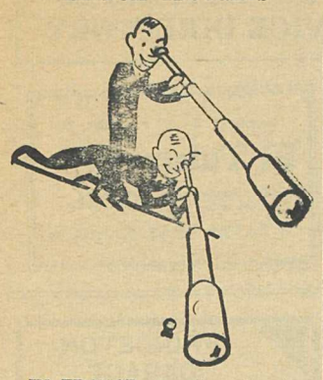
PROSPECT and— —RETROSPECT

RANDOM THOUGHTS



IN FRANCE the other day they sent Premier Laval back to office with an encouraging majority. In France it is always nice to have the substantial approval of the small silent rulers, for in France the nature of the constitution makes the life of any government a precarious one. But the significance of this vote of approval went far beyond the peasant gossip of the soft-toned langue d'or and the more virile langue d'oc. It may well be that the frugal peasants builded better than they knew.

It may well be that in the caloused hands of the Marseilles vinter and the nimble fingers of the Paris gamester hung the balance of civilization, that the ballots, unwisely cast may become bullets of vengeful destruction; or they may save an anxious world from that fate.

The turn of events may prove that France holds the key to the solution of the vexed state of Euro-African affairs; and if it does the unsuspecting peasants may have turned the lock.

The actions of the individual, in relation to his responsibility to society, may have an import far beyond his conception. In this light it is not hard to perceive how God sees every sparrow fall.

OBITUARY

NYE

A wide circle of friends in Hedley and Princeton received as a distinct shock news of the death of Mrs. Maude Nye, for many years a resident of the valley, and former nurse at Princeton Hospital. The end came with little warning.

Born Maude Beale, the late Mrs. Nye came from England with her parents in 1913. In 1930 she married Mr. Harry S. Nye. They resided at Allenby for a few years, and then moved to Anyox returning to Hedley in the spring of this year.

Mrs. Nye suffered a long illness at Anyox in 1934, which left her health impaired, but her sudden passing was unexpected.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon from Hedley United Church, Rev. C. H. Ballard officiating.

Mrs. Nye is survived by her husband and parents, all residing at Hedley.

HUTCHINGS

Death occurred Thursday at the Princeton Hospital of J. H. Hutchings, aged 26. He had been employed for some months at Camp 410, where he was first aid man. He was a native of London, Eng.

SMITH

Death occurred Tuesday night at the family residence of Estella Pauline Smith aged 29, wife of Mr. John Smith and a resident of Princeton for many years. She leaves two children. a boy, 8, and a girl, 6. The funeral was held on Friday.

A chip of steel flying from his chisel, struck Angus Nicholson in the right eye, narrowly missing causing seriousi injury.

Wallace Holds Garcia To Draw Wednesday

GORDON WALLACE, clever Vancouver boxer, earned a draw with dusky Ceferino Garcia in their ten round battle Wednesday night. The Canadian welter champ finished strongly to offset the early advantage of the rugged Filipino who recently floored Barney Ross. The decision was unanimous.

MATT SHAW ARRESTED AT PRINCETON

Princeton Police Take Vigorous Action When Agitator Appears

BAN COMMUNISM

Regina Strike Leader's Plan To Speak Thwarted

Found guilty in Princeton Police Court Wednesday, on a charge of vagrancy, Matt. Shaw Regina camp strike leader, was sentenced to the four days he had spent in jail and given suspended sentence of ten days. He was ordered to leave town on the first train.

MATT SHAW, prominent in the recent Regina camp strike rioting, and under heavy bail in connection with that incident, finds himself doubly involved with the law as he awaits trial in Princeton lockup on a technical charge of vagrancy.

He was arrested shortly after stepping off the westbound train at Princeton on Sunday morning, and is charged with obstructing peaceful passage, under section 238e of the Code.

His detention is in line with the openly avowed policy of the authorities to vigorously frustrate any attempt at new Communistic activity in Princeton where it has in the past three years presented a difficult problem Shaw was advertised to address an open air meeting under C.L.D.L. auspices Sunday afternoon.

Shaw is endeavoring to secure assistance from his organization in combating the charge. When he was arraigned before the Magistrate on Monday he sought an adjournment, which was granted.

Constable Faced Antagonistic Crowd

Shaw's arrest on the platform of Princeton depot on Sunday morning had all the elements of a drama; but none occurred.

Eyewitnesses state that a crowd of about thirty sympathizers had gathered at the depot to greet the agitator-orator. He was in the middle of an admiring circle when a short, slight figure in khaki and green approached and, edging his way through the crowd, asked what the excitement was. The tall, well-appearing young man met his gaze with a stare of blank surprise.

The officer fired a few rapid questions at him—"What's your name? What is your business here? Where did you come from? and the like.

The stranger replied that he was Matt Shaw from Regina, and he was going to address a meeting here.'

Shaw did not see his point of view, and in a few minutes he was placed under

Relief Recipients Being Classified

GERRY McGEER may be threatening the livelihood of the parsons by making Vancouver a sinless town, but Donald Saunders former Princeton resident and son of Mr. J. D. Saunders hasn't noticed it.

What he did notice, however, when he suddenly looked up from his work as a clerk in the Fisher Drug Store, East Broadway, was a useful-looking automatic. He paid rapt attention to it, too, while the other man in the drama scooped up the contents of the cash register.

This is the second time in a year this store has been held up. The previous time Don had just left when the bandit entered, and he wrote home that he was sorry he missed it. This time he was strangely silent on the point.

YALE FAILS TO CLIMB ON THE 1935 ELECTION BANDWAGON

Yale Backs Sitting Member, But This Section Goes Liberal, C.C.F.

RECORD VOTE

Grits Carry 170 Seats; Conservatives Second

ROUGHLY 170 Canadian constituencies sent Liberals to Ottawa in the greatest election landslide since Confederation; but Yale was not among them.

Traditionally "agin the government" this historic riding ran true to form after a two-time accidental sojourn in political Israel. In the last federal and provincial elections, this section believe it or not, voted "the right way."

But though the riding at large turned a deaf ear alike to the triumphant march of Liberal Mr. King and the pied piping of Socialist Mr. Woodsworth, the Princeton community, from Tulameen to Similkameen further complicated the paradox by going strongly aganst the majority.

Though given a handsome plurality by the riding at large, Hon. Grote Stirling, former Minister of National Defense, was definitely rejected by "our own folk." The local attitude, believed, to reflect, righty or wrongly, disappointment with Mr. Stirling's work for the Hope-Princeton road, was not altogether a surprise.

Record Majority

Neither was his re-election or the national ascendency of the Liberals, though this cannot be said of the flattering majoriities.

In Yale Mr. Stirling just coasted easily to his fifth term, in face of a surge of Liberalism that, starting in the Bay of Fundy swept across forest, prairie and mountain to eke itself out in the Burrard Inlet, balked only at the westermost gate, Victoria, that Gibraltar of Conservatism.

It was a remarkable climax to a remarkable campaign.

From a field of more than 800 candidates, representing sixteen denominations, and the intrusion of the most revolutionary groups that Canada has yet faced, it saw the two time-honored parties overwhelmingly sustained.

With a record majority, behind Mr. McKenzie King the Grits were swept to office. Their ranks sadly depleted, the Conservatives constitute the official opposition, but like lesser fleas on little fleas, the remaining thirty - five non-government members are divided into no fewer than seven different denominations.

YALE VOTE FAVORED LIBERALS AND C. C. F.

IF Princeton community had named its own candidate, the Liberal nominee, Charles Oliver, would have gone to Ottawa.

Local centers gave Mr. Oliver a scant margin of six over Rev. W. E. Mackay, the C.C.F. nominee. Mr. Oliver had 557, Mr. Mackay 549, with the member and conservative candidate a poor third with 403.

Keremeos was the only local polling division to favor Grote Stirling. Princeton and Hedley went Liberal and the Tulameen end of the valley as well as Allenby-Copper Mtn. were strong for the C.C.F.

Here are the local figures:

Allenby	7	4	14
Blakeburn	22	34	83
Coalmont	14	38	50
Tulameen	10	21	31
Princeton	156	281	220

Spoilt Ballots

At Kamloops they revived an old election custom when the wife of Mayor Moffatt, leader of the losers, invited his rivals up to his house for refreshments. It seems a shame that this old fashioned sportsmanship has vanished. Just imagine Gerry McGeer sipping tea with Arnold Webster and Malcolm Bruce!

YALE MEMBER RETURNED

HON. GROTE STIRLING

YALE returned its new cabinet minister, but the verdict of the Canadian people collectivly relegated him to the rank of an ordinary member. The Similkameen section of the riding did not support Mr. Stirling.

Popular Vote Was Widely Scattered

IF— the election had been decided on popular vote here is the way it would have resulted, on a division of the seats according to the number of votes cast for each party:

Liberals	109
Conservatives	76
Reconstruction	25
C.C.F.	22
Social Credit	8
Others	5

Of the total of 3,325,431 votes cast (based on early and incomplete compilations) the all-conquering Liberals obtained 1,507,679, or roughly 45 per cent which puts a very different slant on the landslide.

Conservatives had 1,507.679; Reconstruction 334,411; C.C.F. 299,359; Social Credit 100,160; and the rest 66,848.

In B.C. the popular party was the C.C.F, with 71,599; Liberals running next with 68,805, and Conservatives, erstwhle favorites, polling 50.098. The other parties stood: Reconstruction 15,894; Social Credit 829, and others 5,290.

Human Jaw Found In Local Rock Slide

And Now To Find What Is The Story Behind Its Discovery

AN interesting discovery was made Tuesday afternoon by Mr. Lester McNaughton, working on the rock slide on the Princeton-Hedley road, about two miles below the Hamilton ranch.

Mr. McNaughton picked up the lower jaw of a human skeleton. It is well preserved and in perfect condition. Three teeth remain.

Mr. McNaughton brought the specimen to the office and we are sending it out for classification.

JAMESON AND ALEXANDER SENTENCED

Older Man Draws Fourteen Months, Jameson Thirteen At Oakalla

POLICE SCORE

Men Submit Under Police Investigation

ON the strength of their own admission, William Alexander and Bernard Jameson were sentensed to fourteen and thirteen months respectively at Oakalla prison after a brief session of Yale County Court on Friday evening.

Conviction of the two men by His Honor Judge J. R. Brown was a mere formality after astute work by the Princeton Detachment of B.C. police had enmeshed the erring youths in a strong net of evidence that, trapping them a few hours after the burglary last Saturday night, grew stronger with every twist of events.

At first denying their guilt after the officers, acting on a hunch, found some of the loot cached near Alexander's cabin, the men yielded in a series of steps that sent them, with their own assistance, to justice. Realizing that they held the losing hand, they co-operated in bringing the affair to a swift and certain conclusion.

Alexander is 29, intelligent and with a high school education. A native of Toronto, he had been in the district six months. He has spent several years in the United States. Jameson, 22, is a native son of a family whose connection with the Similkameen dates back many generations. His Honor explained that he took this factor into consideration in sentencing the men. Both sentences carry hard labor.

Men Aid Police

Jameson and Alexander were arrested Sunday afternoon when the police visited Alexander's cabin, six miles above Princeton on the Similkameen river and found some of the stolen goods. Information volunteered by the prisoners enabled them to make subsequent recovery of virtually all the loot, totalling in value nearly $700. The men were committed, without opposition, for trial after a preliminary hearing under Magistrate Charles Nicholls on Wednesday. The accused elected for speedy trial, and Judge Brown cooperated in this drama of speedy justice by coming in at once. The County Court session lasted only a few minutes, and the men went

RE-REGISTRATION of local relief recipients is under way, in line with a provincial relief plan revision.

All applicants are being graded according to physical ability. It is understood that the provincial government will shortly introduce a new plan, providing graded relief, varying from virtually direct relief to the old and incapable to constructive employment for the younger men. Mr. W. R. Foster is making the local census.

To date 175 persons have been registered in this area, including the Princeton district, Allenby, Copper Mountain and Hedley. It is expected the completed list will total more than 200.

This is a considerable reduction, nearly 300 being on the relief roll a few months ago.

AND SO TO WORK

THE ELECTION is over, and for once nobody can say "I told you so."

There is a peculiar complex to large majorities. It may not mean the plain sailing some folks think.

A lot will depend on the calibre of the men elected and the situations they are called to face. Normally, Mr. King will have two main tasks—to preserve harmony within the ranks of his following, and to get ahead with the nation's business.

The one danger about a huge majority is that the government finds its task too easy. It is generally when a man is fighting for his existence that he does his best work. There is a danger of growing slothful in assurance.

This is just the condition that breeds dissent within the ranks of the political army. It is evident that a man who aspires to politics must have some ambition and constructive energy and when the front benches railroad legislation the tail is liable to wag in restlessness.

Mr. King has one obvious course, to introduce a slate of virile legislation that will prevent his well-fed following from dozing. The stage is set for big things. There is an expectant country crying for them, and a powerful machine to perform them

If Mr. King realizes this he will have few worries between now and the next election, or when that day of judgment comes round.

THE ELECTION AND THE REDS

MR. JAMES BUTTERFIELD finds in the recent federal election returns assurance that the so-called "Red bogey" in Canada is an unnecessary alarm.

It is out of fashion for serious editorial writers to cross swords with the interesting Province columnist. One reads him to enjoy, not to agree. Indeed, it has always seemed to us that the make-up man would do a universal favor (yes, he is widely read) if he would accidentally transpose the heads over the "Odd Angle" and the "Common Round."

Frankly, we are very much disappointed, as of a serious disposition, with the undoubtedly gifted Jim. The quality he lacks is seriousness. The occasional flashes reveal a glimmer of what he could do if he got down to work instead of being content with half-thinking. The depths of his intellect have never been sounded. Inspiration is only half the story. It is only with its hand-maiden, discipline, that it runs to genius. But Jim will smile at the suggestion of genius, and it is no wish of ours to reform him. He is delightful as he is.

There are some, however, who will greedily clutch at even such a straw as Mr. Butterfield has thrown them. Half-truths are dangerous, and the most dangerous of all is to pass off as trivial what is serious under the surface.

We have little patience with alarm. But we do believe in foresight.

We do not think that an army of wild eyed Bolshevists is ready to spring on Canada and set up a Soviet regime. But we do know that the lure of Communism has been deftly spread, and that it has cost this country much in cash and peace of mind. And if Mr. Butterfield would take the trouble to investigate that, he would know it too.

It is the old principle of blocking up the hole as opposed to bailing out the boat

We think as much of free speech and liberty of political thought as Mr. Butterfield does, but we know too that behind this lofty principle many forms of sinister evil can and do lurk; and when we are fighting for liberty, we want to make very sure that we are not stabbing ourselves in the back.

The issue is not whether the Communists are likely to succeeed in taking Canada, but how much stink they can stir up in the process. The main thing is to recognize the objective and to assess it. If it is wrong, it is not hallowed by any high-sounding principle it may draw to its bosom.

Regina Agitator Arrested Here

arrest, amidst the protests of his followers. The constable marched his man through the hostile crowd to the police car. Two or three of his sympathizers got in with him but withdrew under the warning of the officer, and in a few minutes Shaw was in a cell.

The angry crowd meanwhile gathered about the constable's residence, but it was a passive demonstration and they dispersed without instruction at his approach.

Constable F. G. Hatherill, in charge of the Princeton detachment Provincial Police, took a bold stand. Not only was he alone, but not another officer was within call, both his subalterns being out of town on duty.

Questioned about the incident, Const. Hatherill, who is recognized as the sworn enemy of the Reds, frankly stated that the charge was chiefly technical, but that its significance was plain and forceful. The attitude of the authorities, here and in higher circles, is to nip in the bud any attempted revival of Red activities.

A strong drive was made in the spring of this year, and a close vigil has been kept since. Princeton, in the view of the authorities, is just beginning to settle back to normalcy after a long and costly struggle with Communist intervention, and nothing calculated to upset this recovery will be tolerated. Bail had not been arranged for Shaw up to Monday night.

Conviction for revolutionary activities may have a serious bearing on Shaw's approaching trial. He is on heavy bail on a charge under Section 98, unlawful assembly, in connection with the Regina trouble.

Alexander, Jameson Draw Prison Terms

to Oakalla on the Saturday morning train.

That technical conviction was such a simple process was because the thoroughness of police preparation made it so. When police acted quickly and decisively the mystery unfolded itself in easy steps. They were prepared for the most stubborn of defenses.

They had a three-forked case. In addition to finding stolen articles in the men's possession, they had comprehensive statements from the men, which the trend of events decided the men to volunteer; and, had a more intricate form of detection been necessary, the officers' observations gave them telltale clues.

Scientific Evidence

Finger prints and blood stains, had the direction of the case required would have given the trial a fascinating scientific turn.

When the men smashed a rear window and then crawled through the opening Alexander suffered a minor cut when his wrist came in contact with a jagged edge of glass. Blood stains found on the cash register, and a blood-spotted handkerchief later taken from Alexander's person might have been linked with dynamic force by a scientific crime investigator. But the police found it unnecessary to call in the expert's services

Faced with formidable evidence, the two men resigned themselves to their fate, and their attitude made the officers' task easy.

After checking up on the scene of the robbery and on the chance of its being committed by transients, the officers proceeded to the Alexander cabin, on the old Ashnola townsite, about nine miles from Princeton by road They reached the place in mid - afternoon. Alexander was not in. In a box at the door, however, the officers found a collection of manicure sets, cosmetics, toilet-goods and the like. Cached nearby was a sack of similar goods. Inside still more loot was found, and without more ado the police arrested the two men and took them to the Princeton jail.

In the evening Jameson volunteered to show the officers where other goods were hidden, and at 10 p.m. the police, accompanied by Jameson, recovered more oot from the cabin.

The next morning Alexander led the officers to a cache in the hillside near the cabin where 130 of the stolen films were found.

The Odd Angle

Police say the men told them they entered the store by breaking the glass in the rear window early Sunday morning. They were not sure of the time, but it was between midnight and 2 a.m. They were not disturbed and went about their work in liesurely fashion, concentrating on such items as cash and stamps, cigarettes, perfumes, films, fountain pens and the like. They left by the window through which they entered. They left a box of articles they had collected, stating they could not carry it.

They swept the showcase of cigarettes, but did not touch the cigars. They made no attempt to open the safe. There were many other odd angles to their work. They could have left by the back door by sliding the bolt.

The men explained that they carried the loot across the Copper Mountain bridge and along the river trail, where they hid it. They returned for it later in the day. They were making one of the trips when the police arrived. Alexander lived in a cabin near the Jameson place Young Jameson lived with his parents.

Everything Recovered

Virtually everything except a few stamps and cigarettes was recovered. Jameson showed the police a corn starch package in the cabin where they found $2.30 in cash.

The recovered goods were restored to their owner by judge's order.

There were finger prints on the broken glass and window casings. Certain personal goods, the nature of which police did not divulge, were accidentally dropped as the men were going through the window. These, it is understood, could have been proven to definitely link the men with the crime.

Alexander is described as an intelligent type. Asked why they committed the burglary and why they took the rather odd assortment, the men said they believed they could sell these goods, and they wanted the money.

Jameson was sentenced to one day in jail at Hope in February, on a charge of being in possession of stolen goods.

The men did not retain counsel.

WRONG AGAIN

Well, we all make our mistakes—except Charlie Oliver—and we may as well admit Perley called the election wrong. He ain'ts so sure, however, that it was his mistake, and though he can't say, "I told you so!" now, hints that he may be having the last laugh—if you can laugh at it.

We may make our mistakes about the Election, but you sure don't make none when you buy FIVE ROSES FLOUR.

Spoilt Ballots

The election is genuine all right; the ballot boxes have Yale locks.

And now the story is out how Charlie Oliver came to follow in the footsteps of his father. It's all on account of the law of gravity. Those pesky apples—you know what they did to Adam, likewise Ike Newton.

Penticton councillors were determined to pump water uphill when the good Lord provides for it to run down free gratis. So Charlie ups and gets himself elected reeve and puts a stop to it—the pumping, not gravity)

Perley says the whole issue is whether they can make McKenzie King.

Appropriately enough, No. 1 name on the Princeton North list is Mrs. John Fall Allison, Princeton's pioneer. Here in 1862 her name has doubtless been on every list since Confederation. She is at present residing in Vancouver.

Though there are only five actual voters at Copper Mtn., the elaborate arrangements are the same there as in Toronto. Just how far is Hedley from Princeton—exactly? If it is a full twenty-five miles it comes under the absentee voting provision. Better move the polling booth a few doors down to make sure.

All three parties here opened Committee Rooms, the Liberals in Jack Huey's ex-tinkers' shop the Tories in Kit Summers' one-time meat emporium, and the C.C.F. in the former Tulameen mine office.

"I never make mistakes," the infallible Liberal candidate for Yale was saying.

"No, he just made one." remarked the hardened Tory ,aside

"Yes, what was that?"

"Oh, that time he misjudged his step when he was climbing the apple tree. Too bad he had to land on his head."

Now, is that nice?!

Mr. Landeryou, successful Social Credit candidate in Calgary East, is a brother of Mrs. W. J. McPhaill of Allenby.

If our observative powers betrayed us not the man who dug up the oriental vote bugaboo was our old friend Bill Mc Kenzie former Similkameen provincial member. From the shades of his Victoria retirement he wrote a letter to the papers quoting Mr. Woodsworth from Hansard. Two days later both parties took the cue and the same story was told in big ads. Mr. Cromie and the Southams owe Mac a vote of thanks.

The prize election story is told about the fellow who came to vote at Princeton. His gaze encountered the familiar specimen ballot showing how to mark one's choice. The voter eyed it attentively "Dr. Jones, Dentist. Michael Israel, mortician"—and the like.

Finally he turned to the deputy and complained, "Say, somebody's made a mistake. This ain't the right paper for this riding."

Grote Stirling, M.P., Expresses Thanks

I DESIRE to take this opportunity of heartily thanking all those who worked so hard in support of the policies of the Conservative Party, and thus achieving a victory in Yale against such heavy odds.

It will be my endeavor, as in the past, to represent all the people of Yale in the House of Commons to the best of my ability.

The Whole Party

HON. H. H. STEVENS

MR. STEVENS startedout to re-build Canada, but failed to build his own party. In fact, he is the only guest.
