a White gasoline car last Tuesday.

Regarding the latter feat the Los Angles Sunday Times says, in part:

"The trip was made in the worst storm of the season. The rain fell in such sheets as to be almost blinding. Torrents of water and mud rolled down the mountain side, often threatening to sweep the little car and its occupants over the ledge and on to the rocks in the bottom of the canyon hundreds of feet below. Many times a slip of a few inches would have meant the certain death of every member of the party.

"The car went over the railroad bridges by 'bumping the bumps' from tie to tie. Several of these bridges are being remodeled by the railroad construction crews, who had removed the outer guard rails. Here slightest sideslip would have sen White and its crew to eternity, the ties were so slick with rain slipping seemed inevitable.

"The famous 'circular bridge' one of the worst points. The foot-board of the White hung the canyon 1500 feet below. structure is so dangerous tha trolley cars pass over it at the lo possible speed, and the curve sharp that the rear wheels of White car only lacked about inches of going off over the All the members of the party h a simultaneous sigh of relief whe end of the structure was f passed. The rest of the trip comparatively easy.

"Because of some bad was the return trip was not atte the same day, but the car and i cupants were brought down in Thursday, and all reached Los geles in good shape."

The reliable mountain cli White cars are for sale at 1218 V street. It is always a pleasu show a car of such exceptional ity. The White Garage—ca quality.

millinery the light, dressy-look- Tagal and Japanese straws are st in favour and are seen in lilac, mole-gray and dainty . Some hats of these straws contrasting brim-linings of t-hued straws. For example, a hat may have a brim lining of e-blue straw, or a black will a begonia-red lining, or, per- a white hat will have a black edged with green or red or Black lined or edged with , and vice versa, are popular nations.
present it is the smallest hats high hat, which is almost as absurd as to see a big woman in a tiny shape. It is a pity not to choose with discretion. There is such variety that everyone may be suited and be in the latest fashion at the same time.

Pure white hats are most popular. Many are seen in the evening at the restaurants and theatres. They are trimmed with flowers, foliage, plain or embroidered mousseline, all in dead white. Or they are covered with myriads of tiny white wings, no larger than a sparrow's, there is a sort of ladder of them, very quaint and original, as many as fifty are most hide the face. Milliners ying the headgear of the Bre- sants, as well as the cape of dy, Auvergne, and Limousin. are not sufficiently thought- ays to study their individual appearance in choosing a hat, ris Fashions. If the fashion e tall, small women seem to will add to their height and if they don an exaggeratingly used on one hat! Another idea is to trim these white hats with black velvet flowers, but on the whole the all-white are in the majority.

A gigantic dragon-fly adorned a stunning hat which came from a Paris maker. It was made of some sort of iridescent tissue that shimmered in the sunlight very like its prototype, the blues and greens, with a dash of pink or copper occasionally glancing through the blend, making it just the thing for the blue hat which it trimmed.

Enormous ribbon or straw bows tied very loose in a quartet or quintet of loose loops are among the popular things for the girls. An assortment of ribbons and bows for a single hat makes it really possible to have desirable variety in a quite limited number of summer hats.

Pearls are girl jewels par excellence, and a necklace of pearls is a frequent gift for a first ball, while a pearl cross has been supposed to be a protection from evil. A modern Indian novelist mentions the nine rows of pearls worn by a Hindu maiden, and the same jewel is worn by brides alike in the West and the East.

In the olden times the daughters of Hindu rajahs are said to have signified their choice of a husband by throwing round the neck of the chosen lover a chain of pearls and of uowers. At a recent high caste Indian wedding, when the rite of the "Sehra bande" or "Tying of the Veil" was observed, the Sareb or veil consisted of "strings of pearls" edged with a ruby fringe.

Turquoises are also jewels for girls. The forget-me-not azure of the stones is the symbolic colour of youth and hope. They are beautiful surrounded by diamonds and there is a pretty old saying that the wearer of a turquoise will never lack friends. Delicate-coloured gems such as peridots and tourmalines, chrysophrase and cornelian are also much in favour with the younger set of women.

The narrow black velvet band with jeweled clasp and with or without jeweled sides is much worn in Paris with the collarless or demi-decollette necks. It is the salvation of the woman whose neck shows wrinkles from advancing years or merely as a result of tight high collars. Every woman nowadays should bleach and massage her neck, for low collars are not only modish, they are extraordinarily comfortable; but in the meantime let her wear a velvet band of whatever width is most becoming. Nearly all the good shops carry them, but charming bands with tiny paste clasps and sides of superior design and workmanship are to be found in some of the smart millinery and frock importing houses.

According to recent Paris advices, belts are once more in fashion. Special favour seems to have been accorded to buffalo leather (peau velours), in mole, blue, or tobacco colour, both in kid and patent finish. In the newest models two colours of leather are used in combination. for instance, with narrow red strips quilted upon a white kid belt. In another very narrow belt (only 1½ inches wide) of navy leather there is inserted red leather for the length of 2½ inches. The leather or plain metal buckle matches the body of the belt.

Somewhat less stylish, but claiming attention, are belts of elastic velvet with narrow strips of thin leather of contrasting shade.

On wider descriptions of leather belts are seen fasteners of imitation precious stones. One of the latest novelties is a belt composed of quadrangular galalith stones connected by delicate gold chains or rods. The stones are hollowed out so as not to be too heavy, the shades preferred being green, blue, and red. The belt is finished off with a tassel of metal elastic belts woven in all colours to match the toilettes, are all the rage. The correspondent who noted them says:

"You may ask if we are again to have wasp-waists, well, all I can say is try the new belt of which I saw many at the Auteuil races recently, and you will see what a charming silhouette it gives, it moulds without compressing the figure. I see it sometimes in gold or silver tissue, also elastic, and in several tones of the metals. It is both an elegant ornament and a support to the figure, and is more original if accompanied by a cordeliere, or cord and tassels, tied at one side with ends of unequal length. Anything in the way of passemeterie is a craze at present, and this elastic belt with its ends of passementerie is a delightful novelty, so think our "elegantes" who have adopted it with enthusiasm."

A CANADIAN NAVY—In answer to a straight question from the Colonist, the Victoria Times has undertaken to state the policy of the Dominion Government in the matter of the Canadian Navy. It does so in the following words: "The policy of the present administration in a word is to construct in Canada and maintain and enlarge in accordance with the resources of the country a Navy for defensive purposes at Esquimalt." If this is the policy of the Dominion Government, it is the first time British Columbia has heard of it; up to now the impression created by the actalu doings, not by the pre-election promises of the Government, is that they favour the building of one or two cruisers somewhere in the East for display purposes on the Atlantic seaboard, and the purchase of one or two antiquated cruisers for exploitation purposes on the Pacific Coast. Nothing has been heard of a Navy at Esquimalt, except the occasional rumour which has drifted through from London, that Imperial exigencies might once more determine the Home Government to establish a Naval Base at Esquimalt. In making its very disingenuous statement, the Times is conveniently oblivious of the splendid fight which Mr. G. H. Barnard put up for the establishment of a Canadian Naval Base and of a Naval Shipyard at Esquimalt. It is not surprising that after such a misleading definition of the policy of the Government the Times should be just as wide of the mark in attempting to define the position of the Conservatives, which it declares to be the policy of "No Navy at all." As the Times has recently changed Editors, it may perhaps be excused for betraying such profound ignorance of the attitude of the Conservative Party throughout the Dominion and more particularly in British Columbia, where Premier McBride, voicing the opinion not only of the Conservative Party but of the public generally, declared time and again, that "the Government could not do enough in the way of a contribution to Imperial Defence to satisfy the people of this Province." It has always been an integral part of the Conservative programme, so admirably outlined by Mr. Barnard in the House, that shipbuilding yards and a Government Drydock should be established at Esquimalt and that a Pacific squadron of a type which could co-operate with the British Navy in any action, offensive or defensive, should be created on the Pacific Coast. The Times knows, just as well as any man, woman or child in the Province that this is so. It knows that these views have been enforced on every possible occasion by the Premier of the Province and Mr. Barnard, and it knows further that on no single occasion, either in or out of the House has their position been supported by the Hon. William Templeman, whose organ is now so busy misrepresenting the attitude of Conservatives that it cannot correctly represent the policy of its own party.

CHINESE QUESTION—If the subject of Oriental Immigration were not such a burning question in British Columbia there would be no excuse for dragging it into the Electoral campaign; but it is a vital question, one which is always with us; one which in the most intimate sense affects the well-being of every man, woman or child in the Province. Whatever difficulty the Liberal Press may find in discovering a clear-cut issue on other subjects, it can have no difficulty with respect to this. The Conservative party in British Columbia has never wavered. Premier McBride has put his foot down firmly and finally against Oriental Immigration, and against any modification of the restrictions governing the same. He is in favour of absolute exclusion, and is on record, both in and out of the House, to that effect. Mr. Barnard's position is precisely the same. On the other hand, Mr. Templeman has publicly announced that he is in favour of the repeal of the $500 Tax Law and the substitution of a "friendly agreement" or "amicable arrangement" between Canada and China, similar to that which exists between Canada and Japan. That this is the policy of the Laurier Government cannot be questioned, since it is endorsed by the local representative, and emphasised by several recent occurrences, not forgetting the important findings of Mr. Justice Murphy's Report. The Conservative Party in British Columbia will never consent to the repeal of the "head tax" except in favour of an absolute exclusion law. To fall back upon "amicable arrangements" would be to relinquish a legal weapon, and to rely upon the good faith of an Oriental Government. It is not necessary to speculate upon what this would be worth. To say the least of it, the exchange would be a bad bargain, although not worse, perhaps than some of the other bad bargains which the "Laurier" Government is making since it lost its business acumen. Even if the Japanese "arrangement" worked satisfactorily, which The Week ventures to doubt, it by no means follows that a similar "arrangement" would work with China. The density of the population, the social condition and the temperament of the people are so essentially different that the one case affords no criterion for the consideration of the other. It cannot be too clearly understood that the Conservative Party is not prepared to take any chances of a "Yellow Invasion," least of all is it prepared to barter the substance of a "legal enactment" for the shadow of an "amicable arrangement." There is little doubt that on this question "labour" is a unit.

COAL FAMINE—The Dominion Government has very properly met the fuel situation on the Prairies by temporarily removing the duty on coal. The object of this is probably two-fold; to prevent, if possible, a coal famine in the West, and to bring the Operators and Miners of the Crow's Nest District to their senses. As a temporary expedient, the move is a good one, although it is hardly meritorous because it was inevitable. What The Week cannot understand is, why the Government does not go to the root of the evil and throw open the Government coal lands which were reserved for this very purpose. And, by the way, it may be in order to mention that the reservation was n by the self same Clifford Sifton, at time when he was the idol of his party, when they were blessing all his wo which leaves them the less excuse for glecting to utilise the provision whicl furnished.

CLIFFORD SIFTON—One thin certain, that in the matter of b ing or cursing Clifford Si honours are easy. It is all very well the Liberal Press to taunt Conservative their alliance with a man whose met they have always detested, and on w they have time and again poured out vials of their wrath. The obvious reto that for many years Sifton was the of the Liberal party; the strong man o Administration; the one man who d do no wrong, and whose immigr policy, according to the Liberal Catec brought salvation to Western Canada. Week has no apologies to offer for the tude which it always assumed toward "Napoleon of the Prairies," but it least conceivable that he may be as in opposing Reciprocity as he was i stand which he took on the great po questions which came before the H when he was a Minister. At any rate, the defection of fourteen of the le Liberals of the Dominion he is in company now.

BISHOP PERRIN—The Week in the many congratulations have been offered to the Bish Columbia on his preferment to Bishopric of Willesden. It has on so occasions, referred to the work of B Perrin in this diocese, and the high mation in which he is held by the com ity at large, that it would be superfluo say more than that he will leave Vi with the respect of everyone who k him, and the admiration of all who had an opportunity of coming into touch with his administration of dio affairs. TESTIMONIAL

The concerns who are the largest users of Motor Trucks buy WHITE Trucks. Why?

Mr. Sloane, of W. & J. Sloane, carpetings, rugs and interior decorations, tells why he bought WHITE Trucks, in the following letter:

New York, Jan. 16, 1911.

Gentlemen:—

Replying to your letter of the 14th inst., our fleet of twelve (12) WHITE Gasoline Delivery Vehicles, consisting of eight (8) three-ton trucks, two (2) one-and-a-half-ton trucks, the 1,500-lb. special delivery wagon and the 500-lb. sample delivery wagon, are giving satisfactory service. The exceptional economy of the WHITE Truck in gasoline consumption has strengthened our good opinion of it, arrived at in August last, when exhaustive tests were conducted by us with several types of power trucks.

As you are doubtless aware, we have abandoned horses altogether and adopted trucks for our delivery service. This was done at the beginning of a very busy season, and the fact that the WHITE Trucks were able to give satisfactory service under such conditions speaks exceedingly well for them.

The unfailing courtesy shown at all times by the representatives of the WHITE Company in their dealings with us, has been a subject for favourable comment throughout our organization.

Very truly yours,

W. SLOANE, President.

W. & J. Sloane have bought three WHITE trucks since then for their San Francisco, Cal., establishment.
