A. B. Installation.

The installation of officers at the A. B. meeting last Tuesday night at Discovery, passed off very pleasantly. There was quite a number of visitors present, and after the ceremony was over a social time was indulged in, all those present going heartily in for a good time. The dancers enjoyed themselves thoroughly, although there might have been more gentlemen present, so that ladies might not have to sit out any numbers. The music, by Mrs. Woods and Dr. Keller, was all that could be desired, one of the gentlemen remarking that "it made him dance whether he felt like it or not." The Atlin contingent got home about 4 a. m.

About the Beaver.

There is a law in force in British Columbia which prohibits the taking of beaver for the next four years. The idea being to stop the extermination of the animal.

Any laws made for the preservation of game should be upheld, provided of course, they are feasible, but when such is not the case amendments or cancellation should follow.

In the present instance we do not believe the law will be obeyed, nor do we think it in the power of the authorities to enforce it. We believe, and so do most people in the district, that the beaver will be taken just the same as of yore, but with this added, British Columbia traders will have no chance to get the fur for the next four years.

British Columbia is so vast a territory that the cost of keeping up a patrol of game wardens or police would be enormous, out of all proportion to the worth of the preserves. It would be necessary to send a warden with every trapper, because they, the trappers, Indian or white, will take beaver, every man Jack of them, if the opportunity presents. And then what happens? Not being able to dispose of the fur in British Columbia they will take them across to the Northwest or the Yukon, or into Alaska. This is what will surely follow. And, what is worse, taking their beaver they will also take the balance of their catches. That means that for the next four years there will be little or no fur handled in the Province.

We are in receipt of a letter from a merchant at Telegraph Creek, from which we quote: "For instance; all the beaver, and other fur, trapped at Teslin lake and vicinity, will be either traded to Juneau Indians or traders, or find their way to Whitehorse. Those taken on the Sticking will be trapped by people from Wrangel, that is, the beaver will be taken in British Columbia by Americans and sold to American dealers in Alaska.

"Two thirds of the catch from the Liard country is beaver and much of it comes across from the Northwest and the Yukon. As it is now we cannot trade for beaver nor have them in our possession, and instead of coming to Telegraph the Indians will go across to the trading post at the Pelly. An Indian with a bunch of marten and a few beaver would be afraid to take his skins to Atlin or here, consequently they go to Juneau or some place else.

"There are Indians about here who are too old to trap anything else but beaver. These men have their own preserves and look after them very carefully, better than any government could. The present regulation will about deprive them of their livelihood."

If British Columbia could persuade the Northwest, the Yukon and Alaska to frame similar laws it might then be possible to protect the beaver; but the condition of things as they are now makes that almost impossible. The beaver will be taken, smuggled out of the country and sold, the province nor the merchants receiving any benefits, and extermination going on all the time.

We have no doubt that when this matter is brought to the attention of the proper authorities remedial measures will be enacted.

My good friend, help the editor in his wild-eyed search for news; thus spoke the editor of an exchange, and all other editors agree with his sentiments. When your friends come to see you, if you are not ashamed of it, tell him; when you wife gives a tea party, if you have recovered from the effects of the gossip, drop in with the news; when a baby arrives fill your pockets with cigars and call; if you go to a party steal some of the good things and leave them and the item in our sanctum. If your wife beats you come and show us your scars—and receive our sympathy. If your mother-in-law has died, don't be bashful about it. Give us all the floating items that are whirling about in the current of events. In short, whatever makes you proud, sad, lonesome or glad, submit it to our twenty-four carat wisdom, and see our matted locks stand upon end with gratitude, which will pour from every pore like moisture from the dew-besprinkled earth.

Finegan, the foreman, was angry, very angry, because Malone had answered him back in a very disrespectful manner. "See here," said Finegan, "it's nothing I want from you but silence, and d—n a little of that."

He.—"And so you are going to throw me over."

She.—"No, just 'drop' you."

Sporting gentleman.—"Are you fond of horse-flesh, Madame?"

The 'aughty Madame.—"Never tasted it—sir."

Just in, new assortment of Glokar and Peterson pipes.—C. R. Bourne.

Woman.

Tradition says there was a scarcity of solid elements at the time of her creation.

At the beginning of time, Twashtri—the Vulcan of the Hindu mythology—created the world. But, when he wished to create a woman, he found he had employed all his material in the creation of man. There did not remain one solid element. Then Twashtri, perplexed, fell into a profound meditation. He roused himself as follows:

He took the roundness of the moon, the undulations of the serpent, the entwining of the climbing plants, the trembling of the grass, the slenderness of the rose vine and the velvet of the flower, the lightness of the leaf and the glance of the lawn, the gaiety of the sun's rays and the tears of the mist, the inconstancy of the wind and the timidity of the hare, the vanity of the peacock and the softness of the down on the throat of the swallow, the hardness of the diamond, the sweet flavor of honey and the cruelty of the tiger, the warmth of fire, the chill of snow, the chatter of the jay and the cooing of the turtle-dove. He united all there and formed a woman. Then he made a present of her to man.

Eight days later the man came to Twashtri, and said: "My Lord, the creature you gave me poisons my existence. She chatters without rest, she takes all my time, she laments for nothing at all, and is always ill."

And Twashtri received the woman again. But eight days later the man came again to the god, and said: "My lord, my life is very solitary since I returned this creature. I remember she glanced at me from the corner of her eye, and she played with me, clung to me."

And Twashtri returned the woman to him. Three days only did pass, and Twashtri saw the man coming to him again.

"My lord," said he. "I do not understand exactly how, but I am sure the woman causes me more annoyance than pleasure. I beg of you to relieve me of her."

But Twashtri cried, "go your way and do your best!"

And the man cried, "I cannot live with her!"

"Neither can you live without her," replied Twashtri.

And the man was sorrowful, murmuring, "Woe is me. I can neither live with her nor without her."

The chap who is always telling what a fine wife he has, usually has to smoke in the kitchen, and, on rainy days take off his boots at the side door and put on his slippers.

Getting Alarmed.

The directors of the Grand Trunk Pacific are waking up, not so much to a sense of the requirements of British Columbia as to a recognition of their own danger. The Week is in receipt of private information to the effect that arrangements have actually been concluded for beginning railway construction on the Pacific Coast, and that the immediate result of the visit of Mr. C. M. Hayes and his colleagues, is that this work will be commenced within a month. This is all very gratifying and will be accepted by the province at its face value, neither more nor less. Our memories are not short; they go back at least three years, and they recall the fact that in 1904, Mr. F. W. Morse declared he was ready to commence construction at once if the provincial government acceded to his demands. That he did not do so was clearly, by an exercise of what he obviously considered a "divine right." The present determination will not, in the public mind, by any possibility be disassociated from the imminence of a federal election and the certainty that an application will be made for an extension of time in which to complete the railway. By no possibility can the original charter be complied with within the set time, and it would be a little too raw a proposition, even for the G. T. P., to ask for an extension when they had not struck a blow in the province. In the Bill of Indictment which British Columbia has against the federal government not the least important item is their breach of faith in connection with this scheme. The attitude adopted by Premier McBride has commended itself to every Western man. There is little doubt that he will persist in it. The Canadian Northern are now fairly in the field which is an additional reason why no concession should be made to the G. T. P.—The Week, Victoria.

The Edmonton Trail.

The Edmonton trail from Fort St. John to No. 4 cabin on the old telegraph line, 80 miles north of Hazelton, has been completed by the N. W. M. P. after three seasons work, and is now one of the best pieces of work of its kind on the continent. The route chosen is one which can at very little cost be made into a good wagon road. The trail is eight feet wide for 408 miles, cut clean, rough graded, with innumerable small bridges. The work so far done on the trail from cabin No. 5 to Atlin and the Yukon, has been blazing the trail by the Mounted Police, and next year will see work actively prosecuted along this section.—Essington Sun.

Hotel Dewey, Skagway.—Rates to suit everybody. Electric lights, electric bells, steam heat. Free bus. Everything modern.

In last week's issue we stated that the Societe Miniere de la Colombie Britannique had closed down. This is a mistake. The company intend closing down about the 26th and may have one or more 'clean-ups' by that time. There was no mistake, however, about the season being a very satisfactory one.

There is much need for alarm. The coal supply of United States, according to close figuring, will last for some centuries. Has anyone worked out how much wood there is standing around and about Atlin, and how long it will last, if the population continues to increase at the rate it has the last two seasons.

Announcement is made of the approaching nuptials of Mr. H. E. Brown and Miss Alice Ruffner. The happy event takes place at Discovery, on Wednesday, October 16. There is a rumor to the effect that Cupid has transfixed the hearts of two other well known residents of the district, and another wedding will soon be berided. And that's not all. Of course, one can never tell, but from the looks of things in certain quarters, he's trying to make up his mind to propose. He wants to, and she, well, she wonders why the d—dickens he doesn't. And that's it, you know.

So much for patent medicines! A six-year-old boy died the other day in Seattle from eating a few of Stearn's headache wafers, which he unfortunately mistook for candies. He died with all the symptoms of poisoning.

One of 'Buster's' wise sayings: Resolved; that if you would know a man you must surprise him. Awaken him all of a sudden. That will prove his nerve. A good man has more nerve because he has nothing to fear. No enemies, no friends to fear. No creditors or constituents. A good man is a man who pays his bills, helps those he finds deserving of his aid, and smiles at everyone. His family rejoices when he arrives at home and mourns when he is gone. You can't surprise a good man, he's only startled. He believes in others and himself.
