A Budget of Interesting News From Many Quarters.

(SPECIAL TO THE CLAIM.)

Olympia, Wash., Nov. 30.—The Haines Mission and Boundary Railroad Company, has been incorporated by Jack Dalton and others. The road will run along the Chilcat and Klheena rivers to Porcupine, thence to the Boundary at Pleasant Camp.

Bremerton, Wash., Nov. 30.—Last night wireless communication was established between here and Mare Island. This is of the utmost importance as it will obtain greater security in navigation.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 30.—The post office department has decided to pass up to congress Canada's abrogation of the second class treaty. The movement is due to the large circulation of American periodicals into Canada.

San Francisco, Nov. 30.—The U. S. district attorney has caused the arrest of Captain Klinenberg of the whaler Olga, now at Barrow Point, for the murder of Paul Jackson, the boat's engineer.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Despite the fact that threats were made on his life, Senator Tillman addressed a large meeting last night. He was surrounded by forty detectives. No disturbances were made although a great many negroes were present. Mayor Dunne refused to act as chairman because Tillman would not eliminate the 'race question.'

Los Angeles, Nov. 30.—The citizens are suffering from the cold on account of coal famine.

Seattle, Nov. 30.—Most of the people are without coal. Shortage caused by the recent floods. Water covered hundred of miles of land and ties up many railways.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Before leaving the Louisiana President Roosevelt addressed the sailors. He said he was proud of the navy, and stated that he would revoke the license of any house where sailors were refused admission on account of their uniforms. He will use his influence elsewhere.

Los Angeles, Nov. 30.—O'Brien and Burns are in readiness for the heavyweight championship. Jeffries referees. Burns ten pounds heavier. O'Brien favorite ten to seven. Odds offered that Burns will not last twenty rounds.

Later.—O'Brien fought Burns twenty terrific rounds to a draw, at the Pacific Athletic club. Jeffries decision disputed by many. They claim that Burns had the best of it. Burns was the aggressor throughout. O'Brien's marvellous foot work and ducking saved him time and again. Both contestants and the referee covered with blood when the fight was ended.

Brownsville, Tex., Nov. 30.—At the request of the citizens, General Nettleton completed an unbiased investigation of the Twenty-Fifth negro regiment here, re-sitting Roosevelt's order of dismissal. He endorsed the president's action.

Seattle, Nov. 30.—The coat of Mate Dennison, of the steamer Dix, floated to the surface over the spot where the Dix sunk. Grappling has been again resumed.

Denver, Nov. 30.—The federal court has refused to enjoin the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co., for using the alleged patent process of mixing pig iron, claimed by the Carnegie Steel company. The result of the decision lessened the price of steel ten per cent.

New York, Nov. 30.—At the trial of Frederick A. Burnham, of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance, for misappropriation of $40,000, the attorney for the defendant, charged in open court that the sum was part of a hundred thousand dollars demanded and paid by Burnham to the state superintendent of insurance, Louis F. Payne, for permission to write his own report to the company so he could do business in New York.

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 30.—Mayor Schmidt reached Truckee last night. In an interview he said he was entirely innocent and can easily prove so. He asks the public to suspend their judgment until he is heard.

In a speech at the Merchants Club, of Chicago, James J. Hill remarked: The time has come for a practical movement toward better trade relations with Canada. Our average tariff against the Dominion is 49.83 per cent, while Canada against the U. S. is 24.83. Absolute free trade or reciprocity is necessary to do away with irritation and reprisals.

"Revenge is sweet." A crowd of Michigan women took a woman from her home, tied her hands, covered her face with stove polish, poured molasses over her and then gave her a garment of feathers. They tied her to a tree and left her. Finally a man came along and released her. She had been naughty.

The work of the coroner's jury which sat at Whithorse in the case of the Columbian disaster has rendered a verdict that the accident was caused by the discharge of a gun in the hands of one of the crew, who was killed. The jury exonerates the surviving officers and crew from all blame for the accident. According to the deductions, the rifle was discharged while in the hands of Morgan, a deck hand. The bullet penetrated a package of powder on the forward deck, among other packages of the same material and caused the instant spreading of the fire which consumed the boat and caused so many deaths.

McKee Creek Development.

Mr. Fletcher T. Hamshaw informed us the other day that he would place and operate a Bucyrus steam shovel, 110 ton, on McKee creek the coming season. The shovel will be brought in on the opening of navigation. A small saw mill plant will be brought in over the ice. This will be used to get out all the timbers, posts and planking for about a mile and a quarter of flume, besides all the ties and lumber for trestles. Tracks will be laid to the dump and all the necessary preliminary work done so that when the shovel is erected all will be in readiness.

The modus operandi of working on McKee will be to hydraulic off the top dirt and follow up with the shovel. There is a splendid dump, plenty of water, and last season's work shows conclusively that there is plenty of the yellow stuff mixed with the gravel.

Mr. Hamshaw has just returned from an extensive tour of the States and practically all over Europe and Great Britain. The trip was very enjoyable and certainly Mr. Hamshaw does not look as if he suffered any hardship while away.

The town of Nooksack, in Washington, was wiped out by fire last week. Loss over $1,000,000.

Speaker Sutherland opened the House of Commons last week, he announced the resignation of the Hon. C. S. Hyman, as member for London. This is the third session of the tenth Canadian parliament.

A despatch received at Cherbourg reports that the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser der Grosse, has been in collision with the Royal Mail steamer Orinoco. Both vessels were badly damaged. Four of the Kaiser Wilhelm crew killed and twelve injured. Five of the Orinoco crew are missing, supposed to have been drowned. The Kaiser Wilhelm was going seventeen knots at the time. The Orinoco crashed into her starboard side cutting a hole twelve feet wide. Several passengers were killed.

According to a Manila despatch to the New York Herald, a Japanese captain of engineers, disguised as a native, was caught sketching the United States fortifications in the Philippines. It was at first thought that the officer was a citizen, sketching for his own amusement, and his pictures were merely confiscated. Later his official connection with the Japanese army was established beyond a doubt, and he was refused his liberty in the islands again. It is recalled that similar discoveries were made in Russia simultaneously with the arising in Japan.

F. E. Gigot returned to town on Tuesday night. He says dead falls are much more effective for the capture of moose than the figure four trap.

Discovery Doings.

We draw attention to the notice in another column of the Arctic Brotherhood smoking concert, to be held in Discovery next Tuesday evening. The A. O. U. W. will be the guests of the evening.

Charlie Hickman and 'Tex' Calvert are out trapping on the Dixie divide. They will probably remain out all winter.

'Chis' Nissen and Pete Peterson are out at Lincoln creek. They will put in the winter trapping.

We miss the jingle of the stage sleigh bells these days and the smiling face 'Jim' McKinnon. No doubt as soon as sleighing gets better and travel increases 'Jim' will have his prancing steeds out and take the helm.

A hunting fever has broken out in Discovery. Those who can beg borrow or, well—become possessed of a shooting iron are off to the tall timbers after moose. If every hunter gets what he expects it will put a crimp in the butcher business. However, we hope the boys will meet with a measure of success and bring home something.

Opening of Curling and Skating Rink at Discovery.

The skating rink, under the joint management of Messrs. Jamieson and Sweet, formally opened on Thursday afternoon. The ice is in excellent condition. A team of the Atlin curlers, J. A. Smith, R. D. Featherstonhaugh, C. R. Bourne and J. Cummings were up. The victory went to Discovery after a very close and a very exciting game. Score 12 to 10.

Considerable disappointment was caused by the poor turnout from Atlin, as it was expected that there would be a large contingent from that town, which was represented only by the curling team and a couple of enthusiastic supporters.

James Lipscombe, in an interview with a Vancouver reporter said: Atlin produced this season about $410,000. The individual miner is gradually drifting away and the companies are getting the ground.

Owing to the glaze-ice sidewalks and roads about town pedestrians are all adopting a fashionable shuffle. It is quite popular.

Messrs Cartmel, Hanna and Fink are very successful hunters. Frank Mobley got a letter telling him they had got five moose and had crippled another. Frank will send out a rig to get the meat.

The result of the fourth meeting of the Atlin whist club is: Table 1, Williams-Vickers gain 3 over Dowling-Pillman. Table 2, Faulkner-Smith gain 3 over Cameron-Rorke. Table 3, Bourne-Burnside tie Cummings-Sinclair. Table 4, Fraser-Wheeling gain 3 over Wallace-Cullin.

THE REASON WHY.

It was out of the question for Premier McBride to accept the offer made by the conference, or to entertain the subsequent suggestion made by Mr. Fielding. If he had done so he would have discredited the cause which he was elected to represent. The acceptance of the equivalent of $40,000 a year in perpetuity would have been the severest comment upon the bona fides of our claim. That chief justices and premiers should have journeyed to London and Ottawa, and kept up an agitation for many years to enforce a claim which could be settled for so paltry a sum is not to be believed for a moment. Such a gift would have savored of a 'pourboire' to a beggar, rather than the payment of a just claim to a creditor, and as Premier McBride aptly said on his return, he did not go to Ottawa to beg any favors, but to demand the just rights of the province. The sum of $40,000 a year would not have helped appreciably to lighten the burden of the province or to assist in its development. To have remained at the conference after the demands of the premier had been so flatly turned down would have compromised our representative, even though he had not voted. He would have been a party to the subsequent deliberations, and would have sacrificed something of his independence, and have weakened the unanswerable argument for substantial "better terms" that he had put forward. He therefore consulted not only his own self-respect, but the dignity and interest of British Columbia by withdrawing.—The Week.

"Canada for Canadians" is our motto. This interpreted means that all who come to Canada and prove themselves worthy will be made welcome. Welcome indeed to share with us the riches and blessings that are plentifully scattered over our broad domain. Some people have a mistaken notion of it. They think it is Canada for Canadians only, and believe, with assinine stupidity, that the Canadians should divide it up for themselves. To say that people may be found who think this way may sound ridiculous, yet it is true. If Canada counts on doubling her population in the next ten years it will not be from an increased birthrate. The increase must come from the outside, from other countries. Now, Canada is our country and our home, and, to use the words of a local gentleman, "we should have the same right to invite people to our country as we do to our homes. Those we do not wish we will not ask." The undesirable influx of Hindus has given the people of Vancouver much trouble, and it will not stop there. The Hindu, if he is allowed to come in unrestricted, will spread over and become a pest throughout the province. Of course they are British subjects, and as such entitled to free entry. But they are entirely unfitted for the conditions which prevail upon the coast. Their religious beliefs and peculiar class distinctions are altogether foreign and opposed to our ideas of life. They will not assimilate, and from what we have seen they cannot hold their own in the ranks of labor. It would not surprise us if the Hindu invasion had been planned in order to supply cheap labor in lieu of the Chinese.

His Letter.

Well, old fellow, I've gone and done it this time. What will you say when you hear that yours truly is to join the ranks of the Benedicts? Although I'm very happy and all that, it feels confoundedly queer to have someone look up to you with soulful eyes as if the sun and all the planets revolved around your humble self.

I'm engaged to Marguerite Lester, and Tom, don't think me an idiot if I say I hadn't the slightest idea of doing it two minutes before.

I suppose you are anxious to know how it all came about. Well, we went rowing, and that confounded moon will have to answer for it all. We had been having a nice talk, and I had said lots of the usual pretty things, and then mentioned I was going away the next day and get back to work. Then as she turned away, I looked into space, and fell to thinking of my new horse and wonder whether he would win the race after all. Then to break the silence I said some little thing to Marguerite, and as she turned, I saw her pretty eyes were full of tears—and before I knew it, I had the little girl in my arms and was telling her that I loved her.

Of course, I never meant to go so far, but what's a man to do with a pair of eyes looking trustingly into his. And when I tried to explain I hadn't the courage.

After all, it's time I was married. It will please my people. She's a fine girl, and I dare say we'll pull along all right. Anyway a man gets tired knocking about the world and then he thinks it's about time that he had a place to call his home.

Between you and me, love and that sort of thing is all nonsense and the poets were all a lot of precious idiots who raved about something that doesn't exist. Of course, I'm fond of the girl—she's sweet and true—and, hang it—she cares too much for a poor devil like me, but I'll try not to make her regret her bargain.

I have a favor to ask of you, old man. Come and see me throughon the fatal day. The thought of that confounded ceremony before a staring audience makes me feel shaky already and long for a B. and S. I wish it were over and done with. But what's the odds—if the little girl can stand it, I suppose I can.

Jack.

Captain James Alexander returned to town the beginning of this week from a prospecting and hunting trip combined. He secured a mountain goat. The captain's experience in guerilla tactics, learned during the South African campaign came in handy. He made a flank movement on his goatship and caught him in the rear. While stalking the game the captain had the misfortune to slip and fall down a declivity of about 150 feet, alighting on his head. Luckily he was not seriously hurt.

Tom Vaughan and Dick Duulap were seen Tuesday dragging on a sleigh what, at a casual glance, seemed to be the carcass of a moose. On closer investigation it proved to be a man. Said man had been taken out the day before by Mr. Vaughan to view the scenery about Fourth of July. Said man pegged out and Tom came back for reinforcements. In the meantime said man annexed himself to a bottle of 'first aid.' When Tom returned said man was helplessly drunk, hence the sleigh ride. Now, there will be no name mentioned, but it is very nearly time said man took a tumble and cut out the red eye for a while. The weather is getting colder and the government woodpile is quite a size.
