No. 128

November 12, 1975

CAN YOU HAVE A LIBRARY WITHOUT MONEY?

Yes, you can, but it gets tough. As of November 6th, in addition to a freeze on ordering books, we have been forced to place a freeze on hiring at all levels, and on ordering of all but essential supplies and equipment. There will be other economies as well, for example, in binding of serials and the cancellation of periodical subscriptions. These conditions will last until the end of March 1976. In the meantime, use your pencils down to the stubs.

CAMPAIGN LITERATURE

The Special Collections Division is trying to collect any materials published by the various political parties for the upcoming provincial election. They would like to get campaign literature, leaflets, letters from candidates and other provincial political junk mail from all the different ridings. It would be greatly appreciated if library staff who live in ridings other than Point Grey would save this material and pass it on to Special Collections. For those of us who do live in Point Grey riding, don't forget to recycle.

COPPSAC

The Committee on Public and Processing Services and Catalogues will meet November 13, 1975 at 10:30 a.m. in the Floor 3 Conference Room. The agenda include:

1. A report on the FC classification which will replace the F 5000 call numbers we assign at present.
2. The COM catalogue and its relation to 1976 imprints. Includes the question of whether the entire FC classification or only 1976 imprints within this group should be included.
3. The main card catalogue and its possible overflow from the concourse into the Science Division. And you thought the dribble effect was bad.
4. The question of interfiling (Z + a subject call number) combinations used for bibliographies in the main stacks and the location file.

Anyone interested in contributing to the discussion of these topics is welcome to attend. Or, if you can bear to wait until the next Bulletin, we'll bring you the results of the Committee's deliberations then.

SHRIMP

For the past three months we have been blessed with shipments of fresh shrimp at bargain rates. These goodies are the results of the hard work of Bev Richards in Periodicals, assisted by Dilma Huggett, Preparations, and volunteers in each of the divisions. Although we have been getting our orders at fairly regular monthly intervals so far, Bev says that this situation may not hold true for the winter because of storms and other problems facing the distributors.

When orders are taken for the next shipment, life could be made a lot easier for Bev and her helpers if people would stick to the ordering deadlines and not ask for late additions to their orders.

The same company which provides the shrimp also offers live lobster, but Bev refuses to "handle" these. Anyone willing to coordinate buying lobster should speak to her for more details.

What we need now is somewhere to exchange shrimp recipes. If you have a pet recipe that calls for shrimp, leave a copy with Joye Wheeler in the Information and Orientation office and she'll see that it gets posted on the bulletin board near her desk.
