SUMAS COUNCIL

WHATCOM ROAD, May 11.—In a session of very varied business on Saturday, the Sumas Council endorsed the stand of the School Board in requesting of the education department a school on the McKenzie road.

This is a thickly settled district of small holders who find too little accomodation for their children at the Abbotsford School.

As the board paid Abbotsford $700 last year for tuition and expenses, it is considered that the municipality could well support a school of its own in this district.

As if to show there was no ill feeling against Abbotsford in this move, the council voted a donation of $300 to the new hospital fund, and $100 to the Abbotsford-Sumas Agricultural Society towards the expenses of a fall fair.

The big Sutherby subdivision near Abbotsford is to be cancelled by their permission. The cancellation of Fourth street extension east will be held up until the international boundary road is open for traffic.

The Saar Creek bridge on the Vye road, beyond Evan Thomas station is to be rebuilt and Messrs. Nelles and Graham are requested to remove their fences along the new division of the Yale road between Whatcom and Stratton roads.

Mr. W. Fadden again revived the old question of the removal of Whatcom road crossing on the B. C. E. Railway.

A much easier grade and approach would be made by putting the crossing a few rods westward and a dangerous turn on the Vye road would be made less risky.

The council will take up the matter at a special meeting.

The act of the DeLair Condensery in turning their milk washings into McCrimmon Creek, which joins Marshall Creek and runs across the prairie, was condemned by the council as being objectionable to stock and fish. The company will be requested to make other disposal of their drainage.

TRESTLE FILLING MEANS SAFER LINE

WHATCOM ROAD, May 11.—The B. C. E. R. Co. is filling in the trestle between Whatcom road and Vedder mountain. Trains have been running over the fill at Gifford for some time and the big fill above South Westminster is progressing. The filling in of all trestles along the line is a great improvement and will add considerably to the safety and efficiency of the line. The fill at South Westminster is a big undertaking and has proved a very costly business for the company It will do away with the long, high trestle, which is not considered too safe, although experts say it does not vibrate one-sixteenth of an inch when the heaviest freight train is passing over it. All trains slow down at the trestle, which crosses a long ravine, 100 feet deep.

PRESENTED WITH A FLAG

Mr. S. Trethewey of the A. T. T. & M. Co., has presented the school with a fine flag.

G. W. V. A. MEETS

A meeting of the G. W. V. A. was held on Monday evening, May 9th, in the club rooms with a good attendance. President F. J. R. Whitchelo occupied the chair. A delegate was then appointed for the forth-coming provincial convention to be held in Chilliwack on June 3rd and 4th. Mr. Whitchelo was unanimously appointed to what promises to be the most important convention in the history of British Columbia. Secretary W. A. Ackland was appointed to act as a substitute if need be. Several of the members expressed their intention to attend the convention. The meeting then went into a committee as a whole to consider and pass various resolutions cocerning the welfare of various organizations and returned men generally, i. e.; (1) that a better housing scheme be adopted, whereby any returned soldier may take advantage of its provision irrespective of his residence at the time of his enlistment; (2) to ask for a resolution of the Eggs Mark Act, and a prohibiting of the importation of Chinese eggs. (3) to endorse the arguments of the booklet entitled "Compensilating," circulating to branches by Central Branch Toronto; (4) resolution of amalgamation of all returned soldiers' organizations and societies.

A satisfactory financial statement was submitted and five new members were enrolled, Messrs. A. G. Andrews L. Collison, Stady, W. Wells and Talbot.

MATSQUI MAKES GRANT FOR HOSPITAL

MOUNT LEHMAN, May 11.—Saturday was donation giving day with the Matsqui council, several requests for financial aid being listened to in a friendly attitude and sums ranging from $500 to $5 being sanctioned.

The larger sum was for the Abbotsford hospital, on the board of which is Reeve McCallum. The Matsqui Agricultural Society were successful in securing a grant of $100 while the Abbitsford fair association succeeded in persuading the council to part with a $50 cheque. The Matsqui Women's Institute came next with a modest appeal for $5 as a prize at the annual flower show to be held at Clayburn on June 25.

Little discussion took place on the report of the successful action against the municipality by the Royal Columbian hospital, the case being more or less a test one and amounted to a matter of $2000.

The real kick of the afternoon came with the reading of a letter from Chief Engineer Philip of the Provincial Department of Public Works, to the effect that the government expected Matsqui to assume a portion of the cost of maintaining the old Yale road which passes through the district to the extent of seven miles. To add to their troubles, the council learned that the government expected a fifty-fifty split on the cost of upkeep of the Riverside road running from Abbotsford to Mission. Municipal Clerk LaFevre was instructed to write to Victoria to the effect that the council "could not approve."

While in this frame of mind the solicitors were ordered by the council to hurry up the B. C. Electric Railway in getting power and light lines laid through Matsqui.

Tenders for various contracts showed that the spring seeding nearly over the farmers are freer to take up road work.

A. C. Gustafson was awarded the gravelling of Skouge and Crist roads at $1.80 per yard; Mariner Smith will gravel the Bell road between Fore road and Harris road for $1.50 per yard. The Fore road will be gravelled by Victor Manson at $1.50 and W. G. Bates will grade the Glenmore road from Harris road to the dyke for $1.75 per yard.

CASE CALLED, BUT PLAINTIFF DEAD

When the trial of the action of Morrison vs. The Dewdney Dyking Commissioners was called on Monday it was announced that Mr. J. R. Morrison, the plaintiff, had died Sunday night. By consent of counsel the widow takes his place as plaintiff. The case has already continued for over two weeks and will likely last for some time yet.

Mr. Morrison was one of the oldest residents of the Hatzic district, and a leading farmer. Recent infirmaties had thrown the conduct of his affairs on his sons, and the action now before the courts had been started on Mr. Morrison's behalf by a committee in lunacy entrusted with the task of looking after his affairs.

The lawsuit is being followed with great interest by local engineers, farmers and the legal fraternity. It arises out of permisson given by Mr. Morrison many years ago to the Dowdney dyking commissioners to cut a canal through his land on their undertaking to protect his property from damage.

Last year the Morrison farm was flooded and heavy damage done. Mr. S. S. Taylor, K. C., and Mr. W. S. Deacon for plaintiffs, claim that it arises from a neglect of the dyking commissioners to properly protect the land when constructing the canal.

The dyking commissioners, represented by Mr. A. H. MacNeill, K. C. and Hamilton Read, claim that the over-flow was caused by excessive high water in the Fraser river, over which they had no control.—World.

OUT OF COMMISSION

The newspapers of Vernon, Kelowna, Summerland and Penticton are temporarily out of commission—not publishing. It is the result of the first important dispute between the newspapers and the International Typographical Union, the working printers demanding an increase in wages from $39 to $40.50 per week and at the same time a reduction in the working time from 48 to 44 hours a week, and the newspaper proprietors refusing to grant both these advances.

The employers did concede the increase in wages to $40.50 per week, but refused to give a reduction of four hours in the week's working time. Hence the walk-out. The position of the newspapers is concisely given by the Kelowna Courier in these words:

"The change from the former rate of $39.00 for 48 hours' work to $40.50 for 44 hours would involve an additon of over 13 per cent to labor cost, taking no cognizance of the fact that the unproductive time will remain the same as before and that four hours off must come off the productive time, that is the proportion of unproductive to productive time. The employers cannot absorb this addition to their costs, and there is no opporunity to "pass the buck" on to the public, who are not in mood these days to stand for increase in prices in any line. Subscription rates are as high as they can go, the same applies to advertising, and Eastern competition, aided by a lower wage scale and the employment of boys and girls on bindery and press work, which is done here by journeyman, is an effective bar to an increase in prices for commercial printing.

"The members of the Okanagan Press Guild have therefore decided to resist the demand for a 44-hour week and until some settlement is reached the "Vernon News," "Summerland Review," Penticton Herald" and "Kelowna Courier" will cease publication. The Armstrong and Enderby papers are operated by working proprietors, who make their own hours and working conditions. —The Commoner.

REGAINS HIS HEALTH WITH BICYCLE'S HELP

The story of the career of Emil Brakevelt, a Frenchman living in Rochester, N. Y., is both interesting and inspiring. At 17 years of age, he was told by a doctor that he was dying with consumption and he was advised to return to La Belle France before his days were ended. He decided to buy a bicycle, however, so that he could get out into the country and enjoy fresh air and good exercise. For two yeas he rode as often as possible although he was in bad straits financially.

One day his wife gave him some of her meagre savings with which to buy coal but he bought a pair of new tires instead so that he could enjoy his cycling. At the end of the third year he had regained sufficient strength to enable him to return to work. He then took up bicycle racing and met with some success but in 1908 he became ill with appendicitis and the doctor told him his riding days were over. He took to the bicycle again, however, and resumed his pastime as a bicycle racer.

Early in 1920 he started training as a candidate for the Olympic Games and in a final trial he created a new amateur road race record when he covered 100 miles in approximately five hours. At present he weighs 165 pounds and is in perfect health. He is now 43 years of age and is preparing to race this summer.

TELEPHONE SERVICE

The April issue of "Telephone Talk" after quoting from the Vancouver "World", of April 8th, 1896, a paragraph commenting upon the telephone line from Vancouver to Langley says:

"Those were the days when the province was in the making. The Canadian Pacific Railway had been completed throug to this coast less than ten years before, and in the middle nineties the geat mining boom was on in the Kootenay and Boundary districts, New Westminster, on the banks of the Fraser, had been a prosperous city for years, and Chilliwack was the centre of a rich agricultural area which has been greatly developed since.

"Extension of the telephone line to Langley was incidental to building the line through to Chilliwack, and on April 4th, 1896, Vancouver citizens had the opportunity of talking for the first time to that town. The line used was the telegraph line which had been built many years before with the object of establishing an all-land line from Paris to New York via Bering Straits, and which was discarded when the cable across the Atlantic Ocean was successfully laid.

"Naturally, Vancouver and New Westminster people were pleased with the accomplishment of the telephone company, and needless to say Chilliwack appreciated being put in direct connection with other cities in the province. Mr. B. W. Shiles, who was mayor of New Westminster, when talking over the wire expressed the hope that "this new bond would unite these communities in still closer ties of mutual friendship and profitable business," while Mr. J. Reece and Mr. George Marshall, for the reeve and council of Chilliwack, phoned back that they "reciprocated the message of gratification on the extension of the telephone service and trusted that the hope might be realized."

"Immediately after the line to Chilliwack was completed, Sumas Abbotsford, Aldergrove, Langley Prairie and Fort Langley were given telephone conection.

"It was in April 1908, that the Chilliwack Telephone Company first began to serve the valley with its own telephone system, with a capital investment of $20,000. In four months time the capital expenditure has amounted to $22,000, and by October of the same year the capital was incresed to $50,000. From then until now there has been a steady demand for service, until today the new directory, which has just been issued, shows over 800 subscribers, with a staff of six operators. To take care of the new switch-board installed this year, to accomplish the work of expansion demanded and to provide the necessary working capital, the company must now have $60,000. To permit the sale of this amount of stock the authorized capital has been increased to $200,000, which mount the people of Chilliwack are being asked to provide The directors of the Chilliwack Telephone Company are: President W. L. Macken; vice-president, T. H. Jackson; secretary, P. H. Wilson; directors, Dr. W. V. Davies, A. H. Gillanders, D. W. Johnston, Horatio Webb.

It is worthy to note that notwithstanding the loss caused by the ice storm of December 1917, the company has paid an average annual dividend of 6 3-4 per cent. since its organization and has provided over $50,000 in addition, to take care of depreciation and carry on expansion.

Lemon juice added to the hamburg steak will improve it.

READY TO HELP A MAN WITH HIS BUSINESS

With trade reviving, every reliance may be placed on the telephone, which is such a factor in industrial development. British Columbia is particularly fortunate in that telephone lines radiate from all the principal cities to all points, so that instant means of communication are always available.

The duplicate submarine between Point Grey and Nanaimo was laid this month, doubling facilities for telephoning between the mainland and Vancouver Island. New long distance lines have been built on Vancouver Island and throughout the lower Fraser Valley, both north and south of the river. Very few applications are unfilled, because of lack of facilities, so that the telephone, always taken for granted, will not fail you.

? WHY ? THE RED CROSS In times of Peace?

Despite the world-wide activities of the Red Cross since the close of the war, and the incalculable amount of good which it has accomplished in the intervening period, there are still many persons, uninformed, who somewhat wonderingly ask, "Why the Red Cross in times of peace?"

The mission of the Red Cross, as it is evidenced throughout the world today, is a twofold one: Post-war work and peacetime work. Briefly summarized, their activities, as applied to the British Columbia Division, are as follows:

Post War Work

1. To continue and complete war work amongst soldiers still in hospital.

2. To maintain the existing workshop for disabled soldiers, and to increase the number of these workshops.

Peace Time Work

1. To train and maintain Red Cross public health nurses for service in the rural districts, as well as in the sparsely-settled pioneer sections of British Columbia.

2. To provide emergency service and outfits throughout the Province for dispatch to and service at the scene of accident or disaster.

3. To relieve sickness among the needy everywhere and anywhere in British Columbia.

4. To promote Red Cross principles and practice amongst the youth of British Columbia—to enlist their sympathies and help, and to enroll them in the Junior Red Cross.

The Creed of an Employee.

There died in Chicago recently a man named George D. Schwartz, then sales agent for that district of the National Cash Register company. Some years ago he held a similar position in Philadelphia. While at Philadelphia he originated this creed which is as good for a grocery clerk, book keeper, or anyone else, as for a salesman or sales agent.

I must work to live. To work, I must get a job. I'll get the best job I can. Whatever job I get, I'll recognize my obligations to the job.

I'll use that job as a stepping stone to a better one. To do this, I must do what the job requires—and more. There is always competition in all jobs. The best man advances.

I'll give the job my best thought and efforts. I won't sneak. I won't trim an opinion. I won't cheat in my work or otherwise.

I'll be as fair as I know how—to the people I serve, to the people I work for, and to the people I work with.

With this creed, I feel the rest is in the hands of Providence.

A BOY'S CREED

The following is what is called "The Indian's Creed." It seems to hit off so accurately just what many Canadian boys are trying to live up to that we copy it for them. It is as follows:

1. He keeps himself in good condition.
2. He is temperate.
3. He helps his parents in their old age.
4. He never steals.
5. He believes in speaking the truth.
6. He believes in making everything in his life as beautiful as possible.
7. He believes in the simple life.
8. He believes it a crime to be afraid.
9. He meets death cheerfully, singing his death song.
10. He loves nature.

Although the old-time Indian was sometimes cruel to his enemies, he tried to live up to the standard set in his creed.

The ollichans are running in the Fraser river, the largest run, it is said, for five years.

Mr. Tremeer, father of New Westminster's May Queen was in town yeterday twih a mile that wouldn't come off.

Some people are so generous with their good advice that they never have any left for home consumption

WATCHING THE PARADE

Tommy fisher just rode by on a bay horse looking like a young lover He had everything on except bells The girls gave him a second look because he is worth it, and the men nudged each other.

"That's Tommy Fisher," they said "He made good on the Wet Gulch contract when Colly Martin failed."

"I'm the man who knows why Tommy made good, because Tommy told me one day He got his Big Idea in college, when he was house manager and collector for Mother Straus's boarding club. From the moment the doubting faculty put his diploma in his hand and told him to go forth and see how far he'd get Tommy played the idea across the boards.

"I always try to get hold of a job on which some one else has fallen down," says Tommy.

Think it over before you index Tommy under the title "nuts." That sort of a job is apt to be a better one than the applicant would otherwise have a chance at under the gray suit. His nerve in tackling tough jobs has given Tommy a halo in contracting circles. When he wins the good people say:

"There's the bully boy. He handled a job that Max Wisenstein tripped over. He'll go far, that Tommy Fisher will. Keep your eye on him."

Anyhow, Tommy says the job labelled "tough" is apt to be as easy as the next one. It was the man that was soft.

If we really want to lower the cost of things we all buy, we must all help to lower the cost of the things we make.

THE ELOPEMENT GRAND SUCCESS

The Olio Elopement given by the Orchestra on Wednesday evening was a grand success from a financial and fun making point of view, and the big audience sure did enjoy it through and through, the "local hits" were something to dream of and remember. One of the committee has promised this paper the "hits" for publication, and after perusing them and consulting our legal adviser, they may be published. not that there was anything wrong in them but they might look different in print than when said from the stage. There sure were some good side-splitters.

The best part of the evening however was the big fact that the receipts totalled around $120.

On Thursday evening "Olio" was presented in the Gym Hall, and the Sumas people were true to form and remained away from anything Canadian.

Figuring on 30c a day for carfares, the cost of a bicycle is saved in a year's use alone, not counting other advantages.

Services will be held in St. Mathew's Anglican Church at Abbotsford every Sunday night at 7.30. Rev. T. E. Rowe, vicar.

LIBERAL BANQUET IS TO-NGIHT

The big Liberal banquet is to be held this evening Mr. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture, Dr. McLean, Minister of Education and Hon. Mrs. Smith are to address the gathering.

LOGANBERRY WINE RECIPE

Pulp berries thoroughly, add three gallons of boiling water to one gallon of pulp, let stand three days then strain well; add three lbs. of yellow sugar; let stand until fermentation finishes in temperature of about 60 degrees. Run off into cask and bottle after fermentation ceases.

THE FOUR AGES

If we look back
Thru ages past
At this world long ago,
We'll see how mankind
Upward climbed
Wih painful step and slow.

When first the sun
Of progress dawned
Then 'twas the age of stone
And paleolithic artists
Drew strange beasts on Scraps of bone.

The stone age passed
The bronze age came
With warlike weapons new
And men were born
Who strove and fought
And one another slew.

The iron age comes
And in its train
Great wonders follow fast
But time rolls on
And like the rest
The age of iron is past.

Once more the glorious sun
My cup of woe is full
For this is not the Age of stone
THIS IS THE AGE OF BULL.
