New Rates Set For P. H. Sick Benefit Society

New Rates Set: $1.25 Single and $2.50 for Married Couple; Dr. Corbett Leaves

Full details of the new increased contract of the Pender Harbour Sick Benefit Association were recently outlined at a public meeting in Irvine's Landing Hall by H. Baxendale, business manager of St. Mary's, Rock Bay, and Alert Bay hospitals of the Columbia Coast Mission, with which the insurance scheme is associated.

The meeting was attended by Sir Francis Heathcote, Lord Bishop of New Westminster, and by Messrs. Symonds and E. H. Grubbe, members of the Mission Board.

The new rates are $1.25 per single man or woman per month, $2.50 for man and wife, and $3 per month for man, wife and child or children up to 17 years of age.

Formerly rates were $1 per month single and $1.50 for a couple.

The new term started July 1 and while the response to date is far below normal it is felt that the lack of subscribers is due more to the uncertainty of a continuity of medical service than to the increased rate.

Speaking at the meeting, the Bishop said that Superintendent Alan Greene would be

Dr. T. E. Corbett, who has been head of St. Mary's for several months, left last Friday for Vancouver Island. He followed Dr. William Sager of White Rock, who also remained here for only a short time.

Dr. Corbett's departure was particularly regretted as his surgical work while here was held in high regard. —ARD Summer visitors out for a walk on Friday, July 6th, found a cow buried up to its neck in a bog. They notified Mr. P. Cambourne, the postmaster, who sent some boys to dig it out. They could not find the cow and thought it had sunk below the surface. The same people who had found the cow went for a walk on Sunday the 8th and on passing the same spot saw the cow still there. A second party consisting of Jimmy and Willy Thompson, Mr. McGlashan and an unidentified man went and dug it out.

St. Mary Doctor Dies Suddenly

The sudden death of Dr. Keith Wray-Johnston came as a shock to those who knew him in this district when he was in charge of St. Mary's Hospital, Garden Bay, Pender Harbor.

He died suddenly in his office at Vancouver on Sunday, July 15, at the age of 38. He had suffered from a heart condition for some time.

He had made a large number of friends here, and was well-liked by those who knew him. He was only about 33 when he was in charge of St. Mary's Hospital, and had quite a lot of responsibility for a man of his age. During his time there he performed some difficult operations with the greatest of ease, and had the ability to become a leader in his profession.

Born in Rossburn, Manitoba, Dr. Wray-Johnston graduated from the Manitoba Medical School in 1932. He interned at the Vancouver General Hospital and took post-graduate work in obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Pennsylvania. He was on the staff of the Shaughnessy Military Hospital for some time.

He is survived by his wife and a six-weeks-old daughter, Marian. His parents, Capt. and Mrs. Harry Wray-Johnston, live at Shoal Lake, Man., and his only brother, Flt.-Lieut. Percy Wray-Johnston, was reported missing overseas a year ago.

$100 FINE FOR BREAKING 'CLOSE' ORDER IN WOODS

Magistrate C. L. Filmore in District Court fined Burns & Jackson Logging Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, $100 for carrying on logging operations near Wilson Creek during a closed season. The company pleaded guilty.

E. A. Dickie, who prosecuted, claimed this was in defiance of the government closure, which had been necessitated by hazardous conditions in the woods.

G. W. Jackson, director of the company, explained that it had shut down since June 26, and that the technical violation was caused by the men who were repairing the caterpillar tractor.

Roberts Creek Notes . . .

by Mrs. G. E. Reeves

BLACK BEARS ARE PERSISTENT ANIMALS

The writer of this story is a farmer's wife living on a small farm on the coast at Roberts Creek—about 30 miles from Vancouver.

My husband took up the land in 1908, and our house was built completely out of the bush. We were married in June 1914 and now our four children are grown up and away.

But this is about neither children nor houses. The bears are our problem.

They have often come into our apple orchard and helped themselves to the fruit—one year they even destroyed the bee hives; we have never seen them so bold as they are this year.

For about five days they were coming into the yard in broad daylight. One day I was standing by the kitchen table, peeling apples, when suddenly I looked up to see a bear come into the yard and pick up a chicken. Next day he was back again, standing between the big trees beside the house. I ran out and threw a stone at him. Not knowing whence it had come, he started running—in my direction! When he saw me he pulled up short and made for the nearest pine tree. I ran for the gun, but he was gone when I got back.

My husband has been away working for a neighbour all summer, leaving home at 5.30 in the morning, to return at 7 o'clock. Being alone, I was a little nervous at times but had never learned how to handle the gun properly.

For several nights we had slept in a small cabin in the orchard to protect our apple crop.

One Friday my husband had gone to work early as usual, and when I got up I found to

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board advises consumers that carrots, beets and turnips are now to be sold with the tops taken off. Hitherto, these root vegetables were sold with the tops on providing that they did not exceed certain sizes. It has now been found that they have grown to such an extent that the consumer has been losing by having the tops included in the weight. They should now be sold by the pound with the tops off.

About A Gold Mine . . .

FORMULA FOR BEING A CAPITALIST

by Bruce Hutchison

The current attempt to suppress a boom in worthless mining stocks no doubt is highly moral and economically sound. But, if successful, it will spoil a great deal of innocent pleasure, for you can have more fun losing your money in mining stocks—and losing more of it—than in any other game of chance. And, besides, it rounds out your education.

You would be surprised how much geology, metallurgy, economics and finance you can learn for an investment of a hundred dollars in a mining stock which has no possible material value but is rich in wealth of the intellect. The man who buys the stock probably imagines that the Pre-Cambrian Shield was a defensive weapon worn by Roman soldiers in the conquest of Britain; but, once in the market, he becomes overnight an authority on the mineral formation of the American continent.

Why, when we promoted our fabulous mine, the Golden Hoax, none of us had been nearer to a mineralized body than the dining car as it raced through the Rocky Mountains. But within a week we were talking larnedly about refractory ores, we were arguing about the width of veins; we were talking of "enrichment at depth", the "antimonial content" (I still can't find out what that means in English), and our conversation was full of drifts, stopes, wing dams and glory holes, all full of glory and nothing else. As I look back, I realize that we entered the mineral industry mere ignoramuses; we emerged with a scientific education but no money to speak of.

Mind you, there was nothing wrong with the Golden Hoax, except one minor detail. It lacked ore and in this respect was like most of the mines now being promoted. However, mere lack of ore never daunts a real mining man, and we were mining men. So we staked a whole mountain and we knew that if we did not hit ore at once we could keep on tunneling forever.

This is what we did. We never quite reached the end of the mountain but we reached the end of our money and it was only the reactionary, capitalistic financial system of Canada, its refusal to lend us more, which stopped us in what might have been the greatest mineral discovery of the age. No one can say that another Hollinger, Flin Flon or Noranda does not lie within that mountain because the financial markets and predatory interests would never let us find out. After that we all became pretty radical in our politics.

But in the meantime we got a lot for our investment, the best hundred dollars' worth on the market. So long as you are in the market you are a capitalist and you can enjoy every sensation known to the richest man on Wall Street. With a trembling hand we would take up the evening paper and turn to the financial page and scan the stock quotations! How we would listen to the radio and eagerly debate the probable price of gold until we became authorities on the science of money and economists in our own right! Our thrills were deeper than those of the rich investor, for he could lose heavily without pain, whereas we had only a hundred dollars and a rise or fall of a cent in the market was all the difference between affluence and poverty. It was a life of adventure all right.

But it was expensive because the man who is in the market must live like a capitalist. We took to smoking better cigars and buying better whisky and eating at the best places, and when brokers nodded to us on the streets or spoke to us over the ticker tape, we knew we had arrived, and we lived up to it. It is not the original investment in a mining stock which costs the money. It is the upkeep.

I must confess I could not have supported my stock much longer when the crash came. We ran out of money then and could tunnel no more. But as the directors pointed out in a sound and conservative report, we had created large assets. We had a comfortable camp for miners, a lot of machinery and a long tunnel, and if ore were ever discovered, the directors said, we would certainly have a mine. This statement has never been successfully challenged.

And as we stood at the mouth of the tunnel and looked into it and realized that we owned a whole mountain where thousands of miles of tunnel could still be driven, we began to appreciate the inexhaustible wealth of this nation and the wonders of nature.

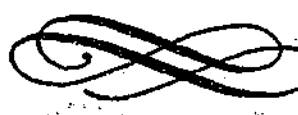

But with a rather fine unselfishness, we are leaving the present stock boom to a new generation. We have gone back to cheap cigars and eating places and no brokers speak to us, for we are not capitalists any more. We are broke, yet somewhere in the muntains we own a vast and aching cavity, full of golden memories.

☆ On The CONTRARY

—By BOB STRACHAN

FOR five more years Canada will be governed by Mackenzie King, a Liberal Government and a heterogeneous opposition.

The many-party mixture of the opposition seems to have been caused by the people of each province searching and voting for good government according to their experience with their own provincial governments.

In Alberta, where for ten years a Provincial Social Credit government has been administering the affairs of the people well, the voters went to the polls in a majority for Social Credit candidates.

In Saskatchewan, where the CCF government has been providing reasonable and progressive legislation for almost a year, the CCF candidates won the majority of the seats.

The Ontario voters, remembering the Liberal gyrations of Mitch Hepburn, and dragooned away from the CCF by the Goebbels-like attacks of B. A. Trestail, went Conservative.

Mr. King will not have the strong one-sided government of the past five years. He will have to keep all of his own party members satisfied. A comparatively few Liberals, by voting with the Opposition, could throw a monkey wrench in the works and another election in the laps of the people.

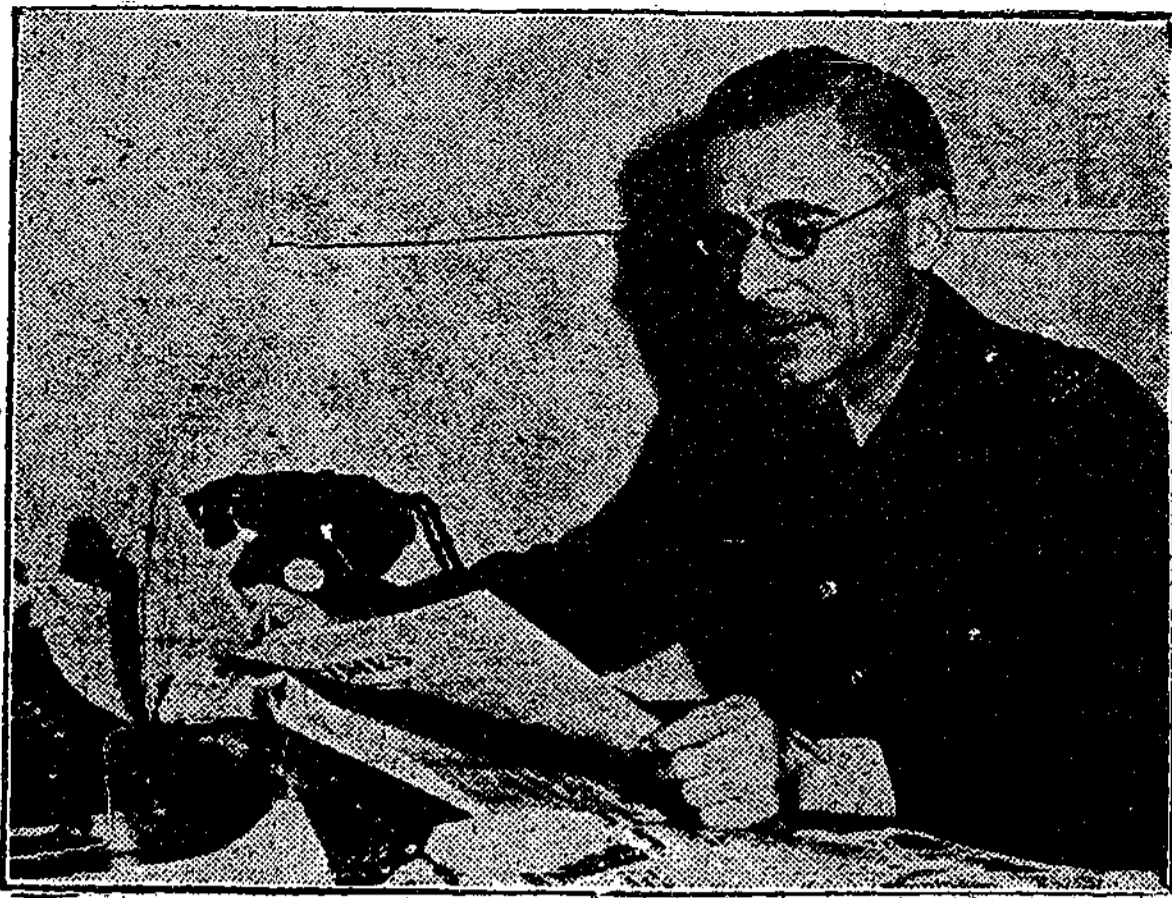

However, there should be no necessity for this if election promises mean anything at all. Before the election, all parties and candidates promised great things for Canada if they were elected. This means that all of the 245 members of our House of Commons were elected on a promise to give us legislation which would provide rational reform, full employment at fair wages, social security, and a guaranteed income for the farmers.

With all of the members already pledged to this, and all agreed beforehand that such things are a necessity, nothing should stand in the way of these promises being fulfilled and augmented.

Canadians are really taking an interest in their post-war government. This was indicated by the extremely high percentage of voters who went to the polls on election day.

Canadians are awake to the fact that Parliament can prevent and alleviate certain conditions which have distressed us considerably in the past. The people will watch the new Parliament and its members as never before, and any attempt at party or partisan politics, any attempt to delay, obstruct or neglect progressive legislation by any party, group or member will be remembered come election day, 1950.

Mr. King once remarked that society does owe something to the great body of working people. This is

The grim story of the part Canada played in rolling back the Nazi and Fascist armies was told by Powley and the men with him—Mat Halton, Peter Stursberg, Bill Herbert, and other CBC war correspondents who ate, marched and slept in the front lines. Now they will bring to Canadians the story of Europe as it rises from the ashes of war. Their reports are heard on the CBC News Roundup on Station CBR each weekday at 4.45 and 10.15 p.m.

'JIM SPRINGER', PIONEER COAST LOGGER, PASSES AWAY IN 83rd YEAR

George William Urquhart, 83, better known as Jim Springer, passed away at Powell River last month after a long illness.

Mr. Urquhart had returned from Vancouver last January to reside with his son, George William, in Powell River. Surviving are three other sons, Charles of Vancouver, and James and Robert of Seattle. A daughter, Mrs. William Mitchell, also resides in Seattle. Mrs. A. Bell of Westview is a sister.

Mr. Urquhart, who was better known along this part of the coast as "Jim Springer", was one of the earliest pioneers in the Powell River district. Born in Nova Scotia in 1862, he came to Powell River in 1883 at a time when the only settlement consisted of two small logging camps owned and operated by the Moodyville Sawmill Co. In memoirs published about 15 years ago, Mr. Urquhart recalled that one camp, called Dickenson's, was located on the site of the present Powell River mill, while another, Dineen's Camp was further down the coast.

In 1900 Mr. Urquhart returned again and worked until 1904 with the B.C. Timber & Trading Co, which finished logging the Wildwood area. In 1907 he returned again with a logging outfit owned by J. Sayward of Victoria. With the tug "Hope", two scows loaded with complete equipment for the camp and a logging railway were put ashore, and the camp established on the site of the P. R. Golf Club. The railway was known as the "Michigan & Puget Sound", and ran from Powell Lake to Willingdon Beach.

Wm. H. Whalen Passes at Home

William Henry Whalen, 74, pioneer B.C. pulp man, collapsed and died at his residence in Vancouver.

He was born at Collingwood, Ont., and came to Vancouver in 1910 from Fort William. With his brother, he built and operated the original pulp and paper mill at Woodfibre. He was among the charter members of the Vancouver Club. He was a keen curler, and in 1936 was on the rink that represented B.C. in the Macdonald Brier event.

Surviving are four daughters, Miss Margo Whalen, Mrs. E. T. O'Malley, Mrs. C. G. Cronisha and Mrs. W. Dennies, all of Vancouver, and two sons, Sgt. Leonard, RCASC, Camp Borden, and William at Woodfibre.

Real estate continues to move rapidly in this area. The latest sale of consequence is the purchase by Capt. H. Sparling of several cottages at Garden Bay between the hospital and licensed premises owned by Gordon Lyons. It is understood that the price was in the neighborhood of $9,000.

There has been a great demand for summer accommodation here.

It is stated that Capt. Sparling plans to renovate the cottages before next season and generally make the area more attractive.

Another probability is that he will open a retail store, a fine large building for the purpose being included in the deal.

The Sparlings have other property which they acquired several months ago.

my dismay that the bears had been back again and pulled some wire off the front of the hen house, helped themselves to a chicken breakfast, and departed. The shack was a sorry mess of wounded and dead birds and feathers.

FACE-TO-FACE

By this time I was getting quite nervous, with no chance to run out for help without the possibility of running into some of these animals.

I made myself a cup of tea, ate a little breakfast, and picking up my Bible read the 91st Psalm to reassure myself, for I had never known real fear before. I tried to do my house work, then busied myself with some weaving. In the late afternoon I went to take a rest but in a few moments the sound of clattering boards put an end to that. I charged to the scene with a long plank, but the damage had been done—the bear had been at the chicken house and loosened the boards. I ran around the end of the house and met Bruin face-to-face. His expression seemed to demand to know exactly what I wanted. I didn't want anything—except the safety of the house.

THE HENHOUSE AGAIN

When my husband returned that evening I breathed a prayer. We decided that I had better learn to use the gun.

The next day was Sunday, so we decided to lay in wait for the visitors. My husband rested while I kept watch at the window, and about 10.30 Mr. Bear was back again, and made up the apple tree. One shot scared him out there, and he lit out for some other more hospitable place. We slept peacefully that night, sure we had gotten rid of one.

Monday my husband went to work as usual and before I was up and around there was a terrific din from the henhouse. As I reached the scene I saw a large black bear just clawing his way out of the henhouse. I made for the gun but missed bruin. As he made off into the bush I thought "Now's my chance to get away!" I headed for a neighbour's home, Mr. Smith, and got him to keep watch while I went to find my husband.

A CUB ELIMINATED

They saw nothing more that day, but I was still too nervous to stay alone. Mr. Smith came up to keep watch, and at 5 p.m. he caught sight of a large bear. He fired, and bruin disappeared but when we went to look for him there was no trace—then a whining sound attracted our attention, and up in a young alder tree was a cub. He was eliminated.

Midnight a few nights later I heard the boards again, but we knew he couldn't get in as we had boarded up the chicken house. We lit lamps, however, and left them burning to keep any more away.

ALL IS PEACEFUL

The next morning we were up bright and early, prepared for anything. Soon a bear came in and picked up a small chicken. Ten minutes later he came back for another bite, but we gave this one to him in lead, and he dropped on the spot.

Now everything is peaceful around the old farm. We have not seen any more bear, so we think that our diligence and worried nights must have accounted for the whole four.

P.S.—We are getting a good dog and are turning the job of guarding the farm over to him.

The wharf and beaches are cheery places these days, resounding to the cry of the seagulls and the joyful sound of children's voices. This spot on Howe Sound is a gem on the Pacific, and is comparable to the famed "Kyles-of-Butte" on the Firth of Clyde, Scotland.

SPENCERS RETIRING

Our best wishes go to Mr. and Mrs. Spencer in their retirement from the store and post-office. Mr. Spencer was postmaster for fifteen years, and has earned a well-deserved rest.

The store and post-office have been taken over by Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and Mr. Chambers Sr., to whom we extend our best wishes in their new venture.

NEW WATER TANK

The Grantham Community Association are installing a new 9,000 gallon tank to their water system, which at present is being taxed to capacity.

A picturesque boat sailing these waters at present is the "Me-Too". Its dark hull and the shrimp nets hanging from the yardarm give it a piratical appearance.

SUMMER VISITORS

The "Coast News" extends a hearty welcome to our increasing number of summer visitors. Among them we notice Capt. Smith, who was in command of the "Empress of Asia" when it was sunk by the Japs in the Far East.

FIRST SUBSCRIBER

Mr. and Mrs. Pringle and family are here for the month of July. Mr. Pringle, who was born in Singapore, thinks that Grantham's is the gem of the ocean. Mr. Pringle was Grantham's first subscriber to The Coast News.

BACK FROM WAR

Home from the war is Group-Captain McNab, who was decorated with the DFC in the Battle of Britain.

Capt. Bob Stevenson is a busy man with his fleet of rowboats. Just now its "come early or you will have to swim!"

Alf Emerson is tuning up the "Lady Ann" for the Salmon Derby.

Among our old-time visitors we notice Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Moore and Jackie, Mr. and Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Dunmore and daughter, Mrs. Baron, Mrs. Cowan and Miss Stewart.

AB Gordon B. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim King, arrived home on Wednesday, July 18, accompanied by his wife and infant son. Mrs. King is an ex-member of the CWAC in Halifax.

Seaman King joined the crew of HMCS Sanspeur on the west coast in October, 1941. Later he was transferred to the east coast, where he joined HMCS Pictou, and finally went on the minesweeper HMCS Border Cities as a submarine detector. This latter ship spent some time in the North Atlantic.

AB King is home on a 28-day leave, and expects to be one of a group which will be demobilized at the end of the leave period.

Coincidentally, FO Bert Chester arrived at Half Moon Bay with his wife and son Kenneth, to visit Mrs. E. Mosier and her son Dick, on the same day that Seaman King arrived.

These two young men have known each other for years, having gone to school together at Mission City, where they had lived for some time. The last time they met was in the Beaver Club in London in 1943.

FO Chester was attached to an RCAF squadron in England during 1943, and flew a Mitchell medium bomber over France in many expeditions to knock out rocket-bomb sites, air fields and other targets. He was transferred back to Canada in March of 1944 as an instructor at the OTU at Boundary Bay.

Country Life

by GABRIELLE READ

Lets' talk about Bear Facts.

Did you ever know a bear could laugh? Well this one could—and did.

This mischievous, furry beast had been taking a neighbor's chickens for almost a week. On this particular day bruin decided he would come nearer the house; there he stood under a spreading pine tree tree, just outside the bedroom window.

I'm sure the bear was aware that there was no man about the house. Trembling and fearful, the farmer's wife picked up a stick and made a couple of preliminary passes at Bruin, and he took the hint, scrambling for the nearest tree. But when he got safely into the branches he paused to poke an inquiring snout out and actually bestowed a grin upon the woman, whose plight was still as bad as ever.

He was a young bear, but he seemed to know that even if the farmer's wife did rouse enough courage to go for the gun she feared she wouldn't be steady enough to shoot straight.

The bear was right. The lady dropped the stick and hurried into the house. Hastily donning clothes—for it was six in the morning—she grabbed the 30-30 in shaking hands and sped for dear life down the road.

It was, she felt, the duty of the man of the house to cope with Bruin. She wanted no part of it.

And Now Our Third Issue

THIS is the third issue of The Coast News, and we're glad to report that we seem to be getting somewhere.

Public reception of our new venture has been immediate and gratifying in all parts where we have been able to establish proper contacts. Due to the rather scattered nature of our territory, however, we have still a great many points in which to find correspondents and subscribers, but we have no misgivings as to the extent of our success when we do make proper contacts.

We hope we have been able thus far to justify our ambition. We fortunately have no past to live down—only a bright and shining future to live up to. So long as we receive your continued co-operation, it will not be difficult, we think.

Ernie Pearson sums it up in his report this way: "I met with a good reception wherever I went . . . People seemed highly pleased at the prospect of getting a local paper. It would be an extremely long list if I tried to name all those who have been helpful, but I feel I should mention C. G. Ballentine of Gibson's and Mr. Pringle of Grantham's."

In our "Letters" column this week are a few more typical comments, all of which add up to the fact that your publishers are willing to continue a while longer with their meatless days in order to assure the venture a fair trial. (We think it can be no secret that these first few months of The Coast News will represent a direct loss financially.)

That, however, is satisfactory to us. Weekly newspapers are essentially a community service, and eventually begin to stand on their own feet.

And so, with community service as our first object, and personal remuneration secondary, we hope to continue a forward march without too much difficulty and with pleasant results to you.

Which is by way of saying "Thanks!" to you, and "Keep up your interested support."

The E. & N. Land Grant

Taxation of timber lands in the E. & N. R. belt "seems altogether too low," according to Mr. H. W. Davey, Victoria, counsel for the B. C. Forestry Commission. He urges that a severance tax equivalent to royalties paid by other timber tenures should be imposed.

As we understand the story, it is this. In the early days timber was looked on as an encumbrance and hindrance to settlers. Transportation was needed. Hence the E. & N. land grant was made, provided Mr. Dunsmuir would build a railway between Nanaimo and Esquimalt. The land was to be tax free. Should it be sold to anyone, it became taxable.

The Dunsmuir railway interests passed into the hands of the CPR and therefore became taxable. Under the McBride-Bowser Government the tax was set at 1½ cents an acre. That Government had practically no opposition. The electors then, as largely now, took no real interest in governmental affairs—apart from negotiating their votes at election times.

From time to time attention has been called to what Mr. Davey now calls "extraordinary privileges" enjoyed by the railway company. Many years ago we ascertained that the company did so by legal contract and act of the B.C. Legislature and that it was impossible to alter the situation.

If Mr. Justice Sloan can suggest some means of restoring to the B. C. public the remnant of the many millions of dollars their own lack of citizenship plus the operations of a pliable government, have lost them, the B.C. Forestry Commission will have achieved the impossible.

—The Cowichan Leader.

THAT'S RIGHT—SMILE!

Did I hear someone say, "How can I smile and be cheerful when there are so many things to upset me?" Well, I bet that you'll find it isn't really any harder to be cheerful, no matter what reverses obstruct your pathway, or what plagues follow in your trail to annoy you, if only you'll practice the fine art of cheerfulness.

I'll admit it isn't everyone who can accomplish this without practice—yes, indeed, it takes practice.

Then again, I think we should ask ourselves what is to be gained by looking and feeling sad when troubles throng around us, or how is our condition to be alleviated or improved by abandoning ourselves to despondency. If you are a young man or woman, nature designed you to "be of good cheer," and should you find your road to fortune, fame or respectability, or to any other boon your young heart aspires, a little thorny, and many a young person does these days, consider it all for the best, and that the present impediments are only thrown in your way to induce greater effort and more patient endurance on your part.

Far better spend a whole life in diligent, aye, cheerful and unremitting toil, though you never attain the pinnacle of your ambitious desires, than to turn back at the first appearance of misfortune and allow despair to unnerve your energies, or curb your naturally sweet and cheerful disposition.

Of course, I submit that this is fairly sound reasoning also for you, dear lady, in the home, with all your little and not so little irritations, plagues and despair. It may not be so easy, but as I have said before, it can be obtained by persistent practice—nothing worthwhile was ever accomplished without a struggle, was it? and cheerfulness in face of difficulties, tends for better health and happiness.

—just try it! Talk happiness—not now and then, but every blessed day; even if you don't believe the half you say; there's no room here for him who whines as on his way he goes. Remember, friend, the world is sad enough without your woes. Talk happiness each chance you get—and talk it good and strong; Look for it in the byways as you grimly plod along: Perhaps it is a stranger now whose visit never comes, that Health and Happiness are chums.

Don't forget . . . Look for the silver lining and Keep Smiling!

Norwegians Go Back to Country

BODOE, Norway.—In this tiny community sixty miles north of the Arctic Circle, a handful of Norwegian members of the British liberation army, assisted by home guardsmen and police, are disarming the entire 14th Luftwaffe Division of 12,000 men.

Some 60,000 rifles, pistols, machine guns, and small arms of all descriptions lie in a Norwegian depot at Fauske, 20 miles from Bodoe on a magnificent salt-water fiord.

German camps speckle the rugged countryside. From this area the Germans based their offensive against the Allied convoys bound around the North Cape to Murmansk. The huge airfield at Bodoe, with superb runways of timber, served as headquarters.

Today this airfield is being used by American transport planes which daily ferry supplies and needed materials from Sweden to aid an estimated 80,000 Russian prisoners of war who were used by the Nazis as slave laborers in northern Norway.

Members of the Coalition Government meeting in caucus in Victoria on Wednesday, July 11, by formal resolution recommended to the Liberal and Progressive Conservative organizations and their supporters that; "it is considered in the best interest of the people and of good Government in British Columbia that the Coalition of the Liberal and Conservative parties should continue."

At the conclusion of the caucus, Premier John Hart held a press conference at which he made public the following resolution which was passed unanimously:

"Whereas the members of the Legislature, representing respectively the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties, have held separate meetings, at which each group unanimously resolved:

"That in view of war conditions and the necessity of united efforts in adequately meeting our postwar problems, it is considered in the best interests of the people and of good government in British Columbia that the Coalition of the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties should continue; "Therefore this joint meeting of members of the Legislature of both parties hereby recommend to their respective party organizations and supporters their consideration of the above resolution."

FREIGHT RATES

A special conference between the four Western Premiers, namely, S.S. Garson of Manitoba, T.C. Douglas of Saskatchewan, E.C. Manning of Alberta and John Hart of British Columbia, will be held to discuss general freight rate questions, it was announced by Premier John Hart.

NEW SCHOOL PLANS

The report of the Provincial Committee on plans for rural schools has been completed, it was announced by H.G. T. Perry, Minister of Education.

Copies of the report are being sent to the various school boards in the Province. The report indicates that building costs will be slightly higher to meet the advanced requirements. The designs call for adequate accommodations and facilities for teaching in addition to improved lighting and sanitary arrangements.

ALASKA HIGHWAY

Alaska Highway construction is one of the major items to be taken up with Federal authorities when Premier John Hart goes to Ottawa. This was intimated by the the premier following a conference with a delegation from the Advisory Council to the Hon. C. Wallgren, Governor of the State of Washington, held in Victoria on Friday, July 13.

The Premier said he was most anxious to see the highway constructed on a basis of co-ordinated effort between Canada and the United States. Coincidental with the Premier's announcement was that made by Mr. Kirby Billingsley, head of the American delegation, who advised the Premier that President Truman, upon his return from Europe, would immediately get in touch with Prime Minister Mackenzie King to negotiate with him on construction of the highway on a mutual basis.

GRUBSTAKING PLAN

So far this season, between 35 and 40 person have taken advantage of the Provincial Government's grubstaking plan whereby a prospector may receive up to a maximum of $300 by way of a grubstake and up to $200 additional for travel, it was announced by the Honourable E. C. Carson, Minister of Mines.

The prospectors are being sent mostly to five outstanding localities as follows: The Haines road district in the Atlin riding; The Manson-Takla District in the Omineca riding; The east side of the Coast Range southeast from Whitesail Lake in the Dean and Bella Coola Districts; The Hope-Princeton road and district and the territory east of Duncan River in the East Kootenays.

In making this announcement, the Honourable Mr. Carson, stated that greater supervision was being given this type of prospecting this year. The prospector being asked to search for all types of minerals but more especially for gold since it is felt that the precious metals will now be coming into their own as the demand for base metals recedes.

It is too early yet to know to what extent veterans of this war will take advantage of this service as there have not

(a) Our Allies are not to be trusted; (b) Terror propaganda trying to worry the British soldier about his folks at home; (c) The German soldier cannot be beaten and it is useless to try.

The far-flung district which will be served through your publication will, I feel sure, be knitted more closely than it ever has been before. I am wishing you all success."

Capt. James Harvey, also at Gibson's, writes: "Enclosed find cheque for a year's subscription to the new venture in this district. I admire your nerve—go to it!"

Thanks, folks, for the encouragement. We're certainly going to try to deserve all those kind words.

Meantime, if any of you can dig out some more subscribers, encourage them to send their order in for the paper. The more readers we have, the more advertising space we can sell. The more advertising space
