CLUB DAY TODAY

"Welcome To The Club"

Rafters of the Armouries will ring with the fanfare of Club Day this afternoon as over 60 clubs swing into action to solicit new members. GRAUER

The event will be formally opened at 12.30 today by Dr. A. E. "Dal" Grauer, president of the B. C. Electric Co. Dr. Grauer, apart from his eminence in the commercial world, was very active in student affairs while he studied at UBC.

Religious, faculty, literary, international, ethical, political and activity clubs will have their doors open to membership.

Early-comers will be given a special treat. Those who enter the building between 12.15 and 12.35 today will be presented with a numbered map of the building. RUSHING

Later, the numbers will be drawn and prizes will then be awarded to the lucky winners. Included in the prize list are such safaris as dinners for two at three down-town restaurants, Tie Bar ties, cuff links, a free hair cut and other miscellaneous items.

This year a trophy will be awarded by the visual Arts Club for the best display booth in the building. Judging is scheduled to get underway at noon.

Last night the clubs set up their booths. Some of the most colorful and eye-catching displays ever seen in the building are awaiting to draw members.

LANGUAGES

The "rushing" program will officially close at 2.30 this afternoon. The Armouries, according to university officials, must be cleared of all club property by 4 p.m. today.

All religious groups will be represented along with Critics

Circle, Visual Arts and Letters Club.

Faculty clubs participating in the program will be archaeology, psychology, geography, architectural, pre-law, economics, historical, pre-social work, physics, pre-med, biology, pre-dental, A.I.F.E. and the institutes of electrical and radio engineering. POLITICIAN

The Alpha Omega Society, Chinese Varsity Club, El Circulo Latino Americano, German Club, Indian Students Association, Le Cercle Francis, United Nations Club, Slavonic Circle, Carribean Students Association, Nisei and International House will also have booths in the building.

All current political clubs including the L.P.P. and the National Reform Party will be on hand to initiate members.

PRIZES

Activity Clubs will be V.O. C., Rod and Gun, Badminton Club, Golf Forum, Ham Society, Players Club. Others are the Pipe Band, Pep Club, Fencing Club, C.L.U., Camera Club, Music Appreciation, Radio Society, Mamooks, Chess Club, Thunderbird Flying Club, Figure Skating and Women's Undergraduate Society.

N. A. M. MacKENZIE

U.B.C. President N. A. M. MacKenzie made his annual address to a packed armouries yesterday. Among other points, Dr. MacKenzie stressed that University Professors' incomes must keep pace with the growing average income.

Profs' Income Must Be Up To National Level

University salaries must keep pace with "the increase in national income" said UBC President N. A. M. MacKenzie yesterday in his annual address to the students.

President MacKenzie emphasized the importance of keeping and adding to our staff, "one of the best in the country" so that students may get the best in education.

Over 1,500 students crowded the Armouries to hear the speech.

He added that our teaching staff is "reasonably well-off" relative to other universities in salaries but that competition for first rate graduates is increasing and unless we can meet the challenge it will be increasingly hard to keep "first rate people."

"Our staff," he said, "is charged with the most important functions in society—teaching and research."

Dr. MacKenzie addressed the majority of his remarks to the incoming freshmen.

"We hope," he said, "to present to you a habitual vision of greatness, by confronting you with what is best and most desirable and excellent in every phase of life.

He cautioned the freshmen that while the "tradition of this University is one of freedom and autonomy" it is important that responsibility and self discipline be exercised in its maintenance.

Foreign Licence Plates Must Be Replaced Now

Students who are driving cars with foreign license plates are reminded that they must register with the Motor Vehicles Branch office, 1740 West Georgia, immediately.

A permit to drive in B. C. will be issued on application to students who are not employed full or part time.

Jeffery Chastises Engineers

The "Engineers-versus-all-comers" brand of school spirit was scathingly attacked this week by Pep Club president Mike Jeffery.

"The engineers claim they have more spirit than any other single group on this campus," he said, and they "point with pride" to the success of Frosh hazing, general meetings and blood drives.

"By rioting, superior numbers and mob organization they make these the most awaited events on our campus."

"But at least their (EUS) executive is aware of this 'one group against the other' kind of attitude displayed by Engineers" said Jeffery. He added that EUS is planning a "coming over to the other side of the campus program this year."

NO CONTRIBUTION

"But what of the spirit, the spirit de corps, of our student body as a whole? Have (the Engineers) ever contributed to this? I don't think so," said Jeffery.

"They have already made a big attempt and have so far completely failed," said Jeffery, who felt the general apathy of UBC students is a result of such an uncooperative endeavor as last weekend's Pep Club-Engineer schmozzle.

Jeffery was referring to a bonfire rally scheduled for last Friday night on the Memorial gym parking lot, and the proposed

President Calls For Money For Expanded Classrooms, Housing

President N. A. M. MacKenzie will visit Victoria in the near future with the hope of speeding up provincial government grants for university expansion.

At present the university is receiving $1 million a year for ten years to keep up with the ever-growing needs of housing, individual faculties, and curriculum expansion.

At most, this $10 million will provide the university with a new Arts Building, a Medicine Building, and four housing units.

These will come in the order here stated, and it is unlikely the critical housing conditions will receive aid "until after the first half of the ten year program" (five years), said president MacKenzie.

President MacKenzie, in his annual report to the provincial government, will appeal for the $10 million in half the time.

Meanwhile, there are other demands for expansion in the smaller faculties.

The president outlined crowded conditions in classrooms and laboratory facilities, giving as an example the Department of Chemistry labs, which, through juggling timetables, are in constant use every day all day. Next year with an increased enrollment, this department will be forced to keep labs open in the evening.

There is also a project in the planning stages to renovate, and perhaps replace, the present central heating system. Purchase and installation of just one boiler would cost $500,000.

Endowment Lands revenue, a gift of the government two years ago, has produced no profit as yet, "in fact, has more than taken up the revenue," and is not expected to give the university any aid "in the near future."

That Padlock Law

Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec may receive an unpleasant gift this Christmas. If he does, Canadians might well heave a collective sigh of relief.

We refer, to Quebec's infamous "Padlock Law," the constitutional validity of which will be debated before the Supreme Court of Canada later this Fall. If the Court nullifies the Act, the Premier will undoubtedly be displeased; but freedom of speech in Canada will be much safer.

The Padlock Law, passed by the Quebec Legislature in 1937, empowers the police to close for one year "any house or other establishment used to propagate communism or bolshevism by any means whatsoever."

With a nonchalance that Senator McCarthy would surely admire, the legislators neglected to define "communism or bolshevism" in the Act. The question of what constitutes communism is decided by the Attorney-General — none other than Premier Duplessis himself. The Premier thus has the absolute power to close down the premises of any individual organizations with whom he happens to disagree.

Thus, the Duplessis Government is at liberty to turn Quebec into a police state; for the utterance of unpopular opinions can be effortlessly suppressed.

Fear of public opinion has fortunately prevented the Premier from applying the Act as widely as it might be applied; but the actual invasions on civil rights that have been committed are enough to make any thoughtful citizen blink and ask himself "Is this really Canada?"

C.C.F. candidates in the 1953 Federal election, for instance, were forced to submit their campaign literature to police authorities for approval before it could be distributed. Social Credit members have been arrested for displaying their posters; newspaper offices, left-of-centre cultural organizations, and homes of LPP members have been padlocked. The record is fantastic, and frightening.

The outcome of this Fall's test case against the Padlock Law, then, is important to us all; we've tolerated a police state in our midst nineteen years too long.

Martin Luther Again

We have been cautioned by a being who designates itself as Iratus that the showing of the film Martin Luther on campus would injure the sensibilities of a certain number of campus Christians.

Coincidentally we have been advised by a Kentucky minister that God is willing to go along with segregation.

God's handwagon has also been joined by the Democrats (say the Republicans), by the Republicans (say the Democrats), and by the Socreds (by their own admission).

If true, very interesting.

But very, very disconcerting.

A lot of people are using God to impinge on the various freedoms of various numbers of us. And may we assure you that this is resented.

Christianity is peculiarly characterized by a fervent desire to proselytize. Under most circumstances we would agree on listening to the other fellow's point of view as long as he didn't stop us from doing other things. We would respect his right to go and see Elvis Presley if that was what he wanted.

Iratus would have us missing a chance to see one of the significant pictures of recent years. The film was produced in all sincerity, and we feel capable of observing this production with enough detachment so that an "Anti-what-ever-Iratus-is" will not be further increased.

It might be unkind to say that Iratus has missed the point of university. However, we feel strongly that so many of these instances are cropping up that we are in danger of losing sight of what Christianity has to offer.

We look forward to seeing "Martin Luther," listening to George Hees, speaking to Premier Bennett, being advised by Brock Chisholm, and investigating the new Islamic Club.

And we hope that Iratus will reconsider.

Letters to the Editor

The Editor,
The Ubysey,

Dear Sir:

In reference to your September 27 editorial, I say, "Hear! Hear! Let's keep the General Meeting."

The answer to the problem of how to repair the decision-making apparatus might possibly be contained in the following suggestion.

A few weeks before the General Meeting, the Students' Council would approve a list of motions to be discussed and refer it to Parliamentary Forum (or some similar body) which would meet on one or more Thursday long noon periods to debate the issues. At these meetings all students will have an opportunity to voice opinions to get rid of emotionalism, and to hear the wisdom of opposing views. The pro and con opinions would be recorded and would be presented by two students to the General Meeting. These two students would be the only, or at least the main, speakers on the particular issue.

In addition to the regular news coverage of the Parliamentary Forum debates, The Ubysey can publish prior to the General Meeting either the full reports, or the highlights of the pro and con spokesmen's presentations.

Consequently, students attending a General Meeting should be well-informed on the issues and should be able to vote wisely. Should their decisions not be obviously indicative, the matter would be referred immediately to a referendum.

The Parliamentary Forum and a referendum would be able to render decisions on any issues arising between the General Meetings.

Such a procedure would provide Parliamentary Forum with the opportunity of making a valuable contribution to the University and to Canada in the furtherance of the practice of democratic parliamentary procedures which at times have been violated at General Meetings.

G. B. LANDIS,
Arts 4

The Editor,
The Ubysey.

Having read a Film Society program during registration, I understand that the film "Martin Luther" is to be shown. It seems a shame that such a motion picture which is not acceptable to all the Christian faith should be permitted on campus.

There are many other religious films which would be welcomed by Christian students. I trust that student opinion will influence the Film Society to change their program.

Sincerely,
"Iratus."

Steinberg To Head Jewish Centennial

A far-reaching program by the Jewish Community of British Columbia in celebration of the province's 100th birthday in 1958, will be headed by UBC's N.W. Steinberg of the English Department.

A lecturer at UBC for 11 years, Dr. Steinberg was appointed chairman of the committee last week.

The major project of the program will be the compiling of a full social history of the Jewish people in B.C., Dr. Steinberg said.

Historians are to be appointed in each Jewish group throughout the province to collect material about early settlements, the pattern of life and personalities, to be edited into a volume in 1958. Chairing the sub-committee in charge of the history is Dr.

S. Rothstein, assistant librarian at UBC.

"British Columbia is the only area I know of where the Jewish community dates back to the very first settlers. So, 1958 is also the centenary year for the Jewish community in the province," Dr. Steinberg commented. "The Jewish people have constituted a very important part in the history of the province."

Other possible projects include an exhibition of souvenirs and manuscripts "which will indicate something of the pattern of life and history of the Jewish community." Such projects as a culture week with guest speakers and displays, music festivals and plays, are also being considered by the committee representing all parts of the province.

Chairman of the Shaw Centenary Festival Committee at UBC in January of this year, Dr. Steinberg has also been active in Jewish affairs in Canada and in B.C.

He is at present the president of the B.C. branch of the Humanities Association of Canada and in June was elected to the national executive.

Ex-president of the Wingate Club, he is also chairman of the Board of Education for the Hebrew Day School in Vancouver and takes an active part in Jewish adult education.

A native of Ottawa, Dr. Steinberg received his degrees at Toronto and Queens Universities where he acted as part time lecturer for two years before coming to UBC in 1945.

GRAUER OPENS CLUBS TODAY

A. E. "Dal" Grauer, B. C. Electric president named to the university Board of Governors Tuesday, will officially open Clubs Day in the Armouries this afternoon.

Announcement of the appointment was made by Attorney-General Robert Bonner Tuesday at a special ceremony held under the auspices of Vancouver B'nai B'rith organization.

Mr. Grauer also received the sixteenth goodwill award made by the city group to persons who have promoted good-will and international brotherhood.

Dr. Grauer graduated from UBC with a B.A. in 1925. He took his M.A. degree at Oxford and a Ph. D. at the University of California.

Later he was head of the Department of Social Sciences at the University of Toronto and advisor to the Rowell-Sirois Commission investigating Canada's Economic prospects.

At 12:30 today he will discuss the importance of extra-curricular activities on the campus and will pay tribute to a friend of the university, Milton Owen.

During his days at UBC, he was a star basketball and football player. He was on the champion team of 1925.

Far East Religions Discussed

Principles of the religion of the Far East will be discussed this year by UBC's newest campus organization, the Islamic Club.

New concepts of prayer, thought and learning, will be introduced to anyone interested in Moslemism.

Although it is non-Christian, a mosque will be used as prayer headquarters and periodic meetings will be arranged.

Those interested in exploring new realms of dogma have been invited to attend the inaugural meeting tomorrow.

There are an estimated 15 Mohammeds on the campus, an organizing official stated.

If an Islamic Club is organized here, it will be the first club of its nature to be organized at any university in Canada.

Once successfully established, it would probably serve as a focal point for groups with similar interests elsewhere.

Pep Club Opens Door

Pep Club this year plans to have its membership open to the public.

Keen types with no experience will be enlisted on Club Day as drum majorettes, band players, and cheerleaders.

Those who do not wish to raise their voices can be put to good use on sales, half-time entertainment, pep meet and other committees. An intensive effort will be made to form organized cheering sections for all football and basketball games.

Workers will be given free passes and other goodies for their labours.

MEDS OFF TO CONFERENCE

Selected to represent UBC at the annual conference of the Canadian Association of Medical students have been two medmen, Bob Fairbairn and Tom Enta.

They will leave soon for London, Ont., where the meeting will be held October 8, 9 and 10.

The Association will discuss medical problems on a national level unique to medical students in medical faculties across the country.

U.S. Policy Worries U.N. Director

"One of the problems faced by the UN Commission on Human Rights is that of the United States," John Humphrey, Director of Human Rights for the UN said Tuesday.

Humphrey, speaking under the auspices of the campus U.N. club, said that "A certain group in that country (the United States) can restrict the treaty-making power of the President. It happened that the Declaration of Human Rights became the target of their conflict, and three years ago John Foster Dulles said, "that under no circumstances would the United States agree to sign or ratify the declaration."

Humphrey went on to describe other problems faced by the commission on Human Rights, and said that the plan to have countries having trouble with human rights come to the U.N. for help is "perfectly silly."

"The very request for help would be an admission of weakness," he said.

Humphreys added that "the status of women is the key to a series of social problems which cannot be attacked directly," and said that the U.N. hopes to look into this problem at a conference to be held in Bangkok this month.

Handbook at AMS for You, Lost Souls

The AMS office has got just the thing for all those unfortunate souls who have not yet successfully orientated themselves on the campus.

We refer to the handy little tome, "Tum Est . . . and all that" which contains just the information that they require to lead a healthy, normal existence.

The included information on campus clubs and organizations will prove invaluable to them at noon today, when they visit the Armoury to scan the exhibits.

No telephone numbers are included in this issue, but will follow in a special directory shortly.

Inter - University Radio Chain Coming

Delegates from radio and television organizations on Western Canada's four principal campi meet with prominent Vancouver radio men Saturday at Brock Hall to organize university radio network.

Tory Hees To Speak On Campus

George Hees, possible nominee for Federal Progressive Conservative party leadership, will speak at noon Friday in FG 100.

Hees is currently on a West-Coast speaking tour to drum up support for his bid as party leader. His visit to the campus is sponsored by the UBC Conservative Club.

GEORGE HEES

Hees will speak on the policy of the National Conservative party.

Following his address here, the Tory candidate will speak at a press conference sponsored by the major Vancouver newspapers. As his final Vancouver speaking engagement, Hees will attend a banquet given in his honour at the Stanley Park Pavilion.

Hees will round out his B. C. visit with addresses to the nominating conventions of Okanagan and Trail.

Representatives from the Universities of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba are due to arrive in Vancouver Friday night.

UBC Radio and Television president Don Fraser says that the outcome of the parley should be the organization of WURF, Western University Radio Federation, which will promote cooperation among the four groups.

Major undertaking of the network will be a radio news service linked together with the assistance of ham radio operators throughout the four provinces.

WURF will also attempt to develop commercial, educational and sports programs for broadcast by all network stations.

Frosh-Engineer football cheering contest Saturday.

He charged that the two members of EUS who last spring offered to run the rally "didn't even show up."

RALLY RUINED

The rally, scheduled for 6:30 p.m., began at 7:45 after several hundred Frosh had gone home. "The Engineers failed miserably to meet their obligations," said Jeffery.

He accused the Engineers of "breaking promises" following the paltry turnout of Redshirts at Saturday's football game. Slightly over fifty of the over-1000 EUS members took part in the cheering contest.

At a meeting last Tuesday, EUS pledged 400 men for the event. Enthusiasm ran high at the meeting to make up for the EUS failure to complete competition plans for the East-West game Sept 22.

"The Engineers narrow group spirit is of no lasting benefit to this campus" said Jeffery, and concluded: "their promises unkept are of far greater damage than their position of non-cooperation."

Council Requests Drivers

Students with cars are urgently needed to provide transportation to Gore Avenue Wharf for delegates of the annual leadership conference on Friday.

About 10 cars are needed to take delegates to the boat which will carry them to Camp Elphinstone where UBC's second annual leadership conference will be held. The cars must be ready to leave from Brock Hall at 5:15 p.m. Friday.

Members are also needed for the advance party which will leave on Friday to make preparations for other delegates.

Anyone interested or willing to help is asked to contact Phil G. van, transportation chairman, in the Council Office today at noon.
