The New Briquetting Plant

Much Work Being Done on it at Present at the Local Smelter. Ready for the machinery.

Work on the briquetting plant at the B. C. Copper Co's smelter is progressing rapidly. The foundations for the machinery are in, and the work on the conveying belts, bins, etc., is being rushed.

The flue dust will be taken into a passage-way beside the flue and dumped into the boot of a bucket elevator which will carry it to the dust bin above. From this bin the dust will be fed into the briquetting machine. The finished briquetts will be discharged onto a long conveying belt. This belt runs slowly over the flue which has been uncovered so as to give off as much heat as possible to aid in drying the briquetts. When these briquetts reach the end of the belt they are dumped automatically into an ore buggy and are ready for the furnace.

Drying racks will be built along the side of this belt to receive briquetts that will not dry sufficiently in passing over the conveyer.

A lime bin will be built along side of the dust bin. From this lime can be mixed with dust or concentrates that do not bind properly without it. The lime bin will be connected with the railway by a runway.

The machinery is expected to arrive

CULTUS HEHE

An Irish laborer boarded a street-car, and handed the conductor a rather dilapidated-looking coin in payment of his fare. The conductor looked at it critically, and handed it back. "That's tin," he said. "Sure, I thought it was foive," answered the Irishman complacently, as he put the piece back in his pocket and produced another nickel.
