Power-Boat Service to South Bentick Arm

The announcement has been made that several local business men have decided to put one or more large and commodious power boats on the run between Bella Coola and South Bentick Arm.

The promoters are confident that the local farmers will be glad to have access for their produce to the excellent market provided by the numerous logging camps, while it is not doubted that the employees of the camps will often avail themselves of the opportunity of visiting here.

Man Falls Off the Approach to Wharf

Charles Lord, an employee of the B. C. Packers Association at the Bella Coola Cannery, met with a serious accident on Saturday night last.

Whilst returning from a visit to town Mr. Lord had the misfortune to walk off the approach to the wharf, falling some ten feet, fortunately the tide was out and he alighted on a soft place. The handrails had been removed by parties engaged in public works, and although the night was dark no proper precautions had been taken to warn pedestrians. Mr. Lord sustained a very severe shaking and is still suffering from the effects of the shock.

Short Cut to Upper Chilcoten District

For the purpose of devising means by which persons will be able to reach the Upper Chilcoten country three days after leaving Vancouver, the provincial government, according to Mr. W. W. Foster, deputy minister of public works, will send a survey party over the road this summer. The surveyors will locate a trail or wagon road to connect Bute Inlet with the Chilcoten district, thus doing away with the fortnight's journey to that spot via the Upper Fraser and Clinton. The assertion which has been made by a number of propec- to the effect that the east slope of the Coast range is rich in minerals, has led to the government's action, says Mr. Foster.

To Survey Townsite at Kimsquit

Kimsquit, B. C., March 31. V. Schjelderup, B. C. L. S., and Fosberg Hamilton, civil engineer, are engaged in surveying out a townsite. The land was staked some two years ago by Mr. Hamilton, and in view of the fact that this port has been much spoken of as a possible railroad terminus, significant importance may be attached to the work of these two gentlemen.

Debating Society Closes Season

The Bella Coola Debating Society brought a most successful season to a close on Thursday evening last week, when a large gathering of members and friends congregated at the Mackenzie School bent on enjoying the excellent program arranged by an energetic committee.

In this they were in no wise disappointed, the numerous items vocal, instrumental and elocutionary meeting with unstinted applause.

The following ladies and gentlemen took part in the program: Mrs. H. Hewitt (contralto), Miss E. Grant (soprano), Messrs H. Hewitt (baritone), H. Sutherland (mandolin), F. K. Hicklenton (violin), Miss J. Blayney, Messrs C. Lord, B. M. Brynildsen, A. R. Leese, (elocutionists).

Much interest was shown in the short debate in which were engaged Messrs S. Le C. Grant and G. Lindsell representing the visitors with Messrs W. H. Gibson and H. L. Harris for the society.

The choice of a subject had by prearrangement been left with the visitors, who set the society's representatives a hard task in opposing the resolution "Resolved that Prevention is better than Cure."

Both sides buckled to their work in seeming grim earnest, and points were only brought forward to be immediately obliterated by the next speaker.

The final decision, resting with the audience, was arrived at by ballot, and caused much surprise when found to be in favor of the negative side by four votes.

An enjoyable evening was spent by the numerous guests of Mrs. J. Clayton on Tuesday evening last.

Dancing was kept up until after midnight, when a sumptuous supper was done full justice to. Among those present where:

Mesdames H. Hewitt and F. Cavanagh: Misses A. and E. Gibson, E. Carlisle, E. Roberts, D. Barker, A. E. Rankin: Messrs M. P. McDonald, R. A. Teebay, J. W. Macfarlane, L. I. Calnan, R. Leese, F. and C. Hendricks, T. Miller, Dr. Newcombe.

A large party of men left here on Tuesday last for South Bentick Arm, where they will be employed at the several logging camps operated by the Ocean Falls Company.

The arrangements for the 24th May celebration are already under way, and every effort will be made to make the occasion the greatest success yet attained.

The celebration this year will be held under the auspices of the Development League, and will be carried out on a far more extensive scale than in former years.

Subscription sheets will be in circulation very shortly, and it is earnestly hoped that all residents of the valley will contribute liberally, and by so doing add materially to the prospects of a huge success.

Ocean Falls

(FROM OUR RESIDENT CORRESPONDENT)

The steamer Mackinan direct from the port of San Francisco is now loading lumber at the Ocean Falls Company's wharf. The Mackinan is one of the well known Dollar Line boats registered at Portland, Maine, commanded by Captain J. McClement and will clear from this port direct to San Pedro, California, with two million feet of high grade lumber.

The Capilano brought in a cargo of mixed freight and gasoline on Tuesday last.

The Princess Beatrice arrived on Thursday in place of the Queen City and will remain on this run for the summer. Captain Shaw and purser Cornelius have been transferred to the Beatrice.

An altercation between a sailor and the chief steward on the steamer Mackinan, was settled before the local justices this week, ten dollars and costs.

The Ocean Falls Hotel is now crowded to its fullest capacity and manager Robinson and his staff are exceedingly busy.

Mrs. T. Hamilton, of New Westminster, is visiting her husband here this week.

Namu

A building which has been lately used as a mess-house for the Cannery employees, was completely destroyed by fire last week.

The Cannery has been refitted with a complete new line of machinery, and every preparation is being made for the handling of a huge pack.

The saw mill is running full blast, turning out immense quantities of box lumber, for which more orders are being received every day.

Several large fish scows are under construction, also several power launches which will be used collecting fish for the cannery during the coming season.

The construction of a new messhouse is proceeding apace. The building when completed will be large and commodious and will meet all requirements for some time to come.

The Disfranching Bill

The "Courier" has already pointed out that the settlers in the remote parts of the North would have no opportunity of of making application to have their names placed on the Voters' Lists.

It now appears very doubtful if the Government ever intended that these settlers should have the opportunity.

The following article which we take from the Victoria Times shows the preventive measures employed when an honest effort was being made to reach the electors of one of the many remote parts:

A prominent Liberal from Northern British Columbia has furnished the Times with the strongest possible evidence of the length the machine will go to disfranchise the electors. The gentleman referred to returned from the north, and learning that the old lists were cancelled, and that all qualified electors had to file their application with the collector of votes before April 7, at once realized that prompt measures must be taken if the people of the remote parts of the northern interior were to be registered. He went to the government printing office for forms and was told there were no forms available, but that he could get 500 the following Friday. He went again on Friday and the clerk in charge informed him that it was impossible to get any forms. The gentleman explained that the forms had to go north by the Princess May to Prince Rupert, that they had to be taken immediately by a special commissioner, and sent inland 400 miles from Prince Rupert and that there could be no further delay or the people in that district would be disfranchised. The clerk then went to the printing office and after some delay returned with 500 forms securely wrapped in strong paper and ready for forwarding by express or mail. These forms were sent north by express on the Princess May. They reached Prince Rupert in due course, the Commissioner was sent inland, and when he opened his bundle of forms be discovered that they were forms—for the registration of births and not for the registration of voters.

Exploded the Wrong Way

The cheers with which the Tories greeted Mr. Winston Churchill's Memorandum in which he obliged Mr. Borden by telling the Canadian Premier that Canada was not fit to either build, man or maintain battleships, have been succeeded by a feeling of dismay as they observe the wave of resentment which has spread throughout the country at this piece of ill-timed and rather contemptuous advice from the First Lord of the Admiralty. That which they hoped would prove a bomb has turned out a veritable boomerang. No stronger proof of the inevitable difficulties attendant upon the subservient policy of tribute as proposed by Mr. Borden could have been desired than the strong irritation aroused throughout Canana by Mr. Churchill's interference in Canadian domestic affairs—even though he did this to help on the Canadian Premier. It is simply a foretaste of the continual friction and annoyance that would certainly result if Canada were to follow the policy of building warships in England and leaving them to be manned and managed by England, and justifies the objection that instead of knitting the Empire, Mr. Borden's policy would lead to disruption.

Mr. Carvell lost no time in replying to the supposed bomb and exploded it pretty thoroughly. After the Tories had finished cheering from Mr. Churchill's statement that Canada could not get the plant or mechanical skill to build battleships and that Canadians would not join the navy, Mr. Carvell pointedly remarked, "I had no idea that Ministers of the Crown would applaud this statement that you could not get Canadians to join the navy. Apparently these gentlemen think you can not get Canadians to do anything but pay. I am ashamed that Canadians would applaud sentiments of that kind."

"I do not wonder that the Prime Minister did not want to read this document," he continued, "in his place I would not have wanted to insult the people of Canada by reading such a letter." And then as a man connected with steel plants and shipping, Mr. Carvell showed that Mr. Winston Churchill had shown hopeless ignorance of the capabilities of Canada. He further showed that Mr. Churchill was in all probability simply repeating back what had been told him—"Undoubtedly when the Prime Minister and his colleagues went to England last summer they told the British Government that we could not man Canadian vessels and should not under any condition whatever allow Canadians to be put on board a vessel or man-of-war. . . And then he sends back to the people of Canada the slander they left him."

Majority Rules Only When It Has People's Mandate

When Premier Borden asserts that a majority in Parliament must be empowered to put through legislation for which it has a mandate from the people, we agree with him.

But the contention of the Liberal party is that, on this important and vital question of direct cash contributions to the British Admiralty, the government of the day has not the mandate of the people.

At the last election the issue in all the provinces but one was reciprocity, a trade question. In only one province, Quebec, was the navy an issue at all, and Quebec spoke against either direct contribution or a Canadian establishment. Laurier lost 15 seats there because he proposed a naval expenditure. As the result of a situation that is probably unique in British history, the Borden party by methods that it is not necessary to go into here reaped the benefit of those 30 votes on a division.

To say, therefore, that the Borden government has a mandate on this policy of direct cash contribution to the British Admiralty is a gross perversion of the facts.

When the Borden government has such a mandate obtained at a general election there will be no opposition in Parliament and his bill will be put through with expedition.

SUPPORT THE LEAGUE

The Bella Coola Development League is now in working shape and is going about its business with a vim that cannot fail to bring success.

The object of the newly formed league is so strictly in accordance with that of the "Courier" that we welcome the move and wish it the success it justly deserves.

An organization of this kind conducting a campaign of systematic advertising of the natural resources of the district and its unexcelled attractions for sportsman and tourist, also the existing opportunities for various trades and industries, cannot but help to materially assist and hasten the development of the district, and this would certainly redound to the benefit of every resident of the district at large and more especially of Bella Coola Valley.

In every community there is to be found a class of people who while living in hopes of benefitting from the future development of the district in which they reside, are extremely loth to assist in the work necessary to bring about the desired result. They are satisfied to let the other fellow do the work, but nevertheless are as a rule loud in their criticism of that work which they refuse to share; yet are they perfectly willing to share in the the benefits that accrue.

Their one ambition seems to be "to get something for nothing," let us hope there are few such people in this beautiful valley.

The "Courier" cannot imagine the person in this valley having any interest at all in its future welfare, who will not take it as his plain duty, besides being to his own personal advantage, to assist the Development League to the extent of his power.

"The development of Bella Coola Valley along progressive lines," surely a worthy object.

The League requires more members. The larger membership, the greater influence will the League have.

More members means more funds, and funds are necessary in order to carry out the program which the executive have mapped out for the present year.

Join the League! Your very name on the membership roll adds influence, and if you join so will the next fellow.

Help the League and by so doing you will help yourself.
