FRUIT GROWERS

FAVOR ORIENTALS

Victoria, Jan. 17.—By a standing vote of 33 to 5 the assembled delegates to the 28 annual meeting of the B. C. Fruit Growers Association went on record here this morning as favoring the introduction of indentured labor.

The association will immediately petition the Dominion government to provide legislation permitting such a means of labor supply to be operative during the war, and for such time thereafter as may be deemed proper. It is to be distinctly understood that such labor would be under strict supervision and for agricultural purposes only.

The discussion on the general subject of labor commenced at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon L. E. Taylor of Kelowna stating the case for the indentured labor.

His material was based upon personal experience of the system in South Africa and his pleading was assisted by his knowledge of the difficulties, he as a farmer had experienced during the last season not to mention the dark outlook for the future, unless the problem was quickly solved.

From a twenty years' experience of life in China and close understanding of the Oriental, his attitude towards the white races and his vision of the future, J. Huntley of Peniticon urged with eloquence and feeling that no steps be taken to bring in the Chinamen under the proposed system. The yellow peril to Mr. Huntley was no myth, and if in assisting this means to create a despotism today there were sown the seeds of a much greater calamity to the white races in the future, the price would be too great.

Women are not allowed to knit in New York court rooms. The lawyers complain that every time the knitters drop a stitch they lose the thread of their arguments.

Those tanks seem to have little trouble getting next to the Huns, but the latter are utterly unable to get next to the tanks.

CONTEST IN MATSQUI

There will be a contest for Reeve in Matsqui, Alexander McCallum, who has just concluded two years' service in that office and Walter Towlan one of the old timers of the district, and who previously served eleven years on the council, having accepted nomination. In Ward Two there will be a fight, Councillor McLean of Mt. Lehman being opposed by Peter R. Keay, also of Mt. Lehman. Ward Four will have to choose between Councillor John T. Aish, of Matsqui and William Elliot, of Matsqui.

The candidates for Wards One and Three were elected by acclamation, Councillor M. Z. Melander going back for another year, and Councillor Hallet S. Phinney, of Clayburn also being accorded that honor without opposition for Ward Three.

The school board was returned by acclamation.

TREE PLANTING

Hints are given as to the best method of planting cottonwood, Manitoba maple, laurel leaf, willow white ash and Russian Willow.

1. Plunge the roots of the tree into a bucket of cold water for a few minutes before planting.

2. The roots of the tree must not be exposed to the sun and wind. They should be kept moist by covering with a sack or similar material until planted.

3. The holes should be dug large enough to permit the roots of the trees to spread out in a natural position.

4. The tree should not be planted too deeply—one or two inches deeper than previously planted is enough.

5. Work fine soil around the roots and press the ground firmly when planting.

6. Ground should be kept level and not raised up around tree.

7. Water the tree thoroughly after planting.

8. Provide a stake or stout stick for each tree. This should be driven firmly into the ground about six inches from the stem on the west side of the tree. Cloth or some soft material that will not injure the bark should be used to secure the tree to the support.

FATHER OF CAMOUFLAGE

How the "Father of Camouflage" was considered a "nut" and treated with contempt by the British War Office during the first two years of the war when he was trying to give them information which they now consider invaluable is one of the interesting stories of bureaucratic inefficiency which is just coming to the surface, writes Basil Manley in the Spokesman-Review.

Abbott H. Thayer, 68, American artist, is now respected by the British army as the greatest living camouflager.

But in 1914 when he went to London to offer freely all his wonderful knowledge of military concealment he was shunted from bureau to bureau, from petty chief to petty chief, as a "harmless old crank."

For more than thirty years Thayer has been studying how birds and animals concealed themselves from the closest observation by blending with the landscape and in 1896 had published an authoritative treatise on the subject. More than that he was a distinguished artist, twice president of the Society of American Artists, and knew all about color blending.

As soon as war was declared Thayer realizing the importance of camouflage in warfare, sailed for England to tell the British about it. To demonstrate his ideas he carried with him some freakish suits with colored patches sewed all over them in imitation of the different birds. He was erady to show just how the trick of "fading into the landscape" could be done. But it was these freak suits that queered him with the War Office. If he had put on a frock coat and a silk hat and carried a gold-headed cane, he might have been welcomed.

In the meantime French artists were gradually developing the art of camouflage but they were making slow progress, because they didn't know the secrets of the birds and the animals which Thayer had discovered years before.

Nevertheless, they were showing what could be done in concealing guns and men, and finally the British began to catch on.

Now Thayer is looked upon as one of the most valuable men in England and everything is being done to make up for lost time.

Word has been received that Pte. Israel is among the soldiers to return the end of this week.

Miss O'Neil has returned to Cumberland after spending the holidays with her parents here.

Your Ad. in This Paper

Will Find the Right
People

BECAUSE THE RIGHT PEOPLE ARE LOOKING FOR YOUR AD.

If you COULD (although, OF COURSE, you can't) stop every man you meet on the streets and ask: "Do you want to buy a pair of shoes?" (Or any other kind of goods) You might find half a dozen who would say "Yes." Perhaps not one of these, however, would want to buy the article you want to sell.

If your advertisement, however, were to be printed in these columns this week, it would "stop" EVERY MAN IN TOWN WHO WANTS TO BUY SHOES, OR CLOTHES, OR ANY OTHER ARTICLE—and it wouldn't "stop" anyone who didn't want to buy. That's the beauty of the advertising way of finding a buyer. The ad. finds the buyer through the simple process of being easily and readily found BY the buyer. And if, among the prospective buyers of goods, there is one to whom your goods would be a bargain, and your ad. is a convincing one, you'll sell what you want to sell.

OUR JIMMY

He was only a kid when the war broke out,
Just a larruppin, lump of a boy,
With a voice that wandered from A to Z
And a lingering love for a toy.

He chored around a bit on the farm
In a casual kind of way,
But was always ready to cut the work
For a chance of a bit of play.

But one by one the boys joined up
To take their part in the war,
Till only Willy was left with Jim,
Then Will joined the flying corps.

Even his Dad joined up and he
Would have been a success, I know
If he hadn't tried teaching the G. O. C.
The way he should run the show.

So they labelled him back "Returned with thanks"
And now he's a Vag once more
Which suits him better than doing his bit
By sweeping the Barrack floor.

Now Charlie's away with the Forest-ers
And Alan away with the Guns
And Willy's gyrating up in the air
Dropping grenades on the Huns.

So Jimmy was left in charge of the farm
And Mother and Sisters too.
'Twas strange to see how that careless youth
Steadied himself and grew.

He'd a dozen cows to milk each day
And the calves and pigs to feed
To fill the cistern and split the wood
And such things as the women need.

He developed a back like a three year bull
And a hand like a walrus in.
Though his voice would still start down in the bass
And end up a trifle thin.

But Jimmy had the time of his life
When the girls came to pick the fruit.
Tho what brought him a cropper
Right off his perch
Was a girl in an overall suit.

If she got a bit of a thorn in her hand
She'd run off and look for him
And it took him an hour to dig it out
So gentle and kind was Jim.

And if about then he forgot the cows
And pigs got a trifle lean.
Remember the girl in the sporty trows
And that Jimmy was not sixteen.

I'm proud to be called a friend of Jim
And I honor his brave young heart
And none, though they're proud of the lads who fight,
Can deny that he's done his part.

Ah; War with its dreadful thunder cloud
Shews the silver lining when
It proves that the British boys today
Have the spirit of British men.
—J. S. Ranier.

SPECIAL VS. SIDE LINE

At this time when economical production is of first consideration, the question of whether production should be increased by encouraging the number of poultry farms or by increasing the flocks kept on farms and in back yards in the towns and cities, becomes of special interest.

Poultry Specialist.

That the poultry specialist usually gets better results than the farmer, goes without saying. He gets better results because he has to; if he did not he would soon be out of business. He has nothing but his poultry to depend on; he must show a profit. It costs him so much more to feed his poultry than it does the farmer that his only salvation is in increased production. He must get it or fall by the wayside—one of the failures in the poultry business.

With the present high and the ever increasing prices of feed, it is becoming more and more difficult for the specialist to show a satisfactory profit so that we must turn for increased production to sources where the feed problem is not so acute. This brings us to the mixed farm where a flock is kept as a side line and to the town dweller.

Farm Flocks.

Every farm in the country should carry a flock large enough to make the best use of the unsalable grains, vegetables and waste milk. There are a few farms that could not to a great advantage carry a flock of a least one hundred hens. But the flock must be put on a business basis. One member of the family, preferably one of the younger members, should be given full charge. Careful records should be kept and all wasters promptly disposed of. In this way the production may be greatly increased without any corresponding increase in cost.

Most of the work will be done by one of the younger members of the family. It will interfere very little with the general farm work. It will generally be necessary to purchase some eggs to supplement those available on the farm, but by so doing much of the lower grade products may be fed to produce a greater profit than if sold or fed to any other live stock.

The Back-yard Flock.

The greatest hope for increased production at the present lies in the back yard flocks. There is no reason why every city, town and village should not be wholly or in great part at any rate, self-supporting from an egg standpoint. There are hundreds and thousands of dollars' worth of good feed thrown in the garbage pails every day. The waste going on even yet in our cities is simply appalling. The kitchen waste from the ordinary family of five or six people may be fed to best advantage to a flock of about twenty-five birds. This is more than many will want to keep, but a flock of this size will only require a house about twelve feet square, even a little less will do, no yard room is necessary and the eggs produced should keep the house supplied and still leave enough to sell to less thrifty neighbors, to pay for all the supplementary feeds which it is necessary to purchase.

What is more tempting to the appetite than an absolutely new laid egg from a flock that has been cleanly feed? Once used to home produced eggs, the consumer will never be content to depend on store eggs. If you don't believe this, try it.

Under the present conditions increase dproduction should not be brought about by increasing the number of poultry farms, but rather by increasing the size and number of farm flocks, flocks may be kept largely on thing but good producers and last, but of primary importance by the increase in number of back yard poultry plants where flocks may be kept largely on feed that would otherwise be wasted.
