The rain held off until the ceremonies were completed at last Monday's inauguration of the new Sechelt District Municipality Council. Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs Chris Woodward, fourth from right, took the opportunity to present a gift of silver water jug and glasses for the council members and a new gavel for the Mayor as well as a cheque for more than $345,000 before a crowd of more than 100 people who took their chances on the weather to wish the new council well. —Dianne Evans photo

Coast to host B.C. firemen

The Sunshine Coast this week plays host to the Volunteer Firefighters' Association of B.C. (VFFABC).

The 1986 annual general meeting of the association of B.C.'s volunteer firefighters will be held in Gibsons on July 11, 12, and 13.

The VFFABC was founded several years ago by the Cloverdale and Sullivan Fire Departments in South Surrey with a primary view of obtaining adequate insurance coverage at reasonable rates. Current membership of the association includes in excess of 250 fire halls with over 5000 volunteer members.

Since its inception in Surrey the VFFABC has worked to improve the insurance coverage for accident and wage loss for firefighters and claims the best protection for firefighters available in Canada.

In addition to its efforts in the insurance field, the VFFABC offers educational courses and is particularly proud of the Edukit and certification programs developed for B.C. firefighters in association with the Justice Insititute of B.C.

The size of the VFFABC has enabled it to have a strong voice with provincial departments, notably the Workmen's Compensation Board.

The annual meeting of the VFFABC being held in Gibsons this week is only the seventh held away from the Cloverdale and Sullivan fire protection areas. It is a combined effort of all Sunshine Coast fire departments including Gibsons, Roberts Creek, Sechelt, Halfmoon Bay, Madeira Park and Garden Bay.

Dean Robilliard of Sechelt serves on the 14 man board of regional representatives of the VFFABC which backs up a four member executive.

The VFFABC tries to make the weekend of their annual convention a family affair and wives of local firefighters have organized many activities for the families of the visiting firemen.

A queen is crowned

Jennifer Rhodes, Miss Gibsons Volunteer Fire Department, is Sea Cavalcade Queen for this centennial year.

Jennifer was crowned by 1985 Queen Cindy Skytte at last Friday's pageant where judges Ken Sorko, Pat Matthews, Maureen Phillips, Jennifer Craig and Richard Blakeman had the difficult job of deciding who was to represent the Town of Gibsons, and the Sunshine Coast, during the coming year.

First Princess is Tracey Strom, Miss Andy's Restaurant, and Second Princess is Leilainia Larsen, Miss Royal Canadian Legion Branch 109. Miss Congeniality for 1986 is Leanne Middleton.

A cheque was presented to the new Queen by Mayor Diane Strom, and the Sea Cavalcade Trophy by Graham Edney.

Flower girl Miss Kerry Smith assisted in the ceremonies and Knight Shift provided entertainment while the judges made their deliberations.

The Coast News congratulates the new Queen, her Princesses and Miss Congeniality and wishes them well during the hectic year to come.

The bell that called students in to Gibsons' first schoolhouse was presented to Gibsons via Mayor Diane Strom by Mr. Norman Stewart at Canada Day celebrations. Mr. Stewart, 86, was one of almost 80 pioneers who received scrolls in honour of their long association with the community. —Fran Burnside photo

Crombie loss no obstacle

Shuffle doesn't faze Sechelts

by Dianne Evans

It will take "a minimum of a year" before the new Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development McKnight, appointed last week by Prime Minister Brian Mulroney to replace David Crombie, now Secretary of State, begins to understand the problems faced by Indians across Canada, Comox-Powell River MP Ray Skelly told the Coast News Friday.

"It's a tragic move...there are about 35 Indian groups within the riding who'll have to start over again," Skelly said. "It's awesome when you think of the work that's involved. Crombie was a grass roots politician. He spent a long time visiting virtually every Indian Band in the country... he saw the problems and he talked to the people. He needed five years (in office) to get things done."

The Sechelts do not see the change in ministers as an obstacle to their push for self government. Bill C-93, their enabling legislation, has already passed through the House of Commons and the Senate. It now has Royal Assent and it is up to the Sechelts to decide when Royal Proclamation is to occur.

However, the financial agreement is still proving to be a stumbling block. The agreement, which has been delayed since June 12, has now gone before the Treasury Board for approval. All the contentious issues have been agreed upon except one - the most crucial, according to Chief Stan Dixon and financial advisor Gordon Anderson - and that is the single transfer payment.

The Sechelts want their payment, moneys already agreed upon and similar to payments made to any other municipality, once a year rather than the four-times-a-year payments they presently receive under the Indian Act. However, the Board changed the agreement which the Sechelts presented from one single payment to ten per year, a situation Anderson says is "worse than what we have under the Indian Act!"

Skelly calls it the "perfect opportunity for the Department (of Indian Affairs) to meddle in the affairs of the Sechelt Indian Band" but believes that the change came about because the importance of the single payment was not realized by the Treasury Board. The Sechelts see a single payment per year as a symbol of trust on the part of the department.

The payment, $1.32 million, is the same base level rate as in 1981-82, Anderson told the Coast News: "We've never upped the ante. Our population is up, inflation has to be considered, but we have held the line."

"It will be tough to get it back before the Treasury Board," Skelly continued. "But it can be resolved. They just dropped the ball. The government needs this legislation to happen. To fail to do this would create enormous political embarassment."

Next year's First Ministers' Conference is the last on the question of Aboriginal rights and the federal government will find itself in a difficult situation if the one example of self government they can point to, one following on more than 15 years of work by the Sechelts, fails because of the Treasury Board's lack of understanding of the issue.

Dixon and Anderson will be returning to Ottawa this week as will Skelly to get the agreement back before the Treasury Board and all are optimistic that, once the situation is explained, the agreement will be finalized.

"Let's face it," Anderson said. "If they can't deal with Sechelt, they can't deal with anyone."

At public hearing

Fish hatchery rezoning discussed

The first public hearing for the new Sechelt Municipal District Council was held last Thursday evening and it drew a large crowd. There was standing room only when Council heard representations from local residents and the applicant, Tom May, concerning a proposed rezoning of land in Tillicum.

The rezoning would allow a large fish hatchery to be built on a 40 acre parcel of land. The hatchery, according to May, would be larger than his Chapman Creek hatchery with 20 to 30 per cent more eventual capacity but May told the council that it would not be visible from the outside of the property because it would be located in the approximate centre of the lot, inland from the water side. A warehousing facility had also been planned for the site but plans for this have now been scrapped although May said that his company may come to council in the future to ask for permission to build it.

Opposition to the rezoning focussed not so much on the hatchery but on the addition of another industrial zone to the Tillicum area. Local resident Mark Battersby who had helped spearhead a campaign to stop a new booming ground near Lambs Bay, said that Jackson Brothers should not be used as an example of an industrial zone because it had been rezoned specially simply because the booming ground already existed beside a residential area; the special zone allows only for booming and sorting of logs.

A further industrial zoning would make the recreational and residential nature of the area even more vulnerable to future industrial inroads, Battersby implied.

Environmental concerns were also expressed. The quality of the water coming from the hatchery would be excellent, May said, and told the audience that the fish raised in the hatchery would be disease free due to an expensive and voluntary screening program the salmon farmers undertake for their own protection. He did acknowledge however that no studies have been made on the impact of the hatchery's effluent on Sechelt Inlet, although he said that the Department of Fisheries and Oceans (DFO) were satisfied that any changes the hatchery would make to the environment would be beneficial to the wild stock.

At maximum capacity the hatchery will produce six million smolts although only half that number would be produced initially. The facility would be checked by DFO every time the smolts are to be moved more than 50 kilometres, hatchery manager Bob Anstead told the council. The facility is checked by the resident biologist every week, he added, saying that it is to the company's benefit to do so.

Although many present conceded that the hatchery itself

Sechelt Council gets down to work

The newly elected council of the new district municipality of Sechelt held their first formal meeting on Wednesday, July 2, and while what Mayor Bud Koch called 'the meat and potatoes' business of council still lies ahead, the new council addressed itself to some housekeeping matters in workmanlike fashion.

The first delegation to the council of the new district municipality was made by Sechelt businessman Bill Bailey. Bailey pointed to the need for new signage for the municipality.

"We need standardized signage throughout the village and on the approaches to it," said Bailey. "We need signs which will provide a little colour, a little fun, a little sophistication."

Bailey had several artists' representations of signage for the village which he felt might be appropriate and council agreed to consider the submissions as part of its revitalization deliberations to be held this month.

In other council business, a written request from Oddvin Vedo, Executive Director of Aqua West, for the allocation of a temporary bus loading zone on Teredo Street to 'accommodate bus parking for the Aqua West displays during the period from June 15 to October 15' was received.

Comment

Mulroney lacking

It is difficult to find much that reassures in the Mulroney cabinet shuffle. Sure, Mazankowski for Neilsen makes political sense.

Neilsen, the hatchet man for three Conservative Prime Ministers, was obviously adjudged to have become a political liability, but the totality of his dismissal from the corridors of power raised a few eyebrows.

Whatever else one can say about Neilsen, his loyalty to his leaders has been fervent and it might have been possible to allow him a more face-saving transition. Mulroney's failure to recognize that loyalty may result later in diminished loyalty elsewhere.

For the rest, there unfortunately remains the impression of a Prime Minister still more anxious to be seen to be doing something, anything, than a man coming to grips with the long-range difficulties that await Canada.

The folly of image politics is becoming manifest. The now-you-see-him-now-you-don't qualities that got Mulroney elected are the same qualities which conspire against him in office. The man seems shifty and lacks, or seems to at this point, integrity and stature.

Not enough

There is a lesson to be learned in the Aqua West experience. It is that vivid ideas and tireless hustling are not in themselves enough.

If such ideas and such hustling are not firmly rooted in the realities of local conditions little good can be accomplished.

Positive thinking of the rah-rah type is likewise not enough. Let us hope that we will now begin the business of preparing and improving our tourism facilities for the long haul.

We need more than quick fixes and ballyhoo.

We Remember When

5 YEARS AGO

The following announcement appeared in the Coast News:

The Councils of the Village of Gibsons and the Village of Sechelt along with the Regional Board will be meeting during July to discuss re-structuring of local government on the Sunshine Coast.

These meetings are the result of the recent meeting with the Inspector of Municipalities in Victoria on June 29, 1981...

Bud Koch, Mayor, Village of Sechelt
David Hunter, Chairman, SCRD

The Gibsons and Sechelt Post Offices continue to move local mail, despite a strike by 23,000 inside workers across Canada.

Members of the Canadian Pulpworkers Union 119 effectively closed down the Canadian Forest Products mill in Port Mellon at 8 a.m. Saturday, July 4.

From the editor: The salad business has gotten out of control. A bit of lettuce leaf, a messy conglomeration of apple, celery and marshmallow greased with mayonnaise, and the whole episode topped off with a red cherry is not a man's idea of a salad. Neither is a square of wiggly, slippery gelatine resting uneasily on a piece of lettuce. Certain salads have a place. In hot weather a good mixed vegetable salad, or fish product salads (preferably crab) hit the spot.

30 YEARS AGO

Two pupils from Sechelt Peninsula won awards at the annual competition of the B.C. Highland Dancing Association in Vancouver.

The two pupils from Mrs. C.C. Orcharde's dance group were Judy McKee and Judy Braun, both of Selma Park. Judy McKee won first award, a gold medal, and Judy Braun third, a silver medal, for their dancing in the Highland Fling, under 13 years.

It was a grand day for the Dominion Day celebration. This was the opinion of the close to 2000 persons who saw the parade on the highways and byways and who took in the festivities following in Kinsmen Park. There were 47 floats in the parade. A big Euclid logging truck was the centre of attraction because a special permit had been arranged to allow this monster to traverse public highways for the parade.

40 YEARS AGO

Egmont saw a very nearly fatal mischance recently when Mr. Marsden, chairman of the school board, and Mr. Funnel, a trustee, arrived to visit our school board. Due to lack of transportation it was necessary for them to hire a boat at Pender Harbour. The weather was not good enough for them to be out so they were sitting in the cabin. About the time of their arrival here Mr. Marsden became very ill and barely managed to get outside. Mr. Bill Griffith who came out to row them ashore was told that Mr. Funnel was asleep inside. Seeing one man very ill and being told that the other was sleeping, he at once suspected gas. He hurried into the cabin and found the man unconscious, though still breathing. Mr. Funnel being a heavy man, they had some trouble getting him out. When after considerable time he did not regain consciousness it was thought wise to make all possible haste back to the doctor and the hospital at Pender Harbour. It has been learned that the fresh air during the journey revived both men.

South Africa not alone in error

The volatile and tragic situation in South Africa has governments all over the world wrestling with the notion that to cut off trade and other economic dealings with that country will bring Botha's regime to its knees and force it to make real changes.

Those who argue against the idea say that the very people it seeks to help will be those who suffer the most. The black population will, they say, be in even more wretched straits than now. But many blacks are ready to die for change and their economic status is such that the words of an old Bob Dylan song seem appropriate -"When you've got nothing, you've got nothing to lose".

Those who argue for sanctions say that only by hitting the economy will Botha's government falter and this may be so, but one may also take the argument further and ask whether there is a country in the entire world with whom any of us should do trade.

There is no doubt that the people of the world must make their disapproval of apartheid known strongly to South Africa, and there is no doubt that that the system has to change but to do this without acknowledging that we too have our dark side is utterly hypocritical.

Little wonder that the United States, for example, still sends athletes and businessmen to South Africa and has failed to speak with its full power against the Botha regime.

Right now the US government is seeking to relocate 15,000 Hopi and Navaho Indians from their traditional lands to other locations. Why? So that mining companies can get the resources, including uranium, from the land.

Back in the days of frontier settlement this was the norm -move the Indians, take their land, destroy their way of life and to hell with the consequences, and the Indians. Things haven't changed much.

Imagine the entire population of the Sunshine Coast, about 15,000 of us, being ordered from our homes and resettled elsewhere so that an impersonal multinational can reap profit from our homeland. Think about it. That's what's happening to the Hopi and Navaho and it isn't much different from the homelands policy of Botha.

But then, to find out how it feels perhaps we should ask any number of Japanese Canadians who suffered relocation during the war. Canada is not without its shame as well.

It was just last May, not more than a few weeks ago, that the Senate finally gave third reading to a bill which will see the Grassy Narrows and Islington Indian Bands from Ontario compensated for the disastrous mercury contamination which nearly destroyed the Bands and did destroy the fishery upon which the people depended for a living.

That story goes back to the 1950's when Ontario Hydro flooded sections of the reserve land occupied by the Islington Band. One Man Lake was no longer fit for fishing; grave sites were eroded and the bones revealed; the wild rice crop was damaged in some areas.

Then in the 1960's the federal government relocated the Grassy Narrows tribe from its traditional river-side site to a place some distance away, on a logging road leading to Kenora.

This was to bring the people closer to modern facilities and government services. What it did do was bring the people closer to alcohol and by crowding their houses together it destroyed the fabric of their lives.

When in 1970 mercury was discovered in the English-Wabigoon river system the effect on the people was devastating.

The people, first uprooted and displaced, now had a new enemy, and one they couldn't see, taste or smell. Their traditional way of life was to be their undoing.

They lost that way of life, they lost their river and some of them lost lives.

That both Bands have been able to survive is a tribute to their perseverance and human spirit. People have been disabled and even killed by the poison which was dumped into the rivers by pulp mills in Dryden, Ontario; work which depended on the fishery was lost, lives were changed forever. And why?

To satisfy the need for profit and to fit into the bureaucratic picture devised by the Department of Indian Affairs.

In South Africa the path towards the present day has been different but the results are in many ways the same - people uprooted, people ignored and humiliated.

The attempt by any government or group to extinguish the human spirit, to form lives to fit a pattern that has no meaning for them, to damage or perhaps destroy a way of life simply to pay a better dividend at the end of the fiscal year is criminal, immoral.

That it happens in South Africa is tragic, but that it happens in the rest of the world cannot and must not be denied.

Search through recent history for the examples - the partition of India, the French testing of nuclear weapons in the South Pacific and its destruction of the way of life on numerous islands and atolls, the herding of the Jews into ghettos like that in Warsaw - the list, to our shame, goes on and on.

Let us be righteous but let us also be honest. One without the other will make our cry for justice hollow and render our protests meaningless.

Into My Heart

Into my heart an air that kills
From yon far country blows:
What are those blue remembered hills,
What spires, what farms are those?

That is the land of lost content,
I see it shining plain,
The happy highways where I went
And cannot come again.

Boat plagued by underwater vandalism

Sunken tug a scuba diver's delight

by David W. Griffiths

To most scuba divers the thought of a trip up to Jervis Inlet and its adjacent waters evokes images of sheer walls outlined with ghostly white cloud sponge (aphrocallastes vastus), the rainbow race of the Skookumchuck or the secret stands of scarlet gorgonian coral (paragorgia arborea) which occurs nowhere else on the planet in such diveable depths.

Unlike the surf-torn shores of the exposed west coast or the convoluted and reef-strewn channels of the Gulf Islands the emerald deep waters of Jervis Inlet have claimed few ships since Jose Maria Navarez aboard the schooner Saturna became the first white man to sight its entrance in 1791 and name it the Brazo de Mazzarredo.

Despite the area's relatively scant litany of maritime disaster it is interesting to note that one of its shipwrecks, the little steam tug Aliford off Nelson Island has, since its discovery by by Egmont diver John Seabrook in the mid-1970's witnessed more diver activity than any other mainland wreck.

Lost due to fire on September 17, 1917, the remains of the 37 ton Aliford now lie about 20 yards off the Nelson Island shore just south of the marker light at the eastern entrance to Agnew Passage in depths ranging from 40 to 80 feet of water.

Although the fire which ended her topside career and the nibblings of the relentless teredo have all but destroyed her wooden hull the tug's metal fittings and machinery lie scattered on the sloping bottom.

Home now to schools of Pile Perch (rhacochilus vacca), Kelp Greenlings (hexagrammos decagrammus), Quillback and China Rockfish (sebastes maliger and sebastes nebulosus), the vessel's encrusted steam engine seems frozen in mid stroke. Atop the nine foot by six foot boiler a pair of quite rare Decorated Warbonnets (chirolophis polyactocephalus) hold court while all about the wreck countless invertebrate lifeforms spin out their sedentary lives.

For countless novice divers the Aliford has been their first experience of a shipwreck, some of Canada's most accomplished underwater photographers such as Neil McDaniel and Lou Lehmann have honed their skills upon the wreck. The site has served as a training ground for wreck divers and would-be underwater archaeologists and a test area for new submersibles and remote controlled vehicles such as Can-Dive's Minirover and Phantom.

In short, the little Aliford has given so very many people so many hours of pleasure, reward and satisfaction. To most the wreck is something to be enjoyed and preserved for those who will dive down to her after us.

Unfortunately there is a darker side to the picture.

When Seabrook discovered the wreck she lay, save for her burnt hull in a relatively intact condition. Still connected to a rusting deck winch her anchor chain ran out to a single anchor lying in a hundred feet of water and no doubt dropped by a desperate crew in a last attempt to prevent the burning tug from drifting onto the rocks. Her brass steam whistle and other brass and copper fittings lay in the positions that they had fallen along with crockery from the galley and other artifacts relating to the early towboat industry of this coast.

John had hoped at the time to have the Aliford wreck included in an underwater ecological reserve proposed for the area so that the site would receive some protection and preservation for future generations of divers to enjoy.

Alas this was not to be. Soon after news of the discovery began to circulate within the B.C. diving community, divers from Vancouver removed the anchor which heralded the beginning of the end for the integrity of the Aliford site.

Letters to the Editor

More than just 'a bag of groceries'

Editor:

I am writing re: an article by Syd Heal (June 9), and I quote: "we as an industry are more impressed by a permanent resident making his livelihood here than the sometimes narrow view expressed by some cottage owners who spend a week or two on vacation and do nothing more than buy a bag of groceries or a tank of gas now and then."

I had not realized until I read this article there are some who consider us second class citizens because we do not work on the Coast and are part-time residents who spend about 40 per cent of our time there.

Has Mr. Heal noted that we pay taxes at exactly the same rate as the permanent residents? This year alone approximately $500 went to support the SCRD school system and we have been paying relative amounts for 17 years. We do not begrudge it and consider it just. Nevertheless we part-time residents do help to keep the school costs of the Sunshine Coast down for the permanent residents.

Then regarding purchases, we have spent most of our disposable income on the Sunshine Coast. We have bought lumber, gravel, fill, cement, hardware, gyproc and all supplies needed for a house from dealers in Sechelt. We have employed dynamite men, tree toppers, plumbers, electricians, roofers, concrete men, brick layers, carpet layers and more. All have been local men. We are currently looking for a roofer for another project.

Yes, we have bought "a bag of groceries" and lots more bags. We have family and visitors and like most people they enjoy food. We also fill our car tank with gas and also the boat's tanks with gas.

We also have paid mooring fees to marina operators. We not only spend money in the grocery stores but like the many stores of Sechelt. We appreciate the personalized service and help we receive. We buy books, knitting and craft supplies, dry goods, shoes, and clothing to name a few. We also have guests who enjoy the small-town shopping of Sechelt. We like going to local restaurants.

I do not feel there are many cottage owners who would spend merely a week or two on vacation. The financial investment is too great unless one spends more time there.

Finally many of us have bought land and built with the ultimate aim of retiring there.

This remark of Mr. Heal's can divide the community into two groups. I feel both resident and non-resident owners are contributing and both love the Sunshine Coast or would not be there. We should be endeavoring to work with each other rather than against.

The irony of Mr. Heal's remark is that I bought my property about 17 years ago from the Peninsula Development Company of which he was president. He did not at that time inform me of his opinions of cottage owners. Naturally he simply wished to make a sale and make money on his land development.

Car 54 sought

Editor:

One can only wonder where our town's finest are in their patrol cars - I'm talking about high speed traffic violators on Gower Point Road between South Fletcher and Dougal Road past Dougal Park, from about 10 a.m. on, daily.

I've seen these offenders wind up their cars at South Fletcher and reach in my estimation speeds of 50 to 80 mph by the time they pass the motel. These same cars end up sometimes half way through Dougal Road intersection before stopping - and it's always the same violators.

I can see a child being killed by these cars screaming down Gower Point and out of Glassford Road and Aldersprings Road, (two intersecting streets). Does this have to happen? Car 54 Where Are YOU!?

Mayor Strom is not amused

Editor:

Everyone involved in local government expects that, from time to time, local newspapers will offer criticism, some more constructive than others. As a general rule, the criticism of local newspapers is taken, as it is given, as an attempt to keep the populace informed and the government honest. Occasionally a crusade is mounted against a single issue or an individual, and that too is accepted as part of the function of a local newspaper. However, an advertisement such as appeared in your June 23 edition cannot be so accepted.

It is either very careless or very irresponsible to publish an advertisement offering a reward for vandalism and theft of public property, such as appears in your "Help Wanted" column, while the same issue failed to carry an advertisement which the municipality had requested be published.

Please be assured that if the theft and/or vandalism does occur, the Council will hold the Coast News jointly responsible with your advertiser.

Mayor Strom

Editor's note: It is agreed that the classified advertisement in question should not have appeared. It slipped through during the editor's absence on vacation. We apologize sincerely.

On the other hand, the advertisement 'which did not appear' was carried on the front page at no charge to the municipality.

Peace book in or out

Editor:

At the board meeting of March 25, both your paper, and I'm sure everyone else, at that meeting thought that the board had allowed that the booklet We Can Do It be distributed to Grades 2/3 via the elementary school system. Moreover, the board voted to make private and teacher association contributions of $100 each. This part of the meeting seemed good natured, consensus had been reached, and perhaps a tiny step to promote peace had been made.

On May 27, however the board defeated the motion that We Can Do It be made available to school libraries at no cost to the board. In other words the board have completely reversed their April decision, refusing to even allow a copy into a school library, and to provide no money for the reader. This is an interesting reversal that will hopefully stimulate those who are interested in promoting peace studies in our schools.

At the same meeting the board established a committee to develop a policy for peace education; interested parties should inform the board of their willingness to contribute to this process.

I am writing to thank you and your staff for your support for the 1986 Census.

Without the news coverage provided by your paper, and many others, the Census message would not have reached as many Canadians as it did. The information you provided to your readers about the Census was an invaluable contribution to its success.

Cavalcade plans underway

Despite the inclement weather Canada Day celebrations went ahead. The fireworks display was excellent and our heartfelt thanks go to John Reynolds for organization, Mike Rendelman, Albert Schroth, Doug Carmichael, and Murray Wilson for their able assistance. Also, to the B.C. Canada Committee for the grant monies which enabled us to purchase the fireworks.

Plans are well under way now for Sea Cavalcade. The Chamber will be sponsoring a Salmon Barbecue and open air dance on Friday, July 25. The Barbecue will start at approximately 4 p.m. and dancing will commence at 9 p.m. with the music provided by Mr. Music Man.

Concession stands will be on the site in the evening. The road through the lower town between School Road and Winn Road will be blocked off to traffic from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Friday night.

Gibsons Sea Cavalcade, July 25, 26, 27, will be bigger and better than ever. In honour of our 100th Birthday this year, many new attractions have been added to the weekend's festivities.

The Pacific Jazz Festival will be helping us celebrate by providing an outdoor Jazz and Beer Festival on Saturday afternoon, July 26. The Tailgate Dixieland Band will kick off a terrific afternoon of swing and jazz. The entertainment will continue with blues singer Jennie Legon and congo drummer Frank Clavin, also Fraser McPherson and the Roy Reynolds sextet. The "Big All Star Festival Band" which consists of a 17 piece band will by playing Wild Jazz Festival arrangements.

This is a terrific opportunity to bring the family. Pack up the lawn chairs, blanket, etc., and join us on the grass field at Gibsons Elementary at 1 p.m. for an afternoon of great music. Tickets for the Jazz Festival are located at Don's Shoe Store in Sunnycrest Mall, Gibsons Marina and Richard's Men's Wear in lower Gibsons.

Come help us celebrate our 100th Birthday. The Kinsmen are extending an invitation to one and all to help celebrate our 100th Birthday. The Kinsmen are extending an invitation to Parade on Saturday, July 26. Entry forms are available at Dockside Pharmacy in lower Gibsons and Seacoast Living in Sechelt. Let's make this a parade to remember! For further information please contact Paul Clay at 886-3287.

Remember to support the Sea Cavalcade by purchasing a Sea Cavalcade lottery ticket. There are over 30 prizes being offered thanks to the generosity of our local business and their suppliers. The proceeds of the lottery will go to make this years 100th Birthday celebration better than ever. Tickets are on sale all over Gibsons. Thank you for your support.

Roberts Creek

Help out at the Daze

by Jeanie Parker, 886-3973

Roberts Creek Daze is less than two weeks away but tickets can't be printed for the Mr. Roberts Creek Contest because there are no contestants. If nobody comes forward the event will be cancelled and a dance will be held on July 18 instead.

A lot of people grew up in Roberts Creek going to dances at the Community Hall on Saturday nights. The Committee urges them, be they Gibsons residents or whatever, to come back to the Hall for old times' sake and take a shot at the title of Mr. R.C.

Other Daze activities are coming together. The parade will be on Saturday, July 19, from 11 until noon. Entrants are asked to assemble at the Community Hall at 10 to get organized.

There's going to be a Pet Contest, races, sandcastle building, a Lip Sync Contest, and perhaps a Cakewalk. People who can help with these things or have other ideas are asked to come to the next meeting on Wednesday at 7:30 at the Community Hall or phone Debbie Osler at 886-3994 or Chris Luster at 886-2108.

Sue Shepherd still needs lots of help with kids' games. Kevin is lining up musicians for the day as well as organizing the barbecue and dance at the wharf on Saturday evening.

Anyone wishing to sell crafts or food should contact Yvonne Mounsey at 886-4610.

There will be a full schedule of events in next week's paper. But come out and be a part of it. This could be the last Daze unless more people get involved.

MARKET GOODS

The Roberts Creek Farmers Market has herbs, vegetables, crafts, home baking, and much more to offer the Saturday morning shopper. Vendors are welcome to come set up their tables, booths, or blankets in the park behind the Post Office from 10 until 1 every Saturday.

DAZE CHALLENGE

The gauntlet has been thrown. The Roberts Creek Legion Ladies' Softball Team has challenged the Volunteer Firemen to a rematch at Roberts Creek Daze. The Firemen haven't even had a practice this year but they're confident they can easily beat the women. Rumour is there's already heavy wagering on the game.

Sechelt Scenario

Sechelt invited to the fair

by Peggy Connor, 885-9347

COUNTRY FAIR TIME

The Country Fair at Halfmoon Bay is being held this year at Cooper's Green on Sunday, July 13 starting at noon, and Sechelt is invited.

Bring out your specialties to the "Family Favourites from your Kitchen" contest, all you marmalade makers bring and compare, little old winemakers, baking or jellies and jams. Whatever, our judge will do her best to declare winners in whatever categories arrive. Sponsored by Family Bulk Foods.

Smile and the world smiles with you. Once again Joan Clarkson, Halfmoon Bay's ceramic trophy winner has made smile cups for male, female and youngsters' biggest smile, and Lord Jim's Lodge is the sponsor. Just look for the guy with the biggest smile, that will be George Carpenter, and he will measure your smile.

SECHELT MERCHANTS

The street merchants in Sechelt had a lot of excitement going in the streets with sidewalk sales and sidewalk entertainment last Saturday, June 28.

The Mini-Mob, the 69'ers, Nikki Weber, fashions modelled from Marlees, Mime artists and lots of meeting of friends and stopping to talk.

BEARS AND MORE BEARS

Everybody has a bear story these days. I guess the berries up higher are slower in ripening so they are looking to feed their young. As long as they don't find my raspberry patch I'll let them alone.

Some kind of bug ate all the leaves off the red currant bush and the currants have disappeared, so my best crop is my raspberries.

Sechelt Seniors

by Larry Grafton

A special reminder this week to all Executive Committee and Committee heads, please attend the Executive Meeting at 10 a.m., July 8 in the hall. This will be an important meeting.

My last column was completed and sent in prior to the "Over 80's Tea" and consequently our hearty thanks go out to Jean and Bert Sherlock for providing a delightful afternoon for some 120 odd seniors and close to half of these over 80.

The tables were attractively decorated, the food was good, the over 80 ladies and gents received corsages or boutonniers. The 69'ers sang and Len Herder handled the Master of Ceremonies duties admirably. It was a tremendous get together enjoyed by all.

Following upon last week's column with regard to our new hall, a committee was formed in 1982 under the chairmanship of yours truly to look into the possibilities of providing new and more spacious quarters for our expanding membership. We worked hard exploring a number of different avenues of approach and finally settled on buying land and building a hall.

This entailed some fund raising to go along with branch money saved for the purpose. The fund was generously subscribed to by the membership of that era, and the land bought and paid for. The plans were then ordered drawn up by a local architect with working drawings soon to be coming to completion.

At this stage of our planning everything we have done has supported local business. This will also be the case when we build the new hall. We are naturally looking to government help to erect the building and hopefully we will reach this point soon.

Noting the lack of activity on the site so far, Mayor Koch suggested that such a parking zone would be allocated only when it proves necessary.

Finance Chairman, Alderman Graham Craig reported that the close to $345,000 received from Deputy Minister Chris Woodward during the opening ceremonies at Hackett Park last week was, for the present, deposited in a short term, interest-bearing account.

A report on the controversial uses of DL 3139, where the activities of Henry Hall have come under scrutiny by the Department of Lands, Parks and Housing is expected in the middle of this month. It is understood that the department is holding a meeting on the Hall operation this week.

George in Gibsons

Achievement tea

by George Cooper, 886-8520

The Sunshine Association for the Handicapped has recently presented John Weyburg, the man who designed the logo for the association, with a plaque in grateful appreciation of his time and skill which he had so freely donated.

Pat Juraschka, at present the supervisor of the Achievement Centre, reports that the strawberry tea on June 21 was a very successful afternoon.

"We almost had enough strawberries in the Achievement Centre garden," said Pat, "but had to get some berries elsewhere to be sure we had enough shortcake and whipped cream for our visitors."

She added, "It was a pleasant afternoon with Andrew Meketich adding to the festive atmosphere with some lively music on his accordion."

That afternoon Ronald Paul was in charge of the strawberry jam sales - jam made by the Achievement Centre clients themselves. Other products for sale at the Centre are cedar planters and containers for hanging baskets, picnic tables, oven boards, cribbage boards, bird houses. And for the log sorting companies, boom boards and boom plugs.

"We are also offering services like envelope stuffing, and folding and addressing newsletters," said Supervisor Pat Juraschka, "and we expect to do baking for receptions on consignment."

Sunshine president Peter Bandi says that the computer recently set up in the Centre will provide the equipment for clients to learn some computer skills.

"The Association has another thank-you for the help two Elphie Grade 12 students gave the Centre clients in a reading program. Thank you Becky Sim and Jay-Ann Eldred."

GRAD NEWS

Ryan and Bruce Hogan, two of Elphinstone's grads a year ago, have continued post-secondary studies this past year.

Bruce completed a drafting course at Capilano College and right now is scouting about for a job.

Ryan, a Canfor bursary winner, did first year sciences at Capilano College and intends to continue. Ryan is working at Expo, part of the Monorail staff. He told his mother Pat that during the Royal visit he had a front row seat in his monorail car and was thrilled to see Princess Diana and Prince Charles so close by.

Joel McKown, who was awarded the Jim Cooper and the Gibsons Kinettes bursaries in 1985, did a year of Arts, History and Political Science in Capilano College this past winter.

This summer Joel is working with his uncle in Colorado in the construction business.

Lorne Carroll, last year's winner of the Sunshine Coast Medical Society bursary, had a very successful year in Sciences at SFU. Lorne has taken aim at a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree.

Jay Gledson attended New Caledonia College in Prince George in first year Arts, and intends to return for his second year. Jay was awarded the Elphinstone New Horizons bursary last year at Elphinstone.

This summer Jay is working in Prince George at a General Paints outlet and in his spare time at the Burger King - a very full work week.

Winner of the Roland Kerbis bursary last year, Jim Holland, has attended Capilano College in first year music. Jim intends to continue his studies in music at the college next year.

It's your serve

by Joan Wilson, 883-9606

IT'S YOUR SERVE

Tennis is always popular here in the Harbour, especially with courts at the secondary and at Irvines Landing, although the latter could use a little TLC from a few strong tennis buffs to get it back into shape.

Ron Knight is back with lessons for all levels. Beginners have three classes to choose from, either July 14 to 17 or July 28 to 31. Novices can sign up for either time, while intermediate players have one class July 28 to 31. Cost is $25 for five hours of instruction.

The kids get individual attention, free Pepsi, prizes, badges and T-shirts from the sponsors: Pepsi and Wilson Sports Equipment.

This is the third year in a row that Pender Harbour has received sponsorship - quite an achievement. Sign up your seven to 15 year old now for lessons, and help them learn a sport for a lifetime.

Register at Centre Hardware, or call Ron Knight at 883-2854 for more information.

QUILTERS' GUILD

If you are a quilter (or want to be one), you may be interested in a quilter's guild for the Harbour. Rosa Ware is getting names together for the fall. Call her at 883-9368 for information.

FAREWELL

Pender Harbour Pentecostal Church is sad to have to say goodbye to Pastor Tim Shapcotte and family at the end of the month. Please come out on July 25, 7 to 9 p.m. at the church, for a farewell social for Tim and Donna. Everyone is welcome.

GRADS EXCEL

PHSS grads of '86 received many local scholarships and bursaries to help with post-secondary plans. Three of our scholars also won scholarships from the institutions which they plan to attend: Mike Phillips from Simon Fraser, John Griffith from UBC and Michelle Cochet from Capilano College. Congratulations and good luck next year!

AVON CALLING

Our new Avon Lady is no stranger to the Harbour: Eileen Alexander of Garden Bay. If you need some products, please call her at 883-2437.

BARGAIN READING

If you need some reading material, try the Bargain Barn on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturdays. You can get a handful of light summer reading for a bargain price. And if you don't find what you want, walk across to the library, which is open those same afternoons. For a very modest fee, you can become a member and enjoy your summer reading. Bring the children, too, and encourage them to read during the holidays.

NEWS WANTED

Summer is a time when everyone relaxes or goes on holiday. That means a shortage of community events. Please don't forget to let me know what's happening! Nine to 10 a.m. is the best time (yes, I sleep in during the summer). Or drop me a note at Box 362. Don't miss out on free publicity!

- 1 pound boneless pork butt

1. Blend the first six ingredients in an electric blender until smooth.
2. Cut pork butt into 1 inch cubes and marinate in the sauce mixture for about two hours in the fridge, turning occasionally.
3. When you are ready to cook, drain the pork and skewer it. Brush with oil and place about two inches away from broiler turned to its highest heat. Turn until the pork is crisp and brown - about 8 minutes.

This recipe can also be used for barbecueing. Along with this do up some:

CARROT FOOGATH

- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- 1 sliced hot banana pickle
- 2 cups coarsly chopped carrot

Melt the margarine and gently fry all ingredients for five minutes. Cover and continue cooking for another 10 minutes. Serve sprinkled with a tablespoon grated coconut, fresh coriander leaves or chopped parsley.

And to complete your meal, cook your rice the usual way but serve with this unusual sauce:

SPICY PEANUT SAUCE

- 1 tablespoon oil
- 1/4 cup chopped green onion
- 1 clove garlic, chopped
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1/4 cup peanuts
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon brown sugar
- 1/8 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1/2 teaspoon lime juice
- 1/8 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 crumbled dried chilli

1. Fry onions and garlic in oil till golden.
2. Mix boiling water and bouillon cube.
3. Grind peanuts in a blender.
4. Add all ingredients to onion and bring to boil, stirring constantly. Cook on minimum heat for 10 minutes and stir occasionally.

At the Writers' Festival

Self publisher and magazine editor

by Leslie MacFarlane

Okay. You've written a novel but you can't sell it. The publishers say it's saleable but...

Marian Crook, author and self-publisher of such books as A Yen For Trouble, A Deep and Singular Greed and A Question for Justice, maintains that there IS a way out of the trap.

"I started my publishing life as a writer...and no idea of self-publishing. The 1981 recession convinced me that any published manuscript was going to have to be a self-start venture!"

A Yen For Trouble hit the shelves in 1982 and was followed by a series of other self-published books, all of them doing well.

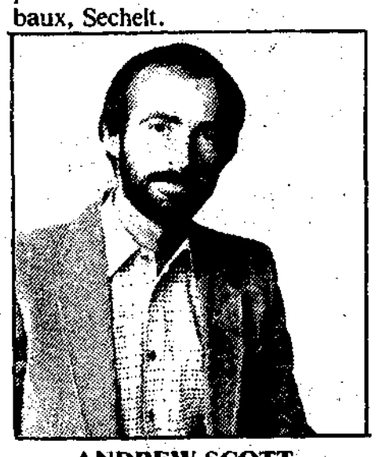
Taking complete charge, she learned the ins and outs of the publishing business including the value of publicity.

MARIAN CROOK

"The trick in publishing," she says, "is to indulge yourself in this creativity - profitably!"

Well, goodbye Grolier, hello Crook Publishing!

Marian Crook will be lecturing on the ins and outs of self-publishing at the Festival of the Written Arts, Sechelt on Sunday, August 17 at 8:30 p.m. For more information and tickets please contact The Shadowbaux, Sechelt.



ANDREW SCOTT

Andrew Scott, editor of Western Living, will be lecturing at the Festival of the Written Arts, Saturday, August 16 in Sechelt.

Born in Wales, he moved to Canada with his parents, moving from East (Fredericton) to West (Calgary), then settling for good in Vancouver.

"I've always been active as a writer. Before working as a journalist, I wrote and published poetry and short fiction."

Later, he turned to journalism, writing for such magazines as The Mysterious East, The Vancouver Sun, and of course, Western Living.

"I did reasonably well," he says. "Unfortunately, doing 'reasonably well' as a freelance journalist generally means living a hand to mouth sort of life. I began to look around..."

Two years later, he was offered a position with Western Living as assistant editor.

"I thought Western Living would be a temporary work stint...but six and a half years later, I still find the consumer magazine format a challenge and a source of excitement...

"The perfect Western Living still escapes me," he admits, "even though I feel we regularly come close."

Perhaps he'll find it in Sechelt! For more information and tickets please contact The Shadowbaux, Sechelt.

Pages from a Life Log

Stumbling after Tom Waits

by Peter Trower

During the traumatic period of the lost briefcase, Industrial Accident did not go into eclipse. Terry and I continued to work up new material and rehearse it with the others. Rocky left the area for awhile to work on a film and bass player, King Anderson, a local artist and another long time friend, joined the group. We began to get tighter and more disciplined.

Terry continued to provide great tunes and moody background music for my songs and poems. Not everything worked. One song called The Destiny Tree, proved too awkward to adapt and we finally discarded it. But Terry was usually successful in scoring the material. He often spotted potential in pieces that I had considered quite inappropriate. Such as the following:

WHISPERING CHESTER

draws a pension for his lost voice
I help to drink him poor in the crummy room where we killed my welfare wine
the night before.

The thirst makes us drink - the drink makes our words work -
Chester got it in the war
He speaks in a dim rasp -
I mumble -
We're a great pair.

Drunker we get -
Chester's spooking out a story when quick as knocking back a beer his voice breaks to normal - no more whispering about it -
He's talking loud and clear.

He blows his cover for a bit suddenly realizes and resumes his livelihood
"Listen," he husks just like always,
"you won't never tell no one will ya, kid?"
Cowderoy/Trower c.1980

Since no more engagements for Industrial Accident seemed to be immediately forthcoming, Terry and the others assumed a double identity and began playing as a blues/reggae group. Under the soubriquet of Full Watts, they strutted their stuff at various pubs and dances. I stayed at home writing and hoping something would come up before we lost our momentum.

Sometime in late November 1980, I had a call from Mona Fertig at The Literary Storefront. Evidently, our somewhat ragged act had gone over well with the patrons and she wanted us to do a return engagement shortly before Christmas. Susie Whiton would share the bill with us again. It was encouraging news.

I got together with Terry and the others and we worked out a new and longer act, incorporating several new pieces of material.

Our second stand at The Storefront with the augmented group, took place on that famous Day of Infamy, December 7. It was impossible not to think fleetingly of 'bombing'. Fortunately, we didn't.

Actually, this second gig went much more smoothly than the first. Terry did an excellent job on the slightly tongue-twisting lyrics of Blowpit Blues and I managed to stumble through the other homemade ditties with a minimum number of goofs. All the tedious rehearsing seemed to be paying off. The audience (which included Bob Hunter and his wife) was, as they say, small but appreciative. The whole thing wound up in another exuberant jam session where Susie and I traded choruses on Kansas City and Terry did his dynamite version of Chuck Berry's Promised Land. It was a fantastic evening and this time, I managed not to leave my briefcase in the back alley.

Residence programs new Festival feature

The Festival of the Written Arts will move further afield this August when two four-day writers-in-residence programs will be conducted at the Ranger's Station in Madeira Park.

"We're terrifically pleased," Festival organizer Betty Keller told the Coast News. The regional board is at present finalizing negotiations for the site which will be used as a park and community facility.

Area A Director Gordon Wilson was instrumental in getting the Writers' Forge permission to use the site, Keller said.

"He feels as we did that it was time we took part of the Festival somewhere else," Keller said. "This is the ideal thing."

The group is doing clean-up at the site, which has been vacant for some time. Volunteer work parties, co-ordinated by Jan de Bruyn, will be formed to do the work. Those interested in helping are encouraged to call Jan at 885-5518.

There will be two programs offered during the Festival.

One, funded in part by Canada Council, features Aretha van Herk, fiction writer and teacher, and the other has as its instructor Daniel Wood, non-fiction writer and teacher.

One of the most interesting parts of the program, Keller said, is the opportunity for writers to book an hour's consultation with either van Herk or Wood. Work must be submitted beforehand.

"If you've written a book, for instance, then you can have it looked over, to see if you've got something good," Keller explained. "You can have an hour's time with someone who can really talk to you about your work."

For Consultation Applications write to Writer-in-Residence program, Festival of the Written Arts, Box 2154, Sechelt, BC V0N 1V0.

At the Arts Centre

As history is being made with the advent of self-government for the Sechelt people (the first band in Canada to reach this point), history is reviewed as the Arts Centre in Sechelt presents a display of photographs and artifacts devoted to the local Indian Band.

With the generous assistance of both the Band Council and the Elphinstone Pioneer Museum, some rare and fascinating items have been collected.

Many have become known for weaving and basketry and some very early examples of Salish baskets are included as well as photographs of blankets being worn and given away in potlatch ceremonies.

The life of women, the role of the church, the residential school and Tsoh-Nye, leisure and ritual activities are also highlighted. Some of the photographs from the collection of the Provincial Museum in Victoria show band life being 'diluted' by European influence.

The public is invited to view this interesting display Tuesday to Saturday, 10 to 4 p.m. (except July 8) and Sunday p.m. and to meet band members at a reception at the Arts Centre July 12 at 2 to 4 p.m.

Garden Club news

by Marguerite

The memorial tree planted in Pioneer Park recently by the John Glassford family is called "Acer Palmatum Maple Green" with very attractive colourings, and will offer some shade later on.

Many people have enquired about the "Poached Egg" flowers or "Limanthes" as it's called, seed will be available from the Garden Club, and those people who are entrants in the Gibsons Garden Centennial Contest, 1986, will have some given to them.

So keep deadheading finished blossoms on your plants, to promote growth and flowers, and remember to send in names, addresses and phone numbers of appealing gardens you see in Gibsons. You may enter as many as you wish; phone 886-9527 or mail to Box 461, Gibsons. Enjoy gardening.

Toast of the Coast

The drive from Gibsons to Irvines Landing up near Garden Bay is long but it's well worth the time it takes to get there. The scenery is lovely and one could easily contemplate taking a vacation in the area.

And when you get to the end of the road there's the Irvines Landing Restaurant, newly decorated and with brand new menus for lunch and dinner.

It's a sunny spot with a view over the bay and a decor straight from an European art deco decorating magazine. The service is good and the place is small enough to be friendly and warm.

It isn't far from Irvines Landing to Roosendal Farms which is where the fresh produce comes from. The menu cautions that it may change 'to reflect the best local ingredients available on any given day' but that's one of its main attractions.

My friend and I were hungry when we arrived for lunch. The Clam Chowder, 'in the tradition of (past owner) Maurice' is what my companion was waiting for while I decided on the soup of the day - vegetable -and a fresh chicken sandwich.

Neither of us were disappointed. The chowder was just like the good old days, and my vegetable soup was obviously made from fresh ingredients. To accompany the chowder we had ordered a Mediterranean salad and here the freshness really shone. Everything was crunchy except the Feta cheese - even the lettuce in the sandwich was crisp.

We split a serving of warm cherry pie and ice cream and we both brought in a verdict of delicious!

The menu for dinner made us both decide to return at a later date - for example the Baked Prawns with Feta and the Tomato and Onion with basil vinaigrette sounded very tempting as did the Primavera (fresh vegetable) fettucine or linguine and the B.C. Smoked Salmon.

Desserts at night are 'At the whim of the Chefette' and there's also a very pleasing wine list with some seven reds and an equal number of white wines as well as a full slate of liqueurs and other cocktails.

The Irvines Landing Restaurant is also open for breakfast and that menu offers Crepes, Eggs Benedict and 'The Perfect Omelette'.

Taking a vacation close to home sounds wonderful, especially if breakfast, lunch and dinner at the Irvines Landing Restaurant could be part of the deal.

If your summer visitors want to see a little more of the Coast take them for a drive - make a day of it and whatever you do, include at least one meal at Irvines Landing. It will be a pleasure for you all.

Local lad for B.C. soccer team

Langdale student Ken Campbell, 15, has been selected to play on the under 16 B.C. Soccer team and will be going to Calgary on August 9 to play in the National Championships.

Ken has been playing in the city for four years on the Lynn Valley team where his coach decided that he was good enough to try out for the provincial team.

Ken has been going in to the city every Sunday for months to play in special games. More than 200 boys were chosen to try out and after each Sunday game some were cut, until last week when only 22 people were left.

"Last Thursday we played a game and 16 of us were selected for the team," Ken told the Coast News.

The Canadian Nationals will provide a further opportunity for Ken. From all the teams, representing every province, coaches will pick the best players to stay behind and try out for the Canadian team.

"Next year there'll be a Junior World Cup and it'll be held in Canada so Canada automatically qualifies," Ken explained. Being on the Canadian team means not only playing in the Junior World Cup but having the opportunity to travel worldwide competing in other tournaments.

Ken would like to try and make soccer his career. He is committed to the game, having travelled from his home in Langdale to Lynn Valley four times a week for several years; next week it will be a trip every day for Ken.

Bantam boys aged 14 and 15, $50.

All equipment will be supplied. For further information please call Gary at 885-7435 or Bill at 885-9842.

Fastball League hosts tourney

This coming weekend, July 13 and 14, the Sunshine Coast Men's Fastball League is hosting its annual invitational ball tournament. There are 12 teams entered with three local teams and the rest coming from the lower mainland.

The tournament will provide two days of round robin games with the play-offs on Sunday afternoon.

There will be a food concession and beer garden available. As well, the Gibsons Winter Club is hosting a steak dinner and dance on Saturday evening.

This is the 20th anniversary of the Men's Fastball League on the Coast. There are still three active players from the grand old days of 20 years ago. They are Freeman Reynolds, Alex Skytte and Carrie Eldred of the Elphie Old Boys.

Come on out this weekend and cheer your team on as they try to make it into the finals.

Mousers take Cranes

Langdale field saw history last week as the Mighty Mouse Day Care warlords advanced from a 0-15 record to squeak their first victory over the Power House Crane squad.

After trying to discover face value of the first two balls, coach Pedro Gomez-Grey saw a different side of slow pitch. Marianne Harbour Mantle let number three go and as it glided forever towards home plate Gomez decided to check out this different side. Checking was a mistake as the ball bounced ceremoniously on the strike pad leaving Pedro Gomez in a heap of frustration.

Obviously quite shaken from the early pressure, Gomez-Grey limped to the pitching mound ready to retaliate. The onslaught was awesome as the swinging mice pounded Pedro out of the park clinching their first victory of the year.

Pat and Roy Scarr take Walter Morrison trophy

by Alec Warner

The Walter Morrison Memorial Match Play (1st & 2nd ball), played over the last two months, ended with the team of Pat and Roy Scarr defeating the team of Marion Reeves and Freeman Reynolds in the final of the championship round to win the trophy. The winners of the consolation round were Pat and Vic Vaughan with Bev and Frank Taber in second spot.

The men's Two Ball-Best Ball Match Play Tournament, also played off during May to June ended with the team of Bill Fraser and Glen Philips winning the final and the trophy over the team of Leon and Art Dorias. Winners of the consolation round were Dan Belle and Bill Gibbons with Russ McLeod and Brent Turner in the runner-up spot.

The Summer Mixed Scramble had a good turn-out despite the slightly inclement weather. The winning team on Sunday, June 29 was Ken White, Jack C. Ross, Dick Tohurst, John Petula and Isobel Cowley. In second place, the team of Doug Elson, Phyl Hendy, Bob Rose, Ann Burton and Alec Warner.

Mixed Twilight of June 30 featured an Alternate Shot Round (teams of two). First place was won by Jo Emerson and Bob Knight; second, Vi Gibbons and Les Cowley; third, Hazel Wright and Wilf Nestman; fourth, Eleanor Knight and Ab Chambers. Three teams tied for low putt honours: Lila Chambers and Bill Clancy, Adeline Clarke and Geo Cooper, and Louise Dorey and Jack White.

On Tuesday, July 1, the Ladies' Eighteeners braved the weather to play the second and finishing round of the Marg Langdale Eclectic with Mardi Scott emerging as winner with a final net 59 and Lil Fraser finishing second with a net 61.

Tuesday's day competition was a count par 35 and 5's only, with Mardi Scott winning the first flight (net 31), closely followed by Connie Grant at 31½. Second flight winner was Barb Lawrence (30½) and runner-up was Helen Milburn (32). Isobel Rendleman broke 90 with an 89 on June 26.

Heavy rain discouraged many of the Ladies' Niners on July 1. However, of the seven hardy souls who completed the second day of the Marg Langdale Tournament, first was Hazel Earle; second was Eleanor Knight and third was Isobel Cowley. Members who "Beat the Champ" the previous week were Hazel Earle, Mary McKinnon and Edna Fisher.

On Thursday morning, July 3, the Men's Seniors played a Best three Nets round when 76 teed off at 8:30 a.m. First with a net 94½, the team of Jack Knaus, Norm Constantine, Al Bullock and Doug Gillett. Second at 98, Vic Vaughan, Bob Carruthers, Tom Meredith and Bill Cormack. Third at 98½, Bob Emerson, Jack Ross, Ted Henniker and Jack White. Vic Vaughan snugged his ball up closest to the pin on the eighth.

Halfmoon Bay Happenings

Last call for the fair

by Ruth Forrester, 885-2418

At the time of writing there are still some booth spaces available at Cooper's Green for the Country Fair on Sunday, July 13 at noon. So you have a few days in which to give Andrew Steele a call at 885-3973 to reserve your space for $10. The Green is going to be a very busy place that day so it is a great opportunity to sell your wares and handicrafts.

Prior to the fair will be the Car Rally with a prize of $100 at stake. This will take place on the Friday evening of July 11. Registration fee is $10 per car. Cars will assemble at Halfmoon Bay School between 6 and 7 p.m., and you will need a driver with license and a navigator. You also need a map of the Sunshine Coast, a flashlight and a full tank of gas. This promises to be an exciting event, and for registration and further information call Barb at 885-5448 or Dianne at 885-7026. Deadline date for registration is Wednesday, July 9.

The next event is on Saturday morning, July 12 from 8 a.m. until 11 a.m. at Halfmoon Bay dock. This is the kids' fishing derby with two age categories -four to eight, and nine to twelve years. Free hot dogs drinks to all entrants, courtesy of B&J Store.

On Sunday morning, prior to the fair opening ceremony, all those participating in the three and a half mile trophy race are asked to assemble at Cooper's Green at 10:45 a.m. sharp. For those who would like to join in a "Family Run" along with your kids, be there at the same time.

There is a need for volunteers to man various stations along the route, between Connor Park and the Green. If you would like to offer help call 885-5449.

Opening ceremony will take place at noon with the singing of the national anthem. Sechelt's May Queen Tanya Wishlove will be in attendance for the ceremony.

There will be something for everyone at the fair with special events for the children - races, clowns, games, face painting, kite contest, dunk tank - you name it, it's there! There will be volleyball, horseshoe pitch, bingo, beer garden, tea room, teacup reading, "Family Favourites from your Kitchen", and lots of "White Elephants".

If you have any items you would care to donate to the white elephant section you could drop them off any evening at the Forrester residence across from the Green.

Tickets are now on sale for this year's raffle which will be quite a nice prize for the winner. It's a 50-50 money prize which means that the winner receives half of the proceeds.

For those of you who have reserved, or are planning to reserve booth space there will be a special meeting at the Green tonight, Monday, July 7 to check your location. There is also a need for some strong arms to help set things up for the fair.

Andrew Steele would be happy to hear from any volunteers. The whole fair is quite a big project and lots of willing helping hands are made welcome.

We hope to see all residents and their friends at the Green next Sunday. Come one - come all!

Get well soon

by Jean Robinson, 885-2954

"Get well soon" wishes go out to Jean Barclay, laid up with a broken arm, and Hazel Seeton, taking it easy after a stay in hospital.

George Gee is sufficiently recovered from his accident to be out and walking. Holmes Gardiner is spending time in his garden now, he is feeling that much better. Good going men.

Would Dorothy Franklin, or anyone knowing her whereabouts, please phone me. It concerns two pool tables of hers.

PIONEER PICNIC

Don't forget the Pioneer Picnic at Whitaker Park on August 17. The usual races, soccer game and corn on the cob will be featured. We just may have a kiddies decorated bicycle parade as well. Of course the Pot Luck Supper is always popular so plan on joining the other families in the area.

FOOD BANK

Reminder for those using the Food Bank. Summer dates are July 9 and 23, August 6 and 20. Mark those on your calendar.

LETTERS

The following is a letter from Pastor Arie de Vos to his parishoners. He will be replaced in August by Ed and Ruth Peters with their children, Jocelyn - 8 and Jerel - 6, from Saskatoon.

"Dear friends; my wife and I would like to express how much we have enjoyed our six years on the Sunshine Coast.

"We came here to serve the area as Village Missionaries and as Pastor of the Sunshine Coast Gospel Church at Davis Bay. We have come to know and love many people and have enjoyed our ministry among you.

"We are moving to Whonnock, B.C. where I will serve as Pastor of the Whonnock Christian Fellowship.

"Our lives have been enriched by yours. To all our friends and acquaintances, we want to say a hearty thanks for your generous acceptance of us.

"We wish you all God's continuous blessing. Yours in Christ, Arie and May de Vos."

Socreds select

A meeting of the McKenzie riding Social Credit party was held in Sechelt on Saturday, July 5, to select the 25 delegates and five alternates who will participate in the Whistler convention later this month to select the new Premier of B.C.

A spokesman for the Social Credit party told the Coast News that the list would have to be approved in Vancouver before being released.

was not objectionable the whole issue of the future development of Porpoise Bay seemed to be uppermost in most residents' minds.

"Is this what we want to do with Porpoise Bay?" Battersby asked. "Now council has the responsibility of a large area of the Inlet. Will there be a commitment not to nickel and dime it away. Will council develop some plan?"

Municipal planner Rob Buchan replied by saying that an update would shortly be undertaken on the Sechelt Community Plan and these basic questions would then be asked. Mayor Bud Koch also gave an undertaking that such a plan would soon get underway which would "lay some of the fears to rest".

May offered to place a restrictive covenant on the rezoned parcel and while this was welcomed by residents it was also noted that such covenants may be removed at the whim of council, and without a public hearing.

No decisions were made about the matter but a meeting will be held in the very near future to do so.

Hydro urges safety

As recreational activity increases during the summer, B.C. Hydro is advising the public to practise outdoor electrical safety, says Erich J. Hensch, District Manager, Sechelt.

One common hazard is the use of electrical tools and appliances near wet areas.

Power tools, even though well-insulated for normal use, can under certain circumstances deliver an electric shock. Care should be exercised while working on boats, docks, rafts or other equipment near water.

Swimming pools also can be a danger zone. All electrical appliances should be kept away from the pool. Long-handled pool cleaners, which could reach overhead powerlines, must be used with caution.

Even the simple chore of washing the family car can be hazardous if a person plugs a vacuum cleaner and uses it on the car's interior while standing in a wet driveway.

Before vacuuming the car, it is advisable to wear rubber soled shoes and move the car to a dry place.

Algae cause fish farms setback

Recent algae blooms appearing in Sunshine Coast waters have resulted in the deaths of approximately 150,000 fish, or 1.5 per cent of the total stock of all the fish farms on the Coast, according to Tom May, in conversation with the Coast News last week.

The bloom, a plankton called hetero sigma, appears frequently in these waters and kills fish by plugging the gills with mucus, thus preventing the fish from obtaining oxygen from the water. The fish die quickly, usually during the night when the plankton is utilizing the oxygen in the water. It is the larger fish which die in the greatest numbers.

Some 12 farms on the Coast have been hit, according to May who lost 1200 fish at his Cockburn Bay fish farm on Nelson Island. May said that when the bloom, the worst in 12 years, struck the farm and his fish started to die in numbers, an air compressor was brought in to aerate the water. This had the immediate effect of reviving the stricken fish and numbers of them were saved.

Another farmer, Norbert Kraft of Aquarius Seafarms, sustained heavy losses during the bloom, losing an estimated 60 per cent of his two year old chinook salmon brood stock, he told Coast News researcher Teri Dawe Tuesday night. Kraft also lost a large number of trout, which are severely affected by the plankton. Many of his fish were not recoverable for processing, Kraft said, because they had recently been moved and had been given antibiotics as part of the handling; they had had only 10 antibiotic-free days prior to the bloom.

Scantech's Wood Bay Fish Farm also suffered considerable losses. President Clark Hamilton told the Coast News that the company had managed to save between four and six tonnes of coho, or about 3000 fish, for processing, although as of Thursday evening a market had not been found for all the fish. The losses were greater in the chinook stock.

"But we anticipate losing between 25 and 30 per cent of our stock over the cycle of growth, and that is part of our management plan," Hamilton said. "It is unfortunate that we had to lose them all in one shot. But in a way it's good - maybe we've learned something valuable."

Methods of combatting future attacks of bloom include erecting plastic sides around the net pens as is already done for trout in many cases. Covering the pens with black plastic tarps can also be helpful; the plankton swim out from under the covering into the sunlight and hence away from the penfish.

The use of air compressors, according to May, is very effective and "a $4000 machine will just be part of the equipment from now on," he said.

Smolts, the very young fish, are hardly affected by hetero sigma at all; Hamilton reported that only a handful of Scantech's smolts died and this is echoed by other farmers.

Scantech also came under fire from local residents this past week for their disposal of dead fish and offal from those processed. A large pit, across Highway 101 from the Wood Bay site, was the disposal location and the Coast Garibaldi Health Unit was contacted early last week. After an inspection it was given the go-ahead and such method has been used on other farms as well. Neighbours are still apprehensive about the effect the decomposition of the fish will have on ground water and about the attraction the site may have for local bears.

The question of processing and the use of antibiotics has also worried some residents. Rudy Chiang of the Department of Fisheries and Oceans, Burnaby, talked to Dawe on Friday and said that a processing licence was required on an operational and constructional level but added that the department had no ability to test for antibiotics in the processed fish and had no plans to do so in the future. According to Chiang there are no departmental regulations concerning the use of antibiotics in farm fish.

Funding for research into problems caused by plankton of various kinds is very meagre, according to UBC personnel Dr. Paul Harrison and Judy Acereman. According to Acereman a thorough and adequately funded study of the problems could take up to three years but little funding is available. It is believed at the present time that the fish deaths were caused by mechanical means, that is, suffocation due to the build up of mucus-like hetero sigma on the gills but the toxic effects of the plankton and others which were also present in the water at the same time have not yet been assessed.

Farms on Vancouver Island were also affected and to allow farmers access to what information is available a workshop will be held this Thursday by the B.C. Salmon Farmers' Association at the Masonic Hall on Bellevue Street in West Vancouver. Farmers are advised to call Bob Nelles at the association to pre-register.

Coast Labour Council gets its CLC charter

by John Burnside

The Sunshine Coast Trades and Labour Council was awarded its official Canadian Labour Congress (CLC) Charter at a ceremony at Gibsons Legion Hall recently.

Regional Director of Organization for the CLC, Len Ruel, told those gathered to mark the occasion that the charter for the Sunshine Coast was the last granted by former President of the CLC Dennis McDermott before his term of office expired.

McDermott was recently appointed Canadian Ambassador to Ireland.

Ruel paid tribute to the Sunshine Coast's 'community of activists' whose perseverance had led to the achievement of the charter.

"We feel that there is the support here, both financial and physical, which will ensure that this charter will be in place for many years to come," said Ruel.

Trades and Labour Council Treasurer Doug McKay paid a moving tribute during the ceremony to Don Pearsell, incapacitated permanently a few years ago in a tragic chainsaw accident, as the moving force behind the original push towards an official charter.

"Don's tragic accident removed him from the work force at a young age," said McKay, "but it is appropriate on this occasion that we remember the contribution he made, one of many to his community."

The Trades and Labour Council's executive is: Linda Olsen, President; R.T. McBride, Vice-President; Hans Penner, Secretary; Doug McKay, Treasurer.

A novel and amusing ceremony delegated Priscilla Brown of the Unemployed Action Centre as Sergeant at Arms for the council, charged with the responsibility of maintaining order.

Speaking in the absence of President Olsen later, Vice-President McBride told the Coast News that the Trades and Labour Council was looking forward to an era of co-operation with other political and economic groupings on the Sunshine Coast.
