V. V. & E. RAILWAY

Railway Gommittee Will Consider Matters on 24th

MR. BLAIR IS INTERVIEWED

Hill is Ready to Build the Road Without a Subsidy.

The visit of Hon. A. G. Blair Minister of Railways and Canals for this province has renewed interest in the fight to remove restrictions against the further construction of the V. V. & E. railway. It was at first thought that Mr. Blair would visit this section and personally inquire into the merits of the V. V. & E. contention but his trip is a hurried one and he has to be back in Ottawa by the fifth. Consequently he is unable to visit this section.

Grand Forks sent delegates to Revelstoke to meet the Minister and the Sun gives the following report of their mission:

With the idea of giving additional strength to the strong resolutions recently passed by mass meetings of Grand Forks and Columbia, urging the Dominion government to throw aside the injunctions restraining the V. V. & E. from continuing its line into Grand Forks, and which were forwarded to the railway committee at Ottawa, Mayor McCallum and Chas. Cumings were appointed a deputation and left last Friday for Revelstoke to meet Minister of Railways Blair on his way to Victoria, and lay the matter before him and if possible induce him to visit Grand Forks.

While the minister of railways is unable to visit us, it will be readily seen that the sending of the deputation was a wise move, as evidenced by the following special dispatch to THE EVENING SUN from Messrs. McCallum and Cumings:

"REVELSTOKE, B. C.
"October 6, 1902.

"EVENING SUN,
" Grand Forks, B. C.

" We met Hon. A. G. Blair, minister of railways, at Glacier today, and our interview was very satisfactory. He immediately wired the following to Collingwood Scrieber, deputy minister of railways, Ottawa: "Call a meeting of the railway committee for Friday, October 24th, at 3 o'clock p. m. Notify all parties in the matter regarding the V. V. & E. crossing.—Signed. A. G. Blair."

"CHAS. CUMINGS.
"NEIL MCCALLUM."

His Lordship Bishop A. Dontenwill is expected in the city early next week and will administer Confirmation and bless the new church bell at 10 a. m. Sunday, the 19th inst.

Rev. Father J. A. Bedard went over to Nelson yesterday, (Thursday) to visit his old friend Rev. Father J. Altoff, the newly appointed Pastor of the Catholic Church of that place.

I. Robert Jacobs has purchased a half interest in the Eholt meadows from M. D. Hall. The Eholt meadows which are situated about five miles above the city contains several hundred acres of first class land. The property was purchased by Mr. Hall about a year ago and since then then he has added many improvements. The land is very rich and will produce large quantities of farm products. I. Robert is an experienced agriculturalist. He was raised on a farm in Glengarry and spent the best years of his life following the plow.

Lead Cut on the Dayton Claim—Good Showing on the Night Hawk.

CAMP MCKINNEY, Oct. 8.—Hamilton and Younkin now have the lead on the Dayton claim, near Camp McKinney, cut in three different places along a distance of about 400 feet. On this claim which is situate on the divide between the main Rock creek and the south fork of that stream, free gold can be obtained by panning the oxidixed ore cut in each of the deep trenches or open cuts run across what is now regarded as the course of the vein. The Dayton was under bond to several Greenwood men some time since, but they did not proceed after a 45 foot shaft passed out of the mineralized rock in which it had been started Since then Hamilton and Younkin have done a lot of surface work, chiefly in cutting deep trenches, and now the showing is so promising that enquiries are being made with a view to getting an option on the claim, which certainly appears to be well worth spending a few thousand dollars on to prove whether the generally good gold values that assays return can be maintained when the ore shall be treated in bulk.

There are other likely looking mineral claims in the neighborhood of the Dayton that may be expected to attract attention before long. Among these are the Night Hawk, owned by Bush and Luce; Jim Crow, owned by C. E. Hamilton; Le Roi, owned by James Copeland; War Eagle, belonging to Wm. Younkin, and several others. Two open cuts show a big lead or dyke of mineralized rock on the Night Hawk from which assays ranging from $6 to $10 have been obtain d. The rock is mineralized throughout with white and yellow iron sulphides, and the copper stains showing suggest the presence of copper. A shaft sunk in this big body would better determine the character and value of the ore. There is copper in the Jim Crow ore, also a little silver and gold. The Le Roi and War Eagle have pyrrhotite with values in gold, silver and copper.

Looking For Coal

A. J. McMillan. managing-director of the Snowshoe Company and J. W Astley the superintendent visited the coal measures at Rock Creek this week accompanied by Robert Wood who owns the same. There are splendid indications of coal but little development has been done. Now that the Snowshoe Company intend erecting a smelter they are ready to acquire coal fields near the proposed smelter. Messrs. McMillan and Astley spent a day in looking over the ground.

A Bank Magnate

B. E. Walker general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce spent a day in Greenwood this week. Mr. Walker was making his first trip to the province since his bank aquired the Bank of B. C. He became acquainted, with his staff and looked into business conditions. He was much impressed by the industrial activity in the Boundary. He visited the Granby smelter and those at Greenwood and also the big mines.

A Pleasant Smoker.

Thursday evening the miners employed at the Mother Lode held an enjoyable smoker in the comfortable hall at the mine. Among those present were Frederic Keffer manager of the B. C. Copper Company and Geo. F Dougherty Secretary of the Union. The evening was spent very sociably and the smoker is likely to be the first of many that will be held during the winter.

The Riverside Livery Stable has been opened between Gold and Silver streets neat McNeill's feed store with A. G. Davies as manager. The stable has some good drivers and saddle horses.

A Boundary Falls Rancher Wants Damages

FROM MARK CHRISTENSEN

Jury Decides That He is not Entitled to Any.

A sitting of the County Court was held in Greenwood on Tuesday last, His Honor Judge Leamy presiding. Several cases were tried, the most important being one in which S. T. Smith was the plaintiff and Mark Christensen the defendant. Both are ranchers living near Boundary Falls. A. M. Whiteside appeared for the plaintiff while McLeod & Brown looked after Mr. Christensen's interests. The case was a jury one, with the following jury: I. Robert Jacobs (foreman), Thos. Walsh, J. L. Coles, P. W. George and Frank McLean.

From the evidence it appeared that one George Munroe held a pre-emption about one-half mile from Boundary Falls. Alongside S. T. Smith had a pre-emption. Smith applied for a water record on McCarren creek, the water to be used for irrigation. This application was opposed by Munroe. Finally an agreement was drawn up between Munroe and Smith, under which both got what was practically a joint record. Under this agreement Smith was to construct a flume across Munroe's pre-emption to his own place and from the flume Munroe was to have one hundred inches of water on every Monday, and one-half inch on other days. Munroe assigned his interest in the pre-emption and the agreement to Mark Christensen. Smith started to build the flume last May, and finished it in August. Christensen claimed that the flume was built so badly that it would not hold water; that water overflowed over his land, ruining his potato crop and also flooding his premises. To protect his crops and property he turned the water off. Smith then applied for and secured an interim injunction restraining Christenson from interfering with the flume and sued for damages amounting to $750. Christensen set up counter claim of damages and applied for such relief as the court might see fit to give against a badly constructed flume.

Several witnesses were called and the jury on Wednesday morning visited the farms and examined the flume. The case went to the jury in the afternoon. They returned a verdict dismissing the case.

MR. PELLY GOT NO FISH

Too Warm to Ship Black Bass From the East.

CANNERS ARE PROTESTING

Are Afraid the Bass Will Eat Trout and Salmon.

A. N. Pelly came home singing the old song of the Jolly Priest "For tomorrow will be Friday and we got no fish today." He went to Revelstoke to get a tank of Black Bass sent out by the dominion government to stock Long Lake. When Mr. Pelly reached there he received word that owing to the exceptionally warm weather in the east the fisheries department considered it unsafe to ship and promised to notify Mr. Pelly as soon as the weather would get cool enough to admit of safe shipment.

The Vancouver Province is the authority for the statement that the canners do not want Black Bass. It says:

Black bass should not be imported from the east and placed in waters accessible to deep sea salmon and trout, according to the opinion of prominent canners and others representing large invested capital of the salmon canning industry in British Columbia.

So strong are the convictions of the cannerymen upon the question that communications protesting against the stocking of British Columbia waters with black bass have been addressed to Hon. James Sutherland, Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the Dominton Cabinet.

A PICTURESQUE CAREER.

The death of R. E. L. Brown which took place at Phoenix, Arizona last week removed a picturesque figure from the Western mining world. The grim messenger came at the early age of 37 years, if life were to be measured by years; but "Barbarian" as he was familiarly called crowded a lot of life into every year of his existence. In South Africa matching his genius and his energy against the stubborn Boers, on the stock exchange, in the maelstrom of speculation, in the Boundary country investing in mining properties, in fact wherever he went he was the same Barbarian—brilliant, eccentric, picturesque. He made fortunes in a day and lost them the next. It was a man like Mr. Brown that might be expected to have a five million dollar claim against the Transvaal Government and it was only one of those vagaries of the Goddess of Chance that he should not live to see if John Bull would be more just than Oom Paul.

The Spokesman Review is the authority for the statement that R. E. L. Brown sold a two-thirds interest in his five million dollar claim to Lord Strathcona before the latter equipped the Strathcona's Horse. Lord Strathcona is an enthusiastic British subject but he is also a keen business man. Sentiment is sentiment but business is business. It would be characteristic of Barbarian to go to Lord Strathcona and point out that there was a big sum of money involved that he would have more influence with the Imperial Government than Brown could have and that there was enough in claim if paid to divide up. Of course if there is any truth in the statement, the sending of Strathcona's Horse to South Africa was a master stroke of business. What government would refuse the claim of a man who spent his own money in equipping a regiment to fight the battles of the Empire.

CHANGING THE VENUE.

Why should cases arising in the County of Yale be tried in the County of Kootenay? Not even a lawyer can answer the question, but nevertheless among the cases tried at the recent assizes at Nelson were two which originated at Eholt. Two men who were committed for theft appeared at the Nelson assizes for trial. We do not claim to be learned in law, nor have we an accurate knowledge of all its intricacies, but we think the ordinary layman is acquainted with the fact that a case arising in one county cannot be tried in another without a special application to the court. It sometimes happens that in the opinion of the prosecution or the defence a fair trial cannot be secured where the case originates. Under such circumstances if the judge is convinced that a fair trial cannot be secured he allows the case to be tried in another county. No such application was made in the Eholt case, nor was there any necessity for the change of venue. The only reason that can be offered is that the Nelson lawyers are hungrier than those in the Boundary, and claim everything in sight. It may be good business, but it is bad law and a dangerous precedent to establish.

A PECULIAR VOTE

Private advices from Fernie state that the men are dissatisfied with the vote recently taken there. It will be remembered that when the settlement was effected, it was arranged that the men should go back to work for sixty days and at the end of that time a vote was to be taken to see whether the men wanted the old system or not. The 60 days expired on October 4th and the vote was taken at the Company's office. The system for taking the vote was an extraordinary one. Two ballot boxes were placed in the office over one of which presided the general manager of the company and another official of the company was at the other. When the men came in to vote, they were told that all who were in favor of returning to the old system should deposit their ballots in one box and those against in the other. Naturally many of the men did not want to show the company how they would vote and 108 of the men refrained from voting. Notwithstanding the palpable open voting 129 voted against a return of the old system and 33 for it. The men are demanding a secret ballot and in all probability a second ballot will be taken.

Examination for Engineers

Under the Amendment to the Boiler Inspection Act passed during the recent sitting of the legislature, all who have charge of steam boilers in the province, must have certificates of competency from the Chief boiler Inspector John Peck. For the convenience of engineers examinations were held at different centres in the province. Mr. Peck and Geo. O. Madigan, inspector for this district began an examination in the city hall, Greenwood, on Saturday last. About fifty candidates took the examination which was both oral and written. The examination continued until Wednesday.

Death of Mrs. Punch.

The wife of James Punch of Phoenix died on Tuesday night after a long illness. The deceased was well known in the district and at New Westminster, where they formerly lived. She leaves a husband, one son and a number of daughters, the eldest of whom is the wife of P. J. Dermody, foreman at the Granby mines. The funeral took place from the family residence Wednesday morning, Rev. Father Hedard officiating. A very large number of people followed the remains to the Greenwood cemetery.

Greenwood, B. C., September 8th, 1902.

THE EDITOR'S EASY CHAIR.

Gus Wheatley came down from the West Fork last week He brought with him Mr. McKay and his family, who returned to their old home in North Dakota. It is now nearly three years ago since Mr. McKay called at the Times office and subscribed for the paper. In conversation with the writer he stated that he was going to Beaverton to start a general store, that he believed in the West Fork country, that it was rich in mineral resources and that the valley would soon have many prosperous farmers. He stated that he was sending for his family back to North Dakota, and that he intended to make his permanent home in this country. He was born in Eastern Canada, moved to the States, and felt pleased to get back under the Union Jack again.

Mr. McKay and family left for North Dakota last week. They spent three years in one of the richest and most promising districts in British Columbia, but were forced to leave their native land a second time and return to the American side.

The McKays are practically the last of those who went into the West Fork country three years ago. The men are still there, it is true, but the families have all left the district.

* * * * *

James Kerr and James Dale, two of the oldest and most respected pioneers of the Boundary, owned the Carmi mine, on the West Fork. After considerable development work the Carmi was shown to be a very valuable property, and E. H. Thurston paid $25,000 for the property. Messrs. Kerr and Dale did not bury the money. They had the Butcher Boy and other valuable properties up the West Fork, and they decided to invest the $25,000 in developing these properties. Mr. Dale sent to Iowa for his brothors, skilled lumbermen and sawmill men. They came and settled at Carmi with their families. A sawmill was erected, and for a time the little town flourished. Messrs. Kerr and Dale kept on devel oping the Butcher Boy, and got out a large quantity of high grade ore which they expected to ship to the Greenwood smelters. But the ore wasn't shipped, their capital was exhausted. the mine was closed down, the sawmill ceased to operate, and the majority of the Dales, men who would have made good citizens, returned to Iowa. Carmi is practically deserted. Buildings are vacant, and what looked like a flourishing town a year and a half ago is now silent.

* * * * *

The most successful and enterprising developers of a new district are Robert Wood and his associates. They built up Greenwood, and were ready to open up the West Fork country. On Wallace mountain are some of the most promising mining claims in the province. They were sufficiently rich to attract experienced men like Barbarian Brown. He and others expended large sums of money in developing the Washington, Idaho and other claims. Mr. Wood spent a large sum of money on the Sally, and has several hundred tons of high grade ore on the dump. With such properties working there was sure to be a busy town at the foot of the mountain. There was here a natural townsite. Land, high, dry and level, and watered by the beautiful West Fork and its tributary, Beaver creek. Rival townsite interests were consolidated, and all united in making Beaverdell what it ought to be—a thriving mining town. The bright outlook induced many to invest their money. John Hamill built a large hotel, and D. W. Smith leased it; Keith & Ketchum opened up a general store; a complete newspaper plant was sent in and the West Fork News started. A sawmill was built and ran for a short time.

None of the West Fork claims are being worked, the Sally ore remains on the dump, the Bounty ore, some of which is worth thousands of dollars per ton, is being taken away by sample seekers, the plant of the West Fork News is no longer in use, and the paper has prematurely entered the journalistic boneyard. Smith is still in the hotel, but customers come not, and Keith & Ketchum are anxiously awaiting the buyer of bacon and beans and other articles that are usually found in a general store.

* * * * *

This is no "pipe dream." It is a simple statement of facts. The West Fork country is afflicted with no sickness or plague. It is one of the most picturesque districts in the province, has a perfect climate, is rich in minerals, has splendid stretches of first class timber, and the valley could be converted into flourishing farms. It offers every attraction to capitalist, miner, lumberman, settler and sportsman. Under ordinary conditions it would hold its people and encourage more to follow. But the district to-day is deserted. There are men who gaze upon it from afar and wish that they could extract their all from it, but few who have the grit and courage to remain there.

What is the matter? The men who invested their money there, the men who settled there, did so believing that they could rely upon the assurances made by the government that a wagon road would be built. After waiting three weary years, after seeing money recklessly expended, after a long wait through the present summer, after learning that sufficient money was added to the East Yale appropriation to complete the West Fork road, but none of it was ever used for that purpose, after expending all their money, and after mortgaging a future which holds no hope, they simply abandoned everything and left the country, hurling anathemas against a dilatory Chief Commissioner and a weak and vacillating government.

We spend thousands of dollars in scouring the slums of Europe for people, hoping that time, assimilation and environment will make them tolerable citizens, but when the best class comes to a promising district, where nature has been most lavish with her gifts, our government cannot hold them there.

People ask what is the matter with B. C.? The answer must be in instalments. One of these is given above.

MR. W. H. NICHOLS

Refiner of Copper, Visits the Boundary.

MINES ARE A REVELATION

Says that Investors Want Low Grade Mines.

W. H. Nichols president of the Nichols Chemical Co., New York visited Phoenix and the Granby smelter last week. In an interview he said:

"My attention has been directed to British Columbia for a number of years past owing to the rapid increase of its mineral production. As the Nichols Chemical Co. practically refines the matte from every smelter in the province, and as I have heard so much respecting your vast ore bodies, I recently concluded that it was about time for me to come west in order to size up the situation for myself The trip has proved a perfect revelation. British Columbia is so new, that my first big surprise was in regard to the wonderful way the very latest mining inventions are being applied to local needs and conditions, and it is also remarkable that one should come so far west to see the art of smelting so far advanced. I have examined a good many smelters in the east and west at various periods, but have no hesitation in stating that the Granby smelter is is the most modern I ever saw. Perhaps I can convey my meaning better by using using another expression: I mean its up-to dateness. The Granby smelter is away ahead of most of the smelters I have as regards the prime attributes of economy and management. I did not visit the other Boundary reduction works, but understand they are also of the most modern character.

"I traversed a considerable portion of the three miles of underground workings in the Granby mines in Phoenix. While prepared for surprises, the magnitude of the ore bodies far surpassed my expectations. They are the largest ore bodies I ever inspected, and I have had occasion to visit a great many mines, including my own in Mexico. I shall leave to others the task of estimating the millions of tons of ore in in sight or blocked out. The surface ore quarrying operations and the acre tracts of ore underground are sights that are calculated to arouse enthusiasm even among the most conservative of mining men. The showing of the Granby group I understand is almost duplicated in other Boundary camps. I have gathered enough information on this trip to venture the prediction that this section is destined to be a very large copper producer in the near future. Of course the Boundary, even with its present annual output of from fifteen to twenty million pounds of copper, is only in its infancy. Nature has been lavish with her mineral wealth. The grade is low, and skilful attention alone can treat the ore profitably. The compensating factors are the size and uniformity of the ore bodies, their self-fluxing character, and last but not least the fact that no sorting is required.

"After all, investors nowadays prefer the low grade propositions because the element of permanence is assured, and large profits accrue from the vast output even though the net profit per ton may be small. Some of the Lake Superior copper mines are of very low grade, and, unlike the Boundary mines, have not got the gold and silver values to fall back upon. Of course, the method of treatment in vogue in Michigan is a good deal cheaper than in British Columbia. There the ore is free milling and the concentrates are smelted."
