List About Ready

(From Fraser Valley Record)

A recruiting officer who has been through the Valley on both sides of the river informs us that it is a common occurrence for young men who are eligible to enlist to avoid the approach of such officers. Three hundred more men are required to fill up the 131st battalion, and he hints that local newspapers publish his list of eligibles he has the names of who have failed to come forward. Quite a long list has been prepared for some points in the Fraser Valley. We would rather publish the names of those who have enlisted, but of course if the Progress and the Columbian publish a list why the Fraser Valley Record will be bound to follow suit; but we believe in giving the young men a real good oportunity.

Fraser River Normal

The Fraser river is now about three feet above low water mark. The average rise for the past few years at April 30th has been 5 feet above low water mark, and at the present rate that will be the increase this year at the end of this month.

POULTRY NOTES

The temperature of the room where the incubator is to be operated should not vary more than 10 degrees F. The better temperatures for the room in which the machine is operated should range from 45 to 55 degrees F.

The proper time to incubate stock is from the 15th March to the 15th May. Do not waste time or money by hatching early or late, if you wish to be successful.

Turn the eggs by hand. Patented turners seldom give good results.

The time required for cooling eggs must be governed by the operator.

Ventilation is necessary for good hatches. Begin opening the ventilators on the sides or top of the machine about the 9th day on Standard made incubators, and gradually open the same so that on the 18th night the ventilator is wide opne.

Moisture should be supplied in most instances, if good, strong, heavy chicks are expected. The steaming process works well if no other method can be used. To steam the eggs we usually take an old piece of fiannel and put in hot water. Allow the same to saturate all it can. Then let surplus water drain off, and wring out. Then place in machine on nursery trap. As soon as the steam stops rising from cloth, remove from the machine before it cools off the incubator.

Fireless brooders seldom give good results. They must as a rule be operated at the expense of the chick.

The coal brooder stove is giving excellent results in this province (B. C.) The same can be obtained in many places about the Province.

If one does not wish to spend as much for brooding equipment, the small lamp-heated broders may be used.

Many city poultry keepers can make use of the electric brooder. One, however, must pay as much attention to the chicks when using the electric brooder as they do when using any other system for the first few days.

When the chicks are dry (24-36 hours after hatching) remove them fro mthe incubator to the brooder. Oat hulls are used by many for litter, and they prove very useful. Give the chicks drink of cool water If they will not drink themselves, teach them to do so.

Apply a small quantity of either vaseline or glycerine to the crown of the chicks' head to prevent the head louse from doing damage.

Give the first feed when the chick is 48 hours old. Opinion differs as to what the best feed is. Dry bread soaked in sour skim-milk is a good food at this time. Use by soaking the bread in the milk; then squueze out the surplus milk and place the soaked bread on a shingle before the chicks.

If they will not eat of their own accord, assist the backward ones to do so. Do not allow any food to stand in front of the chicks for more than 15 minutes, until they are three of four weeks of age.

Get the chicks on the ground as soon as possible, but see that they do not get chilled. Watch them, also, to see that they do not crowd in corners outside or inside the brooder-house where they may get chilled.

If one does not feed commercial chick feed after the age of four days they may make an excellent chick feed of their own by mixing:

15 lbs Fine Cracked Corn; 10 lbs Fine Cracked wheat; 10 lbs 10 lbs Pinhead Oatmeal together.

WOUNDED WHILE FIGHTING IN FRANCE

(From Fraser Valley Record

A cablegram was received on Friday by Mr. T. J. Cox that his son Pte. Percy Cox, now in France, had been wounded in the leg. Nothing further in the way of particulars as to the seriousness of the wound has been received.

Among the casualty lists yesterday was the name of Pte. W. A. Nicholson formerly of Mission City and one of the 'crack shots' of his regiment.

Report has it that both the Cruickshank boys of Matsqui who are now in France have been wounded.

Moving in Steelhead Valley Centre

(From Fraser Valley Record)

Other things besides snow and shingle bolts are moving in the Steelhead Valley, for Miss McColm and a number of active residents have formed a committee to arrange for a grand rally of settlers and friends on May 24th next.

The purpose is to hold a picnic, with sports, in the afternoon and finish up with a masquerade dance in the evening. The school and grounds will be utilized for the purpose.

Great times are foreshadowed; full particulars later. Several whom years and a growing family might indicate were passing into the stalls are promising to be "on the stage" and to show the rising generation that 'whilst there's life, there's the spirit to enjoy it.

Steelhead intends to adopt Kipling's aphorism as its watch word "To keep your light so shining a little in front of the next."

Keep your fears to yourself, but share your courage with others.

It may be a little farther around the corners of a square deal, but the road is better.

No one is ever too poor, too ugly, too dull, too sick, too friendless, to be useful to some one.

It is the history of our kindness that alone makes this world tolerable

THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1916

Every business man in this town should be a member of the Abbotsford Board of Trade There are numerous reasons for this. It would be to the best interests of that business man, be he in business in a small way or in a large way. A free discussion at a board of trade of what will be in the best interests of the town for its advancement, or is thought to be its advancement always brings out ideas which might be acted upon.

But here is the ticklish point about it. The ladies are applying for the right of citizenship in B. C., practically saying by such action that the men are not making the best right of their citizenship and we want a right to see that these matters are handled different and to the better advantage of all communities. It is a part of the citizenship duties of every man to take an interest in public matters, and one of these ways is to join the board of trade in his own little town and to talk over the difficulties and ask for rights which may be ours for the asking. When women get the vote they will not stop at that but will be, as in other places where they have the vote taking a prominent part in all public matters. Then the board of trade meetings will be better attended.

An Objective Point

The question has often been asked, somewhat facetiously perhaps "do you keep cows" or do they keep you?" To many dairymen this has started a train of thought resulting in vastly improved prospects.

To come right down to business, why do you keep cows? Surely it is in order that they may contribute handsomely to wards income. If you are already satisfied on that point, well and good; but, one excellent result of cow testing is the solid fact that it helps men to increase their income considerably; that is one remain objective point reached. The same story is repeated in all provinces in the Dominion, it runs something like this: from a man at Barnston, Que., "My cows average almost two thousand pounds of milk more than two years ago" or again from a Petersburg, Ont., "I have increased fourteen hundred pounds of milk per cow, and hope to go up another fifteen hundred" or this, from a man at Hagersville, Ont., "My herd is pretty near doublt in three years" and once more, from St. Boniface, Que., "My seven cows brought in $145 more this year, my records showed me it paid to care for them better."

The Dairy division, Ottawa, gladly send milk record forms if you write for them. Be sure that each cow pays.

The Value of Cold Storage

It may be that, as the letter of transmittal says, Bulletin No. 44, issued by the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture, and of which the authors are J. A. Ruddick Dairy and Cold Storage Comissioner, and Joseph Burgess, Cold Storage Inspector, is not intended as a scientific treatise on cold storage problems, but rather as a popular discussion of the subject for the information of those who may have a commercial interest in it and as a guide to inexperienced persons who may have embarked in the cold storage business, but it is so explicit in language, so precise and explanatory in detail, that it would be somewhat difficult to increase its interest or to enhance its worth. In the 24 pages of which the Bulletin consists every phase of the cold storage problem is lucidly dealt with, especial attention being devoted to the foods in which the simple life is most concerned. Dairy products of course come in for exceptional prominence in treatment, but the best methods of procedure in keeping fruits and eggs, and even furs and woollens, are described in plain and terse language. Not alone the farmer and the storekeeper, but the ordinary householder can derive a vast deal of useful information from these pages. A cardinal principle seems to be that when storage is to be resorted to the cooling process cannot be set about too quickly in the majority of cases, although with moderation and not extreme suddenness. For instance milk which is cooled immediately to 60 degrees F. will keep longer than if kept for several hours at 70 and 80 and then cooled to 40. Butter keeps best at a low temperature but needs care in method. Cheese under certain described conditions can be kept at moderate temperature. Fruit and in particular apples, keep better if promptly cooled after picking and can be preserved longer in cold storage. Eggs intended for cold storage should be gathered and treated as soon as possible after being laid. But in a brief review it is not easy to lay adequate stress upon the importance of this Bulletin No. 44 of the Dairy and Cold Storage Series, which is entitled "The Cold Storage of Food Products", and which can be had free of cost by application to the Publications Branch Department of Agriculture. Ottawa.

Horticultural Competitions

The Horticultural branch of the Provincial Department of Agriculture today announces that Horticultural Crop Competitions will be conducted again this year.

The various Competitions are:

5 acre plots of bearing orchard.

5 acre plots of young orchard;

¼ acre plots of raspberries and strawberries;

½ acre plots of onions and tomatoes;

¼ acre plots of celery;

Farm Gardens;

City Gardens.

Twenty such competitions were held last year throughout the province, and by encouraging greater care and attention, assisted materially towards better crops.

Farmers' Institutes and Fruit Growers' organizations are required to organize the competitions, in which work, however they may call on the services of the Assistant Horticulturists.

In the case of City Gardens any organization for civic betterment may promote a competition.

The Department, in addition to providing assistance in organization and in supplying the major portion of the prize money, will also supply the judge from its official staff.

The announcement in full with rules and regulations, application forms, etc., can be had from the office of any Assistant Horticulturist, or from the Department at Victoria.

Plans, specifications, contract, and forms of tender may be seen on and after the 6th day of April, 1916, at the office of F. C. Campbell, Government Agent, New Westminster; J. Cold Storage and Cost of Living

Cold storage promises as the years pass to have a greater and greater effect on the cost of living. Not only storekeepers and hotel-keepers, but ordinary householders in increasing numbers are coming to recoguise that the buying of food in quantities and preserving in cold storage means a satisfactory dividend on investment. Hence the general interest possessed by Bulletin 44, under the title of "The Cold Storage of Food Products", and written by J. A. Ruddick, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner for the Dominion and Joseph Burgess, Cold Storage Inspector. Every person who makes use of a kitchen refrigerator, or places milk, butter, meats, fruit or vegetables in a cool cellar, puts into practice the principles which underlie the operation of the most up-to-date cold storage warehouse and follows in some particulars the methods described in this comprehensive and informative publication. An example of the benefits derived from the system is furnished in the suggestion that if it were not for the cold storage facilities which are now available the price of eggs would for lack of an immediate market, be so low during the laying period of the spring and early summer that production would be seriously discouraged, while the scarcity that would result during the season of non-supply would boost prices for all kinds of eggs to such an extent as to make them prohibitive for the majority of the people. Eggs are but one of the articles of food the price of which is regulated and to some extent standardized, by cold storage. Dairy products, meat, fish and fruit can't be kept and preserved if the treatment set out in this bulletin, which can be had for the mere effort of application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, be followed. It outlines all the methods and processes that are pursued in the handling, storing, shipping and preservation of such perishable articles as apples, butter, cheese, vegetables, eggs, fish, game, lard, meats, milk and poultry, the necessary temperature being given in each instance, and also in the care of furs and woollens.

Production and Thrift

"TO win the war with the decisiveness which will ensure lasting peace, the Empire will require to put forth its full collective power in men and in money. From this viewpoint it is our true policy to augment our financial strength by multiplying our productive exertions and by exercising rigid economy, which reduces to the minimum all expenditures upon luxuries and non-essentials. Only in this way shall we be able to make good the loss caused by the withdrawal of so many of our workers from industrial activities, repair the wastage of the war, and find the funds for its continuance. It cannot be too frequently or too earnestly impressed upon our people that the heaviest burdens of the conflict still lie before us, and that industry and thrift are, for these who remain at home, supreme patriotic duties upon whose faithful fulfilment our success, and consequently our national safety, may ultimately depend."—SIR THOMAS WHITE, Minister of Finance.

PRODUCE MORE, SAVE MORE.
MAKE LABOUR EFFICIENT.
SAVE MATERIALS FROM WASTE.
SPEND MONEY WISELY.

LET US PRODUCE AND SAVE—

The war is now turning on a contest of all forces and resources—men, munitions, food, money. The call to all is to produce more and more. It may be necessary to work harder. The place of those who enlist must be taken by those at home, men and women, old and young. The more we produce the more we can save. Produce more on the farms and in the gardens. Save more and help to win the war.

LET US NOT WASTE OUR LABOUR—

In this war-time all labour should be directly productive or should be assisting in production. Make it as efficient as possible. If your labour is on something that can be postponed, put it off till after the war and make your labour tell now. Making war is the first business of all Canadians. Efficiency in labour is as important as efficiency in fighting.

LET US NOT WASTE MATERIALS—

Begin at home. The larger portion of salaries and wages is spent on the home—food, fuel, light, clothing. Are any of these things being wasted? $20.00 a year saved from waste in every home in Canada will more than pay the interest on a war debt of $500,000,000.

LET US SPEND OUR MONEY WISELY—

Are you spending your money to the best advantage? What do you think of extravagance in war time? Tens of thousands of Canadians are daily risking their lives for us at home. Is it not our duty to be careful and economical? Canadian dollars are an important part of the war equipment. Make them tell. Have a War Savings Account. Buy a War Bond.

FRIDAY, APRIL 28, 1916

Our friend Shakespeare said: "There is a tide in the affairs of man which, if taken at the flood leads on to fortune." What is really true of man in this regard is also true of a town a city, a province or a nation.

In view of what is taking place throughout the world today the tide, so far as Canada is concerned, is just coming in-Whether or not we are going to be able to take it at the flood depends largely on the attitude of our governments, our industrial institutions and the people generally. Our governments appear to be alive to the situation but can we say the same about the people generally? We fear, in many cases not, and the delinquency appears to be very noticeable in this province at the present time—probably more so than in the eastern or older provinces, judging by our exchanges. There is one way to help build up and develop the west and that is by patronizing and helping in every way our western industries. In dealing with this phase of the present conditions and possiblities aprairie paper summed up the situation very nicely in an editorial a short time ago when it said:

"The people of Western Canada must be further educated to the fact that Western industries must be supported by the west, as well as the outside points. What reason is there for merchants buying a line of goods from eastern points and points in the United States when the very gods we are importing are being manufactured in this province."

There are industries in B. C. that for want of support from western people are today on the verge of bankruptcy or have dwindled down to small affairs. Many articles manufactured in B. C. are just as good as those brought from the wise far east

"On such a full sea are we now afloat," and if we would venture further on it now is time to follow old Noah's example by getting the industrial boats in such shape that they will float away with the tide."

There is another little matter in this connection which we might mention: What reason is there for the people of any part of the Fraser Valley purchasing goods from the catalogue houses of the wise far east? The only reason that we can see is that the people like to be fooled once in a while, so when some people have the ready cash they send it to the catalogue houses just to see if they will get as good an article for real cash as if they purchased from the local stores on six or seven months credit. The spirit of gamble is deeply imbeded in human nature. We have heard of people getting soaked time after time from houes that sell by mail, yet the next time it is just the same thing.

We venture to say that if every man purchased the household goods and groceries from a local store for one year without fail he would never think of going back to the catalogue houses again. What a difference it would make to the province of British Columbia if the people of British Columbia would decide to not let any more money go out of the province than is absolutely necessary.

Money going out of the province in a steady stream is what makes times hard. Buy at the home town and the money will come back again.

The Farmers Credits Act which provides for a system of provincial loans to farmers was brought into action this week. Funds to the amount of a million dollars have been borrowed by the provincial government to loan the farmers of the province. The plan has worked well, we are told in New Zealand, and it will be watched in this province with no little interest. Our land is fertile, our climate is the best in the world but the one thing lacking is capital to bring our fertile valleys under cultivation. Then will the province forge ahead as never before.

An editor of wide experience with more truth than poetry, remarks:

"A newspaper is in no sense a child of charity. It earns twice over every dollar it receives, and it is second to no enterprise in contributing to the upbuilding of a community Its patrons reap far more benefit from its pages than its publisher, and in calling for the support of the community in which it is published it asks for no more than in all fairness belongs to it, though generally it receives less."

An eastern paper advocates a "cute" thing in suggesting that the word "appendiccute" be added to the language to save the trouble of saying "operated on for appendicitis". Have you been appendicuted? If not, why not?

WHY NOT ADVERTISE?

The spotlight of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it has any defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date,, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

Picked Up

"Well father," said the youngest daughter of the house, in defence, as she tidied herself on the young man's hurried departure, "If I was sitting on his knee it was only because I heard you say we ought all of us to bring pressure to bear on the young men."

Out of Sight

When a young, strong-looking man entered a crowded street car during the Easter holidays in Vancouver, a young lady got up and offered him her seat. The young man protested and the young lady insisted that he take the seat, saying that any young man who looked so fit and was not in uniform, ought to sit down, so that he wouldn't be so conspicuous.

Horrible! Horrible!

We note that another preacher has been guilty of kissing a woman member of his congregation and has resigned his pastorate. The preachers ought to leave this kind of recreation to us editors. We don't have so much to lose if we get caught. —Saskatoon Star.

Landlady—"I hope you slept well, sir," New Boarder—"No, I didn't, I've been troubled with insomnia." Landlady—"Look here, young man, I'll give you a dollar for everyone you find in that bed."

Slight Loss of Memory

The scene was in a little country inn in Ireland. At one corner of the bar was a long table at which sat several soldiers, one of whom was wounded. He was relating some of the narrow escapes that he had experienced on the field of battle. "Begorra, ye ought to have seen my brother Dennis, who was fighting by my side," he said. "First, we got the order to charge, and as we were about to obey the command there was a blinding flash, followed by a huge roar. It was wan o' thim 'Jack Johnsons,' a nd turning round much to my horror I found that a piece of shrapnel had blown wan of my brother's arms clean off. Did this frighten him? Niver a bit. Shouting out, Ould Oireland for iver," he dashed forward, caught hold of two of thim Jarmins by the scruff of their necks and crashed their heads together and kilt them entoirely."

"But how could he do that?" interrogated one of his listeners, "whin he had only wan arm?"

"Wan arm, had he? That's thrue enough for ye, but my brother Dennis forgot all about that whin he was foighting."

Real Logic

Employer to deputation of workmen: "An increase of wages I can understand, but why do you want shorter hours of wo rk?"

Spokesman: "So as to have time to spend our higher wages sir."

IDEALS

Most men are devoid of ideas, but I doubt if there be one who has not an ideal.

Man cannot fall so low as to see nothing higher than himself., and to have ideals means to look high—to look beyond. It means to follow an imaginary aim, to reach for a visionary goal, to hold a fancied hope.

Every man deep down in his heart knows what he ought to do or ought to be, what he is not; and it is this consciousness that things could and would be better that makes the world move on.

The first vision of a steamboat came to Fulton while lying on his back peering into a starlit heaven. The idea always follows the ideal. Without the ideal there can be no real.

The most beautiful thing in life is co-operation, where two opposing factors become jointly associated for a wholesome and beneficient end.

When a man's work is influenced by the wedding of his ideals and his ideas, take care for a new star is about to appear in the firmament.—Ex.

Production and Thrift

"GAIN or no gain the cause before the farmers of Canada is as clear as it was last year—they must produce abundantly in order to meet the demands that may be made, and I believe this to be especially true in regard to live stock, the world's supply of which must be particularly affected in this vast struggle."—HON. MARTIN BURRELL, Minister of Agriculture.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENTS ARE BASED ON REPORTS CONTAINED IN "THE AGRICULTURAL WAR BOOK, 1916," PUBLISHED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, OTTAWA, ONT.

LIVE STOCK—The herds and flocks of Europe have been greatly reduced. When the war is over there will be a great demand for breeding stock. Canadian farmers should keep this in mind.

MEATS—In 1915 Great Britain imported 664,508 tons of beef, mutton and lamb, of which 364,245 tons came from without the Empire. Out of 430,420 tons of beef only 104,967 tons came from within the Empire.

The demands of the Allies for frozen beef, canned beef, bacon and hams will increase rather than diminish. Orders are coming to Canada. The decreasing tonnage space available will give Canada an advantage if we have the supplies.

DAIRYING—Home consumption of milk, butter and cheese has increased of late years. The war demands for cheese have been unlimited. The Canadian cheese exports from Montreal in 1915 were nearly $6,500,000 over 1914. Prices at Montreal—Cheese: January 1915, 15¼ to 17 cents; January 1916, 18¼ to 18½ cents. Butter: January 1915, 24 to 28¾ cents; January 1916, 32 to 33 cents.

EGGS—Canada produced $30,000,000 worth of eggs in 1915 and helped out Great Britain in the shortage. Shippers as well as producers have a duty and an opportunity in holding a place in that market.

WRITE TO THE DOMINION DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND TO YOUR PROVINCIAL DEPARTMENT FOR BULLETINS ON THESE SUBJECTS

Tens of thousands of Canada's food producers have enlisted and gone to the front. It is only fair to them that their home work shall be kept up as far as possible. The Empire needs all the food that we can produce in 1916.

DROWNING AT HAMMOND

A very sad drowning accident occurred near Bonson's Landing last Saturday when Jack Howlett, the fourteen year old son of a Pitt Meadows farmer, while fishing from a snag overbalanced and fell into the Fraser. His companion Chas. Alwyn being at the time some distance away, hurried to his rescue and made two heroic attempts to save his friend who struggled and fought him in his drowning paroxysm so that he was forced to let him go. The body was found on Sunday morning. The funeral which was held Monday, at three o'clock, was largely attended and among the numerous floral emblems was one from the Boy Scouts who attended their comrades' funeral in a body.

The Girls' Patriotic Band held a bazaar in Fossett's Hall on Tuesday the 25th inst, and was well attended.

A surprise party was held at Mrs. Tyler's residence last Saturday night. Dancing and games were participated in and an enjoyable evening spent.
