Victoria urged

Local mills need supply of logs

The Forestry Advisory Committee will be lobbying the provincial government on behalf of small businesses on the Sunshine Coast.

The decision was made last Wednesday at the regular meeting after committee members heard from a delegation from Suncoast Cedar who may be forced to close down their sawmill operation due to a lack of log supply.

The company has been struggling with this problem for over two years, Dennis Munson told the meeting, but so far things have only gotten worse. The mill has enough logs left for two weeks of operation and after that the 23 employees may be laid off.

Suncoast Cedar is asking the government's permission to buy logs directly from the crown, a practice allowed in the interior of the province. However, this provision in government regulations had been used only once on the Coast, in Prince Rupert.

The provincial government takes the position that coastal mills can buy direct from the Vancouver market, Munson said. But the cost of buying through the logging companies is prohibitive to the small mill owner.

Several committee members agreed that Suncoast's problem was not an isolated one. A motion was passed that the committee send a recommendation to the Department of Forests and Lands that any future increase in timber rights on the Sunshine Coast should be allocated to local businesses.

Additionally, it was decided to approach the provincial government with recommended changes to the Small Business Program. It was felt that with the new government reviewing policies and procedures in all departments, the time was ideal for influencing changes in the program which would make it more applicable to small sawmill operations on the Sunshine Coast.

Herring sale

Charity herring sales for the Elves Club and the Food Bank will take place in Gibsons Harbour and Madeira Park Government Dock this Sunday, December 7.

The sale is sponsored by the Gibsons and Pender locals of the Fishermen's Union. To confirm the sale please phone 883-246, 885-2159 or 886-9748.

Environmentalist to address Marsh Society

If you are interested in hearing about a new approach to dealing with world-wide environmental problems come and hear about the new Earthlife of Canada. John Broadhead, co-author of award-winning Islands on the Edge will be speaking on December 5, 7:30 p.m. at the regular monthly meeting of the Sechelt Marsh Protective Society held at the Arts Centre.

Judith Wilson of Sandy Hook was among local residents who expressed concerns about the environmental impact of the fish farming boom at the Gillespie Inquiry which held a hearing in Sechelt last week. See story below.

At the Gillespie Inquiry

Environmental effects uppermost

In the midst of lengthy presentations from companies, unions and government groups to the Gillespie inquiry at last Wednesday's public meeting in Sechelt, a handful of small local groups and individuals spoke clearly and simply about their concerns for the natural environment of the Sunshine Coast.

While most of them asserted that they had no objections to aquaculture per se, the message was repeated several times that too many questions regarding environmental impact are not being answered.

Carol Rubin, presenting a brief from the Sunshine Coast Environmental Protection Project (SCEPP) told the meeting that "although Scotland and Finland have published the results of their experiences with research data on all aspects of the industry relating to the avoidance of negative environmental impact, our government has not seen fit to avail themselves of this knowledge, citing budget crises and prohibitive translation costs."

One of the six recommendations made by SCEPP was that pertinent studies be obtained and translated. "If we can take advantage of their investment dollars, we should also take advantage of their learning," the group pointed out.

Judy Wilson, from Tuwanek, spoke as an individual. She urged the commission to think and act as "citizens of the 21st century." She compared the aquaculture industry to the industrial revolution of the 19th century when "the people who built the factories that created acid rain could not imagine the effects of their smokestacks when their industries first began."

While suggestions of specific solutions to environmental problems varied throughout the day, the message to the inquiry was consistent, "We need more information."

Bill Procopation, Secretary-Treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (UFAWU) blasted the Gillespie inquiry into finfish aquaculture.

Procopation told the chairman David Gillespie that the UFAWU had been informed that they were not entitled to bring in technical people on their behalf.

"Companies, in the guise of technical experts have been putting forth their points of view and promoting their vested interests. The ordinary person should have the same rights," he protested.

His challenge came after several presentations by companies who supply the aquaculture industry.

Diana Hu, from Aqua Pharmaceuticals, had earlier led the commission through half an hour of calculations, disproving a comparison made in a UFAWU paper between quantities of fish feces produced by a farm and human waste from a town.

Procopation ended by saying, "You've already heard enough today to give you the impression that the only recommendation that you can make is that the government go through the process of a proper inquiry."

Provision of school library books controversial

Even the seemingly innocuous act of parents providing reference books for a school library can have far reaching political and philosophical implications, school trustees discovered at last Tuesday's meeting. Extensive debate ensued when the board dealt with a letter from Marg Goldrup, chairperson of the Pender Harbour Parents Group.

The group is planning a fund raising campaign to solicit donations from large businesses. Each book purchased with a donation would then be inscribed on the fly leaf "this book has been kindly donated by...". The project was inspired by a report done by the Ministry of Education's Accreditation Committee which found the library to be poorly equipped and staffed.

Trustee Dave Mewhort expressed reservations about the project. "It seems to me that the concept of public education means that quality education is available to all children. I think we should be able to provide the books for that library."

But trustee Doris Fuller maintained that the donation of books to school libraries was a common practice which should be welcomed.

The board voted to accept the Parents Group's proposal but to refer the issue of donations to the policy committee for further discussion.

Democracy re-awakes

There were signs before the recent uproar over the American sale of arms to Iran and the developing crisis in the White House that the democratic instinct was beginning to stir again into life in the United States of America.

Despite the aborted grandstand play of the Reykjavik summit - could the President have been dicing with the hopes and fears that surround the nuclear menace just to gain Republican advantage in the mid-term elections? - Reagan's vigorous championing of Republican candidates did not succeed in preventing control of Congress sliding back to the Democrats.

The failure of the summit and the defeat at the polls represented the first setback of the Reagan presidency. It was just a harbinger of the growing scandal over the arming of Iran and the utilization of the money earned to supply the Contras in Nicaragua against congressional will.

Reagan is not the first president to grow impatient with the political system of checks and balances built into the American Constitution, impatient in fact with American democracy.

A gung-ho President whose strong leadership has satisfied Americans for six years is at odds with a fear that in Nicaragua the United States was in danger of re-enacting the tragic folly of Vietnam.

That he should, or his minions, pursue his aggressive policies in Central America against the express wishes of Congress and by means of secret arms deals with Ayatollah Khomeini who just a few years ago was being represented by the President as evil incarnate, appears to be too much for the American people to swallow.

As for his disclaimer of ignorance, Democratic senator John Glenn, himself a bona fide American, hero put it succinctly: "If the President knew what was happening, it was a criminal act. If he didn't know what his staff was up to, he wasn't doing his job."

The re-awakening of the critical spirit of democracy in the world's most powerful nation is very welcome. With mankind living on the edge of self-annihilation, a President as unquestioned as Reagan has been by the American people and as poorly informed about the world in which he wields enormous power is a frightening figure.

That he may now be seen lifesize and human by the American people is the best thing to come out of this tawdry exercise in Machiavellian politics.

Objection

Alright we editorialized last week about the fact that inflated indignation would serve no good purpose on either side of the fish farming debate, but really.

One reads that the experience of Scottish fish farmers has not been made available because of the 'costs of translation'. Need I point out that there are Scotsmen quite comfortable in their use of the English language and some of them have no doubt written reports on aquaculture?

We Remember When

5 YEARS AGO

Sechelt Band Councilor Ted Dixon died in a car accident, two weeks after presenting his band's brief to the Federal Human Rights Commission asking for freedom from the Indian Act for the Sechelt people.

10 YEARS AGO

Coast Chilcotin MP Jack Pearsall sent out enquiries to the local press last week asking their co-operation in getting public feedback on the possibilities of locating a new maximum security prison in this area.

20 YEARS AGO

B.C. Hydro has called bids on a contract to construct a 50 mile long, 230,000 volt power transmission line connecting Cheekye Substation, near Squamish, and Sechelt. When the project is completed in September 1987, it will almost double the power available for residential and industrial expansion on the Sunshine Coast.

30 YEARS AGO

When Sechelt's new municipal hall was opened at an official ceremony on Saturday afternoon, four generations were spanned when Julie Steele, great granddaughter of T.J. Cook, JP, one of the original owners of land comprising the present village, cut the ribbon symbolizing the opening of the hall.

A painting, probably one of the first ever painted of the Sechelt area, was presented to the Sechelt Village Commission by Geoffrey Whitaker, great grandson of the painter who in 1902 depicted the spot on which stood the first post office.

40 YEARS AGO

James Sinclair, MP for this riding, will visit the district next week, addressing meetings at Gibsons Landing and Sechelt.

A capacity audience witnessed a superb interpretation of an excellent three-act play in Gibsons Landing Wednesday. The play, The Importance of Being Earnest was written at the height of the brilliant career of the literary genius, Oscar Wilde.

THE UNITED STATES
AS DEMONSTRATED BY THE RT. HON. J. CLARK...

Jake had phoned the office to say that he would be at the Mall with a pile of groceries and his usual helpful neighbour was on holiday. Could I give him a ride home?

I'd been thinking about the old timer with some guilt. The comings and goings of my days had been so hectic, or seemed so, that it had been weeks since I had seen him. I dropped what I was doing and headed out for the meeting place.

Of course, as old imbibers though both reformed, we repaired to the tavern for a glass of something and a bit of leisurely conversation now that the opportunity had appeared.

Bert the bartender, actually seemed quite pleased to see us both, though he went to some pains to conceal the fact.

"It's the dynamic duo in person," he said. "And how are Batman and Robin today?"

"Mind your tongue, young man," said Jake. "I'll have some ginger ale and my friend here, I believe, is an orange juice man."

"Correct," I said.

"If you guys are setting a fashion I'm going to be out of business," said Bert.

"There isn't much danger of that," snorted Jake.

"I see you've been reading the papers," said I, seeing both papers on the counter where Bert stood guard over the cash register.

"You know that's the problem here on the Coast," said Bert. "We've got a right wing paper and a left wing paper. What we need is a paper like the old Peninsula Times, middle of the road."

"Bert," I said, "you are as predictable as the approaching Christmas season. Do you ever have an original thought?"

Bert bristled as I knew he would.

"Do you deny what I'm saying?" he challenged.

"Bert the difference between the Coast's two papers is not primarily one of politics, despite the conventional wisdom that you espouse and repeat with such shallow certainty."

"Who are you calling shallow?" demanded Bert.

"I didn't call you shallow, Bert. Just what you said is shallow. I actually believe that you are an intelligent fellow who just doesn't bother to investigate his own convictions and consequently ends up talking rubbish much of the time."

"I don't have to serve you, you know," said Bert.

"And you don't have to talk to us either," said Jake. "When we need the sympathetic ear of a bartender we'll be sure to let you know."

"I see you've kept your bite longer than you've kept your teeth," said Bert.

"Gums are more appropriate to deal with the pap that you serve up as conversation," snorted Jake.

Bert turned his attention back to me.

"Alright, if the difference isn't in the politics, where is it?"

"In this paper," I said, laying a finger on one of them. "When something is said you know who's saying it. Right or wrong, foolish or wise, you know where it is coming from. In this paper," pointing to the other, "you have to wonder who got to them last."

"That's your opinion and you're not going to pretend to be unbiased are you?"

"Certainly I'm biased. You asked for my opinion and you got it. Opinion is always biased, by definition. I get tired of people repeating the kind of intellectual pap that you just dished up however."

"Listen, Bert," said Jake. "Why don't you forget about being obnoxious to your customers and tell us who's going to win the Grey Cup instead."

It seemed that Bert had enough confrontation for the day's conversation. He filled up Jake's ginger ale and my orange juice and let us know why he thought that Hamilton would take the Eskimos in Grey Cup '86. Both Jake and I were happy to disagree, of course.

Cynara

*Last night, ah, yesternight, betwixt her lips and mine
There fell thy shadow, Cynara! thy breath was shed
Upon my soul between the kisses and the wine;
And I was desolate and sick of an old passion,
Yea, I was desolate and bowed my head:
I have been faithful to thee, Cynara! in my fashion.*

*All night upon mine heart I felt her warm heart beat,
Night-long within mine arms in love and sleep she lay;
Surely the kisses of her bought red mouth were sweet;
But I was desolate and sick of an old passion,
When I awoke and found the dawn was gray:
I have been faithful to thee, Cynara! in my fashion.*

*I have forgot much, Cynara! gone with the wind,
Flung roses, roses riotously with the throng,
Dancing, to put thy pale, lost lilies out of mind;
But I was desolate and sick of an old passion,
Yea, all the time, because the dance was long:
I have been faithful to thee, Cynara! in my fashion.*

*I cried for madder music and for stronger wine,
But when the feast is finished and the lamps expire,
Then falls thy shadow, Cynara! the night is thine;
And I am desolate and sick of an old passion,
Yea, hungry for the lips of my desire:
I have been faithful to thee, Cynara! in my fashion.*

Anne takes a trip to the city

by Ann Cook

Remember me telling you of a trip to the city and losing my little car on the ferry. Well, I have done it again, no not lost my car but gone to the city.

I decided instead of getting all city-hyped up and hitting the freeway at 90 after departing from the ferry I would take it easy and be Mrs. Cool, so I took the old Marine Drive route and enjoyed all the curves, made me feel at home.

Then I hit Stanley Park causeway, which says 60 kilometres but I had to really barrel along or get rear ended or finger waded off the road. Soon I was doing 80 with the best of them.

Boy if Constable Mueller, who gave me a speeding ticket at Selma Park could see me now. In fact, there are so many speeders in Stanley Park he would think he'd died and gone to speeding ticket heaven.

On to Georgia and we get sensible again. Everyone seems to know where they are going so I'll just play it cool and make a casual left, then a casual right, then another left, I keep going the right way on one-way streets but can't get going the right way to get into the parking lot.

Suddenly there's the parking lot entrance within 15 feet of me, there's a sign, a red circle with a white line through it. Constable Mueller flashes in my mind's eye as I drive right in.

I can be cool as I have a pocket full of quarters for that grey machine that takes your money and gives you a ticket, but where's the machine?

Maybe at the other end as I did enter the wrong way. Nope, it's not there. Back to the other end. Stand there looking uncool.

There's a big orange box with numbers and slots to take coins but no handle, no buttons, no way to get a receipt. A sign up high says to do this and do that but I can't read as it's too far for my bifocals and too close for the other part of my glasses.

Maybe without my glasses? I stand there like Mrs. Cool pretending to polish my glasses and I can't see anything. I slip them back on and there's a young girl shoving a rolled-up dollar bill into the coin slot and then some coins and sails away.

So, Mrs. Cool keeps backing up pretending she's waiting for someone until the sign comes into focus. So that's it! Back to little car. It's in 39. Back to orange box, pop lots of quarters in slot 39 and coolly saunter down the street.

On to a shopping mall to buy some cookies to fill the cookie jars that I gave my grandchildren. That's easy, everybody likes chocolate chip and there's a cookie store. I should have known if, like the jewelry store, there's no price tag you can't afford it. There is a small print price sign that my bifocals can't focus on.

The young lady looks at me. I guess when you take in that kind of money you don't have to talk.

I coolly say I'll two dozen chocolate chip please. I thought her eyes widened but maybe she was looking at the young fellow next to me in a $700 full length suede coat. She put a little plastic bag over her hand and started filling a little white bag with cookies (it was a little bag that would be comfortable with two or four cookies in it). She filled it to overflowing and then said I only have a dozen and maybe two or three more." I'm getting the message but I'll act cool. I said well I really wanted two dozen.

A girl in one of those $100 sweaters lines up with a $1 bill for her purchase and looks impatient. Mrs. Cool says well the dozen will have to do and peels off bills like my purse is full of them.

As I coolly walk away I hear Mr. Suede Coat say two chocolate chip please. I'll bet Cashmere Sweater bought one cookie.

I walked away looking cool but I sort of hid the little bag of cookies in case I got mugged in the parking lot. So I won't tell you how I plunked $2 down to a surprised theatre cashier and asked for one ticket and sailed into see the current hit movie. How did I know admission had doubled and tripled since I last went to a movie.

Letters to the Editor

Damage to foreshore ecosystem feared

Editor's note: A copy of this letter to the B.C. Finfish Aquaculture Inquiry was received for publication.

Dear Sir:

Apart from being a retired senior resident of the Sunshine Coast, I have no financial interest in the aquaculture business.

I have two complaints to make about the way this industry is being regulated. The first concerns the way in which fish farmers are applying for and apparently being granted leases up and down the Coast. In some cases the same company applies for a number of leases.

Would it be possible to implement some regulation that stated that leases had to be held by the lessee for a period of at least five years and that during that period a certain amount of work per year would have to be proven, as is done in mining leases and homesteading?

This might help to deter the entrepreneur from making a mint of money by leasing or selling the leases to another party.

The second suggestion is in regard to the waste which drops through the bottom of the fish pens onto the ocean floor. The amounts are quite considerable simply by virtue of the numbers of fish. There is quite a lot of wasted food that is thrown into the pens and if not consumed will drop through the bottom and be wasted. Add to this the waste excrement from the fish and you are talking about quite a considerable pile of material.

I was at a meeting here on the Coast attended by the fish farmers and all kinds of experts and when asked about this the solution was to move the pen to a new location and repeat the process. It makes one wonder what kind of people these are.

With all the fancy technology we have today would it not be possible to collect this excrement or waste before it reaches the sea bottom and process it into fertilizer or something of that sort and thereby clean up the environment and at the same time convert this waste into money for the fish farmer.

Just because you can't see the damage that this material is doing to a delicate ecosystem is no reason to just brush it onto one side and when one sees the proliferation of this industry on the coast, it is a pretty scary situation.

John Hind-Smith

Single mothers contribute

Editor:

We hear much about the necessity of attracting industry to Gibsons in order to encourage economic growth. Our quiet, scenic locale is considered ideal for the retirement sector, but those who possess the money to retire here do not necessarily spend their money here.

Being a single mother on income assistance, I cannot afford Vancouver shopping trips; my entire cheque is spent in this community supporting local businesses and landlords. Perhaps those of us on a limited income are playing a more beneficial role in the economy than is generally appreciated.

As well, our children go through the school system, employing teachers; they buy clothes, candies, toys, food, and are our future source of business and leadership. Why not recognize the valuable contribution that we, single welfare mothers, are making in putting our children's well-being ahead of a career.

In addition, we are eager to eventually become financially independent, when our children grow older and need us less. We are a resource of ingenuity, energy and practical skills, lacking only a supportive environment.

There can be no finer place than Gibsons to raise a child, and with the already existing inducement of cheaper rents, there would be little difficulty in attracting more of us here to the town's inevitable enrichment.

Aussie delighted

Editor:

A reply to the last paragraph, November 24. G'Day Faye Hansen.

For me to read in a foreign paper the referral to "This Patriot" with his "Country's Name" in sentence same, along with the glowing thanks intended, is indeed a great felt honour. It is, in fact, to an Aussie, gold.

Beyond the usher of surprise, the letter also brought a warm tickle to my lips, leaving a crease in my cheeks and a void full of memories forth. I don't believe I warranted paragraphical praise. When the pleasure was totally mine and the thanks all yours.

It puzzles me; this friendliness shown by the majority of contacted people in this continent towards us Australians as we travel. It's as if anything associated with OZ at the moment has a dreamy, magical, mystical appeal; that goes down well in a blend, like a pint of Foster's on a blue sky day.

Perhaps one answering piece of the puzzle is an increasing celluloid/tabuloid portrayal as we being all 'Ridgy didge', 'true blue', 'blokes and Sheilas' with a 'Larrikin Lament', of 'No worries mate' and 'she'll be 'right digger'. I hope it is, and that we are, but I know we ain't.

And as to you Faye Hansen and our 'mutual mates', I thank 'yous' for thanking me from the deepest 'Down Under' of my heart, and in terms of phraseology, the most endearing Australian superlative I can muster is that, "Your all a bloody fair dinkum nice, bunch of bastards".

Opposes fragmentation

Municipal planner urges regional economic approach

In what he describes as "swift response to Council's 'open mind' position on economic development as spearheaded by Alderman Maxwell at the Planning Committee meeting and endorsed by adoption of Minutes this evening", Gibsons Planner Rob Buchan has urged co-operation of his municipality in regional economic development.

Buchan, who is also serving as temporary planner for the District Municipality of Sechelt at the present time, stresses that the views he expresses are non-political and his own, not to be confused with the Gibsons Economic Strategy Group for which he acts as secretary.

In his report to Gibsons Council on November 18, Buchan said:

"Following my experience with the Gibsons Strategy Committee, my study of the issue and the alternatives, and the presentation made at the October 21st meeting of council by the Economic Development Commission and the Community Development Association Committee, there is no longer any doubt in my mind that the economic development of our area is another (house-numbering being an example previously cited by Buchan) example for regional rather than municipal administration. I do not believe the alternatives are viable.

"The present regional structure, therefore, if properly administered (emphasis Buchan's) and with the wishes of the member municipalities being addressed, is to be preferred over any further fragmentation of administration...

"This recommendation should not be considered in any way prejudicial to the imminent Gibsons Strategy Plan; I am sure that the EDC would welcome the input of municipal strategies, with their stated priorities.

"In any event, while remaining an active contributing member municipality with the EDC function of the SCR, the Town may still individually pursue with its own forces its own identified priorities as 'special projects' for which special funding is available directly to the Town under the 'Partners-in-Enterprise' program - in which the Town is also a member municipality."

Community Development Officer for the regional economic development commission, Irene Lugsdin, said that she welcomed Buchan's remarks.

"His views dovetail exactly with my own view of economic development for the Sunshine Coast," said Lugsdin, "and I look forward to working cooperatively with Town of Gibsons as fully as possible."

Labour opposes deregulation of transport

The deregulation of the transportation industry could be disastrous for the Sunshine Coast, directors were told at last week's meeting of the Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD).

Lynda Olsen, president of the Sunshine Coast Labour Council, presented a brief outlining the group's concerns about proposed federal legislation which would eliminate government controls over fares, schedules and routes in the transportation industry.

Olsen told the meeting that "the deregulation and privatization initiatives of the current federal government cannot be separated from that government's headlong rush into the so-called 'Free Trade Agreement' with the US." Explaining that present regulations require transport companies to maintain service on less profitable routes, such as the Sunshine Coast, in order to keep their licences to operate, and force operators to conform to government safety standards, the council predicted "a dramatic increase in accidents" and increased costs for shipping goods to the Coast.

The Labour Council asked the SCR to support their call for a halt to deregulation until a full public debate has been held. The board referred the matter to the transportation committee.

Elves Christmas Hamper Drive is now underway

If you or anyone you know needs a hamper at Christmas, fill out a form (which can be clipped from the November 24 issue of the Coast News or picked up at the Ministry of Social Services and Housing), and mail it to the Elves Club, or call Bev at 886-9876 or Lill at 886-7443.

Elves Club headquarters will be at the former Trail Bay Sports store in the Sunnycrest Mall, Gibsons from December 6 through 19.

Drop-off depots are located at: the former Trail Bay Sports store at Sunnycrest Mall; IGA in Madeira Park; Holy Family Church on Cowrie Street in Sechelt on December 6 from 10 am to 6 pm only; the Coast News; and W.W. Upholstery and Boat Tops. Donations may be made now through December 19 except where noted.

Toys, non-perishable foods, money and telethon pledges may be dropped off at any of the above places.

The Christmas hampers contain: potatoes, carrots, onions, soup, turkey, fish, cookies, candy, gifts and a Christmas card. Anyone wishing to become an Elves Club member, the fee per household is 12 cans of food and $3.65, which works out to one can of food per month and one cent a day. Membership cards are available at above depots and from Ann Cook in Egmont.

This is the Elves' fourteenth year. Last year they delivered 385 hampers. The Elves are all volunteers and are a non-profit, non-denominational organization.

Elves get help!

The Gibsons RCMP and Volunteer Fire Department will be campaigning for toys and non-perishable foods for the Elves Club hampers. People can drop off goods at the Twilight Theatre parking lot in Gibsons on Saturday, December 6, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Look for the firetruck and police car!

Fisherman's Ball a great success

by Al Lloyd

On Saturday, November 22 the Pender Harbour Community Club held their twentieth consecutive Homecoming Ball for their fishermen. The Community Hall was brightly decorated by the Play School mothers with some help from elementary school students.

The fishing families of the Harbour combined to produce and prepare a wonderful variety of seafood, squid and salmon, sea cucumber and shrimp, cod, oysters, and you name it. The tables fairly groaned under their burden of goodies, from a magnificent 52 pound baked Spring Salmon to helping plates of prawns at every table. There was plenty for seconds and even thirds for those not worried about waist lines, and the food was so good that everyone went back for more. The food was prepared by local ladies and gentlemen who each prepared their favourite recipe, the food was set out by the high school cheer leaders under the supervision of Shirley Vader.

Overall organizing was capably handled by Jane Reid and Nancy Brown helped by Marj Campbell, and our cheer leaders policed the tables, taking away mountains of prawn shells and dispensing coffee.

There was a sell-out crowd with all the fishing families well represented along with their friends who were lucky enough to get tickets. The bar was manned by the gallant gentlemen of the Volunteer Fire Brigades, under the capable supervision of Bill Hunsche and they were kept very busy, smoked salmon gives you quite a thirst.

This being the twentieth consecutive Fisherman's Homecoming Ball it was marked by a presentation to Ed Lowe who got the idea in 1967 and then put it on almost single handed, and then has taken part and been Master of Ceremonies in every one since. Ed was given a warm and well deserved round of applause upon the presentation.

While we were digesting all that fine food and sneaking just one more prawn, Ed Lowe and Jane Reid ran the draw for the many prizes donated by local businesses and by firms connected with the fishing industry. Henry Hunt did a great job in soliciting prizes from our local firms.

Then the Bright Nites Orchestra provided us with toe tapping music which soon had the floor full of happy dancers. When the orchestra wanted to quit at 1 a.m. they were persuaded by the merry crowd, and being outnumbered they did play until 2 a.m.

The whole evening was well summed up by a couple from the US who said they could not remember when they last had so much fun.

Paint additive effects feared

Although the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (UFAWU) had already presented a brief to the Gillespie Commission on aquaculture, a supplementary brief was submitted at the public meeting in Sechelt last week. The supplement dealt with the use of Tributyl-tin (TBT) as an additive to paints used on fish farms.

Geoff Meggs, speaking for the UFAWU, told the commission that TBT, which is used to stop the growth of algae and barnacles on pen nets, has been termed "one of the most toxic substances known to man" by several scientists, and that "it can be toxic to marine life in levels as low as five parts per trillion."

Although the impact of TBT on oyster populations is acknowledged, Meggs said that aquaculture suppliers in Vancouver, Campbell River and Sechelt offer anti-fouling paint containing TBT, name brand Flexguard, for use on nets.

But Ken Lund, who manages a farm for Aquarius Seafarms Ltd., told chairman David Gillespie that his farm uses the Flexguard nets and have had no trouble with them.

Steve Marsh, presenting a brief for the Aquaculture Resource Centre, said that while he would recommend that fish farmers avoid using paint containing TBT, no studies of its effects on marine life have been done outside of the laboratory.

Accompanying the UFAWU brief was a copy of a recent American government study which detected TBT in farmed fish offered for retail sale. This is the first time, Meggs told the meeting, that TBT has been found in the human food chain.

The brief concluded by recommending a complete halt on the use of TBT paint in the aquaculture industry and immediate allocation of funds to determine what impact its use has had on shellfish.

Pender People 'n' Places

November gales

by Joan Wilson, 883-9606

November gales have hit the Harbour this year, with resulting power outages on two or three occasions. Trees fell across Francis Peninsula Road and Highway 101, and everyone has been picking up branches blown down by the high winds.

John Struthers had a close encounter of the furred kind on his way to Vancouver when a tree fell on his car. Luckily John was unhurt, and continued on his trip. I understand that a tree fell on a house, too, though I don't have any details. No injuries, however.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The ladies of the Auxiliary to St. Mary's, Pender Harbour Branch, invited me to their annual luncheon at Lions Park this past Wednesday. I even won a prize!

The Lions' ladies did an excellent job of catering despite power outages and possible change of location.

New officers were installed by Evelyn Olson: President, Alice Haddock; First Vice-President Eileen Alexander; Secretary Jean Prest; Treasuer Laverne

Richardson; Publicity Jean Dale. Jean Dale, as outgoing president, thanked the ladies for their 990 hours of volunteer work.

The auxiliary does so much to help make patients in St. Mary's more comfortable.

CRAFT FAIR

The annual Craft Faire sponsored by the Clinic Auxiliary will take place Saturday, December 6 from 11 to 2 at the Community Hall.

Joan Rea and her team will find beautiful gifts galore from local craftspersons. Don't forget to buy your Pender Harbour beer glasses in two styles. Proceeds will help our young people.

And pick up some home baked goodies from the Guides and Brownies. The money the girls raise helps with their camps and activities. Save the Children cards and stationery will also be on sale.

HOMECOMING

Al Lloyd has written a report on this ever-successful event. Special thanks to Shelley and Marge for their help.

FOOTBALL HEROS

At the Sea Lions Junior Bantam/Bantam banquet last Wednesday at Davis Bay School, our Pender players received recognition. Jeff Fletcher, Nevin Sample and Quinton Sample were 'roasted' by coach Gary Groenke. Jeff Senior was presented with a plaque for his support.

Bantams coach Bill Mueller presented trophies for 'Rookie of the Year' to Max Scoular, and 'Best Offensive Player' to Richard Wilson.

Congratulations to these five young men, and to their parents who drove faithfully over the season.

DON'T FORGET

Get your tickets for the Lioness Christmas raffle at Kenmar, and look over the Christmas ribbons, novelties, yarns and fabrics that Mary has in stock.

GIBSONS RCMP

On November 15, 500 gallons of diesel fuel was stolen from a fishing vessel moored at the government dock.

On November 28, a single motor vehicle accident at Highway 101 and Bals Lane in the early morning hours injured four persons. The driver is in hospital. Investigation continues.

Passing of Ron Oram

by Jeanie Parker, 885-2163

Longtime Roberts Creek resident Ron Oram passed away last week. I knew Ron a little as a neighbour and a lot as an enthusiastic dance partner at the Little Legion. We affectionately called him "the old smoothie". Ron was very active in the Roberts Creek Legion and worked hard to make it the asset enjoyed by so many in the community. Few people would be dedicated enough to dig out the basement by hand to make the pool room the way he did a few years ago.

He also worked on the golf course when it was being built, a feat hard to imagine for those of us who only know the finished product of beautiful rolling lawn. He was a hard worker and a lot of fun. That's how I knew him and will remember him.

Roberts Creek Legion will hold a memorial service to Ron Oram at 2:30 p.m. Monday at the Legion Hall.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting and installation of officers of the Roberts Creek Branch of St. Mary's Hospital Auxiliary will take place next Monday, December 8. The meeting will start at 11 a.m. with a pot-luck luncheon afterward.

This is a special festive time for socializing so all auxiliary members are urged to attend. Don't forget to bring your speciality to share with the group for lunch.

SANTA LETTERS

It's time for the kids to write their letters to Santa. Margaret has the special box all ready for them at the Roberts Creek Post Office. The kids receive replies with a candy cane so encourage them to keep up this great old tradition.

One thousand dollars sounds pretty good at this time of year doesn't it? That's the grand prize in the Roberts Creek Firemen's Annual Bingo this Saturday, December 6, at the Community Hall.

Tickets are $5 from Seaview Market, any fireman, the Tuesday night Bingo, and at the door. It's an all-paper bingo so you don't need chips.

The doors open at six and the first game is at 7:30. Come out and support your volunteer firefighters and win a few bucks for yourself.

RAINBOW OPENINGS

Rainbow Preschool has openings for two children in its morning class. Phone Dale Gould at 886-3805 to register.

HYDRO ARCS

All the high winds lately have brought down a lot of branches and hydro wires with them. One on Lower Road near Cheryl Anne Park last Tuesday night created a particularly spectacular display. The flash of the arcing was so bright it could be seen by residents above the highway and down by the waterfront.

DAANGEROUS CHIMNEYS

There have been several serious chimney fires lately in Roberts Creek. Have your chimney cleaned regularly and make sure the smoke shelf is cleaned. Even professional sweeps do not always do this.

FIRE SAFETY

The Fire Safety House will be visiting Roberts Creek Elementary this week. The kids get a lot out of the film and the practical applications. Parents, make sure they know how to apply what they learn in their own home.

Business Centre

The Economic Development Commission will be hiring a project researcher to develop an implementation plan for a Small Business Centre on the Sunshine Coast. At last Thursday's meeting the members voted to allot $5000 to get the study done by the new year.

The researcher will be going into the community to contact individuals involved in small businesses in order to identify their needs and ideas of what a centre of this type should offer.

Community Development Officer, Irene Lugsdin emphasized the importance of community involvement at the initial stages of the project.

We're CELEBRATING
The opening of our new office in Sunnycrest Mall.

You are invited to help us celebrate SUNDAY, DEC. 7, 12 noon - 4 pm.

Please drop in & join us for refreshments, door prizes balloons & candy canes for the kids.

Because of the tremendous support from the whole Sunshine Coast we had to find larger and more functional premises. You'll find our new office a pleasant and convenient place to discuss Insurance & Notary services.

On December 18 at 1:30 p.m. in our hall we will have our annual meeting, at which time your president requests each committee head to give and submit their annual report in writing to the membership present. We have had a very eventful year and a combined resume should be most informative.

This meeting will be an excellent opportunity for those of our members who have not exactly participated to date in our regular activities. So come along and hear first hand what "makes us tick", and believe me, we are ticking.

May Widman has asked me to publicize a bus trip she is putting together for December 10, which will include a visit to the B.C. Pavilion and whatever is left of the Expo Site. If you would like to go, phone May at 885-5200 for details.

Winners of the Shop Easy draw for certificates were Peggy Alison, Doreen Armstrong, Ruth Forrester, Jenny Olson, Grace Bonin and Gerry Chailier. Dorothy Bracewell was the lucky winner of Bert Sherlock's Pie raffle.

The Shop Easy certificates are very generously supplied to us in return for grocery slips which Madge Bell collects at the hall, so please set these aside for her.

Irene Taylor, who looks after our exercise committee has indicated that she would like to have a much larger turn-out for the exercise sessions for both males and females on both Monday and Wednesday.

The Wednesday session particularly can stand greater participation. The time is from 2 to 2:45 p.m. on Wednesday and the cost is $1 per session per person.

Fitness and Amateur Sport Minister Otto Jelinek has announced May 23 to 31, 1987 as "Canada Fitweek". Twenty-six national organizations will be assisting with the campaign by co-ordinating 14 national projects involving popular activities offered for mass participation across Canada.

The Monday and Wednesday sessions may well prepare you for this exemplary program.

Put on your thinking caps for resolutions to the Annual Convention of Provincial Seniors, which is to be held next Spring. Resolutions from the various branches should be in early in the new year to give the Provincial Resolutions Committee a chance to screen them prior to presentation on the convention floor.

November 21, 1986

I write to reassure you on two points.

First, I want to reassure you that through the prompt and cooperative efforts of the Faculty and Administration of the College, supported by the work of our Staff, students will be able to make up the classes recently missed and complete the Fall term prior to Christmas. For those of you planning to transfer to Simon Fraser University in January, I assure you that the transfer process will be as easy and uncomplicated as it has been in the past. For those of you planning to study at Capilano in the Spring term, registration will take place from Monday, January 5, through Friday, January 9, and the term will commence on Monday, January 12, as published in our 1986/87 College Calendar.

The second point on which I want to reassure you is that our eighteen year tradition of a steadfast commitment to quality education remains. Our Faculty are dedicated to the delivery of high quality Academic, Career and Vocational Programs and to assisting you in the achievement of your educational goals. We will continue to maintain the currency of our programs and we will continue to play a leadership role in the affairs of our community.

I look forward to your continued confidence in Capilano College as a place to "step in to your future".

Yours sincerely,

Douglas E. Jardine

George in Gibsons

Big Band Dance

by George Cooper, 886-8520

"They have a wonderful sound," said Sheila Kitson, Chamber of Commerce president, "and there's fun dancing to those ballroom rhythms of the fox-trot and the waltz."

Sheila was speaking of the Harbour Lights Orchestra which will be playing in Gibsons this Saturday evening, December 6 in the Elphinstone gym.

"The Gibsons and District Chamber of Commerce sponsored a dance last May 21 with the same orchestra," said Sheila, "and the crowd was enjoying listening so much that they were loathe to leave at evening's end."

"Now we have the opportunity again to listen, to dance to those melodies of the 30's, the 40's, and even the 50's," said the Chamber of Commerce president.

Many of us remember, and many of you younger folk have heard of the big name-bands of a generation and more ago. Names like the Dorseys, Glen Miller, Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman, and even Wayne King, the Waltz King, are just a few of those whose music still can charm the younger as well as the older folk.

The Harbour Lights Orchestra is led by Les Fowler of Madeira Park, and the musicians come from many areas of the Sunshine Coast. All the big band sound is there, trumpets, trombones, saxophones, and all the rest that produce that mellow, romantic tone.

The band has organized and supports financially a music school in Pender Harbour. The members provide instruction in correct methods, tapes to guide home practise, books, and stands for the weekly sessions in a building, once a Forestry warehouse and offices, and now owned by the Regional District. Seventeen children and two adults are at present enrolled in the music school, and a few teens have a session of their own with the amplifiers on.

"The Harbour Lights Orchestra was very generous in its support of our Centennial dance last May," said Sheila, "a dance that was a fund-raiser for the swimming pool. They're a very community-minded group, those musicians."

MISCELLANEOUS
Langdale Elementary pupils were much impressed with the practical lessons taught in the "Get Out Alive" program that visiting firemen gave.

And they were delighted by the lively and charming stories of Wives' Tales, Melanie Ray and Nan Gregory. The same two ladies, by the way, enthralled an adult audience the same week in the Sechelt Arts Centre, with their repertoire of humorous tales.

KIWANIS CLUB CARDS
The Kiwanis Club again sponsors a "In lieu of Christmas cards" project.

Make your donations at either the Royal Bank or the Bank of Montreal. Kiwanis will publish the names of donors just before Christmas.

POST OFFICE PUZZLE
Anyone puzzled by the imprinted rectangle of numbers and letters on the Christmas card envelopes just bought?

The Post Office will tell you how to use them and provide you with monstrous 29 cent stamps.

JACK AND JILL
The Jack and Jill Play School has some openings for pupils in its term beginning January 5. But you must enrol now to ensure the classes can continue.

In the afternoon classes for four year olds there are two openings; in the afternoon class for three year olds there are five.

Telephone Marg Chesterman at 886-8753 to enrol your child.

IT REALLY IS

getting to be that time of year. I even saw somebody putting up Christmas lights - so...if you haven't made your Christmas cake, and Christmas pudding and whatever else, you'd better get in gear. It's definitely time you made your gingerbread for your gingerbread house. The following recipe makes enough dough to make two to three gingerbread houses, depending on the size of mansion required, your choice - make a village or share it with a friend. In any case you should have enough to make gingerbread people to hang on your tree.

GINGERBREAD DOUGH

| 1 cup shortening           | 1 teaspoon cinnamon         |
| 1 cup sugar                | 1 teaspoon ground cloves    |
| 2 cup molasses             | 1 1/2 teaspoons baking soda |
| 2 tablespoons vinegar      | 5 cups flour                |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt          | 1 egg                       |
| 1 tablespoon ground ginger |                             |

Cream shortening and sugar. Beat in egg and molasses and vinegar. Sift all dry ingredients together. Knead them in gradually. Cover and leave overnight.

Next day throw some of the dough on a baking sheet - don't worry if the dough appears crumbly. Roll or squish the dough out to cover the baking sheet - about 3/8" thick. Cut the shapes you need and carefully remove the remainder of the dough.

Bake the shapes you require in the centre of the oven at 350°F for eight minutes. Place the pieces on a cooling rack and when quite cold place in an airtight container for at least a week.

When you are ready to 'build' your house, cement the pieces together with icing made from icing sugar and egg white - and get someone with a steady hand to help you. This is not a job for children!

After the edifice is fully built decorate it and let your fantasies become realities! How about M&M pathways, liquorice log piles, piles of marshmallow snow - it's all yours!

P.S. So glad you found the recipe S.Y. - I'll put my copy in a safe place - for next year!

Pages from a Life-Log

Stepping stones to lost disaster

by Peter Trower

Sometime back in the mid-seventies, I was visiting the late Hubert Evans at his seaside Roberts Creek home. Hubert, one of Canada's most respected writers, was then in his late 80's, physically frail and with his eyesight nearly gone. But the infirmities of age had not dimmed his great spirit. Amazingly, Hubert was at work on a new novel (the justly acclaimed O Time In Your Flight) and was also producing poetry for the first time in his long life. When he was up to it, Hubert welcomed visitors and delighted to talk about writers and writing.

On this particular occasion, the talk drifted around to story ideas. Hubert remarked that there was one piece he had always wanted to write but had never gotten around to doing. It involved a spectacular train crash on the old Kettle Valley Line in the late 20's or early 30's (Hubert wasn't sure of the precise year). He suggested that I research the incident and write the story myself.

I had never written a railroad story before (mainly because I know very little about trains) but the long ago accident that Hubert had cited, sparked my imagination. One aspect of the event that particularly struck me was the fact that a group of hapless hoboes riding the top of the train, were also carried to their doom. I resolved to track the facts of the matter down, mull them over and try to craft them into a decent yarn.

I enlisted Yvonne's help and we did a bit of preliminary research. It proved quite fruitless. There was no record of any such train wreck on the Kettle Valley Line during the period Hubert had alluded to. Hubert Evans was a scrupulously honest man and I was certain he wouldn't have given me a bum steer. We determined to search further. Then we got caught up in the mystery of Brother 12 and the King of the Safecrackers. The elusive train crash was consigned to the back burner.

Over the years however, the story stayed alive in my mind. I ran into a couple of other old-timers who recalled such a crash. The details were the same and so was the general time period. Why had we turned up nothing in the old newspaper

At the Arts Centre Unique concert

Randy Raine-Reusch crosses cultural boundaries to explore the whole universe of music and to create a contemporary form with international appeal. He demonstrates instruments from his exotic collection of more than 130.

For each performance, Randy selects 20 to 30, perhaps a six foot tall mouth organ from the hill tribes of Thailand, or end blown tubes longer than a man from the Australian outback, ancient rattles from the Canadian Arctic, 'singing' wine glasses from Victorian England. Some are rare antiques, others, inventions of our computer age.

Choosing his performance instruments not only for their unique appearances, but also for their dynamic sound quality, Randy carries the audience through a full range of musical discovery.

Performance is at the Arts Centre in Sechelt, Saturday, December 6 at 8 p.m. Admission is $5, children $2.50. Tickets are available at the Hunter Gallery in Gibsons, Seaview Market in Roberts Creek, and the Bookstore and the Arts Centre in Sechelt.

files? It was a real puzzler.

When construction began on the Coquihalla Highway along the old rail route, I was reminded again of the story. Then a book called McCulloch's Wonder was published and the mists cleared at last.

McCulloch's Wonder is the history of the Kettle Valley Railroad. Written by former CPR engineer and dedicated train buff, Barrie Sanford, it tells the story of the Line that was pushed against all odds through some incredibly difficult terrain. While much of the book is given over to the convoluted political machinations that preceded the actual construction of the line in 1915, one lively chapter is devoted to the men who ran the trains. This chapter also contains a brief but graphic account of the accident (worst in the Line's annals) that had eluded me for so many years.

I had always mistakenly assumed that the calamity had occurred either during or just before, the Depression. It had actually taken place some years before that - on Labour Day, September 5, 1926, to be exact. Sanford's account also clarified the business of the hoboes riding the top of the cars. In reality (and much more poignantly) they were schoolboys, returning from a summer of fruit picking in the interior.

Now I had the whole business pinpointed at last, I determined to thoroughly research what has become known as 'The Jessica Wreck' and do my own in-depth version of the story. Accordingly, I hit the microfilm at the Vancouver Public Library. This time, I struck pay-dirt right away. The accident had made the front pages of both the Sun and the Province. Oddly the Sun confined itself to this initial report. The Province, however, had several follow-up pieces, including names and photographs of three of the missing boys. These newspaper pieces contained a number of facts that Barrie Sanford had neglected to mention. I seemed to have my foot in the door at last.

(While at the Library, I also unearthed a narrative poem called The Coquihalla Wreck, written by a Summerland resident in 1932. The poem was accurate enough as it went but, essentially, it just scratched the surface and was marred by windy bombast to boot.)

Working from the newspaper articles and Sanford's account of the wreck, I hacked out a preliminary draft. It fell short in several areas. There were too many unanswered questions. I needed more data, particularly the inquest reports.

Kreiger takes Lowndes Award

Gillian Lowndes was dedicated to excellence and innovation in dance. She worked as a volunteer to support all the arts disciplines as a member of the Arts Council's Board of Directors until her death in 1981.

Sculptor Jim Krieger of Roberts Creek was presented with the award given in her name at the November 27 Arts Council's Directors' meeting. This cash award is presented annually to a local artist who is committed to excellence in any area of the arts.

Through the generosity of the Lowndes family, our local artists like Jim Krieger are encouraged to persevere in their chosen field. Jim Krieger works almost full time at his art. He began working in stone before he moved to the Sunshine Coast in 1979. His works in recent years have been mainly in metal. He has his own arc welding equipment at his studio.

While mythical and archetypal forms find expression in Jim's onyx and marble images his metal sculptures are more daring and whimsical.

"The public finds the metal work a little harder to understand," says Krieger. "They don't have the same visual vocabulary or the artistic tradition to fall back on that they have in the case of stone sculpture."

Krieger looks forward to being able to create really large pieces.

"The pieces I'm doing now are almost maquettes," he says. Although Jim has sold a number of pieces in the past year, he feels that sculpture will never 'catch on' in B.C. until the governments implement a policy such as exists in Washington State where one per cent of building costs are assigned to custom art works, according to Krieger.

Jim Krieger sells his work mainly through interior designers and landscape architects. He has exhibited in a number of Vancouver, Victoria and Washington State shows as well as at the Arts Centre in Sechelt.

Jim says, "The Lowndes award couldn't have come at a better time for me. It can be very discouraging working as a full time artist."

Rhythms of life

Restless Sagittarians

by Penny Fuller

Look up in the sky. Is it a bird? Is it a plane? No! It's a Sagittarian! Off exploring the far reaches of space. Or perhaps flying faster than a speeding bullet with some new idea.

If life were a football game, Sagittarians would be the best running backs in the league. You can't even catch them, let alone tackle them. The trouble is that sometimes they get so enthusiastic about the running that they lose track of the goal posts. It's a pathetic sight, let me tell you, watching this poor sucker running around and around the field, never making a touchdown.

If you were born between November 23 and December 22, it's the movement that's important to you, the growing, the searching, the exploring. No other sign is so compelled to experience new things and think new thoughts.

Ruled by the planet Jupiter, you have absolute faith in your own good luck and will blissfully charge ahead where angels and other sane beings fear to tread.

A strong sense of justice and honour give you the ability to accept new ideas, people and cultures without critically judging them and comparing them to narrow individual backgrounds.

Explorers and ground breakers, you lead the rest of us into new frontiers. But your impulsiveness can lead to both your success and your downfall. If you get a good business idea you can take off with it and make it a reality while other, more mundane types, are still trying to set up a feasibility study.

On the other hand, the phrase "married in haste, repented at leisure" was coined for Sagittarians. You have a real knack of getting involved in relationships (not necessarily marriage) that make you unhappy.

Often the issues arise around restrictions. You don't have a lot of patience with details like schedules, finishing one thing before you start another, other people's demands.

Unfortunately, a grounded Sagittarian is a miserable person. Some compromise has to be found between your need to feel personal freedom and your partner's needs for consideration.

Those issues will be coming up a lot in the next year - individual freedom versus societal responsibilities. The best words of advice I can give you come from Polonius, in Shakespeare's Hamlet, who was talking to his Sagittarian type son. "This above all: to thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

Instrument maker at the Arts Centre

From December 3 to 21, there will be an exhibition of handmade musical instruments at the Arts Centre in Sechelt. Assembled by Michael Dunn, this fascinating show consists of a well thought out collection of stringed instruments.

Michael Dunn, well known musician and instrument maker, was born and raised in Quebec and spent three and a half years on the Sunshine Coast in the 70's.

He belongs to Flamenco Heresy, a Flamenco jazz band in Vancouver. He apprenticed with a guitar maker in Spain in the late 60's and has been making stringed instruments since, producing over 200 guitars and replicas of historically significant instruments.

He is currently an instructor of guitar construction at Douglas College. His expertise is apparent in this exhibition and he will be talking about the instruments at a reception on Saturday, December 6, between 2 and 4 p.m.

This show includes guitars from Africa, a Senegalese kora, a bowed zither from Austria, a Montolian violin, and a vihuela, a Spanish ancestor to the guitar, just to name a few. The selection spans several centuries with contemporary pieces and historical reproductions made by Mr. Dunn, Ray Nurse, and Dan Persyko.

Also included are parts on instruments in the process of construction and the tools used to make them, historical reproductions, six different guitars as well as Oriental instruments from the collection of Randy Raine-Reusch.

Mr. Raine-Reusch will be giving a concert and demonstration at the Arts Centre at 8 p.m., December 6. Tickets are $5 for adults and $2.50 for children.

Your guide to the finest in area dining DINING GUIDE A listing of restaurants and pubs

Toast of the Coast

Fourteen years ago George and Georgia Giannakos established the Omega Restaurant in Gibsons Landing. This family business, now operated by son Tarry, is known both on and off the Coast for good food and pleasant surroundings.

My wife and I with granddaughter and an old family friend as guests chose to celebrate two birthdays last week at the Omega. After a few minutes to exchange news of mutual interest we turned our attention to the menu.

When the waitress asked if we would like appetizers I did not hesitate to order Kalamari. The others were too involved in choosing from the list of entrees.

My wife decided to order the barbecued chicken with "Omega" potatoes and would share a small piece of our granddaughter's combination pizza which was on special for the month of November, large for the price of medium.

Our friend who is a meat and potato fan from a long way back chose the New York steak with potato, the special of the day, with the clam chowder as soup or salad option.

While all this was going on I focused my attention on the seafood section and finally decided to order the trout. Shortly after my Kalamari with Tzatziki arrived; a large platter of tasty Greek style squid with a tangy dipping sauce.

It was a festive occasion and Chef Steve turned out delicious food to suit the various tastes of our little party. The pizza was more than our teenager could eat, my wife declared the chicken tender and delicious. Our friend enjoyed his medium rare steak and my trout was just right.

The Giannakos family support their community. Why don't you drop in to the Omega for a friendly visit and treat yourself to a great meal at the same time?

Davis Bay News & Views

A busy calendar

by Jean Robinson, 885-2954

Lots to write on the calendar for December folks so get out your pencils.

HALL DECOR

On December 3 there will be a tree and hall decorating bee. Come to the Wilson Creek Hall, 5123 Davis Bay Road, at 7 p.m., with a hammer if you think of it. Hot chocolate will be served afterward.

The hall is available all Friday nights and two Saturdays in December. If you wish to rent it phone Lauralee at 885-3510.

STORYTIME

December 5 is the last Story Hour of the year. Wait until the tots see the tree up. Do you think they will sit quiet for reading? Mom, bring your preschooler at 10:30 a.m. and have a coffee or tea and relax.

CRAFT SALE

On December 6 from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. there will be a Craft Sale at the hall. Tables are going fast so phone Hilda at 885-9863 and reserve yours. Just crafts though, nothing second hand.

MEETING

December 8, 7:30 p.m., the General Meeting of the Davis Bay/Wilson Creek Community Association takes place in the hall. There will be short meeting after which Bill Le Neve will tell us all we ever wanted to know about dredging.

Bill has dredged all over the world and will illustrate his talk with slides. If there is time we will sing some carols and in any case, coffee and munchies will be served.

BRIDGE

December 12 is the last bridge game of the year in the hall. Starts at 1 p.m. and is always fun.

TEA AND BAZAAR

December 13, 10 a.m. until 1 p.m., Rebekah Lodge 82 is holding a Tea and Bazaar in the Wilson Creek Hall featuring homebaking.

Enjoyable

Editor: I thought a letter would be one way of telling all who missed the 'Graffiti Night' at the Casa Martinez on Saturday, November 22, missed a very nostalgic evening.

Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves immensely and Jack Pope (Vice Principal at Elphinstone) does a mean twist. Hope next time there's a better turn-out of some of the survivors of the 'fifties'.

Pender Clinic news

The clinic auxiliary met this past week to start winding down for 1986 and making plans for 1987.

The biggie for the whole year is the Arts and Crafts Christmas sale at 11 a.m. on Saturday, December 6. That's at the Madeira Park Community Hall.

All tables selling crafts have been taken, plus extras set up in the spare room. Don't miss it.

The annual general meeting was also held. Yes, two meetings in one evening. There wasn't much time wasted in chit chat or having to con someone to volunteer. The old reliables held their positions: Iris Griffith, president; Vi Tyner and Peg Riley filling in for Iris when she's out fishing the high seas with husband Billy in their seiner, the Tzoonie River.

Then there's treasurer Rose Mueller and secretary Marilyn Stone to keep up the reputation of old reliables.

These few women are the keepers of the paperwork but there are many more dedicated workers that are ever there, some working out front, for example, the Bargain Barn workers and Showcase workers, but many work quietly in the background and in the kitchen.

Letters to the Editor

Irreparable foreshore damage feared

Editor's note: A copy of the following has been received for publication.

Chairman, The B.C. Finfish Aquaculture Inquiry.
Dear Sir:

Thank you for this opportunity to express our opinion regarding finfish aquaculture in our foreshore waters.

As citizens of Canada and residents of B.C. we consider ourselves joint owners of this foreshore. During the last couple of years a commercial activity known as fish farming has spread like wild fire in some areas of the B.C. coast, particularly on the Sunshine Coast.

When we hear the term farming, most of us imagine a diverse range of activity involving tending crops and animals. The term fish farming is misleading because what is taking place on our foreshore is basically the operation of animal feed lots, with the waste going directly into the foreshore waters.

We are opposed to this activity. It is without doubt that the foreshore, the transition area between land and ocean, plays a key role in the ecology. It is home to a complex community of life, including a large variety of plants, fish, seals, otters, herons and many other species of birds, land and aquatic animals.

The foreshore is a tremendous economic resource in its natural state. Sports fishing attracts thousands of local and visiting anglers. The easily accessible public foreshore with its clean water is the main reason many people chose the coast for their permanent or vacation residence. A healthy foreshore is essential also to the life cycle of the native salmon species.

The B.C. commercial fishery produced 90,000 tons of fish in 1985 and employed thousands of fish in feeding pens, is a threat to the public foreshore and to the natural life in it. Already, hundreds of hectares of public foreshore have been given away to hold fish feeding pens. These are owned by private investors, many of whom are from other countries. The fish in the pens are totally dependent on manufactured feed. This feed is medicated to combat the high mortality rate due to disease. The waste produced by these thousands of fish goes directly into the surrounding waters. Adequate studies on the environmental impact of this waste have not been done.

John Brookbank, a retired biologist, said in a conversation with the Coast News that fish farm companies do not want to see full environmental studies done, and have backed out of proposed projects if it looked like they might have to submit to a study. Brookbank also said that in Japan Red Tides "just bloom around the fish pens".

It is very unusual for red tides to occur in the winter time but right now we are having a red tide in Sechart Inlet. It so happens that quite a number of fish farms have started operations there recently. Brookbank is also worried about the impact of antibiotics and other agents on the environment and the inevitable destruction of predators like otters, seals and birds by the fish cultivators. He was told by B.C. Ministry of Environment biologists that they were dealing out permits conditionally now and would worry about environmental effects later.

We don't think this is good enough. We would like to see a clean, healthy and public foreshore, not just for our sakes but for the sake of future generations and the natural environment.

We are convinced that fish farms will do irreparable damage to the natural foreshore.

We ask that at the very least, this moratorium be extended until thorough, long-term studies have been completed on the impact of existing fish farms.

Let's show concern

Editor: Recently, a 13 year old resident of the Coast was in an unfortunate explosion at the Sechart dump which left him with severe burns to the face and legs.

This boy has been a resident of the Coast all of his life and this accident hopefully will not, but most likely will, affect him for the rest of his life.

Let's get together, and by either making financial contributions to the tins set up in most local businesses for him, or by sending cards and letters to him, show him that we are concerned and thinking about him, and that he is not alone.

It helps so much on the road to recovery, to know that there are people out there that love you.

I know, because at nine years of age I was in serious condition after rupturing my spleen in a head-on car/bicycle accident. I was sent to the Sick

Children's Hospital in Toronto which was a very scary experience for me, coming from a small town. Then the cards and letters began arriving from my home town, which I still have one half a green garbage bag full of. They made me realize how many people out there would be sad if I didn't get better.

Please help Raven experience that same wonderful feeling to help him on his way to recovering from this terrible accident.

Show him you care by writing to him at: The Burn Unit, Heather Pavilion, Vancouver General Hospital, 855 W. 12th, Vancouver, B.C.

Local boxers keep winning

The Sunshine Boxing club racked up a 100 per cent performance on November 16 in Nanaimo as the B.C. 'Best Ever' Boxing team competed against California's touring team in an afternoon of sensational action.

In one of the most exciting bouts of the tournament, Mark Jaeger came from behind exhibiting superb conditioning and overwhelming power to outpoint the well respected Vern Holden of San Jose.

Jaeger will attempt to continue his winning streak this weekend in Medicine Hat, Alberta.

Duffy, who was considerably well tuned following a stint helping Dale Walters prepare for his recent shot for the Canadian Professional title, managed to stay on his toes, stick and move for three rounds to earn a unanimous decision over Sacramento's Mike Hodges, age

22. Hodges, the 1985 California State Champion was the victim of Duffy's elusive lateral movement and sizzling uppercuts.

Other B.C. victors were Mike O'Connell, 132 Langley; Manny Sobrel, 147 Astoria; Russ Lyons, 165 Nanaimo; Allan Brown, 125 Nanaimo; and, Ron Paske, 156 Vancouver.

Duffy, Jaeger and newcomer Chris Strom will all see action on December 6 in Squamish. Jaeger has accepted a challenge from Astoria's Wayne Cappolenni, while Duffy meets the much touted Mike O'Connell.

O'Connell, the 1984 Vancouver Golden Boy, lost a disputed split decision to Dale Walters in the pre-Olympic trials in 1984 and consequently retired. The 26 year old O'Connell has returned this year to score three consecutive knock out victories. This main event attraction could prove to be one of Duffy's most difficult contests.

S.C. Golf and Country Club

Winter Tournney

by Alec Warner

The team of Bill Babcock and George Townsend have finished their scheduled matches in the first half of the Winter Tournney and have posted a final score of 14.

Four other teams are nipping at their heels. They are the team of Dot Utterback and Doreen Matthews with a score of 10 and two matches to play for a possible tying 14.

The team of Al White/Mary Horn have a score of 10 with three matches to go for a possible 16, and the Bill Bader/Ozzie Hincks team also have a possible 16 total with a present score of 12 and two matches to go.

Also in the running is the team of Al Dean and J.C. Ross with 9 points and four matches to go for a possible 17.

The 'Dark Horse' team of Petula/Warner is comfortably resting and training for the onslaught on the second half of the tournament and then on to the finals and the cup!

The next Wednesday Crib session is December 3 at 7:30 p.m.

The next Tuesday afternoon Bridge session will take place on December 9 at 1 p.m.

Saturday, December 13 is the date of the next Saturday Bridge evening at 8 p.m.

The annual club 'Tom and Jerry Christmas Party' is set for Sunday, December 14 from 3 to 5 p.m.

All members are invited to come along and enjoy a truly festive afternoon!

Strikes and Spares

Not too much to report on this week as the 300 game seems to be getting scarce. Sue Whiting rolled a 318 single and a 707 triple and Bud Mulcaster rolled a 305 single in the Ball and Chain League and that was it for 300's.

In the Tuesday Coffee League Lee Larsen rolled a 288 single and an 800 triple for the best total of the week, Irene Rotluff a 272-771 total and Dorothy Robinson a 271-709 total.

In the Wednesday Coffee League, Hazel Skytte had a 244-718 total and in the YBC Bantam League Jeremy Howden rolled a 237 single and a 622 triple.

Minor Soccer

So far this year the weather has cleared up for the weekend soccer games; this weekend was no exception.

The games start at 10 a.m. with mini-soccer. If there are any soccer fans out there that would like to see some future soccer stars in the making you should come out and watch some mini-soccer games.

Now for the competitive age groups results: in the eight and nine year old age group there were two games. Roberts Creek Legion versus Elphinstone Recreation. This game ended in a tie with each team scoring two goals.

The other game in the eight and nine year olds saw Gibsons Building Supplies beat Shoppeasy with a score of 5-2.

In the 10 and 11 year age group there were also two games. In this age group there are five teams so each Saturday there is one team that gets a bye. In the first game Sechelt Lions downed Elphie Rec by a score of 11-1.

In the second game in this age group Frank Hoehne's team beat John Nickerson's team by a score of 2-0. This is the only loss for John Nickerson's team so far this year.

This week's rule is the throw-in. A throw-in is awarded when the whole of the ball passes over a touch line (side line) either on the ground or in the air. The throw-in is awarded to a player of the team opposite to that of the player who last touched the ball.

The thrower at the moment of delivering the ball must face the field of play and part of each foot shall be either on the touch line or on the ground outside the touch line. The thrower uses both hands and delivers the ball from behind and over his head. The thrower cannot touch the ball until it has been touched by another player.

You cannot score a goal directly from a throw-in and you cannot be off-side if you receive the ball directly from a throw-in. If the thrower plays the ball after it is thrown in and before anyone else plays it an indirect kick is awarded to the opposing team.

Coaches please note: there will be a coach's meeting Thursday, December 4. We will be talking about the tournament at the end of the season.

Dustbowl Troubadour

by Montague Royal

Anyone who happened to see the excellent film Bound For Glory, will have some knowledge of the fascinating character whose full name was Woodrow Wilson Guthrie. The movie was fine and quite accurate as far as it went, but it only covered a few years in the unique singer/songwriter's life. Woody Guthrie - A Life by Joe Klein (Knopf), tells the whole outlandish (and ultimately tragic) story.

Klein has obviously done his homework in researching the Guthrie legend. He employs a loose, folksy narrative style that is perfectly suited to the subject matter.

Woody Guthrie remains a totally unique figure in the annals of American music. A small, feisty, prodigious talented man, he was born July 14, 1912 in Okemah, Oklahoma. Tragedy dogged his childhood. His mother developed Huntington's disease and gradually became insane. His father, originally affluent, lost all his money through political intrigues and was reduced to pauperhood. Woody grew up a rebellious misfit who hated school. An inveterate reader, he largely educated himself.

Guthrie married at 20 and fathered three children but his nerverick ways ill-suited him for any sort of steady work. He eked out a spotty living sign painting and drawing cartoons. He also learned to play the guitar, formed a band and began writing songs. When the dust storms struck Oklahoma, Guthrie, in company with thousands of other destitute Okies, hit the boxcar route to California, leaving his wife and children with her relatives.

For most of the desperate Okies, California was hardly the Promised Land they had expected. They were resented, reviled and exploited. Guthrie was one of the lucky few. He teamed up with his cousin, Jack and landed a job on a small radio station, performing cowboy songs and folk ballads.

Guthrie became a left wing political activist during this period. He made several attempts to reunite with his family but his creative ambitions always intervened. Guthrie's real career began when he went to New York and met such pivotal figures of the early folk scene as Pete Seeger, Burl Ives, Cisco Huston, Leadbelly and the vastly influential compiler of folk material, Alan Lomax. He also met Marjorie Mazia who, after a long courtship, complicated by the fact that both were married to other people, would become his second wife.

Guthrie made many breakthroughs in New York. He recorded his first album, Dustbowl Ballads and, with Seeger, formed the influential Almanac Singers, who specialized in work ballads and union songs. Guthrie also debuted on national radio and appeared on Broadway. Constantly, he wrote songs and even authored a book, Bound For Glory. Ultimately, he and Marjorie were married and produced four off-spring, one of whom would become singer, Arlo Guthrie.

World War II caused a hiatus in Guthrie's career. He did two stints in the Merchant Marine with Cisco Huston and was inexplicably drafted into the Army in 1945, possibly because of his leftist leanings.

Guthrie went on to write more songs and make several more records but he was never to attain the sort of mega-fame that his talents deserved. He was to remain a cult figure, beloved among folk-lovers but relatively little known to the public at large. His best songs such as So Long, It's Been Good To Know You and This Land is Your Land were destined to become standards - but always in versions by other performers. Guthrie himself was fated to remain obscure.

Guthrie's final years were clouded with tragedy. His mother had left him the grim legacy of Huntington's disease and it began to gnaw away in him, gradually robbing him of his faculties.

Woody Guthrie was confined to a hospital bed during his last days. Here he was visited by a succession of friends, old and new, including an aspiring young folk singer named Bob Dylan. Dylan's early work owes much to Guthrie's influence.

This is a finely-written, engrossing book, well worth a perusal.

Is your house losing energy dollars?

Every year thousands of Canadian homes lose energy dollars through air leakage, poor insulation and inefficient heating systems.

That's why most homes should have a thorough energy

Here are some hints on how to investigate these major energy components and improve the energy efficiency of your house.

Air leakage control

Air leakage control is one of the most cost-effective energy conservation measures available; homeowners often recover their costs quickly through lower energy bills. So begin your energy check-up by searching for air leaks.

The colder and windier the day, the better. Cold air drafts may be coming in at major problem areas, such as around doors and windows, and less severe leaks can be easily located by pulling a tissue or smoke pencil along walls and ceiling and noting where the tissue or smoke flutters.

One or more of three different methods may be required to seal the leaks.

- Caulking should be used to seal fixed joints — those that are not intended to move in relation to each other.

- Weatherstripping is used for joints that move in relation to each other, such as the moving parts of windows and doors.

- Air-vapour barriers prevent air and vapour from passing from the living space into the building structure and insulation. They are usually installed on the warm side of the insulation and should be completely sealed. One material commonly used for air-vapour barriers is 0.15 mm polyethylene sheets.

Insulation

Next, give some thought to insulation. Take note of what areas in your house are insulated, what kind of insulation is installed and to what depth. If the insulation work was done by a contractor most of this information should be written down, either in the contract or in the contractor's records. Failing this, you'll have to do some scouting to get the facts.

You should ensure that all insulation is in good shape (not wet or compacted) and that an effective air-vapour barrier is in place. You should also determine if your insulation is up to current standards. Specific recommended thermal resistance values vary according to a region's climate, but the general ranges are as follows:

walls	2.8 to 4.5	16 to 26

Finally... a Cure for the Common Cold.

Energy efficiency is a guaranteed cure for those chills you get with your electricity or gas bill, for those shivers you feel when you hear about the cost of heating oil, and for those coughing fits you seem to develop every time you see how much you pay for hot water.

Energy efficiency, in fact, cures almost every cold-related ill you and your house suffer from.

Next time you are building or renovating a home, remember, even with lower energy prices, energy efficiency is an excellent investment. Energy efficiency will improve the comfort of your home, as well as be financially rewarding. So don't suffer needlessly from the effects of the common cold. Proper home energy management and good energy habits will cure it every time!

It's called energy efficiency.

Is your house losing energy dollars?

basement walls	-	2.2	13
roofs and ceilings	-	4.4 to 7.1	25 to 40
floors (over unheated spaces)	-	4.7	28

In certain components of the house (for example, a partly filled wall cavity) attaining these recommended levels may be too expensive. Remember that there is a diminishing return for each additional unit of thermal resistance added, so it makes sense to concentrate initial efforts where little insulation exists.

The heating system
Now turn your attention to the heating system. Is the system in good shape? Has it recently received major servicing or upgrading? Does it deliver heat to all parts of the house evenly?

If you answered no to these questions — or if you aren't sure what the answers are — it may be worthwhile to call in a heating contractor. This person can serve several functions, from cleaning the heating system and giving it a tune-up to recommending upgrading or replacement. In any case, have the heating system serviced annually to ensure that it runs as safely and efficiently as possible.

When renovating, think energy efficiency

Renovation can do more than change the physical appearance of your house — it can improve the energy efficiency as well. By working energy efficiency into your plans, the money you save on fuel bills will help pay for the renovation work. Better yet, the energy savings will continue year after year.

Many energy conservation activities that normally would be extremely difficult or impossible can be undertaken during renovation. For example, effective sealing of the sill plate (a major source of air leakage) in a finished basement might involve removing the wall covering and insulation. This work can be accomplished more conveniently when you are actually finishing the basement.

A common reason for doing renovation work is to make the home more comfortable. Energy conservation can help. An energy-efficient home has fewer drafts and cold walls and is warmer in winter and cooler in summer than a poorly insulated, leaky home.

Energy efficiency can usually be incorporated into renovation plans at little extra cost. If you're hiring a contractor, ask to have energy improvements worked into the renovation proposal.

Here are some tips that will help you build energy efficiency into all of your home renovation plans.

To start at the top: if you plan to turn attic space into an extra room, you can make it more comfortable by sealing all air leaks, installing generous amounts of insulation and adding an air-vapour barrier on the warm side of the insulation. If space is at a premium, board stock insulation covered by a suitable fire-resistant material (such as gypsum board) might be the best solution. Installing windows on the south-facing wall and skylights in the ceiling can both brighten the room and provide passive solar heat (be sure the windows and skylights are caulked and weatherstripped).

If you are working on the ventilation system in an unfinished attic, check the existing insulation and air sealing; it may be worthwhile to upgrade both. Vents should be unobstructed by debris to improve air flow and help prevent condensation problems and ice buildup. If insulation is blocking the vents, create a clear air passage by installing baffles. Ensure that the joints around new vents are completely sealed and that the vents are louvred or installed to keep rain or snow from entering the attic.

When decorating existing upstairs rooms, consider using oil-based paint or vinyl wallpaper. These materials can help prevent water vapour from passing into the wall cavity or attic, where it can decrease the effectiveness of the insulation.

Double-glazed windows and insulated doors can significantly reduce conductive heat loss. Be sure that all doors and windows, old or new, are thoroughly caulked and weatherstripped. Caulk around doors and window trim with a paintable caulking before painting. If you replace a baseboard, caulk the joint between the wall and floor before installing the new material. Caulking should always be applied from inside the house.

Fireplaces contribute to the appearance of a room but they are inherently inefficient. When making repairs to an existing fireplace, be sure the damper seals tightly or consider installing a chimney cap damper.

Supplementing the combustion air available to a fireplace can also reduce the amount of heated air drawn up the chimney. Fresh-air intake ducts bring combustion air from the outdoors to the front of the fireplace. The ducts should be equipped with a tight-fitting damper that can be closed when the fireplace is not in use.

Glass doors can be an attractive addition to a fireplace and can help prevent house air from being lost up the chimney when the fire is dying down or when the fireplace is not in use. If you're installing a new fireplace, ensure it is energy efficient.

Major kitchen renovations, such as the addition of new cupboards, also provide an opportunity for air sealing or insulation work. If you're adding a south-facing breakfast nook, consider incorporating energy-efficient windows in the design for a pleasant 'solarium-like' effect that takes advantage of passive solar heat.

In the bathroom, do as much caulking and insulation work as possible (insulate on the cold side of the water pipes to prevent freezing). Many caulking materials are moisture resistant, making them ideal for the bathroom. Also, consider installing a flow restrictor showerhead to reduce the amount of hot water used.

Before finishing the basement ceiling, tape all joints in the hot air ducts (you might even consider insulating long runs of duct work). This will help get more of the heat from the furnace to its destination. Caulk all cracks in the exterior masonry walls, install insulation and add an air-vapour barrier.

Energy efficiency can even be incorporated into renovation work on the outside of your house. For example, if you have gone to the trouble of excavating to repair leaky foundation walls, it makes sense to insulate these walls from the outside before backfilling. In any case, make sure the wall is well dampproofed.

Before re-siding your house, add insulation from the outside or use insulating siding. And if you're adding a pool or buying a new heating system for an existing pool, consider buying a solar water-heating system.

Fish farming pro and con

Local fishermen and fish farmers alternately presented conflicting points of view and facts to the Gillespie inquiry last Wednesday.

Harry Russell, a commercial salmon troller for 30 years, told chairman David Gillespie that he was "upset that the provincial government has been promoting fish farming while we still have a viable commercial fishing industry." This situation is different, he pointed out, than in Norway where the aquaculture industry was developed as a response to declining commercial fishing.

He disputed the claim by aquaculturists that they were not competing for the same markets. He quoted dropping prices for red spring salmon from $3.75 per pound in 1984 to $2.35 per pound in 1986.

However, in a presentation made later in the day, Syd Heal, president of the Sunshine Coast Aquaculture Association, maintained that aquaculture is resulting in an increased market demand.

"The wholesaler and retailer of fish appreciates having a 12 month, rather than a seasonal, supply and this in turn encourages the shopper to regard fish as a much more staple part of diet."

Oddvin Vedo, in his brief on behalf of Master Marine Canada, introduced himself as "the single most responsible person for bringing the industry to B.C." He supported Mr. Heal's claims and said that aquaculture also upgrades prices paid for wild stock as well as pen-raised fish.

Jim Cameron, a fisherman from Pender Harbour, spoke on the issue of fish farms going into traditional gill net areas, and warned that a confrontation was inevitable if the situation continued.

Russell Cameron, a third UFAWU member, spoke of the threat to the tourist industry as well as the 70 or more commercial fishermen in the Pender Harbour area due to "the explosion of salmon farms in the area".

He asked the commission, "What's going to happen as farms go bankrupt leaving unpaid bills? The tourist industry won't be there anymore. And don't look to fishermen to help the local economy. We'll be out of business by then."

Business women seek Gibsons Charter

The Lower Mainland Regional Office of the Business and Professional Women's Club is seeking women that are interested in becoming charter members of a new club being formed in Gibsons.

The Business and Professional Women's Club is for all working women of various occupations, viewpoints and ages, and is a non-sectarian and non-partisan member organization within the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. The club promotes the interests of women and works towards the improvement of the status of women in business, industry and the professions.

Some of the main purposes of the local club are to improve the economic employment and social conditions of women; to encourage and assist women to acquire education and training; to stimulate interest in Federal, Provincial and Municipal affairs; and to encourage women to participate in the business of government at all levels, "if they wish".

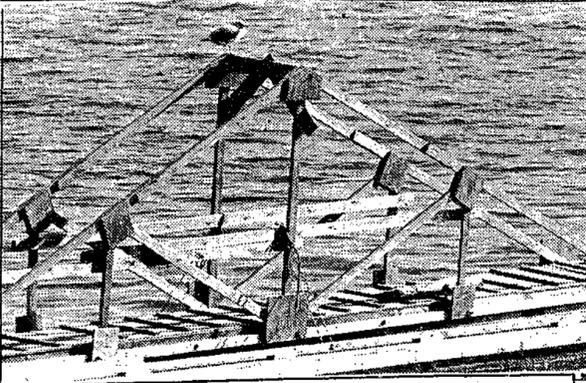

Club members are involved in workshops, seminars and educational programs for advancement in careers, leadership and self-improvement; through studies of legislation as it affects women, and the presentation of briefs to governments on matters of current concern; studies to eliminate discrimination against women in employment, education and economic welfare; and participation in monthly club meetings, annual provincial conferences, bi-ennial national conventions and tri-ennial international congresses.

Business and Professional Women's Clubs are operating in Vancouver, North Vancouver, Coquitlam, New Westminster, Burnaby, Richmond, Surrey, Sechelt, White Rock, Mission, Abbotsford and throughout B.C.

An organizational meeting will be held in the Marine Room in Gibsons, Thursday, December 4, at 7 p.m. to form a club in Gibsons. Speakers will be Bev Hoy, Vancouver lawyer and National First Vice-President Dorothy Calvert, Surrey Regional Director.

For further information contact Gwen Robertson at 885-3890.

Guess Where

The usual prize of $5 will be awarded the first entry drawn which correctly locates the above. Send your entries to reach the Coast News, Box 460, Gibsons by Saturday of this week. Last week's winner was Poria Albrecht of Tyson Road, Sechelt, who correctly located the Aqua West seapen in Trail Bay, Sechelt.

Through the mist of sorrow, watch for the soft beacons of friendship to guide you. Your friends, neighbors and family will support you and help to lead you to comfort and consolation at the time when you need it most. . . . We pledge ourselves to giving you the best assistance possible.

You know us . . . you can depend on our help.

Futures hopeful

Irene Lugsdin gave an optimistic report on the Sunshine Coast's application to be designated a "Community Futures" community at the meeting of the Economic Development Commission (EDC).

As a member of the delegation sent to the Community Future's Conference in Pentecost in September, Lugsdin met with and talked to several Federal politicians and she assured the commission that the application has political support.

Community Futures is a program of Employment and Immigration Canada which provides designated communities which have major lay-offs or chronic unemployment with support, and access to funding for the development of economic and employment opportunities.

In order to receive this designation, a community must establish a Community Futures Committee which would then be eligible to receive up to $200,000 over two years.

This money would represent a locally-managed risk capital fund for local enterprises not able to get bank financing. The program has proven very successful in other centres.
