AUCTIONEERS
NEW WESTMINSTER CITY

UNDER INSTRUCTIONS from the Board of Directors of the Royal Columbian Hospital we will sell by Public Auction on Thursday Evening, 24th July, 1890, at 7:30 o'clock at the Opera House, New Westminster,
The whole of Suburban Lots, Numbered 8, 9, 35, 36, 37, and 38, Block 6, New Westminster,
Which have been divided into 48 City Lots, all of which have a frontage on wide and important streets, viz.: St. George's Street, Mary Street, St. John's, Montreal and Pelham Streets.

This property is situated in the heart of the residence part of the Royal City, is elegantly situated, commanding a view of the Fraser River east and west, the Gulf of Georgia and Mount Baker, the Lots are large being generally 66 x 132 ft. The terms are exceptionally easy, being 1 cash, 1 & 2 months 1/3 each with 8 per cent interest on deferred payments.

This is a chance that occurs once in a life time and capitalists should remember that New Westminster is not a Boom City, but on the contrary has been in existence a number of years and has had a steady and continual growth, and today promises to outstrip in importance and population all of the cities of the coast. Situated in the centre of the Farming, Lumbering and Salmon Canning Industries as well as being the only city of importance on the Fraser River, the main artery of British Columbia, and being the Fresh Water Terminus of the C.P.R., and the only Terminus of the American system of railways in British Columbia, it requires no prophet to foretell the grand future that is in store for it as a city and for those who by wise and careful forethought invest at the proper time. This is the opportunity that may never occur again.

Railway Strike.

TOLEDO, July 9.—Several days ago the freight handlers in all the Toledo yards demanded 15 cents per hour for their work. They were receiving from 12 to 13 cents. The Lake Shore and Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton paying the latter. The men declared that they would strike on Wednesday noon if the raise was not forthcoming. The Lake Shore and Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton offered no compromise, but the men would not listen to them. Today at noon the freight handlers held a meeting and as a result the men on the Lake Shore, Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City, the Wabash and the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton roads did not return to work at 1 o'clock. No freight is being received for those roads this afternoon.

Low-Priced Literature.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The United States Book Company has filed articles of incorporation at Trenton, New Jersey, the capital stock being $25,000. The company has absorbed all the business in the low-priced publications which have been carried on hitherto by 21 concerns. The concern will have no competition in the publication of low-priced book. The company have bought out all the publishing houses in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

Our Colored Subjects.

BOSTON, July 9.—Professor A. C. Johnston, of Hamilton, Ontario, who is in Boston, says that he has received a communication stating that Lord Knutsford has presented an address prepared on behalf of the negro subjects of Canada to Queen Victoria, and that the Queen was much gratified by the expression of loyalty which it contained.

A SEA OF DISCONTENT

IS THE PROPER TERM TO EXPRESS THE CONDITION OF

London's Laborers at the Present Time—The Telegraphers, the Postmen, the Grenadier Guards, and in Fact "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" Seem to be in a State of Revolt—Newfoundland Delegates Sailed for Home, Having had Satisfactory Settlement of Their Difficulty.

LONDON, July 9.—Five thousand persons attended a postmen's meeting held in Clerkenwell Green this evening. The Postmen's Union decided tonight to strike tomorrow morning unless the blacklegs enrolled by the Post Office Department are dismissed. There was a renewal of rioting in Bow Street tonight but the mob was quickly scattered. No damage was done beyond breaking a few windows.

The telegraphers have decided to work overtime for a week longer and then if their demands for compensation or abolishment of extra duty are not complied with they will go out. This decision has disgusted the younger element who are impatient to strike and they may kick over the traces and go out any day, in which case the others will have to follow.

Disquiet among the public employees is everywhere rampant. The assurances of Mr. Stanhope in the House of Commons today that the trouble in the Grenadier Guards was a trifling matter and had been satisfactorily settled, were, to say the least, premature. As a matter of fact, the strikers in the regiment are as determined as ever, and still say that they will not obey the orders of their obnoxious colonel.

The striking coal porters of Dublin have lost their fight and are returning to work on their employer's terms. Many of them find that their places have been permanently filled by blacklegs.

The Newfoundland delegates sailed for home on the steamer Caspian today. They profess to be entirely satisfied with the intentions of the Government respecting the fisheries dispute with France.

What the Scissors Have Done out from Our Exchanges.

The following is the tariff in vogue at the Esquimalt graving dock: For all vessels up to 1,000 gross tons, $400 for the first day of docking, and 10c. per ton thereafter; up to 2,000, $500 and 8 cents; up to 3,000, $600 and 6 cents; up to 6,000, $700 and 5 cents. No reductions are allowed for Sundays or holidays.

On Saturday last 175 volumes were taken out of the Victoria Free Library.

At Victoria the examinations of applicants for teachers' certificates were continued in the presence of the examiners, Dr. Pope, Mr. Anderson and Ven. Archdeacon Scriven. There are nine persons who are seeking to obtain 1st B standing, and 51 that of 2d A. Today 28 aspirants to the 2d B will be put to the test, and on Thursday all those who have made application for certificates of any kind will receive the attentions of the examiners. The weather is very favorable, the heat not being sufficient to physically distress or inconvenience the applicants.

A force of men are at work slashing the roadway up the Capalino Valley. This road will be completed as soon as possible. About one third of the slashing is already done. The movement is being revived to put up the necessary pier at the southern end of the road, so that there may be ferry communication as soon as the road is completed.

Advices were received here yesterday that the Revelstoke Mining Company has leased the mine at Field, B.C., which belongs to the syndicate that purchased the smelter property in this city. The report says that the lead has improved in richness, and in the hands of an energetic and practical company, the property may rapidly increase in value.

Today is the day set for the eviction of the Wellington miners.

The superstructure of the new Methodist Church, to be erected at Chilliwack, was commenced on Monday by Messrs. Bailey & Kipp, contractors. It is to stand on a piece of land, generously given by Mr. C. S. Ryder, adjoining the lot of the public school house. The foundation is of stone. There will be a tower at the south elevation of the building and two large halls, one on either side, which may be conveniently used as class-rooms or vestries. The architectural design is modern, and the church will, when completed, present a very elegant appearance. The seating accommodation is approximated at 200. The people of Chilliwack will certainly be congratulated on having the prettiest, most convenient, yet not costly, church in the municipality.

The Congo State Bill.

BRUSSELLS, July 9.—In the Chamber of Deputies today M. Beernaert, Minister of Finance, introduced the Congo State Bill. It provides that Belgium shall loan the Congo State 25,000,000 francs, of which 5,000,000 shall be advanced immediately and 2,000,000 annually thereafter for a period of 10 years, free of interest. Six months from the expiration of 10 years Belgium may annex the Congo State. If she does not desire to annex it, the loan shall bear interest at the rate of 3½ per cent, and repayment of the loan can be demanded at the expiration of another 10 years.

King Leopold's message, bequeathing his entire rights in the Congo State to Belgium, was read and greeted with applause. It is dated August, 1889.

The Eternal Question.

OTTAWA, July 9.—There was a lengthy meeting of the cabinet held today, and it is understood that it was in connection with the Behring Sea question. Three members of the cabinet, who had been absent from the city, returned to attend the meeting this morning. It is evident, from what can be gathered in official circles, that the affair is causing considerable anxiety, as it is said that the British Government have at last been forced to assure the Dominion Government that they will take a decided stand in the matter of protecting Canadian interests, and in doing that which is within the range of possibility to prevent serious complications between the United States and Great Britain, and possibly an open rupture and resort to arms, in which event, it is pointed out, Canada would be the battle ground. A prominent official pointed out today that England had been coerced into taking the position she is now assuming, realizing the fact that it is the only means by which the growing sentiment in favor of annexation with the United States may be checked, which movement has up to now been greatly strengthened by the indifference and apathy she has for a long time been manifesting towards Canadian interests. A week ago, at the instance of the British Government, the Canadian Government carried into effect an act passed last session, making it punishable with imprisonment for life for an officer or official of the Canadian Government to furnish any information regarding the defence of the country to a foreign State. It is not difficult to see that there is considerable uneasiness surrounding the administration at Ottawa just now, notwithstanding their efforts to conceal any anxiety.

Prize Items.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—Donald Ross, of Ross & Howlitt, who are agents at this port for all the British Victoria sealers, will leave tomorrow for Victoria to find out all he can regarding the sealing industry and as to what Victoria boats are going to do in view of the threats that have been made regarding them if they enter the Behring Sea.

Nathan Hathaway, a carpenter and contractor, aged 71, committed suicide this afternoon by strychnine. Suffering from a disease made him despondent.

Negro Protest.

CHARLOTTE, N.C., July 9.—John H. Williams, one of the leading negro politicians at Raleigh, sent out letters to leading negroes all over the state agitating the call of a race state convention at Raleigh in August. The letter says: "The appointing power of the national administration has discriminated against our race, the same power has attempted to degrade our prominent men by putting them in menial positions, and the attitude of the white Republican leaders towards our race is such as to indicate that they no longer desire our support, except as servile tools, and if they voice the sentiments of the white Republican brethren we are no further use as a Republican factor in the politics of this state."

Voracious Grasshoppers.

SACRAMENTO, July 9.—White Dock, residing near the Eldorado County line, writing of the damages by grasshoppers in that section, says: "They have stripped a great many fruit trees and grape vines of every leaf and peeled the bark from all undershoots. The vegetable gardens are ruined, and where two weeks ago were lovely flower gardens, nothing but stalks remain.

RELIGIOUS AND EDUCATIONAL.

—One of the missionaries of the China Inland Mission, a Scotch gentleman worth $1,000,000, is living in China on twenty-five cents a week, using all his fortune in the work.

—Governor Lowry, of Mississippi, in his annual message asserts that in the past eight years the school attendance has increased 150,000, and the annual expenditure for public education 800,000.

—There are 1,150 Baptists in Hungary, all connected with one church in Bodha-Pesth. There are only two Baptist ministers in the country, but they have baptisms every Sunday. The prospect is very encouraging.

—The establishment of a home for Methodist missionaries in Albany, N. Y., has been decided upon. It will furnish nurses for the poor, for hospitals; will distribute food and clothing among all nationalities, and teach the principles of Christianity. Miss Gibson will be superintendent of the new institution.

—We pray for the college man. The college woman is as deserving of our prayers. We may well pray that the higher education may minister through Christian womanhood to all the noblest, strongest and best influences of the social order. And, the country over, there are more young women in our colleges than young men.—The Advance.

—In the Empire of Japan there are 300 Protestant churches and 300,000 Christians. There are some 40 capital cities, each the center of a district containing at least 500,000 people, and not more than half of these cities are occupied by mission-stations. One such city has sent in the course of three months fifty letters begging that missionaries be sent there.

—A society has been formed by the women of Ceylon, to promote education among women of that island. Its chief aim, however, is the formation of a bond of sympathy with the women of all classes. Owing to the caste system, many intelligent women find it difficult to obtain a footing in native society. This new association attempts to offer one platform where all women may unite.

—Chairs of Pedagogy for the training of teachers for college work and secondary schools are now maintained at Columbia, University of the City of New York, Cornell and the State Universities of Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa, Indiana. These chairs have been established because normal schools do not and can not prepare instructors for colleges and preparatory schools, and at the same time do their present work and fulfill the increasing demands made upon them.

—No matter what a man's work is, said Henry Ward Beecher, he is a better man for having had a thorough mind-drilling. If you are to be a farmer, go to the college or to the academy first. If you are to be a mechanic, and you have an opportunity of getting an education, get that first. If you mean to follow the lowest calling—one of those callings termed "menial"—do not be ignorant; have knowledge. A man can do without luxuries and wealth and public honors, but not without knowledge. Poverty is not disreputable, but ignorance is.

A Numerous Family.

There are some good sized families in Maine today, but probably none so large as one mentioned in the histories of old colonial days. It is told on the authority of Cotton Mather that the first royal governor of Boston was one of a family of twenty-six children, and was born in the woods of Maine near the mouth of the Kennebec in 1651. His mother was left a widow when he was a child, and is said to have had all she could do to provide for the wants of her family. It is hoped that when the governor got $100,000, a knighthood and a goblet valued at $5,000 as a reward for finding a Spanish treasure ship that had gone to the bottom half a century before, he remembered his mother and made her last days easier than her earlier ones had been.—Exchange.

Positive Orders From the War Department Make it Necessary to Preserve the Utmost Secrecy Relative to Halifax Fortifications—The Trade of Canada Shows a Decided Increase With the Mother Country—The Halifax and Bermuda Cable Company Ready for Business in a Day or Two.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 9.—Very strict orders regarding the forts of Halifax have been received from England by the military authorities. They are as follows: 1st. No private citizen shall be admitted to any forts under any circumstances whatever; 2nd. No naval officer shall be admitted unless on business. He must then be accompanied by a military officer; 3rd. Military officers in plain clothes are prohibited from visiting the forts; 4th. Information of any character regarding the forts must not be given to visitors; 5th. Fortifications are being erected at York Redoubt and at McNab's Island, on which fabulous sums of money are being expended. This fact, in connection with the arrival of two torpedo boats, show that the British Government are preparing for eventualities in this locality.

The Halifax and Bermuda Cable Company announce that it will open for business on Monday next. The rate will be 75 cents a word.

OTTAWA, July 8.—The highest marriage fee on record was paid to Archbishop Walsh, who married W. A. Murray, of Toronto, to Mrs. Sarah Cawthra, two of the wealthiest persons in the Ontario capital. The fee was $5,000.

The City Council, by 16 to 6, declined to limit the hours of labor for corporation work to nine hours per day, and made the minimum rate of pay 15 cents an hour. The labor organizations afterwards held an indignation meeting in City Hall Square, and denounced the action of the Civic Fathers.

The annual growl against the lobster regulations reached the Fisheries Department this year from the canners on the North shore of Prince Edward Island. It is understood, however, the Department will require a strict enforcement of the regulations, both in point of close time and size of fish.

The Imperial blue book shows Canada's trade with Great Britain in 1889 to be as follows: Exports, $11,785,826; imports, $8,916,076. Canada's exports to the Motherland show an extraordinary increase.

Capt. Allan, owner of the Bridgewater, is dead. His widow has greatly reduced her claim against the Government for the seizure of the captain's vessel, and wants an amicable settlement. The congregations of Knox Presbyterian and Congregational Churches will worship together for six Sundays, in order to give their pastors three weeks holidays each.

The Ontario and Quebec papers say that General Middleton must not be the only scape-goat in connection with the Bremner matter. Public opinion will not be satisfied until Hayter Reed and Sam Bedson are also retired into private life.

Eight protests have been filed in connection with the Ontario Provincial elections.

WINNIPEG, July 9.—The Orange celebration on Saturday next will not be such a big affair as it might have been. Applications had been made at various points for 8,000 excursion tickets, but the available rolling stock of the Canadian Pacific railway cannot carry over 5,000. The bulk of the excursionists must return the same day as they arrive, as hotel accommodation cannot be had for half the number of visitors.

TORONTO, July 9.—The 24th annual convention of the Grand National Curling Club of America began here today. Forty-four delegates were present from the principal American and Canadian cities.

The economy report has not yet been made in several election protests. The time expires tomorrow.

CHATHAM, July 9.—John Stark, of Chatham Township, was driving a horse-rake yesterday when the team became frightened and ran away. Stark was dragged a considerable distance and received injuries from which he died this morning. He was 60 years old and leaves a wife and a grown up family.

Foreign Options.

LAWRENCE, Maine, July 9.—Specials to the Journal from Somerset, Waldo, Oxford and Franklin counties indicate that last evening's cyclone was one of the most disastrous that ever visited Maine. The Sandy River bridge, near Phillips, was blown from its abutments into the river. Many barns were blown down all through Franklin County. At North Anson the bridge across the Carrabagget River is so twisted as to be unsafe. The Maine Central Institute at Pittsfield is damaged to a small extent. Captain Goodrich's cottage at Madison was blown flat. The barn and stable of Hamilton Marrison were struck by lightning and burned. William Gauther's house in Bethel was moved from its foundation. At Thorndyke a store was demolished. In various parts of Maine nearly 100 barns were blown down or unroofed.

Victoria News.

VICTORIA, July 9.—Schooner Carmelite, which left Liverpool, Nova Scotia, for this port 207 days ago, has arrived after an extremely rough passage. She was 50 days hove-to off Cape Horn. Her bowsprit is sprung, fore-topmast carried away, and sails split. All hands are well. She is intended for the sealing business.

Steamer Princess Louise, which went up to the wreck of the Sardonyx, has returned. The Sardonyx proves to be a total wreck and she will be abandoned. Her captain and two men came down by the Louise.

Arrived: German bark, Mercator, from London for Vancouver.

It is stated that the striking miners of Wellington now admit that they have no real grievance, and 200 are willing to go back to work if Messrs. Dunsmuirs will see that they are not molested. Those in a position to know assert that the strike is not so much the result of dissatisfaction on the part of the men as of wire pulling by the opposing mining company.

A Brilliant Display.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 9.—Six thousand people visited Cold Springs Park this morning to see the opening of the competitive drill of the uniform rank of the Knights of Pythias. The Red Cross division, of St. Louis, was the first to go through the manual and they executed the commands with celerity and accuracy and elicited considerable applause. New Albany, Indiana, came next and they presented a fine appearance as they came on the drill grounds with their shining silver helmets. Every move they made was accurate and they were heartily cheered. Grand Rapids, Michigan, division followed and as each movement was complete they were cheered to the echo. Drilling will continue during the week. Fort Dearborn division, of Chicago, being first on the programme for tomorrow.

United States Census.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The official rough count of the population of St. Louis, Missouri, made public by the census office today, makes the population of that city 448,176, an increase of 28 per cent over the census of 1880. This makes St. Louis rank fifth in population of the principal cities. Population of Baltimore, Maryland, official rough count, is 433,630.

Shot From Ambush.

SYRACUSE, July 9.—August Rubender had a noisy quarrel with his daughter-in-law this afternoon in front of the house of Mrs. Ann M. Murlock, in Hird Avenue. Mrs. Murlock came out and ordered Rubender, who was intoxicated, away, but he turned on her threateningly and a quarrel ensued. Mrs. Murlock turned to go into the house, but dropped dead on the steps. It is supposed she died from excitement, and it is not known whether Rubender struck her or not.

The Southern Railway.

Affairs in connection with the long talked of Southern seem to be going along as smoothly as ever, and it appears that a great amount of work has been done by the 600 men employed by the contractors thereon. Blasting of the right-of-way was finished last evening as far as the boundary, and two more weeks will see all the logs piled up ready for burning as far as that point. The grading on the line is entirely completed up to within four miles of the international boundary, and for some time past men have been working on the intervening portion, which happens to be through a very thickly wooded portion of the right-of-way, subject to considerable rain, and which prevents the men from working several days in the week, thus retarding its progress.

The B. C. B. Athletic Association.

On Tuesday evening a meeting of the Sons of England was held in the Queen's Hotel when the advisability of organizing an athletic association in connection with the society was discussed, and the conclusion arrived at, was that they would form such an association. A committee of eleven members was appointed to frame statutes for the association and when that duty has been performed, a meeting for the election of officers and for the consideration of the constitution will be called, which meeting will in all probability be called next week. In discussing the question of games it was decided that football would be played under the association rules, so that this fall there will be the game under both the association and Rugby union regulations played in the city. We venture to think that if the energy expended by those who are instrumental in organizing this association, were to be devoted to the founding of a New Westminster Amateur Athletic Association, which is sadly needed here, their endeavors would receive the support, both moral and otherwise, of a larger majority of citizens than the one at present organizing for the formation of such an association of which we speak seems to be the popular idea, but of course it requires some one to make the first move. It would undoubtedly be a large and influential self-supporting association.

ART JUDGES.

EDITOR TRUTH: SIR,—The citizens are awake about the exhibition. Would you suggest that the appointment of judges receive more care than it did last year, more especially in the art department.

PALETTE.

DAILY COLUMBIAN DISLOYALTY.

EDITOR TRUTH: SIR,—The D. C. of yesterday has a leader on England and her colonies, that must surely have been written by a Yankee or an Irish-American, so disloyal is it. It, however, only makes the paper in which it appears ridiculous by its many absurdities about the rabbit warren on the North Sea called Heligoland. The editor of the D. C., who ought to read up his geography, evidently doesn't know that Heligoland is just about large enough to swing a cat in. He fancies it quite as important a place as Vancouver Island. But this is not what calls for most comment.

The writer of the article gloats with delight because he believes, or professes to believe, that through the Liberal leader of Canada, England "will have to face the "question of releasing her hold upon this "great and fair land * * * and yield "gracefully to the inevitable, rather than "repeat the blunder made to the south"—(the United States). He also hopes that Australia will leave the British empire so soon as its federation is accomplished.

I used to think that the Daily Colonist had patriotic Scotsmen behind it. I now begin to fear that it is run either by Yankees or Irish-Americans when I read in its columns such blatant disloyalty to the cause of the greatest empire on earth—an empire in which British Columbia as a Province of the Dominion is a portion, whose share will year by year, decade by decade, and generation by generation, grow larger and more important.

Yours, etc.,
AN INDIGNANT SON OF ENGLAND.

BEHRING SEA.

So persistent have been the rumors good, bad, and indifferent concerning the state of the negotiations between the Imperial Government and that of the United States in regard to the Behring Sea fisheries, that it has at times been a somewhat hopeless task to form any definite idea founded upon reasonable grounds, as to whether they had been broken off, were continuing, or finally settled. These conflicting, and mind befogging statements, innuendos, and what not, concerning the subject now under delicate discussion, between Sir JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE and Mr. BLAINE have come to us through that highly imaginative medium, the American press. As long as the lively journalists contented themselves with vague but knowing phrases such as "upon undoubted authority we are able, etc.," or "it is said by those high in the confidence and so forth," no one troubled to believe very much or deny very much. But the Evening Star, of Washington, at length grew bolder and published a very positively expressed item to the effect that the delicate question of the Behring Sea fisheries had been found to be incapable of satisfactory settlement, and went on to hint that the result might be very serious trouble between John Bull and cousin Jonathan. The result of this journalistic bombshell was startling, and the reporters of Washington in a body laid friendly siege to the quarters of the British ambassador. Sir Julian stood his ground, or rather sat his chair, but his secretaries fled before the human tidal wave. The footmen with heroic fortitude endeavored at first to conduct the audience with some semblance of dignity and order. But all of no avail, for the eager hordes of invading interviewers rushed into the mighty ambassadorial presence unawed, note books and pencils in their hands. The sight was military, and Sir Julian perceiving that it was hopeless to expect to keep even a semblance of order among the unruly knights of the quill, decided that by leaving the doors of his residence wide open a double object would be gained, or to use a more familiar expression, two birds would be killed with one stone, for whilst free ingress would be obtainable by the inquiring reporters, a more cooling state of the atmosphere would likewise result. And then after all this excitement it turned out that there was absolutely no truth in the report that the minister had received orders to break off negotiations with Mr. BLAINE. And so the situation remains what it was when the reporters went to their offices weary if not happier men, and let us hope the mists no longer hide the fact that the dreaming of an impossible earthly Paradise where "the reporters cease from troubling, and weary diplomats are at rest." The declaration of Sir Julian that the diplomatic negotiations between himself and Mr. BLAINE are progressing, and that the disgusting statements of the American newspapers are devoid of reliable foundation, is highly satisfactory. The silly and wicked talk indulged in by people who should know better, about possible war, deserves the gravest censure from sensible people. There are many reasons why such an eventuality as war between the two great countries is very unlikely, not to say impossible. The British Ministry which consented to war with our American cousins, except under the greatest provocation, and until every art had failed to settle disputed questions, would in these days be committing suicide. Putting the matter upon the lowest ground, therefore, war with the United States is utterly unlikely. Lord SALISBURY, moreover, is patriotic, and so is Mr. BLAINE, and each knew better than they that the true interests of both great countries are to maintain peace and conceal at almost any sacrifice. All the excited and inconsiderate talk, therefore, about British warships at Esquimalt, having orders to fire upon American sealers in certain eventualities, may be taken at worthless. Of course, circumstances are conceivable under which it would be the duty of Great Britain to issue her bulldogs for the protection of her commerce, but these circumstances are not likely to arise. The good sense of both great people will see to it that a settlement of the difficulties is arrived at, which, while doing ample justice, will be honorable to the great fraternal powers on either side of the Atlantic.

THE AVERTED TROUBLE

It must be a matter for congratulation to the English Government, and people alike, that the threatened strike of the Metropolitan police force, has been averted. What the effects might have been, had the rupture between the men and the authorities come to a head, who would dare to hazard? It is only necessary to remember, that the Metropolitan police area of London, includes very little less than 700 square miles, and that it embraces all places within a radius of fifteen miles of Charing Cross, (except the city proper which has its own police protection) to at once appreciate the fact, that the sudden withdrawal of the guardians of the law, would certainly have meant a most serious state of affairs. In every great centre of population, there float certain elements, ever ready to avail themselves of apparent or real laxity upon the part of the authorities. These elements of disorder, austere at any moment to emerge from the obscurity of the alleys and dark places, the slums and cellars, the garrets and gutters, only too numerous in any great city, quickly amalgamate their forces, imperceptibly, but in great master, and then, anything may happen. If we take up "Barnaby Rudge," and read there, the vivid description the master hand of DICKENS has given of the gathering of an angry mob, we may in some degree be able to conjecture what might have been, had the police of London "struck." The London of today is much the same, substantially, as the London of DICKENS' time. It is larger surely, cleaner perhaps, and even on the whole more sober and less criminal, but in a population of between five and six millions of persons, there is still that army of discontented, unwashed, murderous, and brutal humanity who regard the law as their implacable foe, and the law abiding as their legitimate prey. The dissatisfaction of the force certainly had reason to back it. Although the men felt sore upon other matters the principal grievance arose out of the Police Superannuation Bill, and the question of pensions. Down to 1862, thirty years' service was the qualification for a pension, and by an order-in-council this was afterwards reduced to twenty-eight years. By the new regulations no such limit was fixed, but the point left at the sweet will of the home secretary. The men asked for a well defined limit. The rate of pay, the men urged, is absurdly inadequate, and deduction from this for the superannuation fund out of proportion. Men on night duty when they had to appear at the court the next morning to prefer charges, besides breaking their rest, received pay for only half time. It may be judged from these facts that the force had legitimate ground for complaint. By talking of leaving the great metropolitan area without their protection, the men did much to counteract the sympathy their grievances had aroused, and London, quickly rising to the occasion, determined to protect herself. Then the threatened strike suddenly collapsed, and happily, for the time at least, a trouble which might have ended in revolution was averted. The despatches say that the men were much incensed at Mr. MATTHEWS, the Home Secretary, whom they seemed to regard somewhat in the light of their natural enemy. Why is it that Mr. MATTHEWS is allowed to retain his portfolio? Since he has been a minister his blunders have been both numerous and serious, and "some blunders are worse than crimes." The Liberal party have long urged that the police force of London should be under the control of the governing municipal body, and it seems that the time is ripe for transferring that control from the Home Office to the London City Council. It is anomalous that the police of London should be controlled by a minister of the Crown, but if the averted strike hastens the placing of that body under municipal control, it will have served a useful purpose.

How a Knock Out Feels.

While I have never been hit so hard that I did not come to myself within the ten seconds allowed me, I have been insensible for a few seconds from a blow.

I have been dazed several times in the ring. Once I was almost dead from drowning. The feeling was almost exactly the same as when I was hit hard.

It is not at all unpleasant. I felt as if I were floating in the air, and I didn't seem to care a rap what happened to me. I felt no pain, and, indeed, I felt really comfortable.

When a man is knocked out he doesn't feel it at all. He suddenly goes to sleep and feels nothing. When he recovers he is dazed for a time.—Interview in New York Sun.

Life of Toads.

The persistence of life in frogs is very long. Spallanzani preserved some frogs in a mass of snow for two years. They became dry, stiff, and almost friable, but a gradual heat brought them back to life. Toads have been shut up in blocks of plaster, and there, having been deprived of all air except what may penetrate through the material, and of all sources of food, resuscitated several years afterward. Toads are said to have been found in rocks. Such cases are rare.—Le Monde de la Science.

That's Why.

Mr. Nesbitt, the dramatic critic of The London Times, made a curious statement the other evening. We were discussing American humor and he said: "American humor has a sort of choral grimness, which can be traced directly, I think, to the intermarriage of the whites with the aboriginal Indians."

Now what sort of answer is one to make to an argument of this kind?—Eugene Field in Chicago News.

Put to Good Use.

Bobby—How is it you don't get kept in any more?

Johnnie—I gave more than any other fellow in the class to buy a present for teacher.—Epoch.

THE NEW YORK SHOP GIRL.

Great Improvements in Her Condition During Recent Years.

It will be remembered that about eight years ago there was a popular demand upon the storekeepers that their women clerks should be treated more like human beings than as mere automatons, that they should be given seats behind the counters on which they could rest themselves, and that they should have some apartment wherein they could retire and secure occasional rest from the constant strain upon their nerves and their bodies. The general clamor for reform in this direction led to a most marked improvement in the way in which these young women were treated. The change came slowly, but it came at last, and now the proprietors of the great stores have made admirable provisions for the comfort of their employes.

It may have been observed by shoppers that there is a marked improvement in the personnel of the girls employed in the big stores. Purchasers are treated with more courtesy, and the interest in the purchaser is so manifest sometimes as to be almost amusing to persons who have been in the habit of shopping in other cities. This is based upon very sound financial reasons. Several of the big shops have entered into an agreement with their employes to give them a certain percentage on their total daily, weekly or monthly sales, small, it is true, in each sale, but in the aggregate a very handsome addition to their salaries. The result of this is a decided eagerness on the part of the clerks to wait upon the customers and an anxiety that they shall be pleased. This is an improvement founded upon the interest of both employer and employes, and gives the latter an interest in their work which deprives it of much of its drudgery.

The question of seats in the stores has been always an important one because of the necessity for room in the aisles between the counters and the confined space within which the clerks are obliged to work. But an ingenious inventor solved the problem by providing a queer little stool, which resembles an artist's sketching stool in many respects, though more solid and comfortable. This in many stores is hinged to the lower part of the counter, and the rules of the store permit any clerk when she is not actually engaged in a sale to use these stools at will. As most of the shopping is done between 11 a. m. and 4 p. m., this would seem to give the clerks five full hours during which there is little chance for rest, but this is obviated in this way: The clerks in each department are divided into what on shipboard would be known as "watches." During the busy hours in a department where there are fifteen clerks not more than twelve are, with few exceptions, behind the counter at once. But these twelve are understood to do the full work of the fifteen, so that at hourly or fifteen minute intervals they may in turn have a rest.

Formerly the clerks were compelled to get a bite to eat whenever they could between the customers' demands. Now, however, things are changed so that each girl or set of girls has a half hour in which they may eat their meal in quiet. Not only this, but in the big stores a room is provided for them with tables and condiments where they have almost as many comforts as they would have at home. These rooms are usually in the basements, for the employers are compelled as a rule to utilize every bit of space above ground that they can secure, but they are kept clean and comfortable by women who also care for the cleanliness of the main store. There is, however, one exception, in a great store in Fourteenth street, in which the clerks are not obliged to go below ground to eat their luncheons. Here they are given a big apartment upstairs, where they have all the fresh air they desire, and also the opportunity to obtain warm food from the adjacent restaurant.

So far as the accommodations for storing wraps and any little valuables which the clerks may have some desire to keep in safety while they are attending to their duties, they are provided in most stores by small rooms where these things may be kept under lock and key, and which answer at the same time as dressing rooms, where the clerks may keep a store dress, and in the morning change their street costume for it, to a very manifest saving of the latter.

The routine of the employment of persons in the great stores is based to a great extent upon civil service principles. The department chief is selected because of his or her peculiar fitness for the position. But none of these vice regents of the proprietor is given power of dismissal over an employe who has been more than a year in the store. Each one of these has the right to be heard, and if the excuses are satisfactory the person complaining must give good reasons before they are discharged. Another thing that goes far toward making the shop girl more content with her lot is that in several of the stores her wages are yearly increased in proportion to her time of service.—New York Times.

A Chemical Ballet.

At a banquet which was given at the conclusion of the German congress of naturalists and physicians at Cologne, Dr. Hoffman alluded to the difficulty experienced by students in understanding the constitution of organic compounds, and suggested an original method of fixing these in their minds. The audience was then treated to a ballet in which the dancers were dressed in different colors, to represent the various atoms. At his command these colored female atoms grouped themselves in various fashions to show the chemical constitution of particular compounds and their relations. The composition of benzole, and the formation of aniline and its derivatives, were particularly applauded. The ballet wound up by a representation of the formula for roburite—the new explosive—the finale being a formidable explosion.—Annals of Hygiene.

MOVEABLE IRON HOUSES.

One for the Queen at Osborne and Another for Gladstone.

The Queen's pavilion, which formed an ornamental feature of the Windsor show, is to be erected in the grounds at Osborne. An article in the London Standard explains that the Queen has been suffering from rheumatism of late, and her summer practice of breakfasting in a tent upon the lawn may have done much to encourage this painful malady. The pavilion is to be placed upon a basis of hard concrete so that her Majesty may be able to enjoy her meal almost in the open air without risk of damp. The success of the pavilion has given an impetus to the trade in iron houses.

Mr. Gladstone, we are informed, is having an iron library erected at Hawarden. It is to contain 16,000 volumes. He takes the liveliest interest in the building, and watches every detail of the erection. The house contains five rooms, the largest one measuring 41 feet by 21. Cases are being made to hold twenty tons of books. Mr. Gladstone intends the library for quiet study, and therefore proposes to admit only a few persons at a time. These houses are put together like a child's puzzle, and can be taken apart, compactly packed, and removed elsewhere. A large number of iron villas have been sent from the works at Albert-Gate to the Riviera and there erected upon plots of land purchased or rented for a term of years. When the lease expires the houses can be packed up and removed. There is beginning to be a demand for iron bungalows as marine residences in England. The rapidity with which they can be built and their small cost, as compared with the ordinary dwelling of brick and stone, are recommendations which tell in their favor.

The possibility of having a house built in a month to the buyer's own plan and ready for occupation as soon as finished seems almost incredible. The pretty Welcome club at the Italian and American exhibitions was made of iron, and its cost—£500—will give some idea of the comparative price of brick and iron. It was covered with trellis work, which imparted a picturesque and rural aspect to the outside. In its uncovered state the corrugated iron can not be said to be ornamental, but the trellis work embelishes it at a small cost. It is suggested by the manufacturers that thatching the roofs with heather would add to the pictorial effect, and also give additional protection to the roof. Heather from Bournemouth thus applied would last for fifteen years or more. The thatching would aid in keeping the house cool in summer and warm in winter, though this double desideratum has already been secured by the air spaces between the outer iron walls and the inner ones of felt and pine wood.

It is now feasible to add an additional room to the ordinary brick dwelling house, where such an accommodation is needed. Being removable, it is the property of the tenant, so that the objection felt by most people against building for the ultimate benefit of one's landlord does not hold good in such a case. Stabling and coach houses can, in the same way, be temporarily erected. As a play-room or school-room for children, a detached iron building communicating with the house by a covered way would frequently prove a boon to the brain-working father of the family; and in times of illness it would be possible, by this means, to isolate a patient completely from the other members of the family.

There is no damp to be apprehended in an iron house. A useful present to a village would be an iron play-room, which could be built in a week. A building costing £200 can be erected in a fortnight. The price of a room measuring twenty feet by thirteen feet would be about £50. The cost of removal is from £5 upward. With this novel architecture it would be possible to reside in one's own house at a different seaside resort in England every year by having an iron house removed in this way. The brick-work chimney is preferred to any other by the builders of iron houses, no mode of heating being so wholesome as the open grate, with direct ventilation. There are other methods of warming rooms, and some of them are sufficiently satisfactory when the ventilation has been properly secured. The drainage can be worked on the usual plan, if this be preferred to the simpler mode recommended by the originator of the iron houses.

Cow-Hide Horseshoes.

In England, and on many parts of the continent, they have been for a long time using the Yates horseshoe, one made by compressing common cow-hide. It is compressed of three thicknesses of the cow-skin pressed into a steel mould, and then subjected to a chemical preparation. It is claimed for it that it is much lighter, that it lasts longer, and that split hoofs are never known among horses using it. It is perfectly smooth on the bottom, no calks being required, the shoe adhering firmly on the most polished surface. Its elasticity prevents many sprains, the horses' steps being lighter and surer. Straw, treated with chemicals unknown, has been used for horseshoes for centuries past in Japan. Perhaps some American genius will give us a paper horseshoe, who knows?—St. Louis Republic.

A Modern Ruth.

She was about as big as a sparrow and as lively. She had bare feet and naked legs, but she did not seem to mind a little thing like that. Perhaps it was the dirt which kept them warm. It may have been custom, which they say is equal to the warmest of furs, or it may simply have been that she did not know any better. All I know is that when I asked her if she was not cold she said: "Cold? Naw! What for sh'd I be cold fur?"

I really could not answer this conundrum.

Like Ruth of old—Boaz's Ruth—she was gleaning, but it was not among the sheaves. It was on Water street among the warehouses, where the big ships come in and lie at rest, their sharp noses poked far over the land, their labors over for the time being, their rich cargoes, which they had brought over so many leagues of tumbling water, being trundled into the big warehouses. Careless bags and boxes sprung leaks in her behalf, and if the big, burly, good natured longshoremen were particeps criminis I would not be surprised if the recording angel looked the other way and did not see the act. And so it happened that sundry beans of coffee and stray cloves and sticks of cinnamon, and even the bean of commerce and of Boston, found their way to the pavement, and thence to the basket of the bare legged human sparrow. She was brisk, she was industrious and she was full of energy, and the outcome of her gleaning was wonderful to behold.

My heart was filled with sympathy and love. I felt the little miss was a poem in rags, and I was sure underneath her rude exterior there dwelt a soul that was fitted for higher and better things. I desired to commune with her, and approaching, full of reverence, I said to her:

"My child, I have watched you long and tenderly. I have wondered why you have gathered the flotsam and jetsam of the dirty street. I long to know the secret of your occupation. Wilt tell it me?"

She looked upin my face with a look of divine innocence.

"Yer wants to know?" said she.

"I do," was my reply.

"What'll yer give?" she asked.

"A quarter," I replied, though taken somewhat aback.

She opened her lips in a smile that was divine and in a voice as full of melody as a mountain brook she told the secret of her toil in these strange words:

"Me mudder keeps a boardin' house."
—New York Herald.

Ancestry of the Tame Goose.

The common tame goose of this country had its ancestry in Europe, says The Indianapolis Journal, and is descended from wild birds that had been domesticated, though it varies considerably in color from its progenitors, yet less than ducks and other fowls do from their wild originals. It tends to a general gray, especially the female, while the male is often wholly white. The usual weight of a good goose is fifteen or sixteen pounds, but by cramming with nourishing food the weight is sometimes doubled. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would probably object to one method employed for the fattening of the goose. Many ages ago it was discovered that by confining and preventing motion, employing fattening diet and sometimes stupefying substances, the body of the bird would become loaded with fat in a comparatively short time. It was during the reign of Louis XIV that a thrifty French marketwoman discovered a way to restrain her geese from wandering by nailing their feet to a board. This enabled her to fatten her geese rapidly, and her product was in great demand, as the enlarged and diseased livers of her birds were in request for pates de fois gras, which from that day to this have been greatly esteemed by epicures.

The Chinese have for centuries led the world in the cultivation and education of this bird, bringing it into a high state of perfection in size and flavor. The goose is long lived when allowed to ruminate and prolong its days, having been known to live to be 100 years old. It has been alleged that a goose of this old age finds its way to market. The habit of hissing at unpleasant performances is imitated from the goose, and was indulged in by our ancestors when theatrical entertainments were not to their liking. It may be remarked, however, that the hiss has fallen into innocuous desuetude, and no matter how bad a performance may be the dreaded sibilant symptom of disapprobation is never more heard. Of course, no article on the goose would be complete without a passing allusion to the geese that saved Rome one night when the electric light had gone out and the watchmen were at a benefit ball.

Putting By the Odd Pennies.

A small Satsuma jar, that stands on the desk of a busy woman, receives the odd pennies, or what she calls "the unexpected money"—that found loose in pockets or bureau drawers. There will never be enough money in it to found a hospital, or to build a home for insane dogs, but there is always enough to send a posy to a sick friend, a paper to somebody way off where little reading matter can be gotten, or to buy a souvenir for a birthday. Once started and well managed, the box is like the widow's cruse—never empty. Do not count the contents except when you are taking stock with a purchase in view. Counting seems to break the spell. Pennies are gregarious—and where one goes another wants to follow.

Let them form a community in the savings box and just see how they will gather—leaves in Vallambrosa will be as nothing as compared to them.—Ladies' Home Journal.

No Use for Them.

Countryman—Can I sell you a wagon load of apples this morning?

Proprietor (in astonishment)—No, sir. This is a cider factory! (Sharply to clerk) "Jacobs, show this man out."—Chicago Tribune.

Next Sunday afternoon the members of the Sons of England Lodge will meet at the Odd Fellow's Hall at 2:30 o'clock, and will parade in full regalia to Holy Trinity Church where a special service will be conducted by the chaplain of the society, the Rev. Mr. Tovey.

At 11 p.m. last night lock-up keeper Smith reported "all's well and the city quiet."

The Good Templars' Excursion.

The Good Templars of this city, Vancouver, and from the various lodges in the different settlements along the river, are endeavoring to arrange a grand excursion picnic which, it is said, will take place at Maple Ridge on the 18th instant. The Vancouver lodge will go by a special train from Vancouver, while the members along the North and South Arms, of this city, and further up the river will be given the privilege of viewing the scenery along the noble Fraser to the place of the festivities, on the Delaware, which has been chartered for the occasion. A splendid programme consisting of music, songs, speeches and recitations has been gotten up for the entertainment of those participating, and it is confidently hoped that an enjoyable gathering will be held.

Remember

That the next general meeting of the citizens will be held on Tuesday evening next, and that the next general committee meeting is to take place tomorrow night in the city hall at 8 o'clock.

Royal Ledge No. 6.

The following members were installed as officers of the Knights of Pythias Lodge on Tuesday evening for the ensuing term by Thomas Gifford, the Deputy Grand Master: P.C., T. Ackerman; C.C., J. E. Knight; V. C., N. Nelson; prelate, D. Cameron; M. of E., J. B. Kennedy; M. of F., G. Schmidt; M.A., A. Hauk; I.G., L. Witt; O.G., O. Clemmens.

Game Before.

Claude Leonard, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cunningham, died on Tuesday morning after an illness of only a few hours. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, the services being conducted by the Rev. E. Robson, pastor of the Mary Street Methodist Church. The sorrow-stricken parents have the sympathy of their numerous friends in their sad bereavement.

An Opposition Steamer.

It is said that the steamer Amelia, which has been undergoing repairs for some time past near Victoria, will be placed on the route between this city and Nanaimo, via Vancouver, in opposition to the Dunsmuir, of the C.P.N. line. The business of this route has picked up wonderfully during the past year or two, and the advent of another steamer on the line will give a good service, for it is natural to suppose that the steamers will run on alternate days.

Stanley's New Book.

W. T. Kinney, authorized agent for Stanley's new book, "In Darkest Africa," is now soliciting orders in this city. This work which is published only by Scribner's Sons, of New York, abounds with thrilling and interesting incidents of the late expedition, and as only a limited number will be issued, parties wishing to secure a copy should subscribe at once. 234 6ts

The Lacrosse Match.

The match between this city and Vancouver, to be played on Saturday next, is one of the schedule matches laid out by the British Columbia Lacrosse Association, and was to have been contested in Vancouver, but on account of the unfit condition of the grounds in that city, the teams have decided to cross sticks on Queen's Park. It happens that on the same day the Orangemen will celebrate at the park, and though the match is in no way connected with the festivities of the followers of King William, those members of the lodge who are on the committee very kindly allowed the match to be proceeded with, and it will do so without interfering with anything else on the programme. The boys are hard at work and are almost sure to carry the day.

Saturday's Lacrosse Team.

The following are the positions in the several men on the team for the lacrosse match with Vancouver on Saturday:

Goal—Thompson.
Point—Whyte.
Cover point—McKenzie.
Defence — Campbell, Ketchum.
Defence field—Clote.
Centre—Stewart.
Home field — Poole, Eyal, Lewis.
Home—McGregor.
Inside home—Cambridge.

The last practice before the great event will take place this evening, and it is hoped that all members will turn out.

THE CITIZENS' MEETING.

Practical Pointers Suggested by Prominent Persons.

In response to the meeting of the citizens, called by Mayor Brown, to take the preliminary steps towards the celebration in connection with the forthcoming exhibition, an extraordinarily large number of people assembled in the City Hall last night and discussed matters in a very businesslike manner, showing the interest taken by the public in the success of the endeavor. At a few minutes past eight o'clock, Mayor Brown, who acted as chairman, called those assembled to order and stated the object of the meeting, saying in so many words that it was to consider the advisability of celebrating the coming exhibition. Colonel McGregor was appointed to act as secretary. It was moved by D. S. Curtis, seconded by T. J. Trapp, that we have a celebration, which motion was unanimously carried. At this stage Mr. Trapp read the following telegram which had been received by him from Mr. Thomas Cunningham, President of the Agricultural Society, who was then in Victoria: "Registration of the Royal Agricultural and Industrial Association of British Columbia completed today." This telegram was also signed by Mr. Pearson, the secretary of the association. Mr. Curtis thought that as this was only a preliminary meeting all they could do was to appoint a collection committee to go over the city and see what the citizens were disposed to donate, for he remarked "You cannot build a house without knowing how much money you have to spend."

Mr. Corbould, M. P., wished to know whether anything would be due from the Government to which the chairman said that the Agricultural Society and not the celebration committee would receive its usual amount.

The chairman said that the first thing to be done was to get a programme out on broad terms, because the people wished to know the amount they would be asked to subscribe.

Mr. Shannon, of Clover Valley, who is one of the directors of the association, said this was the first intimation he had received of the name of the society, he thought it would be called the Mainland Association, the district and city should work shoulder to shoulder in the matter and make it one of the most successful ever held in the country.

Mr. Trapp said that all directors were notified by letter of the meetings held, and many farmers and citizens had been consulted regarding the name chosen.

J. C. Armstrong moved that the appointment of a committee be proceeded with immediately to form a programme, but Mr. Scoullar thought it too soon, and several gave their opinions on the subject when the chairman suggested that a committee with instructions what to do, be appointed. Upon the suggestion of Mr. McIntosh that a general committee should be appointed, it was decided to form a committee of 24 members to constitute the executive, and the following were nominated, with power to add to their number: Messrs. the Mayor, Townley, McIntosh, Armstrong, Montgomery, Ackerman, Scoullar, McGill, Raymond, Curtis, Sinclair, Allan, Wise, Thompson, Moresby, Owens, Fraser, Levi, Calbick, Reid, Phillips, McInnes, Corbould, Worth, McLaughlin, Whyte, Lewis, and all the representatives of the various organizations throughout the city.

This committee was requested to prepare a programme, which will be submitted to a meeting called for next Tuesday evening.

Mr. Shannon said that the exhibition should be held somewhere about the 8th or 10th of October this year, because all the crops in the district were two weeks behind hand, there having been so much rain.

Mr. Trapp replied, saying that at the meeting of the society all consideration was given the farmers, when the 24th, 25th and 26th of September were chosen; besides, they would in all probability be moonlight nights, consequently fine weather. Several complained of last year's exhibition being too late in the season.

Mr. Armstrong said it would be wise to have the show just a little before the opposition hold theirs over on the Island, and that the dates selected were about right.

The meeting then adjourned until Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock sharp.

Immediately afterwards the general committee held its preliminary meeting, when after considerable discussion the following were appointed on provisional committees to report progress at the general committee meeting, which is to be held on Friday evening:

Trades Procession—S. J. Thompson, John Ecott, D. S. Curtis, Mr. Ackerman.

Military Display—Captain Townley, Captain Scoullar, Thomas Ovens, W. Moresby.

Sports on River—W. Johnston, A. B. McKenzie, W. R. Townsend, P. McTiernan.

Lacrosse and Bicycle—J. C. White, James Leamy, W. McGill, Fred Turner.

Athletic—D. McGregor, A. McInnis, R. Allen, J. S. C. Fraser, A. McLaughlin.

Horse Racing—J. S. C. Fraser, Joseph Wise, J. C. Armstrong, George Raymond.

Music and Decoration—Captain Townley, J. S. C. Fraser, G. W. Grant, J. E. Phillips.

The second meeting held in the City Hall last evening was a decidedly satisfactory affair, augering well for future enthusiasm as soon as the various committees get down to their work. The Province is expecting a big show from the Royal City this fall, and Westminster intends giving it. At the late hour of going to press we content ourselves with this remark.—Ed.]
