RE MONTREAL SIDEWALK.

EDITOR TRUTH: SIR,—I see by this morning's papers that the council have decided not to lay any sidewalk on Montreal Street for the present. Now I and several other residents on Montreal Street and ratepayers of the city wish to protest against the interference of a few busybodys who want to upset a fairly satisfactory arrangement of the council. A three-foot sidewalk is amply sufficient for the number of teams on Montreal Street, and for the foot passengers who use that street at the present. If the council do not lay a sidewalk before the wet weather commences it will be necessary for the residents who wish to appear respectable and not covered with mud—for Montreal Street had sufficient mud on it before it was graded, so I imagine it will be worse after having been so recently ploughed up—to lay a single plank so as to enable them to keep out of the mud. The absence of a proper sidewalk would also cause the disuse of the street by all not actually living on it, and would be a detriment to one of the first streets in the city. Yours, etc.,
RICHARD P. SHARP.

THE COUNSEL FOR THE DEFENCE SPEAKS.

He Urges an Acquittal and Says the Mystery Will Eventually Be Cleared Away —Victoria's Great Exhibition Bids Fair to Be a Grand Success—The Civic Holiday—Over 2,000 Entries—Fire Ravaging the Buildings.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., September 30.—Blackstock began his address to the jury for the defence at 7 minutes to 10, and pointed out the position occupied by the prisoner, the difficulties which his lawyer had to overcome in meeting evidence which had been sprung upon them by the crown, and he pointed out also the great preparations made for the case by crown and the enormous expense to secure a conviction as contrasted with the position of the defence. He appealed to the jury to acquit the prisoner and set the mob and press at defiance. The facts were he did bring out Pelley and Beswell under false statements, but the prisoner was not on trial for these misstatements nor for what he said to the crown witnesses. In closing, Blackstock said the time would come when this mystery would be cleared up, when the guilty man would come forward with a confession of his guilt.

The Victoria Exhibition.

VICTORIA, September 30.—[Special to TRUTH.]—Everything points to the exhibition of the agricultural association being a grand success. The show will be formally opened Thursday afternoon by the Lieutenant-Governor, and Friday will be observed as a civic holiday. Up to this afternoon the secretary had received over 2,000 entries, and a large gang of men are at work enlarging and erecting new buildings to accommodate exhibits. The grounds tonight are being illuminated by electricity. The steamer Rithet left for the Fraser tonight to bring down Mainland exhibits.

KILLED.

Poor Robert Fanning Meets his Death While Engaged in Taking Down the Celebration Arch on West Columbia Street. The Inquest and Verdict.

Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock Mr. Robert F. Fanning, master carpenter met with an accident that caused his death, while taking down the celebration arch on Columbia Street, for which he had the contract.

It appears that Fanning, who owned the lumber in the arch, wanted to save it for other purposes and instead of attaching a rope to one side of it in order to bring it bodily to the ground, was taking it to pieces gradually. Several other men helped him in the work, and meanwhile many remarks were made to the effect that they climbing about the scaffolding had better be careful, and that some of them appeared to forget this. Nearly all the evergreens had, however, been taken down without mishap and the work began on the upper part of the scaffolding, the planks of which were to come off one by one. Two men on each side held a rope which was also hitched to a cleat. Fanning was manipulating a heavy piece of timber in order to knock one of the huge flagstaffs down. While doing this the pole fell and struck him a terrible blow on the head. He immediately became unconscious and fell upon one of the cross pieces and there remained until his fellow workmen were able to carry him down. The blood flowed profusely from the ghastly wound made by the scantling on the side of his head. Dr. Cooper was quickly summoned and did all in his power for the unfortunate man who was meanwhile placed on a stretcher kindly provided by Mr. Perdue who witnessed the accident. Willing hands then carried poor Fanning to the Caledonian where he has resided since he came to Westminster. At the hotel the proprietor, Mr. McIntosh, did everything possible for the wounded man. The surgeons then discovered that there had been a severe concussion of the brain from which he was not likely to recover. The unfortunate man sank gradually until about noon when he breathed his last. Coroner Pittendrigh was immediately notified, when a jury was empanelled. After viewing the body the jury repaired to the City Hall where the inquest was held. The evidence of several persons was taken and in a few minutes the jury returned a verdict of accidental death, attaching blame to no one.

The funeral will take place this afternoon the cortege proceeding from the Caledonian Hotel to the Roman Catholic cemetery where the interment, which is being undertaken by the city, will take place. The deceased leaves four children, three boys and a little girl, all of whom it is understood are left unprovided. The eldest is a bright lad of 14, employed in this city. All the others are living with an aunt in Minneapolis. Fanning came west with his son about eight months ago from Minneapolis, and intended soon to bring the rest of his children to this city here to make their home with him. Deceased was a fine looking man of about 36 and a first rate mechanic in his line having superintended many important works in the city, the chief of them being the building of ex-mayor Townsend's house on Queen's avenue and St. Patrick Street. He has a brother living near Whatcom, Wash. It is more than likely that the little son John Fanning will be sent to Minneapolis with whatever money belonged to his unfortunate father, if there is any. If there be none it is more than likely that the city will undertake to see him safely to his friends. Enquiry might well be made into the circumstances of the family generally, with a view to help, as Fanning died whilst engaged on a public work and the children's aunt is probably poor.

Appearances Are Deceptive.

The popcorn man who does business at the corner of Clark and Center streets met with a ludicrous mishap Sunday evening, just at the hour when the streets were crowded with those who had spent the afternoon in the park. This vender of corn has occupied this place for years, and knows in which direction every car will turn as well as the switchman who turns the Lincoln avenue cars up Centre street. Those who have watched a street car as it rounds a curve have noticed how the front platform runs ahead, as though the car was going to continue in the same direction, and then gives a sudden lurch and whirls around the curve.

At the corner of Center and Clark the appearance to those who do not happen to know the cars is that all north bound trains continue up Clark street. As the cars near the corner it is the custom of this popcorn man to board all the trains in the endeavor to dispose of his buttered grain. Sunday evening as the north bound grip came thundering up Clark street Mr. Popcorn man placed himself, with his arms full of merchandise, right in the center of the Clark street track. As the train came nearer and nearer he never moved. On it came, and a stranger in the crowd which thronged the entrance of the park became desperate.

Dashing in front of the grip car he wildly seized the astonished popcorn man by the neck and twirled him to what he thought a place of safety. The popcorn flew like a million grasshoppers, and the old man swore like a trooper. Anybody who has heard the heartless laugh of a street crowd can get an idea of the roar of merriment that went up as the situation dawned upon the bystanders. But the most amusing thing of the whole affair was the look of blank amazement of that well meaning gentleman as he beheld the front car, with its two trailers, turn up Lincoln avenue.—Chicago News.

An Unfinished Shave.

This reminds the writer of an experience in the Arran Islands, on the west coast of Ireland. He had three weeks' growth of beard on his face, and he hunted over the three islands for a barber, at last finding one who was willing to undertake the job. The Arran barber had never shaved a Yankee, and was overjoyed at the chance. He was 20 years old, and had been engaged all his life at building stone walls. He sharpened his razor on a piece of smooth flagstone and seated his victim in a kitchen chair. One man held the patient's head and a dozen interested spectators looked on, for it was an altogether unprecedented event in the islands. The lathering was done with a piece of hard brown soap, which was rubbed over the face. Grabbing a handful of hair on top of the patient's head the stone wall builder flourished the razor in the air and exclaimed:

"Are ye all ready, sir?"

"All right," was the trembling reply. Down came the razor with a sweep like that of a scythe. The implement was evidently as full of teeth as a buzzsaw. It tore the hair out by the roots. It raised the victim bolt upright as if a cannon cracker had exploded. Tears gathered in his eyes. His hands clinched convulsively, and a rivulet of blood ran down his cheek. The butcher went to the window to wipe his weapon clean. While standing there he looked up and exclaimed sympathetically:

"Shure, sir, ye have a face as tinther as a little baby!"

The shave was concluded three weeks later in the city of Galway.—New York Sun.

Dust to Dust.

A thousand years hence—so says a member of the Academy of Sciences—nearly all the stone buildings now standing in Europe will have crumbled to dust. So perishable is the material of which they are constructed that the process of decay is already evident in many conspicuous edifices. The same thing is going on in this country. Neither marble nor our favorite brown stone can withstand the action of the elements. Even the Capitol at Washington is undergoing disintegration.

It may not be important that an ordinary dwelling house should last a thousand years. For sanitary reasons it is, perhaps, just as well that people should have to build their houses over again once every two or three centuries. But it is not agreeable to think that the Capitol and all the great churches in the country will have disappeared by the year of grace 2890.—New York Ledger.

Weighing Machine for Milk Sellers.

A very convenient weighing machine for milk sellers is now coming into use. There is a loose platform on the machine, and this is connected to a tipping hoist by which the railway churn can be raised and its contents discharged into the refrigerator. The machine is of a self registering type. The can is placed on it and the weight on the ticket; the milk is then emptied and the can returned for the tare to be taken and impressed on the ticket. There is thus no chance of mistakes occurring, while the operation is very expeditious.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Objected to the Licker.

Apropos of the present necessity for the separation of families by the often continued absence of the husband on the road, I know a little anecdote of a youngster who had seen so little of his father that he did not know him, and when, one Sunday morning, this same little fellow, being chastperons, was severely reprimanded by his impatient father, he went howling to his mother with the wail, "I ain't goin' to git licked by that old duffer who spends Sunday here."—Toledo Journal.

She Dun Forgot.

It was a Michigan woman who brought home some strychnine pills and left them on the stand where the 2-year-old baby could get at them and swallow a couple. She meant to have put them up on the clock shelf, but she dun forgot to.—Detroit Free Press.

THE DELTA FAIR

A GRAND EXHIBITION IN THE HORSE CLASSES.

Cattle, Sheep and Poultry Well to the Front—Roots and Vegetables that Beggar Description and Provoke Incredulity—A Threatening Morning Gives Way to a Bright Day—Full List of the Prize Winners.

LADNER'S LANDING, September 30.—Doubtless to the threatening appearance of the weather last night and this morning must be attributed the comparatively small attendance at the annual exhibition of the Delta Agricultural Society, which was held here today. The attendance from New Westminster and Vancouver was most disappointing, but under the conditions anything better could scarcely be expected. However, the district itself was well represented, and as it turned out the day was really a very fine one, although a trifle chilly in the morning and evening. As an exhibition of the products of the district, both live stock and farm produce, the fair was a most decided success. Nearly all the classes were most creditably filled with entries, but undoubtedly the main feature of the show was

THE LIVE STOCK.

In horses the animals on view represented a solid basis for future breeding operations, and the equine band as a whole is the nucleus of what in the future is sure to be an immensely important horse interest. Of course, as is all strictly pioneer farming settlements, the heavy strains predominated. There were a number of Clydesdales fit for the stud of the best breeding establishments in the east (from which, indeed, they have been imported) and with this groundwork of the Delta country there is no doubt of the future of horse breeding there.

Among the Clydesdale stallions shown was one owned by Gilchrist & McCallum, Prince Jest-in-Time, a big showy dapple grey, weighing probably over 1,700 lbs., 16 hands, and a girth, it was stated, of 7 ft. 2 inches, and a girth, it was stated, of 7 ft. 2 inches, and a girth, it was stated, of 7 ft. 2 inches

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

A view taken by prominent English writers as to the probable effect of the McKinley tariff on British industry is that the legislation will whilst reducing to a minimum English exports to the States, so increase the cost of producing most American manufactures that it will cause the loss to United States traders of many important foreign markets in which they now compete well with British merchants. Great Britain will thus gain in the part of her foreign trade what she loses in another. Such is the opinion of many able observers.

The McKinley Bill is, however, causing many in England to consider whether after all it will not be better to give some tariff preference to the colonies than continue excessively a policy of free imports in regard to the productions of states which seek absolutely to bar a return trade. The Pall Mall Gazette, of London, which has of late years been so strongly adverse in political views, and consequently strongly in favor of the existing British system of free imports, now makes a complete change of front on fiscal questions. It suggests that England should place duties on non-colonial products and form an imperial tariff union as an offset to the American legislation. This is a significant sign of the gradual trend of British popular opinion. Great Britain sets more strongly, every day, the value of improved mutual relations between her colonies and herself, and on equal terms between all parts.

Engineer Hall has just presented an interesting report to the Board of Commissioners and the City Council, as to the proposed waterworks. The cost of the first supply including sufficient mains for a population of 10,000 will, he estimates, be $280,000. When, however the city population reaches 14,000—which will fall soon—a second branch main will have to be laid from Beaver's tannery, at Sapperton to the high level storage reservoir at Queen's Park. This will add $30,000 to the cost of the works, and raise it to $310,000 in all. There will then be sufficient flow of water for a city of 22,000 people. The total main provided by the scheme will however be large enough to supply water to no less than 130,000 people—as soon as branch mains and piping are connected with it.

The water-rate system thus recommended was, therefore, almost unanimously meet the wants of more than 22,000 citizens and may be readily made available in the future for nearly six times that number. The scheme will also provide adequate protection in case of fire. The cost of the system, per head of population, will of course vary with our numbers. It would, however, seem, making reasonable allowance for what is almost invariable in such matters,—some excess of construction payment over estimates,—that the waterworks will involve a cost per head of a little over $14 a year. The cost estimated on a population of 8,000 is more than this, but it may be taken for granted that our city will have over 10,000 inhabitants before the completion of the scheme. City waterworks, when municipally controlled, seldom make any profit. In fact, they ought not so to do, a good, cheap water supply being absolutely essential to healthy social and industrial life. We, therefore, note, that after the charge of a reasonable amount to consumers for the supply in order to pay the interest on loan capital, cost of yearly maintenance and provide a sinking fund, the engineer expects a surplus of yearly income over expenditure of about $3,400. This seems large, but it will not improbably to reduced by payments which it is impossible to anticipate with absolute accuracy, and, if so, will not be more than sufficient to provide security for sudden emergencies involving large expenditure.

The sooner the waterworks are completed the better. Many of the houses of the city are, at present, very inadequately provided by water from wells, some of them shallow and uncovered, and thus filling largely with surface water, that may be and doubtless sometimes is polluted by drainage. Some of these wells too, especially those in the upper part of the city have run completely dry during recent summer months, and moreover house builders, anticipating an early public water supply, now do but little as a rule to provide sufficiently deep wells on the premises, or to keep the wells, when dug, in the best of order.

It is remarkable to note how rapidly good drainage and a pure water supply reduce a city death rate. Brighton, a busy English residential watering place of 115,000 people has thus, in a few years lessened its death rate, by no less than seven in the thousand annually and thus saved more than 800 lives during every twelvemonth. Facts like these point a moral not to be neglected even in our healthy Province.

Hollyhocks.

The hot days fold spring's tender petals down,
And even while we say, "The blooms are done,"
Lo! through the tangled gardens comes in one
Clad, all unconscious, in her quaint old gown.
Perchance the old time days we might forget
If hollyhocks or we not themselves abide—
How like old dames and squires moved to and fro
In stately measures of the minuet.
Now art thou welcome, O thou old time bloom,
Thou and thy friend, the fennel at thy side;
Our hearts like those in olden times are wide,
And in this new day summer is there room.
So let the old flowers and the new join hands
In happy gardens through the waning lands.
—Lucy L. Foley in Harper's Weekly.

In Luck.

A broker stepped out of the Broad street door of the Stock Exchange recently, apparently after having made some money. He espied a little mite of a ragged newsboy not three feet high, and a philanthropic notion took possession of him. He caught up the little bunch of rags, and carrying it to a cigar stand procured an empty cigar box. Thither placed in the dazed boy's hands. Then the broker dashed into the Exchange with a wild whoop that directed general attention to him. Instantly he was surrounded by a crowd, and Broker Dick Halstead threw a coin into the box, seized the boy, passed him to J. W. Bass, who also passed him on after dropping a contribution into the box.

Coins and bills began to rain into it. The Sugar trust crowd was invaded, then the New England crowd, and the pile of money in the box grew rapidly. The yells, the sight of the money and the general novelty of his trip were beyond the little fellow's comprehension. He simply stared blankly. Finally he was released. There must have been $50 in the box. He shot out of the exchange, and was last seen running up Nassau street, hugging the box tightly to his breast. Who he was, where he lived, or what he would do with his fortune no one knew.—New York Times.

The Small Boy's Rights Assailed.

The Jersey City small boy will be deprived this year of his right to eat green apples and get the colic. Health Inspector Benjamin has officially declared that green apples are a detriment to the public health and a menace to the growing republic. Moreover, he says they tend to make the inspector is nearly 50 years old, and has gray hair. He started out from his office yesterday looking for the forbidden fruit with all the ardor of a small boy. He met his sanitary policeman out, too. By noon they had visited twenty fruit stands and had captured nearly as many bushels of green apples. At the same time they had made every fruit vender they came across solemnly promise that he wouldn't buy or sell an apple in which the seeds were not black enough to prove that it was ripe. They didn't give the fruiterers any instructions as to how the color of the seeds in the apples was to be ascertained.—New York Sun.

Comfort with Negligé Shirts.

Wearers of negligé shirts ought to be thankful to a New Haven man, who has hit upon a means by which all the advantages of suspenders and belt can be had without any of the disadvantages. His plan is a very simple one and consists of wearing the suspenders next to the undershirt, the silk, cotton or flannel shirt being outside. At the waist of the outer shirt horizontal slits are cut and stitched like buttonholes. Through these slits the straps of the suspenders are brought and fastened to the trousers. A broad belt or sash covers the waistband, slits and straps, and the result is a belt effect with a suspender comfort.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Real Live, Wild Boy.

The Humane society of Pittsburg has turned up a genuine wild boy. He is reckoned, aged 13, and his name is supposed to be Harry Allen. He was brought from the mountains of Virginia because his parents, who lived there in a semi-civilized state, could not keep him at home. He would run away every time he was old enough to climb up the mountain side. Sometimes he would be in the woods alone for a month at a time. He lived on berries, roots and live birds, which he could catch with the facility of a cat. These birds he always ate raw. His hands are like claws, and the pupils of his eyes dilate like those of a cat.—Exchange.

A Brooklyn Man Who Had Only One Cloud in all His Sunshine.

"Why do I like Brooklyn better than New York? I'll tell you," said a former dweller on Manhattan island, who is now living in the City of Churches, to a reporter. "I moved over here in the first place because rents were lower. It was not more than a week after we were settled when we received a pleasant call from people living in our block, and an invitation to make our church home in connection with them in the Trinity Presbyterian church, at Marcy and Jefferson avenues. Inside of a month we had an agreeable circle of acquaintances, and were ourselves ready to extend a welcome to newcomers.

"Show me a neighborhood in New York where a family moving in is treated in that way, unless it be near a mission church. In New York the churches have a 'missionary' who makes a business of visiting, and whose visits are purely business calls. In Brooklyn the people do the visiting in person, and do it in a friendly way. In New York everybody is too busy and too conservative to think of his neighbor, unless it be to gossip about him, but in Brooklyn the people take time to make themselves agreeable to their neighbors.

"Another thing that is little in itself, but counts for a good deal in the long run, is the attention one receives on the elevated trains. The guards are more accommodating and seem to know more in Brooklyn. It puts me in a better humor all day when, in the morning, as I go to my business, I see an intelligent guard on the train who is a gentleman in acts as well as looks. I don't intend to be unreasonable, but I can't see why a guard in New York cannot be acquainted with distances and localities as well as a Brooklyn guard.

"One thing has bothered me, however, ever since I came here, and that is, why the conductors on the surface cars are obliged to ring up the fares when a passenger gets on the car. I have seen many a conductor who rang up fares, and had the passenger discover that he was on the wrong car and jump off before the fare was collected. But that is the only thing that has troubled me since I have been living here."—New York Tribune.

Keen Scent.

A gentleman in New York, the owner of one of the finest collections of butterflies in the country, has made an experiment which proves conclusively that butterflies are endowed not only with bright colors, but with marvelously acute senses. Out of his collection, comprising almost every known variety, he chose two butterflies which were only two or three days old, and had never had their freedom.

One of these he attached securely by a thread to the fence in the rear of his house in the upper part of New York. He marked the other so that he could identify it, and placing it in a small box carried it down town to one of the ferries, across the river to Hoboken, and some distance into the city of Hoboken.

Here it was turned loose. When the experimenter reached his house, several hours later, he found the two butterflies side by side on his back fence. The butterfly which was but just born, and had never before had its liberty, had traveled several miles, crossed a wide river and promptly found its way back to its mate in one of those back yards of New York which are almost indistinguishably alike in their ugliness.

This seemed a most extraordinary feat to one of a party of gentlemen to whom the story was told by the experimenter, and he asked a well known naturalist whether it could be believed. The naturalist answered that the sense of smell, which was undoubtedly in this case the butterfly's guide, was in many animals so wonderfully acute that to him the case did not seem remarkable, much less unbelievable.—Youth's Companion.

Growth of Yacht Agencies.

Nothing shows the growth of yachting in America more than the growth of the yacht agency. If a man wants to buy, sell or charter a yacht he goes to a yacht agency. In a large New York agency a list can be found of every yacht for sale or for charter in the United States and England. Every detail concerning them is also there on record. Besides this there is a list of the yachts which the proprietor of the agency has on hand for sale or charter. This is not all. Crews, sailing masters, and all sorts of appliances for yachts are furnished by the agency. From small beginnings the yacht agencies have become large and well paying business enterprises.—New York Tribune.

Bismarck's Favorite Flower.

Prince Bismarck's fondness for heather is not a new fancy. With him the heather is, more truly than the primrose was to Lord Beaconsfield, "his favorite flower." Nearly thirty years ago, when minister to Paris, he made a trip to the south of France, visiting among other places Chamford. Writing to his wife from Bordeaux, under date July 27, 1865, Bismarck says: "From inclosed specimens of heather you will no longer be able to see how purple this plant I am so fond of blooms there—the only flower in the royal garden, and swallows almost the only living creatures in the castle. For sparrows it is too lonely."—London News.

Salt for Toothache.

Salt is good for the stomach. A pinch of it in hot water, taken either just before or just after a meal, is a valuable aid to digestion, and a cupful of very hot salt water will sometimes quiet the most persistent nausea.

A little girl who was told to put some in an aching tooth says, "I just put in a little salt, and in a few minutes I felt the naughty aching nerve curl right down and go to sleep."—New York Evening Sun.

AGENTS FOR WELLS FARGO & CO

One of the Most Certain Agents for Causing Death by Slow Poisoning.

Of the number of those seeking suicide by swallowing some form of poison, probably there are few who have sought to kill themselves by means of ammonia. Nevertheless ammonia, although it is the active agent in most of the salts sold to women for their gilt decorated and perfumed scent bottles, is poisonous when taken internally in a concentrated form. To attest this there have been recently in New York several cases, the most recent being that of Herman Harowitz, of which Deputy Coroner Jenkins said that death took place in a comparatively short time after the ammonia was taken. In another case, that of a child, Dr. Jenkins said death resulted in five minutes after swallowing the ammonia solution.

There are on record also cases of slow poisoning from ammonia administered with intent to commit murder. Furthermore, the appearance of workmen in guano factories, where ammonia is set free by grinding guano, has been noted, and in every case there is an unmistakable system of poisoning. This is discoloration of the skin of the face, which assumes a blotched, dirty appearance. First to take on this appearance is the skin of the nose and forehead. Autopsies of those who die from ammonia poisoning reveal a dark hue on the mucous membrane lining the stomach and intestines.

As an agent for causing death by slow poisoning ammonia is one of the most certain and most difficult of detection, owing to its volatile nature. This quality has led physicians to believe that some of the mysterious deaths that have taken place in the history of modern and mediæval crime are due to ammonia. It is known now that months have elapsed between the first symptoms of sickness and the death of a person from ammonia poisoning. On the other hand, death has resulted in four minutes from the time a large draught of ammonia has been swallowed. It has been found in cases of gradual absorption of ammonia in the human system that there is a general elimination of healthy oxidation of the blood and a consequent lowering of the bodily strength. In the cases of immediate poisoning death comes with frightful agony, as in the case of Harowitz. Blood gushed from his nose and mouth.

Statistics in England put ammonia thirteenth in frequency in the list of poisons. Alexander Winter Blyth, medical officer of health in the St. Marylebone district, London, cites thirty cases of poisoning by ammonia swallowed for the purpose of committing suicide, or administered with the purpose of committing murder, or absorbed unconsciously in food. Of the suicidal cases six were fatal. Of twenty accidental cases twelve were fatal. Of cases of murder with ammonia Dr. Blyth notes two, both of them children.—New York Sun.

Rents of Stores in Hotel Buildings.

"That interesting period has come in the history of New York real estate," said an architect and builder, "when a judiciously planned building, no matter to what business purpose it is originally dedicated, may be made to contain on its street fronts stores enough, to be devoted to other and distinct businesses, to pay by their rentals the interest on the cost of constructing the entire building. A hotel draws people to its vicinage, and a great hotel would draw people enough even to a new locality to give good custom to the shops to which the ground floor could be appropriated. A single store room under the Fifth Avenue hotel pays a rental of $15,000 annually. The rentals such a hotel might receive would enable it to exist without any guests at all, just as the New York Central Railroad company is said to own enough real rent paying estate to enable it, out of its income so received, to pay actually a dividend on its bonds, even if it never sent out a train."—New York World.

Facts About Ammonia.

The name of the chemical agent ammonia dates back to remote antiquity. In Europe the chief source of the supply of ammonia up to the latter part of the last century was Egypt. It was made originally from camel's dung collected in the neighborhood of the temple of Jupiter Ammon, hence the name ammonia. The droppings were collected in March and April by Arabs, then dried and burned and the soot collected. This was sold to merchants, and ammonia was collected from the soot by a chemical process. It is now almost entirely made from crude gas liquor in illuminating gas manufactories. Only half as much ammonia is made in summer as in winter. Hence ammonia is always more costly in summer. Furthermore, ammonia is extensively used in the manufacture of artificial ice.—New York Sun.

Lunacy in Berlin.

The number of lunatics in the asylums of the city of Berlin, which was 1,502 in 1880-83, amounted to 2,338 in 1889. This shows a very large increase in the number of insane persons relatively to the growth of the population. In the period referred to the increase in the population was 22.49 per cent., while the increase in the number of lunatics was 59.79 per cent. The number of insane persons in confinement in the whole German empire rose between Jan. 1, 1881, and the same date in 1890, from 24,770 to 42,609, being an increase of 34.5 in the five years, as against an increase of 8.6 per cent. in the general population in the same period.—Chicago Herald.

The French Mother.

A bright man told me the other night, apropos of women all over the world, that if he wanted a companion he would seek an American; if a wife an Englishwoman, and if a mother a Frenchwoman. Certainly they are good mothers, and the love existing between mother and child is invariably strong, while the Frenchman's belief in the rights of a mother is shown in the way laws are framed with due regard for parental opinion.—Paris Letter.

Forestry Detectives' Gallery.

There have recently been many complaints to the postmaster concerning the loss of registered letters in the Philadelphia office, and the officials have been greatly worried by the charges that there were thieves in the service. It has been decided to erect a gallery along the roof of the working room, from which watchmen can look down upon the entire force without being seen from below. This gallery will be eighty feet long, and will depend from the glass and iron ceiling by iron supports. In it there will be frequent small windows with swinging sashes, from which the watchman can see every part of the great room where the stamping and distributing is all done. Here there are 300 men at work at times, and it is impossible to oversee all of them from any other point than above.

The watch is to be kept not alone for the purpose of watching for thefts, but also to see that men do not shirk their work or disturb other clerks by conversation. The gallery will be reached by an iron stairway at its southern end, and at its northern end another iron stairway will ascend to the glass roof. There are two of these roofs, one above the other, and it is necessary for workmen to ascend to the lower one to clean it of dust. There is now no way to reach there except by putting up a ladder. It is said that it is purely for this purpose that the gallery goes up, but there is another use. There has been talk of having such a structure for nearly two years. Assistant Custodian George Painter has been agitating the matter, and has finally succeeded in getting the work done.—Philadelphia Record.

Porpoise Shooting.

Porpoise shooting is the newest sport at Cape May. The seaward end of the pier is the favorite rendezvous for those who want to get a shot at the swiftly moving fish. The marksman must have a steady hand and always be in readiness to shoot, because the movements of the porpoise are so uncertain that one does not have time to raise the gun to the shoulder before they are out of sight beneath the water. The women take as much interest in the sport as the men, and quite a number are out every afternoon perched on the lower deck of the pier, rifle in hand, and waiting for a good chance to shoot. The sport seems to be more in the attempt to capture big game than in successful results, as it is quite rare for one of the fish to be killed and washed upon the shore.—Exchange.

No Peaches This Year.

A letter from Dover, Del., to The Baltimore American says: "A drive through what ought to be the center of the peach belt—lower Kent and upper Sussex counties—will convince any one that the much abused peach liar of this peninsula will have no chance this season, for the reason that there are no peaches to lie about." There are miles and miles of thrifty looking peach orchards wholly destitute of fruit. The buds were killed by cold, sleety rains in the spring.

Midsummer Recreation in Philadelphia.

A big crowd gathered around a Ridge avenue oyster saloon yesterday watching a basket of clams in the role of fly catchers. Hungry flies were attracted by hundreds, but retiring too near the open mouths of the bivalves the shells closed on them in an instant.—Philadelphia Press.

Notice to Insurance Companies.

This is the time when insurance companies should rank the driver of the trotting horse as an extra hazardous risk. If he is not being killed by a railroad collision, or by somebody taking off the wheel of the sulky on the track, he is being "dumped" in the pools.—Detroit Free Press.

Cancellation of Reserve

NOTICE is hereby given that the reserve which was placed upon Crown lands which are situate in the valley of the stream flowing into Fitt Lake at its northern end, notice of which was published in the British Columbia Gazette and dated the 22nd July, 1890, has been cancelled, and the lands will be open to preemption three months from this date.

THE CITY.

Items of General Interest Collaborated for "Truth's" Numberless Patrons. A Missing City Council. A Dangerous Sidewalk. Montreal Street Sidewalk. Foot-ball Team for England. Good News for the Dominion.

New Advertisements Today.

Whip found.

Weather Report.

Captain Peele has kindly furnished us with the following meteorological observations taken yesterday: Thermometer—max. 61, min. 52. Barometer, 29.93. Southwesterly breeze. Indications of fair weather for the next 24 hours.

For Victoria.

The steamer R. P. Rithet will leave this city at 7 o'clock this morning for Victoria, carrying all exhibits for the fair to be held there, at a reduced figure. A large number of exhibits from the principal industries of our city and the Delta district will be forwarded.

A Missing City Council.

The Vancouver City Council failed to meet on Monday but there were not enough members present to form a quorum. A cynical critic of municipal action says that if they, therefore, did no good they at least kept out of mischief. However, joking apart, an occurrence like this should not happen in an important city.

A Dangerous Sidewalk.

There is a badly jagged and broken piece of sidewalking on Canton Street next Clinton Place. Someone may easily break an ankle here on some dark night, and then demand and get heavy damages from the city as compensation. The city Board of Works department will please note.

Lacrosse.

It has been arranged that a junior lacrosse match should take place between the teams of this city and Vancouver on the 11th of October, a week from next Saturday. Last time the juniors crossed sticks a most interesting and exciting match was played. The home team came out victorious, and it is to be hoped that similar fortune awaits them in their next match. Regular practices will be held every evening until that date, and it is hoped that every junior in the city having a stick will turn out.

The Exhibition Gate Money.

The receipts at the gates of Queen's Park during the exhibition compare most favorably with those of last year. Last year the receipts amounted to about $1700, while taxes that amount is nearer the mark for this year. It is estimated that about 6000 people entered last year's fair in the exhibition buildings, while this year the number is put at about 12,000. We venture to prognost that there will be over 20,000 in attendance at the next fair.

The Sidewalk of Montreal Street.

A number of Montreal street residents are dissatisfied with the decision of the council, not to put a 3-foot sidewalk along Montreal Street. Better a 2-foot one than none at all, they think. Those who petitioned to lay none down for the present, they consider very mistaken in making the former decision. However, the result will probably be that the Montreal Street men and women will have to go with boots unblacked and thick with gravelly mud for the whole of a rainy autumn. Some of the dissenting Montrealers now think of petitioning the council to let them lay a single plank from Clinton Street, as far as their own gateways. They say old lumber is not very dear, and they have just enough public spirit to do this charitable work in aid of a hard beset council.

A Large Undertaking.

The Victorians are trying to obtain sufficient capital to build a very large new dock at Esquimalt at a cost of $2,500,000, and have, with this object, approached Sir Hector Langevin to ask what subsidy the Dominion Government will contribute. Sir Hector, according to the Vancouver World's Ottawa correspondent, settled a formal application, by stating that there was already an agreement for the Dominion Government to grant a subsidy of $10,000 for ten years towards any approved new dock. This, however, will not go very far towards the large expenditure projected. Victoria evidently means, if possible, to make a most vigorous effort to prevent Vancouver from wresting the maritime supremacy in British Columbia from her. It will not, however, be easy to raise so large a sum as $2,500,000.

A Football Team for England.

The leading east Canadian footballers are arranging for a representative team to visit the principal cities of England, Scotland and Ireland, during the fall of next year, and the spring of '92. They will, it is understood, find no difficulty in arranging fixtures, with all the principal British and Irish clubs, and it is expected will give an excellent account of themselves. They will begin at Glasgow about the end of September, and return to Canada about the end of July 1892. In order to secure fixtures with all the clubs, arrangements are even now being made in anticipation by Messrs. Gait, of Toronto, and Forsythe, of Berlin, Ont.

The mayor and aldermen of this city have accepted an invitation to attend the show in Victoria, which opens on the 3rd proximo.

All accounts against the celebration committees are required to be delivered to the chairmen of the various sub-committees by tomorrow.

The steamer Delaware arrived from Chilliwack and way points yesterday, bringing 30 passengers and a heavy consignment of hay, fruit and other farm produce.

The building of a fairly large and convenient parish room and young men's club house, at Sapperton, is contemplated by the rector, the Ven. Archdeacon Woods.

Yesterday all day a heavy wind was blowing at Nanaimo and the east coast of Vancouver Island, while the wind was only travelling at the rate of 22 miles an hour here.

Last week an asylum patient named Neil Meffay died at the age of 60 years. Mr. Faler, the undertaker, took charge of the body, which was interred at Douglas Street cemetery.

The planking of the hull of the new ferry boat is nearly finished, and as soon as the engines are ready she will be launched. Messrs. Reid & Currie are now making the engines.

Are the city churches going to have no harvest festival services in thanksgiving for a bountiful supply of the kindly fruits of the south, on which British Columbia prosperity so much depends.

It is said that ten acres of land across the river near the new ferry landing will be cleared and made into a recreation ground. It will be fully in order then at least to organize a city athletic association.

PERSONALS.

Prominent People Paragraphed by a Pungent Pen.

Mr. James Orr has returned from Ladner's, where he attended the fair. He is stopping at the Dougles, and will return home this morning.

Mr. Simon F. Tolmie, who has been in the city for several days, has returned to Victoria. Mr. Tolmie will soon return to Toronto, where he will finish his course in the veterinary college.

A party of Vancouverites, consisting of H. Lee, D. Gribbles, W. Haywood, J. Gibson and D. MacDonald, came over yesterday morning and proceeded up river on a hunting tour in the country about Chilliwack, Popcorn, Jeffry's Bar and Harrison Hot Springs.

Mr. J. J. Hill, general manager for the Great Northern railway, and a party of railway officials, are on their way over the C.P.R. in their private car. They will arrive in the city this afternoon. To-morrow morning the gentlemen, accompanied by Mr. Hill, will go over on a tour of inspection over the Westminster Southern.

Good News for the Dominion.

A new steamship syndicate is to be formed in London with Lord Herrington as chairman and Messrs. Baring Brothers and Co. and Messrs. N. M. Rothschild & Sons as bankers. The new company offers to build four steamers to ply between French and English ports and Canada at a speed of nine knots an hour and to cost $1,750,000 each, provided that the Government grants a sufficient subsidy. The names behind this scheme, representing as they do, many millions of pounds of easily raised capital should sufficiently assure its financial status, and secure from the Dominion Government a reasonable subsidy, as Canada urgently needs such a fast transatlantic service.

Found Drowned.

Yesterday morning some Chinese ranchers about a mile or so down the river, on the north arm, observed something floating down the river with the tide, and upon examination it was found to be a human body. Of course the Mongolians would not touch it, but hailed some Indians, who, ever on the alert to earn an honest dollar, quickly passed a rope around the body and, drawing it to the shore, took it to a stump. Chief of Police Pierce was informed of the find, who in turn notified Mr. Moresby, who with a few assistants went down the river, where the body was found tied to a tree on Poplar Island. It was brought to town and taken to the undertaking rooms of Marchee & Co., on Clarkson Street, where the body was identified by several men as that of John Jones, the late assistant fireman of the steamer Irving, who was missed suddenly about a fortnight since. Coroner Fitzenrigh was notified, and at once a jury was empanelled. The body was viewed, and after taking what evidence was forthcoming a verdict of "found drowned" was returned. Friends of the unfortunate man then took charge of the body which was placed in a coffin and left over night in the undertaking rooms. The funeral will take place this afternoon, when all friends of the deceased are invited to attend. Jones was a native of Rome, N.Y., about 39 years of age. He has been in the city about ten years, during which he has worked as fireman on many of the river steamers.

THAT SIDEWALK.

EDITOR TRUTH: SIR,—I am very sorry to see that the City Council has decided not to put a sidewalk of any kind down Montreal Street this winter, so that during the next three or four months the residents of that important thoroughfare, myself and family included, will be under the necessity of trudging through mud to the ankles to get to and from our house. It appears to me that there are a few residents up on this street who are running the council in this connection. First they want a sidewalk which the council grant, then that body is again petitioned not to lay a sidewalk which request is also granted. This is a very strange proceeding, and looks as though the aldermen did not know their own minds. The few petitioners have the streets running north and south, passing their doors, so that it might easily be said that they will not wet the soles of their shoes in getting indoors, while many others who happen to live between the blocks where there are no sidewalks will have to wade through mud and mire until a six-footer is laid down. You can easily see, Mr. Editor, the unfairness of this extraordinary proceeding on the part of our wise men elect. I think if Alderman Hoy were to trot around among us he would be able, without any difficulty, to obtain three times seventeen signatures to a petition to secure a three foot sidewalk, which would be better than none at all. For the life me I cannot imagine why the six-foot sidewalk for our street up here could not have been included in the estimates early last spring. There are some streets with not half the number of houses that have splendid new sid-walks, while we are left without. Hoping you can find space for this in your esteemed paper. Yours, etc.,
