Possible Oil Fields On Graham Island

Specially Written for the Vancouver World by R. C. Campbell-Johnston, M. E.

The sciencc of geology for comparative analogy when searching for minerals and oils is an essential qualification to the mining engineer devoting his whole life's energies to his profession, and creates the dividing line between his organized work and that of the unsophisticated plunger. The engineer must formulate in his mind a theoretical basis as to how the oil and minerals could originate and be stored up by Nature, previous to any practical tests made by drill-boring to bear out and demonstrate his expectations. Scientists to-day regard coal and petroleum as having a common genesis, namely, from organic matter, such as vegetable growth, club-mosses, seaweeds, and even animal life, as protoplasm, fish and such like. Under one condition, name ly, fresh water lagoons with perhaps tropical climate, coal will ensue out of rank vegetation of forests and undergrowth, whereas under the waters of salt-water lagoons, where the heavy alkali ingredients have impeded the generation of evaporation of hydorcarbon gases, then instead of coal, oil wells and pools result. When a body decays the nitrogenous portions forming lean flesh and muscles decompose first and more rapidly, leaving the fat and hydro-carbon tissues in the form of corpse-wax, found in so many ancient tombs, or ozokerite (natural paraffine wax), or as oil shales, to probably be at a later period softened and liquefied into flowing oil by tertiary volcanic action in its vicinity, and caused to follow the laws of gravity, flow along the dip of upheaved strata, and sink down from many parts to a common centre. From the above remarks, it is apparent that although coal and oil may be in close proximity, yet the oil need not be derived or distilled over from the coal unless the base is asphaltum; however, with a paraffine base the oil can be derived directly from organic matter.

Another frequent attribute of oilfields also is their storage in and under stratified rocks as sandstones of tertiary period mostly eocene when marine and plant life were superabundant.

On Graham Island, one of the Queen Charlotte Group, there exist many factors to cause the practical geologist to emphatically advise capital to instigate a systematice organized search for oil, having in the first instance mapped out the dips, trend and topography of the outcropping surface rocks, to locate and avoid the existence of recent intrusive volcanic rocks either actually showing or known to be close at hand from the burnt appearance or abnormally uptilted character of these sedimentaries. Coal seams of the Cretaceous period in geology exist, in situ and possibly the remnants of metamorphosed coal-bearing strata of carboniferous era. Tertiary volcanic intrusive rocks occur along the west coast-line, also at Rose Spit, Meyer Lake, Point Ball, Lawn Hill, and around the Skidegate Indian village, extending north to the head of the Tel-El River, these among other places. On the eastern shore otherwise there is a blanket of Eocene stratified formation, overlaying the Cretaceous sedimentary rocks, and stretching out apparently throughout the whole with of Hecate Staits to the fringe of the mainland. These straits are comparatively shallow, forming good halibut ground, and permitting their waters to be easily troubled in a pale and worked into monstrous ground swells. This was undoubtedly, during a former time, an inland sea having a rim of cretaceous rocks, acting as the eastern margin with westerly dip, outcropping on Banks, Porcher, Pitt, Dundas (two) and Zayas Islands. On the west of Graham Island a stupenduous subsidence of the present floor of the ocean, rather than an elevation of the land, at a few miles out has created a depth of six hundred and more fathoms, the home of the black cod. This floor suggested to form part of the lost continent of Lemuria, reaching far away into the Indian Ocean and even to Eastern Africa, a supposition gathered from corresponding fauna found on the isolated islands of these oceans.

Tar rocks and sands as bitumen stuff occur in the north-west parts of Graham Island, and ozokerite is floated in by storms from the sea, broken off presumably by its restless force from the sunken depths, where sections of the down-throw of the rock formation occur. All these enumerated phenomena auspiciously point to the present of the subterranean oil fields somewhere in these parts. This is likewise corroborated by the discovery of oil to the north in Alaska at Katella, the highest boundary geologically of this special basin.

Piecing these data together and drawing a deduction to act on, all these would lead the writer to advise that bore holes be put down, preferrably on the westerly shallow shores of Hecate Straits on the east side of Graham Island, as distant as possible from outbursting crests of the volcanic rocks. The porous Eocene sandstones, capped by water and oil-proof conglomerates should carry oil in underground pools, without affording cracks, faults or broken anticlines to permit or offer opportunities for a leak from these deep seated flows, however small the opening during hundreds of thousands of years to drain off the entrapped oils.

Rev. F. W. Kerr Married.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Grady, Miami, Missouri, on the evening of Wednesday, June 26th, when their daughter Mamie, was united in marriage to Rev. F. W. Kerr of Prince Rupert, B. C. Miss Grady is a graduate of the State University of Missouri, and was attended by seven girl graduates of her year. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Dr. Black, president of Missouri Valley College. In Chicago the bridal couple were met by friends of the groom and escorted to the Triangle Club, where a marriage banquet was prepared. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr are visiting the groom's parents in Berlin, and will return in a couple of weeks to take up their work in Prince Rupert.—Toronto Globe.

Redistribution Bill Next Session.

From the present plans, the Dominion government will introduce and put through at the next session of Parliament the Redistribution Bill based upon the new census. It is probable that the bill, after being presented will be referred to special committee of the House. When the last Redistribution Bill was before the House, not a great deal of opposition was encountered outside the committee.

Premier Borden's Famous Speech.

Before the largest gathering of British parliamentarians and public men ever assembled at the Colonial Institute, London, Hon. R. L. Borden, Canadian Premier, delivered an historic address that is the talk of the metropolis. Mr. Borden, as guest responding to the toast of honor, declared that Canada stood for one king, one flag, one empire, one navy, and that all Canadians sprang from races that have never yet failed to realize their responsibilities.

Severe Scalds Cause Death of Jap.

Unisuje Kakid, a Japanese employed at Naden Harbor, died in the General Hospital, Prince Rupert, from severe scalds, the result of falling into a vat of boiling water

These notes are penned not to create any untoward local excitement and reckless speculation, but in a cold blooded way to lay the evidence procurable openly on the table, as to the chances for a successful enterprise, and to give business men an opportunity to weigh the pros. and cons. camly, and if they will to procure drills to bore through the supper strata with justified expectations of discovering oil at the greater depth where it is possible for the petroleum to lie hid.

Mr. Campbell-Johnston's Advice.

Mr. R. C. Campbell-Johnston, the well-known mining expert, may be considered an authority on Graham Island, and his statement (which appears in full on the first page) that oil is likely to be found on the east coast of this island deserves serious consideration. The east coast is a much easier place to work than the west coast, and we look for some one with capital and courage to put in a drill, say at the Tel-El River or at any point that may be decided on, and try his luck.

Prince Rupert's Welcome.

Premier Sir Richard McBride and Hon. W. J. Bowser, K. C., arrived in Prince Rupert last Monday, when an address of welcome was presented by the citizens. In the evening Sir Richard and the Hon. Mr. Bowser addressed a large public meeting in the Westholme Theatre. On Tuesday the party visited Hazelton, on Wednesday Granby Bay, and Stewart on Thursday, returning to Rupert on Friday morning en route south. Mr. William Manson, M. P. P., endeavoured to get Sir Richard and Hon. Mr. Bowser to visit the Islands, but it was found impossible for them to come over at this time, owing to important business, necessitating their quick return to Victoria.

Several stalks of oats, 5 ft. 9 in. in length and well headed, were on view at the "Islander" office during the week, grown on the ranch of Messrs. Fairbairn & Johnston on Maude Island. Strawberries over three inches in circumference were plucked on the same ranch, and proves conclusively that the soil is rich enough for the successful culture of small fruit.

Mr. A. E. McMaster, general agent for the G. T. P. R., Prince Rupert, who was accompanied by Mrs. McMaster, came over on business and returned again on the "John" last Monday.

The Princess Ena arrived at Aliford Bay on Tuesday with 1000 barrels of cement and another gasoline boat for the Fisheries Co.

The Fisheries tug Fulsom left for Rupert on Tuesday for supplies and powder, returning Friday.

Mr. S. D. Horner returned last Monday from a business trip to Vancouver.

Mr. Bunning of the Westholme Lumber Co., Captain Parsons of the Edrie, and B. J. Russell, are sailing on the "John" today from Aliford Bay. Keen regret is expressed on all sides at Mr. Russell's departure, but it is hoped that he will shortly return.

Walter Dass left on Wednesday for Lockport to do assessment work on his claims in that vicinity.

Fishing Station For West Coast.

Capt. H. S. Cameron of Vancouver, who has been cruising in his power sloop Gilford on the west coast of Graham Island during the past few weeks, arrived here on Thursday. Capt. Cameron is interested in the fishing industry and was looking for the best location to erect a station, comprising of a cannery, saltery and cold storage, on the west coast. Athlow Bay, Port Lewis, Otard Harbor, and Cave Creek were all visited and the Captain has selected Athlow Bay as the most suitable place for the station. He holds all the fishing rights from Rennel Sound to Frederick Island, which he considers are the best fishing grounds on this coast. The Captain should know as he has had many years of experience as a practical fisherman on this coast, being connected with well-known companys and until recently was master of the trawler Kingsway, of the Standard Fish Co. The capital of the new company has all been subscribed in Vancouver, and it is expected that operations on the new station will be commenced this fall.

Minister Of Railways Visit North.

The Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of railways for the Dominion, accompanied by Mr. H. S. Clements, member for the district, paid a visit to Prince Rupert and made the journey up the line to the end of steel. The Minister had a busy time during his visit, which was his first to this end of the national transcontinental railway.

Picnic At Robertson Island.

Miss Cameron was the guest of honor at a picnic given by the ladies of Queen Charlotte on Thursday afternoon at Robertson Island. The day was ideal for such an occasion and the large party had a glorious time roaming over the beautiful island. About six o'clock the company gathered together and partook of an excellent lunch, returning home later in the evening after a very pleasant outing.

E. M. Sandilands, government agent, went out on the "John" last week on a business trip to Massett and other points.

Frank D. Rice, P. L. S., came in on a visit from his survey camp at the Tel-El River during the week.

Capt. C. H. Nicholson, superintendent of the steamship service of the Grand Trunk Pacific on this coast, made the round trip on the "John" last week. The Captain was accompanied by Mrs. Nicholson.

Mr. Wilfred V. Doughty, managing director for the B. C. Fisheries, Ltd., and T. Forbes, arrived on the "John," bringing ten fishermen for the Edrie.

Chas. S. Trask of San Francisco, a black sand expert, went up the coast this week to examine the deposits in the vicinity of Cape Fife.

Messrs. Smith and McCulloch of New Westminster, passed through on the "John" last week for Lockport, where they will survey several mineral claims.

Miss Carr, an artist on the staff of the G. T. P. R., made the round trip on the "John" last week for the purpose of sketching several of the beauty spots in this inlet.

Article XVIII.---Indian Reservations.

The settlers do not get their land for nothing, and the money they pay to the government to obtain these lands is also for the Indians' benefit as well as for the benefit of the white man, for it is used to provide roads, bridges, and all the accessories of civilization, which can be used and are being used by the Indians as well as the whites. The whites therefore have taken nothing from the Indian, but on the contrary have assisted them generally in all matters, and they are as well protected as the whites, yet at absolutely no cost to themselves. A writer has said there is absolutely no mutuality in the arrangement between the government and the Indians, and there never was, for what the Indians are supposed to have surrendered was something they never actually had, for freedom to rove over a country can hardly be called a right, especially when that freedom led to constant warfare with others claiming equal freedom. Another writer has said in respect to Indian reservations it is of the utmost importance that the rights of the province in respect to these shall be finally determined. Every one at all familiar with the facts knows that the area of the reserves in this province is out of all proportion to the number of Indians in trust for whom the Dominion government holds them. All of these reserves are valuable tracts of land and some of them are the most valuable in the province. By allowing these lands to remain uncultivated and idle is neither profitable to the Indians themselves nor to the country in which they live. If they do not wish to utilize the lands they now control, why do they clamor for more? They are not acting on behalf of themselves, but on the advice of those that in return receive remuneration from the Indians and thus the advice given cannot be disinterested and unprejudiced, and the longer they are enabled to induce the natives to agitate for the control of the land the longer will these men be able to obtain the Indians' hard-earned money. I may be asked how do these people obtain the Indians' money? From personal knowledge I know that subscription lists have been opened in most of the Indian villages on this coast and hundreds of dollars have been subscribed to defend the Indians in their plea that they are the rightful and prior owners of this province generally. Mr. R. E. Gosnell puts the matter plainly when he says that the Indians are either British subjects or they are not. If they are British subjects they come under British law, and that law does not recognize any such title to lands as the Indians are setting up. If they are not British subjects and the crown has no title to the land they remain an independent people. It is a fundamental principle of British law that the title of all land is vested primarily in the crown. If the Indians are therefore subjects they must hold their land under the crown and cannot hold it by any other title. We have taken possession of the country; our possession has been recognized by all the nations of the earth; but we find in the country an aboriginal race. We are bound by every instinct of humanity to deal generously with that race. They have not been treated badly. Indeed they have been used exceedingly well. They have beeen interfered with as little as possible. But present conditions cannot continue as the inexorable advance of civilization makes that impossible. While therefore we deny their right to the land which they cannot occupy to any beneficial extent and purpose, we admit in the fullest degree their right to liberal treatment and trust that it will be accorded to them."

The upshot of the whole matter is that we are asked to look upon the Indians as the owners of these lands whereas there never was amongst themselves anything approaching ownership, there was only occupation; consequently an Indian had no land to sell.

Large Shipments from Whaling Stations

The steamer Gray, Captain Shadforth, of the Canadian Northern Pacific Fisheries, went south recently with the largest cargo of products yet shipped from the whaling stations on the islands.

They composed 289 drums of ordinary and 327 barrels of sperm oil from Naden Harbor, 200 drums and 159 barrels from Rose Harbor. Among other consignments were 1,574 sacks of fertilizer from Naden Harbor station. The Gray was loaded to her gunwales, the trip being especially successful on this occasion.
