

ON FRIDAY

Fate Of NFCUS Fee Increase To Be Decided By Referendum

THESE - Are The Pub Pin Winners

Publications Board will honour 43 reporters, photographers, and editors at their annual banquet Saturday night.

Ubysssey staffers receiving gold awards are Peter Synowich, Pat Carney and Ray Logie.

Silver award winners are Rod Smith, Stan Beck, Sandy Ross, Jean Whiteside, Ken Lamb and Geoff Conway.

Bronze awards will be presented to Margie McNeill, Marie Stephen, Judy Thormahlen, Dolores Banerd, Bob Johannes, Bob Bergen, Ivan DeFaveri, Tom Woodside, Jackie Seale, Dave Morgan, Brian Thomas, Denis Maze, Jean Cumming, Pat Russell, Rusty Mackenzie, Sylvia Shorthouse, Marg Hawthorne, Valerie Haig-Brown, Peter Worthington and Neil Macdonald.

Totem staffers receiving gold awards are Ann Roger, Anlee Brickman, Janie Wright, John Robertson and Mike Ames.

A silver award will be presented to Mary Beth Kowluk, and bronze awards to Louise Watts, Chick Siew, Lee Davenport, Pat Hamill, Brenda Morrison, Diana Dyer, Liz Oliver and Henry Chorney.

A special award will be presented to photographer Joe Quan, who is completing his sixth year with the Publications Board.

Russian Editors To Tour United States

WASHINGTON—Russian editors of "student youth publications" will be admitted to the United States for a 30 day educational tour this spring.

'LEGAL NOTES' ON SALE AT BOOKSTORE

Legal Notes, a publication of the Law Undergraduate Society, is now on sale at the bookstore at one dollar a copy.

This year's issue contains an article by Dean Angus on Civil Rights, a comprehensive article on the law of picketing by Prof. A. W. R. Carrouthers, and investigation into Drunkenness as a Defense to criminal charges by Mr. Justice Wilson of the Supreme Court of B.C.

UBC Authors To Publish A Numericon

A new book by two faculty members will be on sale in the Campus Bookstore next September.

The book, "A Numericon of Russian Inflections and Stress Patterns," by Miss I. M. Carlsen and Mr. P. M. H. Edwards, is now in the final stages of preparation and will be published in a very limited edition this spring.

A few copies will go into the Bookstore and there will be a copy for reference in the library.

When comments and suggestions have come in from language departments of other universities, there may be a revision of the Edwards-Carlsen book and a new text on the official list.

OX-CAM LADS RETURN TODAY FOR REMATCH WITH BIRDS

Varsity Rugby fans will get another look at the touring Oxford-Cambridge team when the double blues meet UBC at noon in Varsity Stadium.

Coach Albert Laithwaite has promised a better showing from his past and present side and the team itself is expected to have recovered from the stage fright it suffered last Thursday in losing 29-6 to the tourists.

Admission 75 cents.

JUT-JAWED Peter Synowich, gaunt and ragged from long sleepless nights defending the downtrodden masses, retreats from the pub offices as they come under the rule of chubby and well-fed fraternity lover Stanley Beck.

New Pub Era Promised As Beck Takes Over

Whining mealy-mouthed bolshevism received a swift kick in the manifesto Thursday when stable, well-rounded fraternity man Stanley Beck replaced bitter, frat-hating Peter Synowich as Ubysssey Editor-in-Chief.

Beck promised a sound "dynamic conservative" administration for next year, and plans to organize the Publications Board along the lines of his own fraternity.

"I feel we must make an Agonizing Reappraisal of Ubysssey policy," said Beck, as he exchanged the "grip" with scores of well-wishing fraternity brothers who thronged the North Brock basement to offer congratulations.

Next year, Beck hopes, the Ubysssey will be, "the kind of paper the students want." "I feel that the fraternity and sorority activities on this campus have been neglected by the Ubysssey in past years. The exchanges, formals, and philanthropic projects of the "Greeks" which contribute to a well-rounded University career will receive ample space in next year's columns," he said.

NEW ORDER

For Ubysssey staffers, a new order is in the offing, and as one happy staffer put it, "the change is long overdue."

Beck stated that he wants a "bunch of swell fellows" on the staff to share in the benefits of fraternity-type life which he has planned for his staff.

PLEDGES

New reporters will be known as "pledges" for the first few weeks, and thereafter as "actives." An alumni program will be instituted to "keep in touch" with staffers of previous years. Parents of staffers will be welcome at the offices, to see how well their child is faring in what Beck called "A healthy Christian environment."

General Meeting Kaput—No Quorum

Students will be asked to settle two important questions by referendum Friday as a result of Wednesday's special general meeting being cancelled for lack of a quorum.

The following two questions will be put to the students Friday:

1. Are you in favor of rejoining the National Federation of Canadian University Students?
2. Are you in favor of a $2 fee increase to provide every student with an athletic privilege card entitling free admission to all regularly scheduled games?

"It is unfortunate that $175 of your money has been wasted," President Ron Bray told approximately 800 students who turned out for Wednesday's meeting in the Armory.

A quorum constitutes 1140 students and Bray announced Monday that unless a quorum was present he would not convene the special general meeting called to finish business uncompleted at Friday's general meeting.

Last year's budget provided 35¢ of student fees to go for NFCUS membership. But at the NFCUS conference in Toronto last winter the fees were raised to 50¢ per student and UBC was out.

Rejoining NFCUS does not mean a fee increase but rather a reapportioning of present fees.

The $2 fee increase, if passed, will mean that every student will receive an athletic pass entitling him to entrance to every regularly scheduled athletic event.

Men's Athletic Association claims the fee increase will not mean an expanded athletic program, but will put the present program on a sound financial basis. At present athletics lose money each year.

HOGWASH, EX-SIWASH HOLLERS FOR HELP

Would you like to write for a UBC literary magazine called Hogwash?

Hogwash is the temporary name for the new literary magazine which will be published here next term. It used to be called Siwash.

Anyone interested in writing or working on the magazine next term, or just interested in finding out what is happening, should make it down to the Pub in Brock Basement this Friday noon.

Big things will be happening.

Men Wanted

Council is open for volunteers to serve on the watchdog discrimination committee to be set up as a result of the Discrimination report passed at last week's General Meeting. Members of CLU and Greeks are ineligible.

Verbose Cadets Debate

American troops in the person of three West Point cadets will invade Canada this Friday in order to wage verbal warfare with a staunch defending UBC debating team.

The American team which is touring the colleges of the Northwest has been invited here under the sponsorship of the Parliamentary Forum to debate on the subject of "The American Security Policy in Europe."

The UBC team consists of John Spencer, 2nd year Law, who won the Tyro Oratory Contest in the Evergreen Conference; John Redekop, president of the Social Credit club on campus and LSE award winner; and Derek Fraser, 1st Arts, and member of the McGoun Cup team.

Cheaper Texts Urged

Cheaper textbooks, made possible by cheaper methods of production, were recommended in a report on textbooks in Canadian universities submitted to NFCUS by a St. Francis Xavier university committee.

Over ninety percent of the textbooks used in Canadian universities originated outside of Canada, the majority of them in the United States.

Foreign publishers maintain that the prices of books in Canada, relative to the price of other commodities, are as low as or lower than they are in the U.S. and Great Britain.

The report emphasized that the new methods of publishing these cheaper texts would result in loss of durability, clearness of type, and re-sale value.

TEACHER TRAINING invites those interested in taking Teacher Training next year to attend a special meeting in Engineering 200 at 12:30 on Friday 15.

NEWMAN CLUB announces final Communion breakfast will be held this Sunday at 9:00 a.m. at Convent of the Sacred Heart, 29 and Highbury.

WUS Elects Taylor As Secretary

World University Service of Canada Thursday announced the appointment of Charles Taylor as Executive Secretary, to succeed Graeme Ferguson, whose term of office expires in June 1955.

Taylor, who is at present a Rhodes Scholar at Balliol College, Oxford, is an Honors graduate in History of McGill University, where he held a Memorial Scholarship and was also a University Scholar. He took a prominent part in campus activities, including membership of the local WUSC Committee (1950-52) and also won the Gold Key for Debating.

In 1952 he was elected a member of the WUS International Assembly, and has served on the International Executive, as Vice-Chairman, since 1953; he is the first Canadian to hold the latter post. He was also a member of the Oxford WUS Committee during 1952-54.

text which was done with a new printing process involving a photographic plate and estimate a saving of one dollar per text.

The report also pointed out that almost no textbooks are written by Canadian experts. Canadian universities being unable to afford salaries that will permit professors to specialize. And they also emphasize the limited market for Canadian textbooks.

SURVIVAL CRUSADE NEEDED

Civilization Totters On Brink— Students Laugh—Ignore Reality

By GERARD DAECHEL
Last Age Basic Survival

If imminent human tragedy is the humour of the Gods, all the Gods of the heavens plus all the devils of hell and all the spirits that ever were, are, and will be, must at this very time in history be indulging in the greatest festival of laughter that has ever been witnessed.

It would be easy to join in the fun except that the joke is on us. For we, souped up by the failures of man through the centuries, are crashing on into some indescribably horrible doom. Yet the only action we take is to cling more stubbornly to the old traditional concepts and attitudes that have got us here in such a hurry.

The individual today must accept a number of rude facts and to keep his sanity must build them into his philosophy of life. He must first realize that complete global devastation is only a trigger finger away. The slightest pull could unleash the planes, missiles and nuclear bombs that right now are stored so menacingly in two camps. The result would be oblivion. Then the individual must face the less obvious but even more horrible fact that by playing with unknown powers, man may destroy himself in a more subtle but hideous manner—by radiation. Modern man can finally ask himself the shattering question, 'has mankind already destroyed itself? Is this present physical me irrevocably doomed or at best is it only a matter of a few more nuclear test explosions?'

If people are ignorant of these facts, it is because we have so few brave leaders. One of them is the noted British scientist Dr. Ritchie Calder. To an apprehensive world he refuses everything but the bleakest reality. He states:

"True science teaches us to doubt, and in ignorance, refrain. The only thing we know about radiation is that we don't know. Any competent scientist will tell you that when it comes to radiological effects of nuclear explosions, we simply don't know what we're doing. 15 years of setting off experimental bombs might do it."

One recalls that we've already had ten years of nuclear explosions and they're growing larger and more numerous yearly.

But wherein lies the joke? It is the attitude of modern man to the powers that engulf him. Let's take the most familiar pinhead of the Globe, our UBC campus for example.

Here 5800 students, like lambs ready for the slaughter, senseless to it all, desperately study for exams, frantically pursue a hundred selfish pleasures, dream and scheme endlessly of marriage, family, home, wealth, career. To what purpose? Even the majority of that small number who have learnt to read newspapers and periodicals believe the nuclear threat is as distant as the Bikini testing ground or they display the common reaction of, "I won't believe anything so awful regardless of what numerous scientists and politicians say." Some are so bold as to claim the scientists know what they're doing, (although the U-bomb explosion was twice as powerful as the scientists had planned and prepared for in theory). Surely University students should know how to cope effectively with reality.

But what kind of shepherd-ing do we get? Here is a campus concentration, third largest in Canada, of brains. Yet at best we get a few weak statements in the occasional lecture. How does the President himself, dare to talk a whole noon hour on UBC, then callously conclude that we have a glorious future, 'if we don't blow ourselves up in the meantime.' As though it were completely irrelevant or beyond our reach, he failed to even touch the fundamental problem, "how do we stay on the face of the earth?" We read in the papers that Dr. Shrum to pacify Ottawa Civil Authorities, withdraws his statement that evacuation of cities in case of nuclear attacks is useless? Is there really any honest, informed man today who doesn't at least secretly confess that regardless of anything that is done, there is no hope in case of another war?

The professors of UBC owe it to themselves, to us and to the world to devote their main energies to a crusade, by speeches and by press to hammer the most relevant facts of our time into the public mind and the even less pleasant challenges requiring radical, painful action into the public conscience.

The Ubysey now as it changes hands, should resolve to reform its suicidal indifference and devote the larger part of every edition to intelligent discussions of the worst scientific, political, social and economic facts which threaten our survival.

Public opinion must be fired up and individual effort motivated to achieving this program. (1) We must halt all nuclear test explosions at once and through the U.N. have the Russians follow suit. (2) We must give ourselves only a very limited time period in which by using all our powers of negotiation and by sincerely sacrificing advantages where necessary, we attempt to get world disarmament. If we fail we must disarm ourselves and prepare to meet any possible Russian infiltration and domination by psychological warfare and Ghandi's moral resistance. (3) We must finally exploit all our physical and mental resources to balance the world's population with its food supply. We must be so rational and so morally courageous and sacrificing as to distribute wealth more evenly around the Globe.

General Meeting Outgrown, Council Needs More Power

By DICK UNDERHILL
Past President AMS

Tuesday's Editorial on General Meetings suggests that reform of the General Meeting is necessary and advises:

1. More equal distribution of business between Fall and Spring Meetings and
2. Speeding up of the business.

I agree that reform is necessary but I should like to make some comments re your advice.

1. This year's Fall General Meeting even with its smaller Agenda lasted some two hours at the end of which some 380 students were left in attendance. At no time were there competing lectures and labs. It would seem therefore that adding to the agenda would not solve the situation. I could also mention the Special General Meeting called at a cost of $150.00 to amend a motion of the Fall meeting.

2. On the front page of the same edition in which you state meetings should be speeded up, Council is accused of railroading because a student (non councillor) moved the previous question, a parliamentary device used to speed up meetings. How much louder would be the cry if the chairman himself attempted to limit debate more than is done at present.

I would suggest that the fault is the status of the meeting itself. If every member of the student body acquired for himself sufficient knowledge of every issue being discussed at the meeting to permit him to vote on the motion the moment it is made, then I might agree that meetings could be made speedy and effective. However, every student does not and therefore each issue must be debated as though this were the first time at which anyone had ever thought about it. As the campus expands it will become increasingly difficult for the average student to be informed on every student problem. Therefore I suggest that in a complex society we must be prepared to delegate responsibility for most decisions to those whom we feel could most ably represent

For these reasons I feel that students must be prepared to relegate the General Meeting to the position of being an advisory and not a governing body. We must be prepared to delegate, as every other democratic society does, the responsibility of government to our elected representatives. Issues involving large amounts of money or major policy can well be decided by referendum, which is far less costly and on which more students vote than attend a general meeting. I would submit that the only time when interested in general meetings is widespread is where there is an important "issue" at stake. At that time students would like to express an opinion and a general meeting would fill the need for general discussion. However, it should be an opinion only, although it would be a most unwise council that would ignore the "opinion" of a well attended general meeting.

Therefore I would submit that if students wish their self government to continue to be effective, that they be prepared to change the status of the general meeting.

A 2 Dollar 'A' Card

When casting your ballot on the proposed $2.00 Athletic Privilege Card tomorrow, one question is significant: do you feel that a ticket to every regularly scheduled athletic event on the campus is worth $2.00. Would you rather pay $2.00 with your fees or put out 50c every time you chose to go to any of the campus games—rugger, football, basketball or soccer. This is the question the Mens' Athletic Association is asking.

The Association is requesting this money along with your fees so they can stabilize the athletic budget as much as possible. Weather conditions, win-loss records and a great many other variable factors make it difficult to obtain an accurate budget based on estimated gate receipts.

The $2.00 card is set with an eye to maintaining the present sports program. We also feel that if each student was entitled to admission to every game, crowds at athletic events would swell. The proposed athletic card would carry the same privileges as the current $5.00 pass.

The choice is yours. You can help the MAA stabilize its budget and strengthen UBC's athletic position while buying yourself a Privilege Card at a bargain price.

President, Mens' Athletic Association

HIGHER MARKS!

Well-known educators say anybody can improve their marks.

They contend it is possible to do notes you can read, essays others can read, and still have time on your hands—with a portable typewriter.

For example, did you know the best you can do in longhand is about 30 words a minute. With a Royal portable you'll be doing twice that in no time.

With summer holidays coming up and prospects of having money in the bank again, why don't you plan now to make a down payment on a Royal portable with your first paycheck? A little each payday gives you a snappy Royal portable for school this fall.

Just make sure it's a Royal! Only with Royal do you get a full-size keyboard and all the features of big office machines. So you don't feel you're typing on a toy!

Recently, the rugged Royal portable was tested for durability—and it lasted the equivalent of 96 years of normal use. (You'll probably be handing it down to your kids.)

Ask to see the Royal Portable at your Royal dealer's soon. Priced from $79.95. And while you're there, ask for a copy of the free booklet "How to type your way to extra money."

Teacher Training Edition

That We May Build

By LEON MENDOZA

Like Mark Twain's weather, everybody talks about the teacher shortage but nobody does anything about it. This should not presuppose that nobody can do anything about it; unfortunately everybody demands the right to have his children educated without considering the possibility that these children could in turn become good teachers.

This expression "good teachers" usually causes all students and adults to reflect upon their best teachers. What is a good teacher? Primarily, a good teacher is one who is conscious of a service to be rendered rather than mere breadwinning. To maintain the social service, a teacher needs to have a sense of responsibility toward the society in which he lives.

TAKES INCREASE

With the increasing number of tasks which he is asked or told to do, the teacher becomes a more important social force.

Now he is an agent pinch-hitting for minister, parent, counsellor and guardian as the need arises.

Today we have become aware that there is more to a class than a group of forty minds; that these minds are parts of total individuals, that these children need complete development; As a result teachers become concerned with the social, spiritual, physical, as well as mental integration of their wards.

These demands are a challenge to any student contemplating a lifetime of service to society.

Dear Diary—Whew! And Only A Week!

The following are the observations of a Teacher Training student during the first round of practice teaching. First cycle consists of a visit or two to the school before the actual training session—and then a week of actual classroom work as a teacher.

The Friday before:

Arrived at Clarkson Junior High for first week of practice teaching. It's a big, modern one-storied school with wings going off in all directions, and it's inhabited by the most amazing variety of kids.

The staff seem quite nice — principal friendly but preoccupied, no wonder, what a job! Monday:

Faced Grade 9, class 11, for the first time. They consist of twenty-four noisy boys, and ten tolerably subdued girls. Wonder if they knew how scared I was? I tried to look confident, but they all seemed so intelligent-looking it unnerved me.

Tuesday:

Discovered a budding romance in Grade 9 English between an elongated, blue-jeaned hero and a pretty young blonde with a guileless expression and foot-long earrings. They only have eyes for each other. How do I go about making English Grammar fascinating enough to compete with this?

Looking Back At Ourselves

SEPTEMBER:

Class meeting for time. New officers elected

OCTOBER:

T.T. submits float for Homecoming parade. Also begin visits to schools for observation.

NOVEMBER:

Practice teaching session. The week gives us a taste of what it's really like.

DECEMBER:

Exams loom near. First months zoomed — broken up by Thursdays of observation and week of teaching.

JANUARY:

Back again, but not for long. After brief rest at lectures, cycle of three weeks teaching begins at end of January — off for longest bout of all.

FEBRUARY:

What a stretch! Most of us beat by now. Not much time to relax. T.T. plays host to Western Canada's student Teacher's Conference, with delegates coming from Winnipeg and all points west

MARCH:

Eager T.T. thespians put together Open House entertainment in much haste. Play "Education Then and Now" goes before the audience Saturday, March 5, under valiant, capable direction of harassed Garth Bryans.

EDITORIAL

This is directed towards the many undergraduates who may be thinking of Teacher Training for themselves soon, or will be contemplating the idea of becoming a teacher.

It's also directed towards those who have said, or are saying "If worse comes to worse there's always Teacher Training." Too bad, but that's the attitude that's been carefully cultivated and kept alive and growing in all sorts of minds for many some years.

Naturally there are causes—we don't pretend there aren't. There are reasons galore for Teacher Training being held in such low esteem and some of them are out of our hands entirely.

Some of the reasons are wrapped up with the low esteem so many teachers have for their profession and for their professional status. We've seen a lot of this during practice teaching sessions, and we've wondered why some teachers remain as such, when they have so little regard for what they are doing.

This is all part of a huge inferiority complex assumed by the teaching profession and it is a vicious circle. Because teachers are so badly needed, standards are dropped to acquire new recruits.

"Anybody can get into teaching" becomes the cry, and down goes the prestige of the profession.

Unlike, for example, medicine which can pick and choose and demand standards, teaching has been always ready to bow, scrape and compromise to fill the prominent gaps in hundreds of empty classrooms.

Problems in education? We know, it, the educators know it... that's not the point. The T.T. course leave lots to be desired—we know that, too, and plans are being made to remedy some of the defects with the erection shortly of a T.T. college.

The profession needs reformers and people with brilliant ideas for the reconstruction of society, but even more, oh, how it needs good reconstruction of society, but even more, oh, how it needs good teachers.

If you who are considering teaching, or have felt that teaching may be your field, don't let trite statements about Teacher Training or teaching scare you off.

Many a student has been "Warned away" by the half-truths or exaggerations of some who claim to know. If you are in doubt about your aptitude for teaching, speak to a counsellor or a qualified advisor. And above all, think of teaching as a definite and valuable career, with rewards which are more than merely material.

If ever we are to raise the prestige of the profession we must start by raising its value in our own minds.

We have no cause to apologize. Without becoming dramatic about it we can have a quiet appreciation for the field and what it is trying to do.

Make no mistake, it's a good career for those who are adapted, and teaching needs more people who are not ashamed to admit it. Too many have been hacking away at the profession for too long—fine to gripe—but let's be constructive for a change.

Be Kind to Your Banker

Robert Louis Stevenson never stored up much treasure for himself, despite the snails of Treasure Island. In fact he was so often broke he developed a positive hatred of bankers, making nasty remarks about them every chance he got. In Ebb Tide, for instance, there's a character who is "victor over circumstances and the malignity of bankers." In The Rajah's Diamond, Lady Vandaleur remarks "You would despise in a common banker the imbecility you expect to find in women." And in Essays of the Art of Writing, Stevenson declares that readers of the penny press "must be made to feel at home in the houses of fraudulent bankers and wicked dukes."

Banks and bankers aren't quite as bad as all that—honestly. While the Royal Bank can't always supply you with funds each time you run short, we do lend money quite often. We like to get it back, though. So if we seem a mite cautious, you'll understand. However, if you'd care to open an account, we'll be just as cautious about keeping your money safe. There are 32 branches of the Royal Bank in Vancouver and district, all of whom welcome students' accounts. The Royal Bank of Canada.

SO BE IT

But Then You Can't Say We Were Not Warned

The Instructor settled his notes upon the desk and fixed his gaze on a small clot of mud on the rear edge of his left trousers cuff. He waited until his presence was felt and then, after casting his eyes ceilingward, clearing his throat, shuffling his note cards and dealing himself a fair bridgehand, commenced:

"To summarize the Course "A Teacher Must '597", is a near impossibility.

"It is necessary to recall a few of the many points that a teacher must check, watch for, listen for, probe for, remedy, refer, measure, tabulate, predict upon and study."

"... a teacher must make sure that the school is sanitary; that the floors are swept, walls dusted and that the toilets flush.

"A teacher must render unto his union that which belongs to the union, to Department of Education its due also, and the same to the School Board, the parents, the other staff members, the cafeteria staff and the janitor.

"... A teacher must watch for incipient illnesses, mental and physical, upon discovery of mental illness the teacher must interview the child, interview the parents, consult with the counsellors, notify the nurse, advise the principal verbally and the school board by letter."

"... A teacher must, from time to time, examine the students, using the I.Q. vertically and test results horizontally he will be able to arrive at an exam mark obliquely.

Don't say you weren't warned.

"... A teacher must not use a cane, strap, back of his hand, or sarcasm on children. A teacher must at no time shout, slap, bellow, or in any other way impede the atmosphere of happy informality and development which ought to pervade the room."

"This is a short analysis of what a teacher ought to do. Good luck in your exams."

As we left the room, one poor creature babbled... When in the something or other do we teach?
