SCRD asks for aquaculture analysis

The Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD) wants a cost benefit analysis of the aquaculture industry and are asking the Economic Development Commission (EDC) to do it. SCRD Chairman Jim Gurney told the commission, "There's been a lot of controversy about whether or not it's worth it to develop the aquaculture industry. All the research that's been done has been done by groups of people with vested interests. We need an impartial study to tell us in which direction we should be focusing and where the greatest benefit to the community lies." was suggested that it could make some investment money available to the industry.

Gibsons and District Chamber of Commerce representative John Burnside stated that in Norway, the industry has been set up to maximize benefits to the community at large.

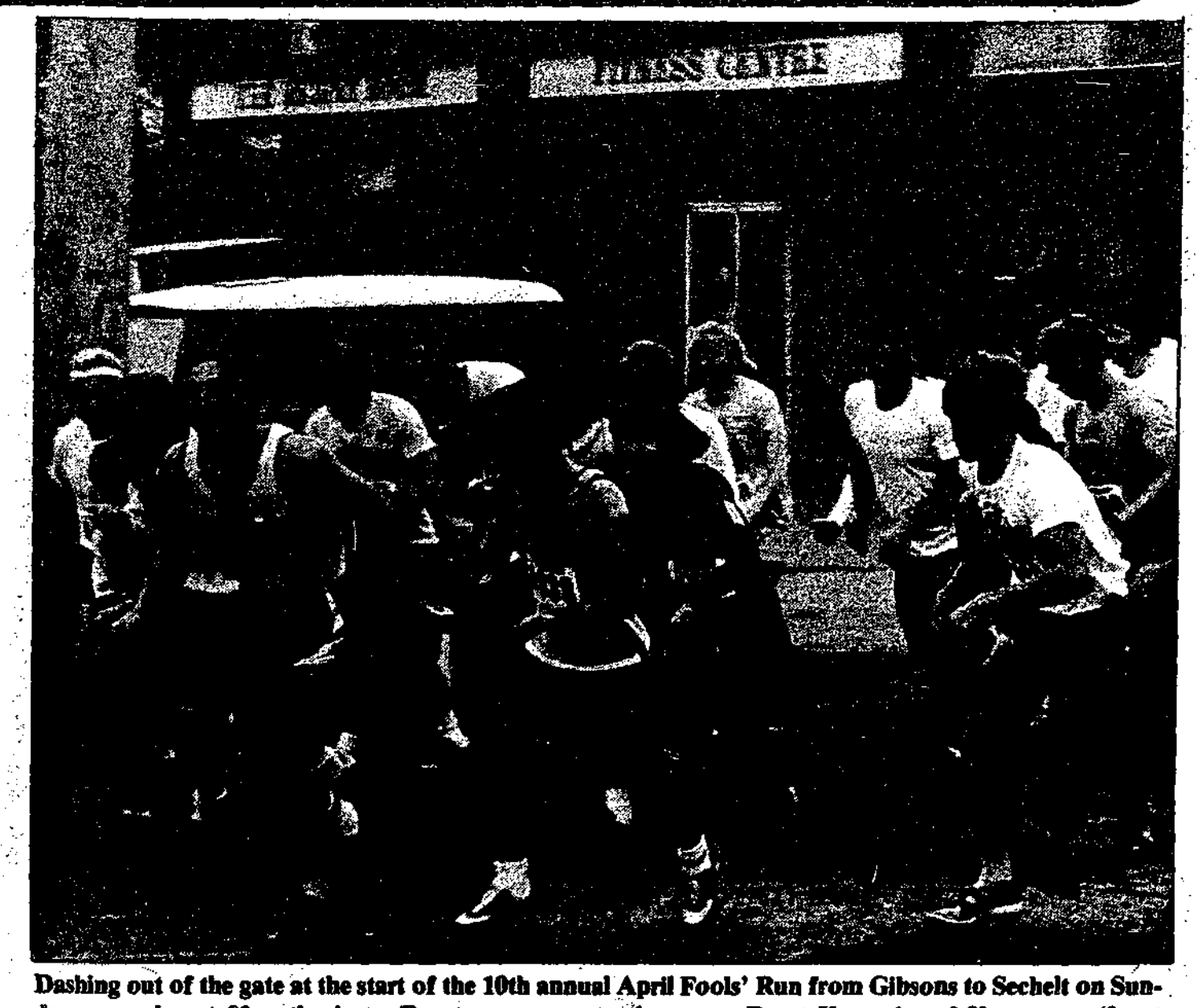
Art Giroux, who represents the industry on the commission, cautioned against setting a precedent by singling out the aquaculture industry, but Community Development Officer Irene Lugsdin assured him that the same sort of research had already been done on the forest industry and was currently being done on the tourist industry.

She told the meeting that a lot of people want that kind of data when they're making investment plans. "It's the kind of information that the Community Futures board will want to know when they draw up their economic strategy," she said. It

"Not enough attention has been paid to the Norwegian experience," he said. "They have 25 years of experience that we're not even looking at. If a rational approach is going to be taken it must include that information."

Gibsons Alderman Bob Maxwell agreed. He related a conversation he had with a Norwegian biologist last summer "who was quite aghast at the way we're handling it."

Art Giroux told the meeting that he felt the aquaculture industry would welcome the study and Gurney was asked to bring the terms of reference to the next meeting.



Dashing out of the gate at the start of the 10th annual April Fools' Run from Gibsons to Sechelt on Sunday were almost 80 enthusiasts. Front runners even then were Brent Kamenka of Vancouver (front right), who placed second; Irene Lugsdin, first woman across the line; and Glen Chilton of Calgary, wearing number 1938, who with a time of 1:18:08 won the run for the third consecutive year and was rewarded with permanent possession of the Coast News Challenge Cup. More pictures and details of the run next week.

Drug and alcohol abuse

Schools program unique

Kids on the Sunshine Coast are using drugs and alcohol, some of them extensively, Brian Butcher, the principal of Chatelech told the regular Sechelt council meeting last Wednesday, "It's not much different than any other place in Canada. But I think we've come up with a unique way of handling the problem and I think we can change what's happening," he said.

Butcher outlined a five-prong, three year program which he believes can address the problem of drug and alcohol abuse in adolescents. This includes an education and awareness program for students, parents, teachers and the school board as well as peer support groups for teenagers who are users trying to quit.

He emphasized that "this is a community problem and we all have to share in the solution." A study was recently done at the school and Butcher said that the results show 100 per cent of the senior kids have used alcohol at some time and 40 per cent use it regularly. Between 50 and 75 per cent have used grass, some have used hash or acid and many use psychedelic mushrooms. "A significant number are already alcoholics," he said.

On May 14, the school is starting its war on drug and alcohol abuse with a full day forum called "It Can't Happen to Me". Students from Chatelech and Pender Harbour Secondary, some students from Elphinstone and any parents in the community who wish to attend will have a choice of 23 different workshops throughout the day.

During the next three years, the school will be having special high-profile speakers in to talk to the kids and peer counselling groups will be set up.

Although the forum is going to cost the school $3000 to $3500, Butcher didn't ask Sechelt council for money. All he requested was their endorsement and support which council enthusiastically gave him.

Talking to the Coast News later, he said that he was applying for grant money from the government but that any and all donations from the community would be welcomed.

Sechelt Indian Bill gets third reading

by Penny Fuller

The provincial legislature gave unanimous approval last week to the second and third reading of the Sechelt Indian Government District Enabling Bill. The bill now requires ratification by the band before it can be given royal assent and become law. Chief Tom Paul anticipates no problem in getting band members' approval.

"It's our draft of the bill," he told reporters. "It's exactly what we wrote so I don't think the Sechelt people will reject it."

The chief and council members received congratulations from Mike Harcourt first hand, last Friday and discussed the implications of the legislation. Financial Advisor Gordon Anderson told Harcourt, "This is a historical breakthrough. It will always be an Indian government, chosen by the Sechelt people."

Harcourt pointed out that the Sechelt Band still has outstanding aboriginal title claims and that still has to be dealt with. "There's a whole variety of issues that still have to be dealt with," he said.

The bill defines the parameters of the Sechelt Indian District's authority, but negotiations with individual provincial ministries for various services still has to take place. Former Chief Stan Dixon has been hired by the band to be part of the Sechelt negotiating team.

Chief Paul anticipates that the second part of the federal legislation will be passed soon and that the Sechelt Indian District will be operational by January 1, 1988.

Provincial NDP leadership candidate and former Vancouver mayor Mike Harcourt was delighted to have time during his recent visit to the Sunshine Coast for a chat with his long-time friend Grace MacInnis, former MP, MLA, and daughter of the founder of the CCF (NDP) J.S. Woodsworth.

Gibsons retirement housing?

An ad-hoc gathering of Gibsons residents met in Gibsons Council chambers last Tuesday to hear local developer Jon McRae outline plans for the town's first retirement housing complex.

In attendance were Mayor Diane Strom, Alderman Lilian Kunstler, Planner Rob Buchan and invited citizens.

Among the features outlined as favourable to the project were its proximity to the marina, the seawalk, parks, the art gallery, the post office and shopping facilities.

A questionnaire was handed out asking those present what they would like to see in the way of a retirement complex and a further meeting was scheduled for April 15 at 2 pm in council chambers.

Those interested are invited to attend

Contacted by the Coast News later in the week, Alderman Bob Maxwell who has been chairing a sub-committee on the regional Economic Development Commission on retirement housing for the past months, allowed that he would have considered it a courtesy if he had been invited to participate.

Imported elk dies

One of the elk recently transplanted to the Sunshine Coast was found dead last week by a salal picker. Conservation officer Jamie Stephen told the Coast News that the young cow had been dead for about three and a half weeks. Although an autopsy had not been done, Stephen told the Coast News that he believed the animal had died shortly after release from transport shock.

Six elk remain, including one mature bull, and three mature cows have been collared with a tracking device. Stephen tracked them last week up Mount Hallowell and all three seem to be moving well although he was unable to catch sight of them.

Dance for Hansen

The Sechelt committee for the support of the Rick Hansen Man in Motion Tour swings into high gear this week with a Fabulous Fifties Dance featuring the big band sounds of Harbour Lites Orchestra.

The dance is scheduled for the Sechelt Indian Band Hall on Saturday night, April 11 and will feature door prizes, a jiving prize, a limbo prize and a prize for the best costume.

Tickets have been selling well and should be picked up soon at Trail Bay Sports, Workwear World, Century West Realty, or from Jeanette Gordon, Carolynne Breadner, Ed Traff, Maureen Clayton or Mike Shanks.

AIDS seminar

April 13 is the day the B.C. School Trustees Association will by conducting a one hour audio-conferencing seminar that will bring together a team of highly qualified experts currently working in the area of AIDS.

School boards throughout the province have been invited to take part. The session will assist trustees and district staff to improve their understanding of the legal, medical and policy issues related to AIDS. Development and implementation of appropriate policies will be discussed.

The Sunshine Coast School Board has decided to participate.

Easter Egg Hunt

All children are invited to bring their parents and join in an Easter Egg Hunt on Easter Sunday from noon until 2 pm.

Sponsored by the Gibsons Landing Theatre Project Society, the hunt will take place in Holland Park, the site of the old Gibsons firehall which has been allocated for the proposed 300 seat multi-use theatre.

Rumour has it that the Easter Bunny himself (herself?) will be in attendance and, as well as Easter eggs will be offering memberships in the society for only $5 per person. Everyone is welcome.

School Board announces

Holmes signs up for three years

by John Burnside

At a press conference on Thursday, April 2, School Board Chairman Maureen Clayton announced that Superintendent Art Holmes had accepted a three-year contract to serve the school district as superintendent.

Superintendent Holmes retired from the superintendency of Courtenay School District in August of 1985. He accepted an invitation to assist School District 46 in its search for a new superintendent in July of 1986. Subsequently he was invited to remain with this school district for the whole school year, 1986-87.

SUPT. ART HOLMES

The contract announced last week will see him serve as superintendent on the Sunshine Coast through to the end of the 1989 school year.

Board chairman Clayton professed herself delighted that a man of Holmes' calibre had been prevailed upon to continue his service to the school district.

Superintendent Holmes outlined his priorities for the Coast News over the life of his contract:

"First I intend to help the board with its reconstruction plans, with emphasis on the implementation of the French Immersion program, the further development of a district-wide music program, and the enhancement of a drama and fine arts program for all of our schools.

"Then I intend to assist with curriculum development and program implementation in the following key areas: family life decision-making, a new mathematics progarm, and the science curriculum."

Holmes outlined his other priorities as being a resolve to work steadily to raise teaching morale and organizational and administrative effectiveness, and a desire to invoke in all taxpayers and students the same pride in this school system that he feels, and, incrementally, a desire to see School District 46 achieve its potential as a 'lighthouse district' in this province.

Comment

Half cocked

We have known demonstrations at the ferry terminal before this. The previous one brings a memory of a figure hanging in effigy during the demonstration which cast a sombre atmosphere into a sunny day and alienated even the supporters of the protest.

As protests go, last week's 'honk-in' at the ferry terminal seems to have been hastily conceived and probably ill-advised.

This is not to say that the existing policy of having a fully-crewed ferry boat sit idle at the dock in the middle of the day cutting the coast off from Vancouver and the mainland in the prime business hours is not an infuriating absurdity.

It is on a par with the loading ramp built, badly, at considerable expense to allow four lanes of traffic off the ferry to become one at ground level; it is on a par with letting the heaviest and slowest vehicles off first so that they can continue to hold up traffic miles from the ferry dock; it is on a par with selling your boats to Royal Trust and then leasing them back, necessitating the use of the biggest, leased boats even if they are not the best for the job because you can't have them sitting idle while you are paying a lease for them.

Let's face it, our ferry system is absurd. A reader wrote this week abou the chronic inability to organize a ferry schedule which would enable us to make connections with the Nanaimo boat. Nothing can ever be done for us, it seems, and the deplorable way this area has been treated has contributed in no small measure to the decline in our local economy.

But is a 'honk-in' likely to have any effect, coming as it does immediately after what to the cement-headed Ferry Corporations must seem as a major concession in the reactivation of the mid-morning ferry in May?

If petulant abrasiveness could improve the ferry service, regional director John Shaske would have improved it years ago.

It is difficult to know what to suggest, everything it seems has been tried in the past. But maybe, just maybe, if all of our quarrelling factions of the Sunshine Coast could forget to fight for a season and agree to fund a study by some recognized transportation authority into our transportation needs, and if we could present that study to Victoria using one voice and being of one, preferably sound, mind perhaps we could shame our provincial government into improvement and responsiveness.

Of course, it is easier to go off half-cocked and sound your horn.

The converted tug boat Gabriola, manoeuvering off of Porpoise Bay wharf, has been given a new lease on life by Eric Nelson, who has lived in the Sechelt area for 32 years. The Gabriola was built in 1926 at Burrard Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Ltd. in Vancouver. She has seen service in log and barge towing for various companies, including Gulf of Georgia Towing Ltd. and Coastal Marine Towing Ltd. The vessel is oak ribbed and fir planked, 40 feet in length, 15 feet wide, draws seven feet of water and has a gross tonnage of 30.03 tonnes. She is powered by a 100 horsepower Volvo-Penta diesel and up to the early 1970's the original four cylinder Washington diesel could still be found bolted to her engine bed. In 1986 Eric discovered the 'Old Girl' in the south arm of the Fraser River, where she had been sitting for a number of years, and with a lot of 'elbow grease' made her ready for sea and now utilizes the ship in his hand logging operations in coastal inlets.

What, you may ask, has a story which arrived in my office last week about two men and a boy coming down the inside passage from Skagway to Lund have to do with the appointment of a new school district superintendent? Let me try to explain.

More than 20 years ago I was a high school teacher in the Yukon Territories. I became friends with the elementary supervisor, a gentleman by the name of John Barton who would drop by my home for a visit during his stays in Dawson City on educational business.

I believe it was in my living room that the idea of leaving the Yukon by boat was born, and I was originally pencilled in as one of the crew. Circumstances dictated that I left the Yukon the year before John Barton did, and so I missed the trip which he made in the summer of 1967 along with Harry Thompson, who had been the secondary school supervisor, and Harry's 10 year old son.

The next time I met John Barton he was hiring people for the Sunshine Coast in a hotel in Vancouver. He worked here from 1968-69. I wasn't looking for a job but I went by to visit and filled out an application form while I was there and three weeks later had decided to live on the Coast.

Some 14 years later, again, I was moved to fulminate against the educational administrative practices being followed in this school district in my role as a community commentator in this newspaper. I realized that what I had to say would be construed as the outpouring of an embittered ex-teacher, which I never have been. (I scarcely knew the former superintendent John Denley whilst I was a teacher, his first year coinciding with my last.)

After the fulmination which I felt was justified back in 1984, I was moved to write about Jon Barton, an educational administrator that I had known who brought a compassion and an understanding to the business of supervising teachers that made them better teachers. I had no idea where Barton was or what he was doing but I rememberd that the elementary teachers in Dawson City counted the days between his visits because he was a supportive and encouraging figure who knew how important it was to say the positives, to tell a teacher what he or she was doing well, and who, when educational difficulties were encountered, could actually get in there and teach a demonstration lesson in problem areas.

This kind of educational reinforcement is what supervision should be all about and seldom is.

As fate would have it, Pender Harbour Principal Martyn Wilson was visiting the Coast the week I wrote this piece and John Barton was retiring from Wilson's previous school district that June. Wilson and the others fortunate enough to work with John Barton agreed with my assessment and so it was that the positive half of that Musings happened to be read at the retirement occasion of the man it sought to honour.

Nothing more was heard from John Barton, until last week an immaculate manuscript arrived in the mails following up a surprise phone call and I was reading about the trip I had missed 20 years after the idea was born.

It is with pleasure that I now move to telling you what all this has to do with last week's announcement by the school trustees that Superintendent Art Holmes had agreed to remain in this school district through 1989.

It is my judgement, based on meeting Superintendent Holmes and on what I have picked up in the community about his approach to his work, that we on the Sunshine Coast are most fortunate to have such an educator working amongst us.

This is the kind of educational administrator that John Barton was, a figure that teachers are pleased to see appear and with whom students are both familiar and comfortable. It is safe to say that whatever the political climate from Victoria which besets education in the next few years, morale in this district will improve and along with it education.

I congratulate our school trustees and welcome Mr. Holmes.

Markets: II

The Chinese store on the corner has gone, just went past yesterday and there it was, less fruit than before but still there and now today, its gone with only the old cases to remind you of it, actually it's not much different than it was before, just a little barer really some of the colour gone, and the old man with the blue open worked skull cap his wife crocheted for him, and his big bony wife smiling her gold tooth smile at you each time you came in... Gradual, it was that change in the quantity and each thing got older, sat on the shelf for longer each time...Washing soda is something hard to get and they carried that and bok choy, washing soda was the only thing I bought there recently as a matter of fact.

Porta-Potty portents

by Nancy MacLarty

The first and third Wednesday of each month the District of Sechelt holds its regular council meetings. Not too many taxpayers show up these Wednesday evenings, unless of course they know that some item of direct interest to them is to be discussed. I attend all of the meetings because I feel that as a taxpayer in the district, every item (well almost every item) is of interest to me. After all, they are my tax dollars.

This past Wednesday night an item came up during the Public Works Committee report presented by Alderman Herder that should be of pressing interest to all of us. Porta-Potties.

Apparently, with the extraordinarily good weather we have been enjoying on the Coast, the need for Porta-Potties at Davis Bay and Trail Bay has become a matter of urgency much earlier in the season than usual. People are out and about in the good weather, enjoying the beaches and walks along the sea wall. The warm breezes have prompted citizens and others to feel nature's call...in more ways than one.

Last week therefore, Sechelt District Council wrestled with the problem of whose jurisdiction these conveniences come under. Parks and Recreation (Alderman Michael Shanks) or Public Works (Alderman Len Herder). I don't think a decision was made, although it is difficult to hear all that is said in Chambers. But it is clear that now, as a district municipality with expanded boundaries, our Porta-Pottie costs will rise.

Davis Bay Porta-Potties used to be under the administration of the Sunshine Coast Regional District. Now Sechelt must pay, and that could be a strain. To make matters worse, Tuwanek needs Porta-Potties too, according to Alderman Herder, because of the increasing number of skin divers in the area. It seems that wet suits are difficult to get out of, otherwise the Inlet could be the outlet. But, my question is, if the suits are wet in the first place, is this extra cost justified? After all, the District of Sechelt is not exactly flush with money.

One alderman suggested that in Tuwanek a "pay as you go" system be set in place. I, however, feel that this just wouldn't work because of the lack of accommodation for loose change in wet suits. Other suggestions from council in this regard were to install permanent Porta-Potties in Tuwanek after performing proper Porta-Pottie perc tests and to investigate the option of hooking into the existing system of some accommodating resident.

Council also expressed concern about the appropriate design of any permanent facilities. Could they be made esthetically pleasing and not stand out like a sore thumb? My suggestion is to have Sechelt hold a competition and invite local architects to submit their ideas. The winner could have his or her name inscribed on a plaque and enjoy free use of the buildings for life.

Anyway, the upshot of this one item at Wednesday's busy council meeting was the decision to look into Porta-Potties further, but, for the time being, to just "sit" on the Tuwanek project.

May I suggest if any taxpayer has any helpful suggestions or ideas regarding this subject that they put them on paper and mail them to: Mayor and Council, District of Sechelt, Box 129, Sechelt, B.C. V0N 3A0. After all, this is a subject into which everyone should, and eventually will, have input.

Letters to the Editor

Drug abuse is a community problem

Editor:

Often, those of us working in high schools hear of the 'school' drug problem or the 'school' alcohol problem. It seems to be seen by many people as a problem which exists at the school, almost as a part of the school.

Drug and alcohol abuse is not a school problem; it is a people problem, a community problem of which the school is simply a part.

Our problem in Sechelt is likely no worse nor no better than the problems of many small communities in B.C. Our solution, however, we believe to be unique.

Chatelech, in conjunction with concerned people in our community, has established a committee called 'It Can't Happen To Me!'. The purpose of the committee is to focus on drug and alcohol abuse as a problem for all of us to deal with.

On May 13, Chatelech is holding a one day forum. In place of going to regularly scheduled classes students will attend workshops and seminars. Students will select from 22 one hour sessions which run simultaneously throughout the day.

The 'It Can't Happen To Me' committee is contacting and inviting every parent in our school community, and through service groups is extending a general invitation to all of Sechelt.

In order that we reach as many people as possible the day will run from 9 am to 9 pm. Workshops will focus on drug and alcohol abuse amongst youth, in the family and with the aged.

Local resource people will be supplemented by resource people from other areas of the lower mainland and Vancouver Island. Several keynote speakers will present addresses during the day.

While the original impetus for this day came from the school it is our hope that this will become a community event. If you would like to become involved in any way please phone 885-3216.

Emergency Response

Editor:

Re: Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD) Emergency Response Plan - Responders

The regional district, including both of the included municipalities, has in place an Emergency Response Plan, in which are outlined procedures to be followed and agencies and resources to be utilized in meeting the objectives of the saving of life, preservation of property and the continuation of government in the event of a disaster.

The Emergency Executive Committee, a delegated group of elected officials responsible for implementing the Emergency Response Plan, would like to ensure that all responding agencies, both government and private sector, are familiar with the plan, and for that purpose are convening a short seminar on the subject, Friday afternoon, April 3 at 1 pm in the SCRD board room. Provincial Emergency Program staff from the Lower Mainland regional office will be present, and opportunity will be given for them to speak and to answer questions.

You are cordially invited to attend this seminar, or be represented at a suitable level, so that your particular agency can be aware of what is expected of you and of what other agencies will be doing.

Hoping to see you there.

Skelly in action

Editor:

After three frustrating months of trying to get my Canada Pension Plan straightened out, I finally wrote to Mr. Skelly, MP, for assistance.

I mailed the letter, special delivery, on March 20 and today, March 27, I had a phone call from CPP explaining their error. Someone had erased me from the computer in Ottawa by mistake back in December.

I wish to thank Mr. Skelly for his prompt action on my behalf. Also thanks to his office staff in Powell River.

Organized by Art Giesbrecht and Cindy Buis, the highly successful auction realized sales totalling $8,250.

Fishing licences available

New 1987-88 salt water sports fishing licences are now available, with fishing guide booklets to follow in the next two or three weeks.

New regulations require juveniles 15 and under to carry a licence when fishing and to record their chinook catch on the licence, which is free.

Adult annual licence fees have been raised to $10 for Canadian residents.

Spot closures will be identical to those in effect last year, with three local areas, Gower Point, Buccaneer Bay, and Agamemnon Channel becoming effective midnight April 12

Other changes: Pender Harbour is now open to crab fishing by ring nets only. Porpoise Bay, Inside Poise Island, will close to all bivalve shellfish on a year-round basis due to fecal (sewage) contamination.

Ling cod re-opens midnight, April 15.

Sechelt Seniors

Executive meeting this week important

by Larry Grafton

Executive members and committee heads are reminded of the next Executive Meeting to be held in our hall at 10 am on April 7. It is apparent that our president, Gerry Chailler, has been working under pressure during the past few months and now requires medical treatment and rest.

First Vice-President Mike Timms will be at the helm for the next while at least, so be prepared to simplify his task with your whole hearted co-operation.

PUBLICATION

Your scribe is called upon to do such things as putting announcements on Channel 11, making posters for special events, ticket sales, etc., etc., as well as keeping our membership informed in column.

I must again stress the point that input from committee heads is necessary in order that all reports of each announcement or poster are covered in full. On past occcasions there have been errors and omissions because of lack of input from the committees involved. I must have this detail to successfully cover all events properly, so please let me have your assistance.

A POINT OF PRIDE

In Nicole Parton's column in the Vancouver Sun of March 25, she dwells on the "pride" seniors will take in paying 75 per cent of their pharmacists dispensing fee. In last week's seniors column I agreed in principal that the deficit must be faced, but when our young Vancouver columnist starts talking about "pride" I wonder what she thinks all we 70 and 80 year olds did with our earnings during our 40 to 60 years of working for a living.

I wonder if she has any idea of what successive federal and provincial government did with our hard earned tax dollars during our productive years. We were in most cases proud to do our part during those years but let's not dwell too heavily on pride today, when one considers that dollars set aside during our working years are now probably worth about 40 cents and maybe less.

REGIONAL MEETING

On Thursday, April 8, the regional council, consisting of representatives from Powell River, Pender Harbour, and Sechelt, will meet in the legion hall in Madeira Park at 11:30 am. If you have something that you wish to discuss this is your opportunity.

All our members are eligible to attend but the caterers must know for how many to prepare. All directors and table officers should attend, to familiarize yourselves with the working of this council. It will stand you in good stead for your future participation in the business of our branch.

Sechelt Council

Although the 1987 budget has not given council a list of capital projects to be priorized, Sechelt Council voted at last Wednesday's meeting to go ahead and put in a sidewalk on the south side of Dolphin Street between Wharf and Inlet Avenues. It will run in front of property that Mayor Bud Koch has been developing, and while he didn't absent himself from the room, he didn't participate in the discussion which preceded the vote.

Alderman Len Herder, chairman of the public works committee, told council that he wanted to get going on the project before tourist season. He pointed out that as cars arrive in Sechelt at the four-way stop, they look straight at the unpaved stretch.

He said that Mr. Koch had offered to pay for the sidewalk by his property but the RCMP own the rest of the block and are unable to pay even part of the cost of paving the walkway.

During the ensuing discussion, it appeared for a while that Koch would be asked to pay half the cost of the sidewalk in front of his property and the municipal district would pay for the rest, but aldermen agreed the solution would be unfair.

Council finally voted unanimously to pay for the sidewalk out of the capital works budget.

Roberts Creek

Block parents program

by Jeanie Parker, 885-2163

Roberts Creek is organizing a Block Parent Program. Notices will be sent home with kids from the school, Rainbow Preschool, and French Immersion but the program requires help from the whole community.

Block Parents provide a place for kids to go when the need arises. They might be chased by dogs, hurt, bullied by older kids, or find nobody home after school.

The Block Parent does not have to actively deal with the problem, just contact the parents, school, or RCMP for help. Neither is the Block Parent home a place to stop in to use the bathroom or mooch a lunch.

They're looking for people whose houses are visible from the road so that kids can see the identification sign in the window or people living near school bus stops that children can be told about. Block Parents do not have to be parents themselves but they do fill out an application form that is checked out by the police.

Application forms are being sent out with the school children and will be available at Roberts Creek Elementary and elsewhere in the community. This is a good program and everybody who can help is encouraged to do so.

PO PETITION

The Roberts Creek Post Office is in danger of being closed along with other rural post offices. This is another misguided attempt by the Postal Corporation to save money by cutting services when other measures should be taken.

The Roberts Creek Post Office serves a surprising number of people and provides a service that is greatly appreciated by people who do not want to drive to Gibsons or Sechelt. It is also a centre of our small community and would be missed more than we realize.

Petitions are being circulated to save the rural post offices. There are already many signatures on the one in Roberts Creek but it needs more. Look for it at Seaview Market.

COMMANDER ATTENDS

Zone Commander Les Brown will be at the Roberts Creek Legion's general meeting this Wednesday to speak on membership and the future of the legion. All voting members are asked to attend at 7:30 pm "sharp".

BURNING PERMITS

Residents of Roberts Creek require fire permits for outdoor burning after April 15. Phone 885-3326 after 6 pm. Covered incinerators do not require a permit.

GOOD NEIGHBOURS

Dick Reeves has kindly given John Williams the use of a lawnmower to cut the grass behind the post office this summer. Many thanks to both gentlemen for their public-spiritness.

John is still looking for a weedeater to trim the edges of the lawn and wonders if anybody has an old picnic table or bench to donate for people to sit and enjoy the park. If you can help, please phone 886-2689 after 3 pm.

Fashion show tickets

by Peggy Connor, 885-9347

Tuesday night is your best chance for tickets to the Sunshine Coast Business and Professional Women's Club's Fashion Show. Fashions are on display April 7 and 8 at the Sechelt Indian Band Community Hall. Along with your ticket there are many door prizes and a delightful growing gift for everyone.

The price of the tickets is $12 and they are only available at Family Bulk Foods and in Gibsons at Just For You. Dessert and coffee are also included with ticket.

Proceeds go to three bursaries, two to business oriented students and one to a mature student.

FLEA MARKET

On Sunday, April 12 at the Sechelt Legion Hall, the Ladies Auxiliary to the Sechelt Legion Branch 140 are having a flea market. Tables are $5 and the event is on from 10 am to 2 pm. They are still receiving articles for their table and will pick up, just give them a call at 885-3823 or 885-2958.

DOREEN & HARRY OFF

This week Harry and Doreen Jenkins leave for Victoria where they have a lovely house close to downtown Victoria.

On Sunday, March 29, St. Hilda's Anglican Church held a potluck dinner in honour of the Jenkins. Harry was a prime mover in the new church building.

A watercolour of Sechelt was presented to them and Bea Swanson came up with a novel present, an album full of pictures of Sechelt, a real memory book. On March 31 their townhouse neighbours had a farewell cocktail party.

Doreen's friends in the Sechelt Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital spent a very pleasant lunch with her at the Wharf Restaurant. The group presented her with a cutglass vase with a delicate bouquet of tiny pink roses and a spray of freesia for perfume. Tucked in with the flowers was a nail file as a reminder of the many years Doreen has done the nails for the patients in extended care wing of St. Mary's.

President Peggy Gallo presented Doreen with an auxiliary spoon with her name inscribed on it and the card had been filled out by members earlier at the Christmas meeting so Ada Dawe and Nick and Val Vucurevich had been included.

The Jenkins will get settled in at Dunelm Village in Victoria. In mid June they will travel east to Nova Scotia to visit son Paul and Jean and their two girls Katherine and Erica until August. On the way there they will stop in Ottawa to visit Harry's brother.

STUDENTS ON TV

Caught the local Channel 11 last Thursday with "What To Do On The Coast". Elphinstone student Amanda Stubley hosted the program and guests were Regional Board Chairman Jim Gurney and Chatelech student Chris Upsdell. Other invited guests didn't show.

What impressed me was the way the two students handled the program with the callers and the students' own suggestions of what could be done.

They were very pleased to hear Jim Gurney tell of the joint use facilities that could be available to young people. With the impetus coming from the teens themselves, there could be more things to do on the Coast with the planning done by the young people.

Volunteer aid needed

The Volunteer Action Centre is currently offering several interesting and challenging volunteer placements to residents living on the Sunshine Coast.

The Provincial Emergency Program is looking for a person with organizational ability and time for phoning to help co-ordinate community-wide volunteer groups and services.

A new co-ordinator for the Sechelt Food Bank is needed to replace our present director Maria Lwowski who has had to resign for health reasons.

English as a Second Language is looking for someone with a teaching background, preferably with a knowledge of foreign languages to help work on this program.

For further information and details about all these positions, please call the Volunteer Action Centre in the Dock at 885-5881.

Maryanne's Viewpoint

Beach walk a blessing

by Maryanne West

The stillness of the night is still on the water and a seagull sleeps with beak tucked into its neck feathers as the dogs and I mosey along the beach before breakfast.

There is a particularly pleasing vista at the point where we turn for home and I generally spend a few minutes taking WH Davies' advise to "stand and stare".

The gentle curve of the shoreline is backed by spreading maples which lean out over the rocks, and spires of fir and cedar. Maple buds are swelling to reveal pink "satin" bracts, and cascades of yellow flowers, nectar-sweet, ready for returning hummingbirds.

With no breath of wind the sea is like glass, though today, as its cloudy, the water looks opaque, silver grey, more like ice.

A pair of mergansers paddle by, he, immaculate in brilliant white and black, the green lightson, the black head not visible in silhouette, and she, a lovely chestnut and grey with jaunty, windswept crest.

They move fast and smoothly, heads down, feeding just below the surface, webbed feet working hard, yet not making a ripple on the surface which mirrors their reflection.

Another mated pair, this time harlequins, rests characteristically on a rock islet close to shore, the male postively gaudy, black with white necklace and head spots and bright russet sides beside his brownish-black mate.

Around my feet are wood chips, some three inches long, excavated from the top of a dead alder yesterday by a pileated woodpecker searching for beetle larvae.

Watching the mergansers' passage along the tide edge my eyes are drawn past the rocky outcrop at the end of the beach and up to the Lions, white and ghostly, mist-shrouded this morning, towering over the fir-crested outline of Keats Island.

Looking up, I catch the eye of an immature eagle also quietly watching the scene, and us, from the overhanging branch of a maple. An up and coming character this one, if he is the same youngster I watched recently challenging an adult for a fish and succeeding in making the old bird drop his catch.

An errant breeze skitters its way across from the islands in Collingwood Channel and briefly ruffles the surface of the water.

The distant engine throb from a self-propelled barge on the far side of Georgia Strait and the commentary of seagulls farther up the beach serve as counterpoint to the silence.

I count my many blessings, not the least of which is being able to start my day with a walk along the beach.

Quote of the Week

Trust in God, and be unmoved by either praise or false accusations ...depend entirely on God.

George in Gibsons

Hansen events fun-filled

by George Cooper, 886-8520

The Rick Hansen fund for spinal cord research gained by two projects undertaken Sunday, March 29, one at the Sunshine Coast Golf Club and the other at the Gibsons Swimming Pool.

The course was filled for the Rick Hansen fund-raising tournament and the $20 fee from each entrant along with donations from some who could not play that day come to over $1600.

Each player received a prize under the rather complex Calloway system of scoring. Best score by this formula was Bill Sneddon Jr.

"The organizing committee is so very grateful and appreciative of the generosity of the Sunshine Coast Golf Club in donating the course without charge and of the arduous work of the scoring committee: Judy Frampton, Mary Horn, Bev Taber, and Jim Neilson, and to starter Oz Hincks," said Lilian Kunstler, the co-ordinating chairman of the Rick Hansen project.

"Every merchant who was approached to donate a prize for the golf tournament was only too willing to provide one," said Lilian, "and their contributions were an important part of the day.

"Thanks too, to club manager Ron Acheson and his staff, and to Roy Taylor, past president of the club, for their assistance."

Lilian says that any group or person with an idea for a Rick Hansen fund-raising project can co-ordinate it through her if they wish. Donations can be left in care of her at the Gibsons town hall.

On the same Sunday, swimmers participated in a Scuba Rodeo in the Gibsons Swimming Pool under the direction of supervisor Zeta Gaudet and her staff.

Events like balloon blowing, tricycle racing, sewing, and drinking pop, all underwater, challenged the skills of the divers and added to the general hilarity of the occasion.

Added to this were contests for the younger swimmers like gathering ice cubes from pool bottom, and a fish pond.

Winner of the pie baking contest was Chuck Reynolds whose pie was auctioned, rather than sold by the slice like the other pies, and fetched $8 for the research fund. The total collected for the fund was $126.

Winner of the tricycle race (pedalling underwater) was Jeff Mulcaster, who also won the balloon blowing contest, and the pop drinking. That made him grand champion of the rodeo.

Sewing three buttons on cloth underwater was won by Robbie H. (If you telephone your name to us, it will be printed next week).

Patsy Sheldon gathered the greatest number of ice cubes in the Cold Fish event, and the team of Wendy Gilbertson, Susan Brandys, Linda Riddle, and Richard Baba came first in the snorkel relay. Roger Anderson won the treasure hunt.

Underwater shots of contestants were taken by camerman Mike Clement who dives regularly with Tom Sheldon, himself an outstanding underwater cameraman.

Let us add this wish and prayer from all of us who know you Tom, for your steady recovery from your recent injuries.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

EMPTY BOTTLE?

Gwen Nimmo was surprised to receive a parcel on Wednesday, April 1 (April Fool's Day) that had on its declaration label "empty bottle".

But far from being a joke, the bottle was a special souvenir considerately sent to her by a friend in Britain.

In 1985 Gwen and her granddaughter had visited, among other places of family interest, Castle Eden, the site of the former J. Nimmo and Son Brewery, and had bed-and-breakfast with Mrs. P. Forrest in nearby Jesmon House Farm in Whitworth Spennymoore, County Durham.

Workers on the farm had turned up a buried bottle, a green pint with J. Nimmo and Son imprinted in the glass.

"I'll treasure this keepsake," said Gwen, "and I am overwhelmed by the thoughtfulness of Mrs. Forrest, who has taken the time and trouble to send it to me."

An unintentional participant in the ferry protest was this Vancouver man who narrowly missed the 8:30 am ferry sailing and was enraged to find he had four hours to wait. —Kent Sheridan photo

Ferry protest response light

People arriving in Langdale on the 9:30 ferry from Horseshoe Bay last Wednesday were greeted by about 50 horn-honking residents. A few impulsive drivers honked back, but most looked startled and a little anxious until Gibsons' Alderman Lilian Kunstler explained that the people were staging a protest against the lack of a 10:30 return ferry.

On the first car in the line of protesters sat David Murray of Vancouver, an unintentional but adament supporter of the demonstration. Murray was bringing a car back to Vancouver for his employer, Able Lock and Safe Ltd., and arrived at the 8:30 ferry as they raised the ramp. Angry and upset when he found out that the next sailing wasn't until 12:25, Murray told the Coast News, "This is ridiculous. How can they just let it sit there in the middle of the day when people need to travel most?"

The demonstration was organized by the Tourism Task Force. Spokesman Drew Watson said that they were disappointed at the turnout, but wanted to hold it during the week in order to show the ferry corporation that people would use it mid-week as well as on weekends.

"We haven't even started to talk about the late evening ferry," he said. "People who want to take in a concert or a hockey game can't go because they can't get back. They don't have to put up with this anywhere else in B.C."

He pointed out the Albion Ferry across the Fraser River, which transports vehicles free of charge although there are two alternative driving routes. "That costs the taxpayers a lot of money and people take it just to save on gas," he said.

Others present discussed the economic effect that lack of ferry service has on the Sunshine Coast, discouraging companies and retired people from locating here.

Gardening

by Marguerite

Most garden experts agree that a balanced pH friable soil, sunlight and heat, plus moisture and tender loving care should produce healthy plants.

The right temperature is needed to germinate and grow and so with our fluctuating heat at times, we have to use caution and common sense.

As a general rule, we in the Pacific North West, particularly on the Sunshine Coast, have frosts until May 15, or even May 24 in Roberts Creek. I hear areas can differ depending on location, wind, etc.

It really is a good idea to keep a personal yearly garden journal for reference.

Send for your free book Pest Control for the Home and Garden, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Victoria, B.C., which is a wealth of tried and tested information.

All annuals can be sown during April such as: nasturiums, zinnia, tagetes and sapiglossis. Border plants can still be put out, pansies, sweet peas, montbretia and gladioli. Antirrhinums can be put in their flowering positions.

Shrub planting can continue. Cut off dead flower sprays of forsythia after blooming. Give roses their first feed and systemically spray for blackspot and mildew.

Mulching eliminates most digging and all the traditional spring "turning of the garden", saving time, effort and backs, and ending the "unnatural" disturbance of the woil layers while preserving the intricate tunneling of earthworms and casts. Keep mulching!

The Gibsons Garden Club meets on Thursday, April 16 at 7:30 pm in the Marine Room (below the library). Mr. Ian McGlashan from Vancouver will be the guest speaker on the subject of the "raised bed system". New members and guests are invited.

The plant sale is in the front entrance of Sunnycrest Mall on Saturday, April 11 at 9:30 am. Good buys, bring a friend.

Pages from a Life-Log

Shearing the dark shores

by Peter Trower

Logging methods were definitely beginning to change by the turn of the century. This change had actually started in the late 1870's when the ox-teams and their foul-mouthed drivers, began to be replaced by teams of Clydesdale horses. The horses were far more intelligent and much easier to handle. Unlike the obtuse bulls, they were able to learn the skidroad routes and wend their way along them with a minimum of supervision.

But the days of horse-hauling were relatively short lived. In 1882, a man called Jack Stewart (later to become one of Vancouver's first police chiefs), experimented with wire rope steam yarding near Kitsilano Beach. It involved a steam capstan on a braced scow, which pulled the logs to the water. The cable was returned to the woods by means of a line horse. This initial attempt at donkey yarding was not markedly successful and Stewart soon abandoned it. But it was a foretaste of things to come.

In the early 1890's, Stewart's yarding system was revived and developed by other loggers. It soon evolved into the classic, sled mounted steam donkey engine with vertical drums in place of a capstan and a haulback cable which ran through two blocks out in the woods. This second line returned the rigging to the hook-up crew after each log turn was pulled in. The system was known as ground lead and all the much more elaborate yarding systems to follow would employ the same basic principles.

By 1900 the steam donkeys were in wide use and most of the horse teams had been put out to pasture.

Like a caulk-booted army, triggered by the promise of a new century, the loggers swarmed out over the Coast. Many of them were Americans from Washington and Oregon, anxious to try their luck among the incredibly rich timber stands of this new territory. It was a time of great opportunity and greater opportunism. Wages averaged about $3 per day. Camp conditions and cookhouse cuisine had improved very little from Jerry Rogers' time. But the men who worked the woods in those years were not expecting any frills. They were used to hard work, lumpy bunks and long hours.

Once of these men was M. Allerdale Grainger, a remarkable Englishman, who put in a long, rough stint at a Knight Inlet logging camp, during this period. Unlike most loggers, Grainger had the benefit of a good education. Later, he was to transcribe his upcoast experiences in a unique autobiographical 'novel' called Woodsmen of the West. First published in 1908, the book has become an authentic logging classic - one of the very few - a true account of what B.C. woodslife was like in this turbulent era.

Museum exhibits

In response to the recent request for private exhibitions, the Elphinstone Museum will be featuring an interesting collection of Swizzle Sticks, courtesy of Mrs. Grace Gilchrist, which she has been collecting since 1967.

Mrs. Gilchrist started her collection with a stir stick carved from walrus tusk, that she got from the North West Territories Pavillion at Montreal's Expo '67. The collection has grown to over 700 items; to include acquisitions from Western Europe, England, Switzerland, Australia, Hong Kong and Alaska.

According to Mrs. Gilchrist, swizzle sticks are becoming much harder to acquire, so she is delighted whenever she can add a new one to her collection.

The display will be open for viewing from April 11 to April 20. Please come and enjoy this unique collection as well as the museum's permanent exhibits.

If there are any other private collectors who would like to share their interests with the community, let us know. We will be happy to feature your display and its security is assured while at the museum. Please call Joan at 885-3436 or drop by the museum to discuss arrangements.

In the coming months the museum will begin to feature travelling displays from the B.C. Provincial Museum. Look for further announcements for dates and times.

Museum hours are Saturday and Sunday from 12 to 4 pm until April 27. Museum hours will then move to the summer schedule, Monday through Sunday, from 9 to 4 pm.

At the Arts Centre

The annual province-wide Images and Objects exhibition will be held this year from May 28 to June 2 in Duncan. Anyone from the Sunshine Coast wishing to enter this show must do so through the West Vancouver regional show to be held during the week of April 13 at Klee Wyck, 200 Keith Road, West Vancouver.

Artists must first join the West Vancouver Community Arts Council for $8 and then each entry is $5 or $12 for a maximum of three. Work must be delivered along with payment to the Arts Centre in Sechelt no later than Wednesday, April 8, before 4 pm.

Please call the Arts Centre at 885-5412 before 3 pm on Thursday, April 2 to confirm entry, otherwise work cannot be accepted.

Ethnic nights

People who arrived without having purchased tickets came close to eating their Greek dinner out in the cold last Saturday night when the Arts Centre held Greek Night. All seats were presold before the doors opened, but Arts Centre volunteers shifted chairs and display tables about to accomodate everyone who arrived for the potluck dinner.

A smorgasbord of homemade Greek food was laid out and everyone enjoyed several courses before clearing up their own dishes, clearing away the tables and preparing for the dancing.

Adrian Belshaw led the group in a wild night of Greek folk dancing,

The next Arts Centre Ethnic Night will be Irish Night on April 25, and for that event the music will be live. People interested in attending are warned to buy their tickets in advance or they may be left eating Irish stew on the doorstep.

15th anniversary

by Jean Robinson, 885-2954

The 15th Anniversary of the Wilson Creek Reading Centre was celebrated on March 29, at the Wilson Creek Hall. Many used books were sold while the tea and sandwiches were complimentary.

The volunteer librarians are Helen Cuylits, Hilda Costerton, Betty Vetterli, Terry Gardener, Ed Cuylits, and Freda McDermott. Absent that day were Sue LeNeve, Margaret Phillips, and Peg Dalziel.

Jean Barclay cut the beautifully decorated cake. Jean worked for the library for many years.

The door prize, a box of Gina's Bon Bons, donated by Georgina Sager, who also worked for the library for many years, was won by Jean and Bob Barclay. T'was a great afternoon.

LARGE PRINT BOOKS

There is a new shipment of large print books in the Wilson Creek Reading Centre now.

FRENCH IMMERSION

The results of a questionnaire sent to all parents of the Davis Bay school asking if they were in favour of French Immersion in that school are revealing.

Forty said no, two said yes, and four felt not qualified to answer. If you feel strongly about this and wish to know more information phone Elspeth Tyson at 885-5239.

Better still, write the Board of Trustees, School District 46, Box 220, Gibsons, B.C. V0N 1V0, before the meeting on April 14.

Rhythms of Life

Zodiac affects all of us

by Penny Fuller

Each of us has all 12 signs of the zodiac active in our lives. In every person's astrological chart each sign sits somewhere. It makes sense. All the constellations were there when you were born.

While your sun sign, moon sign and rising sign probably describe a lot of your characteristics, you may work like a Capricorn, be a Sagitarrian-type spouse and have an Aquarian sense of values.

What happens when Mars charges into any particular arena of your life? Things usually start percolating, sometimes they reach a rolling boil, but action and energy are pretty well guaranteed.

Today, Mars enters Gemini, the sign of the mind and the mouth. Meanwhile, Mercury, the planet that rules Gemini, is zipping through the last half of Pisces, the sign of confusion (at best) and deception (at worst).

The effects of those two planets end up combining in various convoluted ways in everyone's lives. We should all feel a zap of mental energy in some area of our lives, where Gemini is situated. One person might start to have some great insights into 'the purpose' of life, while another may find himself dwelling on all the rotton things his father ever said or did and what he should have said and done back.

For the next week, though, you may feel like you're trying to talk under water until Mercury leaves Pisces. The faster and louder that you try to express what's racing through your mind, the more you may sound like a babbling brook to others. Frustration is the name of the game this week.

Of course if you get two or three people all trying to share their ideas quickly and loudly and getting frustrated because no one is understanding what they're saying, things could get downright nasty.

Then when Mercury moves into Mars' favourite sign, Aries next week, confusion and frustration could escalate to outrage.

This is not what I would describe as a great time for international summits or labour negotiations.

This month is a good time for thinking things through and having new, fresh ideas. But it's a lousy time to try to share them with others. The solution is simple but requires patience, something not all of us have.

Record those thoughts and insights. Write, tape or stand in front of your home video camera and make speeches. Keep them on record but keep them to yourself.

In May, when Mercury is in Taurus, take them out and look them over. It will be a good time to present your inspirations to others in a calm manner.

All this is especially true of anything that has to do with asserting yourself. Mars has a knack of activating all those resentments you've been stashing in the bottom of your emotional closet. They need to be brought out into the light and aired. But while your mind may see clearly how things should be, your mouth could be your worst enemy right now.

Even procrastination can be appropriate at times and this may be one of them.

Toast of the Coast

It was such a gorgeous day, bright and warm and summery. My lunch guest announced that she had been up since 5:30 am stacking wood and working in the garden. She was starving. We headed for the Homestead.

Once there, we were quickly shown to a quiet table. The atmosphere was warm and homey. Polished wood glowed in the afternoon sun. The works of local artists are hung on every wall along with lovely pieces of stained glass. There are fresh flowers on every table and abundant plants bask in the sunlight.

When we studied the menu we couldn't make up our minds. The selections run from burgers to full course meals. The waitress cheerfully repeated the daily specials three times because we couldn't make up our minds about that either. Finally, we did decide to try the specials.

I chose the clam chowder to start. It was hot, thick, rich and delicious. My guest chose the chicken with rice and I opted for the grilled ham and cheese and tomato. When the dishes arrived we were staggered. The servings were enormous. We tucked in with great gusto.

The grilled ham and cheese and tomato was accompanied by a crunchy green salad and a very generous serving of crisp and golden French fries. The chicken was served with rice, a green salad and French fries.

The ham and cheese was really melt-in-your-mouth good. My guest, who had been starving, announced that her meal was excellent and then she asked for a doggy bag. This was cheerfully delivered. In spite of all that we had eaten, we were intriqued by the dessert display. We just had to try some. My guest polished off a large slice of pumpkin pie heaped high with snowy mounds of freshly whipped cream. I caved in for the Black Forest cake which must have stood six inches high. Tender, moist, rich, chocolatey morsels blended with cherries and whipped cream promised and delivered delight in every bite. It was wonderful. Steaming hot cups of freshly brewed coffee completed this feast. The bill was a very pleasant surprise as well. Niether of us ate dinner that night.

When you're looking for something hearty and good, served in an atmosphere of warmth and homey friendliness, try the Homestead, you'll love it.

Pender golf

A good turnout for our Tombstone Event on Ladies' Day, April 2, with 19 golfers taking part. Each girl was given a marker to be placed in the ground when they reached par of the course, plus half their handicap.

Most tombstoners were placed on holes eight and nine. The winner was April Charlton who was four feet from the ninth hole, and we had a tie for second place with Dorothy Fisk and Moni Langham both landing on the ninth green.

Congratulations girls!

Cavalcade concept

The old concept of one person, the chairman, assuming the responsibility for co-ordinating the entire project, is being replaced with a Board of Directors.

A single chairman assumes so much responsibility that by the time the sea cavalcade is over he is totally burned out and never wants to see another meeting. Often, the valuable experience of that chairman is lost. Five or six directors, on the other hand, share the load, generate more ideas, and assure a continuity. The board retains the knowledge even if some resign.

The board will meet each Wednesday evening, at 280 Gower Point Road, above Showpiece Gallery, at 7 pm. Anyone interested in serving on the board is welcome to attend this Wednesday, April 8. Since time is running short, we must be organized and ready to work this week.

Any individual, group or organization, wishing to participate in Sea Cavalcade should contact the board at any Wednesday meeting, obviously the sooner the better.

The object of Sea Cavalcade is fun, we encourage 'off the wall' events. Put your 'silly' hat on, and join the party.

Minor Hockey

All parents of hockey players please note these two important dates, April 8 and 15.

On Wednesday, April 8, the general meeting will be held at the arena. The time of the meeting will be announced next week. It is imperative that we have the input of parents to formulate our programs for next year. So be there with your ideas, suggestions, criticisms,

On Wednesday, April 15, the annual awards night will be held (time and location to be announced next week). Again, only parent participation can make it a success.

Sechelt to tidy up

A letter received from the Canadian Coast Guard at last week's council meeting has prompted Sechelt Municipal District to arrange for the removal of ropes left in the water by Aqua West at Trail Bay.

The letter states that the Coast Guard is closing its file on Aqua West with the understanding that "no works are in place that will be a hazard to navigation."

Mayor Bud Koch pointed out that there are still ropes strung just below water level which could be very dangerous to boaters, and asked council's permission to have them moved.

Alderman Ken Short expressed concern "that the taxpayers are getting hit once again." He asked if there wasn't some way that Aqua West could be forced to pay for the removal.

"We have the assets of Aqua West," Koch explained. "Any costs accrued for the removal will be taken out of the assets."

A roaring success

Saturday night at the fights

by John Burnside

The first boxing matches on the Sunshine Coast in recent memory can only be described as being a roaring success after last Saturday night's all-star boxing in Gibsons Winter Club.

The card pitted some of the finest young amateur boxers in Western Canada and the north west of the United States against each other and a happily boisterous crowd roared its appreciation as the young gladiators displayed their courage and skill, reaching a crescendo when the Sunshine Coast's own boxing champion Tony Duffy won a unanimous decision in the feature bout of the night.

The first bout between Mario Naverez of Vancouver, Washington and Tony Francis of the Maple Ridge Boxing Club was the closest match of the night.

Naverez displayed an effective left jab and took the first round on speed and science. He did register a knockdown over Francis but to this observer it seemed more like a slip.

In the second round Francis began to land some punishing right hands over the jab and had the American holding on by the end of the round. His mastery continued in the first half of the third round and there was no doubt about the knockdown he recorded during this part of the fight.

Then the Canadian boy began to tire and it was the smooth American who was in command when the fight ended.

The judges agreed that Francis had done enough for the decision.

Perhaps the best boxing display of the night was produced in the second fight when the 1987 National Champion in the 119 pound class, Geronimo Bie overcame height, weight, and reach disadvantages in outpointing Mario Martinez of Anacortes, Washington.

Bei moved from strength to strength through the fight and was an admirable and a worthy winner in a match which never lost interest for a moment.

The third match was the only mis-match of the night. A menacing heavyweight champion from Maple Ridge, Willie Curry, had too much power for his light-heavyweight champion opponent, Kevin Gruber of Calgary, and Gruber's handlers wisely called off the match in the first round before Gruber was badly hurt.

That set the scene for the final match and the hometown boy was cheered lustily as he entered the ring.

It is to Duffy's immense credit that he kept his poise before the boisterous hometown fans and fought scientifically against a heavier opponent. His speed and courage were manifest as he kept moving against Mark Rommo of Bremerton, Washington, himself a 1986 National Junior Champion.

Again, this was an all-action match with both fighters acquitting themselves with courage and distinction. That Tony Duffy took the unanimous decision was credit to his ring savvy and to the work of his corner man, trainer Barry Krangle.

His victory brought the evening to a rousing completion and whetted the appetite for more.

Kicking through the ashes

by Montague Royal

Ninety miles north of Prince Rupert, just below the Alaska Panhandle, up a lonely fjord called Observatory Inlet, lies a fire-gutted, deserted valley. Only bears, deer and their smaller cousins prowl here now. But a moss-covered smokestack fingers from the weeds and a graveyard of brick ruins sprawls among the salmonberries. Once there was a thriving town here, built from copper and sweat. Its name was Anyox.

The myth, mystery and sheer humanity of this vanished settlement is poignantly recaptured by Pete Loudon in his fine book The Town That Got Lost (Gray's Publishing). Loudon, a veteran journalist, grew up in remote Anyox, left there when the town died due to falling copper prices in 1935 and returned to the deserted valley, almost four decades later, searching for roots and meanings.

It is this aspect of poignant rediscovery that makes Loudon's book truly intriguing. Accompanied by his son and a friend, the writer flies to the long-abandoned valley to kick through the ashes of his past. The wooden buildings are long since gone, destroyed by a forest fire in 1943, but crumbling brick walls and foundations indicate where Anyox once stood.

Such a situation is a natural springboard for nostalgic flashbacks. As he and his young companions wander among the ruins, Loudon recalls the days of his boyhood when this was a thriving company town of almost 3000 people.

Prospectors first came to lonely Observatory Inlet to track down a Nass River Indian legend that there was a mountain of gold in the area. The gold proved to be mostly of the 'fool's' variety but the iron pyrites indicated the presence of copper and a huge body of the ore was discovered. The find was rich enough to support a major mining operation for many years. A speculator called Granby took out the mining rights, construction crews moved in and the town of Anyox was born.

Loudon's personal memories concern the latter years of Anyox's 35 year existence. He moved there with his family in 1925 when he was two and for the next 10 years, the drab copper town was the only world he knew. Loudon has an easygoing conversational writing style and his recollections of the Anyox that was are laced with wry humour. He describes his rough-and-tumble schooldays; conjures up lost boyhood chums; recalls the ladies of ill-repute who conducted their shady profession in several tumbledown shacks off company property; describes the great strike of 1933 that brought violence and tension to the normally tranquil town and details the great explosion of 1934, reputedly the largest mining blast ever set off, that proved, to the great disappointment of Loudon and his pals, somewhat less than apocalyptic.

The Town That Got Lost is a thoroughly enjoyable recreation of a place that few people even remember. The book is introduced by Sun columnist, Denny Boyd, another Anyox alumnus, who was actually born in the legendary mining community.

Prime Time Family Fun Concert

by Joan Wilson, 883-9606

PRIME TIME IN PENDER

It was standing room only at the Community Hall on Friday night for the second annual Prime Time Family Fun Concert, sponsored by the Pender Harbour School of Music.

Nikki Weber came with three of her singing groups, the 69ers, the Semi Tones, and the Rolling Tones.

Piano students of Nancy Mackay and Suzanne Wilson played duets and solos, many of which the youngsters will play in the Sunshine Coast Music Festival this week.

The progress of the new band students of the School of Music is remarkable! I thoroughly enjoyed Les Fowler and his new glasses.

Vocal talents abound in the Harbour too: the Community Choir sang two numbers, Selena Roberts delivered her solo with poise and charm, and Paul and Val Jenkins' light hearted duet brought out the applause.

The Harbour Lights started and ended the concert with style, featuring vocalists Signi Murgatroyd and Kevin Cohen.

Thanks to Les and the hard working crew from the Pender Harbour School of Music for a wonderful evening.

IT'S SPRINGTIME

Chas Hobbs remembered

by Ruth Forrester, 885-2418

The Canadian Flag at Welcome Beach Hall is flying at half-mast this week in mourning of the passing of Chas Hobbs of Redrooffs Road. On the morning of Wednesday, April 1, this much loved man slipped peacefully away at the age of 66.

Those of us who were fortunate enough to know Chas were inspired and overwhelmed by his magnificent courage throughout a long illness and will remember him as a brave and good man.

During the Second World War Chas served in the Royal Canadian Navy for six and a half years.

Upon retirement from the Vancouver Fire Department in 1978 Chas and his wife Connie moved to Redrooffs where they made many good friends.

Chas was a very active member of the Welcome Beach Community Association where he served on the Board of Directors and became president. Many happy social evenings were spent at Welcome Beach with Chas as a fun loving master of ceremonies.

He is survived by his loving wife Connie, one daughter, four grandchildren and two sisters.

It was Chas' wish that there be no funeral service and this wish will be respected. We shall all remember him without a service and I know that our thoughts and love are with Connie and family at this sad time.

PARK MEETING

Some 30 interested people attended a meeting last week at Coopers Green Hall to discuss the planning of the future of Connor Park.

FOR READERS & WRITERS

A reminder that you will be more than welcome to come along to the Sechelt Arts Centre this Wednesday night at 7:30. The Suncoast Writers' Forge is holding an evening of interest to any of you who have aspiration of writing for newspapers.

John Burnside of the Coast News will be in attendance to answer your questions. Refreshments will be served and we will be more than pleased to see you there.

Missionaries Arrive

All over the world, missionaries of THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS are called to serve for two years at their own expense.

Two such men, Elder Steven Pinegar of Provo, Utah and Elder Earl Crowther of Richfield, Utah, have arrived on the Sunshine Coast. They bring with them a great desire to serve and a great love for people. Circumstances permitting, please take some time and listen to them.

Effective April 15, 1987
BURNING PERMITS
will be required in the Roberts Creek Fire Protection District.
To obtain permit
call 885-3326 after 6 pm.

Star Wars Awareness

Editor:

March 23 marked the first National Awareness Day on Canada and Star Wars. This campaign to raise public awareness of Canada's role in the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI or Star Wars) was co-ordinated by the Canadian Peace Alliance (CPA) to commemorate the fourth anniversary of President Reagan's speech introducing the Star Wars concept. Across the country, peace groups will be taking a variety of actions to express opposition to any Canadian participation in SDI.

A national day on Star Wars is especially important now that a Canadian company has received Canada's first Star Wars contract. Magus Aerospace Corporation, based in Nova Scotia, has been awarded a $6 million contract by the US Pentagon to conduct aerodynamic research to develop an unstaffed high altitude surveillance platform. This research may be subsidized by the Canadian taxpayer with up to $20 million in federal income tax credits.

Over 50 Nobel Prize-winning scientists have condemned Star Wars as technically unfeasible, economically disastrous, and strategically destabilizing. Star Wars will not protect us. Rather it will provoke a dangerous and costly new round in the arms race, violate the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, and could increase the risk of accidental nuclear war as computers would need to make decisions within seconds of an apparent enemy attack, leaving no time for human intervention.

Thus an automated response to a false alarm could be the first shot fired in the next (and last) war.

Since the US will need Canadian territory as a base for Star Wars weapons and components, Canadians are in a unique position to slow and hinder the SDI program by ending Canadian involvement. We urge the people of the Sunshine Coast to write the Canadian government to ask for the following commitments:

1) To firmly guarantee that there will be no testing, development, manufacture or deployment of SDI systems or components in Canada.

2) To end all Canadian support for SDI.

3) To actively support positive alternatives to SDI, including: the strengthening of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty; the establishment of an International Satellite Monitoring Agency; a ban on all nuclear weapons testing.

Measure firewood!

Editor:

This is a letter to all who buy firewood. Some sell wood by the cord, some with the wood piled in the pickup, others just throw it in a pickup box.

The reason for this letter is to warn all of you of the gyp on pickup loads.

I have two measured wood storage racks with roof attached. When I buy wood I pile it at once and know how much I received. A cord is four feet high by four feet wide by eight feet long, or with 16 inches average wood pile, three ricks four feet high and eight feet long. This is one cord.

To carry me through until Spring I asked for a pickup load, asking price $50. When it arrived I knew I had been taken so I piled it and what I had received was one rick four feet, four inches high and eight feet 10 inches long. This is just a little over one third of a cord of wood at over $100 a cord.

Wood buyers, please take note, pile and measure your wood. You are probably paying for firewood not received.

Ferry workers help

Editor:

I would like to take this time to thank all the Langdale Ferry workers from both the ship and shore staff who donated items to our giant flea market that was held on Sunday, March 22.

Because of your generosity we raised $660.06 that will be donated to the Rick Hansen Man in Motion Fund from our branch of the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers' Union, Local 5.

I would like to extend a special thank you to the Kinsmen Club for donating their hall and to the following people for the extra help in setting up and selling: Gayle Bennett, Sandy and April Gorman, Barry Lynn, Rob Clarke, Wes Newman, Neil Hacking, Dave MacKay and Laurie Lacovetsky.

I hope I have not missed anyone.

Egmont News

A week for firsts

by Ann Cook

This is a week for firsts.

It's the time for the Pender Harbour Lioness Club to have Bingo in Egmont. That's Wednesday, April 8 at 7:30. I won't say 7:30 sharp as with 'first' timers there will be a few wrinkles to iron out.

Support the community. Show appreciation to the Lioness Club. Enjoy a fun evening with friends and you may just win the Bonanza jackpot, or good neighbour game or Crazy L game or whatever this new Bingo evening offers. Under the B. Be there.

The next first, is, it's Donna's first time as convenor to convene a smorgasbord. I'm sure she's a little nervous wondering if she will have too much food (or horrors) too little. Anyone wishing to donate a bowl, plate, or pot of something for the smorg call Donna at 883-9372 or let Betty Silvey put it on her list of donations. Smorgasbord is 6:30 Friday, April 10 at the Community Hall.

Good luck ladies, remember we are pretty laid back in Egmont. I doubt anyone will yell Bingo too loud or get in a food fight at the smorg.

OTHER HAPPENINGS

Egmont Mini Thrift Store is open every Wednesday. Thanks for the books and other donations.

Happy Birthday Jaye Josephson, mother of Ryder.

Welcome home Rick Hansen, you are a sweetheart.

Pulpmakers of Port Mellon

Washing, screening is vital stage

by Kent Sheridan

The production of brown stock pulp at Port Mellon was described in last week's article on the digesters. The pulp must be washed and screened. This is the next stage in the mill's processing system.

The washer operator has under his charge a set of knotters (vibrating screens) which removes any uncooked wood chips and wood knots from the pulp before entering the washing phase. He is also responsible for the safe and efficient operation of two separate lines of washers.

When two or three washer units are connected in series they are called 'a line of washers' and pulp that passes through this system is treated to progressive washing stages.

A washer is a vacuum drum covered with a fine wire mesh that rotates in a vat. The wire mesh cover picks up the pulp in the vat forming a pulp sheet across the drum and the pulp is washed by overhead hot water showers as it passes underneath.

The washers perform a critical function in the reclamation of cooking liquor. When the hot wash water rinses through the pulp it absorbs lignin (pitch) and other chemical substances forming a weak black liquor solution which is utilized in the Steam and Recovery Plant.

The pitch is burnt in the Recovery boiler's furnace to produce steam and the unburnable chemicals form a smelt which is used to make raw green liquor.

The purpose of the screens is to separate even smaller particles of dirt and uncooked wood fibre from the acceptable pulp fibre. Quality screening of washed pulp requires the Screen Operator to carefully control pulp dilution (consistency) as it passes through the round perforated screens.

Hourly, the Washer and Screen Operators take pulp samples for testing. The tests provide information on the consistency and cleanliness of the pulp and whether or not the pulp has been cooked to specifications.

Maintaining desirable pulp consistency and the quality of pulp received from the digesters are critical variables that affect the Washer and Screen Tenders' operation.

After being screened the pulp is a tan-brown colour and is called unbleached pulp. The unbleached pulp is ready for processing in the Bleach Plant which will be discussed in the next article.

Chaddie Bremner passes peacefully

Gibsons resident Chaddie Bremner died peacefully in her sleep on Saturday, April 4 at the University of British Columbia's extended care wing after moving from St. Mary's one month ago.

Chaddie was born in London England on June 1, 1889, but almost immediately after she was born her family emigrated to Minesing, Ontario.

She went to high school in Barry, Ontario, and then continued her studies, graduating in 1917 with a Bachelor of Arts from Park College in Missouri.

After graduation she moved to Vancouver to live with her older sister and worked for a lumber company. But she soon left for Saskatoon to help her widowed brother with three young children.

After being hired as a cashier for the University of Saskatchewan, Chaddie took charge of the Bursar's Office for 35 years until she retired.

After retirement, she returned to Vancouver. There she heard about the Sunshine Coast and decided to come here for a visit. She liked what she saw here and decided to stay, purchasing two lots on South Fletcher where she had a log house built.

She enjoyed travelling after she retired and sailed six times across the ocean. Everywhere she went she carried a sketch book and amassed a collection of lovely scenes from Europe and the British Isles.

Funeral service will be held on April 8 at 2 pm in the chapel of Devlin Funeral Home. Reverend Alex Reid will officiate and interment will take place at Seaview Cemetery.

OES installs

Over 100 members and guests filled the Masonic Hall on Thursday, April 2, to witness the installation of Jan Burke as Worthy Matron (WM), Doug Burke as Worthy Patron (WP) and their officers for the coming year.

The beautiful ceremony was made more impressive by the sincerity and excellent work by the Installing Officers, Phillis Pearson, PM, Edith Frazer, PM, and Installing Marshall, Lila Head.

The Burkes expressed their thanks to the Installing Officers and to the Chapter for electing them to office and said they were looking forward to sharing the East together for the coming year.

Prior to the open installation, a closed meeting had been held where Margaret Hauka, WM, and Don Hauka, WP, had thanked the officers and members for their support and dedication during their term of office. They said they had enjoyed being in the East during the past year, especially as it was Margaret's second time around.

ORCA organizes

Sunday, March 29, the organization formerly known as the B.C. Coast Guard Coalition officially changed its name to the Ocean Resource Conservation Alliance.

At the same meeting held in Sechelt it was released that the group is working toward developing public forums on the effect of aquaculture on marine ecology. They have also embarked upon a membership drive in order to increase their lobbying power with government.

EDC Chairman to explain

Egan to go before councils on budget

Economic Development Commission (EDC) Chairman Maurice Egan will be meeting with the two municipal councils to go over the commission's 1987 budget. Whether that will wait until a plan of action has been outlined for 1987 and can be included in the discussion, will be up to the two councils.

Gibsons and Sechelt representatives told last week's meeting of the EDC that they still had a lot of questions about the budget and Egan volunteered to meet with their councils to answer questions. However, the EDC is going to have a planning session on May 8 and he suggested that the meetings should take place after that.

Labour representative Barry Lynn urged Egan not to wait and other representatives agreed. It was decided to leave it up to the councils to decide.

Later in the meeting a revised version of an application from the Sunshine Coast Arts Council for the funding for an Arts Community Co-ordinator was considered. The commission endorsed the idea of the position and referred the application to the regional board for consideration.

When it was suggested that the funding could come out of the "Partners in Enterprise" money that has just been received from the province, Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD) Chairman Jim Gurney told the commission that decisions about the use of the money would be made by himself and the two mayors, and that the application could be put on the list to be considered.

The money was applied for by Gibsons, Sechelt and the regional district, and is specifically for economic development. Although their request for funds for half of 1985 was rejected, $37,500 has been received for 1986 and the request for funds for 1987 is still being considered.

Mayor Bud Koch of Sechelt, Mayor Diane Strom of Gibsons, and Chairman Jim Gurney of the SCRD will be meeting to discuss the best use of the money. Maurice Egan asked Gurney that he be allowed to attend the meeting and Gurney agreed to ask the two mayors.
