Correspondence

The Chairman read to Senate a letter received from Mrs. W. M. Keenlyside expressing appreciation for the tribute paid to her late husband Dr. W. M. Keenlyside.

October 15, 1986

Correspondence (continued)

The Chairman read to Senate the following letter from the Honourable Anthony J. Brummet, Minister of Education, addressed to Dr. McKie and copied to the UBC Senate:

"Since my appointment to the Education portfolio, it has come to my attention that UBC is in the process of announcing additional requirements for degrees in both the elementary and secondary teacher education programs.

While UBC may consider it their prerogative to set graduation requirements, I am surprised that you have gone ahead with the scheme in view of the serious reservations that have been expressed by the BCTF, the BCSTA and the Ministry. The addition of a full year at the elementary level and a significant increase in the time requirement for secondary degrees seem to be ill-timed.

Recent meetings with the BCTF, the BCSTA and discussions with members of my Ministry lead me to the conclusion that further discussion and study are necessary before the new requirements are enacted.

I hope we can take the necessary steps towards consensus as soon as possible. I expect I may hear from you soon."

The Chairman informed Senate that he had written to the Honourable R. Fraser, Minister of Post Secondary Education, reminding him that there had been extensive consultation with the BCTF, the BCSTA and the Ministry. He also reminded the Minister that before the proposals were presented to Senate he personally had consulted the Minister and his colleagues and the Deputy Minister and colleagues in the Ministry of Education. He stated that at that time the move had been greeted with great enthusiasm. The Chairman concluded that prior to that there had been very extensive consultation over a period of almost five years, including committees and subcommittees of the bodies referred to and he felt that it was important that Senate understood that the consultation had been quite profound.

October 15, 1986

Chairman's remarks

Dr. Strangway stated that proposals with respect to the operating grants through the funds for excellence program had been prepared and submitted in time for the October 15 deadline.

The Chairman informed Senate that a booklet called "UBC Engine of Recovery", describing some of the activities at UBC, had been prepared and would be distributed to members of Senate.

Dr. Strangway noted that as President he is required to prepare annual reports. He stated that his reports would be in a different format to those previously published and that his first report would include an in depth report on the library's history, background, and the many contributions made by individuals, and would also cover the issues and problems facing libraries and universities.

The President reminded Senate that Open House would take place in March 1987 and that all Faculties would be participating.

Dr. Strangway stated that the President's Task Force on Liaison, Recruiting and Admissions had held its first meeting and anticipated that recommendations would eventually come forward for the attention of the Senate Admissions Committee.

Dr. Elder noted that since the motion approved by Senate at the previous meeting stated that in the absence of the President the Vice-President Academic should serve as Chairman of Senate, the only occasion when the Vice Chairman would be called upon to chair meetings of Senate would be in the absence of both the President and the Vice-President Academic.

Board of Governors and that letters of thanks be sent to the donors.

CarriedTributes CommitteeProposal to revise eligibility for emeritus status for early retirees

Dr. Dennison, Chairman of the Tributes Committee, presented the following report:

"Present Policy - Under current Senate policy, early retirees must be a minimum of sixty years of age and have at least ten years of service to the University to qualify for emeritus status.

Proposed Policy - Early retirees will be eligible for emeritus status with a minimum of seventy "points", in a combination of age and years of service. For example, an individual aged 55, with 15 years of service, would now qualify for emeritus.

Under the present circumstances there have been several expressions of concern over the ineligibility for emeritus of individuals with twenty or more years of service but less than sixty years of age at the time of retirement.

October 15, 1986

Reports of Committees of SenateTributes CommitteeProposal to revise eligibility for emeritus status for early retirees

It is in the interests of the University to make early termination agreement packages as attractive as possible to those considering a decision of this kind. The present policy creates a great deal of dissatisfaction for many members of the University community with appointments of long standing.

The Senate Tributes Committee is prepared to make this policy retroactive to 1980 for those affected."

Dr. Dennison ) That the proposed new policy be Dr. Tennant ) approved by Senate.

In the discussion that followed it was suggested that the minimum of 10 years service contained in the present policy should be retained in the proposed policy.

In amendment:

Ms. Arthur ) That early retirees will be eligible Dr. Birch ) for emeritus status with a minimum of 10 years service and a minimum of seventy "points", in a combination of age and years of service.

The motion, as amended, was put and carried.

Ad hoc Committee to Review Appeals Procedures

Dr. Stewart, Chairman of the Committee, presented the following report:

"At the January 1986 meeting of Senate an ad hoc committee was established "to inventory procedures for dealing with student appeals and, if appropriate, to recommend campus-wide procedures to be adopted, in addition to allowing each Faculty and School to maintain procedures distinct to that Faculty or School." This followed a request from the Senate Committee on Appeals on Academic Standing for such a review in its annual report to Senate. The original request did not include the words "if appropriate", which Senate in its wisdom inserted in the motion that was passed.

Reports of Committees of SenateAd hoc Committee to Review Appeals Procedures (continued)

In its report the Senate Appeals Committee also expressed concern about the large number of cases that reached it in which the decision being appealed turned on the exercise of academic judgement. Its term of reference state that it "has no jurisdiction where the sole question raised in an appeal turns on the exercise of academic judgement by a Faculty." Although this matter was not a part of the motion that set up the ad hoc committee we nonetheless gave it some consideration.

We asked all Deans to provide us with an account of the appeal practices that are followed in their Faculties and, further, asked for their views on the effectiveness of current practices. We found that there is, indeed, a wide variation in the practices followed in different Faculties. In approximately half the Faculties the procedures are what might be called informal. That is not to say that they are casual but rather that problems and disagreements are handled on an individual basis at several levels. Those that cannot be resolved at the instructor/student level are dealt with by the Department Head (or Director) and then, if the problem remains unresolved, by a responsible person in the Dean's Office, either the Dean or an Assistant or Associate Dean. If the problem still has not been resolved the student is advised of his/her right to appeal to the Senate Committee on Appeals on Academic Standing. The practices described above are in place in the Faculties of Agricultural Sciences, Arts, Dentistry, Forestry, Graduate Studies, and Science and seem to be working well, as far as we can judge.

There are a number of other Faculties that follow practices similar to those outlined above but, in addition, have standing committees that deal with appeals of certain kinds. Appeals of denial of eligibility to continue in a program are handled by standing committees in both Applied Science and Commerce and Business Administration. The Faculty of Education has a Committee on Admissions, Standings, and Courses that handles appeals, with a separate committee being struck for each appeal. (We were informed that the Faculty of Education is now establishing a new appeals committee.)

The Faculty of Law has an Examinations Committee that reviews an appeal of assigned standing, the terms of the committee being described in the Faculty's Manual of Examination Practice. It should be noted that the Faculty of Law is unique among Faculties at U.B.C. in basing failure on year-average rather than on failed courses.

The Faculty of Pharmaceutical Sciences has a Revisions Committee to which a student may appeal. Unlike the case in other Faculties such an appeal follows an appeal to the Dean.

The Faculty of Medicine has no formal review committee but has a student Internal Affairs Officer (ombudsperson) to whom students are encouraged to go for help in resolving problems and disagreements.

October 15, 1986

The most formal set of appeal procedures are those of the School of Nursing. The School's nine page document entitled Policies and Practices for Student Appeals gives a detailed account of the steps to be taken within the School when an appeal is launched.

Our committee, like the Senate Appeals Committee, was struck by the way in which the appeal process varies from Faculty to Faculty. We have concluded, however, that there is nothing to be gained by forcing or, indeed, encouraging the use of uniform campus-wide procedures. Each Faculty seems to have developed a procedure that meets its needs and works reasonably well. It should be remembered, too, that the nature of an appeal in a professional faculty may be quite different from those of other Faculties.

The Senate Appeals Committee expressed some concern about the number of appeals that reach it that turn solely on the question of academic judgement, a matter that its terms of reference preclude it from considering. The Committee can only allow an appeal "where it decides that the decision has been arrived at through improper or unfair procedures, and that as a result a wrong decision on the merits has or may have been arrived at." While our committee does not feel that the number of appeals reaching the Senate Committee is unmanageable or, considering the size of the University, inordinately large, it would nonetheless save time and effort for all concerned if appellants were advised at an earlier stage of the limits that are placed on the committee by its terms of reference. It is true that the appellant receives a copy of the Senate appeal regulations spelling out the questions of academic judgement and improper or unfair procedures but this occurs only after the appeal is launched; the Calendar description of the appeal procedure includes no such statement. We believe that aggrieved students could benefit from the help of student ombudspersons and class representatives, provided the latter were familiar with the practices of the particular Faculty involved in the case and, with respect to the present concern, with the terms of reference of the Senate Committee on Appeals on Academic Standing.

One other matter that was drawn to the Committee's attention was the question of time limits on appeals, limits that have not been strictly enforced by the Senate Appeals Committee in the past. We decline to give advice in this matter except to enjoin the Committee to be as consistent as possible in this regard.

In conclusion we recommend:

1. That no attempt be made to impose campus-wide appeal procedures.
2. That efforts be made, primarily by divers student representatives, to acquaint prospective appellants with the terms of reference of the Senate Committee on Appeals on Academic Standing.
3. That this committee be discharged."

October 15, 1986

Reports of Committees of SenateAd hoc Committee to Review Appeals Procedures (continued)

Dr. Stewart     ) That the report be accepted.
Mr. McMillan    )

In response to a query, Dr. Stewart stated that it had been suggested that student members of Senate might take the responsibility of disseminating information by contact with the various student representatives in the Faculties.

In response to a further query Dr. Stewart stated that in many cases Faculties did not have published appeal procedures.

It was suggested that perhaps the Deans of the Faculties should be responsible for providing students with information concerning appeal procedures.

In responding to a question as to whether the committee had considered publishing the Statement of Policies and Procedures for Senate Appeals on Academic Standing in the Calendar, Dr. Stewart stated that the committee had not come to grips with that question.

In amendment:

Dr. Stager        ) That the report be accepted and that Ms. Branson      ) the Statement of Policies and Procedures for Senate Appeals on Academic Standing be published in the Calendar.

MEMORIAL MINUTE

BARRY MAH (1960 - 1986)

Barry Mah, a former student representative on the Senate from the Faculty of Commerce and Business Administration died in tragic circumstances on September 11, 1986.

During his student years, Mr. Mah contributed a great deal to his own Faculty and to student affairs generally at the University. He was an ideal student in many respects in that he both gave and received all of the best which a university experience can provide.

Barry Mah also participated in public affairs as a delegate to the leadership convention of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada and hoped to enter political life sometime after graduation. He ran for election to the Alma Mater Society executive and became actively involved in numerous campus organizations.

Mr. Mah served on the Senate in 1984-85 and met his responsibilities with dedication and enthusiasm.

Barry Mah was an active, energetic, and involved representative of the student body. His promising career was terminated in most tragic circumstances. To his parents and to other members of his family the Senate of this university extends its deepest sympathy.

Dr. Dennison	)	That the memorial statement for Dean Lusztig	)	Barry Mah be spread on the minutes of Senate and that a copy be sent
