A Trip to Boundary Falls.

A VISIT TO THE SMELTER. PLENTY OF BUTTERCUPS.

On Sunday, the day being fine, the editor saddled his donkey, and, with a companion mounted behind and with lunch bucket and fishing rod in front, we started for Boundary Falls.

Arriving there safely we found that repairs are being made on the smelter, buildings and plant. The old sample mill has been torn down, and a new building is going up. When finished, a new No. 5 Gates crusher, together with other sampling machinery, will be installed. In the furnace building men were testing the water jacket, and the pipe connections are being made between the flume and the furnace. They are hustling the work and expect to blow in in a week if nothing prevents.

Leaving the Boston-Montreal Copper Co's works the party, going out on the mountain, found quantities of buttercups.

Last Sunday they came near having a serious accident at the Mother Lode. One of the deep holes had missed, and it was necessary to reload it. When fired again it went off with terrific force, threw a rock weighing about 500 pounds, through the roof of the dining hall, wrecked a bedroom, broke through the ceiling of the dining room, and smashed a table to kindling wood. Luckily no one was hurt.
