NO TIME FOR CRITICISM AT SUCH A CRISIS

Ottawa, May 2.—Something of a sensation was caused in the House of Commons last evening by Dr. Michael Clark, Liberal M. P., for Red Deer, who during the debate on the war appropriation resolution, contended that criticism of the government should be suspended until the war is over.

The debate had developed into a dispute over the extent to which party politics entereed into the work of the government in connection with the war when Dr. Clark rose and asked "whether this discussion should ever have taken place." He thought some of the members were "losing a sense of proportion in the greatest crisis that this world has over passed through" He added that in passing this vote, he thought there should be "a note of clear support of the government from this side of the House" From his province, 2656 more men had enlisted than was necessary to make up their quota of the 500,000 Dr. Clark said he was reasonably proud of this. The people of Alberta were not so concerned as to where sugar was being got for the troops as about getting the troops.

Dr. Clark added that he had been impresseed by the Prime Minister's address. He was proud of being a citizen of Canada because of what the present government has done since the outbreak of the war. "He believed now as he did at the beginning of the war, that the government and the most of its supporters were doing their utmost to further the prosecution of the war. When the war was over, history would record that whatever petty political fortunes of the parties happened to be, the present head of the government, "has since the war cloud burst, kept an eye single to the winning of the war, and has not been turned aside by any improper purpose of small consideration."

Dr. Clark said he was also impressed with the loyalty and devotion of the headquarters staff. "The spirit that animated the government and thes tac was the spirit, that animated the great majority of the people of this country."

No one in Canada, he declared, had one meal less, or had had any fear as a result of the war. He was thankful to the men at the front who were protecting Canada for us. "I am thankful," he declared, "for the way they stood in the breach a year ago at St. Julien, and the way they are standing in the breach today, and are prepared to sspend their last drop of blood in our defence."

Dr. Clark declared that if the government had not made mistakes it would not be human. "You can't make omelettes," he added, "without breaking eggs." Of course there are mistakes. Of course there are critics. The critics are ready-made. As to myself, I have no time at such a crisis, for criticism.

"As a pivate individual and critizen who happens to be a member of parliament, I have no time for criticisms. I am behind the clear eyed purpose of the Premier of Canada and so are the people of Canada. The demand now is to stand under the flag we love and to stand behind a government which, history has recorded has done well. I am behind this government and I believe the people are behind this government until the war is won beyond all doubt."

They Get the Parcels All Right

The following has been handed in the following clipping taken from an English paper:

Ringmore. Rector—Rev. H. C. Hingeston-Randolph, M. A., S. Devonshire, England.

Our prisoners of war—A grateful post card has recently been received from Pte. Hunt and the following interesting letter from Private Ashford from the notirious prisoner's camp at Wittenberg, which will be of special interest to subscribers and which should appeal strongly to non-subscribers: "Dear Mrs. Randolph,—I am writing you this letter in answer to your most welcome letter, which I received quite safely, thanking you and the school children for their kindness in sonding me the cake which I enjoyed very much,and also thanking the parishioners for the great kindness they have shown me while I have been a prisoner of war. Thank you also for the socks and muffler, and the gloves and also the handkerchiefs. I have received several Christmas cards from different people in Ringmore. Please thank them very much for them. I would very much like to write to them, but I can write only one letter or post card a week, so if you will kindly thank them for me I shall be more tran pleasel. They are signed F. Bardens, Ivy Roper, Dora Triggs. I hope that the Lord will spare me to come home once more; when the time comes, I will come and thank you all. This is all I can say at present, I should like to tell you a lot, but I cannot. Hoping that you are all in good health as this leaves me at present, I remain, yours sincerely, S. Ashford.

A Long Job

Two workmen were discussing the war, obviously under the influence of a great deal of unofficial news.

"It'll be an awful long job, Sam" said one.

"It will an' all' replied the other "You see, these Germans is taking thousands and thousands of Rooshuns prisoners, and the Rooshuns is taking thousands and thousands of German prisoners. If it keeps on all the Rooshuns will be in Germany and then all the Germans will be in Russia. An then they'll start fresh all oer again, fightin' to get back to their 'omes."

If you can ride a bicycle and talk intelligently about a motor to drive it I can offer you a means of making money. Write Fred A. Caton, 611 View Street, Victoria, B. C.

Flour the cake after you have greased it, to keep the cake from sticking.

Nutmegs will grate more satisfacforily if started from the bottom end.

DIED ON THE BATTLEFIELD

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. Weir and his son Eric, in the death of his son and brother in battle near Ypres. The deceased Corporal Weir, was one of those noble sons of British Columbia who left with the express purpose of going into the fight in defence of the Empire to win. With such a purpose ahead of him it is no wonder he distinguished himself on the field of battle. Had he lived he would have been Lieut. Weir, all honors for the official position having been gained on the field of battle for distinguished service. This means much where so many are fighting nobly in defence of Britain's freedom.

The "Tea" at Mrs. Thomas' home on Wednesday was well attended and the handsome sum of seven dollars and a half were given in aid of the general missionary fund of the church.

The L. A. will meet next Wednesday in the manse.

The new shingle mill will soon be ready for operations and this will be a grand acquisition to the industries of the town.

The new creamery is now open to receive supplies of cream from the farmers. Patronize home industries and help the town to grow.

Mr. and Mrs. Laheny moved to the house occupied lately by Mr. Brown who has gone to Regina.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrss. Combs and family of Abbotsford desire to take this opportunity of thanking their many friends for their expressions of sympathy in their recent bereavement and also for the beautiful floral tributes.

D. COMBS.

Miss Trethewey who has been visiting Mrs. Keeves of Mission returned home today, Friday.

Among the Mission visitors were noticed Mrs. Bush and son, Miss M. Keeves, Mrs. Neil Fraser and a host of young people.

The mail contract for Route No. 1 is being advertised tenders to be in by July 1st.

Mt. LEHMAN NEWS

There was a large attendance at the funeral of the late Mr. E. W. King, who died at the home of Mr. MacCormack on 23rd ult. Rev. Mr. Reid conducted the service and referred to the loss to the community in the death of one of our oldest and most respected pioneers, who came to Mt. Lehman 32 years ago, and was chief magistrate for some time.

Much sympathy is felt around here for Mr. and Mrs. Coombs, whose son was killed 26th ult., while working at the Trethewey Saw Mills at Abbotsford.

Mr. Reid our much beloved pastor has gone with the best wishes of all aound here to Tongue Creek, High River, Alta.

The Easter Sunday services in the church here were of a very interesting and auspicious nature. Rev. Principal Mackay, D. D., from Vancouver preached a splendid sermon at 11 a. m., and Rev. Mr. Reid delivered his last message before leaving for his new charge. Rev. Mr. Phillips succeeds him.

At 7:30 Mr. Reid preached a very impessive sermon on the Ressurectpeal for greater devotion to the service of the Risen and Glorified Christ the Lord of Life and Prince of Peace The church was beautifully decorated with flowers.

Rev. Mr. Phillips from Arrowhead B. C., is to take up the work in the Presbyterian church here.

THE CROWNING OF THE QUEEN

Owing to the late hour at uhich the day's programme was started we are unable to give a full ccount of the progrmme this week but will be able to say how successful it was next issue.

Many people visited Abbotsford for the annual affair and it seems too bad the morning was so inclined to be showery, but the afternoon was not too bad to start with.

During the morning a baseball match was played between Matsqui and Abbotsford the former winning on a score of 18 to 10.

The game was a good one and Les DeLair umpired it which was a guarantee that it would be fair to all.

SURPRISE PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ryall gave a surprise party for their daughter, Myrtle last Tuesday evening. It was her birthday, The guests all gathered there before Myrtle was brought home by her chum who was on to the dodge;and then there certainly was a surprise. Cards and music were the principal amusements of the evening. The first prizes for whist were won by Miss Blanche DeGreek and Mr. J. Kennedy, while Miss Mable Nelson and Mr. Coin Fraser received the consolations. A dainty lunch and ice cream was served before the guests departed. Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Chitrick, Mr. and Mrs E. N. Ryall, Miss Annie and Mable Nelson, Miss Anna and Helen McCallum, Mrs. Jack Steffan, Miss Rosilda Zeigler, Miss Blanches DeGreek, Miss Grace Kennedy, Miss Grace Roberts and Messrs Eric Weir, J. Kennedy, R. Maines, Geo. Blair, A. Fuller Colin Fraser, W. Wallace, F. Mc Callum and O. Nelson.

FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1916

It is almost too early to say which side will come out with a clear record and untarnished reputation in the mix-up in regard to the investigations now going on in regard to the Vancouver and Victoria election vote "plugging". Of course the true Liberal will want his side to be the purity party and the Conservative will want to show up the party who has caused so much worry since the opening of the present session. But the honest voter of the province wonders to-day just where he is at.

It seems that our politics are not altogether as pure as they should be and there are wrongs on both sides that need fixing up. We heard a remark the other day which will bear repeating, "There was nothing like this when Dick was premier."

Elsewhere we publish an extract from the daily Province dated from Ottawa which is worthy the consideration of all true Canadians and applies to the politics of this province as much as it does to the politics of the federal government. Dr. Clark comes near the ideal in his remarks when he says: "As a private individual and citizen who happens to be a member of parliament, I have no time for criticisms. I am behind the clear-eyed purpose of the premier of Canada and so are the people of Canada. The demand now is to stand under the flag we love and to stand behind a government which, history has recorded, has done well. I am behind this government, and I believe the people are behind this government until the war is won beyond all doubt."

It would be just the same if a Liberal government was at the head of affairs, and we believe Laurier would have had that same "clear-eyed purpose" had he been premier. All this incessant criticism tends to call the attention of the people of Canada away from the one important matter now on hand—the war,be that eternal bickering criticism in the federal or provincial house.

After the war is won and we settle down to real business again all the wrong-doers in political life are sure to be weeded out, but in the meantime let us ask our politicians to act the part of true Canadians. There is enough to dishearten the people at the present time without having it brought home every daily paper we read, the fact, that our politicians and our politics are all wrong. As members of the British Empire we are a little ashamed of Ireland, but there are other ways of diverting that "clear-eyed purpose" not so far away.

That was a foxy one that the premier pulled off on Parker Williams when he called attention to Williams' remark about the need of counsel in the investigation. Socialists do not usually believe there is any use for lawyers.

We have just come across a clipping from a Vancouver contemporary, and we think it is from The World. It was printed sometime previously to January 25, and is a humorous comment on what was meant to be a humorous article in The Colonist. Referring to Mr. Brewster, it represents him as being hailed with the song: "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" Is this prophetic?—Colonist.

There have been many requests to the government for a loan since the Agricultural Credits Act has come into force Many of these applications have come from the Fraser Valley.

A writer in the Colonist asks if the taxes on farm improvements will be abolished. The same paper goes on to state that the Royal Commission on Taxation recommended this,and it was understood that Sir Richard McBride intended to adopt it, but he apparently deemed it inadvisable to do so, because of the drop in revenue that set in. The Colonist strongly favors the abolition of this tax, and, if the revenue derivede from it is essential to the Provincial Treasury, we suggest it should be raised by increasing the tax on unimproved ands. We hope that the Government will at an early date give this matter very serious consideration. Colonist.

It does seem a strange proceeding to lend the farmer money to improve his land and then tax him for his improvements; on the other hand it seems hardly fair to raise the tax on the land of a man who has not been fortunate enough, or does not want, to borrow from the governm ent. It is bad both ways. Better cut out the taxes until a way fair to both is devised.

A good deal has appeared in print about trapping submarines, but the Admiralty has not yet seen its way clear to gratify a not unnatural public curiosity as to the modus operandi, remarks an exchange. Vosiche Zeitung, of Berlin, being under no censorship in this regard, undertakes to tell how the thing is done, and at the same time to let its readers into the secret of the manner in which the cross-Channel passage is projected. We quote:

A net has been drawn from Dover to the French coast opposite, and another from Portland Bill, near Weymouth, to Cape La Hogue. Between these two nets there is a space of over 150 miles, sufficient for all transport service. But a net extends from the Mull of Cantyre in Scotland to Ireland, and another from Cansore Head in Ireland to St. David's Head in South Wales, in order to protect the Irish Sea. To allow the passage of trading vessels and the warships of the Allies these nets have been fitted with gates, which can be shut and opened like pontoons. These passages are known only to the British Admiralty, and are often changed. Since submarines can descend to 300 feet under water thes nets reach to sea bottom, as the Channel is never deeper than 265. The upper edge of the net is fastened to buoys, and both upper and ower edges are anchored so that the storms and ebb and flood tides cannot change the position of the net, or damage it in any way. The anchor chains are also shortened, sot hat the buoys are a few feet below the level of the water, consequently the submarines cannot see the nets, either above or below the water If one of them plunges into the net it becomes entangled and so damaged that it is an easy prey for the enemy.

A Dutchman arrived in New York one Decoration Day, and saw the parades, and the flags and the music, and the flowers being taken to the cemeteries. He asked what it was all about and was told they were decorating the graves of departed friends, and was asked if he would like to have a bouquet of flowers to take to any graves that he would like to decorate. He replied: "Well, no, most of those people whose graves I would like to decorate are still living."

She was a poor lone widow once more, for she had just buried a husband for the third time. Calling to condole with the bereaved parishioner the minister touched on the many gifts and graces of her dear departed, and said, by way of a parting word: "Be comforted, dear madam, in your great affliction. It is doubtless a heavy burden to bear, but it must be a source of great consolation to you that you do not sorrow as one who has no hope." "Deed it is, minister," said the bereaved lady, drying her eyes. "He was a guid man, was John; but I'm not that auld yet, an' as you say, I've aye the hopes o' getting anither ane."

Regulate the Women.

Writing in the Toronto Saturday Night, Henry A. Ashmead says:

"We all know the W. C. T. U. are after cigarettes and tobacco, but if these good women who would deprive a man of his glass of beer would combine with the men's committee they might do for young women what they are trying to do for the young men. Why not agitate for the suppression of such plays as "The Eternal Madeline" and a score of others which contain more deadly poison than ever was distilled in the form of alcohol? Then again, why not cut out matinees and picture shows during the duration of the war? What an enormous amount they could invest for creative comforts to those men they are so desirous of helping. If sacrifices are to be made let it not be one-sided. Most women lose nothing by prohibition; some men much. Eventually the time will come when all allusion to drink or liquor will be eliminated from our standard authors, but there is always a silver lining to every cloud, and if we have to part with the famous characters in Dickens of Mr. Pickwick, Mr. Wardell and Cheeryble Brothers we shall lose at the same time those of Rev. Mr. Stiggins and Mr. Macawber, whose methods are so much in vogue at the present day."

Fraser River Rising

The Fraser River is rising this week at the rate of about a foot a day. It is now about 5 feet above low water mark.

How Do You Read a Paper?

"Have you ever noticed," writes a reader, "how differtntly people scan their newsfapers?" One man as he points out, will pounce upon the front page, another upon sports; some go straight for the market columns, some to want ads, others to society, theatres and what not. For his own part, says the correspondent, he observes the following order: First, the weather and baseball, then real estate, next the editorial page and last of all the first page,, where he skips as far as possible such unromantic things as divorce, crime and colitics

This is an interesting bit of personal revelation. Indeed, one's temperament and oftentimes his business might be pretty accurately surmised from his particular method in reading a newspaper. It is a remarkable thing that a few people begin at the first page and go consecutively to the last. Just where they do begin, together with what they pass over or peruse is, after a fashion, an index of their tastes and habits of thought.

If the plan of the average reader could be ascertained a long step would have been taken toward determining that much mooted question. "What is news?" Certain it is that news to one person may be nonsense to another. Tris is an age of readers and especially newspaper readers. Wherever you turn, on the street corner, in the trolley car, in railway coaches or hotel lobbies, at breakfast, dinner and supper, from the oldest to the youngest members of the family, you will find the open newspaper. Yet among all these thousands scarcely a score are reading after precisely the same manner This, to be sure, applies in a sense to all reading. Some folks must have the quietude of a library before they settle down to a book. Gladstone was accustomced to absorb whole philosophies or epices in the bustle of a journey. Rousseau would take a volume to dinner with him and, as he put it, "devour alternately a morsel and a paragraph" But nowhere does the diversity of the reading mind crop out so whimsically as over the day's newspaper. —Ex.

Poor Pig!

An old farmer and his wife were standing before the pigsty looking at their only pig, when the old lady said:

"Say, John, it be our silver weddin' to-morrow. Shall we kill the pig?" John replied with a look of disgust: "What's the good of murdering the poor pig for what happened twenty-five years ago?"

When the fish come into the house a few hours before it is cooked, it should be cleaned, wiped dry and put into a closely covered vessel, not tin and put as near the ice as possible.

ABBOTSFORD'S HONOR ROLL

Abbotsford and District has done magnificently in sending her sons to fight for the freedom and rights of the British Empire and her Allies.

ROLL OF HONOR

Unveiled With the Names of More Than Seventy Names February 6th, 1916.

Rev. J. L. Campbell of the Presbyterian Church on Sunday February 6th unveiled a roll of honor in respect and memory to the volunteers and soldiers who have gone to the front from Abbotsford and district. The text from which he spoke was "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend," and as an illustration the famous painting "The Great Sacrifice" was used. The roll contains over seventy names, the first seven named having already given their lives for 'King and Country.'

The following are the names:

W. A. Ferguson, killed.

HUNTINGDON AND DISTRICT

Production and Thrift

CANADA'S CALL FOR SERVICE AT HOME

Produce More and Save More

The Empire needs food. If you are not in the fighting line you may be in the producing line. Labour is limited—all the more reason to do more than ever before. Grow food for the men who are fighting for you. The Allies need all the food that you can produce. Every little helps. You are responsible for your own work. If you cannot produce as much as you would like, produce all you can. Work with the right spirit. Put fighting energy into your effort and produce now when it counts. The more you produce the more you can save. Producing and saving are war-service.

Make Your Labour Efficient

In war-time do not waste time and energy on unimportant and unprofitable work. Economize labour. Put off unproductive work till after the war, and, if possible, help in producing something needed now. Let us not waste labour. Canada needs it all. If possible help to feed the Allies. Make your backyard a productive garden. Cultivate it with a will. Make your labour count for as much as possible.

Do Not Waste Materials

There should be no waste in war-time. Canada could pay the annual interest on her war expenditure out of what we waste on our farms, in our factories, in our homes. Every pound of food saved from waste is as good as a pound of increased production. The way for a nation to save is for every individual to save. France is strong to-day because of thrift in time of peace. The men and women of Great Britain are not only "doing" but are learning to "do without."

Spend Your Money Wisely

Practise economy in the home by eliminating luxuries. Wasting our dollars here weakens our strength at the Front. Your savings will help Canada to finance the war. Save your money for the next Dominion War issue. There can be no better investment.
