Vol. 4. Barkerville, Williams Creek, B. C., Thursday, June 13, 1867. No. 12.

TELEGRAPHIC.

(From the B.C. Examiner.)

Copenhagen, May 26th.—The Danish government has informed the foreign powers that Prussia continues to disregard the Schleswig treaty of 1865.

The Paris press complains that Prussia has strengthened the fortifications of Rastadt.

London, May 26th.—It is thought that the Fenians will not be executed.

New York, May 26th.—Steamer advices from Europe, under date of May 14th, say the result of the London conference accords fully with the views of government, removes causes of imminent conflict, and gives fresh pledges of peace. The government has commuted capital sentences in the Fenian cases to imprisonment for life.

Turin, May 27th.—Kossuth has written a letter condemning the action of Deak, the leader of the liberal party in the Hungarian Diet, in his dealings with Austria, and blaming him for swerving from the path of Hungarian independence.

Omahae, May 27th.—Special dispatches say forty miles additional of the Union Pacific railroad was accepted yesterday, and the track is laid sixty miles beyond North Platte. The Indians are attacking the working parties.

Chicago, May 25th.—A special dispatch to the Journal says, cholera is rapidly advancing up the Mississippi. The cities along the river are preparing for the advent of the disease.

During twelve years the Panama railroad transported 396,032 passengers, and $501,218,248 in gold, nearly $147,500,000 in silver, over $500,000 in jewelry, $19,000,000 in paper, and 614,000 tons of mail matter, merchandize and coal.

San Francisco, May 30th.—Seventeen associations were last night assigned positions on the line of march.

Six bands of music were engaged for the forthcoming celebration of the friends of the eight hours' system.

New York, May 27th.—The State Department is in receipt of advices from Juarez. Queretaro was occupied May 15th. Mejia Lassulo and Miramon are prisoners.

Matamoras, May 23rd.—Escobeda forwards details of the surrender of Queretara, which was unconditional. Juarez ordered Maximillian and his Generals to be shot.

New York, May 28th.—A washington special says a semi-official report from General Serfiero Diaz to Senor Romero, the Mexican minister, dated Guadaloupe, Hidalgo, on the 22d, giving an account of the capture of Puebla, does not mention any slaughter of Imperial officers since the investing of Mexico. The Imperial Ministers were offered to be surrendered if personal guarantees for their safety were given. General O'Harron agreed to deliver up Marquez if his own life would be spared. Prince Salm Salm, who was on Maximillian's staff, through his wife the Princess, requested permission to go Queretaro, and promised to induce Maximilian to surrender by representing to him the terrible condition of affairs at the capital. Bazaine, before leaving, proposed to deliver up Maximilian, Miramon and Marquez, together with all the cities still held by the French, and also propose selling all the arms and amunition to the Liberals in plain terms. The proposals were rejected as dishonorable.

GERMAN GIRLS.

As little girls grow older, they have their coffee like their elders; and by degrees form a number of acquaintances of their own age, with whom they have daily meetings, so that society is a large ingredient of juvenile life. Then comes the time for going to school. With little knapsacks on their backs, containing books, slate, etc., whole gangs of little students are to be seen walking through the streets, always chattering, and generally with apples, bread or cakes to distribute or consume, making in this way friends or enemies. This continues until a girl is grown up. On holidays they meet together and play; there seems no idea that these little brothers and sisters should suffice for each other, with the occasional excitement of a "party." All the little sayings and jealousies, all the little spites and resentments, are thus kept up during a long course of years, and the daily gossip becomes almost a necessity of life. A child is seldom sent to another town to school the extra expense of board and lodging is a serious item, and the Germans are proverbially a frugal people. Thus, even in the holidays there is no change: the children do not as with us, "come home" from school, they are at home; they only have more time for the discussion of their little spites and jealousies, more coffee-drinking, more gossip, and more liberty.

As time goes on, and the little girl buds into early maidenhood, this passing to and fro through the public streets has serious disadvantages; she becomes self-conscious, has a bowing acquaintance with her friends' brothers, and a system of coquetry is carried on which has no good influence on her character. I say coquetry advisedly, for it is not the "flirtation" we see amongst young people in our own country, beginning openly in fun, and ending in amusement; nor is it that sort of schoolboy love, which is at times so self-enduring, that the 14-year old Etonian with the club foot ceases to be an object of ridicule, in his all-absorbing passion for Mary Chaworth. Boys and girls never play together in Germany as our boys and girls do; therefore the young fraulein of fourteen, who has a bowing acquaintance, and something perhaps more, with her friends' brothers, since they arrange to meet her on their way from college, or on her way to school, is conscious that these tactic arrangements are not allowed, are wrong, and are to be enjoyed after the surreptitious manner of stolen fruit. She has had hitherto coffee and gossip, but now a fresh stimulant comes into her life; she ceases to be natural; she has the consciousness of something to conceal, and her eyes become less candid, and her gaze is not so fearless as it was.—Cornhill Magazine.

THE UNIVERSAL PRACTICE of mixing Chicory and other adulteratives with Coffee, has very much damaged in public estimation, what ought to be the most delicious of Beverages. So effectually have the public been drugged with such mixtures that the true properties have been lost sight of, and many prefer a black and thick infusion to a drink rich in spirit and aroma. General as is the use of Coffee, it is little known that in condensing the vapors extracted from the berry in roasting, a liquor is obtained of the most nauseous taste, and of a scent the most unbearable. Under such circumstances it is evidently important that all the gases and fluids extracted by roasting should be carried off as quickly as possible, in order to prevent their returning again to the Coffee, which is the case in the confined cylinder. This object is admirably accomplished by the new and patent "Conical Coffee Roaster" as used by FELL & CO., Victoria, in which the berry is directly exposed to the radiated heat, and the vapor extracted carried off instantaneously. In addition to the advantage to be derived by the rapid removal of the steam containing the objectionable properties, the pure aroma of the Coffee is retained, the essential oil being preserved and not exhausted as in the Cylinder Roaster, where the Coffee is required to remain a much longer time in consequence of the steaming it undergoes by the confined steam. It is chemically impossible to retain the qualities or arrest the deterioration of Coffee when ground. The heat engendered by the process of roasting, and especially of grinding, creates an action in the elementary parts which gradually destroys its fitness for drink. But to retain the essential oil which it contains we have it encased in tins containing from 1 lb. to 28 lbs., and which can be had from any of the respectable dealers. We can confidently recommend those who have hitherto been obliged to refrain from taking Coffee on account of its ill effects that they may use our Coffee, roasted in the Conical Roaster, being recommended by all medical men under whose notice it has been brought, and by numerous other testimonials in its favor.

THE RIVAL INSTITUTIONS.

We are not prepared to assert that the most creditable mode of raising one's position in the eyes of the world, is to do it at the expense of a neighbor's reputation; but when that neighbor mixes himself up obtrusively in our affairs to the extent of undermining the fidelity of our adherents, we are perfectly justified in administering a 'quid pro quo,' in order that the public may be perfectly posted on our relative merits. The San Francisco Bulletin echoing the wild fantasies of the Victoria Morning News, publishes an article in the issue of May 11th last past, drawing a horrible picture of the state of destitution in which we British Columbians are placed, in consequence of the terrible mis-government to which these colinies are subject, and showing the vast advantage that would accrue to us if we enrolled ourselves under the paternal government of Uncle Sam by annexation. The Bulletin says of British Columbians that they are "too poor to pay a schoolmaster or carry on any public work, though the estimated expenditure of the government for the year is $700,000, they compare their hard fortune with the prosperous and happy condition of the thriving settlements on the opposite shore." We need hardly say this is drawn from the baseless assertions of the Morning News, which has been making itself notorious by preaching annexation doctrines, which doctrines are wholly confined to the editor of that sheet and his few immediate friends. The value of his opinions may be readily understood, when we state that to make out a case he is compelled to have recourse to the articles published in Harper's weekly, a New York paper, and that one of the proprietors is just now in San Francisco, it has been stated, for the purpose of seeking assistance in that quarter to carry on the dissemination of annexation. In refutation of the statements touching the estimated expenditure, we may state that the estimates include a provision for an educational establishment, and that a large portion of the sum is provided to meet payments on account of loans negociated for the purpose of making the splendid roads which now enable us to lay down provisions at our mines at the very reasonable prices at present ruling. Let us now look at the happy and prosperous condition of our neighbors that offer us such great advantages to change our allegiance. We all know the extraordinary efforts made by the United States Government to raise up a rival town in order to extinguish Victoria, and to what extent they have succeeded. Will any one point out to us where the happy prosperity exists about Whatcome, Port Angelos, Port Townsend, Olympia or any other place on the opposite shore? We have always felt a sincere regret, that despite all the money that has been spent at these places, none of them have ever presented any appearance of the prosperity visible in Victoria, even at its gloomiest moments of depression! But lest our readers should think that we are prejudiced, we will take a glance at the happiness and prosperity enjoyed at New York, as described by a correspondent of the Bulletin, in the same issue from which we have heretofore quoted. "Argus" states "that no property "in New York is safe from the organized "bands of thieves existing there, that the unfortunate victims who are being plundered "in the most open manner, find their only "safeguard from absolute ruin is to treat with "the thieves themselves, as the judiciary is in "league with the robbers, and to appeal to a "justice would not only entail the entire loss "of property, but subject themselves to serious personal violence and most probably "murder!" This is certainly a most happy state of things, and quite likely to induce us poor British Columbians to forsake the flag under which our lives and property are safe, to place ourselves at the tender mercy of thieves and a corrupt judiciary. The same correspondent, in another letter, in the same paper, says of the happy government of New York: "The officials have made out their "estimates, and demand the modest sum of "eighteen millions for the government of this "small island, for the ensuing fiscal year, "while the Torture Chamber at Albany is "putting on the screws of public taxation at "a fearful even a crushing rate, and at the "same time breeding and pampering a swarm "of private leeches in the shape of monopo"lies and franchises that threaten to exhaust "the little strength left to the patient by the "tax gatherer." This is a charming state of things, and must be a most attractive picture for us poor British Columbians. We presume the prosperity adverted to by the editor of the Bulletin, was the following: "Argus," speaking of the lobbyists who get up the jobs, says "They have had a harvest this winter, and "will be able to spend the gay season at "Saratoga and the other fashionable water"ing places in splendid style this summer. "The Controller estimates that all this pro"fligate legislation will draw fifteen millions "from the productive interests of the State, "and necessitate a rate of taxation double the "amount levied during any year of the rebel"lion." This kind of prosperity is all very well for the "boys," but in the position of "frogs," we must deny ourselves the enjoyment. "Argus" continues: "In addition to "this, he shows that the people of the State of "New York will have to pay in 1867 thirty "five millions for the taxes imposed by the "Federal government, making a total of over "a hundred millions, and he puts it very "mildly in conclusion by expressing a doubt "whether any community of less than four "millions of inhabitants can long sustain an "annual burden of a hundred million of dol"lars. It is calculated that the taxpayers of "the State constitute about one-tenth of the "whole population, which would give a tax"paying population of 400,000; the rate of "taxation therefore for the year 1867 will be $250 per head." What a delicious state of affairs to invite us mis-governed British Columbians to join them in; we fear the clever articles of the Bulletin which, by the way, carry their own antidotes, will be all in vain. They'll not beguile us from our home. Californians may pretend to an exemption from the "happy" state of prosperity described by "Argus," but the less said the soonest mended. We have only shown that our neighbors live in glass houses and should not throw stones. We are not holding up our government as immaculate, nor do we enveigh against a republican form of government; we are at heart republicans but we object to be plundered under a government assuming that name. If annexationists have nothing better to offer in support of their doctrines they had better hold their tongues. British Columbians may grumble, but in grumbling they are only exercising the natural attribute of Englishmen, and are entitled to grumble to their hearts content; and no matter how prosperous they may be they will still grumble, and we shall esteem it a most unhealthy symptom when they cease to grumble. Annexationists don't be deceived.

THE Ferry at Quesnelmouth has been let by Government to Mr. Elmore for two years at an annual rental of $1500.

☞ The great demand for Fell's Coffee in the mining districts, has brought into existence many spurious imitations, but the intelligence of the mining population is Fell & Co.'s guarantee.

Deas, of Yale, is packing fresh Sumass butter in 6lb. tins, for the Cariboo market.—Mrs. Seymour gave a grand ball at Government House, on 27th ult.—Captain Spalding left for Nanaimo to fill the post of Magistrate, vice Capt. Franklyn, who has obtained six months' leave of absence.—A man was found drowned in a sluice box at Lytton.—Three Chinamen were killed at Boston Bar by the falling of a tree.—A man, supposed to be insane, threw himself into the Fraser, near the five-mile post, above Yale, and was drowned.—The Amateur Dramatic Club gave their closing entertainment on 24th ult.—One hundred and fifty Nanaimo excursionists participated in the celebration of the 24th, which was a great success.

BED ROCK DRAIN.—We are glad to learn that an understanding has been come to between the two companies owning the Bed Rock Drain, relative to the removal of the obstructions caused by the late freshet. Messrs. Anderson & MacLaren, who own the lower portion, have commenced operations and will be assisted by the Miners' Drain Co. This is as it should be. Let all hands go to work and the damage will soon be repaired, and claims that are now idle will be enabled to resume work again in the course of 8 or 10 days. We believe the Cameron claim has commenced washing.

FLOUR MILL.—Mr. J. R. Adams' flour mill at Soda Creek has been stopped for the season, having ground all the grain in the market. From the time it was started till the present 130,000 lbs. of wheat have been manufactured into flour, most of which has been sent to this market where it is well spoken of by bakers.

THE VICTORIA CROSS.—The Government Gazette contains a warrant issued by the Queen by which the decoration of the Victoria Cross may be conferred on persons serving as volunteers in any of the colonies, who may have performed deeds of gallantry in the service of their country.

NEW BREWERY.—Mr. Kerr has completed his new brewery in this town and has commenced brewing a first rate quality of ale. He has now on hand upwards of 200 gallons which he is prepared to dispense to customers about the 1st July, when he intends to open business.

IT is reported that specimens of Cherry Creek silver ore have been assayed at New Westminster, and were found to yield at the rate of $4,000 to the ton. It is also stated that in a single blast a piece of pure silver weighing 46 pounds was extracted!

THE Perseverance Coal Co. have on their claim at Comax a vein of magnetic ironstone fifty feet in thickness in close proximity to fire clay, limestone, and a splendid seam of coal.

IDAHO CITY DESTROYED BY FIRE.—A telegram has been received in Portland announcing the total destruction of Idaho City by fire on the 18th ult. The particulars are not given.

A few copies of the new Mining Ordinance were received by the Gold Commissioner by last Express, and may be seen at the Court House. We are indebted to Mr. Cochrane for a copy.

BIG PAY AT BIG BEND.—It is reported that two men in one day washed out 170 ounces from a claim located on a bench on French Creek.

HONS. F. J. Barnard and G. A. Walkem arrived on Monday last.

GOLD COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

(Before H. M. Ball, Esq.)

Tuesday, 11th June, 1867.

Hippel co., Grouse creek, v. the Caroline co.—Action to compel defendants to show cause why they should not flume a portion of their ditch, so as to prevent the same from breaking and injuring plaintiffs' work, and why they should not be restrained from depositing tailings on plaintiffs' ground; and also why they should not pay plaintiffs $300 damages, sustained in consequence of defendants depositing tailings on plaintiffs ground, and preventing them from working it. Judgment for plaintiffs, $150 damages. Lower 100 feet to belong to Hippel co., and each party to pay their own costs. Ditch to be flumed, and tailings to be passed over the Hippel ground.

VICTORIA LETTER, No. 3.

Victoria, V. I., May 28th, 1867.

The mail having come in soon after the despatch of my last, I commence with a few extracts. The first is from the Evening Mail, being a comment on Mr. Mill's and others' ideas on manhood suffrage, and was suggested by an address of Mr. Mill to a reform meeting at York.

FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

John Stuart Mill will appear as the representative of half the human race, the better half embracing womankind, or every adult woman in the country. In addressing the reformers at York, he reminded them that their views on reform must carry them a little further. The principles of the franchise cannot stop at residential manhood suffrage, but require that it should be extended to women also. He argues this with the pointed and peremptory zeal of thorough conviction. He hopes the working men will carry out their principles, when argued in favor of others than themselves. They have no ground for refusing to women the esteemed right they claim for themselves; and allow them to remain at the mercy of laws made by man. This is the conclusion to which Mr. Mill brings us. It is not unlikely we should soon have to make the serious admission that women do indeed suffer by the passive part they are forced to play in the economy of legislation. Mr. Mill in arguing the case as a philosopher working out a theory, takes ground above, below and all round. Philosophy takes you into space, and leaves you there. Practice, on the contrary, subjects you to the test of facts. The question goes very deep. It is no less than the whole moral and social difference between the sexes. Mr. Mill will soon find his hands full. Female writers can hold their own. Female doctors are coming in. The lawyers have their usual luck in keeping women outside the bar. But if women may have votes, why may they not be returned to Parliament, and have their congenial representatives? Why not a female Cabinet? We have already peeresses in their own right. Why should they not take their seats in Parliament, opened as it is by the most exalted of their sex? But if so, it would only be proper to raise a few ladies, eminent for their religion, to the Episcopal bench, on which there need not be any differences of costume. There are already numbers of ladies of all ages, only too ready to undertake any office or work to which Mr. Mills might think them fairly entitled. Placed in position, they would be conservative, no doubt, but Mr. Mill is not the man to shrink from a logical conclusion, if it landed him in a despotism administered by a Mary or an Elizabeth. But is it not a real and lamentable fact, that men monopolize, with their habitual greed, the lion's share of all emoluments? Women's wrongs are great, and our laws on the very face of them bear the stamp of man-made laws. But nevertheless, though we differ most thoroughly and honestly from the member for Westminster, we can only say that women should be more cared for, not advised to care for themselves. A lunatic may be very ill used, but should not have a sword placed in his hands. We submit that we should be doing women more harm than good by giving them political power, in addition to the other powers so often found to exceed their capacity, and be a burden above their strength. In writing on this subject, Mark Twain says, "Think of the curious devices on the banners: Robbins for ever! Vote for Sally Robbins, the only virtuous candidate in the field! Chastity, modesty and progress! Let the people stand by Maria Sanders, the champion of morality and progress! Vote for Judy McInnes, the incorruptable! nine children, and one at the breast! Then women shall talk politics, instead of discussing the fashions; they shall discard the duties of the household, to go out and take a drink with candidates. Then shall the man who has beautiful whiskers beat the homely man of wisdom for Governor; and the youth who waltzes with exquisite grace, shall be Chief of Police, in lieu of the man of practical sagacity and determined energy."

GOVERNOR EYRE'S INDICTMENT.

In consequence of Governor Eyre declining to come forward and share the responsibility of the charge upon which Colonel Brigadier Nelson and Lieut. Brand, were committed by Sir Thomas Henry, to take their trial at the next Old Bailey session, an application will be made for a warrant for his arrest, at the next petty sessions, to be held at Market Drayton, near Mr. Eyre's residence.

IRELAND.

Sir Rowland Blennerhassit and the Knight of Kerry, asked the grand jury to forward a resolution thanking the government for the prompt and energetic manner they had acted with regard to Fenianism. "What would you think of the man or men," said Sir Rowland, "who should increase your taxes one million? Well, the Fenians have done this and more, and they should be discountenanced by every one." Mr. Colson, in speaking of the paralysis consequent on the disturbances, mentioned one house alone as having withheld orders in Ireland to the amount of £20,000.

OUR POLITICS.

But all this time I shall appear to have forgotten Victoria. We have here strange exponents of public opinion. We certainly require pity, if the two daily sheets published here correctly expressed our political feelings. While one of them is so far gone as to be safely declared rabid on the annexation question, the other thinks to be patriotic by means of leaders, and other articles of the following type. On the American purchase of Russian Territory, the Colonist of May 16th has "Our readers will call to mind the emphasis with which Mr. Seward declared that the inevitable fate of the whole North American continent was to be absorbed by the United States. This is the 'Monroe doctrine,' in which Mr. Seward is a firm believer. In fact the idea the Herald calls Mr. Seward's 'weakness,' has formed the bulwark of his strength in the political battles of bygone days. The New York Times concludes that the Russian purchase is a means to the end of settling the Pacific coast, and absorbing British possessions by the Great Republic. The New York Tribune alone treats the purchase with disfavor, and denounces the scheme as stupendous folly. But the Tribune is too radical in his politics to look with satisfaction on the adoption of any scheme likely to redound to the popularity of the administration, (I presume the editor of the Colonist is not too radical). The denunciations of the Tribune had but little weight with the senators. The purchase was regarded here (Vancouver) as the master-stroke of Mr. Seward. By it the U. S. virtually secures control of the Pacific coast, etc." I quite agree with the concluding portion of the said leader, in which the culpable ignorance and negligence of British statesmen with regard to this continent, as a general rule, has been placed in its proper light. But commend me to the portions I have quoted as an apt illustration of the saying "save me from my friends." If this is not playing into the hands of the enemy with a vengeance, I know nothing about it. Talk about the Morning News receiving pay for writing annexation articles, it would look as though the above was written under strong golden persuasion not to do the same; and the writer had gone as far as he dared. It looks as if the mind of the writer had been. "What! pay or persuade me to write up annexation, or the advantages of American rule! Very well, but how can I refrain, though against my own country, from expatiating on the splendid purchase. How wise the action; how happy the country having rulers who can so advance its interests; how absurd of Great Britain to hold out! See how imbecile are its rulers, how ignorant of geography; what they will not give up, they are bounced out of; what they intend to keep, is taken from them by finesse. Who would belong to such a country? Oh that my steps could tend where my feelings long have been, under the folds of that beneficent flag which all but controls this Pacific coast! A flag floating over a country one of the most densely peopled of civilized countries, but where taxation is unknown, political power is possessed by all, and abused by none! Where I should be on the high road to prosperity, and in the enjoyment undisturbed of those feelings of love, of home and country, now alas! present with me, but in which I dare not now indulge openly." This is really all to be found in the above leader, and a half dozen others which I will not endeavour to quote. Some of them no doubt thought by the writer to be powerfully patriotic, are simply weak treason Fancy a leader of public opinion enlarging on the undesirability of annexation! On its unlikelihood! On the want of consistency of petitioning the Home Government for it, after sending despatches to Canada, to join the Confederation! Twaddle all, disguise it as you may; fancy arguing with a man on the propriety and advantage of being honest, sober, or the respectability of not running away with your neighbor's wife. All these things, except mentioned collaterally, would argue a very small opinion of your hearers' moral training. All these matters so treated politically, argue a very low state of patriotic feeling in those addressed. To me, and men of my line of thought—and allow me to assure you we are not in the minority—all this is positively disgusting. Out upon such leaders of public opinion! ADIOS.

BAD ROADS.—The road between Van Winkle and Quesnelmouth is said to be in a very bad condition. A portion of it near the Wing Dam on Lightning Creek, has been entirely washed away by the high water and only admits of a light wagon passing. It will be gratifying to teamsters to know that his honor Mr. Ball has instructed Mr. Shaw to put on a gang of Chinamen to repair the worst places at once.

TO CONTRIBUTORS.—H.C.P. and S.'s lines are held over till our next issue.

VICTORIA ITEMS FROM BRITISH COLONIST.—The Otter has returned from her usual trading trip up North, bringing Capt. Mouat, of Fort Rupert, McLean, of Fort Simpson, and Mr. Moss, revenue officer, as passengers.—The steamer Active carried away last trip 100 tons of freight and about 40 passengers, among whom were hons. A. DeCosmos and J. J. Southgate, the former gentleman proposes visiting Europe and the Eastern provinces, Mr. Ritchie, of the Bank of British North America, Messrs. Fry, Sudlow, McMillan, Taylor, late of the police force, Mrs. Mayer and Mrs. Myers.—A road is to be made from Craigflower to the Gorge, and a bridge is to be constructed across the Arm at that point.—The Indians on the west coast of V. I. are becoming troublesome and threatening.—George Ladd, formerly local reporter for the Oregonian, has been arrested on a charge of smuggling goods.—The steamer New World brought over from Puget Sound 225 passengers to be present at the celebration of the Queen's birthday.—A colored man named Brown was bound over to keep the peace for assaulting a Texan woman.—According to last reports, the steamer Oriflamme was to leave for Portland on the 38th, which will interfere with her Sitka trip.—Coal mining operations at Nanaimo are nearly suspended.—Mr. James Carswell is about to open a store at Cowichan.—In consequence of the "lock-out" at the Nanaimo coal pits, coal has advanced in price from $5 and $6 to $6 50 per ton at the mines.—The captain of the trading schooner Gazelle has been summoned for smuggling goods to Indians on the mainland.—The Queen's birthday was celebrated in Victoria in a manner becoming that auspicious occasion, with regattas at the Gorge, and an excursion to San Juan Island; the amusements of the day were wound up in the evening with a ball at the St. George Hotel and another at the St. Nicholas Hotel together with a theatrical performance at the theatre by the Marsh troupe.—The races at Beacon Hill on the 27th were well attended. The first race was won by Howard's "George," and the pony race was won by Howard's "Cafeaulait." On the following day "Boston Colt" won the Queen's plate and Vogel's "Lucy" carried off the Scurry stakes and the Innkeeper's plate.—The Confederation resolutions of the British Columbia Council left New Westminster on the evening of 18th March, were received in London at 5:30 p. m., on the 19th, and appeared in the morning paper of the 20th.—Ex-Governor Kennedy was in London but had not been gazetted for any new colony, although it is believed he will be appointed to some Australian colony. Tripp and his brother-in-law still remain in close custody at Port Townsend.—The steamer Fideliter sailed for Sitka on 29th ult, among the passengers were W. Kohl and son, P. O'Dwyer, David Shirpser and son, all of Victoria.—A man named Smith was convicted and fined £5 for committing a brutal assault on a man named Frederick Everstyne.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

Mr. G. J. Jennings, who has just returned from the North Fork of Quesnel river, informs us that the late rains have flooded Beaver lake to such an extent as to carry off the bridge which crosses Beaver Lake creek, much to the inconvenience of packers, who have to swim their animals. Johnny and Tommy, of Beaver Lake ranch, are raising about 20 acres of barley and oats, and are making daily from 20 to 25lbs. of excellent butter.

Times are very dull at the Forks; the Chinamen who were working the low bars on the river during the spring, having gone out to the neighboring creeks.

CEDAR CREEK.

The Aurora co. were flooded out of their diggings a few days ago, but expected to resume work this week, when they would take out big pay.—Discovery co. are making about an ounce a day to the hand.—The claims above are all making about wages.

KEITHLEYS CREEK.

Wright co. have just begun to wash, and are making about $12 a day to the hand.—Crimp & Co. are starting to work.—Anglo American co. still continue drifting.

SNOW SHOE CREEK.

Scott & co. are making about an ounce a day to the hand, in the bed of the creek.—Four other companies have pre-empted ground above them, and are preparing to work.

ANTLER CREEK.

Two companies have commenced to flume the creek, below the old town.—Smith & co. still continue drifting.

ORO FINO CREEK.

A company of four men are sinking a shaft in the deep channel of this creek, which has never yet been tested. They are satisfied that good pay will be found, as the shallow ground that was worked during past seasons yielded good wages. The shaft is down 26 feet, and will be bottomed in the course of a fortnight.

DEADWOOD CREEK.

Some eight or ten men are mining on this creek, with the certainty of making wages, by washing the surface gravel. One of the party purpose prospecting for a hill channel.

VATTEMARE, THE VENTRILOQUIST.

There were three men and a very handsome girl loading an immense cart of hay. We walked on, and at length this moving hay-stack overtook us. I remember it well, with a black horse in the shafts, and a fine light gray one in the traces. We made very slow progress, for Naesmith, would never cease either sketching, or stopping us to admire the scenery of nature.

Indeed, our progress was so slow, that up came the great Lothian peasant sitting upon the hay, lashing on his team, and whistling his tune. We walked on, side by side, for a while, I think about half a mile, when all at once a child began to cry in the middle of the cart-load of hay. I declare I was cheated myself; for though I was walking alongside of Alexandre, I thought there was a child in the hay; for it cried with a kind of smothered breath, that I am sure there never was such a deception practised in this world.

"What is the meaning of this?" asked Terry. "You are smothering a child amongst your hay."

The poor fellow, rough and burly as was his outer man, was so much appalled at the idea of taking infant life, that he exclaimed in a half articulate voice,—

"I wonder how they could fork a bairn up to me frae the meadow, an' me never ken."

And without taking time to descend to loose his cart ropes, he cut them through the middle, and turned off his hay, roll after roll, with the utmost expedition; and still the child kept crying, almost under his hands and feet. He was even obliged to set his feet on each side of the cart, for fear of trampling the poor child to death. At length, when he had turned the greater part of the hay off upon the road, the child fell acrying among the hay; on which the poor fellow—his name was Sandy Burnet—jumped off the cart in the greatest trepidation.

"Oh, I hae thrawn the poor thing 'ower!" he exclaimed. "I'se warrant it is killed!" and he began to shake out the hay with the greatest possible caution.

I and one of my companions went forward to assist him.

"Stand back! stand back!" cried he. "You'll maybe tramp its life out. I'll look for it myself."

But, after he had shaken out the whole of the hay, no child was to be found. I never saw looks of such amazement as Sandy Burnet's then were. He seemed to have lost all comprehension of everything in this world. I was obliged myself to go on to the brow of the hill, and call on some of the haymakers to come and load the cart again.

Mr. Scott and I stripped off our coats and assisted; and, as we were busy loading the cart, I said to Sandy, seeing him always turn the hay over for fear of running the fork through a child,—

"What can hae become o' the creature, Sandy? for you must be sensible that there was a bairn among this hay."

"The Lord kens, sir," said Sandy.

"Think ye that the lasses are safe enough, an' to be trusted," said I.

"For onything I ken, sir."

"Then where could the bairn come frae?"

"The Lord kens, sir. That there was a bairn, or the semblance o' ane, nacbody can doubt; but I'm thinking it was a fairy, an' that I'm haunted."

"Did ye ever murder any bairns, Sandy?"

"Oh, no! I wadna murder a bairn for the hale warld."

"But were ye ever the cause o' any lasses murdering their bairns?"

"Not that I ken."

"Then where could it have come frae? for you're sensible that there is or was a bairn among your hay. It is rather a bad looking job, Sandy, and I wish you were quit of it."

"I wish the same, sir. But there can be nae doubt that the creature amang the hay was either a fairy or the ghaist of a bairn, for the hay was a' forkit off the swathe in the meadow. An' how could onybody fork up a bairn, an' neither him nor me ken?"

We got the cart loaded once more, knitted the ropes firmly, and set out; but he had not proceeded a hundred yards, before the child fell acrying again among the hay, with still more choking screams than ever.

"Gudeness have the care o' us! Heard ever ony leavin the like o' that? I declare the creature's there again!" cried Sandy, and flinging himself from the cart with a summersault, he ran off, and never looked over his shoulder as long as he was in our sight.

We were very sorry to hear afterward that he fled all the ways into the highlands of Perthshire, where he still lives in a deranged state of mind.
