Progress

At the B. C. Copper Co's Smelter.

At the B. C. Copper Co's smelter erection is being rushed on the converter plant.

The small crane that runs between the girders on the large crane is in place, as is the cage which contains the electrical apparatus for operating the cranes both large and small, also the hoisting machinery.

Work is at present being rushed on the converters. Several parts of these are in position. The machinery for the clay and silica mill is being put up.

Much machinery has arrived for the new engine room. Two moters are in. These will run the blowers. The large engine that has been here some time is being polished and put together. Three new fly wheels are in for the

Rodrick Dhu

Has been Bonded by B. C. Copper Co.

The Rodrick Dhu, Long Lake Camp, has been bonded by the B. C. Copper Co. Four men have started work and will immediately begin taking out ore. This ore will be hauled by way of the old road to Burns' siding, thus avoiding the climb to the Jewel. The road, with the exception of the short grade from the lake to the forks, will be all down hill.

This ore, together with clay from the new bank below Boundary Fall, will be used for converter linings.

Ores proper for converter linings are difficult to obtain. The Granby, after trying local quartz, are now using Republic ore. The B. C. Copper Co will be lucky to find a quartz claim so near home.

At the Providence the lead at the 300 foot level is stronger and equally as rich as on the 200 foot level. They have concluded to sink another hundred feet.

Mark Kay is developing the Toronto, in Skylark Camp. It promises to make a rich mine.

On the Bruce the new shaft that was started some time ago is still being sunk.
