'ization - Sechelt set to start

Gibsons gets top marks

"I've never seen anything so fantastic for the amount of money you've spent!" an obviously impressed and excited Martin Thomas of the ministry of municipal affairs told Gibsons Council last Wednesday, after seeing the projects the town has completed as Phase I of its Downtown Revitalization Program.

"You've put the money where it counts," he continued, "you've done quality work and maintenance has been considered. You are a roaring success in your first stage, and we'll fall backwards to help you with your second stage. We want to back winners, and you're winners! Ten out of ten!"

Thomas assured council that all it need do to secure Phase II funding is to "send us your shopping list," and stressed that a general plan, preferrably visual, with estimates to the nearest $1,000 is all that is needed to get on the budget list. Tenders and detailed drawings can come later, and agreements can even be altered if unexpected necessities arise during the work phase.

"It's very important that we don't put blockages in your way," said Thomas.

Having built sidewalks, bus shelters, the seawalk and Pioneer Park in Phase I, council sees directional signs including an information booth at Langdale, more parking space, the finishing and clean-up of several 'trouble spots', and the development of overnight parking and camping facilities as priorities in further downtown revitalization work. Plaques leading visitors on a walking tour are being considered, and Thomas suggested finishing the top of the breakwater and making it a fishing pier.

"With that bay," he observed, "what you've got here is unique in the world!"

Such an enthusiastic response to the work Gibsons has done will be encouraging to Sechelt, whose municipal hall was packed with citizens and council at an earlier meeting at which Thomas outlined the approach to take when considering a revitalization program.

"Revitalization must be looked at as a business venture," he insisted, noting that the program had been designed with merchants in mind. "To do business in the '80's, you must go outside your store and take care of the visuals. You must be selling from the moment a person enters the street. Your building must draw him to you and make him stop.

"The moment emotions get in the way, you're doomed," he continued. "You have to ask what the increase in business will be and look at the return on your investment."

For council's part, revitalization will keep the assessment base of its downtown area healthy, he noted, so should also be considered as a business investment.

The program makes available a $5,000 start-up grant, with no further obligations, which would allow council to draw up a concept plan, "preferably visual and not too long," which would indicate common standards for improvements, or perhaps a theme. If approved, council could get a preferred interest loan to cover 75 per cent of the cost of "street scape" work and improvements on municipally owned lands, sidewalks, planters, trees, lighting, etc. Such costs would be borne either by a specified area tax or through general taxation.

Merchants would be eligible for grants of 20 per cent of the cost of facade improvements on their buildings. There is also a

Against Scantech's fish farm

SCRD issues strong protest

by Dianne Evans

"This is not the first time that dying fish have been used to try to stampede government into hasty action," said Director John Burnside at the August 29 Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD) meeting.

Burnside was taking part in discussion over a draft of a strongly worded letter to the Minister of Lands, Parks and Housing, Tony Brummett, drawn up by Director Ian Vaughan, as requested by the board at its last meeting.

The letter protests vigorously against what is seen to be indecent haste in the granting of a foreshore lease to Scantech Resources at Wood Bay.

The lease was applied for on July 10, 1985 and the fish pens arrived in the bay at 6 a.m. on the July 14, without warning and without consultation with local residents, although deputy minister of lands, parks and housing, Tom Lee, had asked the company to poll the neighbours' opinions, according to Director Peggy Connor.

The previous occasion to which Burnside referred above was an allegedly dangerous situation at the May's Chapman Creek hatchery which necessitated the speedy granting of a water lease. When the processing of the application took much longer than anticipated, it was discovered that the danger had been somewhat exaggerated, said Burnside.

"Is this a device to get around due process?" he asked.

Vaughan's letter was a little too harshly worded for the taste of some of the other board members, including Director Jon McRae who expressed his support for its intent but asked that the wording be changed to simply express dissatisfaction with the lack of due process.

This Vaughan agreed to do, although he pointed out that the board had asked for a strong letter, which he had written and which he asked each member of the board to sign. All board members will sign the new draft.

The letter says that the SCRD is not opposed to mariculture as such, and has indeed supported the fledgling industry, but does say that the board is opposed to the unilateral issuance of the foreshore lease in question.

During the board's discussion of the matter McRae said that Scantech had in fact applied for a lease at Davis Bay but were put in a difficult situation when the lease was denied.

"I'm not sure what Director McRae is saying," said Burnside, "Is he saying that when

A culture reviving

Sechelt language now in book form

by Fran Burnside

The Sechelt Indian Band has just completed another major step in its ongoing efforts to preserve and revive its culture.

The erection of ever more totem poles on both Indian and municipal lands in Sechelt serves as a constant reminder of the artistic heritage of the native Sechelt people. Now the band's linguistic heritage has also been preserved - and will hopefully experience a revival - through the publication of a text on its language.

University of British Columbia professor Ronald C. Beaumont has worked since 1978 with band elders to produce She Shashishalhem - The Sechelt Language. Its preface describes the book as primarily a pedagogical work describing in some detail the main characteristics of the Sechelt language, but also containing a number of Sechelt texts and an extensive glossary. It was designed "in a form which could serve both as a textbook for mature students and as a source book from which teachers could develop curricula for all levels of instruction."

As well as the language and grammar, the book contains some of the sayings and several stories of the Sechelt people.

Even with the book's publication, Beaumont's meetings with elders are continuing, the goal being to produce a dictionary as well as the workbook. It is hoped that classes in the Sechelt language will soon become part of the curriculum in local schools, and four band members completed a language teacher training program at U.B.C. this summer, so are ready to begin such classes when the opportunity arises.

For the elders themselves, the meetings are a happy time, with lots of jokes and laughter, and the remembering of old stories and incidents long past. They hunt their memories for words which Beaumont asks for -"Can anyone think of the word for 'slush'?" he queries - and are reminded of other words which are close but not quite it. They struggle to differentiate, to define. They awaken at two in the morning thinking of long lost words.

One thing they have discovered in studying their language: it seems they have no word for "time".

Gambier fire

A fire covering an acre of forest land was finally brought under control at five o'clock Saturday afternoon on Gambier Island, said Gambier Island Fire Warden, Bill Errico in conversation with the Coast News.

"The reason the water bomber and a big crew were out with two pumps was that it threatened several houses and a store of fuel barrels." Errico continued. "The cause was a spark from an incinerator which got out of control."

The fire was contained by forestry firefighters.

Television Society

Suncoast Television Society will meet September 9 at 3:30 p.m. at Capilano College Sechelt campus for a progress report on the microwave feed necessary to continue Channel 9 and 11 reception on the coast after September '86. Also to discuss a brief to the Task Force on Broadcasting particularly in relation to the CBC. All welcome.

Search is on for missing Garden Bay man

More than 50 people gathered at the Garden Bay Fire Hall on Saturday morning to continue the search for Lee Christian of Garden Bay, missing since Sunday, August 25. Firemen from Madeira Park and Garden Bay, young people and many seniors set out under the direction of Bill Lawson of Sechelt, search co-ordinator, and Sandy Jones of the fire department.

Formal ground and helicopter searches began Monday, with RCMP tracking dogs brought in mid-week. Many individuals have combed the lakes and woods during the week, but so far without a trace of Lee.

When last seen, Lee was wearing a brown and white plaid shirt, blue boxer swim trunks, black socks and grey runners. He is 5' 10" tall, with brown wavy hair, and a moustache. (He's about 26). Coast residents may remember Lee from Harbour Chimney Cleaning two years ago.

Without more clues, the ground search cannot effectively cover such a large area. Much of the terrain is heavily brushed or swampy.

Act of hypocrisy

A small item in one of the weekend papers tells the story. The first test of a new law which prevents anyone from suing either the United States government or its contractors for compensation for injuries caused by the testing of nuclear weapons in the atmosphere, was unsuccessful and a federal court judge has forced the families of 33 victims to drop their suits.

Only four of those plaintiffs are still alive; most of the others are dead from leukemia. There may be 250,000 people who could ultimately sue for such injuries and the door is closed.

Back in 1946 when the nuclear testing began, and in the 20 years following, thousands upon thousands of servicemen, their families and the innocent by-standers, the folk who live in Utah and Nevada, were guinea pigs of the government, and now that same government is saying, in effect, so what?

That's like saying that the families of all the children so terribly deformed when their mothers took "safe" thalidomide shouldn't sue the drug company that unleashed the chemical on the unsuspecting public without proper testing.

It also admits guilt. After all, if the government didn't think the suits would succeed, why ban them? We all know that radiation causes sickness and death, we all know that there are chemicals loose in the world that can harm us and our children irreparably.

That a government should so belittle the suffering of its citizenry, should so distort the concept of justice, is an act of monstrous hypocrisy.

Fishy business

An interesting question arises out of last week's Regional Board discussions on the murky business of Scantech and its fish farms.

Is it that Area C Director Jon McRae is simply mistaken, or did he have knowledge of the fact that Scantech wanted the original Davis Bay site, not for fish pen display but for a full scale fish farm?

The Regional Board was given assurances by the company that no fish were to be kept at Davis Bay and yet last week we heard Director McRae tell us that such a plan was phase two of the project.

It's a fishy business indeed.

Birdie was only five feet or five feet two inches tall, but nonetheless the log in which she is pictured is very large and comes from just behind the site of their first house at the mouth of Roberts Creek. Before their marriage they both lived in Sechelt, where Harry was employed by Whittakers, clearing land, and Birdie was the housekeeper at the Sechelt hotel. Whenever it was possible, Harry would take two or three days off from his work and walk down to Roberts Creek from Sechelt to spend the time splitting logs and clearing land to build his first house. On Sundays Birdie would walk down to Roberts Creek to spend the day and they would return on foot, Sunday evenings. The road from Gibsons went only as far as Flume Road where it was stopped by the flume crossing over the path. Horses were able to jump the flume but it was not until some time later, when the flume wore out, that the road went any further.

Tourism notes

We may be starting to get the hang of this tourism thing. Not, I hasten to add, by calling dog fish salmon sharks, but by giving our visitors some stimulating entertainment while they are on the coast.

There is a letter on page three this week from the Executive Assistant of the Federation of B.C. Writers which compares favourably the recent Writers' Festival in Sechelt with the 'best of the rest' in the east. What we have here, folks, is an honest to God national attraction. The name of Sechelt is now synonymous in literary Canada with a quality literary event. When travel calendars are being marked, Sechelt and the Sunshine Coast are being marked down in the must visit category in August. Great Stuff.

The Gibsons Summer Play Parade in its first year was an undoubted artistic as well as a financial success. There is an audience for summer theatre. Art McGinnis tells of a couple from Oregon heading for home after cruising the upper coast. They stopped in at the marina for one night and wandered up to the museum to take in a play in the evening. They liked it and ended up staying four days instead of one and went to all the plays.

Last Saturday night when Fran and I went to take in a third of the summer's attractions, the Big Band Jazz Evening, a very nice lady rushed up to us and said that she simply had to say hello. She had just moved to Gibsons from Calgary on August 8 and was delighted with our presentation of Pauline and happy that her new home presented such delights.

It was a great pleasure to see the big band still has the power to draw crowds. In all my years on the Sunshine Coast I cannot remember an event which drew such an enormous spectrum of coast folk. Music is indeed a bridge without compare.

It must be said, however, though the band was absolutely excellent, the seating and dancing space ample, the acoustics left a great deal to be desired. I'm not sure what can be done about it at the Winter Club.

What we are collectively beginning to realize, I think, is that in the arts and crafts we have a most valuable resource which has been long lying fallow. As the flow of wealth from our forests and fisheries begins to lessen, it would appear that we must begin to utilize our sublime location as a backdrop against which we can draw artists and entertainers and those who enjoy them to spend time well among us.

Certainly, the merchants of Sechelt indicated by their whole-hearted and generous support of the Writers' Festival that they are in no doubt about the stimulating effect that such events have on local business.

It is important that we remember, and those of us who have been involved in the preparation and presentation of the summer's events know well, that there is an enormous amount of unglamorous hard slogging to be done. The people of the Writers' Forge worked like heroes so that their weekend could go so smoothly and with such untroubled warmth

As this summer of sunshine and achievement fades into memory we should draw from it the lesson that with good ideas, a generous spirit, and a willingness to work hard we can, if not move mountains at least deserve our place among them and attract others to visit us and stay a while.

For Pat Lowther

I will never forget your voice on that last day of your days it ghosted over the phone like audible darkness strained sapped utterly empty bled of all hope, all joy
the merest echo of you the voice of someone who faced the naked unfaceable.

All the unwritten poems lay stillborn in your brain never to escape from you like bright birds
never to slide again from your fingertips full of wisdom, laughter, pain never to scratch wonder from the white waste of a page.

The sea, the woods, the mountains you loved and celebrated lay forever beyond your window now your eyes would not kiss them again you would become your children's sorrow in the dark stain of your going you would become your photographs and the small unfinished legacy of your poems

But I didn't know, didn't know
I thought I had somehow offended you
I turned the thing to myself as I always did then
And I didn't know, didn't know that yours was a voice from the edge that a man corrupted with jealousy stood at the door of your life with his hand on the hammer.

Maryanne's viewpoint

Broadcasting task force

by Maryanne West

The Task Force on Broadcasting blew into Vancouver last month, on a week's notice, spent an evening listening to the general public and blew out again.

As their mandate includes the whole spectrum of Canadian broadcasting, including the CBC, of which we are all shareholders, one is forced to the conclusion that either the government doesn't attach a high priority to broadcasting or they are not serious in asking for public input. However, for those who believe in the importance of broadcasting we have until September 16 to get our opinions to them c/o Department of Communications, 300 Slater Street, Ottawa, K1A OC8. I have long felt the CBC would be better able to serve Canadians and therefore be assured of their support if it were decentralized.

This country is a federation of distinct geographical regions and broadcasting is one of the things which holds those disparate areas together. Obviously we have to have a strong national presence, but it should be based on equally strong regional stations.

Let's look quickly at the American Public Broadcasting system, which has a network of over 300 autonomous stations. Each station organizes its own programing, does as much local programing as it can afford, and takes what it wants from other network productions. There is an elected public broadcasting board which acts as policy maker and liaison between government and the stations for funding.

We could organize the CBC along similar lines. CBC has an elected board of governors, though no one ever hears of them, and each provincial station or groups of stations could run their own affairs, budgets, programming, etc. I'm not suggesting we should emulate the American methods of fund raising, though I do think we can't expect the CBC to function properly while it remains subservient to the commercial imperative of the advertiser.

I don't think it would just increase the bureaucracy, each station already has that in place, a regional director and who knows how many heads of department etc. It would on the other hand make a number of highly paid vice-presidential jobs in Toronto and Ottawa obsolete. Also in Montreal as it would mean that we would no longer have to get permission from the headquarters of the engineering department to replace a generator on a microwave booster.

Of course we'd want to keep network radio programs such as Morningside from Toronto and there would undoubtedly be programs from other regions we might want to pick up. We'd want to keep the national news and it might even evolve to a more national format not so dependent on the priorities of a Toronto-based producer when the regions have equal status. Perhaps we'd get real news from the different parts of the country rather than the latest sensational headlines.

I'm not suggesting parochialism, but I think that in broadcasting as in education

New booming ground strongly opposed

Editor:

Arguments offered August 19 by Mark Battersby against Sunfor Logging application for a lease to create a log sort and dump at Tuwanek are convincing.

I too, strongly oppose the application, considering these points:

1. Lack of environmental impact or engineering studies as to effects of logging the steep slope above the community, or pollutants and debris from the sort and booming.

I am concerned about safety hazards. We have seen the disastrous results of logging in similar terrain above M Creek and the Lions Bay area of Howe Sound, which is subject to heavy rainfall as well.

2. Negative impact on recreational and residential use of the area.

Tuwanek is presently a popular place for hiking, swimming, boating and scuba diving by residents and tourists alike. Yet another logging operation will severly limit enjoyment of the locality, not to mention inhibit potential of the community.

3. The proposed logging and booming is inconsistent with use of nearby lands which include an established Marine Park and park reserve.

4. Sufficient industrial use of Tuwanek exists already.

Jackson Brothers Logging is an established operation with log sort and dump which has even been extended within the last year. Another firm is surely excessive. It would totally enclose the community foreshore with booming grounds!

I'm optimistic that present users of Tuwanek - residential, recreational and industrial, can work out a co-existence but I fear further industrial expansion can only lead to downgrading and eventual destruction of this beautiful, well established little community.

"Frailty" does not impress

Editor:

Human frailty is the burden of this letter, a quality which used to be attributed only to women but is now common among men also. I am thinking of Clark Hamilton,. one of the shareholders in Scantech Resources, Ltd. which has installed fish pens in Wood Bay.

In a telephone conversation with the Vancouver Sun Mr. Hamilton is quoted as saying, "It's unbelievable that when we are trying to do something positive and make strides, people make these obstructions." The obstructions he is so piously condemning are the outcries uttered by the waterfront owners in the vicinity of Wood Bay because of Scantech's unseemly haste in locating among them without benefit of public hearing. The reason given for the haste was that the salmon fingerlings would die in warm water elsewhere.

Personally I am inclined to sympathize with the little fish which, instead of taking their normal chances of survival in the open, natural sea, are doomed to imporisonment in a crowded net and all to certain death in frying pans.

But sympathy, apparently, is not one of Mr. Hamilton's native attributes. I can remember him several years ago raising powerful "obstructions" to the opening of a hostel for battered women in his own neighbourhood of Bayview. Who could be more harmless and worthy of sympathy than battered women?

Mr. Hamilton obviously suffers from an ordinary kind of human frailty. the love of money which, the Bible tells us, is the root of all evil. That is one reason why we residents in the vicinity of Wood Bay are not going into paroxysms of gratitude and delight at the prospect of the 16 fish pens Scantech proposes to insinuate into our waters. We don't want them "making strides" over us.

No to bubble

Editor:

I hope you will allow me to express my anger and disgust that beautiful Porpoise Bay, so quiet and unspoiled, is to be considered as a site for a tourist attracting floating glass and concrete bubble.

The account I read placed its location at a point near Poise Island. A person by the name of Oddvin Vedo wants to apply for Federal Government funding for this monstrosity, which (he hopes) will be partly submerged, contain a restaurant and different tourist attractions plus a scuba diving school observation facility.

This Vedo hasn't apparently considered it necessary to consult the property owners in the area, whose rights would certainly be affected, to say nothing of the fishermen whose living would undoubtedly be endangered.

This guy thinks the porpoises in the Bay would do tricks to be observed. I have owned waterfront property here, for almost 30 years, and I don't believe there are any porpoises left.

In my opinion the values of property owners' land would be lowered by such a scheme, and I trust they will all contact the Federal Government to express their disapprobation.

Water needs close scrutiny

Editor:

As the current hot dry weather continues the situation relative to the town of Gibsons water supply needs some closer scrutiny by thoughtful citizens.

Our superintendent, Mr. Webber tells me that all pumps are now working and that full pumping capacity has been restored for sometime. Yet sprinkling cannot be re-instated as the regular daily domestic consumption of water is so high that no surplus can be banked.

So fine tuned is our water balancing act that a major fire would, I am told, leave us with a serious shortfall. Those closely involved with our water production point to the weather and pump breakdowns as the basic cause while keeping one eye and a prayer looking for a bail out rain cloud.

But we have lived here since 1979 and we have had water rationing every summer, weather notwithstanding. This year of course, the shortfall has been critical, but the solutions have been deplorable and fail to come to grips with the fact that slowly but surely we are drying up.

I have been told that we, the people who through our taxes are entitled to a secure water supply, cannot be trusted to ration ourselves, hence the degrading "make them carry the buckets", followed by the "make them hold the hose for an hour" policies. As one alderman said he pictured a poor oldster with arthritic hands trying to hold a hose for an hour to save the tomatoes. Our retirees are a good part of this community, both in goods purchased and taxes paid and gardening is likely their top activity. How shabbily we treat them.

Working families must rule out the morning hose holding ignominy and concentrate their social lives around the evening "Let us spray" ceremony. Most of us of course give up the great relief of the pumpmaster, and kicking the bucket in Gibsons has a new meaning - the sound of a frustrated foot striking an empty pail. Resentment is building out here in the dust bowls.

If you should be unfortunate enough to have to list your property for sale during these summer brown-outs, your agent will tell you that prospects are disappointed at the overall appearance of our residential properties which a short drive up the coast points up. Some of our laid off mill people who now must sell, don't need a property value knock on top of their other difficulties.

Encouraging economic signs within the community are the Gibsons Marina and the expectation we are told, of tens of thousands of visitors next year along with such other things as the possible moorage of a large cruise ship all requiring of course the usual services.

The usage of the marina has not yet reached capacity, but there is no doubt that this well run and attractive facility will soon peak out, and while it pays for every drop of water it uses by meter, it will soon be an increasing demand situation. How do you feel when I tell you your grass can go to hell while I wash down my sloop and tank up fresh water from your supply?

Reflect if you will for a moment on exactly what our situation will be if all these things come together in 1986, as we certainly hope they will. We must have a guaranteed water supply for those developing and potential new businesses that will help insure that we survive the current and likely future shrinkage of our old reliables, like forestry.

In closing, a tip of the hat to the town staff who have been informative and interested. I hope that you will express your concern, and that council will put the water issue on the table so that in the years ahead we can grow what we want, when we want.

If, at the next council meeting our theatrical alderman would consider warbling a few bars of The Green, Green, Grass of Home it would, while drawing attention to our plight, carry the secondary benefit of clearing the sinuses for some clear thinking of this important concern.

Why stop now?

Editor:

It is with an enormous sigh of relief that the members of the SunCoast Writers' Forge put the third annual Festival of the Written Arts behind ourselves and get on with our private concerns, but we all have a definite sense of a job well done. This third festival was both a critical and financial success, and it has begun to make an impact on our community as a whole.

We would like to thank everyone who helped the Forge to make the festival a success, especially the merchants of Sechelt who plugged the events with banners and brochures, the merchants who allowed us to use their roadside signs, the organizations who loaned chairs and decorations, the continuing support of the Shadow Baux Gallery and the Bookstore, and the terrific coverage of the events given by the Coast News. To all the others who helped in any way, thank you. We really needed your support.

There will, of course, be a fourth Festival of the Written Arts, because now that we've learned to do it right, why stop? We'll be looking for you there.

Best of the rest

Editor:

On behalf of the Federation of British Columbia Writers, I wish to thank the Suncoast Writers' Forge, and Betty Keller in particular, for their tremendous efforts in making this year's Festival of the Written Arts the resounding success it was.

We would be remiss as well, if we did not thank the people of the Sunshine Coast - especially those in Sechelt - for their great kindness during the weekend of the festival. Writers from not only our own organization, but from Alberta, Saskatchewan and the United States have been justifiably bowled over by the enthusiasm and warmth which your community extends to all participants in the festival.

You've got a real sleeper on your hands - many writers went away comparing the festival with the best of the rest in eastern Canada, and even the illustrious Banff summer celebration.

Again, sincerest thanks to all concerned from the writers of British Columbia.

George in Gibsons

65 in bicycle race

by George Cooper, 886-8520

"It was a very hot pace the pack set," said Mark Boothroyd, and I didn't finish this year's race."

Mark, was telling about the Rat Race, the bicycle run from Earl's Cove to Gibsons two weeks ago.

"There were 65 entrants," said Weldon Epp, of Gibsons Real Bicycle Shop, one of the organizers of the race along with Don Burgess of Powell River's The Losers Downhill Cycle Shop, "and most of them were devoted competitors out to show their skill on the racing circuit."

The Bicycle Association of B.C. sanctioned this race as one where competitors could earn points toward the various categories of racers, from novice to Number One. "When you'r a Number One," said Mark, "you're ready to look for a berth on the National Team and participate in international events."

Does a flat tire or a broken spoke put the rider out of the race?

"Not at all," said Weldon Epp, "the back-up car is right behind the pack (the leading blob of cyclists) and the rider can change wheels in 20 seconds and take off after the leaders."

Murray Wilson of Gibsons said he has just been riding distances for fun this year.

"I'm a recreational rider," said Murray, "and only entered for the fun of doing the distance. And I did along with Dennis Palmer. So we didn't feel disgraced coming in a hour after the leaders. We were proud of ourselves for going the distance."

That was a hot day; were there any water stations? "No," said Murray, "and I don't think those riders would have stopped anyway. I was grateful my wife met us at Trout Lake with some drinking water. I don't think the little container on the cycle would have seen us through."

Another local racer, Stu Nicholls of the Country Pumpkin and a racer of ten years' experience, was unable to take part in this year's second annual Rat Race because of a recent cycling accident.

Mark said he has taken part in races since April this year on Vancouver Island, in summerland, Gastown, Mission and others.

"I like the competition in racing," said Mark, "and I hope to qualify for category three for next year's events.

"It was a pell-mell finish," said Weldon Epp of his part on the finish line in Gibsons, "but like a school sports day, we had two people each to spot first on down to sixth or eighth place. It seems acceptable to the competitors, but a video recording would show the placements exactly."

Weldon added, "This race is a popular one on BABC's calendar since the riders find it a safe run, a challenge but not severe in the way of hills, and scenic."

Scenic--bent over handlebars looking straight ahead at 35 to 40 miles per hour?

Weldon assures older would-be riders that he stocks a saddle that is wide and comfortably cushioned. This in response to a remark that riding a bicycle is like sitting on the sharp side of an axe.

A GOOD ENDING

For all us hopeful script writers who sat through the encouraging talk by the CBC fellow a few Sundays ago in the Writers' Forge...

Relic enters this bicycle race, see, but he sidetracks part way, see, and jumps in his jet boat to take a shortcut, and would have come in first except he gets on the wrong road and falls in a blackberry patch right beside my Aunt Antastie who has fallen in the brambles again this year only this year we had left her there for the day, at least. Then Nick comes on the scene to pick berries and...

The ending? Well, the executive fellow said he had the perfect ending ready to use and all he needed was a story to precede it.

Well?

one has to start from where people are, develop and maintain strong roots so that one can reach out past provincial and national boundaries. Regionally owned and operated CBC stations would be able to offer programming representing their Canadian heritage, their present and future aspirations, their musicians, writers, artists, their ethnic mosaic etc.

I could go on, there are so many possibilities, but you've probably lots of good ideas too.

Sun Coast Television Society is willing either to write a brief on behalf of Coast residents for the Task Force and/or collect and mail your letters in time for the September 16 deadline. A meeting will be held at Capilano College campus, Sechelt 3:30 p.m. September 9 to which everyone is welcome. This will also be an opportunity for a progress report from Coast Cablevision on the microwave feed necessary to continue KCTS Channel 9 and Channel 11 reception after September 1986.

Roberts Creek

Creek fitness

by Jeanie Parker, 886-3973

Several people have expressed interest in the fitness classes starting at the Roberts Creek Legion next week. Ricki Ferguson is running them Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., starting September 10.

The cost is $38 for eight weeks, or $45 for unlimited attendance at any of Ricki's classes for those eight weeks. Babysitting will be available right at the legion. It is requested that you come to the first class 15 minutes early to register.

GOOD EVENING

The recent guest appearance of Mr. Roberts Creek at the Little Legion was a resounding success. Bongo crooned a couple of golden oldies, then belted out his title-winning tune to the delight of all who were there for a brush with greatness.

Warmup acts for Mr. Roberts Creek included Bill Walkey in his premiere at the Roberts Creek Legion, songbird Marie Walkey who surprised many who thought they knew her, and CBC man Dan Tohill who swept the crowd off its feet with his harmonica to win the Mr. Roberts Creek contest several years ago.

Finishing off the night was the ever-expanding group of "Used Guys". They had the dance floor bouncing for an enthusiastic end to an evening of good entertainment.

BROWNIE REGISTRATION

Girls wishing to join Brownies this year can register next Monday, September 9, at 3:30 p.m. in the community use room at Roberts Creek elementary. The fee is $20 for the first girl in the family to join.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

Roberts Creek branch of St. Mary's Hospital Auxiliary will be held in the legion hall on September 9 at 11 a.m.

Gaps and geese

by Jean Robinson, 885-2954

There were two sentences left out of last week's column. Sure made for strange reading. Not to worry though, I've had whole columns left out.

The two Wilson Creek geese are now joining the local flock of Canada geese for walks and one gander is escorting them on short flights around the area.

As this local flock does not migrate anywhere it seems pointless for them to be flocking up and taking trial flights. Guess the migrating instinct remains forever.

CONTRIBUTORS

Karen Solli, Shannon Dickson and Dawn Cuthbertson did face painting at the Pioneer Picnic and they were very good. In fact at one point we thought they had a picnic of their own going, they had such a large audience. Thanks for your contribution girls.

FALL MEETING

There will be a general meeting of the Davis Bay/Wilson Creek Community Association at 7:30 p.m. on September 9. We are going to discuss fall projects etc., plus show off some of our garden produce. Bring the biggest or most unusual item that your garden gave forth this year. Remember, 7:30 at the hall.

LIBRARY NEWS

Within a short time we will have a library that will lock up, with permanent shelves. This will be much easier for the librarians.

Now, how about joining the library group and giving four hours of your time once a month. You certainly get to meet nice people that way. Phone Helen Cuylites, 885-2709 to learn more about this.

FOOD BANK

The food bank could certainly use your extra garden produce. Drop it off at their place behind Capilano College on Wednesday mornings. There are a number of families that need a little help.

Incidentally, take a look around while you are there. See what some very unselfish people have done to help others in the community.

NOTICE

The Timber Trails Riding Club is having an all Western horse show on September 8. Please come on up and see this colourful event.

Aquatic centre opens

The Pender Harbour Aquatic Centre will be open September 11, 12 and 13 for registration in the Fall program. The new program which should reach everyone by September 9, includes the regular Red Cross, pre-school lessons, fitness & weight classes as well as a few new innovations.

Our fees remain the same except the a $.25 increase in fitness drop-in charge. A "FREE" swim on Saturday September 14, 2 - 4 p.m., will open the fall session to a great start.

Sechelt ambulance and volunteers for the Provincial Emergency Program were on hand in Sechelt last week to participate in a mock disaster. There were 14 victims involved in the accident, and the practice taught the principles of triage and pointed out the problems involved in large scale exercises. —Dianne Evans photo

Egmont News

What will be

by Ann Cook, 883-9167

School is in this week, that should make for some happiness; the moms, the kids and the boys have been checking out the school yard to see their friends again. Pat and Donald have been spic and spanning the little old school as best they can, getting ready for whatever is going to happen.

Every year about this time we keep asking each other, are there enough children to keep the little school open? Who knows? We'll find out to-day at 9 a.m. roll call.

Maybe just Sadie, Sparky and Tork the local dogs will show up. What ever will be will be.

DOLLAR-A-BAG DAY

It's Dollar-a-Bag day everyday at the Thrift Store as it will soon be time to close the main floor store and move back up stairs for the winter.

The store is open everyday so put the kids in school and drive up for some bargains, even if you only get rubber boots, a jacket and some sweaters for playing in. At the price of new children's clothes it's worth the trip.

Thank you to all the folks who sent bags, especially Pic-a-Pop Bob Bowles who sent a week's supply.

NEW BABY

Another new baby. Congratulations to Ray and Wendy at the arrival of their daughter Lacey Angela on August 26. That makes seven grandchildren for Ella Cummings.

HAPPY WISHES

Happy anniversary to Lisa O'Neill's Dad and Mom.

Happy September birthdays to Dylan Jackson, Michael Martin, Norman Gregory, Melanie Van Arsdell, and Myrtle Page, Nathan Bell wherever you are.

A SPECIAL birthday wish to our ever reliable community worker, Dolly Wallace. What could we do for someone who's always doing for others. Give her a new hat, have a surprise party, give her one day off?

SUMMER VISITORS

Next week I want to write about summer visitors, if you have had a summer visitor let me know. Mae Bathgate has been away so much these past few months that when I saw her taking her daily walk I thought she was a tourist or a summer visitor. Welcome home Mae.

Pender People 'n' Places

Get ready for school

by Joan Wilson, 883-9606

SCHOOL DAYS

It's back to school Tuesday morning for the 250 students in Pender Harbour. With a new year, new teacher, new clothes and pristine school supplies, students begin another year. parents are probably breathing a sigh of relief, but now is the time to help your child off to a good start.

How can every parent help his or her child to make the most of education, even at the primary levels? Here are a few suggestions that can make a big difference.

First, start your child off with a positive attitude to school, teachers and learning in general. Now, more than ever before, a sound education is necessary to success in life so encourage your child to take a positive, responsible attitude to their studies. School is for work not play.

Second, find out about your child's school. Meet the teacher, take time to visit the school, talk to the principal.

Third, help your child do his or her best by making sure he or she has a good breakfast and a nutritious lunch, enforcing a sensible bedtime, providing a study space with good light and few distractions, reminding about homework, and encouraging him or her to take care of books and supplies.

Fourth, promote good reading habits by switching off the TV, visiting the library, reading with or to the child and encouraging an interest in the world around us in whatever way best suits your family.

Good luck to all the students of 1985-86.

REGISTRATION FOR SCOUTING AND GUIDING

Parents are asked to register their sons for Beavers, Cubs or Scouts at the Madeira Park Community Hall on Sunday, September 15, at 2 p.m. Registration for Brownies and Guides will be held at Madeira Park elementary on Tuesday, September 17 at 3:15 p.m.

PAPER TOLE CLASSES

Colleen of Rainbow Collections in Sechelt will be teaching a beginner course in Paper Tole in October at Pender Harbour secondary. Stop in at the shop and see what you could learn to create, or call her at 885-2323 to pre-register.

MOVING ON

Sharon and Crystal Thomas will be moving up to Fort St. John in a few weeks to join Brian, who has been working up north since July. The Harbour will miss Sharon's cheery smile. She has been active in the Madeira Park elementary parents' group, and was Brown Owl of our Pender Harbour pack last year.

INFORMATION, PLEASE!

Maybe cooler weather will start people thinking about fall activities. I know that I have been slow to start this year, just enjoying the hot, sunny days. But please, Pender Harbour, start calling with your news and coming events. Tell me about new babies, new businesses and new faces! I can't write about Harbour happenings if you don't call!

HARBOUR ARTISTS

The summer art show in the old Sear's office (next to the Oak Tree Market) closed on Sunday. The Harbour artists would like to thank the Pender Harbour Credit Union and the Oak Tree for their support. This is the second year the artists have exhibited their work in Madeira Park. We look forward to seeing them again next year.

THANKS

Art and Helen Christian would like to thank all those who have helped the family in the search for their son Lee, and to encourage those who are continuing to comb the Garden Bay area.

Halfmoon Bay Happenings

Weddings galore

by Ruth Forrester, 885-2428

August 24 was a popular date for local weddings when three of Halfmoon Bay's pretty girls were married. Shannon Gill, daughter of Bob and Judy Gill of Redrooffs exchanged vows with Alain Martel, son of Andre and Bernice Martel of Welcome Woods. Maid of honour was the bride's sister Tara and bridesmaids were Kim Martel and Tanya Wilson. Best man was Delwyn Innes of Grande Prairie, Alberta, and the little flower girl was Leslie Erickson. The lovely bride was stunning in a gown of white lace and organza while bridesmaids were in hot pink taffeta. The gowns were made by the mother of the bride. Reverend John Paetkau conducted the ceremony in St. Hilda's anglican Church and the happy reception gathering was at the Anglican Church and the happy reception gathering was at the Sechelt arena where many local and out of town guests gathered to wish the happy couple well.

Sherri Jorgensen of Halfmoon Bay and Larry Page of Sechelt also became man and wife in a lovely ceremony at the Bethel Baptist Church in Sechelt. The bride was a picture in her gown of lace which had been hand tatted by her great-aunt Cis Scott and hand beaded by Ann Hansen. The two bridesmaids, sisters of the bride, Sandy and Sonja were in red and white taffeta as was maid of honour Michelle Frankson. Best man was the brother of the groom Leonard Page and ushers were Bobby Dixon and Wayne Pilchack. Pretty little attendants were Mandy Hopkins of Gibsons and Damon Kearney of Calgary. Many out of town friends together with local family members and friends joined in the happy celebration at the reception at the Indian Band Hall in Sechelt, and Larry and Sherri are taking up residence in Sechelt.

The lovely setting of the garden of the Westreen summer residence at Halfmoon Bay was chosen by Glenda Westreen and Gordon Anderson both of North Vancouver for their wedding ceremony conducted by Donald Pye. The lovely bride wore a three quarter length white dress and her sister Dianne was in blue. Immediately following the exchange of vows the bride and groom boarded a kayak and did a symbolic paddle around the bay, much to the enjoyment of the family and guests. The evening reception was held at Welcome Beach Hall. The couple have taken up residence in North Vancouver.

ENJOY THE PARK

A reminder of the picnic next Sunday, September 8 at noon on Cooper's Green. Bring along the kids, your friends, lunch and a lawn chair, coffee and cold drinks will be served. You can have a good old get-together with old friends and make some new ones. You might also enjoy taking part in a blackberry contest where the best pies, jellies and cordials will be judged.

This will also be an excellent opportunity for you to express your views as to the layout and development of the facilities there for public usage. There are lots of local residents who have expressed willingness to help with the work at hand and all they need is the OK to go ahead.

Peggy Connor will be on hand with questionnaires which you will be invited to fill out and your comments will be welcome. Let's see you all there next Sunday.

HUMMING BIRDS

A reminder to all you humming bird fans that it is high time you took down your humming bird feeder so that the little guys won't leave too late to join their flight down to warmer climate.

Youth magazine

The British Federation of Youth announces that a youth magazine will shortly be produced, called "The Cold Inferno".

The magazine is to be a platform for today's youth, and articles on the economy, culture, education, politics, religion, social issues, etc. will be accepted for publication.

The aim is to publish once a month, starting on the Sunshine Coast, but eventually reaching out to the rest of Canada.

It is hoped that the first issue will be available by the end of this, the International Youth Year. It will appear under the trade name, Federation Publishing Group Association which is a division of the B.C. Federation of Youth. The group is independent.

For more information on how to get involved, call Ben LePage at 886-8452 or Marilyn Riepe at 885-7934, or write to Federation Publishing Group Association, P.O. Box 1889, Gibsons.

Softball donation

The Sunshine Coast Women's Softball League donated $392 to the town of Gibsons. The money, which was raised by a successful raffle, will be used to help build dugouts at the number one diamond at Brothers Park.

"The West Howe Sound Recreation Commission is presently building bleachers." said Clerk-Treasurer Lorraine Goddard. "I suggested they take it under their wing. That money could go a long way to getting the dugouts built with the volunteer labour they have available."

THE FIRST DAY

of school is here and soon your children, especially the older ones, will be complaining that they haven't got time for breakfast - that they can't face it anyway! Those older kids don't even seem to want lunch and many's the locker that's overflowed with brown lunch bags that Mother slaved over. Even the little kids come home sometimes with their lunch buckets as full as when they started out. Maybe...dreadful thought...your child is bored with the same old peanut butter sandwich routine. If, as a responsible parent you are interested in what your child is eating, go to the Public Health Unit on South Fletcher Road in Gibsons-they have loads of ideas they'll be only too glad to pass onto you. This week I'm passing on a few of their good ideas to you.

If your child is skipping breakfast try giving him a

Fruit Blender Drink
6 oz. frozen orange juice
½ banana handful frozen unsweetened strawberries or blueberries
2 tbsp. milk powder or yogurt
2 tbsp. wheat germ
honey to taste
Blend well in a blender or with a hand mixer.
Complete breakfast with a muffin, bun or toast.

As your child rushes out through the door, thrust into his hot little hand a breadfast in a bag.

Tribute to a slain poet

by Peter Trower

Last Sunday, I celebrated my birthday in a rather sombre manner. Yvonne and I attended a benefit for the late Vancouver poet, Pat Lowther, at the Robson Media Centre. It was the tenth anniversary of her tragic murder and I, in company with a host of other writers, had been asked to say a few words. The event brought back some strange, sad memories.

Oddly enough, I never actually met Pat Lowther although I learned a great deal about her from poet, Pat Lane who was living in Pender Harbour at the time. Our relationship (if such it could be called), consisted of a few letters and a number of phone calls, but I was impressed by her poetry, particularly those pieces that deal with the West Coast. We shared a common love for the mountains and the sea.

Pat and I had only been in contact for a few months, when a reading was organized at the Ironworker's Hall in Vancouver. The theme was work poetry. Pat, Lane, David Day and myself were scheduled to perform. It was the most important reading I had done up to that point and I was looking forward to it. I was also looking forward to meeting Pat Lowther face to face for the first time.

The reading was set for September 27, 1975. The day before the event, I decided to give Pat a call. I wanted to suggest that she read a couple of poems that I particularly liked. It was a very odd and troubling call. All our previous conversations had been spirited and optimistic. This was very different. Pat's voice was absolutely flat and colourless. She sounded as though every drop of joy or hope had been suddenly drained from her life. I was concerned and asked it there was anything I could do to help. Pat whispered "No" in the same lifeless voice and hung up, leaving me puzzled and worried.

I gave Lane a ring and told him about the disturbing call. He shrugged it off, saying that Pat tended to get depressed sometimes. I took his word for it and let the matter ride.

The following night, we gathered at the Ironworker's Hall. There was no sign of Pat Lowther and her phone rang unanswered. When it became obvious that she was not going to show up, Jeni Couzyn, David Day's then girl friend, offered to read in Pat's place and the reading went off without her. Several people expressed concern when the affair was over. Pat Lowther was not known to miss readings in such an offhand manner.

The rest of the sorry story is too well-known to dwell on at great length. In the days following the reading, it became apparent that Pat Lowther had totally disappeared. There were hopeful rumors that she had gone back East but the fact that she had left her two young children behind, made this theory unlikely. Eventually poor Pat's battered body was found in the bushes near Furry Creek on the Squamish highway. Her husband, Roy Lowther, was subsequently convicted of the murder and received a life sentence. He died recently in jail, writing finis to the whole gruesome business.

It has often occurred to me that, apart from her murderer, I may well have been the last person to speak to Pat Lowther alive.

A sizable crowd of poets and poetasters has shown up to honour Pat Lowther's memory. Some of the luminaries include: Dorothy Livesay; Phyllis Webb; Anne Marriot and Maxine Gadd. Star of the evening is Paulette Jiles, recent winner of three major poetry prizes including the Pat Lowther Memorial and the Governor General's Award. I am anxious to hear her stuff.

The affair is sponsored by the League of Canadian Poets and is hosted by Allan Safarik, an old poet friend of mine and one of the League directors. He and I are the only male speakers. Apart from us, it is wall-to-wall ladies, appropriate enough under the circumstances but a tad intimidating.

Diana Hayes, Western Representative for the Poet's League, introduces Allan Safarik. Safarik, who published some of Pat Lowther's early work and knew her well, gives a moving talk on her life and her poetry. Ironically, Pat had just begun to achieve national recognition at the time of her murder.

Safarik then proceeds to introduce Dee Livesay and eleven other women poets. Each mounts the stage in turn and gives a brief reading of Pat Lowther's work, including some of my favorites.

Following the readings, Safarik calls me to the mike. I tell essentially the same story with which I began this piece. I am followed by Hilda Thomas, politician-wife of folk-singer, Phil Thomas who goes on at some length about her relationship with Pat. Finally, writer Donna Sturmanis, tells how she stumbled upon a cache of Pat Lowther's unpublished poetry.

After a brief intermission, Paulette Jiles takes the podium and reads a group of very impressive poems from her Award-winning book, Celestial Navigation. Some of the pieces read more like dramatized monologues than true poems but they are extremely good and Jiles delivers them strongly. It is not difficult to see what all the excitement is about. Paulette Jiles is one hell of a writer. I make a point of telling her as much when her stint is done. Competition in the poetry business is getting tougher all the time.

That is about it for the Pat Lowther Benefit so Yvonne and I take our leave. It has been a rewarding session and a fine tribute to Pat Lowther, a highly talented poet, cruelly cut down in her prime. Her work and her legend will live on.

At the Twilight

The Amazonian jungles are the scene for this week's movie at the Twilight. The Emerald Forest is about a boy played by Charley Boorman, son of the director John Boorman, kidnapped by tribesmen and raised as one of them; his father, played by Powers Boothe, searches for him for 10 years.

When they finally meet again the boy has grown and wants no part of "civilized" society. If the two wish to know each other again the father must learn the ways of the tribe, called the "invisible people".

Boorman, who gave us Deliverance and Excalibur, is obsessed with man's residual primitiveness and explores this in The Emerald Forest. Based on a true story of a Peruvian lumberman's long search for his son along the shores of the Amazon, Boorman has brought to the screen the essence of life in the jungles, much of it as it was in Stone Age times.

The Emerald Forest plays at 8 p.m., September 4,5, and 6 and at 7 p.m. on September 7.

Following this sensitive and unusual movie comes Volunteers, starting at 9 p.m. on the seventh. Starring Canadian funnyman John Candy and Tom Hanks, Volunteers is a hilarious look at two widely different cultures and the bridges the Volunteers are trying to build between them, even if no one seems to want it.

Volunteers will continue until September 10, showing at 8 p.m. on the eighth, ninth and tenth.

At the Arts Centre

Exhibition continues, hours change

The exhibition of drawings and lithographs by Kevin McEvoy and pottery by Robert Shiozaki continues at the Arts Centre, Sechelt, until September 8.

As the Arts Centre is now returning to winter hours, please note that the centre will be closed Mondays and Tuesdays and opening hours will be 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, and 1 to 4 p.m. on Sundays.

Kevin McEvoy gave a most interesting demonstration of the lithographic process last week. If anyone wishing to attend missed this event and would like it repeated, please phone the Arts Centre at 885-5412 and we might be able to persuade Kevin to do it again. Or if you would like to get more involved Kevin teaches lithography from his home in West Sechelt.

The Annual Arts Centre Juried Exhibition is being held slightly earlier this year - from October 2 to 20. Deadline for bringing in works to the Arts Centre is Saturday September 28, 4 p.m.

Rules include up to three entries allowed, work to have been done during the past two years, and not previously exhibited on the Coast. We are pleased to announce that Burrell Swartz, recently returned from a year on scholarship in Germany, has agreed to be the juror and give a critique. Time of this to be announced later.

Singers sought

The coast's Centennial Singers will be auditioning for male voices this fall.

The group became popular with coast residents during its first year, performing in both a Christmas and Spring concert at the Arts Centre. The singers also participated in the Sunshine Coast Music Festival, receiving nearly unprecedented marks of 94 and 95, and considerable praise from the adjudicator.

Under the direction of Janice Brunson, the Centennial Singers perform a wide variety of music, from classical to folk and contemporary jazz and blues.

Two of the group's members will be leaving the Sunshine Coast, and the singers need replacements - so, if you're a tenor or bass who has been hiding your voice in the shower, why not try letting others enjoy it?

Interested men should have had some previous choral experience. Sight reading is a 'plus' but not essential if the enthusiasm is there. If you're interested call Jo at 886-2513, Alexis at 885-2102, or Allan at 885-9210.

Toast of the Coast

Lord Jim's Lodge is nestled in the beautiful setting of Ole's Cove, about five miles past the junction at Halfmoon Bay off Highway 101. It is worth a visit for the view alone.

On a recent "dining out" night we were warmly received and seated by a window table for two overlooking the pale blue waters of the swimming pool beyond which lay the spectacular view of Thormanby Island and the bay.

After dusk you could see the lights of far-away Parksville on Vancouver Island.

We started our meal by ordering the domestic house wine which turned out to be Canadian Hochteller, a pleasant taste for those who prefer a not too dry wine. Warm buttered French bread was served by Maureen, our attentive little waitress, while we took our time to study the dinner menu.

Specials offered on that particular evening were green pea soup and barbecued ribs with clams. This combination did not appeal to either of us too much, though it was probably quite delightful, so we chose to consider the other items offered which were Duckling a l'Orange with orange sauce and Grande Marnier served with rice, 8 ounce New York Madagascar Steak with green peppercorn sauce, Gilled Salmon Steak, or the ever popular Captain's Plate.

There was also the Barbecued Spare Ribs or Paella which was Spanish rice with chicken, mussels, crab, sausage and shrimp.

These offerings were in the price range of between $13.95 and $15.95. There was a nice variety of desserts in the $3.50 range.

The fish items are the ones most popular with our tourists, but since we are residents here on the Coast and find that we eat lots of fish at home, we opted for a meat dish.

My companion chose the Duckling a l'Orange while I opted for the 8 ounce New York Steak. I did specify that it be medium rare but received a well done steak. However, it was so delicious that there was no need to complain. It was served with an especially delightful green peppercorn sauce, buttered carrots and, wonder of wonders - a HOT baked pototo. So often one is served a half cold half done baked potato, but this was just right. The duckling was also enjoyed to the full and the proof of the fare lay in the two well-cleaned plates. We had neither soup, salad nor dessert, but finished our meal with coffee.

Bill for the main course dinner and wine came to a total of around $35 for the two of us. If you want to dine in a nice rustic and friendly atmosphere, Lord Jim's is the place to go. They are also open for breakfast and lunch, and have seating capacity for 120, making it an ideal location for banquets and weddings.

During tourist season it is recommended that reservations be made for dinner. Lunch selections include sandwiches, salads and hamburgers and start around $4.25.

MARGARET PREVOST

A multi-medal winner

A handicap overcome

"If you really want it you have to put your mind to it." That's how Margaret Prevost looks at life and it's that philosophy which has enabled her to win four golds and one silver medal at the B.C. Games held by the Wheelchair Sports Association recently.

Margaret, who was visiting Gibsons last week at the home of long time friend, Colleen Elson, is originally from Alert Bay. When she was just 17 she and her foster mother were involved in a serious car accident in Ontario, as a result of which Margaret suffered a spinal injury which left her a partial paraplegic.

"I was involved in sports before the accident," Margaret said in conversation with the Coast News, "and I just continued after I got out of the hospital. You could say I'm very determined. Even so it took me a year and a half to adjust to the wheelchair.

"In 1979 I went to my first Games and now I'm training to get on the team going to Hawaii," she said, "I've also been to the Pan Am Games and have competed in France."

In the 12 years since her accident Margaret has come a long way. She plays wheelchair basketball, volleyball, and competes in swimming, slalom, and track.

Training is a full time job. She now trains with track coach Adele Rogers in Vancouver.

"Mostly I go by my instincts," Margaret explained, "to learn how to deal with hills and go around corners. I'm going to compete soon in the Vancouver marathon before going to Hawaii.

I'm up early in the morning, and train for a few hours," she said. "I swim and do weights as well, and train in the afternoons too. You really have to dedicate yourself if you want to succeed."

Rugby teams set to go

Gibsons first and second 15 club sides scrimmaged against each other last Saturday at Elphinstone field. A planned exhibition match against North Shore's Capilanos did not materialize when the Caps unfortunately failed to appear.

Both third and fourth division sides played a strong, clean game that was a lot of fun.

This year should show a lot of continual changes as players begin to mature. The strong advantage of continuing a full season with two clubs is to allow experienced players the time to work with the inexperienced in game situations. Gibsons will do well this year so plan to catch a game or two.

Third division opens their season against Vancouver Trojans at Elphinstone field, at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, September 7, while the fourth division side heads to Klahanie Park to take on the Capilanos at the same time.

The club extends its congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Brent Lineker on the occasion of their marriage, and wishes them all the best for the future.

Both grand prize winners will enjoy a VIA Rail Getaway trip for two, including rail transportation and three nights hotel accommodation. Up to 10 entries will receive a special honourable mention prize form the NPCCC.

The contest is open to all Canadians, 60 years and over. Entries must be unpublished stories, fictional or factual, not more than 2,000 words long. The subject must relate to an event or era in Canadian history. Judges will be representatives of the literary community.

School Board gets to work

Highways Minister Fraser's response to a request from the school board for an extension to the road allowance beside Roberts Creek school to allow for a turn around for the school bus, that "the road would be a low priority" was considered unsatisfactory by trustees at last Tuesday's meeting. In the hope that the minister just doesn't understand the lie of the land another letter will be sent.

A letter from Pender Harbour asking about the future of the old Irving's Landing school presently in use as a Community Hall and badly in need of repair, was tabled to committee. Superintendent Denley was in favour of selling the property, "an asset which has become a liability".

A 35 page brief outlining "A people's plan for jobs, a future and economic security for the Sunshine Coast" presented on behalf of the Solidarity Coalition and the joint council of unions was received the board with the promise that someone would be invited to speak to trustees at a future meeting.

C.A.R.E. kits which help children from kindergarten upwards learn how to protect themselves from abuse were approved for all elementary schools. Funding for this is part of the special program allotment for sexual abuse approved by the ministry of education.

Considerable discussion took place over the use of funds accumulated in a non-shareable capital trust fund, monies left over from projects which were completed under-budget or for a variety of reasons not used have been put into a trust fund over the years to gather interest.

It was suggested by Secretary Mills that such funds might be better used in the classroom at the trustees' discretion and Superintendent Denley confirmed that the school's requirements for replacement and new equipment could not be met if the expansion of the districts computer program was to go ahead as planned.

Trustees decided to postpone a decision until the next meeting on September 10, which would give them time to study the district report on the use of computers in schools.

Trustee Strachan reporting for the policy committee said that child abuse prevention is the committee's top priority, that the new ministry of human resources booklet would be reviewed at their next meeting on September 4. A meeting with Mr. Walsh, executive director of policy for the ministry of education is arranged for September 9.

The communications committee submitted a mockup of an information folder to be given to parents, suggestions were accepted from the superintendent, parents and the press.

Transportation difficulties

"The schedule is flexible after all, now that we see it's been changed," pointed out Area C Director Jon McRae at the August 22 meeting of the Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD) transportation committee.

The blue bus which runs from Horseshoe Bay into Vancouver has just been given a new schedule, and the early morning bus which previously left at 6:55 a.m. has now been moved back to 6:50 a.m.

Long a matter of contention with commuters using the first ferry from Langdale, the bus company refused to change its schedule to 7 a.m. so that commuters could easily make the connection, saying that it was an inflexible and permanent schedule.

The re-scheduling means that commuters will, in all probability, miss the bus on most mornings.

Shaske then delivered the news that, as of September 3, the ferry schedule would be back to winter times, which will mean the elimination of the 10:30 a.m. ferry from Langdale.

"The ferry sits there, fully manned," he said, "all they save is the fuel. I want to write to B.C. Ferries and ask them to extend our summer schedule one month so that we can get more data to make a case for keeping this sailing."

It was agreed that such a letter would be sent although Director John Burnside made a wry comment.

"Sending a letter to B.C. Ferries through the Canada postal service, that's a bleak outlook."

A toast to the Trapper

by Brad Benson

"Trapper" Jack E. Smith insisted on a life of adventure. He was a naval drill instructor in World War II, sailed the seas in the merchant marine, travelled Africa managing a circus, worked the grain boats on the Great Lakes, served Canada again during the Korean War, and lived in Japan for two years before finally settling down as a trapper near Whistler in the mid-50's.

Alone in his cabin at Brandywine Falls, Trapper Jack began to jot down and save his occasional poem or short story. His spelling was self-admittedly terrible. He didn't care; he wrote anyway.

They tell of his wonder of the forests and its animals, his anger at the slums of the cities. Many are filled with humour and his philosophy of simple goodness is clear. He speaks of old age and of being in love.

Trapper fell in love after almost 20 years on the trap lines.

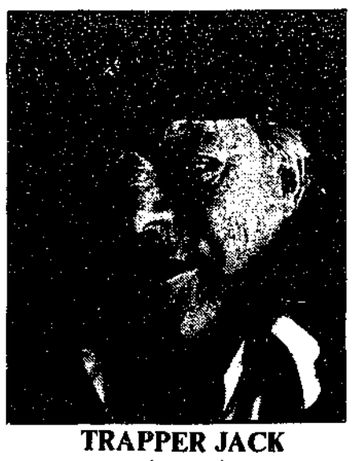
Don Russell, who was to know Trapper in Squamish and later in Gibsons, tells how it happened.

"He used to come into town, town being Squamish, and then he'd take the Union Steamships to Vancouver. He had a few people, lawyers or whatever that used to grubstake him, because he was into prospecting too.

"One day he came down from his trap lines to the Chinese restaurant, the Cariboo Cafe, in Squamish where he always ate. The old Chinaman rented these bunkhouses out back, so that's where Traper stayed. Anyway, he met this waitress there who, as it turned out, was his wife to be, Nellie."

"Talk about a whirlwind romance," said Don's spouse, Stella Mutch, "They met and that was it. They got married within 10 days and they never left each other after that."

Trapper gave up his trap lines and he and Nellie moved into a home in Squamish. As versatile as ever, Trapper earned a living by putting onto canvas his visions of the forests and seas.



TRAPPER JACK

According to friends, these were the happiest years of Trapper's life.

My Nellie
My Nellie is a redhead,
With eyes just like the sea;
My Nellie is a darling,
And she is the world to me;
My Nellie is a sweetheart,
She's given me a home;
No more now will I wander,
No more now will I roam;
My life with her is happy,
For she's my pride and joy;
My Nellie is my darling,
And I'm her only boy;
Now if one day it happens,
That we will be no more;
I want you's to remember,
Our love's for evermore.
Trapper Jack Smith

Nellie's death five years later hit Trapper hard. "He really went, well, you know, he took to the bottle and the whole bit," remembers Don, who was Trapper's neighbour at the time.

However, with the help of Alcoholics Anonymous, Trapper survived the trauma of Nellie's death. But, he never gave up missing her.

The Lonely Mountain
Like the lonely mountain;
Here I stand alone,
For I have lost my love!

Having recovered from Nellie's death, Trapper once again felt the itch to travel. He sold everything in Squamish and bought the Lady Germaine, an RCMP boat built at the Yarrows Shipyards in the 60's.

Trapper's misadventures on the Lady Germaine have now become a local legend and were the source for a Marc Strange "Beachcomber" script titled "Snapper Mac".

It started on Trapper's first venture when he left Squamish.

On his way to Jervis Inlet the boat broke down in Agamemnon Channel. He was able to get it working again, but decided to head back south along the coast. When, off the White Islets, the boat broke down again, Trapper had to call for a Coast Guard sea rescue.

The boat was towed to the nearest harbour and it was this incident that led him to discover Gibsons.

The Lady Germaine seemed to break down everytime he took her out. There was at least one other costly Coast Guard rescue, and as legend has it, he was finally informed not to go out in the Lady Germaine again.

He finally sold her to Bill and Eva Lamb, who have their own eerie tale to tell about that stubborn boat.

After putting a new engine and fixing her up, the Lamb's took her on a family outing to Hornby Island. All went well until the trip home. Almost in the same place as Trapper's first sea rescue, the engine died. Five harrowing hours later, Bill was successful in getting going again and they made it safely to harbour.

Eve Lamb had had a foreboding feeling since that morning. Before casting off, they had learned that Trapper had died in the night.

Whether it was to be adventure or misadventure, Trapper Jack's stubborn zest for life saw him as a soldier, sailor, circus manager, trapper, prospector, husband, painter, poet and friend.

So, a toast to Trapper; may those qualities that stood by him in his adventures through life, also have stood by him in his final adventure with death.

Guess Where

Arts Centre garden gets attention

"What we need are strong and willing bodies to help us complete the rockery," exclaimed Alice Murray, who, along with Arts Council President Eve Smart and Doris Crowston, is co-ordinating the Arts Centre garden committee's drive for funding to do the work.

Speaking in conversation with the Coast News last week, Mrs. Murray said that the students who had worked in the garden under the Canada Works program had saved the garden from disaster.

"If it had not been for the students we would have lost it all," she said. "They fed and watered everything, and just in time. It was all so dry, and some of our plants did die.

"The kids learned how to prune, and did a marvellous job, got all the horse tails out, although they're growing again all over the place," Mrs. Murray continued.

The garden committee, of which Alice Murray is chairman, is applying to the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation for a grant to purchase three heavy cedar benches, to employ a gardener on a part-time basis and to buy gardening supplies such as peat moss and fertilizer. The grants available from the foundation may be from $500 to $3,000.

Mrs. Murray would like to have all the plants in the garden carry a label, giving common and botanical names.

"A lot of tourists make a point of asking what the different plants are, and it would be great if we could have them marked clearly," she said. "Next year during Expo 86 we will be open seven days a week for tea and coffee and we would like to have all the gardening completed by then, as well as the benches."

Those who would be interested in providing refreshments during the Expo months should contact Alice Murray at 885-9662 as should anyone who would like to make donations of mulching hay, peat moss, fertilizer, small shrubs or dwarf plants, or, always welcome, time, energy or financial support.

Tourism group stays active

The Sunshine Coast Tourism Association is working with Southwestern B.C. Tourism Association on a number of plans to promote our area, and Tourism Manager Anne Langdon is quite excited about several of them.

"The Sunshine Circle is something that people are doing now," Langdon said, "They travel from the mainland to the Sunshine Coast and then up to Powell River and across to Comox. Unfortunately, they often don't even stop in Gibsons, Sechelt or Pender Harbour. By some comprehensive marketing we can have a good number of these tourists staying in our facilities and using our restaurants."

Langdon pointed out that a lot of this traffic is in off season, and any marketing thrust will be aimed at this period to off set the high season traffic problems.

A meeting in Vancouver next week to discuss this and other co-operative marketing schemes will be attended by Langdon and Economic Development assistant Helen Horne.

One of the items on the agenda is the publication of a guidebook for the area similar to one published this year for Vancouver Island. Langdon would like to hear from any tourist operators who would like to be included in the advertising in this book. Rates and further information are available from the tourism office at 885-7575.

Municipalities revitalize

"promotional aid" grant to help publicize joint merchandizing ventures.

"The first thing to consider is the maintenance consequences of what you do." Thomas noted. "Don't worry about the initial cost if the maintenance cost is low."

He also stressed the importance of colour, trees, lighting, canopies, quality signage and attention to detail.

"But it's no good just to beautify," he continued. "There must be promotion and joint marketing, too. Ninety-eight per cent of today's buying public is doing it as a recreational activity. The consumer wants to be wooed." Thomas stressed the importance of a strong merchants' association and of merchants working together on promotions.

"You don't have to go Cadillac," he concluded "You can build up in phases.

"But," he added, "don't get involved if you're not going to follow it through."

Against Scantech's fish farm

SCRD issues protest

the net pen display lease was applied for back in April, that it was for a fish farm?"

McRae said that that was the second phase of their application and that it had been brought up at a public meeting in Davis Bay on April 24. However, in an interview which was conducted by the Coast News with McRae after the public meeting, no mention was made of this development; the interview appears in the April 29 issue.

At the SCRD meeting on April 11 Scantech representatives had said that the Davis Bay site was required only for display of pens and possibly to allow aquaculture students to learn how to change nets without actually disturbing live fish stocks.

The board had previously been under the impression that Scantech was intending to use the Davis Bay site for U-Catch-'Em pens, which was deemed an inappropriate use for the site. In fact, according to the remarks made at the same April 11 meeting, the need for the Davis Bay site would end at the end of 1986.

It would therefore appear that the Davis Bay site was not intended to be used by Scantech as a home for the more than 100,000 salmon ordered on September 27, 1984 from the May hatchery on Nelson Island, since the fish, only between 8 and 10 grams each when delivered to Wood Bay in July 1985, would not have grown to harvestable size by the end of 1986, when the Davis Bay site was no longer required by the company.

The fish, not U-Catch-'Ems, according to the company, to lands, parks and housing and also according to Economic Development Commissioner Oddvin Vedo, would therefore have required a more permanent home, since fish are very susceptible to disease and mortality when moved more than is absolutely necessary.

After the Davis Bay lease for display purposes only, was denied no other lease was applied for, despite the fact that fish were on order until, as company director Clark Hamilton told the Coast News in an article published on July 29, the warm water temperatures on Nelson Island forced the company to apply for what has become a most controversial temporary lease, in order to save the fish.

It is interesting to observe that, in an August 21 article in the Victoria Times-Colonist titled "Sweetheart fish farm deal denied", and written by the Legislature Staff, no mention is made of the dying fish, although Deputy Minister Tom Lee, whose intervention brought about the granting of the lease ostensibly because of the fish, was extensively quoted.

The site is referred to as a site for a model fish farm, although, unfortunately, the article locates the site at Davis Bay, and not at Wood Bay where it is actually to be found.

A lawyer consulted by Wood Bay resident Mac Richardson has since advised that a loophole appears to exist; in order to get a temporary lease, such as the one granted to Scantech, no consultation or other process is required. however, according to manager of land administration Bob Gilmour of lands, parks and housing, a substantial investment at the site during the year's temporary lease would certainly favourably influence the granting of a permanent lease in the future.

A new association has been formed by local residents both at Wood Bay and also in the Secret Cove area to sit in on foreshore lease meetings and other lease applications which affect local residents.

"It's not just aquaculture we are worried about," said representative Alda Grames "it's anything that can affect people on the waterfront."

Chairman Jim Gurney spoke in favour of such an organization and said that the members would be included in future discussions.
