IRISH DESTITUTION

DISASTROUS FAILURE OF THE POTATO CROP IN IRELAND.

A Sad Condition of the Peasantry in the Southern Districts—Decrease in Irish Emigration of Late, But an Increase Is Expected in View of the Harvest Failure—The Arrests—Court Adjourned.

LONDON, September 27.—One million of human beings of the same blood and race as a million on the American side of the Atlantic are in imminent peril of starvation. Such is the plain fact, irrespective of any political question, as to the threatened famine in Ireland. Your correspondent has made a special enquiry, and investigation in order to get at the truth without a shadow of prejudice and controversy which obscures everything in relation to Ireland, and the above is in brief his conclusions. The time has gone by for advice and suggestions. It is now only a question of rescue, and yet one might travel many miles in the more prosperous parts of Ireland without seeing any signs of misery and want that prevail in the more remote but altogether too thickly inhabited sections. At least one half of the people of Ireland are occupiers of small agricultural holdings along the bleak western shore where the fury with which Atlantic gales gather in 3,000 miles of uninterrupted scope across the ocean, falls with irresistible force, chilling the soil with excessive rains and preventing the sun's warmth from reaching struggling vegetation. Stock raising is out of the question as there is no outside labor to bring in money, and when potatoes fail the cotter goes hungry. In these western districts the potato is a complete and utter failure. The pinch of want is already felt, and with cold weather it will become more and more acute, and of Ireland's 5,000,000 of people at least a fifth will see Christmas with rejoicing and without even the coarsest food in their wretched cabins. A generation has grown up since the great famine, but illustrations of that day have handed down a sad spectacle of graveyards, thronged with meagre corpses and gaunt forms to rags shivering over peat fires in their miserable homes. Is this picture to be repeated? If not it is not too soon to be talking of measures for relief.

EXTENT OF THE POTATO BLIGHT.

The district chiefly affected extends from Donegal round by Mayo, Connemara, Clare and King and to the southwest extremity of Cork and in the mountainous regions of many other counties. No such potato blight has appeared in south Wexford since 1847. In many portions of Wexford, Kilkenny and Carlow the potato crop is a total failure. There has been of late a perceptible decrease in emigration from Ireland, but it is already beginning to show an increase in view of a bad harvest. Col. Caldell has fully justified what was said of him in these dispatches by his conduct as presiding magistrate in Tipperary. Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon might have been arrested for any one of a dozen speeches, but Balfour wanted them tried before Caldell, and before Caldell the trial went. Scenes at the Tipperary court have stirred all England, and will be heard from effectively in Parliament as well as in the next general election.

TIPPERARY, September 27.—The court adjourned without hearing any evidence until Monday.

AMERICAN TARIFF BILL.

Your correspondent has good authority for the statement that England is preparing to surrender in the matter of meat inspection. The surrender will be accompanied with a certain amount of fuming and disputed delay, but the present system, which amounts in practice to an embargo on live cattle from the United States will be repealed. The Government, while anxious to please the farmers, cannot afford to quarrel with artisans and manufacturers by running a chance of the exercise against England of the power reposed in the President of the United States. The Meat Inspection Act recently passed by the American Congress with France and Germany is a matter very different. Both countries are fortifying the protective features of their customs tariffs, and in France especially the tariff agitation partakes of enthusiasm. French wine growers would be affected by an American embargo, the United States being one of the best customers for French wines, but popular feeling in France is much aroused by what is regarded as an American menace. An American gentleman who has just crossed to London from France, after a journey in the rural districts, says that every peasant is accursed to the defense of French as against the alien pig and that the price of meat is quite lost sight of in the patriotic features of the controversy. The new French tariff will so far follow the McKinley Bill as to give the Government power to modify it in favor of those nations that admit French goods free.

Mercier's Loyalty.

MONTREAL, September 27.—At the dinner given in this city to members of the Alpine Club, of France, who are now visiting Canada, Premier Mercier delivered the most aggressively French speech he has delivered, and one that is causing a good deal of comment in political circles. He declared Quebec would remain loyal to Great Britain as long as Great Britain would carry out its engagements respecting the laws, language and customs of the French people of Canada. If Great Britain ever failed to carry out loyally its engagements towards the French, then the latter would be freed of their engagements. This remark of the premier is supposed to refer to the anti-French campaign in Ontario, Manitoba and the Northwest.

An Unwelcome Intruder.

On Friday night last the family of Mr. S. A. Webster, on Montreals and Columbia streets, were startled by the loud noise of some one walking about the house on the ground floor. Upon examination it was discovered by one of the young ladies, who were alone in the house, that a burly looking man was endeavoring to make his way up stairs with a lighted lamp. All in the house were aroused, and were naturally very much excited. They locked the doors of their apartments with all possible haste, and shouted out for help at the windows. The intruder had by this time come to the door of one of the rooms, tried to open it, and upon being unsuccessful, knocked and asked to be let in. Mr. A. E. Fitzsimmons, living near by, heard the calls for help, and was soon rushing up stairs after the man who, when he found out he was being pursued, ran out to the upper balcony, and jumped to the garden below, a distance of some 15 or 20 feet. By this time there were several men on the scene, who all joined in the pursuit, and succeeded in running down their man on Columbia Street, where he was held until the arrival of the police, who had meantime been telephoned for. He was taken to the Central police station, and will be given a hearing on Monday morning.

Returned from the North.

The Islander arrived in Victoria yesterday after a pleasant tour in northern waters. Captain Irving had 60 guests aboard, who were delighted with the picturesque scenery which they saw during their brief voyage. Had the trip been arranged a little earlier in the summer the Islander would have been crowded with guests.

Called Away.

Our esteemed fellow citizen, Mr. Thomas J. Forfar, has been called upon to mourn the loss of his wife, who departed this life early on Friday morning last, after a short but severe illness. The esteemed lady was well known and highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. She was a sister of the Messrs. McFee, the well known ship builders. What makes the bereavement all the sadder is the fact that less than a year ago she was led to the altar a bride. The funeral will take place this afternoon from the residence of Mr. Forfar, on Douglas Street, at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. Forfar in his hour of trial will have the sincere sympathy of the whole community; but, alas, how futile any word of condolence at such a time!

Where Are They?

In clearing out the exhibits from the exhibition building yesterday morning, many people found that some of their property entered for show was missing. A vigorous search for the missing articles was instituted, but nothing could be seen of them, and the conjecture is that they have been taken by some persons feloniously inclined. The articles must have been taken during yesterday afternoon, after four o'clock, for at that time they were all right. There were several "specials" in the building, but none of them saw any person acting in a suspicious manner. The articles taken were pieces of fancy work which, it is not likely, would be taken by men. It is just possible that the temptation was too great for some female kleptomaniac.

VICTORIA VS. WESTMINSTER.

The Visitors Win the First Game in the Series by Two Goals.

It is a hard thing to say, but the Westminster team had not a ghost of a chance against the Victorian's yesterday at Queen's Park in the first match of the series to be played by the various clubs in the Football Association of this Province. Our boys went in three men short, and, speaking technically, as is always the case in these columns, little interest centered in the matter. Every one knew it was a foregone conclusion that we hadn't a chance. It was thought improper to give us the match since the Victorian's were in the city, so the match was played. The following gentlemen composed the respective teams:

WESTMINSTER.		VICTORIA.
Brealey	back	Lascelles
Macfarlane	three fourths	Fraser
Morrison	back	Arbuthnot
Stewart		Ward
Mathers	half backs	Miller
Greene		Richardson
		Wilson
		Drake
Lister	forwards	Church
Fairclough		Kennedy
Pickles		Mortimer
Heather		Johnstone
Duncan		Langley
Bell		Tyrer
		Billingham

Victoria kicked off when the ball was sent down nearly to Westminster's goal from which dangerous position Brealey kicked it well away. It was, however, returned where several scrimmages took place during which there was some excellent passing on the part of the visiting team. They were all heavier men than ours. Kennedy, who would surely be the strong man of a battery, then gripped the ball in a scrimmage rushed through the ranks of the home team and gained a goal try for Victoria. Ward then kicked a splendid goal. Westminster then again started the ball, but the visitors worked it gradually back into the home quarters. Our men were then more than once obliged to touch down for safety. After several scrimmages Fuller by a splendid run secured a second try for his team and another goal was obtained by Victoria.

SECOND HALF.

Ends were now changed to the advantage of the Westminster team who had now to play down hill. Knowing this they made a somewhat spirited rush which made half the visitors stare with astonishment. Malins secured the leather, which received one from the end of his toe which sent the ball flying far towards Victoria's quarters where Lowe was missed(?) and it was seized by Lister who with a "get a move on" run secured a try for Westminster. Macfarlane then tried a difficult kick at a goal from an angle, but the ball, blown by the force of the wind, missed its mark. Work was again resumed, and the ball continued for some time in mid field until the Victorians gradually worked their way to Westminster's quarters, where many scrimmages took place. The visitors forwards now played up so hard that our men seemed quite unable to return the ball past them. Upon several occasions Kennedy would then have secured a try, if he had not been prevented from so doing by Stewart, who got away like a deer. Finally Miller got the leather out of a scrimmage and gained a try, when Ward scored another goal by one of his famous kicks. This ended the match, which went wholly in favor of the visitors. The Westminster men are liable to want of practice. They do not play well together, and in yesterday's match were besides three men short represented by a team including three others who had not seen a football for nearly a year, and not attended a single practice for a twelvemonth. There is too much selfishness in our men's play. They do not pass at all, evidently having no confidence in their half and three-quarter backs, perhaps on account of their want of practice. If they are not to lose other matches equally badly, the best men must make a point of playing, and not prefer to ramble elsewhere, and more than one change must be made in the composition of the team.

A Bit of Advice from an Old Fisherman.

Get to a drug store as soon as you can, and buy two ounces of the best olive oil mixed with one ounce of lime water, and a drop or two of rose water just to scent it. Then rub it on your burned face, and it will take all the inflammation out in next to no time.—Exchange.

It is estimated that nearly 200,000 persons visit the White mountains annually, and the income from the mountain houses is about $1,000,000, of which $1,000,000 is clear profit.

BURCHELL'S DANGER

APPARENTLY UNCONCERNED IN HIS TERRIBLE CONDITION.

His Wife and He Have Passage Engaged for England—"One Word and I Am Free"—General Opinion Is Unfavorable to His Acquittal—"The Swamp of Death"—Interviewed by a Reporter—In His Cell.

WOODSTOCK, September 27.—It is stated here on good authority tonight that Mrs. Burchell and her sister, Mrs. Jones, have engaged berths on the steamer leaving New York on October 8. Whether they expect Burchell to accompany them is unknown, but arrangements for his passage have been made. When spoken to in the court house today about his case Burchell said, "All I have got to do is to speak one word and I am free." His opportunity will come. Peel and Charles Boswell expect to be in Woodstock on Tuesday and will sail for England on October 1st. Mrs. Burchell had a brief interview with her husband in jail. It is said to have been very affecting. The general opinion is that the jury will find a verdict of conviction in a very short time after retiring. Burchell has perceptibly changed in the last 24 hours. He keeps a bold front, but occasionally a haunted expression creeps over his face. As United Press correspondent visited Burchell in jail this afternoon. The prisoner was sunning himself in the yard in company with his keeper. His cell has a carpet on the floor, potted plants in the window, and walls covered with sporting pictures. He has painted on the white washed walls some tasteful sketches, the subjects mostly horses or women. He has a sleeping room besides, on the chair were a number of sheets of paper, closely written on both sides. An inspection showed they were notes of evidence in the trial. They were arranged consecutively and were full enough to make an excellent report of the testimony from. Burchell would make a good reporter. The United Press correspondent also visited "the swamp of death" this afternoon. A large crowd was there. Many farmers had left their teams on the side of the road and were looking at the scene of the tragedy. Neville Pickthall, who was once accused of being concerned in the murder, expresses indignation that he was not called as a witness. He says he will now make a public explanation through the papers of his whole connection with the Burchell case. Little dependence is placed upon the evidence of Millman and McQueen that they saw Burchell in Woodstock about the time of the murder.

Weather Report.

Captain Peele has kindly furnished us with the following meteorological observations taken yesterday: Thermometer—max. 68, min., 46 Barometer, 29.94. Fogs at nightfime, with light southwesterly breezes during the afternoon. Indications of unsettled weather for the next 24 hours.

A Lucky Man.

The raffle for the gold watch owned by Mr. Stirsky was conducted last evening at the Hotel Douglas amid a great amount of excitement. The first throw went up to 48, which number every one thought would win, and odds were given at $100 to $1 on it, but found no one who had a spare cartwheel to lose. The last number but two was held by Mr. J. M. MacGregor, of THE TRUTH, which number, when thrown, figured up 49. Thus the watch was won.

The Delta Fair.

This fair opens on Tuesday morning at Ladner's Landing and promises to be a great success. The number of entries already made and in view, the officers of the society inform us, are very far ahead of last year. As stated in these columns a day or two ago, the steamer Adelaide has been chartered to run from Westminster to the landing on Tuesday morning, leaving the wharf here at 8 o'clock. The visitors will be brought back in the evening on the Dunsmuir. This arrangement is most satisfactory and it is to be hoped that a large number of our citizens will take advantage of it.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

A Pleasant Trip Over the Completed Portion—Notes of Progress—When the Road will be Finished—Business Prospects—A Great Ferry to be Constructed—Freight Arrangements.

On the invitation of the officials of the Westminster Southern railway, a large party of gentlemen took a trip over the completed portion of the railway yesterday morning. The party were carried across the river to the end of the track on Mr. Ewen's steamer and were landed at the extensive wharf that has recently been completed about a mile up the river from Brownsville. Among those present were Mr. B. Douglas, president of the road; Mr. Hy. Thompson, solicitor for the company, Mr. E. M. Wilson, general manager of the Fairhaven Southern railway, Mr. J. P. Jones, superintendent of construction, Mayor Brown, Mr. F. Burrell, Mr. Lockerby (Montreal), Mr. John White, Mr. C. M. Boucher, Mr. D. J. Munn, Mr. A. G. Gamble, Mr. T. J. Trapp, Mr. J. W. Harvey, Mr. John Hendry, Mr. Wm. Dalby, Mr. Joseph Bonsowitz, Mr. S. T. Mackintosh, Mr. H. Hoy, Mr. J. S. Clute, Mr. H. M. Stromberg, Capt. Peele, Mr. H. Elmer, Mr. Wm. Baillie, Mr. P. McNair, and several others.

A caboose and flat car were awaiting the arrival of the party, and when all were aboard, the locomotive whistle tooted, and the first formal trip over the completed portion of the Southern railway was begun. The line skirts the Fraser River for about six miles, and then plunges into the dense wood in a southeasterly direction. Those of our citizens who have never been on the other side of the river in that direction, would be surprised and delighted with the splendid view of New Westminster and the noble Fraser flowing past it, which is to be had from the new railway. It was greatly admired by the party yesterday, and freely admitted to be the prettiest view of this pretty city to be had from any point.

The first stop made was at the Ben Accord cannery. The party alighted from the train there and were conducted by Mr. D. J. Munn through his fine establishment. The active operations for the season are now ended, and the big building is almost filled with huge stacks of canned salmon and fruit. Mr. Munn opened a number of cans of pieces of various kinds, cherries and fish, and the gentlemen were invited to test their quality. Mr. Lockerby, of Montreal, is a wholesale grocer now, and has had much experience in handling canned fruit. He pronounced the plums, particularly the green gages and egg plums, equal to anything he had ever tasted, and the cherries easily bore off the palm from eastern productions of the same fruit. He was quite enthusiastic in speaking of the Ben Accord brands, and predicted that a great industry would yet be developed in this Province in fruit canning.

The party got aboard the train again and proceeded out to the end of the track. There are at present about 100 men employed in track laying and ballasting. A capital gravel bed has been exposed about five miles up the line, which is furnishing an abundant supply of excellent ballasting material. The ballasting on the portion where the track has been laid is proceeding rapidly, and already the roadbed is in quite good shape. The train was run at the rate of about 20 miles an hour, and went very smoothly, all things being considered.

Mr. E. M. Wilson, general manager of the Fairhaven Southern, and who will also have control of the operation of the Westminster Southern when the two lines are connected at the boundary, stated that rapid progress is being made with the construction of the railway south of the line. From Sedro, the point at which the railway strikes the Skagit River, northward to Fairhaven, the road is entirely completed and regular passenger trains have been running for some months. Northward from Fairhaven the road is finished to the Nooksack River, and beyond that the grading is done right up to the boundary line at Blaine. A very costly iron bridge is being put across the Nooksack. The bridge has been manufactured by the Detroit Bridge Company and is about 300 feet long, not including the approaches. From the rate at which the line is being built, Mr. Wilson expects that the ends of the track will be joined at the international boundary line sometime in November, the exact time depending very much on the arrival of the ship Astoria, which, as already reported, was seriously delayed with her cargo of rails from England by stress of weather at the Falkland Islands. Recent intelligence, which was obtained from the Old Country through a ship that touched on her homeward voyage at the Falkland Islands, is to the effect that the Astoria left the islands on the 25th of July, and she should, therefore, very shortly be spoken in Northern Pacific waters. Upon her arrival construction will be pushed forward with all possible despatch. Mr. Wilson states that it is now beyond doubt that a regular train service between Seattle, Sedro, Fairhaven, Blaine and New Westminster will be inaugurated by the 1st of January next.

After the line is completed that portion of it between Blaine and Sedro will be known as the Fairhaven Southern railway, and the portion north of the boundary line as the New Westminster Southern, as at present, and the rolling stock will be labelled about equally with each name. The whole distance from Westminster to Sedro is as near as possible 80 miles. The American transcontinental connection of the line will be the Great Northern railway, which is now pushing its way westward from Montana through the mountain regions. It will strike the valley of the Skagit River about 50 miles east of Sedro, and running along the valley to Sedro will then branch southward from that point to Seattle. It will be two years, however, before the Great Northern is built through to Sedro and Seattle, and in the meantime the New Westminster and Fairhaven Southern traffic from Sedro to Seattle will go over the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern line which is already in operation from Sedro southward.

As soon as the road from this city is completed and in operation the company will begin to compete for the transcontinental trade of the whole Puget Sound country. Until the Great Northern is completed through to the coast, an arrangement has been made with the Canadian Pacific to do the Great Northern's transcontinental carrying. All of this trade, Mr. Wilson stated yesterday, would pass through New Westminster, and besides this the whole of the supplies and materials for the construction of the Great Northern line on this side of the mountains would be sent through this way. This in itself would furnish an immense traffic for some time, and the company intended to proceed at once with the construction of a giant railway ferry to ply across the Fraser from their wharf on the south side to a similar wharf to be built at some point not yet decided upon on the north side of the river, and adjacent to the C. P. R. track.

In answer to a query as to whether the C. P. R. would not probably carry its Puget Sound business over the Mission branch and Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern railway, Mr. Wilson replied that the S., L. S. & E. was now owned by the Northern Pacific railway, which was the C. P. R.'s fiercest competitor, and it was not to be expected that they would play into their rival's hands. The Mission branch has been begun and a great deal of work done before the S., L. S. & E. R'y was acquired by the Northern Pacific, and the change of ownership had entirely altered the position of affairs. It was probably being completed for purely strategic purposes.

Speaking of the character of the country through which the Westminster Southern railway runs, Mr. Wilson said it was almost identical with that in the adjoining state of Washington, which was now being so rapidly settled up. The country was so rich in timber and coal, and so wonderfully productive in agriculture, that it would sustain a population ten times larger than an equal area in the eastern and middle portions of the continent. From this fact it was easy to imagine what an enormous local traffic the railway now nearly completed would have in a few years.

While the above conversation was proceeding with Mr. Wilson, the train was speeding rapidly backward to the wharf, which was reached in due time, and the party again boarded the Constance. It was the intention to pay a visit to the Daphne before returning to the city, but the war ships were just about to weigh anchor, so that pleasure had to be forgone. The Constance arrived at her wharf about 1 o'clock, and the whole party was in high spirits over the little junket.

The Warships.

H. M. ships Daphne and Nymphe sailed for Esquimalt at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the band of the Nymphe the while playing merrily. Flags were then run up to the masts of each ship saluting the city, the fire bell being rung in return recognition. All Westminsterians are delighted with the courtesy and energy of both officers and men, whose efforts very largely contributed to the success of our celebration. It is understood that our visitors were very well pleased with their reception. It should be mentioned that in courteous recognition of the voluntary services of the bandsmen of the Nymphe during the procession, the officers of the Sons of England Society afterward entertained Lieutenant Musgrave and his men to luncheon. The loyalty of the Sons of England was roused to quite a high pitch by the visit of the man of war's men, and President Allen's enthusiasm was quite unrestrained.

THE LATE FAIR.

The pronounced success in every particular of the exhibition which was closed in this city on Friday evening last is a matter of congratulation to everybody concerned. The writer has witnessed many of the finest exhibitions ever held on the continent, and while he has seen shows on a larger scale, he has never seen one in which the events were brought off with such perfect promptness, and in the carrying forward of which there was such an entire absence of anything like an awkward hitch. The truth is that the visitors to our fair were amazed at what they saw, and it was so far beyond their expectations that there was absolutely no occasion for the expression of any other sentiments than those of admiration. No one who has not taken a practical hand in the work of preparation for an exhibition and celebration such as has just been closed in this city, has any idea of the immense amount of care and labor which it involves. Failures are infinitely more frequent than successes, and when the latter are obtained it means a great deal. As to the exhibition, the Agricultural Society was fortunate in having a man of enthusiastic energy as president, namely, Mr. THOMAS CUNNINGHAM, and he filled his arduous position with great acceptability and uniformly pleasing courtesy to all. The latter quality in a president is a chief desideratum, and Mr. CUNNINGHAM possessed the necessary "gentleness in manner and strength in deed." But the real labor of the situation devolves upon the secretary. Above all things "a man with a head on him" is necessary in this position, one who can grapple with detail and think out half a dozen tangled situations at the same moment without becoming either flustered or ill-tempered. He must be patient with stupid people, sharp with impudent ones, and strong in commanding his position on all occasions. Whether Mr. FRANCIS combines all these qualities or not, we will leave others to judge; but certain it is that he has made a success of it, and success in such a position cannot be attained without ability. His mastery of detail, indefatigable industry, promptness of action and business capabilities are the qualities which have been most prominent in his conduct of the office of secretary, and he deserves the hearty thanks of everybody who had an atom of interest in the success of our great fair. Ex-Mayor TOWNLEY, Mr. W. H. LAYCOCK and Mr. T. J. TRAPP should not be forgotten in speaking of this matter, for their activity was incessant. As to the citizens' celebration, Mr. LEARY made a capital chairman of the General Committee, and he was ably assisted by a hard working staff of assistants. To Mr. S. J. THOMPSON belongs mainly the credit of having brought off the most successful street parade ever seen in the Province. But where all did so well it is invidious to particularize, and we desist. Everyone who took part and did his duty has reward enough in the satisfaction which he feels at the splendid results.

A GOOD MOVEMENT.

The United British Women's Emigration Association is undertaking useful work in aiding the settlement in our Province of respectable men with families, and young women well reputed, sound in health, and ready to enter upon domestic service at good wages. The Hon. Mrs. JOYCE, the honorary secretary of the society, is in such capacity now visiting our cities, with a view to encourage the formation of local associations to welcome and aid these immigrants. She held a ladies' meeting the other day in Victoria and established one such organization, and on Friday succeeded in forming a second at Vancouver. A similar meeting will probably, as it certainly should, be held in our own city within the next few days. The general intentions of Mrs. JOYCE'S society, to which we referred at length some weeks ago, are best described in some of her own words. It is, she says, pledged to emigrate only such women and girls as are of good character and capacity; to select only such men and families as are suitable to the requirements of each colony; to secure them proper protection on the voyage and adequate reception on arrival; and if possible, not to lose sight of them for a year or two after their emigration. Respectable and unemployed farm laborers, of whom there are now many in the Old Country, are to be helped by the Association to emigrate hither, and this the more readily, if only they have growing up about them healthy young families. This should relieve, at least in part, the present local dearth of farm labor, and thus meet one great want of our people. The other aim of the society, the introduction of respectable female servants, we have already mentioned. This will at once commend itself to the ladies, who are not as a rule, enamored of the domestic service of John Chinaman. One essential condition of successful encouraged immigration is carefully secured by Mrs. JOYCE'S society. In the case of females each applicant for an assisted passage is required to give the certificate of two householders with addresses (one if possible an employer), vouching for her character. In case the applicant has been in a training home a certificate is required from that institution. A medical certificate bearing testimony to the applicant's soundness of health is also required, and likewise a certificate from a clergyman or magistrate vouching the truth of the statements in the foregoing certificates and the genuineness of the signatures. In the case of men and families the requirements are equally stringent. The young women are to be sent out in charge of an experienced matron and their adequate protection thus ensured. The matron's fee, a small one of $5, will be provided by the British Columbian association, which are to be connected together under the title of the Pacific Coast Employment Society. In addition to this provision a money advance will be made by the Emigration Association to each selected emigrant, the return of this loan being secured by an agreement signed by the borrower, to repay it, without interest, by setting apart half her wages until a sufficient sum is raised. To aid in arranging this will be one object of the local trades' associations. The members will be expected, also, to take a kindly interest in their young women protégés.

The Association and the affiliated societies seem to be established on sound lines, and we wish the movement every success, for our farmers feel increasingly the want of sturdy labor and our lady householders stand in need of respectable female help.

PRACTICAL TEACHING IN AGRICULTURE.

Professor ROBERTSON'S lecture on agriculture, which we report fully in the current issue of the WEEKLY TRUTH, was a most practical address, delivered in a terse, humorous style that riveted the attention of his hearers. One of his suggestions entered an idea already suggested, but of course less authoritatively in our own columns. We have insisted that it is too usual in this Province for men to hold more land than they can cultivate, considering the first cost and difficulty of clearing and the scarcity of labor. The Professor's way of putting the thing is that "it is not good for a man to spread himself out too far; he gets too thin." It is better, he says, to cultivate smaller areas thoroughly bearing in mind, that the productiveness of British Columbia farm land renders a small area as profitable as a much larger one in less favored parts of the Dominion. The professor gave also many interesting and convincing proofs of the value of the work of the Dominion Government's experimental farms, which are at small cost, solving some very difficult farmers' problems. He asserted, too, that the Province could and should grow all its own food even though its population greatly increased and yield simultaneously a surplus of choice fruit to send and sell beyond its borders. He warned our people to be more careful and not destroy valuable timber unnecessarily and also strongly urged the replanting in timber of whatever land is capable of no other production with profit. He advised the keeping of fowls as a valuable by-product of husbandry, and the rearing of stock even on fruit and grain farms, in order by their manure to fertilize the land. However bountiful our cultivated land may be by nature, the Professor holds that its yield may be greatly quickened and enlarged by the use of the simplest fertilizer. A notable instance, to point, may be seen on Salt Spring's Island, in the Gulf, where a leading farmer today raises his best crops on land of glorious natural fertility, which he still further enriches by the judicious use of fertilizers. Another, and a most important point made by the lecturer, conveyed at once a warning and a hint. The professor thinks the live stock of the Province deteriorating rather than improving, partly from want of sufficient attention to the animals' comfort and partly from the keeping of males not thoroughbred. Nor is not such, however pleasing in appearance, should be kept for stock raising; the result otherwise was invariably the production of offspring bearing traces of an old inferior strain.

We have briefly referred, by way of emphasis, only to these parts of the professor's lecture, for we strongly advise our readers to peruse carefully at their leisure the whole of his most valuable remarks.

Fairies and chirp at noon from every tree.
Nature for blossomed leaves and loving herds;
And nature's voices say in mystic words,
"The green fields wait for thee."

I dream of spands where the primrose shines
And waves her yellow lamps above the bee,
Of tangled copses swung with trailing vines,
Of open vistas skirted with tall pines,
Where green fields wait for me

I think of long, sweet afternoons, when I
May lie and listen to the distant sea,
Or hear the breezes in the reeds that sigh,
Or insect voices chirping shrill and dry
In fields that wait for me.

Those dreams of summer come to tell me first
The forest's shade, the wild bird's melody;
While summer's ray wreaths for me are twined,
While summer's fragrance lingers on the wind,
And green fields wait for me.

—George Arnold.

Satisfied with His Investment.

On the grip of a summer car sat an old gentleman who looked like Denman Thompson in "Josh Whitcomb." The cable car ran through a squalid district where women and children sprawled over the blistering pavement, while puny babies wailed and helpless mothers tried in a listless, half hopeless way to quiet their cries. The train ran by two squares of sweltering misery, and then the old gentleman showed signs of unmistakable excitement, pulled the wrong bell cord and rang up a fare as a signal that he wanted to get off. After the usual exchange of compliments in such cases between the conductor and the passenger he succeeded in alighting, and muttered:

"By gosh! I'll do it; it won't cost much, and it will do lots of good."

When he reached the women they appeared to be pleased at what he suggested, and when the next car came along going west he halted it and loaded everything in sight on board for a fresh air trip. Arriving at the end of the road Mr. Cheerybie, or Uncle Josh, whoever he was, was soon in treaty with a saloon keeper for a bucket of lemonade.

Not too sweet, you know, but with lots of ice."

The children and women drank it eagerly, and after enjoying not a cool breeze, but a less torrid one than that which rose from the down town pavements, Old Benevolence put them on a car and sent them home.

How much did all that fun cost?"

"Three dollars for car fare and $1 for lemonade. Oh, a fellow can do lots with $4 if he tries."—St. Louis Republic.

Enveloped in an Icy Fog.

The little town of Ransom's Ford, lying six miles south of Paris, Ills., is much alarmed and puzzled over a natural phenomenon which is being exhibited there. On Friday, a short while after sunrise, a cloud coming from a northeasterly direction and descending from a great height, moving with rapidity, settled down upon the place and has remained undispelled ever since.

The atmosphere is so dense with the moisture from the cloud that objects are wholly undiscernable at a distance of less than two feet; but the remarkable feature of the fog is its intense cold, which is such as to render fires necessary to prevent the people and animals from freezing to death, while all vegetation in the town and the country about for a quarter of a mile around, and indeed wherever the fog rests, has been killed.

Singular as it appears, the atmosphere about seems to be unaffected by the presence of the icy cloud, and remains very near its normal temperature, but to enter the dense area of the fog is to go at once into cold, in which the thermometer remains steadily at 10 degs. below zero. The sun is so nearly obscured by it as to appear only as a ball of half extinguished fire even at noonday, and seems totally unable to warm or dispel the fog.—Cor. Philadelphia Times.

He Judge Tells a Little Story.

In George Fitzgerald, alias "Sledge," was tried before Judge Stewart recently on the charge of obtaining goods from Vogler, Son & Co. under false pretenses, and was declared not guilty by the court. Fitzgerald bought $79.85 worth of medicines on credit, and afterward sold them to dealers at less than half trade prices. The purchase was made on thirty days' time, or the firm could draw on Fitzgerald within ten days through the Second National bank of Washington, where it was discovered that he had no money to his credit. "It is not a case of false pretense," said Judge Stewart, "although there is evident fraud. It reminds me of the little girl who asked a companion what her father was in the penitentiary for. 'For stealing horses,' was the reply. 'Why didn't he do like my father,' said the first girl, 'he buys horses and don't pay for them.'"—Baltimore Sun.

A novel race is soon to come off in West Chester. Each contestant is to wear laced shoes, and all the shoes are to be taken off and placed in a barrel. The runners then start from a mark, run twenty five yards to the barrel, pick out their own shoes, put them on, lace them up and then run 100 yards to a mark. The man who gets over the entire route first with shoes properly laced will be the winner.

They land occasionally and lunch and take tea, al fresco, the czar looking after the fire and the empress making tea. Lobster mold is an excellent dish. Chop up one good sized lobster, and season with mace, salt and pepper. Georgia's Bible.

The old Bible, which so long has been an object familiar to visitors to the executive department, has been shipped to Savannah. It came to Atlanta from Milledgeville just after the war, with other plunder belonging to the state. Governor Gordon and all his predecessors who have assumed office during the times of the younger generation sealed the official oaths with lips laid reverently upon its cover. On the back was the name "Mathus." Not long ago Mr. T. N. Theus wrote to the executive department claiming the old book as his mother's Bible. A sister, he said, in whose possession it was, refugeed to Milledgeville just before the close of the war. She was forced to leave there hurriedly on account of Sherman's arrival, and forgot to take the book away with her. Exactly how it found its way to the state house is not known.—Macon Telegraph.

Autograph fans, a revival of an old fashion, are made this season of ivory paper, an excellent imitation of real ivory, and on each stick the name or sentiment and names of favorite beaux or friends can be inscribed with indelible ink. If you number an artist or a musician among your favorites a sketch or a bar of music and the autograph can perhaps be etched upon two or more of the sticks, along with the name of the etcher.

The Sturgeon Carrying a Chain.

Capt. Dillon, of the steamer Fisher, on June 30 brought up a sturgeon which had been caught in the last trap at the mouth of the Columbia, almost to the ocean. The peculiarity about the fish is that there was attached to him a chain nearly five feet long, about the size of a halter chain. He had been caught before, and on the under side of his mouth a hole had been cut. Through this the chain had been passed, and through a ring on the end of the chain, thus forming a bow knot or loop around his under lip. Then he had evidently been fastened to a pole or stake, with a rope attached to the end of the chain.

After the rope broke the fish was at liberty to leave, and how long he has been swimming with the chain hanging to his mouth is a mystery. If any of our exchanges know where the fish has escaped from, or when, and will state it, it may form an interesting sketch as to how long the fish has carried the chain and where he has been traveling.

The sturgeon was quite poor, and one of his fins was partially worn off by the rubbing of the chain, showing that he had traveled with it a long time.—Astorian.

The Palmetto's Day Is Over.

The palmetto hat is going out of fashion, and you rarely see one on the street now, even on the head of the most old fashioned Southerner. Yet there was a time, and that not ten years ago, when every gentleman thought that to sustain his dignity he had to wear a palmetto hat in the summer. The fact is, that in spite of their light and cool appearance, the palmetto hats were the hottest covering that a perspiring man ever interposed between his head and the burning rays of the sun. White starched shirts on a hot day don't compare to a palmetto hat for discomfort. The straw is so closely woven that not a particle of air gets to the hair, and as soon as people began to get ideas in their heads about common sense clothing for summer they began to look with disfavor upon the palmetto hat. Besides, the hats are exceedingly expensive. The cost of a good one is $25 to begin with, and in order to have it in good condition you must pay several dollars every summer to have it reshaped and the straw whitened.—Interview with St. Louis Hatter.

Washington Roof Lodgers.

A look through a powerful field glass from one of the narrow windows in the top of the Washington monument in hot weather shows a new side of domestic life in the capital—what might be termed the upper side—as a writer has said in a book of which all the rest has been forgotten. Washington is a city of boarding houses. As you look from the top of the monument with your field glass you can see bedrooms on the house tops. That is, light, portable cots have been taken upon the flat roofs of houses, rugs spread over the sheets of tin that have become floors, and sometimes folding screens have been placed between the beds. The houses so topped off are probably the big boarding houses where unmarried department clerks live, and they take to the roofs on hot nights for the sake of the maximum of air and minimum of temperature. And the plan is not a bad one by long odds.—Washington Post.

Flower peddlers have adopted a new wrinkle for gaining entrance to the big office buildings in New York. They have discovered by experience that the janitors' employes will not let them ply their trade if the flowers are carried in baskets or on trays, so they now carry them in jaunty tin boxes, like those used for keeping valuable papers in lawyers' offices. The boxes are kept closed while the peddlers are in sight of the employes in the big buildings. The boxes have another advantage—they keep the flowers cool and fresh.

The Duke of Fife has just sold his fine estate of Rothiemay, Banffshire, which has belonged to the Fife family since the middle of the last century, when it was purchased by Alexander Duff, of Braco, from the Abercrothies, of Salton, to whom it belonged when Mary Queen of Scots resided at Rothiemay house, in 1566, during her northern progress. Her rooms are still to be seen in the mansion, which is one of the most ancient in the county.

New Advertisements Today.

Funeral Notice.....F. Meyer
It's a fact.....Cheapside

A New Business.

"Cheapside" is one of the latest additions to Westminster's places of business, and situated as it is in Ewen's building on Front Street, will doubtless command a large amount of trade. The proprietor of this new endeavor is Mr. R. V. Redd, formerly the accountant of the Bank of British Columbia at Nanaimo, who is a business man from the word go. To the economical housekeeper we can do no better than recommend that the Cheapside be given a trial.

Accidentally Omitted.

In making our summary of the poultry exhibit and prize list of that class, we omitted to mention anything of the beautiful Japanese Silkies exhibited by Mr. J. H. Vidal, which, besides gaining the admiration of all, were the centre of attraction in the poultry yards and took the first and second prizes in their class. These white beauties were raised from eggs obtained in Japan. Mr. Vidal besides, having the only Silkies in the city, has a very large number of other fashionable breeds of poultry.

Bread Baking Competition.

One of the most interesting special features of the exhibition just closed in this city was the competition in bread baking, all the operations of which were carried on on the grounds. There were about a dozen competitors, the prize being a "Warrior" cook stove valued at $32, generously contributed by Messrs. Cunningham Bros., of this city, and on which the baking of the bread was done. The products of the competitors were declared to be almost uniformly good, but the prize was awarded to Mrs. Goudy, of Ladner's Landing. It is a distinction well worth achieving, and Mrs. Goudy is to be warmly congratulated on her success.

The Titania Arrives.

Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock, the Hudson Bay ship Titania arrived with a large cargo of over 300 tons of freight consigned from Great Britain to Messrs. Bell-Irving, Patterson & Co. She will begin to discharge her cargo on Wednesday morning, and as soon thereafter as possible she will be loaded with salmon for Great Britain. Our citizens are not used all, more than pleased to see this ship, which is one of the finest afloat, lying at our docks, and many will be glad to greet the Titania's gallant master, Captain Dunn, whose reputation, both as a seaman and good fellow has come before him.

Yesterday's Racing.

The concluding horse races, which were postponed from Friday, were run yesterday on Queen's Park, and were witnessed by a large number of people, all of whom manifested great interest in the sport. The one mile dash was between McInnes' Mayflower and Irvin's Joe Wynne. Some little difficulty was experienced in starting these horses on account of the jockies who were over on the shoe for a good send off. They set off fairly well, however, and at the half mile Mayflower was a length in the lead, but Joe Wynne on the down grade from the grand stand, gained a little and lost it again on the turn. When they entered the home stretch, Mayflower was still a little in the lead, and on nearing the turn Joe Wynne, who was now catching up, lost a little ground from the fact that his opponent had the inside track. They went full speed down the stretch, Mayflower winning by a neck, after having made a splendid race.

In the half-mile dash for the consolation stakes, open to all comers except the winners of the first, second and fifth races, were entered Black's Lumpy and Payne's Shamrock. After making the start Shamrock bolted across the field, and Lumpy captured the ring.

This brought the races in connection with the celebration to a close, but immediately afterwards George Atkinson and Pat Pitten-dreigh got up a race for $10 a side, half mile dash, Atkinson to receive 25 feet start. Pittendreigh's animal ran away from the other. Another race was then got up between Bob Edmond's horse and a white nameless flyer. Bob's horse won by about a length.

It is understood that the sale of work, recently held in the St. Leonard's Hall by the ladies of the Holy Trinity Church, has realized a net sum of about $170.

The photograph man who was stationed on the second floor of the exhibition building will take a holiday for the next year, and live like a fighting cock on the interest of his receipts during those three days.

One or two of our artillerymen at times go about the city, when on duty leave, half in uniform, half not, with loose unbuttoned tunics. May we give a friendly reminder that this is a little out of keeping with true military style.

We all know of the immense number of people that attended the exhibition this year. Now try and imagine the number that will be here next year, when the Southern Railway, the new ferry and the Lulu Island bridge will be all running in full blast.

PERSONALS.

Prominent People Paragraphed by a Personal Pen.

Mr. D. A. McKee, of Ladner's, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. J. D. Carmichie, a Vancouver merchant, came over yesterday on business.

Messrs. Alex. Thornton, and Alex. Barnes, of Tacoma, are visiting the city.

Miss Elliott, of Vancouver, is in the city, the guest of Mrs. H. D. Reynolds, Park Lane.

Mr. Lake Fraser, a liquor dealer of the inland town, came over yesterday and will remain today.

Mr. and Miss Cambie, of Vancouver, were in the city yesterday and returned by the 4 o'clock train.

Dr. J. M. McLean has been appointed surgeon to the Provincial jail, vice Mr. Bradley, resigned.

J. V. Ellis, M.P., of St. John, N. B., editor of the Globe, accompanied by his son, Frank B. Ellis, is at Victoria.

Mr. Hampton, a well known farmer of Maple Ridge, and family returned home yesterday after having taken in the fair.

Mr. George Ashwell, the son of a well known Chilliwack resident of that name, came down yesterday and will remain a few days.

Mr. J. J. Miller has been appointed to the principalship of the new Port Moody school, vice Mr. Kinney, who has resigned to go into the book business.

Mrs. Trew, accompanied by her daughter Miss Jessie Trew, returned on Friday last from Toronto. Miss Trew has been attending school in Toronto during the past four years.

The Earl and Countess of Aberdeen are coming to British Columbia. They are both well known to the British religious world, and take part in many active social efforts of a philanthropic nature. The Earl is politically a Gladstonian Liberal.

Mr. A. E. Planta, the well known real estate man of Nanaimo, was in the city during last week, having returned home yesterday morning. It is some years since Mr. Planta has taken a run over here, and he is, therefore, fully able to note the wonderful changes.

Professor Hand, of Hamilton, who so delighted the people with his magnificent display of fireworks at Queen's Park on Friday night, will go over to Vancouver to-morrow, and from there to Victoria before returning East. On his way he will conduct a fireworks display at Lethbridge, N. W. T., upon the opening of a new railroad there.

Professor Robertson, the agricultural lecturer, is an Ayrshire Scot; but he learnt his farming in Ontario to which land he came when very young. His fame as an agricultural expert is recognized not only here but in England, which country he visited officially several years ago, during his stay writing most valuable letters on Canada and its agriculture to the leading English papers.

HANEY NOTES.

Work on the Lillooet Bridge—Lots of Brick Building Operations.

The Provincial Government are, very properly, raising the bridge over the Lillooet River, on the line between townships 9 and 12, to such a height as will make it safe from flood wood, debris, etc. Mr. Wm. Murray, of Langley, has charge of the work.

W. H. Keary is making great improvements on his farm here, which is a very fine piece of property.

The brick yards have closed for the season, having on hand a large quantity of the best brick in British Columbia.

Mr. George Blackstock has gone into logging extensively on the Lillooet River for the Ross-McLaren mills.

Mr. T. J. Hammell, an eastern lumberman, has been inspecting it's large timber limits north of the Lillooet for the past few days, and will without doubt return with a good impression of the timber resources of the Province.

A WORD WITH THE LADIES.

EDITOR TIMES: Sir,—"I was a golden arrow shot at the mark of success," said the greatest preacher of the nineteenth century. Being in the audience at the time, this sentence seemed to me to be a fitting climax to which the orator had led his hearers up through castles and tears; yet the boldness of the assertion struck me with force, for I will know that no other man in America except Henry Ward Beecher could utter it without making himself ridiculous.

As in the sphere of oratory, so it is in the esthetic world. A great beauty by some singular boldness in the matter of dress may attract the admiring eyes of thousands, while a giddy young girl, by tricking herself out in the same fashion, might become an object of derision or disgust. Such was the thought that pulsed through my brain last night at the ball as I beheld the arms, shoulders, etc., of some of those who were dressed, so decently low necked.

Here is my advice to every young lady. Before you have put on your corge and powdered yourself up, your touch-and-feel faithful mirror tells you that you are not largely dowered with the fatal gift of beauty, let no desperate thought tempt you to deck yourself in Fashion costume; for although a sec ancreas dixie may admire you in a partially clothed condition, yet believe me that all gentlemen of good taste (myself included) will call you a silly young fool, for they will be repelled rather than attracted by your appearance. Dressing well is an art, the worst of which, you will admit, consists in concealing it. A small amount of judicious rouge restores a lady's freshness. A sweet nature tied to a beautiful body, or a flower half concealed is more to be admired than one half revealed in its full. The greatest philanthropist of modern times, a gentleman of the first rank in all classes, and a man to be loved, tells us he is not a believer in exotic fitting privacy.

With regard to the citizens' ball last night, perhaps it would be going too far to say to the way of advice if I were to say to the young ladies that they should not put forth their supreme effort at smuggling. It would be well, I think, to keep a reserve force for balls to be given when governors and princes visit us.

I feel better now, however, lest some of your fair readers may think me cruelly cynical, green-eyed, a hater of women, a person devoid of sense and sensibility, instead of an Admirer Stare.

September 27th, 1890.

THE BABY SHOW.

EDITOR TIMES: Sir,—I was surprised to read the remarks of your reporter in regard to the baby show at the Surrey fair, and as they reflect somewhat on the judges and management I would like to state right here that no ladies were unceremoniously debarred from exhibiting their children, all those who had entered were duly notified when the judges were ready to act, and it was impossible for us to allow ladies to enter pets who had neglected to enter. Again, I do not see why the children had been in training for the past few months when this special prize was only donated on the morning of the show. Trusting you will find room for this explanation in your next issue.

Believe me yours, etc.,

E. M. WILKINSON,
Sec. Surrey Ag. Association.

September 26, 1890.

(The above letter goes to show how dangerous it is for a reporter to get talking about babies, a subject of which he could not possibly have any knowledge whatever. The crude jokes that he cracked in that report and the blunders that he made are certainly unpardonable, and we promise the good wives of Surrey that he shall never be allowed to report their baby show again.—Ed.)
