Mr. R. D. Atkins, Who Returned to Victoria on Tuesday From the Above Locality, Contributes to the Colonist an Interesting Letter from Which we Make Extracts.

ATTEMPTED MURDER AT NELSON.

The town of Nelson is growing, and now has two hotels and several stores. It is attracting a mixed population. A stabbing affray occurred during the time of Mr. Atkins' visit. Two strangers, and a railroader named Brady and another, were the principals. It appears that Brady, who is a broad-shouldered six-footer, was drinking in one of the saloons, and threatened to wipe out the whole town. The other stranger thought he couldn't, and though a little fellow, was plucky, and tackled the boaster and gave him a good thumping. He then went to his cabin a quarter of a mile away and retired, Brady remaining an hour and a quarter longer at the hotel. He then went to the cabin of his antagonist and stabbed him under the ribs. The throat luckily passing between the stomach and lung. An inch higher or lower would have resulted fatally. Notwithstanding the vicious thrust given him the little stoker was game, and after being wounded picked up a billet of wood and struck his would-be murderer a blow on the head which rendered him insensible for a couple of hours. The wounded man then gave the alarm, and Constable Giffin arrested Brady. He was examined and sent up for trial to Kamloops. Had his victim died the camp would have taken the law into their own hands and lynched the murderer.

MINING PROGRESS.

Since Mr. Atkins' previous visit, several new ledges have been located between Nelson and the Columbia, each giving a prospect. On Eagle Creek the American company have put up a small stamp mill, and have crushed a quantity of the ore. A clean up of the plates has given a more than satisfactory return, and if the ore carries sulphurets in considerable quantity the success of the mine is assured. Little work is being done at Hot Springs Camp at present. It is understood that the St. Paul expert has reported favorably on the Blue Bell claim and a smelter will be erected on the property. Dr. Bendrys will await the railway connection of the Great Northern, which is expected to reach Kootenay River in a couple of months before bringing in the necessary machinery. At the Hall Brothers mine on Toad Mountain, a new tunnel is being driven in. It was reported that 800 oz. ore had been struck in this tunnel. This is not so, for the ore had not been reached. Mr. Atkins has purchased a half interest in this mine, and, with his associates, will thoroughly open it up before putting in any machinery.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

Mr. Atkins rode from Nelson to Sproat's Landing. Railway work is being pushed as rapidly as possible, about 300 men being scattered along the route. The right-of-way has been slashed from the Columbia to within a couple of miles of Nelson. A number of miles have been graded and two miles have been ironed. A locomotive was expected to arrive down in the course of a fortnight, which would permit still more energetic prosecution of the work. A large snow is all out completed at Revelstoke for the purpose of bringing down the rails and rolling stock. It is believed that trains will be running within three months time.

The Latest Fad of the Dude.

The latest fad among the dudes is the consumption of violent red gloves. I say violent advisedly, because the shade is just that which might result if they had been knocked over the head by a policeman and their noses had bled. It is a gory red. It is a red that makes you tremble with fear, and I cannot but believe that the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will interfere very shortly and insist that even the lambs on Wall street are frightened out of their wits by seeing this ruinous looking color on the hands of men whom they had thought at least inoffensive, but who now present the appearance of being prize fighters who have dipped their hands in the blood of their victims. It is not a pretty fashion.—New York Letter.

Their Island Submerged.

A letter was received from Louis Turner, of this city, reciting the particulars of a tidal wave that swept over Sand Island on the 13th ult. Turner, with Joseph Allen and John Rogers, were engaged in getting drift timber off the beach on the west end of the island, when about 3 o'clock the wind shifted to due east, the waters of Mobile bay and the Gulf of Mexico met one another, and in five minutes the island was five feet under water. They were driven from one hill to another, and at last found a piece of scantling and drove it in the ground, to which they clung until the water subsided.—Mobile Cor. New Orleans Times-Democrat.

NARROW ESCAPE

THE ENGLISH GOVERNMENT HAS A VERY CLOSE SHAVE.

A Division on the Licensing Bill in the British Parliament Almost Overthrows the Conservatives, Who Are Now Rather Disconcerted by the Evident Disapproval of Their Late Actions—Lord Salisbury Thinks the Transfer of Heligoland to Germany Will be Satisfactory to the Inhabitants.

LONDON, June 19.—In the House of Lords tonight Earl Rosebery enquired if the Government before arranging for the transfer of Heligoland to Germany had consulted the naval and military authorities, and also if the inhabitants of the island had been consulted. Lord Salisbury said the Government had the assurance that the island would not be used by Germany exclusively as a naval or military station. He also thought the transfer was satisfactory to the inhabitants.

In the House of Commons W. H. Smith stated, in reply to a question regarding transfer of Heligoland to Germany, that a bill would be introduced to ratify the cession. Smith was asked to produce the opinion of the naval and military authorities concerning the transfer, but declined to do so. The House having gone into a committee of the whole on the Licensing Bill, the chairman moved that the first clause applying £350,000 to the purchase of licenses stand as part of the bill. Storey did not resume his speech which was interrupted on Tuesday and the question was put without debate. A division was taken and the clause was carried by the narrow majority of four. Vote was 228 to 224. The Conservatives cheered the result, but their cheers were drowned by triumphant shouts of the Opposition at the narrow escape of the Government. T. P. O'Connor declared the result indicated the decision of the House against the bill and moved to report progress, as the Government ought be allowed a chance to reconsider its position. Mr. Smith said the Opposition certainly had the advantage of surprise, whatever that amounted to, and they could have credit of it. Mr. Storey said he had not finished his speech when the debate was last adjourned, and it was thought he would continue, therefore the Government had not been prepared for an immediate division. The Government now simply proposed to proceed with business in the ordinary way. Mr. Storey thought Smith was never satisfied [illegible] to be regarded as obstruction [illegible] unless was taking the Government [illegible]. In producing the Licensing Bill [illegible] said the Government would discover the people of the country would support them. Gladstone advised the withdrawal of the bill. O'Connor withdrew his motion, and the House proceeded to discuss the second clause. The scheme of the Opposition in securing a vote while the Conservative benches were sparsely occupied, completely surprised Ministerialists, although they greatly feared defeat.

Signal Station for Victoria.

OTTAWA, June 19.—An observation and signal station is to be established at Victoria in connection with the meteorological service, the intention of the department being to furnish storm warnings and results of observations for the benefit of the marine interests of the Pacific Coast similar to those on the lakes and on the Atlantic. Reed, of London, has been transferred to Victoria.

A DISTINGUISHED GUEST.

Visit of the Lord Bishop of Qu'Appelle to New Westminster.

The Right Rev. the Hon. Adelbert J. R. Anson, D. D., Lord Bishop of Qu'Appelle, is expected to arrive in our city this morning, as a guest of the bishop of this diocese and an invited participant in the proceedings of next week's Synod of New Westminster. Dr. Anson comes of a well known English stock, which in the last century gave to Great Britain the famous admiral who fought so doughtily against the French and he is a near relative of the Earl of Lichfield. The bishop has been a hard worker of the church ever since his ordination as deacon in 1864. He then successively ministered in densely peopled English Midland parishes of working men and miners at Wolverhampton, Bilston, Handsworth, and Sedgley, until he was in 1875 instituted as rector of the ancient town of Wednesbury, a district conveniently near to the metropolis and many of the bishop's friends. This and the consequent hopes of home preferment in recognition of good work done, the bishop surrendered in order to take up the very difficult and, in a worldly sense, unremunerative task of laying the broad and deep foundations of the church in the vast area of Assiniboia, then more sparsely peopled than now when the communications of the C.P.R. are causing this part of the Northwest to become the home of thousands of sturdy British settlers. Even yet the Bishop of Qu'Appelle, as the diocese of Assiniboia is now called, has a task difficult enough to tax the energy of the stoutest of Englishmen, for the more than 30,000 people of his see are scattered over no less than 96,000 square miles in a climate which, glorious as it is in summer, and bracing in the winter months, yet renders very arduous, and sometimes perilous, the long journeys which a hardworking bishop has during several months of the year to make from settlement to settlement over the deep snows of the prairies. The bishop entered upon his western work soon after the tide of immigration began in 1883 to flow into Assiniboia. The bishop had at first 4 clerical helpers only, with 2 school churches and 2 parsonages. He has today more than 20 assistant clergy and a rather more than equal number of churches under his charge. He has thus already succeeded in making something like a fair initial provision for the spiritual needs of 30,000 people, who will soon grow into at least 100,000, and are moreover to scattered over the land that further help is even now greatly needed. One most interesting feature of Bishop Anson's work is his Church Farm at Qu'Appelle, which at once and the same time realizes an ideal of John Ruskin, and affords a practical example of a form of Christian Socialism to which none can take exception. The farm at Qu'Appelle provides first a temporary home and training school for young farm settlers of the Northwest; secondly, a college for candidates for Holy Orders willing to work with their hands to earn their own living; and last but not least, ever employment to men who in a brotherhood of labor are willing to help forward the work of God by the devotion of their lives and the toil of skilled handicraftsmen. The farm in connection worked in connection with a school for the sons of settlers. The social influence of such a place of plain living, high thinking, and good work must be of immense value in a district like Assiniboia, which is at present essentially agricultural in character and likely long to remain so. Thus, even from a purely secular standpoint, one part of Bishop Anson's work is of great value to an important territory of the Canadian Dominion and as such to our empire. The offertories at Holy Trinity Church, at which the Bishop of Qu'Appelle will preach twice next Sunday, will be devoted to his mission work among our people. Many of the patriotic "sons of England" might, therefore, very well then put in an appearance and lend a helping hand to a good Bishop, an excellent Canadian citizen, and a loyal Englishman of the best type.

The Chief on the War Path.

This morning at 2 o'clock Chief Pearce made a raid upon a Chinese bagnio on Front street and secured two females and three males, who will have to answer before his honor this morning. Besides these, two drunks and a suspected robber are at Hotel de Smith, which will insure a lively matinee at 10 o'clock today.

The Forth bridge in Scotland cost over $16,000,000, and 50,000 tons of steel was used in its construction.

Foolscap is a corruption of the Italian folli-capa, a fellow-sized sheet. The error must have been very ancient, as the water mark of this sort of paper from the thirteenth to the seventeenth century was a fool's head with cap and bells.

A BLOODY AXE

WITH WHICH MRS. POTTS BRAINS A CREDITOR.

Her Husband Buries the Corpse in the Cellar, After the Bloodthirsty Pair Mutilate and Dissect It—The Awful Story as Told by the Finders of the Remains Battered and Bruised and the Limbs Torn From the Body—They Will Hang Today for the Terrible Crime.

ELKO, Nev., June 19.—Josiah Potts, aged 48 years, and his wife, aged 43 years, are to be hanged tomorrow for the murder of Miles Fawcett, a rancher, 70 years of age, at Carlin, January 1st, 1888. Fawcett called on the Potts' family to collect a loan, and was brained with an axe by Mrs. Potts. The husband buried the body in the cellar of the house. After some time the Potts sold out their property in Carlin including that which had belonged to Fawcett for which they had forged a bill of sale, and removed to Rock Springs, Wyoming, where Potts obtained a situation as machinist with a mining company, and where his good habits and superior skill soon raised him to the position of foreman. In January, 1889, the house formerly occupied by the Potts' was rented to a family named Brewer. The house had two dog out cellars with the roof caved in, and in removing the debris in one of them, the Brewers found the body of Fawcett buried about a foot deep on top of the sidewalk near the roof under new and loose earth covered with straw. The body was horribly mutilated, the skull being crushed and partly burned, as were other portions of the body, and the limbs were severed from the trunk. The Brewers immediately notified the authorities. Officers were sent to Rock Springs, and the Potts were brought back to Elko and confined in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury, which found a true bill against them, and they were convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged.

Trouble Among Steamship Companies.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—The tripartite agreement made between the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, Occidental & Oriental, and Pacific Mail Companies a year ago, by which the Canadian Pacific Company stipulated not to touch any business south of Portland, Oregon, has just terminated and there are indications that the Canadian Pacific will run its steamers to and from the port again as it did before this agreement was made. The Canadian Pacific does not want the Pacific Mail to put on steamers to Tacoma, and threatens to come to this port if the territory north of Portland is invaded by the Pacific Mail. The Southern Pacific Company and the Oriental & Occidental Company, its adjunct, together with Messrs Tallington and Gilson, ex Pacific Mail directors, do not favor the Tacoma desire, but Calvin S. Brice and a majority of the new directors of the Pacific Mail, do favor the Tacoma service. Brice is said to be interested to the extent of a large sum in Northern Pacific securities, and he wants to help that road as much as possible. Huntington is trying as a Pacific Mail director to effect some sort of a compromise by which there will be no Tacoma steamer service, thus appeasing the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company and helping transPacific up. No one here will tell what is the true nature of the Huntington compromise, but it is said to be an agreement by which the Northern Pacific shall get more California business. Important developments affecting this matter may be expected any day.

A Fatal Family Row.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 19.—Today Dr. W. J. Hamner, a popular dentist, and his wife of this city, had a dispute over a trivial matter, and the wife called her father who over became enraged and knocked the old gentleman down with a cane. Mrs. Hamner seized a revolver from the bureau drawer and shot her husband through the right lung, inflicting fatal injuries. The prominence of the parties adds interest to the affair.

United States Cattle.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The resolution which recently passed the Senate requesting the President to cause correspondence with the Government of Great Britain to be had to secure abrogation or modification of the regulations requiring cattle shipped from the United States to British ports to be slaughtered at the port of entry, was considered by the house committee on foreign affairs today. A favorable report on the resolution will be ordered at the next meeting of the committee.

Bound for Victoria.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—The steamer Umatilla left this morning for Victoria. She was crowded with passengers, and had 2,000 tons of freight. She will connect at Port Townsend with the Geo. W. Elder for Juneau, Sitka and Wrangel.

Leaping for Life.

MONTREAL, June 19.—Yesterday the Howard Pulp factory took fire. A workman named James Gibbons jumped from a window and fractured his leg and was taken to the hospital. Two girls also leaped from the second storey and were picked up insensible. Damage $10,000; covered by insurance.

Mrs. Della Brooks Married.

CORNWALL, June 19.—G. E. Sueninger, of the well known firm of J. G. Sueninger & Co., was married last evening in St. John's Presbyterian Church, to Mrs. Della Brooks, daughter of John Cameron, a prominent resident of Victoria, and niece of late millionaire, "Cariboo" Cameron.

Lost by Lightning.

SHERBROOKE, Que., June 19.—At Black Lake, Que., yesterday, lightning struck the powder building of the Anglo-Canadian asbestos mine and set fire to it, resulting in explosion of about 1800 pounds of powder and about 30 cases of dudlin. The shock was very severe and heavy, and caused more or less damage to about 60 buildings. The loss is estimated at $40 000. One man was injured.

Capturing Horse Thieves.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—For some time this county has been infested with an organized gang of horse thieves. Many fine animals have been stolen. Last night a man informed the sheriff where the thieves could be found. Taking a posse he proceeded to their rendezvous. On the way the posse intercepted Gilmings, one of the gang, and arrested him. Further on Wilson, another of the gang was discovered in the brush. He was armed with a Winchester rifle and when ordered to surrender attempted to escape. He was shot in the hip by one of the posse and captured. The rest of the gang escaped, but are being pursued by the officers.

Mortality in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—There were two sudden deaths and an attempt at suicide in this city this morning. Daniel Jeffries, a middle aged painter, dropped dead from heart disease. Mary Cusack, a young domestic, from apoplexy, and John A. Stronda, an engraver, being ill and short of funds, tried to end his career by gas asphyxiation.

Careless of His Fate.

QUEBEC, June 19.—Dubois, who is to be hanged tomorrow, longs to see how things are on the other side, so he said to the parson today. He eats drinks and sleeps as though there was nothing to trouble him.

Playing Pool for Diamonds.

NEW YORK, June 19.—A. K. Howers, of Chicago, and Charles Mannings, of New York, began a pool contest tonight at Daly's billiard rooms in Brooklyn for a purse and a diamond emblem. They will play three nights, 300 points a night. Mannings won tonight's game by 203 to 82.

A Raise or a Strike.

NEW YORK, June 19.—The employees of Straiton & Storm, cigar manufacturers met tonight and agreed upon a uniform scale of wages which the firm will be asked to sign tomorrow. If the request is denied 600 employees of the firm will strike. The new scale is a slight advance upon the present one.

Bound for Halifax.

HALIFAX, June 19.—The troop ship Tyne has left England for this port with drafts for the West Riding Regiment and Royal Engineers. She has two large torpedo boats for this port. They are capable of holding four torpedoes and are built on the most improved plan.

Reserve Boycotting.

HALIFAX, June 19.—The amalgamated trades union is boycotting the Amherst Boot and Shoe Manufactory, owing to the discharge of some workmen for the reason that they were Knights of Labor. A committee was appointed to ascertain what Halifax merchants are selling the company's goods.

LOYAL VANCOUVER.

Preparing for a Big Dominion Day Celebration in the Terminal City.

A meeting of the Dominion Day Celebration Committee was held in Vancouver, Wednesday evening, there being present: Messrs. Bredemeyer, Stevenson, McGirr, Blomquist, Tisdall, Catton, Fripp, Gross, Hall, Davidson, Taylor, Hart, Cole, Sanson, Beck, O'Brien and Cope. In the absence of the Mayor, Mr. Catton was voted to the chair. The secretary read letters from L. Morgan, Port Townsend, concerning bicycle exhibition, and from T. H. Baker, President Victoria Athletic Club, which were referred to the Athletic Sports Committee.

Six out of the nine sub-committees of the Subscription Committee reported promises and subscriptions amounting to $2,309.50. It was stated that the others would probably bring the total up to $2,500.

A discussion took place on the necessity of publishing the programmes as speedily as possible and of ascertaining the exact sum which would be available and the following resolutions passed: That the secretary be requested to get from the sub-committees their books and all funds collected and report thereon at a meeting of this committee to be held on Saturday evening next. At this period the Mayor came in and took the chair. A resolution was then passed "that all entrance fees be paid into the general fund." Also that the Junior Baseball Club be awarded an appropriation of $50. A discussion then took place on the subject of the programmes and all committees were requested to place their programmes in the hands of the secretary without further delay.

The Mayor stated that he would support an application to the City Council for an appropriation of $1,000.

The secretary was instructed to give notice that all subscriptions must be paid to him at his office on or before Wednesday, 25th inst. and the committee then adjourned till Saturday next.

Big Tree for the World's Fair.

Neal Girard Van Doornum, of Cramers, Tulare County, is making preparations to take out a section of a big redwood tree for the purpose of exhibition at the World's Fair in 1893.

This will be the largest section of any big tree ever taken from California. The tree measures 99 feet in circumference, making it 33 feet in diameter. The section to be taken out will be nine feet in hight and 60 feet in circumference. It will be divided into three cuts.

The first cut will be one foot in hight by twenty feet in diameter. This cut will be split once across, making two half rounds. The next cut will be seven feet in hight by twenty feet in diameter, and will be hollowed out, leaving the bark and sap and about four inches of the timber. The last cut will be the same as the first, allowing all the timber to remain and only splitting once. All three cuts will be set up together when on exhibition.

The manner in which this tree will be gotten out will convince the most skeptical of people that this is not misrepresented, but the largest section of any big tree ever taken from California. The World's Fair Big Tree is to be taken from Mammoth Privet, Tulare County, California, which is located 32 miles east of Tulare City, at an altitude of 6325 feet above the level of the sea.

The work of felling the tree has already begun. Ten skilled workmen have been engaged and are busy at work. The saw to be used in getting out these sections is 22 feet in length, and was made to order by the Pacific Saw Company of San Francisco. It is said to be the largest crosscut saw ever made of one piece of steel, and is supposed to require eight men to handle it. It will take ten men at least two months to complete all the work to be done. Considerable time will be required for the timber to dry, as the weight of the green redwood is very considerable.

Everything will be in readiness long before the proper time arrives for shipment.

Three flat cars will be necessary for transportation, as the total weight will not be less than 65,000 pounds.—Money and Science Press.

The Truth

Daily Edition.

THE ELECTION.

There is little reasonable doubt that New Westminster District has by a significant vote sent Mr. Cunnerton to represent her in the House of Commons. We recommended such a course, and are not in the least surprised that the successful candidate has scored well. As to his election we never doubted it. The exaggerated talk due to the fact that Mr. Townsend was known to have secured much support in this city, did not count for much with those who had means of knowing the feelings of the electorate in other parts of the constituency. It must be highly gratifying to Mr. Townsend to know that the voting in the Royal Burgh placed him very close to his more successful rival, whilst he also polled a most flattering vote in Vancouver. Ladners as was expected went strongly for its own man. At no other station the returns of which are known, however, did Mr. Ladner outdistance Mr. Cunnerton, and only at Chilliwack did he succeed in beating Mr. Townsend. Mr. Cunnerton polled excellently not only in the two cities but throughout the district as far as can be ascertained from the imperfect returns to hand, whilst Mr. Townsend proved himself a highly popular man throughout the large constituency. The success of Mr. Cunnerton secures for us a representative of great ability in the councils of the Dominion. Issues of great moment, necessitating vigilance, sagacity, and patient attention, will arise in the approaching session of the House, and it would have been little short of disastrous had this constituency failed to place a man of capacity at the head of the poll. The diplomatic tact necessary to successful parliamentary life is conspicuous in our new member, and we have no doubt that the election of Mr. Cunnerton to occupy the seat rendered vacant by the decease of our late lamented representative will justify itself, and that before long. An examination of the election figures in another column will convince all that Mr. Cunnerton is the member for the whole district. He is not entitled to his seat by reason of a preponderating vote in any particular locality, but owes his return to the wide spread unerring instinct which perceived that he is by long odds the right man in the right place as member for this highly important constituency. We congratulate our representative and we congratulate the electors.

THE ELECTION DEPOSIT.

When Mr. JOSEPH ARMSTRONG made the $200 election deposit a point of objection we thought that he was merely indulging in a little wild talk of the most high standard prevalent at polling day drew near. We did not think then, that there could be any serious objection raised to what we believed to be a most beneficial measure. Neither do we think so now, but the fact that the Victoria papers are taking sides on the question and discussing the pros and cons of the wisdom of the law relating to money deposits by election candidates, warrants the assumption that after all there are individuals who consider that the law which requires a candidate for legislative honors to pay a forfeit to the treasury in the event of his not polling a certain proportion of votes, is not for the public benefit, but at the same time may become a positive hardship and injustice to poor but able men. As we take it, there are many reasons for insisting upon a money qualification of this nature, and few if any good ones against the requirement. There are very few men of any ability at all, who would find the least difficulty in procuring the funds necessary to qualify as a candidate. If a would-be candidate has any following at all, he certainly would not have to wait very long before the sum required by law was placed at his disposal. In the case of a man running for member who is the representative merely of himself (and perhaps not even that, five minutes together), it might, and perhaps would sometimes, prove a little inconvenient and annoying to have to put hands into the breeches pocket. Upon mere cranks and faddists such an enactment should in course of time tell most effectively. We have lived long enough to learn, of course, that the man who runs for parliament seemingly with no other object than to lose his deposit, is almost if not quite a hopeless case, and will quite as likely as not, repeat his experiment at the first available moment. The object of the law requiring the deposit is not, however, primarily to cure cranks, and therefore it is a matter of little relative importance how often such people insist upon running if only they pay up regularly. A deposit requirement from candidates is of great value as a means of keeping out of the field vexatious and bogus men, put forward by interested parties with a view to spoiling a good straight contest, or ruining the chances of a candidate who is very popular, by endeavoring to attract away some of his supporters. Those people who mistake notoriety for fame are very apt to rush headlong into a contest if they can be assured that it will cost them nothing, and the fact of realizing that in the event of their not polling a certain percentage of votes, they will have to assist in paying the bill of costs for putting the country to the trouble of an electoral contest, will be ample guarantee at any rate that those of them who can only be talked to, though their pockets will think twice before making exhibitions of themselves. It may be that able men have had and will have the mortification of losing their deposits. We could ourselves instance cases of the kind, but they are rare, and more often than not, what men of capacity lose in this manner in money, they more than gain in experience for future occasions. It should never for a moment be forgotten that elections are expensive, and it really does seem a trifle hard if the public purse is to suffer to an unknown extent by the multiplication of candidates. It may be generally conceded that a candidate enters the field certainly to gratify his own taste as much as anybody else's. If he runs purely and simply in the interest of a section of the community, his supporters will, if they are patriotic men, see that he does not suffer pecuniary loss by becoming their champion, but if on the contrary he votes no party but himself and no interest but a petty vanity he deserves to have to assist in paying the expense to which his egotism has put the community.

There was a very considerable amount of excitement throughout the city yesterday, and betting upon the result of the election was freely indulged in. So confident of victory had Mr. Townsend's supporters become that many of them freely gave odds not only upon the polling in the city but in regard to the ultimate and final counting from all the stations. It seemed to be unanimously conceded that Mr. Ladner was not in the running, but bets were offered and taken upon his chance for first place in the rural portions of the constituency. Although the returning officer will not officially declare the result of the poll for some days, the figures published will not vary in any material particular upon the recount, and we may be certain as it is possible to be that two things have happened, Mr. Cunnerton has been returned by the "decisive and emphatic majority" we asked for, and Mr. Ladner has unfortunately forfeited his deposit.

The vote in the district proper as distinguished from the cities is larger than we anticipated. Fortunately the weather was a decided improvement upon that of yesterday, and this no doubt allowed many persons to go to the poll who otherwise would have failed to journey far enough to exercise the franchise.

PROPOSALS.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF New Westminster having acquired a Crown Grant of a portion of the easterly end of Lulu Island, now known as Lot 10, Group 1, New Westminster District, in consideration of which it has given bonds to carry out certain works on and about said lands, proposals are hereby invited for the performance of the above said works, which are as follows:

1. To erect and maintain a good and substantial traffic bridge, with draw, suitable for passengers and waggons, between said lands and that portion of the City of New Westminster which is situate on the north bank of the Fraser River, said bridge to be constructed in accordance with plans and specifications approved of by the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works.

2. To construct and keep in repair to the satisfaction of the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works a good and substantial waggon road, not less than twenty feet wide, from said bridge through Lulu Island to the boundary of the Municipality of Richmond.

3. To construct all roads, drains, ditches and dykes necessary for draining the tenement thereby.

4. All said works to be completed to the satisfaction of the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for the time being.

Persons proposing to construct and maintain the works above set out are required to submit plans and details of work they propose to do, and state out of any moneys payable to the Corporation on the bridge, also to state date on which they will have the works completed, and to state the exact quantity of land on said reserve they will take in full consideration of said undertakings, and the person whose proposal is accepted to or any will be required to give security to the satisfaction of the Corporation for the performance of said undertaking. Proposals will be received at the City Clerk's office, up to 8 o'clock p.m. on Monday the 26th day of June, 1899, and must state the nature of the security proposed to be given. Tenders to be marked "Tender for Lulu Island."

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

THE CAREFUL MESSENGER.

A pound of tea at one and three,
And a pot of raspberry jam,
Two new laid eggs, a dozen pegs,
And a pound of rashers of ham.

I'll say it over all the way,
And then I'm sure not to forget,
For if I chance to bring things wrong,
My mother gets in such a pet.

A pound of tea at one and three,
And a pot of raspberry jam,
Two new laid eggs, a dozen pegs,
And a pound of rashers of ham.

There, in the bay, the children play,
They're having such jolly fun;
I'll go there, too, that's what I'll do,
As soon as my errands are done.

A pound of tea at one and three,
A pot of—er—new laid jam,
Two raspberry eggs, with a dozen pegs,
And a pound of rashers of ham.

There's Teddy White flying his kite;
He thinks himself grand, I declare;
I'd like to try to make it fly, up sky high,
Ever so much higher
Than the old church spire,
And then—but there—

A pound of three and one at ten,
A pot of new laid jam,
Two dozen eggs, some raspberry pegs,
And a pound of rashers of ham.

Now here's the shop, outside I'll stop,
And run my orders through again;
I haven't forget, no, sir-ee a jot—
It shows I'm pretty cute, that's plain.

A pound of three at one and ten,
A dozen of raspberry ham,
A pot of eggs, with a dozen pegs,
And a rasher of new laid jam.

ALL A MISTAKE.

"I dare say, all my relatives will think it very silly of me," said Miss Maroon. "But I really think I am quite old and experienced enough to manage these affairs for myself. And I've heard of a great many happy marriages that have been arranged just in this way. To be sure, it is running a risk; but, after all, life is a lottery, and one has to take things as they come, in this world."

Miss Malvina Maroon (generally known as "Mally" by her friends and acquaintances) was sitting in a very stiff backed chair, in the best room of the little country tavern at Infield-on-the-Hudson. The stage had been in for an hour at least, and Miss Maroon was tired of waiting. She had chirped to the thrush in his cage, counted all the little red balls on the Jerusalem cherry tree in the window, and looked at the picture of the "Signing of the Declaration of Independence" until she knew every wig and buckled shoe by heart, and still nobody had come to meet her. She was beginning to feel a little uneasy at this unexpected delay. The landlord had peeped at her, under pretence of coming to fill up the big stone pitcher with fresh cabbage roses; the landlady had courtesied at the door, and asked her if she should cook a little piece of steak or a dish of brook trout for her dinner.

"I don't expect to be here to dinner," said Miss Maroon, with dignity.

"Oh!" said the landlady.

"My friends will doubtless be here to meet me in a very few minutes," explained Miss Maroon, glancing at the clock.

"Ah!" said the landlady.

But this was where Miss Maroon had intrenched somewhat on the strict truth. She had no friends at Infield-on-the-Hudson. She had come there—under our breath be it spoken—with the desperate resolve to answer a matrimonial advertisement. She had seen it in the paper. She had read it twice over and rather liked the way in which it was worded. She had asked herself, "Why not?" and echo had returned no unfavorable response. And she had, so to speak, taken her fate into her own hands and come boldly to Infield-on-the-Hudson.

But now, as the moments sped by, she was beginning to wax secretly uneasy. Suppose there should be any mistake? Suppose the advertiser should be "suited" already? Suppose any number of awkward circumstances to have interposed themselves in the way of her welfare? But, just as she was beginning to make herself thoroughly uncomfortable, there came a tap, tap at the door, and in walked a stout, short man with a red necktie and a countenance to match!

"Lady from New York?" said this personage, without the least embarrassment.

Miss Maroon rose with dignity. "Yes, sir," said she.

He was not exactly aristocratic looking. There was no mistake about that. He wore no gloves, and his hands were stumpy and freckled—his hair stuck up like the bristles of the fretful porcupine, and his face, although good natured, bore in it no trace of ancient blood or lofty lineage! But Miss Maroon had thought herself of the old proverb about the deceitfulness of appearances, and plucked up spirit.

"You saw the advertisement, I suppose?" said the stout man.

"I did, sir," said Miss Maroon.

"Think you'll suit?" questioned the stout man.

"Sir?" said Miss Maroon.

"Because he's a little peculiar," explained the man; "and it ain't everybody meets his views, you see!"

"Oh!" said Miss Maroon, a light breaking in upon her darkness, "then you are not the party himself?"

"Oh, no," said the stout man. "No; I'm the business man! I settle everything for him."

"I should prefer negotiating with principals," said Miss Maroon, drawing herself up.

"It's the usual way we does it," remarked her interlocutor, picking a broom splint from the floor, and beginning to chew it.

"The usual way?" repeated Miss Maroon, more puzzled than ever. "May I ask how often the—the gentleman has been married before?"

"Never been married in his life," said the stout man. "Circumstances was against it, you see."

"Oh!" said Miss Maroon.

"He ain't hard to manage," said the stout man. "Them as he takes a fancy to can do most anything with him."

Miss Maroon cast down her eyes and simpered at this.

"Did you bring any references?" said the stout man, abruptly.

"References!" echoed Miss Maroon.

"Ever had any experience?" he went on.

"Sir!" said Miss Maroon. "I really don't quite understand"—

"Your age seems quite suitable," said the man. "I calculate you're about 40, ain't you? We couldn't give you many holidays, nor Sundays out, but for a good, reg'lar, steady place"—

"Stop," cried Miss Maroon, "do stop! I don't at all know what you're talking about. Holidays—Sundays out! I'd have you to know that I am no housemaid looking for a place. And as for being 40 years old, my appearance must be very deceptive if you take me for anywhere near that age. I am only six-and-thirty."

"Three or four years one way or the other don't make much difference," remarked the stout man with the bristly hair. "Our last was 60, and she had a pretty tidy notion of her business, too, only"—

Miss Maroon looked surprised.

"I thought I understood you to say that the gentleman had never been married," said she.

"No more he has," said the man. "I ain't talking about wives. I'm talking about nurses."

"What!" cried Miss Maroon.

The stout man looked hard at her for a minute or two; then he plunged his hand deep down into his coat pocket and extracted thence a slip cut from a newspaper.

"It's all writ down here in black and white, plain enough," said he:

"Wanted, an experienced and trustworthy attendant for a gentleman of infirm mind. To the right person a liberal remuneration will be offered. Apply on Wednesday next, between the hours of 10 and 1 at the Weigewell house, Infield on the Hudson."

"You see," he added, as he refolded the paper and returned it to his pocket, "we didn't exactly like to put it down in the paper as he was a crazy man."

"But that isn't the advertisement I saw at all," said Miss Maroon, growing alternately pale and red in her consternation.

"It was in The Daily Visitor," said the stout man, "as we put our notice."

"And it was The Morning Patriot that I saw," cried Miss Maroon. "A Mr. Ira Ian St. John, of St. Johnsgrove, Infield-on-the-Hudson, who wanted"—

"A wife," said the stout man, with twinkling eyes. "I thought so! I seen his carriage go by half an hour ago, with a pretty little black eyed woman, in cherry colored ribbons and"—

"And Rob Roy plaid polonaise?" almost screamed Miss Maroon. "And a black parasol lined with scarlet?"

"Some sort of a rig of that description," said the stout man.

"The bold, pert, unfeminine thing!" said Miss Maroon, vehemently fanning herself. "I've seen her, this long time, walking up and down the piazza! She's the very one that came down in the stage with me! And here she has whisked off with the advertising man, and left me all alone and deserted!"

"She's got the clear start of you, it seems," said the stout man, as he rose up and looked around for his hat. "Well, if you don't like the idee of my situation"—

"I decline it, most certainly," said Miss Maroon, precipitately. "Landlady!"

"It would not be such a bad idea," coaxed the stout man, "if"—

"Landlady!" repeated Miss Maroon, more energetically than ever. And the stout man went out, thrusting his hands into his pockets as he did so. The landlady bustled in.

"A carriage, please, to the railway depot," said Miss Maroon.

"Won't you wait for the stage, ma'am?" said the landlady. "It'll be along in half an hour."

"I wouldn't stay here another five minutes for all the gold of Golconda," said Miss Maroon.

So the rickety one horse chaise of the establishment was geared up, and Miss Maroon, shedding secret tears of vexation and disappointment behind her veil, went back. And when her nephews and nieces asked about her sudden journey to Infield-on-the-Hudson, she told them that she had been to look for summer board.

"And weren't you suited, auntie, dear?" said the youngest and prettiest of the nieces, who had seen The Morning Patriot, with the printed slip missing from the list of advertisements, and could put two and two together as well as any one.

And Miss Maroon answered, sharply, that she was not suited at all.—Henrietta Gregory in The New York Ledger.

A Novel Plan for Housekeeping.

The most novel plan of housekeeping for a large family ever known in Washington is that adopted by Mr. and Mrs. W. Fitzhugh Whitehouse, the former a son of the bishop. Mr. Whitehouse, from choice rather than necessity, has leased for the season two good sized houses, the first on Hillyer place, owned by the family of the late Francis Wharton, and the second in the neighborhood, though around the corner, fronting on Connecticut avenue. There is, therefore, no connection in any way between the two. Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse reside on Hillyer place, and their household, when collected, consists of six children, tutor, governess and twelve servants.—Chicago Tribune.

Orange Growing.

The Oviedo (Fla.) Chronicle says: The orange business of the present winter has demonstrated one thing clearly, and that is that Tangerine and Mandarin oranges no longer command the price of former seasons, and that they are not even selling as well as ordinary oranges, considering the expense in gathering and putting them up. Growers should note the fact that it will not be profitable to plant any more of those varieties. The demand for them is limited, and is now easily supplied.

The Eighth hussars of the British army have a gazelle for "child of the regiment." It accompanies the regiment everywhere, and is an especially conspicuous figure on the Sunday church parade, when it accompanies the band, leading the line with a stately tread, apparently agitated from that of the drum major.

A Stranger Whose Title Produced Surprise in Tennessee.

A dignified looking stranger entered the ticket office of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railroad yesterday, and stated that he wished to purchase tickets for himself and family to Texas, and also wanted to secure rates for the transportation of a carload of household furniture. Col. Harry Wilson waited on the gentleman, and ascertained that his name was Martin. He negotiated a trade with him for the tickets, and referred him to the freight office on Monroe street for information about freight rates.

As the stranger displayed a goodly roll of boodle it was incumbent on Col. Wilson to treat him with the consideration due his importance, and so he told Billy to take the colonel over and introduce him to Mr. Bartley, and he took care to lay the accent on the colonel.

Billy got the stranger safely over to the freight office, and in his politest manner presented him to Will Bartley as follows: "Mr. Bartley, allow me to introduce to you Col. Martin."

The stranger drew himself up haughtily, and striking an attitude, with his right hand over his left breast pocket, said: "I am no colonel, young man: I am something higher than that."

"Excuse me; I meant to say brigadier," apologized Billy.

"I have a higher title than that," said the great man.

Billy was equal to the occasion, and came again with "I really meant to say major general, you know."

He was knocked out again, however, by the supposed officer remarking with heightened dignity, which, however, was softened by a quiet, amused smile: "You have not got up high enough yet."

"You must be the commander-in-chief of the army," suggested Billy in a doubtful sort of tone, but the stranger paralyzed him by the announcement that he held a still higher title.

Billy was stumped. He thought the distinguished visitor was no other than the president travelling in cog., but he dismissed that idea, and then his curiosity got the better of his reverence, and he blurted out: "Well, who are you, any way?"

The stranger softly replied: "I am a minister of the gospel, sir," and Billy fainted dead away, while Will Bartley made a half rate for the divine on account of his high title.—Memphis Avalanche.

Debt of Honor.

England, which is rich in gentlemen, furnished, in the beginning of the present century, a good model of that genius which the world loves in Charles James Fox, who added to his great abilities the most social disposition and real love of men. A characteristic anecdote is related of the celebrated orator and statesman:

A tradesman who had long dunned Mr. Fox for a note of three hundred guineas found him one day counting gold, and demanded payment of his long due note.

"I cannot pay you now," said Fox. "I owe this money to Sheridan; it is a debt of honor. If an accident should happen to me he has nothing to show to maintain his claim."

"Then," said the creditor, "I change my debt into a debt of honor," and tore the note in pieces.

Fox thanked the man for his confidence, and paid him, saying: "His debt was of older standing, and Sheridan must wait."

Fox was the lover of liberty, friend of the Hindoo, friend of the African slave; he possessed a great personal popularity, and Napoleon said of him, on the occasion of his visit to Paris in 1805: "Mr. Fox will always hold the first place in an assembly at the Tuileries."—Youth's Companion.

His Prayer Answered.

A certain Chicago coal man enjoys nothing more than he does a romp with his two pretty boys. After supper every night he has great fun with them. One evening last week his wife was taken sick, and he cut short the usual romp, much to the disappointment of the boys, who had been looking forward all day to his homecoming. He told them it was time for them to go to bed, and, like obedient boys, they walked off without a word of remonstrance. Silently they disrobed and prepared to retire. The larger boy said his prayer and found his way between the sheets. Then the little fellow knelt down by the bedside, uttered his prayer and added: "Please, God, make papa funny some more." And the father, who had been waiting just outside the door to see that they retired all right, overheard the petition and went in and gave his two boys another great romp. The little fellow then regarded in the firm belief that his prayer had been answered.—Chicago Herald.

Theatrical Superstition.

The superstition of actors and actresses extends to all the smallest minutiæ of their business, and one peculiar fad with many of them is to seek out some little, insignificant shop in some unfrequented locality where they can buy their wigs, their footwear, their powder and paint, and so on. Happy is he or she who can discover some such place that has been little known before, for is it not an augury of good fortune? Many theatrical people adjure entirely the large and well known establishments that deal in theatrical supplies and give their patronage to less pretentious places down town.

There is a sort of Freemasonry in the profession by which the news of the finding of these small shops is passed from ear to ear, so that a considerable patronage in time accrues to the lucky proprietor. On the other hand, there are those who are more selfishly inclined and keep their lucky "finds" to themselves as far as possible, believing that the "spell" will be broken if they say much about it or advertise it even to their friends.—New York Star.

INTERVIEWED MARY ANDERSON.

How a Reporter Played the Part of a Bell Boy and Scored a Beat.

Among the well known men about town in Brooklyn is Frank Cooper, who at one time promised to be Bartley Campbell's right bower. Mr. Cooper was formerly a Chicago newspaper reporter, and it was while acting in that capacity that he had a very singular adventure. At the time Mr. Cooper was very young and very ambitious to shine in his profession, and when Mary Anderson, who was then the crate of the theatrical world, reached town, he thought he saw his chance to ascend the first few rungs of the ladder of fame. He would interview the noted actress.

This decision was reached in an instant, but many days passed before the project was put into execution. Miss Anderson's stepfather, Dr. Hamilton Griffin, was keeping his precious charge far from the interviewer in those days. Mr. Cooper finally decided to apply for the honorable position of bell boy in the hotel at which the Anderson party stopped. His youthful appearance helped him and he soon donned the appropriate uniform. Then he lay in wait for a ring from Miss Anderson's room. For over twelve hours he dashed about on errands and carried pitchers of ice water and glasses filled with something stronger before Miss Anderson made up her mind that she wanted anything. Then the little flap covering the number of her room dropped with a click. Cooper had his eye on it, and almost before the clerk could cry "Front!" he was at the desk.

"Number 80 and 80!" said the clerk, "quick."

The messenger needed no urging, but flew up the stairs. His magnet wanted a scuttle of coal and down Cooper rushed. The next minute he was knocking at Miss Anderson's door with one hand and holding the bucket with the other. Once inside he made for the open grate, but in his nervousness he spilled most of the coal on the carpet. Then he sat down in the midst of the ruin he had wrought and looking up found the actress standing over him.

"What do you think of the future of the stage?" burst from his lips.

Miss Anderson was impressed with the humorous side of the situation at once and began laughing. This reassured the disguised reporter, and in a few minutes he was carrying on a discussion with the actress on matters pertaining to her art. This lasted for some time, Miss Anderson expressing great surprise at the knowledge displayed by a bell boy, and Cooper got an interview that all the old hands in town had despaired of being able to procure. How he got out of the room, he says, he never knew, but when he reached the office he threw up his job and rushed for his desk in the city department of a local paper. The next day his interview and a description of the scene appeared. It was the talk of the [illegible] was copied far and wide, and the [illegible]or was assured that his future would be a bright one.

The next day he paid for his temerity. His chief, the late Samuel Medill, a brother of the present owner of the paper in question, was so tickled at the "beat" he had obtained that he insisted that Cooper should meet Dr. Griffin. So that night he took the youthful impostor down to the hotel, and, sending for Dr. Griffin, formally presented him. For a full minute Dr. Griffin looked the reporter straight in the eye, and then, drawing back his hand, struck him in the face. The blow was a hard one, and Cooper reeled and would have fallen to the floor had not Mr. Medill caught him. Before anything could be done Dr. Griffin had turned and left the room, and Mr. Cooper never saw him again.—New York Times.

The Weakness of Tall Men.

Tall men, as a rule, have bodies out of proportion to their lower limbs—that is, smaller than they ought to be—with the natural result that they are unable to bear fatigue, or to compete in the struggles of life with lesser men more harmoniously proportioned. Army experience bears out these observations. In a long and fatiguing march the tall men usually fall out first or succumb to camp poisoning, unless, as is very rarely the case, they have well knit and symmetrical frames. A soldier between five feet five inches and five feet eight or nine inches is usually the man most capable of bearing the strain of life.—New York Telegram.

Over $300,000 for Postage Stamps.

The most valuable of all private collections belongs to M. Philippe de Ferrari, of the Galliera family, who regularly attends the Paris mart to enrich his album. This family souvenir has already cost more than three hundred thousand dollars, or a million and a half of francs. The acquisition of stamps seems to be the only object for which M. Ferrari considered his mother's millions good enough to be spent, for he has been known to pay from $800 to $900 for a collection from which he wanted only a single stamp.—Paris Letter.

That war a leetle too much Whig doctrin' into 'em."

ARMENIAN FOLK SONG—THE MOTHER.

I was a mother, and I weep;
The Night is come—the day is sped—
The Night of Woe profound, for, oh!
My little golden son is dead!

The pretty rose that bloomed anon
Upon my mother breast, they stole;
They let the doves I nursed with love
Fly far away—on sped my soul!

That falcon Death swooped down upon
My sweet voiced turtle as he sung;
'Tis hushed and dark where soared the lark
And so, and so my heart is wrung!

Before my eyes they rent the ball
Upon my green pomegranate tree—
Upon the bough where but just now
A rosy apple beat to me!

They shook my tenderness almost true,
Beating its glorious bloom to death—
They strewed it round upon the ground
And mocked its fragrant dying breath.

I was a mother, and I weep;
I seek the rose where nestleth none—
No more is heard the singing bird—
I have no little golden son!

So fall the shadows over me,
The blighted garden, lonely seat;
Reach down in love, O God above,
And fold my darling to thy breast.

—Eugene Field.

Becoming the Skull Cap.

There is rumor to the effect that the Turks have alone escaped the discomforts and terrors of the "influenza." This relief from a distemper that has had the civilized world in its grip is attributed to the Turkish custom of an always covered head. The fez and turban seem to be protectors in some way from the microbe that sets its visitors sneezing and then often lands them in the cold grave. If this proves to be true it will in all probability increase the number in this country who have adopted the skull cap as a preventive of colds. Many speakers invariably in going upon the platform, to avoid the effects of draughts, have worn the skull cap. It is not ornamental, but it is a safeguard against catarrh, one of the plagues of this climate. Let us give the skull cap a show.—Boston Traveller.

May Day and Christmas.

Here is a curious little fact, and one not generally known, even if calendars of some sort have been in use for centuries. If May day comes on a certain day of the week (it is on Thursday this year) Christmas is sure to fall on the same day. When I first heard this I hardly believed it, but did not make bold enough to doubt the narrator (audibly), thinking that an investigation would settle the matter. On returning home I looked through twenty years of Tribune almanacs, always with the same results. Monday May day, Monday Christmas, and so on down the entire list.—St. Louis Republic.

What Is This Animal?

An amateur trapper at Lebanon Center, Conn., recently caught in his "squat traps" the funniest looking animal ever seen in Connecticut; nobody seems to know what he is or was intended to be. The beast has the feet and tail of a skunk, but the rest of him cannot be even approximately classified. The most curious thing is that there is not a hair on him. He is about as large as a skunk, and looks as if he might be one that had been well scalded. He is dead.—Hartford Courant.

Skeletons on the Welsh Coast.

Among the incidents of the remarkable gale is the discovery of skeletons at Whitesands bay, near St. David's. The heavy seas have made an indentation on the beach, with the result that two skeletons were revealed, one being a full grown man, while the jawbone of a second shows that it belonged to a younger person.—Public Opinion.

A Step Higher.

Mr. C. C. Fisher, who for some months past has been employed in the office of the provincial assessor and collector for this district, has been notified that his appointment is to be gazetted. Mr. Fisher who is well known and highly respected, both as a private citizen and public official, is to be congratulated. The appointment is a gratifying recognition of that gentleman's ability, and will be popular.

Settled at Last.

Some time ago the R. B. & B. C. R. R. Company had the court appoint three appraisers to condemn two lots owned by H. B. Strand which they wanted for wharf and depot purposes. The appraisers set the valuation at $8,500. The company considered the price exorbitant and appealed to the higher court, with the result that the jury has brought in a verdict in favor of Mr. Strand for $15,000, nearly double the former award.—Bellingham Bay Express.

Large Purchase of City Property.

Mr. Richard Hilbert, of Victoria, has just completed the purchase from Mr. A. R. Johnston of the valuable property on Front Street, now occupied by Mr. J. P. Planta, S.M., and the telephone exchange, also the lot adjoining the Bank of British Columbia, and the two lots adjoining the residence of Mr. R. H. Smith, collector of customs. It is further stated that some brick buildings will be erected on this property. Mr. Hilbert returned to Victoria this morning.—Nanaimo Free Press.

A Good Impression.

Mr. Flemmer, of San Francisco, who has been visiting Texada Island recently, stated to one of the owners of the "Nutcracker" that all he needs to do with this claim is to develop it and he will have no trouble in obtaining purchasers as this claim shows indications of being extremely rich. He said if there was such a piece of country as Texada in California it would be worth a mint of money, but we Californians don't know how to treat with you people. Mr. Flemmer took down a number of specimens of rock from Texada and expects to shortly revisit this city.—Nanaimo Free Press.

A Book Worth Reading.

The Canadian Pacific railway have issued an elegant booklet bearing the title "The New Highway to the Orient." This little publication of less than fifty pages is written in a bright style and is illustrated with several full page engravings. The letterpress is descriptive of a tour to the Pacific Coast along the transcontinental line and gives much useful information in a small compass. We read this book with great interest and pleasure until we came to the statement "that New Westminster is now quickened with vigorous growth by the advent of the railway." There have been other and not less important causes, not the least of which is the energy and capacity of her citizens. The book is well worth reading and may be obtained free of charge by applying to the general passenger agent of the C. P. R. at Montreal.

The Steamboat Inspectorship.

The Marine Engineers' Association, through their secretary, having communicated with Lt.-Col. Prior, M.P., in regard to the appointment of a steamboat inspector at Victoria, received a letter from the Colonel, in which he said that if it was at all practicable he would use his every endeavor to secure the appointment of a local man. Considering that the engineers of tugs and other small steamers receive from $120 to $150 per month, the Colonel is of the opinion that the salary attached to the office of steamboat inspector—who in a manner has the lives of the entire traveling public in his care—is far less than what it should be. He will interview the department as soon as he arrives in Ottawa, and impress upon them the necessity of increasing the salary of the inspector to $1,800 or $2,000 per annum, which will enable him to devote his entire attention to his official duties and refuse all commissions from manufacturers. One hundred dollars per month was the salary paid in the past.

Resolution of Condolence.

The Victoria Colonist says: The following resolution of condolence from the Commercial Travellers' Association has been transmitted to Mrs. Cusack, by Mr. R. B. Gordon, secretary-treasurer of the association here:

Moved by John Horne, 1st vice-president, seconded by C. C. Van Norman, 2nd vice-president, That this association having learned, with profound sorrow, of the death of our late member W. L. Cusack, desire to offer the widow of the deceased their heartfelt sympathy and sincere condolence.

As an organization of mercantile men this association deplore the death of one who as member and director has been an example to our association of what may be accomplished by industry combined with honor and probity. These characteristics, together with a most kindly disposition, Mr. Cusack possessed in a marked degree, and his name and record will ever be held in high esteem and affectionate remembrance by his old commercial colleagues.

Collided at Port Townsend.

Early yesterday morning the steamers Premier and Queen, the former belonging to the C.P.N. Company, and the latter to the P.C.S.S. Company, collided at Port Townsend, but fortunately without any serious damage to either craft. Particulars of the accident are given as follows by Capt. O'Brien, of the Premier, who arrived here with his boat last evening:

The Premier was entering Port Townsend and passing the slip at which the Queen had been docked, when the Alaskan steamer commenced to back out, on her way to Victoria. A pilot was in charge of the Premier, and when he heard the two blasts of the Queen's whistle, he at once replied, and, following the regulations, he took the outer course. The Queen, instead of taking the inward, continued to draw back in such a manner, that had not the Premier been put hard astern, she must have cut the Queen in two. As it was the C.P.N. boat was struck about twenty feet from the bow, and several plates and timber above the water mark smashed.

Both boats were stopped at once, and it was found that little or no injury had been sustained by the excursion boat. Capt. Carroll acknowledged that the mistake had been on board his steamer, and the Queen will accordingly pay for all repairs, which, it is expected, will cost about $200. At high tide last night the Premier and the Princess Louise entered Esquimalt dock together. They will be generally overhauled, and come out on Monday in time to allow the Danube to enter with the tide.—Colonist.

THE PROCESSION.

Mr. Corbould Given an Ethusiastic Reception Last Night by His Friends.

About 8.30 last evening the militia band paraded on Columbia Street at the head of an immense procession of people. Immediately behind the band was a carriage containing Mr. Gordon E. Corbould, Reeve Punch and Thomas Shannon, of Surrey, and W. H. Keary. The procession stepped in front of the Colonial and Hotel Douglas, and in answer to repeated calls Mr. Corbould, the newly elected member for the Commons, arose and said:

"My dear friends, I am most happy to meet you on this occasion, and most heartily thank you for returning me at the head of the poll. The result of this contest shows that the farmers of this important agricultural district have come nobly to my rescue, even though I am a lawyer. When I go to Ottawa I intend to make it my first and special duty to work and advocate your interests at all times and under all circumstances. Thanking you again, gentlemen, for the complimentary vote given me, and the honor thus bestowed, I am always, yours truly."

After a deafening round of applause, Mr. Punch was called upon, and said he was heartily in sympathy with the large majority of people who had elected Mr. Corbould and hoped they would return him again at the next election.

The procession then continued its course up Columbia Street to Church Street, and up Church Street to in front of THE TRUTH office, where three hearty cheers were given for the paper, and in answer to numerous calls, Mr. J. J. Shinaberger came forth and delivered a very neat and appropriate speech, which was loudly cheered by the assembled multitude.

The procession then countermarched down Columbia Street, thence to the armory where it dispersed.

All the canneries down river are ready for the opening of the sockeye run. Everything so far goes to show that it will be a long and prosperous one.

It is Mr. Alderman Gifford now. He will be formally introduced to the board and take his seat (which is somewhat cold now) next Monday evening.

A large amount of money changed hands in this city yesterday on the result of the election. Some very foolish bets were made, as, for instance, betting that any one man would get a majority, when majority means at least one more than half the total number of votes polled. Corbould, whose plurality is 279, lacks 132 votes of having a majority.
