MACKINTOSH IN TOWN

CONSERVATIVE NOMINEE HOLDS A MEETING IN MUSIC HALL.

A Large and Enthusiastic Gathering—A. Teeter and J. Foley Speak for Socialism—Governor Gets a Fine Reception and [illegible] Votes.

Prov. Library, Jan 1 05

On Monday evening the Conservatives held a grand rally in the Music Hall, they having with them their nominee for Kootenay, Hon. Charles Mackintosh, of Rossland, familiarly known as the "Governor." The meeting was largely attended, many having to stand, while numerous ladies also graced the occasion with their presence. It was an enthusiastic gathering and there was no doubt as to the feeling of the audience being with the Governor, he being cheered to the echo.

Ald. Smith acceptably filled the chair, while grouped on the platform were Mr. Mackintosh, W. Hunter of Silverton, J. A. Foley, A. E. Teeter, and the village scribe. The latter was called upon to open the meeting, his remarks being confined chiefly to a criticism of W. A. Galliher's speech here last week.

A. E. Teeter.

Mr. Teeter, on behalf of Mr. Baker, the Socialist candidate, said that he welcomed the Conservatives to the side of Socialism on the railway question, because of government ownership. However, the Conservatives were not a unit on the question, as some of the party were speaking against it. He believed it was time for the people to take part in and run their own affairs. No doubt the Liberals were using public monies in an extravagant way, but the Conservatives might do the same were they in power. Socialists were the true representatives of the workingmen and they should elect their own representatives. As it was, they were over-represented in parliament by professional men, while the working classes got no show. There must be other differences between the two old parties besides the railway policy, but to the Socialists they were the same, as both stood for capitalism. It was high time Socialist doctrine was introduced into Canada, in the interest of the masses, as the old parties were out for selfish schemes. Mr. Teeter closed with an appeal for the electors to vote for Mr. Baker, who was a local man and favorably known to all.

Hon. Mr. Mackintosh.

The Governor, on coming forward, was greeted with warm applause. He was pleased with Mr. Teeter's remarks, as he respected the doctrines of the Socialist party. (Just here a stampede was almost caused by the sudden ringing of the fire alarm, but it turned out to be only a Hallowe'en prank and the audience soon quieted down.) The speaker wanted to point out to Mr. Teeter that there was a great difference between the two old parties. Government ownership was no new thing to Conservatives, for had they not years ago built the Intercolonial railway. Laurier, for the Liberals, was always denouncing that policy. Conservatives were always progressive while the Liberals were always the opposite. Conservatives had initiated all leading progressive ideas incorporated in Canadian national life, from confederation on, while the Liberals had filled their part by denunciation. Conservatives were always abreast of the times. He agreed with Mr. Teeter that there were too many professional men in parliament, and that was why he, representing the mining interests of the country, was opposing Lawyer Galliher. If elected, he could be depended on to do full justice to B.C. interests. He had been called an old man, but he was still possessed of as much vigor as a young man, and had also a ripe experience. He was still capable of doing much good, and when needed in the house he would always be there to cast his vote. He did not like criticising Mr. Galliher while absent, but his parliamentary record was not a favorable one. Although not knowing Mr. Baker, he believed he was a good man.

Mr. Mackintosh had not canvassed while Mr. Galliher was absent from the riding, as he had promised not to. His candidature was endorsed by members of the Miners' and Railwaymens' unions and hundreds of workingmen had promised to support him. He claimed no credit for what he had done for the union men at Rossland during the strike. He would do the same thing again. He knew he had the gratitude of the men, but was not trading on that, for their votes would come anyway. Some people had even called him an agitator, because he stood up for the workingmen.

Galliher was to blame for the late date of the election in Kootenay, he having voted down Mr. Borden's motion of putting nomination day earlier, leaving polling day the same as in other places. Galliher professed to want a uniform election day and then when he had the opportunity to vote for it had turned it down. So it was with the alien labor bill. The Liberals had cut out all the essential clauses and deliberately schemed to throttle it.

Mr. Mackintosh touched lightly on the Grand Trunk question, as the people knew all about it. It was a millstone around the neck of the government, and the people of the east, on the 3rd, would surely condemn the paralleling of the Intercolonial railway. He then dealt with the question of better terms for B.C., and held that the east got everything and the west nothing. It was most unjust.

Purity in politics was a cry with the Liberals, yet look at the disgraceful record of that party in Ontario. He wanted purity in this election, and warned the electors to keep both eyes on the ballot box. He would not take his seat if won by trickery, neither would he violate any promise after election.

J. A. Foley.

Mr. Foley was welcomed by the audience and put up a neat and intelligent talk for the Socialist candidate. He was pleased with the Governor and was glad the latter considered the Socialists better than to call them Anarchists. The various countries were gradually adopting Socialist ideas, especially Canada. Conservatives were helping the Socialists by denouncing the Liberals. Socialists did not object to protection, so long as it was in the interest of the people, but it had a tendency to create trusts. His party believed the government should own everything and then protection would not hurt.

Socialists stood pre-eminently for the workingmen. He had once been a Conservative and believed that party would win if they would stand for government ownership. He asked if Leader Borden favored operating a government road. If so, then the people would be with them. But he doubted the Conservatives, because of Premier Roblin's actions in Manitoba. Liberals, however, were far behind the Conservatives on railway matters. They had promised not to alienate public lands to private people, yet witness the Yukon steal stopped by the senate. The promises of the old parties were not to be trusted, particularly the Liberals, and that was why Socialists were being nominated in order to get honest government. The initiative and referendum and the Socialist doctrine generally were explained at length, and the New Zealand legislation commended. They wanted no tramps and no millionaires. Socialist candidates were a protest to the present system of government, and he asked support for Mr. Baker.

Mr. Mackintosh Concludes.

Mr. Mackintosh poked fun at Mr. Foley for leaving the Conservative party, and quoted Mr. Borden's several speeches to prove that he was in favor of the government building and operating a railway from ocean to ocean. The speaker so understood Mr. Borden and if the latter did not stand by that creed, then he would surely vote for against him. That was no election pledge, it was a straight promise. He then dealt with Mr. Foley's accusation of Sir John Macdonald owning C.P.R. stock, that old cry having been cleared up years ago. He felt sorry to think Mr. Foley would try to cast a stigma on the character of one of the grandest men God had ever made. (Long and continued applause.)

Mr. Mackintosh refuted Mr. Foley's charges against Premier Roblin on the Manitoba railway question, and then showed that Mr. Galliher's votes in the house were invariably against the people and for corporations. The Governor concluded with an eloquent appeal for the support of the voters on election day.

The meeting closed with three cheers and a tiger for Mr. Mackintosh and three more for Hon. Mr. Borden. It was a vote-winning meeting.

The ae Auld Lion o' Britain.

There is ae auld lion o' Britain,
As fierce as fierce can be,
An' he lies on his rocky hiedlan'
An' leuks far oot tae see.
He leuks at the merchant navy
Thet hobs on the white sea faem,
An' tak's a keek at the gunboats
Guardin' his islan' hame.

The ae auld lion o' Britain,
He shuts his een a spell,
An' a' the beasts o' the mainlan'
Set up a screech an' yell;
The ae auld lion o' Britain,
He blinks his een a wee,
An' a' o' the ither beasties
Are guid as guid can be.

They wearie the ae auld lion
An' fash him wi' their din,
Bit they ken fu' weel whan he's sleepin'
An' ken whan it's time tae rin;
An' the Russian bear creeps backward
Again tae its northern lair,
An' the eagle o' France flaps lower
Whan it sees thet the lion's there.

O' weel dae they ken the auld lion,
For weel has he gien them cause,
An' weel dae they ken far better
Than come in reach o' his paws.
Maist feck o' the beasts o' the mainlan'
Hae felt o' his fangs before,
Sae they'll roose na the ae auld lion
Wha are na seekin' for war.

For the ae auld lion o' Britain,
As hist'ry aft can preuve,
Is the hert o' a race united
Tae stand by the land they luve;
Tae stand by their King an' Kintra
An' the richts thet they ne'er sall tyne,
The freedom oor faithers won for us
In the days o' the auld lang syne.

Sae, here's tae the King—God bless him—
As he sits aboon his throne,
An' may the seat o' his royal breeks
Lang polish the stane o' Scone.
An' we'se drink tae the ae auld lion
Until thet oor cogies toom,
An' whan faes wad win tae his islan' hame
They'll no get there till they soom.

Ymir Suffers by Fire.

Ymir suffered a disastrous fire early on Tuesday morning and several persons had close calls for their lives. The fire broke out next the postoffice, destroying all the buildings in that block, save the Ymir hotel and Campbell's store, causing a total loss of about $40,000, with one third insurance. Mystery surrounds the fire, but it was no doubt incendiary, as the hose nozzles were missing, being afterwards found beneath the Mirror office. T. H. Atkinson, druggist, has been arrested on suspicion of being the incendiary, and afterwards released on $5000 bail.

Work at the Graphic.

The lessees of the Graphic have commenced a new tunnel on the lead below their main workings and expect shortly to get into ore. Their main drift is in 150 feet, and the ore chute continues in place. The ore is high grade, as wire and native silver occur in it. A new trail has been built over from the Young Bear and the old one from there down to the Ottawa cleaned out.

Break Into Ore.

Tom Mulvey brought down some attractive looking samples of ore on Saturday from the Calumet & Hecla, it having been broken into on Thursday. The ore is a galena and is a foot wide, and has a depth on the vein of 200 feet. On the surface ahead there is an ore chute exposed for 200 feet.

The lessees of the Blackburn, Ten Mile, adopted a clever scheme this week of getting in their winter's meat, having purchased a steer from one of the ranchers and driven it up to the mine.

Next Monday, at Kaslo, will take place the first sale to be held of delinquent crown granted claims in the Slocan and Slocan City divisions. A large portion of the original list have paid up their taxes.

W. Thomlinson, New Denver, passed through here Thursday, on his way back to the Lightning Peak group, at the head of Fire Valley. The mine has just made a small but satisfactory shipment to Nelson.

A WEAK HEART.

The Interesting Experience of a St. Catharines Man.

Had Suffered for Twelve Years and Was Ultimately Cured Through the Advice of a Friend.

"Twelve years ago," says Mr. Wm. Emery, of Welland Avenue, St. Catharines, "I was living in the town of Gananoque, and the physicians there told me I had heart disease. From that time and up to four years ago I often had severe spells of the trouble. The least exertion would bring on violent palpitation, and at other times I would become dizzy, nervous and frightened and my heart would almost cease to beat. I became reduced in flesh and insomnia followed. I was hopeless of finding a cure for I had been treated by an experienced doctor, and had taken many advertised remedies without getting any benefit. One day a neighbor strongly advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and acting on his advice I got a half dazen boxes. I soon found much relief through the use of the pills, and after continuing the treatment for a couple of months I was again enjoying perfect health. I have not since had any return of the trouble and I feel safe in saying that the cure is a permanent one, and I can strongly advise the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who suffer from similar trouble." The reporter can only add that Mr. Emery is well known in St. Cathagines, is a prominent worker in Methodist circles, and has the highest respect of all who know him.

If you have any symptoms of heart trouble, neuralgia, indigestion, rheumatism, anaemia or any of the numerous troubles caused by poor or watery blood, you will find new health and strength in a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Do not waste money or further endanger your health by the use of substitutes—get the genuine pills with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers, or sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

There are a thousand ways of lying, but all lead to the same end. It does not matter whether you wear lies, tell lies, act lies or live lies, your character is ruined all the same.

There is no more demoralizing influence in modern life than the unnatural straining to seem other than we are. Nothing else so quickly lowers self respect, takes the fine edge off honor and blunts the conscience as the sense of being a sham, a gilded fraud or an unreality. It cheapens standards, lowers ideals, saps ambition and takes the spring and joy out of living. No man can make the most and the best of himself until he is absolutely honest with his own soul and unfalteringly true to his highest ideals, and this is impossible while he is living a lie.—Success.

The Moorish Woman at Home.

When not fixed up for visitors the Moorish woman is always en dishabille, lounging about all day in a loose cotton or muslin nightgown, rose or yellow being her favorite shade, her bare feet thrust into slippers very much down at the heel and a flower stuck in her wisp of uncombed hair, which, from a continual use of henna dye, is apt to break out in patches of yellow, green or gray. Hairbrushes are unknown, a very coarse comb alone being used, which may account for the fact that the hair is never glossy or well kept. She has a devouring passion for paints, powders and perfumes, attar of roses and sandalwood being in special demand.—Pilgrim.

A Tree Distillery.

On the Canary islands grows a fountain tree, a tree most needed in some parts of the islands. It is said that the leaves constantly distill a quantity of water that is sufficient to furnish drink to every living creature in Hiero, nature having provided this remedy for the drought of the island. Every morning near this part of the island a cloud of mist arises from the sea, which the winds force against the steep cliff on which this tree grows, and it is from the mist that the tree distills the water.

Proved It.

"My wife will bear witness," said the prisoner at the bar, "that at the very time I am accused of burglarizing Mr. Smith's premises I was engaged in walking the floor with my infant child in my arms, endeavoring to soothe it by singing 'Rock-a-by, Baby.'"

"The prisoner is discharged," remarked his honor. "He can prove a lullaby."

Waiting Instead of Going.

The art in life is to sit still and to let things come toward you, not to go after them or even to think that they are in flight. How often I have chased some divine shadow through a whole day till evening, when, going home tired, I have found the visitor just turning away from my closed door.—Arthur Symons in Saturday Review.

LORD KNOLLYS.

Sketch of His Majesty the King's Private Secretary.

His Majesty has no time for the cultivation of the statelier style of letter writing which characterized the early decades of the last century. But he never finishes a word with an unintelligible syllable, and does not observe the practice of referring to people and places by their initial letters, except in family notes, when he would not hesitate to write of "G." or "V." To his relatives in Denmark, he refers to Her Majesty as "alix;" to all others as "the Queen," only in exceptional cases as "Queen Alexandra." There are, however, some little time-saving idiosyncrasies which were adopted long ago, and have been perpetuated. Thus a favorite form of subscription consists of the syncopated words, "Yrs. v. sincerely."

Of course, much of the King's letter-writing is delegated to Lord Knollys, his private secretary. His Lordship is a remarkable combination of the old-world aristocrat and the keen and modern man of business. He is a spare man with crisp, curling white hair, surmounting a refined and thoughtful face. He has a certain picturesque dignity and reserve about him. In his frock overcoat and silk hat he might be taken for a beau of a hundred years ago, spick and span, and bearing the marks of an inborn courtliness and grace. Those who meet Lord Knollys outside his work know him as a man immaculate in dress, precise in manner and deportment. They should see him in his rooms at Buckingham Palace. He sits there in shirt-sleeves, cuffs tucked up, dealing with His Majesty's correspondence and other work with a celerity and an astuteness that would do credit to the keenest man of business in London.

The King's secretary says little, but when he speaks he goes straight ta the point. He is a master of the snub in its various phases, as bores and cranks have found to their cost. And yet he has a wonderful fund of considerate kindliness. Some little while ago a London press man who happened to be the only one of his craft at a meeting where the King made a little speech, went to Lord Knollys with his transcript, and asked His Lordship to glance over the copy. Lord Knollys dashed the reporter's hopes by saying he was not present at the meeting. The press man was disappointed, for he feared he had made some mistake. "Come back in two hours," said Lord Knollys, taking the copy. He returned at the appointed time, and found his copy corrected in a strange hand. Lord Knollys had gone to the King himself, and His Majesty had made the correction.

His Farewells.

"That young chap that calls on our Myrtilla reminds me of Patti," said the old man in the dining room.

"Why so?" asked his wife.

"He has so many farewell performances in the vestibule."

Dont's for Young Mothers.

Don't give baby a sleeping draught, soothing mixture or opiate of any kind except by the order of a competent doctor who has seen the child. Remember that all so-called soothing mixtures contain dangerous opiates. If your child is restless give it Baby's Own Tablets, as they are absolutely harmless and in a natural way promote health-giving sleep.

Don't give medicine to check the movement of baby's bowels in diarrhoea except on the advice of a doctor. Feed the child sparingly and give Baby's Own Tablets to cleanse the bowels of irritating secretions. Keep the abdomen warm. This treatment will cure diarrhoea.

Don't give a young child harsh cathartics, such as castor oil, which gripe and torture. Baby's Own Tablets have a gentle laxative action and never fail to cure constipation.

Mrs. J. D. Cilly, Heatherton, Que., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach and bowel troubles and have always found them a most satisfactory medicine."

Don't fail to keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Fair Opportunity.

Tasso, being told that he had a fair opportunity of taking advantage of a very bitter enemy, replied, "I wish not to plunder him, but there are things which I wish to take from him—not his honor or his life, but his malice and ill will."

Well spoken! A noble taking from an enemy, "his malice and ill will!" How is that done? Love is the potent weapon. "Heap coals of fire on his head."—Exchange.

Vastness of London.

There are about 6,000 miles of railway in Greater London, and it is estimated that something like 600,000,000 separate journeys are made by passengers annually. The number of journeys on an average week day is over 1,500,000. An idea of the vehicular traffic in the streets may be gathered from the statement that in twelve hours 16,054 vehicles of all kinds passed a particular spot in Piccadilly, and a full service of 690 buses pass the Bank of England in an hour. The number of passengers carried by the London trams in a year is over 360,000,000. A census taken of the number of pedestrians who crossed London Bridge on a certain day showed that they totaled 116,902, and in nineteen and a half hours during a day in April last year 248,015 people crossed the roadways at the bank. It is always a source of amusement for American children visiting London to look for the cab with the highest number. Quite frequently one is seen above the 20,000 mark.

THE TIME I'VE LOST IN WOOING.

The time I've lost in wooing,
In watching and pursuing
The light that lies
In woman's eyes,
Has been my heart's undoing.
Though Wisdom oft has sought me,
I scorned the lore she brought me:
My only books
Were woman's looks,
And folly's all they've taught me.

Her smile when Beauty granted,
I hung with gaze enchanted,
Like him, the sprite,
Whom maids by night
Oft meet in glen that's haunted.
Like him, too, Beauty won me.
But while her eyes were on me—
If once their ray
Was turned away,
Oh! winds could not outrun me.

And are those follies going?
And is my proud heart growing
Too cold or wise
For brilliant eyes
Again to set it glowing?
No—vain, alas! the endeavor
From bonds so sweet to sever;
Poor Wisdom's chance
Against a glance
Is now as weak as ever.

—Thomas Moore.

TIRED OF HIS THRONE.

Sir Charles Brooke, Sultan of Sarawak, Over 70 Years of Age, Retiring to England.

Sir Charles Brooke, the only Englishman who can boast of being an Asiatic Monarch, and whose sovereignty over the Sultanate of Sarawak, in the Island of Borneo, with its population of nearly a million, is recognized as subject to British suzerainty, has just issued a proclamation appointing his eldest son and heir, Vyner Brooke, to act as Regent of Sarawak. Sir Charles, who expressly declares that he does not abdicate his throne, explains that age and growing infirmities have led him to transfer the task of administering the Government of his Sultanate to his eldest son, who bears the title of Rajah Muda, and who will from henceforth be "entitled to use the swallow-tail flag of the Sovereign on shore and on land, and likewise the yellow umbrella," which is in Sarawak the emblem of rulership.

Sir Charles, who was formerly in the British navy, is now over seventy years old, and will very soon retire to England to spend the remainder of his days in the land of his birth. He has been on the throne of Sarawak since 1868, and is entitled, not only in the Orient, but likewise when he visits England, to the same honors in the shape of gun salutes, sentinels, etc., as the great vassal rulers of British India. Sir Charles, whose English title is due to his Grand Cross of the English Order of St. Michael and St. George, served in the navy as Charles A. Johnson, and assumed the name of Brooke on succeeding his uncle, Sir Jas. Brooke, the first ruler of Sarawak.

The latter's story has often been told. He was associated with the late Sir Harry Keppel in the expedition fitted out by Baroness Burdett-Coutts for the suppression of piracy in the Far East. Sixty or seventy years ago, when steam navigation was in its infancy, piracy played a far more serious role in maritime intercourse with the remote Orient than to-day. In fact every vessel that had occasion to traverse the Straits of Malacca was compelled to carry guns to repel those fierce Malay, Chinese and Tonkinese pirates who were the scourge of those seas. Lady Burdett-Coutts, at a considerable cost, fitted out an armed naval expedition for hunting the pirates to their lairs and exterminating them, and placed it under the command of Harry Keppel and James Brooke, two young naval officers. The expedition proved eminently successful, and while Keppel returned to civilization, Brooke remained in the Orient, and, having become associated with the Sultan of Borneo, eventually became possessed of Sarawak, which occupies a considerable portion of the Island of Borneo.

Lady Burdett-Coutts played a considerable role in this strange venture of Brooke, supporting him with money, and especially with political influence in England. Sir Charles is married to a Miss de Windt, whose brother, Harry de Windt, is well known as an explorer and a lecturer.

Lord Kelvin's Discovery.

Some interesting tales are told of Lord Kelvin's discoveries, and how the ideas of them have come to his quick mind. For instance, this is said to have been the way in which he found the mirror galvanometer. He was puzzling over the difficulty of perfecting the ordinary telegraphic apparatus used on overhead wires, which was not suited for the varying current passing along cables. The lagging of the electric currents had the effect of making them run together into one bottom current, with surface ripples, which correspond to the separate signals of the message. The problem was how to invent a means of interpreting clearly and easily all the delicate fluctuations. One day Lord Kelvin's eyeglass fell off and swung in front of the magnet, reflecting, its movements, and instantly the idea of the mirror suggested itself. So a monocle has had a direct effect on science!

Eighteen Hundred Farewells.

The Rev. Stephen Gladstone, who is retiring from the rectorship of Hawarden, has a farewell letter in his parish magazine. He says that he has visited every one of the 1,800 homes of his parishioners to say good-bye, but after thirty-two years the parting is very hard. He thanks the Nonconformists for much kindness, and all for the sympathy shown him and his family on the break-up of their home. Mr. Gladstone will for a few weeks take charge of the poor London parish where, under the present Dean of St. Paul's, he was for four years curate. Thus the eldest surviving son of the great Prime Minister passes from the ken of the Cheshire village which his father's zeal made famous through the English-speaking, church-going world. Keen and earnest in his work, he was content with his little parish as his working place, where he will long be remembered and sorely missed.

USED ONE PEN 14 YEARS.

Also Carried a Knife Eighteen Years and a Pencil Five Years.

The constant use of a pen point for fourteen years, a penknife eighteen years, an ordinary indelible lead pencil five years and a key ring nineteen years to the ordinary person sounds incredible, but such is the case with Carl Burba, a clerk in the general customs office here.

Mr. Burba, who was in the drug business at New Hope for more than ten years, is now using constantly a pen point he secured, second hand, while in the drug business, and since he has been at work for Uncle Sam he has continued to use it, preferring it to any other. During that time he has worn out two penholders, but the point is still in the prime of condition, kept so by the care bestowed upon it by its owner.

A fellow clerk was discussing the matter of care of pens yesterday, when Mr. Burba remarked that any pen or article of any kind would last for years if given the proper care. To prove his claim he drew from his pocket a knife which he had carried eighteen years. The blades gave evidence of numerous whettings, but not a gap or break could be seen. The knife, Mr. Burba said, had done a full share of work since he had owned it, and is good for many years yet.

After exhibiting the knife Mr. Burba drew forth a key ring bearing the date of 1885. It is a souvenir of the Louisville exposition, was purchased as such by Mr. Burba during the festal occasion and has since done constant service. Mr. Burba has a special pocket for all these articles and they may always be found there. He says he never breaks the point from a pencil, never loans it but that he watches it closely and sees to it that it does not get away; never leaves the pencil, key ring or knife lying on his desk, but replaces them in their respective pockets when not in use, and by such inviolate system and care he always has them about him.

Moscow's Magic Grove.

The cyclone which raged around Moscow on June 29, causing great loss of life and tremendous damage to property, was a storm such as is seldom seen in Russia. At intervals hail of unusual size fell—some stones as large as a hen's egg—and the wind blew with terrific force.

Almost the first that suffered was the historical Annenhoffsky grove, which eye witnesses say was leveled to the ground as if by word of command. This grove was called into being by the Empress Anna. One day from her balcony she remarked, "What a beautiful spot—if only there was a grove here!"

Next morning on going to her window she beheld a grove. The Duke of Biron had given orders that in the night all the trees in the neighborhood should be transplanted there.

So in a single night the Annenhoffsky grove was planted. On June 29 it was destroyed in a second.—London Mail.

Dodd's Kidney Pills doing good Work at Port Arthur.

Mr. Dick Souvey and Wife Both Had Kidney Troubles and the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy Cured Them.

Port Arthur, Ont., Oct. 24.—(Special)—That Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidney ills of men and women alike has been proved time and again in this neighborhood, but it is only occasionally they get a chance to do double work in the same house. This has happened in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Souvey, a farmer and his wife, living about seven miles from here. In an interview Mr. Souvey said:

"My wife and myself have used Dodd's Kidney Pills, and have found them a big benefit to our health. We had La Grippe two winters and were exposed to much frost and cold. Our sleep was broken on account of urinary troubles and pain in the kidneys. We each took six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and now enjoy good health."

The Charm of Victoria Falls.

How the Victoria falls impress a visitor is recorded in Miss C. W. Mackintosh's journal of a tour in South Africa. Miss Mackintosh says: "We perceived no hint of the falls, only seeing before us a screen of rocky based, bright green forest, apparently closing in the river, like a lake. Ten minutes' walk brought us to the camp, on a cliff which literally overhung the gorge, and we saw the cataract thundering down into the boiling pot at our feet. The walls of the chasm, 400 feet high, were spanned by a rainbow. The charm of these falls lies not in the one overwhelming crash as at Niagara, but in the cumulative effect of various glimpses, the matchless beauty of the surroundings and the strangeness of the whole setting, but chiefly in the columns of spray, called the "thundering smoke" and in the ever changing rainbows. The mile wide river suddenly drops into a yawning crack in the ground, stretching right across the stream at right angles to the banks, a foaming trough, quite narrow, of which the walls rose 400 feet above the surface of the water."

LAKE OF PITCH.

Chief Wonder and Attraction of the Island of Trinadad—Natural Asphalt in State of Perfection.

Asphalt, in its natural form, is too brittle when cold and too sticky when warm to make a serviceable road, but when mixed with sand, gravel and tar, answers every requirement. In its natural state, it is found in many parts of the world, but in only one place to perfection, and that is the Island of Trinidad, one of Great Britain's numerous possessions in the West Indies.

Trinidad's great pitch lake, which is the chief wonder and attraction of the island, is situated in a low, sandy stretch of the southwest coast, near Cape Corbaray. The surrounding country is low and malarial, in striking contrast to the high hills and rich woodlands to the coast further back.

The laborers are all negroes, even the coolies shrinking from the heat and low fevers of the place.

The lake itself is about a mile in diameter, hard at the edges and softening toward the middle. The surface is continually changing, apparently from subterranean action. Little oases of dry land, and even trees and shrubs, will disappear in a single night and fresh islands of soil be reared in other places.

The lake is in all probability merely an unusually large deposit of bitumen or soft coal, that has undergone its transformation from decaying vegetable matter in contact with water, and too near the surface for the earth pressure above to harden it thoroughly.

Hundreds of negroes the year round toil at the lake's edge, taking out cargo after cargo from the supply that seems never to diminish.

The asphalt crust is broken up with picks and crowbars, and is loaded on dump-carts, drawn by a single mule. The carts crunch through a long, sandy road down to the wharf at the water's edge, where the load is dumped and carried by wheel barrows on board of lighters, which in turn carry it out to ships, lying a half mile out in the shoal water.

The rough lumps of pickings are hoisted on board in baskets and piled in the hold, where they sink down into a compact mass, requiring a fresh filling the next day, and so on till the solid cargo is completed.

When the vessel reaches its port of discharge the asphalt has to be broken up again before it can be removed from the hold.

Owing to the viscous quality of the native "pitch" it has, in the course of ages, filtered through the sand soil around the lakes, and of these great fields the asphalt is, if anything, better after its filtering process than the original deposit.

Canadian Women.

Mr. P. B. Ball, Canadian Agent at Leeds, England, writing to Toronto Sunday World, says: Some little time ago I noticed that an English lady was writing some rather severe criticisms on Canadian women, and I wondered if it could be my friend, Mrs. Margaret Polson Murray. At that time I had not been very long in this country, and remembering my earlier predilection for English women I did not like to get in the mix up, more especially as I knew how well able both our women and men are to defend the sex. The longer I live in the country the more predisposed I am to acknowledge the better qualities of Canadian women. Many years ago in my callow youth before I had been sufficiently acquainted with their many good points, on my trips here I was disposed to give foreign women the preference, but I thought I would allow my more matured judgment to speak before writing on the subject. It has been my privilege to visit Great Britain, Germany, Austria, France and the United States, and meet women in each of these countries. Hitherto I had always thought that English women were probably the finest, next to them the Austrian, having in mind a visit to Budapest in the late seventies. Looking at the matter after some years' experience I can say honestly that no nation produces a finer class of women than Canada. We do not, as the Germans do, have women for breeding children only, or as upper servants. We do not stand as a race, producing money to clothe the women in purple and fine linen only, as the United States men do. We do not keep our girls back and not allow them to have any say for themselves until after they are married, as France or Austria. We take them something between the British and American. We have the good looks of both, and the sound common sense of the one and the good dressing of the other. We are apt to treat them more as companions than other nations.

Marconi As He Is.

Mr. Marconi has a striking personality. Quite six feet in height, powerfully built, the young inventor has none of that physical frailty which so often distinguishes men great in mind. Many of the published photographs make him boyishly good-looking; in reality his face is the stern, impassive one of a strong man. Somewhat pallid, with clear cold eyes, and a towering white forehead, he has a touch of the dreamer as well as of the remorseless student of facts. He crosses the room with a lounging, leisurely stride, and he speaks to new acquaintances reservedly, almost distantly. To the casual observer there is not a spark of enthusiasm in the young man whose enthusiastic researches have resulted in a discovery which has made him famous all over the world. But once break beneath the surface, and you will find Mr. Marconi a keen and clever talker. He has a wonderful gift of expression, with that cold eloquence that convinces rather than persuades. And yet some of our hardest-headed men have been both convinced and persuaded after a talk with Mr. Marconi.

Superfluous Hair

Removed by the New Principle

De Miracle

It is better than electricity, because it does not scar or produce a new growth. Better than X-ray, because it does not burn, scar or paralyze the tissues under the skin. Better than depilatories, because it is not poisonous; therefore it will not cause blood poisoning, or produce eczema, which is so common with depilatories, and does not break off the hair, thereby increasing the growth.

Electrolysis, X-ray or depilatories are offered you on the bare word of the operators and manufacturers. But MIRACLE is not. It is the only method which is indorsed by physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines.

DE MIRACLE will be mailed to any address, sealed in plain wrapper for $1. Your money back without question if it fails to do all that is claimed for it.

Our booklet — the most complete treatise on Superfluous Hair ever published—containing the testimonials of numerous physicians and surgeons and those of hundreds of others—will be sent free, in plain, sealed envelope, upon request. THE OKA TRAPPISTS.

Silent Brothers Who Give the Wayfarer a Hospitable Welcome.

"Postillon de la Trappe" read an ancient sign swinging under the trees of an Oka street. Oka, you may know, is a quaint little village on the eastern bank of the Ottawa River reached only by the river steamers and within its boundaries are to be found such oddly diverse elements as Algonquin Indians, French-Canadians, summer tourists, Catholic sisterhoods, and the Brothers in White, who constitute the Trappist community.

My postillion—a shock-headed lad of exclusively French speech—proved to be a veritable Jehu as a driver, and the sturdy pony was equally reckless in his mad charges up and down hills, over bridges and around passing vehicles, and his passenger was thankful that we ran into but one fence and hit but one tree. Fortunately the fence post gave way instead of the carriage wheel, and the three-mile journey to the monastery ended with the loss of only a hat, a whip and some breath.

The Silent Brothers give the wayfarer a hospitable welcome. There are there fifty in the Order, together with fifty lay brothers. The former are clad in white; the latter in brown. In addition, there are forty young men attending their agricultural school.

Here the Trappists till an 800-acre farm, and a fairer scene Canada cannot show than this highly cultivated area, with its orchards and vineries, its fields of golden grain sweeping up to the bases of the Two Mountains, and the fringe of green forest that encloses the farm.

The members of the order are subject to rigidly ascetic rules, rising at two in the morning, eating but two meals a day, of a strictly vegetarian diet, and retiring at eight in the evening to their humble pallets in an attic. Four hours of the eighteen are spent in the fields; the remainder in religious exercises and study. If one may judge by the personal appearance of the Brothers, this mode of life results in the best of health. "We nevaire sick," said my brown-gowned guide, and so it would seem.

It is strange and interesting sight to view these silent workers in brown and white, with their sandalled feet, rope girdles and broad-brimmed hats laboring in the gardens and on the farm, or to see them fall suddenly on their knees, even though at work, while the Father in charge performs the office of the hour. Whatever their occupation, it must be suspended when the great bell rings out its summons. Stranger still is it to watch the single file of worshippers, looking ghostly in their long white robes, as they march to their chapel in the early hours of the morning while the world around is yet asleep.

The Trappist farm has a beautiful setting, overlooking, on the south and west, the Lake of Two Mountains, the Ottawa and, in the far distance, the St. Lawrence River. Perched near the summit of the twin hills are three chapels that show strikingly white against the green foliage for a long distance. They are part of the series of seven chapels that line the mountain road—a road that is crowded on the great day of the Trappists—the 14th of September, when the Fete du Calvaire attracts thousands of worshippers, who, in the true spirit of the pilgrim, worship at all the Stations of the Cross that lead to the mountain top.—Frank Yeigh in Toronto Globe.

Our Blind Spot.

On the back of the eyeball is a peculiar expansion of the fibres of the optic nerve, which is called the retina. Every part of this is not equally sensitive to the action of light. A small portion, where the organization is most perfect, is called from its color the yellow spot; this is only 1-6,000th of an inch in diameter, yet it produces the most perfect sensation of vision. A little nearer to the nose is another spot, which, though full of fibres of the optic nerve, is absolutely insensible to light, and is therefore called the "blind" spot. This can be easily proved by well known experiments on paper, of which advertisers of patent medicines have availed themselves. Helmholtz in his lecture tells us that "this blind spot is so large that it might prevent our seeing 11 moons if placed side by side, or a man's face at a distance of only six or seven feet," and that, "Mariotte, who discovered the phenomenon, amused Charles II. and his court by showing them how they might see each other with their heads cut off."

Watch as a Compass.

Forest and Stream gives the following instructions by which a watch will serve as a compass:

Get the number of hours from midnight, divide by two and point the hour at the sun so that the shadow of a match or lead pencil falls directly across the centre of the watch: 12 o'clock will be north, 6 south, 9 west and 3 east. Suppose it is 9 a.m.; number of hours from midnight is 9; one-half is 4½; point 4.30 at the sun so the shadow of a match or lead pencil falls across the centre of watch, and 12 is north, 6 south, 3 east and 9 west. Suppose it is 6 p.m.; number of hours from midnight is 18, one-half, 9; points 9 at sun and 12 is north, 6 south, 3 east and 9 west.

Also, when the sun is hidden on a cloudy day take a lead pencil or stick that is well sharpened and place it on the thumb nail. By looking closely you will see a faint shadow, which will give you a very good idea of the direction of the sun, and may be useful to one lost on a cloudy day.

SURE REGULATORS.—Mandrake and Dandelion are known to exert a powerful influence on the liver and kidneys, restoring them to healthful action, inducing a regular flow of secretions and imparting to the organs complete power to perform their functions. These valuable ingredients enter into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, and serve to render them the agreeable and salutary medicine they are. There are few pills so effective as they in their action.

IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD.—When the action of the kidneys becomes impaired, impurities in the blood are almost sure to follow, and general derangement of the system ensues. THE LONGEST NAME.

Mr. James Gill, of Toledo, Ohio, is or should be a proud and happy man, says the London Chronicle. His wife has the longest Christian name in heathendom or out of it; and her father, who was responsible for it, insisted on having every syllable of it placed on the records. There it stands—"Missouri Arkansas Napoleon Four Hundred Miles Below the Mouth of the Ohio Absher." Mr. Absher explained that his daughter was named in honor of an aunt who lived at Napoleon, on the Missouri River in Arkansas, four hundred miles below the mouth of the Ohio. In this case, apparently, a whole atlas is "in a name."

The Stomach's 'Weal or Woe!'—The stomach is the centre from which, from the standpoint of health, flows "weal or woe." Experience of Two Nurses

Who Have Had Splendid Opportunities in Their Practice of Testing The Merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Miss C. Stanley-Jones, professional masseuse and nurse, 283 Simcoe street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "In my occupation as nurse I have come across many cases in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has been used with extraordinary results. One case I recall was that of a child of sixteen months who was in a bad way with scaly head. It was a really nasty case, causing the child to suffer very much and to be very troublesome. I persuaded the mother to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in ten days the child was entirely cured.

"Another case was that of a lady who was greatly troubled with eczema on the face. The doctor was dosing her with medicine, which was doing no good. In this case cure was effected in seven days with only one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Both of these cures were lasting."

Mrs. H. A. Loynes, nurse, Philipsburg, Que., writes: "I consider Dr. Chase's Ointment a perfect medicine. I have used it myself, and as a nurse have recommended it in a good many cases for itching piles. It always gave perfect satisfaction in every case, and once people used it they would not think of being without it in the house."

EDITORIAL CROPPINGS.

C. H. Mackintosh, Conservative; W. A. Galliher, Liberal; and James A. Baker, Socialist, were nominated in Nelson, Tuesday, to contest the dominion election, to be held in Kootenay on Nov. 22. The fight is now on in earnest.

According to the government blue book, lumber to the value of $250,000 is being brought into Canada each month free of duty. Were an adequate duty imposed on lumber, it would revive the industry in B.C.,and, where stagnation now reigns, activity and progress would prevail. What a difference it would make to Slocan were the lumbering industry flourishing. Mills would go up and scores of men would be employed. The Liberals refuse a duty on American lumber and the country is suffering.

W.A. Galliher points to the increase in the output of lead ore and says the people ought to be thankful for the flourishing condition of the mining industry, because of the lead bounty. Apart from a few Grit worshippers, the people of the Slocan, at least, are far from thankful for the bounty, for, in popular effect, it has proven a dismal failure. Population has not increased, business has not expanded, and property has not been enhanced in value. Since the bounty went into effect the very opposite has been the case. And if one excepts the leases through the Slocan, how few are the properties that are being operated. Were the bounty such an extreme benefit, why are there so many wet ore mines left idle by their owners? The lead bounty is being made a political question for the purpose of assisting in the election of a Grit candidate; and it has been kept in the front for months past by political agitators, some of whom think so much of the bounty as to leave their mines idle. But through all the talk of the lead bounty, there is an important point that has escaped public notice, and that is: the main beneficiaries of the government's generosity are a combination of political supporters who are waxing still richer at the expense of the public. The increased output of lead is mainly due to the operation of the St. Eugene mine, at Moyie, all other bounty claimants coming in for mere flea bites in comparison. These St. Eugene politicians have again and again pulled the wires and the Slocan men have jumped to do their bidding. The enlargement of the bounty to embrace lead concentrates shipped to Europe, but not to the States, is a a crying shame, for those who benefit thereby are those same wealthy politicians back of the St. Eugene. Canadians are furnishing money to build up smelting industries in a foreign country at the expense of their own. Pleasant thought, isn't it? Again, since the bounty went into effect,mine owners claim freight rates, treatment charges and the cost of supplies have all increased, therefore the small shipper is gradually getting into a worse condition than before. The big shippers get better rates in freight and treatment, while the small man pays the larger toll. Then, as the output of lead increases—as it will by the operation of the Sullivan, North Star, and Eastern Canadian mines; for the bounty is not confined to Kootenay,as Galliher implies in his speeches—the ratio of bounty decreases. Increased charges and decreased bounty benefits will thus be the portion of the small mining man. Let any unbiased man take a trip through the Lardeau and Slocan camps and he will be convinced that the evidences of a flourishing order of things are few and far between. Railway travel, express business, and postoffice receipts have all fallen off. In popular effect the lead bounty has been a failure. Too much politics.
